MONSTERS OF ANCIENT TIMES.

When Elephants Larger Than Jumbo Roamed Through the Middle States.

"Jumbo wasn't a circumstance to the elephants that used to stamp around this country," said a professor of natural history, asked by a reporter of the Sun whether the beast just landed was of extraordinary size. "In 1866, while excavating in Cohoes, N. Y., workmen broke into what seemed to be a big pot hole or well, such as is seen sometimes in the rock bed of rivers. It was full of muck and peaty soil, and at the bottom were found the chief bones of an immense elephant. It was determined that the animal had been washed into the hole when New York State was covered with glaciers hundreds, perhaps thousands, of feet thick. That condition of the country can explain the number of pot holes from ten to sixty feet in depth near the Mohawk River. They were formed by water from the surface of a glacier falling into crevasses and forming cascades, often a thousand feet in height. The Cohoes elephant was half a million years ago, perhaps, entombed in a great mass of moving ice, and when thawed out was washed into the hole in which it was preserved so many years.

"In the collection in Rutgers College is a fragment of a tusk that is worn down and polished on one side, showing plainly the peculiar glacial striæ. A tusk in the collection of the Philadelphia Academy of Sciences shows similar markings. The American elephant was probably exterminated by the glacial drift. "A famous place for these elephant remains is the Big Bone Lick, in Kentucky. In Warren county, New Jersey, some farmers, in cutting peat in a bog, found the remains of six animals less than ten feet below the surface. The most perfect specimen was discovered at Newburg, N. Y. The skeleton is now in the British Museum. It is twelve feet in height, and the tusks are ten feet in length. The animals roamed the western parts of the United States and Canada, and along the entire line of the Andes from 5 degrees north latitude to 40 degrees south, and remains have been dug up at Quito, nearly two miles above the level of the sea. Their tusks are often ploughed up by farmers in St. Catherines, Canada West, western Ohio, Alabama, Mississippi and Vermont. In Nebraska there was a similar species. Compared to those animals, the elephants of to-day are pigmies. The Newburg elephant was twenty-five feet in length and more than twelve feet in height, and its feet were more than two feet across. So perfectly was it preserved that the remains of spruce and hemlock branches that it had eaten were in the position of the stomach.

"Those elephants rarely ranged further north than the latitude of St. Catherines, but beyond this ranged a hairy elephant a third larger and nearly length. The enormous tusks that reached out in great curves were from ten to sixten feet in length and thirty inches in circumference at the base.

"All along the borders of the Arctic

Sea the remains of these monsters are found, and within a few months an interesting discovery bas been made. A company of men started from Sitka, intending to search for the remains of ancient elephants on account of the Polar Sea for 200 miles without finding stomachic nervation whether he be tena bone or a tusk. When almost dis-dered an infinitesimal portion of the couraged, disheartened, and determined in crossing a glasier broke through the ice and disappeared. As the mass of gion." Mr. Evarts said that this was an was given up as lost, the nature of the crevasse being well known to the rest. One of the party, however, volunteered to attempt to learn the fate of the man. All the rope and cord in the party was bound together, and the searcher was lowered into the hole. When about one hundred feet down the line slackened, hauled to the surface, and he explained in the glacier, and that the incline was so gradual that with but little work steps could be cut and the bottom reached. The line was made fast, and, armed with axes, five of the party were lowered into the chasm. They found a foothold, and soon reached the bottom, where the sippi the other day lost her way and body of their comrade lay. He was only bumped up against a farm house. She stunned, and was soon restored. It was distinct form of a gigantic animal, stand- em. Wat yer doin' out here in de coun-

One of the animals was partly thawed out, and the massive head and tusks hung down. From the ponderous trunk depended large icicles, reaching to the floor and forming a column for its support. The bodies were entirely covered with a thick heavy coat resembling jute, but frozen so firmly that it could not be cut. An entire herd had been entrapped in some manner, and was gradually moving in the body of the glacier toward the sea to be some day cast up on the shore. Not one of the creatures, nor even a tusk, could be obtained without months of work, and the men reluctantly aban-"Early in the century a fisherman living near the mouth of the Lena River, in Siberia, discovered one of these monsters protruding from an ice cliff on the shores of the sea. The trunk, tusks and head were in full view twenty feet above For five successive years he visited the spot, and was finally repaid one spring by finding the huge body on the sands below. It had been partly devoured by bears and wolves, and the flesh was so fresh and well preserved that the meat was cut away and given to the dogs. Even the brain and the eyes were well preserved, although, according to geologists, these animals have been dead hundreds of thousands of years. The skeleton is in the Museum of Natural History at St. Petersburg. About the same time a gigantic hairy rhinoceros was found in the ice, but it

