The Prison Pen as it Now Appears The Dead Line-Old Wells and Tunnels Dug by the Unfortunate Union Prisoners.

On the morning after my arrival at Andersonville, says a correspondent of the Buffalo Courier, I started out to spend a few hours within the limits of the notorious stockade of the old prison pen near Macon, Ga.

From the depot where I had first alignted I follow the public road eastward, along which the prisoners were marched for two hundred yards, and then the prison road branches off, crossing a slight marsh caused by a small brook. This road was constructed of large pine logs laid corduroy fashion, and it has now grown up with weeds and grass, from being used only by the occasional pilgrim to this scene.

Many of these logs, which have been pressed by so many patriot feet, bear the marks of the ax of the relic hunter. Considerable portions have thus been carried away and made into suitable mementoes, and are to-day doing duty as gavels, paper knives and rulers.

Passing along this memorable causeway, on either side of which the scrub oaks grow thickly and cover the entire face of the country, I soon come upon the red banks of the old earth-works that guarded the main entrance, and to the line of decayed and falling timbers of the outer stockade. Inside of this, and to the right as you enter, are the ruins of the old bakery, now simply a mound of earth and broken brick from its chimney. Here the course over which the prisoners marched turned to the left, running for some distance up the slight hill between the outer and inner lines of the stockade to the gate just at the brow of the hill. The bakery and outer gateway were near the bank of the famous brook-here called branch-which ran through the stockage, crossing the pen near its southern end.

As is generally understood, this prison was simply an old field enclosed by two lines of stockades-that is, logs set upright in the ground. The inner stockade was eighteen feet high, of pine logs from twelve to fourteen inches in diameter, set three feet in the ground, and so closely matched as to have scarcely a crack that you could see through. The sentinels occupied positions at frequent intervals along the top of this stockade on a continuous footway erected for that purpose. Outside of this, with an intervening space of just fifty-three steps, was another stockade of equal strength, twelve feet high. And then again outside of this was a circle of strong earthen forts at intervals of one hundred and fifty yards. These forts were built against the stockade like a mud dauber or swallow's nest, the stockade forming their fourth or rear side. These works mounted from three to six guns each, and were very formidably constructed. A deep ditch ran from one fort to another, about six feet outside the stockade, calculated to intercept any tunnel efforts for liberty. These old forts remain intact, even to the beaten path along their parapets, where the grayclad sentry paced up and down in watchfulness of the poor victims within the fatal enclosure.

But to return to the inside of the stockade. The timbers have in greater part rotted off next the ground and fallen, lying like two great windrows, marking the confines of the grounds. But wherever there was a timber of heart pine it is still standing, its pitchy fibres as sound as ever; and there are enough of these to enable the eye to readily trace the course of the stockade nearly around the entire place.

The pen was in the form of an oblong square, the direction of its length being nearly north and south. It is exactly 299 steps inside limits in width, and I should judge nearly four times as long as it is wide, and said by Northern authorities to contain twenty-seven acres, although it would seem to me to be fully one-fourth larger than the cemetery already described, which contains twenty five acres by actual measurement. The northern half of the ground is high and dry, gently sloping downward; and a little more than half way toward the southern end it slopes rapidly toward the marshy stream, the descent being fully twenty-five feet in as many yards. The face of this descent is washed out into guilles and chasms, some of which are ten feet wide and twenty deep. The stream which runs in at the west side and out at the east had, at the time of the city of Hoboken, endorsed Proposals for clerning sewer in Willow street, between Third and Elguht streets; sewer in Eighth street, between Willow street and Park avenue, sewer in Park avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets." my visit, a flow of about fifty gallons a minute. It does not have a rapid current, but it is so broad that I could not jump across it, and is about one foot deep. The land is of a very marshy deep. The land is of a very marshy deep. The land is of a very marshy nature for about ten or twelve steps on the mayor and Council reserve the right to restrict any or all bids if deemed in the interest of the city so to do. either side, although at this time it can be approached dry shed. But a body of men such as were once compelled to use

