A CITY UNDER ONE ROOF.

Its Queer Citizens-Their Employment, etc-Beautiful Location-Its History.

About a mile from Morristown, this State, is a city covered by a single roof. It is a much larger city than many of those in the orient, but perhaps does not contain so many inhabitants. The person who starts at a given point and follows its windings completely around the building back to the point of beginning, has walked, after he reaches the latter point, just a mile and a quarter. It is the largest building in the State, as well as the costliest, and is perhaps the largest lunatic asylum in the world. It is famous for size and infamous on account of its tremendous extravagance of cost. Not because it cost more than such a building is worth, as its price was much less than such a building ordinarily costs, but because the State needed no such mastodonic institution, and the people were not ready to pay two and a half millions for any public building of any kind. In its early days it was the cause of much bitterness and political heart-burning, but this was in the past, and, after all said and done, the State is the owner of a magnificent lunatic asylum, on which it owes not a dollar, and which is worth every dollar paid for it. The stone of which it was built was site, and the bricks used in its construction were dug, kneaded and baked in ing out of the internal economy are perthe back yard. The edifice occupies a commanding position, upon the top of a foot hill, from whose base spreads away a grand panorama of valley and hill, enlivened by the glitter of a lovely stream coursing through one of the val-

Some relief was obtained by the building of county asylums, but this did not sufficiently meet the emergency, and the Legislature appropriated a million dollars, or thereabouts, for the erection of a lunatic asylum at Morris Plains.

The managers were nearly the same as now, viz.: Francis S. Lathrop, Madison; Beach Vanderpool, Newark; Anthony Reckless, Red Bank; George A. Halsey, Newark; William G. Lathrop, of faithful and unwearied attention on Boonton; John S. Read, Camden; Jos. D. Bedle, Jersey City; Samuel S. Clark, and the kind and careful treatment of M. D., Belvidere; Hiram C. These gentlemen laid the most elaborate plans, and the work began under the supervision of General Fitz John Porter. Before the work had gone very far, however, it became evident that another appropriation was needed, and it was cheerfully made, so that the fund was increased to $1,600,000, with which the work was speeded rapidly. But the afflicted ones to the perfect regime of money was exhausted and the building this institution than to that of a private was not nearly completed. Protesting Against Serenades.

HOBOKEN, February 28, 1882.

Editor Advertiser: It is with horror and indignation that have made the discovery, after a week of catlike vigilance, that the author of "Tale of Serenade," which appeared in your issue of the 18th inst., the innocent "Milles," is no other than the unscrupulous writer of the letter in reply to the article on the "Cicero nian Society," which appeared in the ADVER TIME some time ago.

That letter was signed with the sanguinary nom de plume of "Soldier." Now, "Milles" is the Latin for soldier, and it is therefor evident that the two articles were written by one and the same individual, who has thus piserably failed in concealing his identity.

I write in behalf of an outraged community of young ladies, whose nights are made hideous with the vain endeavors of disgust ingly sentimental swains to warble forth the music (?) of their false hearts, accompanied in almost every instance with a full chorus of animate sausage meat from the neighbor ing fences

Doers of evil seek the mantle of night t cloak their heinous designs and to perpetrate their nuisances, and it was with much pair that I beheld, on that eventful evening of which the scheming "Milles" writes, from my peaceful window, that two of my serenaders were once members, honored and be loved, of the great Ciceronian Society, nov

Alas! How noble men degenerate, whe inspiring influences cease. Oh, ye enraged spirits of the classic ancients, ye gods of the mighty pen and of wisdom! Oh, thou disturbed and agonized shade of Cicero, haunt me not at this dismal hour! Add not. I be seech, to the draught of torture borne upon the wings of the affrighted midnight air which forces itself through every crack and knot-hole in my bleeding heart!

While I patiently bore the first groans o that quartette of owls, recollections of the great defunct literary society arose in my troubled mind, and in quick succession it dent, the intellectual and gastronomic feast and the hair-splitting arguments, passed in solemn and ghostly procession before mem ory's never failing vision.