President Lincoln 13 quoted by Charles Gibson, of St. Louis, Mo., as telling a story illustrating Thomas H. Benton's turn for the drama. Benton and Jackson had long been at feud, and had not met for many years until Jackson was President and Benton Senator from Missouri. "It was in this room," said President Lincoln at the White House. 'that their meeting took place. Jackson was seated at this very table, when the door swung open and Benton stalked in and stood silently in the middle of the floor. Jackson looked up and recognized him at once, and recollected at the same time that he had no weapon to defend himself. Equally silent he got up, walked to the door, locked it, put the key in his pocket and went back to his Wiggins & Abell E. Steiger & Co. Then he said, 'Does this mean war or peace?' 'It means peace,' said Benton. Jackson again arose, walked to the door, unlocked it, came back to T. A. Treadwell...... his seat, and then said, Col. A friend read to Mr. William M. Evarts the statement of a newspaper that in reply to the question, "What part of the turkey will you have?" Mr. Evarts answered that it was "quite inconsequential to one of his recognized ivory. Absent-Trustees Havens and Harksen.

On motion of Trustee Beid the reading of the minutes of the meeting held April 10, 1882, was dispensed with, and they were approved as printed.

The monthly requisition for supplies was presented by Senior Priucipal Rue and, on motion of Trustee Beitz, received and referred to the Committee on Supplies with power.

The following communication was presented by the Corporation Attorney:

Office of the Corporation Attorney, No. 15 Neware Street, Hoboken, N. J., April 18, 1882. To the Board of Education:

GENTLEMEN-I return herewith the communication from Messrs. Logan and Stack, relative to the coal contract of Mr. George Thomas. I think the proper course to pursue would be to notify Messrs.
Stack and Logan to complete the contract, or to make good the bond, and leave them to determine for themselves, who should supply them with the coal. Otherwise a new bond should be made out,
The first course is the simpler one, and leaves the present bond in force.

Respectfully. MALCOLM W. NIVEN, Corporation Attorney.

Trustee Beltz moved that the communication be eccived, and that the Board act on the first propo-ition mentioned therein.

The following resolution was presented:

It must be clear to all that there exists at the present no common system of despection and direction of instruction in our schools. The general affairs of each school, as well as the modes of discipline and the methods of instruction, seem to be at variance. Out of these differences of administration grow frequently the unrest and dissatisfaction of beachers and the prejudice and indifference of nupils.

It is a significant fact, that while there of March for the last five years, Hoboken's rate is lower for the same month the Swash Channel. this year, than for the corresponding period of any of the four previous years. The report of the Board of Health and Vital Statistics, published in another column, will show this at a glance.

To be sure, the rate of Hoboken for this period during each of the four previous years, was higher than the mean rate of the county, but in none of these years has it been as high as the present mean rate, though it came very close to it in March, 1881. The rate for the whole county rose 7.5 per 1,000 persons in 1882, ever the average for the four previous years. In Jersey City the advance was 9.5 per 1,000 over her own average for The Advantises will be delivered to any part of the city or mailed to subscribers in any part of the Chity or mailed to subscribers in any part of the Same period. Hoboken's rate fell United States at the following terms: 2.3 per 1,000 below her average for this period, and is 7.6 below the mean rate for the county in March of this year.

In the rest of the county the rate increased 7.5 over the rate for the same section in March of the past five years. the county for March of this year. For the entire county the death rate among persons under five years of age, rose 2.8 above the average for this period, and among persons over five years of age it rose 4.8.

The figures show that nearly twothirds of the increased mortality was among persons over five years old. over 56 per cent. of the increase was due and small-pox; typhoid fever and measles also being chargeable with a portion of the increment.

This is a strong argument in favor of the adoption of more stringent health laws and for the rigid enforcement of the rules and regulations already laid down by the Health Board. The want of proper precautionary measures against the spread of contageous diseases was proven during the recent visit of the small-pox in Hudson County.

