AN EX-MILLIONAIRE'S STORY.

How He Dropped From Affluence to the Grade of a Ragpicker- Joseph W. Rathbone's Fortune.

One of the noted characters of St. Louis, Mo., according to the Post-Dispatch of that city, is Joseph W. Rathwho now earns a livelihood by gatheryears of age, and is very reticent as to his past life. Recently he was recognized by a friend, who imparted the story of his career to a reporter.

"Something like twenty-five or thirty years ago," said the friend, "Joseph W. Rathbone was one of the most prominent young men in New York city. He was about two years younger. The father was at one time a sea captain, and made several voyages to China, on one of which the youngest son accompanied him, but never returned. During a storm he was swept overboard and lost, thus leaving Joseph the sole heir to the old man's money, his mother having died while he was quite young. At this time Joseph, I think, was about eighteen years old and was at Yale College. On his return from his last voyage his father decided to give up his seafaring life and settle down in New York. He purchased a dwelling on Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue, which was then a fashionable residence portion of the city, and probably feeling lonely in his old age, took his son out of college and purchased for him an interest in a large wholesale dry goods house. The young man showed remarkable tact, and for two or three years worked faithfully and energetically, much to his father's pride and satisfaction. Then he began to mingle in society, and as he always had plenty life his is undoubtedly the saddest." of money he was welcome everywhere by the young bloods of the town and by the fortune-hunting belles and their mammas. Although he did not actually neglect his business, he did not seem as deeply engrossed in it as formerly, and much of his income was spent in wine suppers and other kinds of dissipation followed by the rapid young men of the metropolis. "Finally he made the acquaintance of a young lady who moved in the upper circles of society, the daughter of a widow who was reported to be very wealthy. How she obtained her money, if she had any, was never known, and there was an air of mystery about her history which caused considerable talk in society, but educated people, they were recognized by the better classes. The daughter was an exceedingly handsome

Before 2 o'clock the quieter portion of the guests had become disgusted and left for their homes, and by 4 o'clock there was hardly any one present. About this time the groom succumbed to the influence of the wine and was carried helplessly drunk to one of the upper rooms, where he was left to sleep off the effects of his overdose.

"At about 9. o'clock he awoke, and, gathering his scattered senses, he started for the room which had been set apart for the use of himself and bride, deeply humiliated and prepared to make a most abject apology to her for his conduct, He found the door unlocked, and entering, discovered that a rival suitor was in at Dijon. her company. He gave himself up entirely to ments, with 197 field hospitals, and 62 redrink, and for several years frequented the eldest of two sons, his brother being the lowest drinking houses of the city, one of the most disgusting specimens of fallen humanity imaginable. He was sent to Blackwell's Island twice on the charge of vagrancy, and upon his release the last time he again disappeared from New York.

> How or why Rathbone came to St. Louis is not known, as he refuses flatly to talk about himself, and sometimes flies into an uncontrollable fit of rage when the subject is forced upon him. He lives in a little shanty in the vicinity of Broadway and North Market street, and has no companions but the wretchedlooking horse and a mangy dog, who has an irrepressible inclination to lunch off the bodies of trespassers on his master's premises. The old man has evidently forsworn drink, and hoards like a miser every dollar he makes as a ragman. His mind has undoubtedly become weakened through brooding over the deception a total of over 55,000,000 marks (£2,750,practiced upon him, and some day he will probably end his troubles by suicide. It is well known how heavily the abilities of this branch of the service were taxed; during September and October, 1870, alone, 135,636 sick and wounded from the siege armies around Metz filled the hospitals. Meanwhile a large number of reserve hospitals and medical stations with volunteer help were established in all parts of Germany, numbering at the end of the war, over 1,500. During the seven month of the campaign 290, 000 patients were admitted into the field hospitals, while 812,021 were cared for in 368 reserve establishments.

The great efforts of the Sanitary Service were ably seconded by the voluntary aid from bad to worse, and soon lost all respect from the German nation. The total amount for himself and robbed an editor .- Boomof money distributed by the Central Com- erang. mittee amounted to 33,000,000 marks in cash, besides 15,000,000 in goods and stores and 7,500,000 from other countries, principally from the Germansin America, being 000) contributed by voluntary donations to the army.