"Milles" (I will not expose his real nam for the sake of his feeble constitution) presents in his article the mark-point of each o the graceless serenaders. The so-called "Nimrod," from his propensity for hunting for what he can't get, is irrepressible. "Beli zarius," and the pretentious "Quatyreux, gifted with second sight.

It is needless almost to add that those who are disgraced with the acquaintance of this Milles" are well aware of the feebleness of is mind, the shallowness of which he could not better portray, as when he presents his own character as the "Cartridge," which is only capable of going off with much nois and in smoke.

I entreat you, gentlemen, to use the influence of your worthy paper, in preventing the recurrence of so harassing a performan serenade, upon the unprotected feminin

The Latest Novelty.

Another fiend hath arisen in the land. Not now the long-winded insurance agent, nor the sharp lightning-rod man, neither the importunate representative of a sewing machine company, but the meek-eyed and silveryvoiced thermometer fiend. But he is a good flend, his meekness being his redeeming feature, and his satanic appellation being given him, only because of his clinging, yearning propensities, for, like a bird of prey, he steals into the quiet of your lonely home, or intrudes upon you at the office desk. devouring your shining leisure moment with an implacable insatiety.

He has been here in our own beloved city but no wasting disease or heartrending devastation, except in the pockets of his victims, has marked the flend's triumphant march, but, to keep alive his memory, stands gelical Church, of this city, from Rutger's a tall and beautiful thermometer, enclosed with an infallible barometer in an exquisitely esthetic frame, nailed up against the outer excess of appropriation, made by any city wall of an equally exquisite segar store, on Board having control of improvements and the public road to the ferry-house, also an extremely æsthetic structure.

Hear the suppressed exclamations of the awed and admiring mob, who, surrounding it, eagerly drink in with truly artistic spirit the beauties of that monitor of heat and cold, whose beauty is the more enhanced by its charming environs. It smiles upon the opposite beer saloons, attractive, with their floors verdant with dirty sand and tobacco juice, whose atmosphere rich and baimy, is burdened with the fragrant fumes of the free lunch, while the adjoining "grade-wie-indeutchland" summer gardens, add a perennial freshness to the scene, which brings to your mind and heart, the hope that some day the desert will blossom as the beauteou spring. But not only does the thermometer perform the faithful duty of recording atmosprominent towns of New Jersey. Many will pheric notions, but it attracts the unwilling public to the perusal of the advertisements in its case, of Hoboken's most enterprising a crowd on the grand stand each day. The tradesmen. Here butcher and baker and candlestick-maker, and even the popular clothier and the infantile coal merchants, hold forth inducements which grant them liberal profits.

It will also be convenient for the wretch who deserts his wife to the lonely companionship of a darning-needle, and goes to a meet- ris. ing of lodge (?), returning when the crowing cock, and silent yowler announce the near approach of the morrow, to ascertain the state of the domestic atmosphere, and the barometer to tell him whether he may expect thunder or lightning, or both, or if all will be clear when he tremblingly enters his seaceful home.

Oh, ye revered gods of the fine arts of man and his architecture, preserve from the destructive blast of Time, this trophy of the flend's prowess and skill! BEAUMARIS.

The Professor has been lecturing in the Reformed Church, Bergen, during the past week, to the great delight of the people. The Jersey City Evening Journal, speaking of the ecture, says:

"An entertainment, decidedly unique in character, was given on Tuesday evening in the chapel of the Bergen Reformed Church. Mr. A. O. Van Lenney, a native of Turkey, delivered a deeply interesting and instruc tive lecture, upon the "Customs and cos umes of the Orient, as illustrating the Word of God." The lecturer appeared in the garb of an effendi, or Turkish gentleman, and after describing the several garments, outer robe, girdle, etc., he called upon the stage number of gentlemen, representing the various classes and districts of the vast Turkish Empire. The guard appeared, armed to the teeth, with sword, pistols and blunderbuss carrying cartridge box, dispatch box and canteen. have been received by him in fines from prisoners during the month of February. At the recent election of officers of Engine Company No. 3, C. H. King was elected Foreman and D. H. Manken Assistant Foreman. The Thomas F. Normoyle Association will hold their annual ball at Odd Fellows' Hall, on Tuesday evening next. Music by Prof. Mulligan.