VISIT TO ANDERSONVILLE PRISON its waters would soon tramp it into a Corporation Notice. mud hole. Beyond the stream the ground again ascends, and there are perhaps five acres of high, dry ground on that side of it. It will be remembered that during the terrible disorder of robbery and murder that prevailed previous to the hangings, the desperado element established themselves or were driven to that side of the stream, from which they made frequent raids upon the main body of the camp, as a favorable opportunity offered. A great many stories have been told about "the dead line," many claiming that there was no substantial indication of its exact location; but it is supposed to have run sixteen feet from the foot of the stockade. it being left principally to the judgment of the respective sentinels to decide whether a prisoner was encroaching upon the forbidden ground. It has also frequently been published that the "dead line" was marked only by small strips of boards fastened to slender stakes, which in many places became detached, leaving absolutely nothing to warn the hustling throng of the exact point of danger. From indications that now, after a lapse of eighteen years, are as proportionately distinct as the stockade itself. I am inclined to the opinion that the general representations, or at least the prevailing ideas concerning this, are somewhat at strife with the actual facts. Your correspondent folowed the line of the stockade the entire distance from the brow of the slope on the western side, from the north end to the brow of the slope on the eastern side, and for the entire distance, except where a small patch of oats obliterated t, what had been a shallow ditch, was distinctly traceable, and as this was uniformly exactly four steps from the stockade, I am led to suppose it to have been made to mark the line to pass which meant death at the hands of the

Throughout the enclosure, as well as upon the entire face of the country, an undergrowth of oak and gum has sprung up, many of the trees being four or five inches in diameter. The growth is not as dense, however, inside the stockade as outside, and there is sufficient open ground to admit of free passage to and fro over the grounds. The traces of the old, sad days are distinctly visible on (after six days from the publication of said proclamation). every hand. The mounds and cavities of the thousand dens and burrows are everywhere. Near the brow of the slope they are most numerous and extensive. It would be exceedingly perilous to attempt to cross this space in the night, and one must have his eyes open in day time, as he is constantly coming upon the yawning mouths of the old wells and entrances of tunnels from fifteen to thirty feet deep.

George, suddenly pausing in his gyrations, curtly replied: By jocks, sis, you can't,"-Central N. J. Herald.

Sergeant Ringe has decided not to perform the duty of a patrolman, to which the outrageous action of the Police Commissioners assigned him, and has tendered his resignation to the department. It would be hard, after sixteen years of faithful service as Sergeant, to drop all the candidates in the race, not one back into the ranks, and we do not blame him for resigning. There is no doubt that this was the object of the Commissioners in their persecution, but as their action was without the slightest shadow of justice or legality, Mr. Ringe should seek redress in the courts.

The ordinance regulating the powers and duties of the Chief Engineer of the the nomination, and Democrats should injunction will be allowed to interfere Fire Department was laid over for a week at the last Council meeting, some of the members considering that it gave that officer too much power. A careful examination of the ordinance will reveal the fact that the power is not so great after all. It enters so much into details that it sounds heavier than it is. The ordinance is a good one, drawn up carefully and is substantially the same as

After this nothing from the same source should surprise us, and yet, what follows is rather surprising in one who is supposed to have an eye to his own interests. The editor (?) of the sheet that contained this blackguardism is the incompetent Court Interpreter of Hudson County. He is frequently in attendance in the Grand Jury room, and on such an occasion is sworn to secrecy in regard to what occurs there. Most men look upon an oath as binding. This person publishes the statement that Councilman Miller, as a member of the Grand Jury that examined the firemen in relation to the Eagle Dock fire mater, "bulldozed the witnesses," etc This, whether true or false, Albert Hoffman had no right to say. The readers of his sheet may judge what reliance can be placed upon the statements of one who thus lightly holds his oath.

In placing Col. E. P. C. Lewis before the Democracy of Hudson County as a candidate for the nomination for Congress, we are advocating a man against whom less objection can be raised than any other candidate who could be select ed to represent us at Washington. He is not a meddlesome politician, as some of the would-be candidates are; nor is he one whose political principles are doubtful or conveniently variable. He is an uncompromising Democrat of the of Hudson County. It is issued on the old school. He is a gentleman with 1st and 15th of every month, is neatly natural abilities of a high order, and his gotten up and contains many matters attainments and qualifications are such of interest to our Catholic fellowcitizens. as eminently fit him for the performance

He is as representative an American as any citizen of the United States, his ancestors having settled here long before the period of the Revolution. He is a descendant of George Washington, and one of the nearest relations of the "Father of his Country" now living. Some of Washington's most important last ten years. There is no doubt of his work in the war of Independence was election to the place for which he has performed in New Jersey, and the great General's name is held in special reverence by the people of our State.