The Commissariat Department of the Germans was necessarily organized on the same great proportions as the other branches of the service. A central army depot was established at Mannheim, with a transportation service of 1,000 vehicles and also a large number of other depots at different 1870-71, "edited by the historical department places. Death has once more stilled the pulse of a man who, were it not for his little eccentricities as a human butcher and grand lamenary connoisseur, would have made an elegant humorist or statesman. Had he teen less of an enthusiast, and less radical as a murderer, he might have shone in the best of society. Had he pleaded emotional insanity the first time he got up a suprise funeral, instead of making an outlaw of himself, he might now be alive, loved and respected. But he was ignorant of the law, and thought that when a man murdered all the first-class pas sengers on the train, he would be harshly dealt with and ostracited. That is where he committed a grave error. He went Fraudulent Voting in Weehawken.

Four New York men, said to have been hired for the work, came over the river Tuesday, and went up to the polls at Weehawken to vote. According to an affidavit of Edward Clifford, of Weehawken, they succeeded in their design, but were obliged to "swear their votes in," as they were challenged as non-residents. Word was sent to Chief Donovan in this city, and in the evening all four of the fraudulent voters were arrested at

They gave their names as Richard McCormanick, Thomas Owens, John J. Dwyer and James Duffy, all of New York city. When brought before the Recorder. McCormanick declared that he had not voted. Mr. Linden's Petition Not "Cheeky. HOBOKEN, April 7, 1882.

Editor Advertiser:

In your issue of April 1, in commenting or a petition I had sent to the Mayor and Council, asking for a plot on Market Square, you were pleased to use the word "cheeky." Will you be kind enough to point out where have given you the right to use that word in your comments. I was not aware that I premises, as I find that in a certain ordinance in force, which relates to the Market Square, that any citizen wishing to go into busines on said square, must first make application to the Mayor and Council for a license, which to learn why I have not as much right to have a business stand on Market Square, for which purpose I believe it was dedicated, as the Mayor and Council have to take foreible possession of the square and erect thereon a City Hall, for which, I am legally informed, there is no law or right. If I am wrong please set me right. Again, at the meeting of the Council, on Tuesday evening, April 4, I understand that the City Attorney, to whom my petition had been referred, reported it to the Council with instructions to that body to refuse the application. Why did he neglect his duty in not giving his opinion on the subject? Was it because that, if he had given it legally, it would show that the city had no title to th square, so far as a right to build a City Hall was concerned?

I wish here to say that I am in business or my own account, and responsible to no one in this matter, and I know the worth of the part of the square I ask for, having been in the employ of Mr. Henry Wright on said square Respectfully, C. LINDEN.

[Note.-The above communication was re elved too late for publication in last week's issue. In regard to our choice of the term 'cheeky," we may state that we generally employ what seems to us the most fitting language in which to express our opinions and seldom ask permission of any one. As to the city's legal rights in the premises, if our correspondent does not accept the deci sion of the courts, it is not likely that our opinion would have much weight with him We do not intend to argue with him a ques tion which the courts alone can decide. It would be a useless and interminable argument. We are still of the opinion that Mr Linden never dreamed that his request would holders, Letts and Schinzel, were elected in be granted, and that his object was to open a question which would have some bearing on the legal points involved. HOBOKEN, April 12, 1882. Editor Advertiser:

DEAR SIR-At the close of the evening service, Sunday, April 2, 1882, at the First M. E. Church, the pastor, Rev. D. R. Lowrie, gave summary of the result of his labors for the past three years, and stated that the sum of $17,000 had been raised in the church for different purposes. There is one singular fact connected with this item, that the officials of the church have issued no tripulated statement of the condition of the church finances during this term. The principal items given were generally the amounts Arche raised, not what was done with the money, and as the church is about receiving a new pastor, and entering into a new year of collections and expenses, I think the members 560 of the church and congregation would be grateful to the officials for a full statement of what has been done with this $17,000. As the members are well aware, during this term, there have been large sums of money collected and paid out that the people know nothing of; for instance, the improvements on the church, the purchasing of an organ

Celebrating Jefferson's Birth.

The Jeffersonian Club of Newark celebrated the anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birth on Thursday evening. About 200 gentlemen sat down to a supper, at which the President of the club, Theodore F. Bailey, presided. After the Supper letters from invited guests were read and speeches were made by the Hon. John T. Morgan of Alabama and others. A telegram was read from Henry S. Harris of Washington which said that the House had just passed a bill appropriating $10,000 for a monument over Jefferson's grave at Monticello. The following letter was received from Mr. Tilden:

GRAYSTONE, April 10. DEAR SIR : I cannot conveniently accept the invitation of the committee of the Jeffersonian Club of Newark to be present at their celebration of the birth of Thomas Jefferson. The numerous commemorations of that event recently held are auspicious indications of the revival of public attention to the teachings and example of that great apostle of the true principles of American self-government. Very truly yours,

SAMUEL J. TILDEN. W. M. SCUDDER, Esq., Chairman of Committee.