There is an advance of 1 in 1,000 in deaths by consumption over the average rate of these five years, and pneumonia was a notable factor in the increase in the death rate of the county.

BLAINE AS A WITNESS.

If the public could overlook the gravported in the county Thursday, one of ity of the Chili-Peruvian inquiry, upon which the Committee of Congress is just now engaged in examining ex-Secretary Blaine, it could not fail to be amused at the manner in which the youthful Perry Belmont, of that Committee, has floored the veteran lawyer and diplomat by his adroit cross-examination. Mr. Blaine was at first very smart, but he soon found that it would not work with his youthful antagonist. Then he began to get mad. Pressed too closely about the part played by the Ladreau claim, in his South American policy, he lost his usual level city. head and made an undignified exhibition of nasty temper. Mr. Blaine is making a grand mistake.

JOHN CRANSTOUN.

John Cranstoun, a well-known resident of the Third Ward, died at his home, No. 320 Bloomfield street, on Sunday morning. He had been a sufferer for many years from chronic inflammatory rheumatism, and was only able to leave the house at long intervals. He officiated as one of the judges of election on the 11th inst. He was unmarried.

MARIAN CRANSTOUN.

Marian Cranstoun, wife of William Crans toun, of 320 Bloomfield street, died on Wednesday evening, of pneumonia. Mrs. Cranstoun was a native of Dalkieth, near Edin burgh, Scotland, and came to this country with her family about forty years ago, nearly thirty years of which she spent in Hoboken. She was seventy-nine years old, and Thursday, the day following her death, was the fiftieth anniversary of her marriage. She was the mother of William Cranstoun, Jr., and is 1 per 1,000 above the mean rate of the well-known lawyer of this city, and John Cranstoun, whose death is announced above, was another of her sons. She only survived him three days. The funeral services will take place this afternoon.

JOHN M'ANALLY.

John McAnally, eldest son of ex-Sheriff Bernard McAnally, of this county, died of small-pox, on Sunday last, in the hospital at Snake Hill. He had been sick but a few days. The following letter from a former resident of this city, but now residing in Adelaide, Australia, relative to the success of Miss Mamie Conron, also a resident of Hoboken now on a concert tour of that country, will be read with interest and pleasure by the many friends of that lady in this city:

ADELAIDE, SOUTH AUSTRALIA, February 20, 1882.

Messrs. Moyer & Luchs, Proprietors Hoboker Advertiser, Hoboken, N. J.:

DEAR SIRS-Being a citizen of Hoboken. am naturally interested in its affairs, and as it has been my pleasure to receive several issues of your valuable paper, per every "Frisco" mail, I have thought, upon several occasions, of addressing you. I have been requested by a number of friends in Hoboken to write to your paper respecting the immense success of Miss Marie Conron, the Hoboken mezzo soprano, in the Australian Colonies.

To say that she had immense success i sufficient. It will be remembered that Miss Conron sailed from San Francisco with Herr Wilhelmj, the great violinist. Having ar rived at Sydney, N. S. A Rifle Tournament.

During the early part of the week the "Adciation" met at Rodenherg's Hotel, in the Elysian Fields, and held its first annual tournament, which closed the winter season. The organization is composed of thirty regularly enrolled members. Mr. Edward Birch, the "Admiral," is President and Treasurer, and Mr. R. S. James is Vice President. The association has met regularly once a week at Rodenberg's throughout the winter, and with much practice its members have become very expert riflemen, at short range. At the tournament the other day, the chief prize, which consisted of a fine Sharp's rifle, open to all comers, small target, range 185 feet, 7 shots each. There were about 100 competitors, but Captain DeWitt Beardsley carried off the prize, making a score of 33 out of possible 35 points.

The first prize, for members only, con sisted of an elegant gold medal, with clasp, and was won by Captain Symes, of this city, who made 33 out of a possible 35 points. The trophy was a very elaborate and handsome piece of work. The second prize, consisting of a silver medal, a fac simile of the first, presented by Vice President R. S. James, was won by A. Arment, of Hoboken, who scored 32 out of a possible 35 points. The shooting was very close, J. Peters making 31, Captain Beardsley 30, Bodine 30 and Lieutenant Haddenhorst 29.