> Col. Lewis, though born and brought up in Virginia, has been for many years a citizen of New Jersey, his home being in Hoboken. He has served this district in the Lower House of the State Legislature, and, while he was not one to talk on all occasions, his voice and vote were always used where they would do the most good. He left nothing in his record of which he has cause to be ashamed.

> As to his strength as a candidate, should be receive the nomination, we believe he would poll at large a vote as any member ever sent from Hudson County. Next to the Hon. A. A. Hardenbergh, who refuses a renomination. he is perhaps the strongest Democrat that could be put in the field.

> The convention will meet in Septem tember to make the nomination, and of possesses the elements of success in so great a degree as Col. Lewis. His profound knowledge of National politics and his extensive and intimate acquaintance with prominent men throughout the country, will give him an influence at the National Capitol that will be of greatest service to his constituents.

Our end of the county is entitled t see to it that our delegates go to the convention prepared to carry the nomination of Col. Lewis.

THE RAVINE ROAD SEWER CASES

The matter of the Ravine Road Sewer extension assessment has just been settled by a decision in the Supreme ahead by the decision. It will be remembered that the extension of the Ravine Road Sewer cost about $70,000. The Commissioners of Assessment for the work levied an assessment to cover the cost. Hoboken issued bonds to the amount of $30,000 to pay her share of it, and on the validity of the assessment depended the city's chance of reimbursement. The executors of the Ogden estate sought to have their assessment set aside. They were represented by James B. Vredenburgh. Leon Abbett represented Jersey City, and Malcolm

W. Niven, Hoboken. There was also a side issue with Jersey City, she claiming that property devoted been assessed. Hoboken was represented in this branch of the case by Mr. John C. Besson. PUMMELLED AGAIN.

Barney Rayer Gets Another Chastisement for a Libelous Article-His Testimony in a Justice's Court.

Barney Bayer, the much-assaulted prorietor of the Democrat (Rep.), is continually nserting in his publication articles of such a Miller immediately began to fillibuster Will his Honor kindly rise and explain nature that the people he abuses consider nothing but a "licking" as sufficient punish nent. Reprehensible as the habit of taking the law into one's own hand is, the preprietor has certainly, on more than one occasion deserved a sound thrashing, and, while he has frequently missed many a "lick," he never received "a lick amiss."

Last week his unscrupulous attack on cilman himself, so angered Assistant City Clerk Charles Miller, a son of the latter ger tleman, that "Charley" determined to punish him for it. Bayer boarded a ferryboat Saturday afternoon in company with a woman Clerk Miller boarded the same boat, and article in question. Bayer replied insolently, and Miller, telling him he was going to thrash him, struck him twice in the face. Barney yelled for help, women screamed and the deckhands appeared and stopped the fracas.

Subsequently Bayer procured a warran

for Miller's arrest from Justice Strong, swearing that the assault took place before the boat left the Hoboken slip. An examination was had before Justice Streng on Thurs day. At the examination Bayer appeared that the boat had not started from the slip posed the nefarious scheme of the ring until after Miller had struck him. Corporation Attorney Besson, counsel for Miller, asked the newspaper proprietor if he knew the boat was fastened to the slip and if he could see the shore from where he sat. "No. I didn't see the shore, but I suppose I could if I had looked," he said. He stuck to the for them to descend, to even lower depths | the city. Councilmen Kaufmann and main part of his story, though he was much than common Billingsgate, and attacked Lee also laid down the law in the matter, agitated, and looked as though he would cry His companion was a Mrs. Rosa Krause