Thomas Leonard, who assaulted and nearly killed Herman Grimm some months ago, was sentenced yesterday to three years and six months in State Prison.

The Mayor has not approved the contract for printing the Financial Statement, which was awarded to Edwin J. Kerr. Kerr would have lost money on his bid.

Prof. Wallace gave his "white apron" reception last evening, at his dancing academy, on Bloomfield street. The attendance was large and the affair passed off successfully.

April 19th-Nestor Aymong. Mrs. Timothy Conlin, of this city, died on Tuesday, after a lingering illness. Funeral services were held yesterday at the Church of Our Lady of Grace, and were attended by a large circle of friends. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated. Cards bearing the familiar inscription "To Let," meet the gaze on every side, and while the real estate dealer is busy hunting up desirable tenants, tenants are also busy hunting up desirable houses. Houses should be secured at once, for rates are advancing. At a meeting of Third Ward Democracic Club, held at 203 Willow street, Wednesday evening, March 9, 1882, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Owen Duff; Vice President, Michael Flynn; Treasurer, Martin Farrell; Sergeant-at-Arms, James McAnally. Captain John Smith, for many years Super intendent of the New Jersey Ice Company, who was wide and favorably known throughout the county, died on Tuesday night at his home, in Ridgefield, this State, of pneumo-nia. He was a member of the Hoboken Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The Rev. George Jarvis Geer, D. D., Rector of St. Thursthy's Church, New York, will preach in Trinity Church, this city, to-morrow evening, and on Wednerday evening next, the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Jacob S. Shipman, D. D., D. C. L., Rector of

The "differences" between Wm. Heller and Thomas Miller, proprietors of the American Racket Court, on Hudson street, have been amicably settled and the partnership, which was declared dissolved recently, still exists. The Racket Court will be conducted as before.

The Rev. Dr. Geo. L. Hunt will preach in the First Baptist Church, corner Bloomfield and Third streets, to-morrow morning at 10:30. In the evening he will deliver the fifth lecture of his series on the Twelve Apostles, subject, "Matthew." These lectures are exceedingly interesting, and all who can make it convenient should attend them.

We have it on "good authority," that no "committee of Hoboken gentlemen," visited Secretary Folger, at Washington, Monday last, and interviewed him in regard to the "barge bill." There was but one Hoboken man in Washington, and he went there privately. The Jersey City papers were evidently "hard up" for an item when they published that story.

The Young Men's Independent Fourth Ward Democratic Club, at a regular meeting neld last week, at 122 First street, elected the following officers: President, Timothy Conlin: First Vice President, Julius Hahn: Second Vice President, Denis Sullivan; Recording Secretary, James Keane; Corresponding Secretary, Wm. C. Stanton: Treasurer, Fred. Kammerer; Sergeant-at-Arms, John Fenton.

An interesting entertainment will be given by the Young Men's Literary Union of St.

A postal card, signed by Captain Symes, Company E, Ninth Regiment, N. G. N. J., is out, notifying the holders of chances on the carriage that was to be raffled at the late regimental fair, that the drawing will take place this evening, at Naegeli's Hotel, Hudson and Third streets, at 8 o'clock. The delay has been caused by the difficulty of securing the requisite number of chances. The card informs us that there are still a few chances needed to complete the list.

The Second Ward Democratic Club organ ized on Wednesday evening, March 8th, at H. Klune's, 210 Washington street. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Charles W. Kaufman; First Vice President, Geo. P. Schinzel; Second Vice President, John H. Prichard; Secretary, Wm. Seeligsberg; Treasurer, Thos. H. McCann. The club will meet every Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, at the above named place. It is gratifying to state that this organization is n a very flourishing condition and is composed of the best citizens of the ward.