The Hon. S. S. Cox wrote: "The times are out of joint in public administration. This result is from the loose and almost criminal interpretation of our organic law. Until we come back to the ancient cannons of our faith, and reason aright as to the dividing line between State and Federal powers and politics. the administration of our public affairs will go awry. Misdirected policies lead to demoralization and corruption. The Fountain should be pure, and the stream will then be less putrescent."

The Hon. Abram S. Hewitt wrote: "Jefferson not only believed in the rights of the people, but, most all men of his day, had faith in the capacity of the people to establish and maintain their rights. History has proved that he was right, and has vindicated the truth of the great principles which he laid down in the Declaration of Independence. * * * * We cannot too often renew our allegiance lay back and don't pay their assessments to these fundamental doctrines, essential to the preservation of political freedom and advantage, or build a house, or perhaps a the rights of man."

"Your celebration is timely," wrote the Hon. W. E. Robinson. "A widespread conspiracy exists, seemingly for the purpose of supplanting Jeffersonian Democracy with Federal and monarchical notions in this country; and associations such as yours will be, I hope, potential in arresting the spread of political poison, and in restoring our system to the healthy manhood of our revolutionary patriots, greatest but one of whom was Jefferson."

The May Music Pestivals.

The preparations for the great May Music Festivals of 1882, under the direction of Mr. Theodore Thomas, are so nearly concluded that even the minor details of the great enterprise are all completed, and the final rehearsals are now progressing in New York, Boston, Cincinnati, Chicago, Philadelphia, Worcester and Reading, from which cities the great chorus of 3,200 voices will be drawn. The first festival-for there are three altogether-will be given in New York at the Seventh Regiment Armory, beginning on Tuesday, May 2, 1882, and continuing through the week; the second will be given in Cincining on May 16 and concluding on May 19, and are equally well pleased with the third will be given in Chicago, at the Exposition Building, lasting from May 23 to 26. This will conclude the vast musical scheme which for several years has been in contemplation by Mr. Thomas, and will be the first of a series of biennial festivals which it is intended to give under his direction in the three cities named.

REBATES ON ASSESSMEMTS.

The Danger Attending the Rebate System and the Injustice of Granting a Reduction to Delinquents.

The question of rebates on the street improvement assessments is in many respects one of the most important which is presented to the people of Hoboken. It involves the whole question as to who shall pay for street improvements. Since Hoboken has been a municipality until recently, the habit has been for the parties immediately interested to pay the assessments levied against them. seen there. The smiling faces of the fair sex are This assessment has been supposed to represent the benefit conferred by the improve-

So long as this method is carried out and the cost of an improvement does not represent more than the benefit conferred, [all right, no one is hurt. But on the other hand when streets are filled up, curbed and guttered, beyond the need for them, and the property cannot be used, because there is no demand for it, then the expense is thrown on the city, and people who have paid for their own street improvements are asked to pay for improving other peoples' property, when no benefit is received by them. We submit that this is unfair. The more so, as it is a departure from that mutual understanding under which we have heretofore been working. It is unjust to ask a mau in one end of the city to pay for improvements made in the cept in the most incidental manner; the same perhaps as improvements made in Jersey City, or the Town of Union. Both the latter would benefit the man in Hoboken, but in such a remote degree that it might be classed as a part of the general reciprocity ideathat is to say, occasionally. We use their streets, and once in a while they use ours, and the matter is made equitable. It is, however, entirely impracticable to levy an assess ment on this account.

We admit that if a start had been made in Hoboken wherein it would have been the understanding that 25 or 50 per cent, of the cost would have been born by the city at large, the system would have been proper enough: but now, after the city has got more than half its streets made and paved, it is not just to make this change. We are aware that it is not proposed to formally make this change. Theoretically we are drifting along in the old way, but practically, we are drifting from it. If a change is to be made in the ing." general method of paying assessments, it is just as well to have it understood clearly, and not "whip the devil around the stump." The rebate system which has been introduced lately appears to revolutionize the whole system of assessing improvements.