> a boarding-house keeper at 143 Hudson street. She testified that she met Bayer in the ferry-house, went on the boat with him and sat down by him in the forward cabin Then she detailed the circumstances of the assault substantially as her gallant had cross-examined by Mr. Besson she contra dicted herself as to the time when the assault took place; first saying that the boat moved after the first blow was struck, and then that as the blow was struck the boat moved. Bayer was very much exercised when she made such contradictory state Court. The cases have been long pend- ments, and told the Justice that she could ing and are of peculiar interest to the not understand English very well, and that city of Hoboken, as she has come out she evidently misunderstood the questions. As he was there without counsel, the Judg allowed Barney to question her himself, but both he and his witness made a poor "mix of it. When Mr. Besson wanted some of the ferrymen to testify, Justice Streng made many objections and would not at first per mit it, but finally he was prevailed upon to allow the testimony of a deck-hand and the > pilot to be heard. Charles Stephens, a deck-hand, testified that it was his duty to first cust loose the chains, arrange the "pin," close the gates, and then go through the ladies' cabin to see that everything was all right. This he invariably does every trip. He performed this duty on the boat on which the disturbanc occurred Saturday. When he went through the cabin the boat was in motion, and there was no sign of any trouble. After he had to water-works and school purposes, had gone through, and the boat was outside of the racks" at least 200 or 300 yards, he heard a call for help; went in and saw that Miller and Bayer had been quarreling, but saw no blows struck.

Morris Bunt, the pilot, testified that he saw Miller standing on the rear deck of the boat, leaning on the rail, as the boat passed The decision which has just been out of the slip. Miller did not look as though handed down, is to the effect that the he had been in a quarrel. She married Abraham Lincoln in 1842, when he was a prominent lawyer in Springfield, Ill. She never recovered from the shock occasioned by her husband's assassination, which occurred on the 14th of April, 1865. She was very ill for a long time and her misfortunes completely unhinged her. She has been a meutal and physical wreck ever since. Her pension of $3,000 from the Government, which was not granted until some years after his death, was recently increased to $5,000. She was full of strange hallucinations, and her life of late years has been anything but in its scheme of robbery. For this of- forth by Chairman Miller, who took the with his companion of Saturday. He swore happy. Her last illness was a long one and she was totally unconsious for hours before her death.

The funeral took place from the First Presbyterian Church, Wednesday. Judge H. S. Trear, Gov. Cullom, Col. John Williams, Gen. John McClernand, Milton Hay, Captain John S. Bradford and James O. Conkling, acted as pall bearers. The public offices and stores of Springfield were closed and the services were attended by thousands of citiens. The remains were placed in the vault beneath the Lincoln Monument, beside the body of President Lincoln.

Panny Parnell Dead.

Miss Fanny Parnell died suddenly, Thurs- Hotel, Manhattan Beach, day afternoon, of paralysis of the heart, at the Old Ironsides Mansion, in Bordentown, this State. She was the second sister of Charles Stewart Parnell, the leader of the Land League, and was the daughter of John H. and Delia L. S. Parnell. She was twentyeight years of age, and was born in Ireland.

Miss Parnell had been subject to attacks of heart disease, but seemed to be in her usual health up to the morning of her death. She was conspicuous in the affairs of the Ladies' Land League. Her first appearance as a public speaker was made some three years from Cape May, daily, commencing this ago, during the famine in Ireland. She has frequently made appeals in behalf of the Irish cause at Land League gatherings. She was a poet of merit, as is shown by a volume of her Irish poems recently published, and by her occasional contributions to the press.

The sudden death of Miss Fanny Parnell will fall like a blow upon the hearts of the friends of Ireland in her present struggle The known devotion of women to any cause in which the energies and sympathies of men are engaged adds enormously to its strength, and the loss of Miss Parnell is an added misfortune to Ireland.

St. Mary's Hospital.

The improvements that are in progress at St. Mary's Hospital will entail an expense of at least $35,000. The growing demands made upon the excellent Sisters of St. Francis for ecommodations for charity patients, have cessitated this large outlay of money. An addition to the building is in progress of erection, and while the work is being rapidly completed, only a very small proportion of the needed sum has been subscribed.

St. Mary's Hospital is an institution conducted solely by the Sisters, and is not in charge of the bishop or the church. It is dependent for its support and maintenance entirely upon the efforts of its managers, and they have been for some time endeavoring to obtain sufficient funds to pay for these necessary improvements. Subscriptions will be received by the Sisters for any amount, however small. They manage and disburse the funds themselves, and whatever is subscribed will be devoted exclusively to the hospital.

This excellent institution, while it is conducted by Roman Catholic Sisters, is free to all, of whatever nationality or creed. It is one of the worthiest charities that we know of, and every one should subscribe as liberally as possible toward carrying on the good work in which its managers are engaged. Every dollar contributed to this fund will be most worthily bestowed.

New Industries.