The celebration was a sort of double event taking place on the "Admiral's" birthday and between the crack of the rifles and the popping of corks, the rafters of the old hotel rang again and again to the cheers and toasts to "The Old Grudge." as in days of yore. This toast, "The Old Grudge," is a favorite one of the association, and only the initiated can take in its full significance. The evening closed with songs and recitations, many of the members being accomplished elocutionists and singers. Among the events of this part of the celebration were the choice selections delivered by the "Admiral," with all his old time vim and pathos, for which he is so justly famous in his native town, Stratford-on-Avon, as well as in Hoboken.

A Deserved Testimonial.

Mr. Wm. Plumer, of Garden street, who has een a Vestryman of Trinity Church for twenty years, was very agreeably surprised on Monday evening last, in the rectory, on the occasion of the first meeting of the Vestry after the Easter election. After the routine ousiness was finished, and Mr. Plumer had been for the eleventh time elected Treasurer of the church, the Rector, on behalf of himself and the Wardens and Vestry, presented to Mr. Plumer a very elegant, heavy, solid silver, gold-mounted paper knife, about twelve inches long and two and a half to three inches wide, encased in an exquisite peacock-blue velvet box. The knife bore the scription, "Presented to William Plumer, with the affectionate esteem of the Corporation of Trinity Church, Hoboken, N. J., on the occasion of his re-election as Treasurer of Trinity Church, after faithful and devoted service in that position for ten consecutive years—April 24th, 1882."

On the reverse side were the names of the Rector, Wardens and Vestrymen. Mr. Plumer is held in highest esteem by the large congregation now worshiping in Trinity, and by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances throughout the city. The memento pre-sented to him on Monday evening was a well eserved testimonial, and a hearty expression from Rector and Vestry, of their appre ciation of the burdensome care of the position he has filled long, and with devotion to the best interests of the parish.

They consented and The man first gave his name as Henry Stoetel, and said he had found the bundle on the much to the regret of the Adelaide concert corner of River and Third streets. He said his name was Schutte, that he lived at lowing is the complete score: Great credit reflects upon Miss Conron for 113 Fourth street, and he had received the one of the German steamers, and that he did not know what was in it. He couldn't re member the name of the carpenter or the steamer. Nothing more could be learned from him and the Recorder turned him over to United States Commissioner Muirhead with his smuggled snuff. 'The United States authorities will make a thorough investiga tion. It is commonly reported that a vas quantity of goods are smuggled ashore in small lots from steamers landing in Hoboken. Startling revelations are promised, but similar promises have often been made and still remain unfulfilled. It remains to be seen whether the authorities will be arouse to greater vigilance by this latest haul.

The Last Excursion of "Orpheus."

"Die Maedchen" went to see the Fat Woman last week. Of course Orpheus and the Poet accompanied them as a body-guard. Orpheus did not bring his lyre; he personated it in a slightly different sense. With great thoughtfulness he invested in some pounds of candy, and this added greatly to the general sweetness of the company. When they arrived at Of the deaths in the county in March of this the place, they were struck with awe as they walked through the halls that had echoed to age; 95 were under one year of age; 310 were the tread of the legless man, and where the over five years; 62 were over sixty years of dumb woman (?) had delivered her last speech. age, and 66 occurred in county institutions. But they followed the crowd and viewed the curiosities; they gazed with interest at the New Zealander who had been converted from his customary diet of stewed missionary to more civilized food ; they saw the India Rubber man tie himself into a double bow knot and pick up a cotton gingham handkerchief while standing on his left ear; they saw, (O horror), the girl with the frescoed epidermis, who wears a pair of shoes, also stockings, (nice brown ones with yellow stripes), a necklace, and but little else. The Fat Woman, the great ultimatum of Orpheus' journey, was here in all her ponderosity. At this moment an incident occurred that eserves to be recorded in the annals of fireescapes. The crush to see the Chinese Giant and his little wife was great. A vast crowd surged and struggled to gain admittance to his den; the ribs of Orpheus were heard to fast becoming one shapeless mass, when the having life and sense, fled the house, while the Poet, calmiy folding up his roll, helped himself to a gum-drop, and, with "Die Maed-chen" went pit-a-nat with anxiety for his safety. Then did the Poet punch the crocodile and dare the bos-constrictor to come out and fight. After considerable trouble, " Die Maedchen" succeeded in quieting the obstreperous youths, and peace reigned. They festive sods, smoked the pensive cigarette, and when they got home Orpheus imparted the sad information that he was about to leave them forever. The leafless trees rustled sobbingly, the gate cracked dismally on its hinges at the news.