The Rev. Mr. Hafferman, the eccentric expastor of the German Lutheran Church, who, since his enforced retirement from the ministry, has caused much trouble in Hoboken by his "queer" behavior, has at last started to join his family in Europe. He sailed on Saturday last. His former friends in this city have repeatedly persuaded him to leave, but after making all his arrangements several times, he would suddenly change his mind. This time he has gone, but he is reported to have said when he boarded the steamer, that they had only gotten rid of him for a short time and that he would come back again.

Broken Union and Homestead Banks

Master in Chancery W. B. Williams has completed the task of taking testimony in regard to the accounts of Mr. Michael Sandford, Preceiver of the Union Savings Bank, of Jersey

Fred. Mass,

17 00 receiver of the Union Savings Bank, of Jersey City, and a report of the result of the examination is expected in a few week. Mr. Sandford was also a receiver of the Homestead Savings Bank of this city for several years, and was removed from the position about a year ago. His accounts as receiver of this bank have also been before Mr. Williams for examination, but nothing has yet been done with them, as Mr. Williams has been waiting to conclude the examination of the Union Savings Bank's accounts first. In the mean-time the depositors of the broken Homestead Bank of Hoboken, which failed about five years ago, who are mostly of the poorer Savings Bank's accounts first. In the meanyears ago, who are mostly of the poorer classes, and have as yet received no dividends, are anxiously awaiting for the affairs to be closed up. The present receiver, Mr. Abel I. Smith, cannot make progress until the exreceiver's accounts are passed upon.

To the Council: I return without approval your resolution of 21st ultimo, empowering your Committee on Sewers to construct a box sewer in Marshall street and a sluice-gate at the outlet of Third street sewer, on the meadows, and the City Clerk to receive bids for same; also your resolution of 28th ultimo, directing your Committee on Sewers to have built the sluice-gate, according to plans prepared by Messra, Beyer & Tivy.

No restriction as by law directed, has been received.

Boyer & Tivy.

No petition, as by law directed, has been received to the proposed box sewer.

There is a sinice-gate at the place designated; what another there be required for, I do not know. The plans of Messrs. Beyer & Tivy, as referred to, know nothing about; they have not been ordered or approved by the Council, that is certain.

Bids received by the City Clerk should always be advertised for.

surprised that they passed so readily. The cost would undoubtedly be several hundreds of dollars, and you know the requirements of the charter in such case.

such case.

Simply because we have a fair balance to the credit of the Sewer Fund, is no reason why we should expend it. The money can only be lawfully expended, in the first place, and if, with good management, meeting all necessary expenses, we be enabled to carry over a surplus to next year, it will be some evidence that we have the interest of the public at heart, in the second. Whatever had begun their feud, A word might soon have changed their mood But either would have judged it weak That kind and generous word to speak. Their hatred therefore gathered strength With every day; until, at length, Their wisest friends would try no more Their old relations to restore Then each the other blamed aloud, And told his faults in every crowd; Then each to slander turned his tongue. And anger's vulgar missiles flung; As if the cleaner one appears, The more his neighbor he besmears.

By tortuous streaks of greener grass.

When now, from passion's burning height, Jones thought he saw just what was right-Although he would have found, when cooled, That he had been deceived, befooled-Old Quibble's office straight he sought, And all his wrongs before him brought, And vowed if justice could be won On earth, it should be surely done. "Your cause is good," the lawyer cried, "I dare for you at once decide." The winds with speed dispersed the news; Nor could John Wiggins well refuse To stand defence. He thought, besides, Since law for just awards provides, That when the facts were known and bared For him must judgment be declared; While Jones should find, that in her schoo Dame Justice scourages every fool, With hopes like these, he spread his case Before a lawyer's gracious face.