Some months ago the Council voted to grant a petition of James L. Reynolds, who asked for a rebate of taxes and assessments on lots in the Coster Estate, upon condition of his making certain specified improvements and erect thereon a building worth $25,000, to be used as a paper factory. The Mayor vetoed the resolution, and suggested a compromise, which he considered more advanageous to the city.

On Tuesday night Mr. Reynolds sent in another petition to the Council, in which he offered to pay one half of the unpaid assessments, without interest, the total amount being $2,009.46, and the entire unpaid taxes $199.67 with interest. This is about the same arrangement suggested by the Mayor in the above-mentioned veto. The Council granted the petition, and it will probably meet with the approval of his Honor. According to the conditions, Mr. Reynolds will fill in the lots, corner Jefferson and Eighth streets, and erect a building which, with the machinery, will cost not less than $25,000, to commence at once and finish within six months, and carry on the manufacture of paper.

The City Fathers are wise in according to Mr. Reynolds his request. It would be a other enterprising business men could be induced, on similar terms, to follow his example and build factories in Hoboken

HORSE NOTES.

Hoboken doctors seem to be good judges of horse flesh. Nearly all of them drive re markably fine looking animals.

James Smith's double team, Kildare and mate, are trotting very rapidly. Jimmy drives them frequently, when he spins them along on the road they make the dust fly. Wareing Bros., the popular proprietors of the Germania Garden Theatre, are driving a beautiful bay mare. She is a fine animal and is said to be able to pull a heavy wagon close to a three-minute gait. We occasionally see Senator Paxton driving around with his bay horse, record of 2:24. He can give the "go-by" on the road to any horse in this county, yet we seldom hear of his driving him to his speed. Mr. V. S. Sary, of Jersey City Heights, has a mare that he may well be proud of. She is capable of beating 2:30, in road condition, and he, like most other men, when he feels like speeding crosses the river and drives on

The two trots last Saturday afternoon, at Blaque's Hotel, Bergen Line avenue, were very interesting, especially for those who won the prizes. The trotters were divided into two classes, Mr. Rikeman's sorrel trotter and Mr. Westervelt and Alderman Manion's pacers. The first two heats were won by the pacers, each taking a heat. The third, fourth and fifth were won by Mr. Rikeman's trotter. The owners of the pacers said it was won by the sorrel's fleetness as a runner, for he showed great speed when he broke into a run. He won the blanket. The second prize was a blanket also, and was contended for by Mr. Weyhausen's big sorrel, Mr. Currey's mare, and Mr. Carroll's Lorse. We hear that after Mr. Weyhausen won the first heat, Mr. Currey's horse took a notion that she would be more fleet at running than trotting and so set in to win by that method, and succeeded.

winning the second prize.

HOBOKEN.

The programme at Wareings' Theatre this week opens with a laughable sketch, "Thompson is Dead," in which Stage Manager Riley makes a typical doctor. Among the artists are the Martell Brothers, wonderful acrobats, and Minnie Martell; McAvoy and Rogers: The Blaisdells, "Swiss Bell Ringers," who have with them Lucy Pixley, a sister of Annie Pixley, the famous actress. Miss Pixley is pretty, has a charming voice, and although only having been on the stage few weeks, gives promise of future triumphs. The veteran Dutch comedian, Larry Tooley, Miss Adah Castleton, the charming singer, and Scheffer and Blakely, in negro character sketches, complete a bill of unusual excellence. The afterpiece "Turning the tables," by Larry Tooley, Adah Castleton, James Riley and Hannah Birch, concludes the evening's entertainment. The management of Wareings' and the character of the performances cannot be surpassed. It is simply perfect.

NEW YORK.

The Metropolitan Alcazar, Broadway and Forty-first, street, is the popular summer theatre. The opera, ballet and music is nightly appreciated by large houses. Con-cert every Sunday evening.

"One of the Finest," Gus Williams' latest success, has won a firm hold on the amuse ment-loving public, and is destined to have a long run. The cast is a stong one, and Mr. Williams, as John Mishler, is a host within

"Patience" is having a long and success ful run at the Bijou Opera House, and the cool little house is crowded at every performance. "Patience" is an amusing comic opera, and in the hands of this phenomenal cast, is well rendered.