And who is this Opheus? A decade ago he rose like a star from the sea, arrayed in green for the use of the hall and will provide firstchecked trousers and an ample hat; the light class dinners, suppers, etc., at moderate of his countenance shone upon us with increasing grace. Like the wild Indian, he began to raise hair; eventually he attained the dignity of a stovepipe hat, but his friends rebelled against this last, and he was compelled to forego it. Golden Hair and the Three Bears.

A larger audience never managed to crowd into Odd Fellows' Hall, than that which assembled to hear the operetta of "Golden Hair and the Three Bears," produced on Thursday evening by a company of young people, under the direction of Mrs. Leon H. Kendrick. Before 8 o'clock every seat in the large hall was taken, and even an extra 150 camp stools brought from Crane's and placed in the aisles, did not accommodate the crowd. The gallery was packed and all available chairs and on the backs of benches in order could see very little, as those in front persisted in standing up also. It was but a few minutes of nine before the curtain rose upon a woodland scene, with the children singing in the opening chorus.

The libretto departs somewhat from the old nursery story, but the operetta is already familiar to our readers and its scenes need no detailed description. What scenery there was, was good and the children's costumes, though quite plain, were tasteful and pretty. The airs were all bright and their rendition showed not only much musical and vocal talent among the youthful amateurs, but also careful and successful training. Miss Amy Jenks, in the role of "Woodland Queen," sang her solos beautifully and acted her part gracefully and with considerable natural ability. Mr. Lee was especially good as the "Bard." The second game of base ball played by the Stevens College nine, this season, came off yesterday afternoon at the St. George Cricket Grounds, their opponents being the Lafayette College nine, of Easton, Pa., and resulted in a defeat for Stevens. Considering the want of practice of the Stevens nine and the disagreeable weather, the game was well played. The fielding of both nines was fine, a remarkable feature of the game being the numfourteen and Lafavette with eight. The fol-

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

HOBOKEN.

The performance at Wareings' Theatre, this week, commenced with the amusing farce entitled, "Where's Yacup," followed by very fine olio consisting of Delmore and Wilson, Miss Fannie Sanford, Willis Pickert, J. D. Kelly, Ellwood, The Winnetts, Senator Frank Woodson and Gordon and Lick, terminating with the screaming act of "Quiet Lodgers." The houses have been very large the entire week. Dated March 15, 1982

The title of Mr. Longfellow's last contribution to the Atlantic is "Mad River in the however, I prescribe and advise those things Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever White Mountains." It is a dialogue between a traveller and the mountain stream, the man questioning, the river replying and at last giving its history thus :-

A brooklet nameless and unknown Was I at first, resembling A little child, that all alone Comes venturing down the stairs of stone Irresolute and trembling.

Later, by wayward fancies led, For the wide world I panted: Out of the forest dark and dread Across the open fields I fied, Like one pursued and haunted.

I tossed my arms, I sang aloud, My voice exuitant blending With thunder from the passing cloud, The wind, the forest bent and bowed, The rush of rain descending.

I heard the distant ocean call, Imploring and entreating; Drawn onward, o'er this rocky wall I plunged, and the loud waterfall Made answer to the greeting.

And now, beset with many ills, A toilsome life I follow: Compelled to carry from the hills These logs to the impatient mills Below there in the hollow.

Yet something ever cheers and charms The rudeness of my labors; Daily I water with these arms The cattle of a bundred farms, And have the birds for neighbors

Men call me Mad, and well they may When, full of rage and trouble I burst my banks of sand and clay, And sweep their wooden bridge away. Like withered reeds or stubble

Now go and write thy little rhyme As of thine own creating. Thou seest the day is past its prime; I can no longer waste my time; The mills are tire i of waiting Nowadays when a subscriber gets so mad because the editor differs with him on some trivial question that he discontinues his subscription and "stops his paper," we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well-known editor of the New York Tribune. THAT RICH EXPERIENCE.

A Free Press Interview Sustained and its Source Revealed.

(Detroit Free Press.) A few months ago an interview with prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuineness of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The seal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are here-few reminiscences about the war, in which a long and surprising story short, I exthe doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance, upon which he said:

with given from the interview in question.