When the city has had lots thrown back or its hands for assessments which are unpaid, we think it should be at liberty to make the most of the matter, and dispose of them as no one can complain of: but we notice that lately, on down town streets, several parties until perhaps they are about to sell to row of houses. Then they go to the Council and want a rebate, holding out the inducement that they are going to improve the property. This is done often; most of their neighbors have paid their assessments. If a rebate is granted under these circumstances, it is taxing so much of the cost of their im provement on the balance of the city, which in equity should not be called on to pay any part of it. If this system of rebates is persisted in, in order to make it just, the same proportion should be returned to all who have heretofore paid assessments. In saying this, we do not allude particularly to those on any special improvement; we embrace the whole principle involved.

We think the people of Hoboken should keep a sharp eye upon this whole rebate business. It means bonding the city for what is unjust. It is very insidious and plausible in its working, and we will wake up some morning and find the "Old man of the sea" on our back, with no way to skake him off. After a close observation of cost of improvements in our city we have concluded fitted thereby. The county is full of "sharks" and land speculators, who resort to all sorts of tricks to shift their own burdens on some one else If a party will purchase lots on our meadows, they buy them cheaper than on the high ground, and consequently calculate to improve them and the street in front of them. There is no hardship about it. If a man buys a lot which must be piled before a building can be erected on it. he must calculate accordingly. It is hardly the thing for him to say to his neighbor, "See here, I am at extra ex ense in making my property available, won't you pay part and help me out ?" The rebate system comprehends just this kind of logic.

Ex-Confederate Soldiers in Trenton.

Wednesday was made a gala day in the State Capital, the occasion being the visit of a body of ex-Confederate veterans, survivors of the old First Virginia Infantry, C.S. A., and Otey Battery and Howitzer Association of Richmond, Va. This is the first visit of a Confederate organization to a. Northern one of the same kind. The "Southrons" arrived in Trenton in the afternoon, and were received by Aaron Wilkes Post, No. 23, G.A. R., whose guests they were, Bayard Post, No. 8 G. A. R., the Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. J. and a large body of citizens, and made a parade through the principal streets. At the City Hall, ex-Mayor Creveling welcomed the visitors and extended to them the hospitalities of the city. Major Stringfeller, of the Otey Battery, responded. The streets were thronged with the residents of the city and strangers who had come from the surrounding country. The display of bunting was profuse, and the Virginians were lustily cheered at many points along the line of the rocession. In the evening a banquet was held at the Trenton House, and many patriotic toasts were offered and responded to. On Thursday, Governor Ludlow received the visitors at the State House, after which they drove through the city and suburbs, to the State Prison, State institutions and other points of interest.

this boat must be considered "of the gorgeous, gorgeous." Their line of ferryboats is to be reinferced by two iron ones, the "Baltimore" and the "Chicago," and at the company's dock in this city an interesting sight can be enjoyed by witnessing the fitting of the upper works and the proper locating of the machinery of the first mentioned boat. Both boats last mentioned will be superb specimens of marine architecture.

Schuyler and the Tramp.

One sunny forenoon Schuyler Colfax was leaning over the back gate waiting patiently for the call of his country. He ad just found a crocus in the flower bed. His heart was full of spring, and it seemed to him that in the general revivification he, too, might have a chance. There approached Schuyler a wayfaring citizen, who wore one shoe and one split

"General," said the stranger, "could H.W. Ellsworth you give a hungry man a nickel?" "I will willingly give you a nickel," said Schuyler, blandly, "but I am not a General. My career has been that of a D. Appleton & Co... statesman." "That's it," said the tramp. "You show it in your face." "Tell me, my friend," continued Schuyler, handing over, not a nickel, but a dime; "you mingle much with the great world, and your profession leads other end, and which do not benefit him ex- you to all the busy haunts of men-tell me, as an observer of events, do you see any signs of a Colfax movement? Do you hear any voices demanding the vindication of Schuyler Colfax ?"

"Well," said the tramp, cautiously, eyeing first his boot and then his shoe, perhaps I do see signs and hear voices; and if it's worth anything to you to Schuyler gave the man half a dollar and invited him into the house.

"Now," said he, after having provided his guest with a square meal, "speak without reserve. If you bring any message from the people of the United States to a veteran who, however he may shrink from the onerous cares of office, is still ready to obey the calls of duty and serve his fellow citizens in any public capacity, do not hesitate to impart it. Iam listen-

The tramp hesitated. "There ain't no message as I know of," said he, "but it seems as if I'd heerd this Skullfax talked about somewheres."