"It grieves me, sir," the man replied, "That I must take the other side; Had Jones not been before you here, I would of course for you appear. Yet let me say I have a friend Whom I am free to recommend; In practice skilled, in law profound As any man that walks the ground, A note from me will guide you right, And place this chance in proper light.' As Wiggins rose and left the place, His thanks were radiant in his face. When from the office well away, He wondered what the note might say, And chose to know; for Quibble's he The paper in his hand had placed Without a seal. Perhaps he thought One who at school was never taught Could read no written lines at all, Or such at least as lawyers scrawl.

"I seize my chance," the farmer said, And, as he spoke, he stood and read : "These geese are fat and heavy, brother : If you pick one I will the other." " I see the point," the man exclaimed, With waving fist and face inflamed; "The gain, it seems, in this affair, Will be to those who make us bare. Wat meene forsooth ! In vain the net In sight of even geese is set. Since Quiuble and his learned friend Would each his side with warmth defend With less regard to right and law Than to the fees they hope to draw, Their sordid wishes I will foil, And with my neighbor end the broil." If men heed not the lesson taught. Their wisdom may be dearly bought.

A Wedding in Wyoming.

Camping near the town, we secured our stock and then went in. Entering the leading store, I introduced myself to Mr. Stiles, one . the proprietors, and postmaster.

"It is now half-past two, and at three there's to be a wedding down the street at Jonas Barton's. Old Jonas is a rough old coon that we elected Justice of the Peace about a month ago, and, as this will be his first attempt at a marriage, I think we will see some fun."

Stiles then explained to him about how he should proceed, and the old man finally thought he should worry through in toler able shape. Ere long the couple appeared, followed by a crowd of the citizens of the camp. The candidates stood up before the Squire, who began:

Romance in a Silk Mill.

William S. Malcolm was an English silk weaver, who years ago went to Paterson, N. J., to work in the silk mills. Among the employes in the same mill was a young girl named Lazure, who felt sorry for the old hunchback and took his part on every sons. occasion, thus making herself many enemies his own, in which Miss Lazure was his of whom are domestic help. most trusted operative. He succeeded in his business ventures, and when he died some time go he left an estate worth $12,-000 in bonds and mortgages. His will provided that his wife should receive $350 per vear out of the income of the estate. Miss rived from the estate after the death of Mrs. Remedy relieved him entirely. The re-Malcolm

The annuities were paid and praise it highly.-Indianapolis (Ind.) by the executor, Mr. John Murphy. Mrs. Malcolm died about two years ago. Miss Lazure is still in receipt of her annuity. Shortly after Mrs. Malcolm's death Mrs. Mary Ann Hesketh, the sister of Mr. Malcolm, filed a petition in chancery asking the Chancellor to strike out of the will the provision relating to "the most deserving poor of Paterson," on the ground that it was indefinite and uncertain, and consequently illegal. The result of such an action would have been to give Mrs. Hesketh the whole of the estate, as the nearest of kin, with the exception of the $350 per year to Miss Lazure. The opinion in this case has now been filed, and the Chancellor declines to grant the prayer of the petitioner, as he decides that the term "the most deserving poor of Paterson" is sufficiently clear to direct the executor what to do with the estate. Mr. Murphy now has the interesting question to decide as to who are "the most deserving poor of Paterson," for all of the income of the estate exceeding $350 per year is to be divided among them.

We are the only IMPORTERS dealing direct with the CONSUMER. Those who have used our TEAS AND COFFEES in the past are satisfied with their UNIFORM QUALITY and Low Price. We respectfully solicit a call from those who have not already tried our goods. If you really want to enjoy a Cup of good Tea, give our Early Pickings of the New Crep a trial; they surpass anything ever offered for sale.

Great Reduction in Coffees,

Positively no POLISHING MATTER used in roasting our Coffees—BEWARE OF ALL SUCH. Our Coffees are roasted and sold in their NATURAL STATE, no ingredients whatever being used to make them glossy. Sugars Sold at Cost! Note the address to guard against impos-ture, as our style and system of doing business is being closely imitated by mushroom concerns all over the country.

Always in stock the finest grade of ELGIN CREAMERY. None to equal it in the market.