"Yes, I have improved in health since other ways. One thing, however, I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor, to do, and that is I have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong and urinary diseases, watching every derather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now, I am a physician, and of the "old school" order, too; but I have, after years of experience and observation, come knew you in Detroit, I would no sooner not suppress the facts. I therefore write have thought of violating the code of ethics you and most unhesitatingly assert that for such.

"How did you come to get such heretical ideas as these, doctor ?" and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver, and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in various parts of the body; a lack of interest in everything around me; all these disagreeable symptoms were added to pains which were both acute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to health in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was this that proved a revelation to me. That was the starting point, and my prejudices faded rapidly after that I can assure you. I went to reading extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and since that time I have discovered many things of real value to humanity. Why, only a few days ago I advised a lady who was suffering from a serious female difficulty and displacement to use the same remedy which cured me. I saw her this morning and she is nearly well; the pain and inflammation are all gone and she is around as usual. We have no right in the medical fraternity to sit back and declare there is no such thing as improvement or advancement, or that we have a monopoly of the remedies which nature has given to mankind. There are great changes going on in every department of life, and there are great developments in medicine as well. Thousands of people die every year from supposed typhoid fever, rheumatism or other complaints, when in reality it from trichina, caused by eating poorly cooked or diseased pork. Thousands of children are dying every year from dropsy as the apparent sequel to scarlatina, when in reality it is from diseased kidneys which have become weakened by the fever they have just had."

"Well doctor, you have got some new truths here, certainly, but they sound very reasonable to me."

"Well, whether they are reasonable or not, I have demonstrated to my own satisfaction that they are true, and I propose to sition I may raise by doing so. Any man, be he politician, preacher or physician, who is so considerate of his pocketbook or of his own personal ends as to stultify himself by suppressing the manifest truth, is unworthy the name of man, and unworthy the confidence of the public whom he

The above are some of the principal points in the interview referred to. Now for the sequel. The following outspoken appeased, and they separated. Late in the letter from the doctor himself which has just been received, is published in full:

Editor Detroit Free Press :

Some time ago a reporter of your paper had an interview with me which he said he "Why you said you were going to stop would like to publish. I conscuted on condition that you would not mention my name until I gave you permission. I have now accomplished the purpose I had in mind. and wish to say to you (which you can pubcame from there, and the press was running lish or not as you see fit) that I had debated for a long time whether I would shake off "Sir," said Thompson, very pompously, some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and tell the truth, or not. When I looked back, and "Oh! Thunder!" said Greeley. "I thought of the tort ires, like those described called how much I would have given at that night of the terrible suffering I endured, I would be fully satisfied, be the other consequences what they might.

My dyspeptic condition was produced by a torpid liver, which did not, as a conse quence, remove the bile from the blood This produced derangement of the stomach, inflammation of its coats, dyspepsia, constipation, headache, depression of spirits, yellow complexion, fat-covered eyes, chills and fever; in short, I was miserable to the last degree. I appealed in vain to my books, to my skill and to my fellow physicians. The mystery of my ill-health grew deeper. I traveled everywhere-exhausted all authorized expedients-but to no pur-

When in this frame of mind, desperately in need of heip, but expecting none, one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to some unusual cures wrought by a prominent remedy and urged me to try it. I emphatically decimed. But secretly, and below will abundantly show. In order, with the firm determination that I would never let anybody know what I had done, I began its use. It was only an experiment, you know, but for that matter, all medical After an exchange of courtesies and a treatment is experimental. Well, to make perienced a sort of physical revolution. My skin got a better color. My liver resumed its functions. I no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathartics. My headaches you last saw me, and I hope also in many disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not convinced. "Nature did it," I reasoned. But, determined to push the stood every test imposed! Under such convincing circumstances, the matter of confessing my cure became a to the conclusion that truth is the highest question of conscience and of duty to of all things, and that if prejudice or bigot- humanity. They conclusivel / show not only the power of the remedy which has become so well known and popular, but the great importance of attention in time to the first indications of de clinlug health. When professional men of such high standing sink their prejudice and willingly declare their belief in that which they know to be valuable, the public may confidently follow their example.

DISEASE is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence to cure the disease the cause must be removed and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this pr ciple. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and reslorer, and, by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.