"That is to say," suggested Schuyler, while you are not charged with any formal mission, you come on the part of the people of the United States to sound me, to draw out an expression of my best it can-by rebates and otherwise. This views on public questions, to discover whether I am disposed to emerge from retirement! Proceed."

"Come to think," resumed the tramp, it was about Skullfax that I heerd talk."

"At last!" murmured Schuyler, rising from his chair and pacing the floor in great agitation. "Fellow citizens, or rather fellow citizen, I thank you for this unsought nomination. I should have preferred to remain in the quieter walks of private life, to which my tastes, my years, and my experience of the ingratitude of human kind alike incline me; but this summons is too imperative, too unanimous to be disregarded. Fellow citizens, or rather fellow citizen. Schuyler Colfax is at the service of his country." The statesman sat down to write a letter to the editor of the South Bend Tribune, while the tramp departed, richer by a ten-dollar bill.

"So that's Skullfax," soliloquized the tramp; "it's curis how folks get things mixed. I thought from what I heerd said about Skullfax, that he was servin' out a sentence somewheres."-N.Y. Sun.

AN UNUSUAL FURORE.

A Recent Excitement Investigated by the Herald and the Results Made Public.

(Cleveland, O., Herald.)

A few weeks ago we copied into our columns from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, "A Remarkable Statement," made by J. B. Henion, M. D., a gentleman who is well known in this city. In that article Dr. Henion recounted a wonderful experience which befell him, and a few days thereafter we published from the same paper a second article, giving an account of the "Excitement in Rochester," caused by Dr. Henion's statement. In the first article is the following testimonial from the best Dr. Henion stated that for a number of citizens of Rochester, and a card published years, up to last June, he had been afflicted by Rev. Dr. Foote, which you are at liberty with what seemed at first a most mysterious to use if you wish. trouble. He felt unaccountably tired at frequent intervals; he had dull and indefinite pains in various parts of his body and head, and was very bungry one day and Warner odor about the fluids he was passing; that & Co., proprietors of this remedy, whose they were abundant one day and very commercial and personal standing in this scanty the next, and were covered with community is of the highest order, and we froth, or filled with brick dust sediment. But even then he did not realize his real statements which were not literally and and alarming condition. At last, however, strictly true in every particular. he was brought face to face with the fact that he was a victim of a most terrible disease, and he made heroic efforts for recovery. He traveled extensively and consulted the best physicians, but they could give him only temporary relief, and that principally in the form of morphine. And so he grew eadily and constantly worse until his life became a torture. His pulse was uncon- Roche 'er.

trollable. He lived wholly by injections, and for six days and nights he had the hiccoughs constantly, which are considered the sure indications of coming death. When hope and life were nearly exhausted, his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's church, strongly urged him to try a means which the reverend gentleman had seen used with remarkable results. He | To the Editor of the Living Church, Chicago, objected at first, but finally consented, and was conscious of an improved condition the first week. His pains gradually disappeared; his stomach resumed digestion; his heart circulated paper? became regular; his headaches disappeared; he had no more chills and fever, or acidity of the stomach; he gained twenty-six last, a statement made by J. It has no distinctive sympsis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," with a disease of the kidneys and liver. "Pneumonia" and other common com plaints when in reality it was Bright's disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite successfully. as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none Painting, Paper-Hanging whatever, but brings death suddenly, and, as such, is usually supposed to be heart dis-

The second article entitled "Excitement in Rochester," was made up of interviews with Dr. Henion himself, who confirmed all said in his card, and also with Mr. H. H. Warner. The latter gentleman did not regard Dr. Henion's case as particularly exceptional, because he had known of very many such cures by the same means in all parts of the land. Kidney diseases, he said, are carrying off tens of thousands every year, while Bright's disease is increasing 250 per cent. a decade, and yet the people do not realize it or seek to check it until too late. He related how a New Orleans medical professor, lecturing on this disease, thinking to show his class what healthy fluids were, subjected some of his own to a chemical test, and although he had no suspicion of it before, discovered that he too had the dreaded disease, which proved fatal in less than a year. There was also an interview with the celebrated chemist of the New York State Board of Health, Dr. S. A. Lattimore, who said he had analyzed the remedy which cured Dr. Henion, and found that it was "entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances."

We have made these condensations in order that all the material facts may be set before our readers. Since the publication of these two articles, having been besieged with letters of inquiry, we sent a communi cation to Dr. Henion and also to H. H. Warner & Co., asking if any additional Velvet tabliers and vests give a rich proof could be given us as to the validity of the statements published.