"The Merry War," (in English), at the Germania Theatre, Broadway and Thirteenth street, by the Norcross Opera Company, Viola Connolly, aged 22, residing in Norfolk street, New York, jumped overboard from the Newark street dock, on Thursday night. She was rescued by Edward Ford, a watchman on a pile driver, and taken to the station house. When arraigned before the Recorder she said that she had had a quarrel with her sister and wanted to drown herself. The Recorder sentenced her to twenty days in the County Jail.

A Pretended Deaf Mute.

On Monday afternoon last, Officer Whalen noticed an apparently aged Italian going through the streets begging. He was a pitiable looking object and carried a sign, upon which was painted, "Please Help the Deaf and Dumb." He imposed upon many charitable people and seemed to be making a good thing of it. But the officer recognized him as a professional beggar, and took him into custody. At the station house he still pretended to be deaf and dumb, but when taken before the Recorder he was recognized as a man who had been up before and released with a reprimand. He found that his scheme wouldn't work and in very voluble Italian begged the Recorder to be merciful. man and Surber was required to give bonds He had $10 in small coins as the result of his business." Young Burglars.

Three burglaries were committed this week by three youngsters, and all have been caught and sent up for trial. Mrs. Chambers' store, at 131 First street, Fischer's store, at 126 First street, and O'Brien's eigar store, corner River and Newark streets, were all entered on different nights, and goods and money to the amount of over $80 were stolon. Thomas Flynn, nine years old, was caught Wednesday, and acknowledged that he had been con-cerned in all three burglaries. He gave the police the names of two boys who, he said, were his accomplices. A lookout was kept for the two, and, on Thursday morning, Thomas Lakeland, aged sixteen, of 70 Willow Bruning. At the latter place Father Corrigan assisted at the ordination of the Rev. Father O'Toole. He may proceed to Alexandria, and will return through Germany to Ireland, and thence home to his church and people in Hoboken.

Masons Entertained

At a meeting of Euclid Lodge, A. F. and A M., on Monday night, "Bob" Wareing received the third degree. After the ceremonies Mr. Wareing invited the entire lodge and the visiting brethren around to his theatre in Hudson street. The performance was over about 11:30, and the house was empty, but the orchestra was retained, and the guests, to the number of about 100, marched in and took their seats in the auditorium. The hospitalities of the house were dispensed with the liberality for which the Wareings' are well known; the orchestra discoursed the sweetest music and several hours were spent in merrymaking. A Heavy Robbery.

Frank Miller, a well-to-do carpet weaver, residing at 86 Third street, this city, was the victim of a heavy robbery on Tuesday morning. Miller reported to Chief Donovan that his nephew, Joseph Miller, aged twenty-one, who had formerly lived with him, had forcibly entered the house during the absence of his wife and stolen $700 in bills, $100 in gold, a gold watch and chain, a silver watch, a pair of gold earrings and seven gold rings. Young Miller is said to be a wild youth. He has dark hair and is pock-marked. The police are on the lookout for him.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, HOBOKEN, N. J., July 17, 1882.

I return without approval your resolution of 11th interaction to advertise, "according to law," for proposals to do the official printing of the city for one year.

The law provides that to advertise according to law the advertisement shall be in a newspaper duly designated as the official medium therefor. Owing to your insafion, no such designation has been made. Consequently we are unable to advertise according to law. Your resolution, therefore, is a nullity.

The minority report of the Committee on Frini-ing and Stationery, directing the City Clerk to ad-vertise for proposals for the official printing for the city, which was adopted at session of July 11, 1882, and vetoed by his Honor the Mayor at this session, which voto was received and laid over until after recess, was taken up for action. I would most respectfully urge upon you the ne-cessity of making the designation at the earliest possible moment, that the city's interests may be properly guarded and unnacessary litigation and Henor the Mayor by the following vote:

Ayes—Councilmen Kaufmann, Kenney, Lee,

> It has been our privilege to treat more cases and effect more cures of this terrible fore in the history of the world. The wonderful sale which our remedies have attained is due wholly to the fact that they have cured the ones who have used them. The power and value of any remedy In the San Francisco Evening Bulletin we must rest wholly on a basis of worth, and of a cracked inventor or witless writer are never copied. It is just so with a healing remedy. If it possess no merit it will not be subjected to imitations. If, however, it has power and value, imitations will spring up on every side. While it is a tribute to the value of this medicine that it has imitations, still, in justice to those who are remedy. If it possess no merit it will not suffering, we feel that all should be warned against them.
