Have you registered? Only one more opportunity: don't fail!

Veto market absolutely bare of new stock. Old not in demand.

Ex-Judge Hoffman can quote scripture to a jury very impressively and with great effect.

Ex-City Clerk George Ducker got four votes in the Council Tuesday night towards appointing him to his old office.

The Republicans of Hudson County can hardly be proud of the false start they have given their Congressional campaign. It's going to tell against them in the race.

If great popularity, coupled with a full party vote can elect a Democratic Assemblyman in the Ninth, Water Commissioner Steljes will represent this district in Trenton this winter.

What does the Democrat (Rep.) mean by the statement that "all is chaos and confusion in the City Clerk's office?" It is a malicious falsehood, prompted by the spite of the libellous concern against Acting City Clerk Miller.

The Mayor has been "requested" and the Street Commissioner "directed" to appear before the "Special Committee" of the Council and furnish any and all information they may possess in reference to certain claims, alleged by his Honor to be spurious.

The proprietors and publishers of the Central New Jersey Herald, of which our former townsman, Robert Bruce, is editor, have resumed the publication of the Elizabeth Daily Herald, the first copy of which reached us yesterday. We wish the daily long life and prosperity. It is in good hands.

The "little cloud no bigger than a man's head" that appeared on the Republican horizon some time since and developed into unmistakable signs of a storm in Ohio last week, is growing yet larger and a first-class cyclone will sweep the country next month, if predictions of the politically-wise go for anything.

In the libel suit of Albert Hoffman against the proprietors of the ADVERTISER, for $5,000 damages, before Judge Knapp, in the Circuit Court, Tuesday, the jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, fixing the damages at $1,000. In the argument for the plaintiff, ex-Judge Hoffman, his counsel, did not attempt to prove that special damage had been sustained, but that the articles upon which the case was brought, were of the character of personal attacks and not of the nature of ordinary newspaper criticism, and therefore unwarrantable and calculated to injure his client's reputation. The defense was that no malice was intended,

THE CONGRESSIONAL CONTEST.

With the nomination of Gilbert Collins for Congress by the Republican Convention on Tuesday, the campaign is fairly opened in Hudson County. The contest may be called almost one-sided, for although much has been said among the enemies of the Democratic party about the closeness of the vote, no Republican has ever been elected to Congress from this District in a strictly party contest. Any Republican success that has been achieved has been by Democratic votes and in years when the Democrats were waging a sort of civil war among themselves.

This year there is no such inward strife in our ranks. A man acceptable to the entire party, has been placed at the head of our ticket. Upon the Hon. Wm. McAdoo the party will unite, and there is not the slightest doubt that in polling the full Democratic vote of the county, his majority will be so large as to show that a Republican nomination for Congress is but an empty honor. In addition, Mr. McAdoo will undoubtedly run ahead of his ticket, as his known advocacy of Anti-monopoly principles will draw to his support a considerable vote from that faction of the Republicans.

The Republicans have made a weak nomination. Mr. Collins is an honorable, upright gentleman and a lawyer of ability, but politically, he is almost unknown. He has never held office, and in 1880, when he ran on the Republican ticket for State Senator against Mr. Paxton, the present Democratic incumbent, that gentleman defeated him by a majority of 3,000 votes. If figures mean anything, these show his want of strength. Besides this, his attitude towards the Convention before and after the nomination, was anything but a pleasing one to his party. He refused the nomination, and when it was forced upon him in such a way as to show that his party was desperate and would not take no for answer, he even then said he would not accept, but if nominated and elected "he would take the office," but he warned them that he would not make much personal effort to secure that election.

Such assurance is without parallel in the history of American politics. This attitude of worse than indifference is not calculated to inspire the party with confidence or help it to make a very determined fight in the campaign. Mr. Collins is hardly to be blamed for not wanting a nomination which the few prominent Republicans to whom it was tendered positively declined to accept, and which after all makes him but a figure-head—the standard-bearer of an army which has neither the force nor equipments with which to meet its political foes in the fight. He knew that as a candidate he would merely be standing up to be knocked down, and he should either have held to the determination he expressed, to keep out of the business altogether, or, having allowed himself to be named, he should have come out squarely enough to inspire his friends with some hope of his keeping up with his ticket, at least. As it now stands, it will be a matter of surprise if the candidate for Coroner on the same ticket does not poll a larger vote than Collins—the candidate who is not a candidate.

Let every member of the Democratic party go to the polls on November 7 and do his duty, and we prophesy that McAdoo's majority will be sufficiently large to decelerate the weakest Congressional candidate that the Republicans have ever put in the field in the State of New Jersey.

THE ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES.

It is a matter of regret that the private business engagements of the Hon. Robt. McCague, Jr., should have compelled him to decline what was his right and what he would certainly have received had he wished it—a re-nomination for Assembly in the Ninth District. Upon the withdrawal of his name in the Convention the delegates soon united upon Martin Steljes as the party's choice. It was with considerable difficulty and only after the most urgent solicitation on the part of his friends that he was persuaded to accept the candidacy. The nomination was one of those rare instances of the office seeking the man and not the man seeking the office, for in this case, unlike the Republican nomination for Congress, the nomination means something. There was no money "used" in the convention, a circumstance only too uncommon in these degenerate days of frequently corrupt primaries and purchasable delegates.

It is almost unnecessary to say who Mr. Steljes is or to descant upon his fitness for the office. He is as well known as any man in Hoboken. A German by birth, he came to this country when seventeen years old, settling first in New York. He is now only in his forty-sixth year, and has been a resident of this city for sixteen years. He is a staunch Democrat, a man of great influence, and has always labored earnestly and effectively for the good of his party. Time and again he has refused to accept any nomination, and the only occasion upon which he consented to go before the people for any office was when he ran for Water Commissioner and was elected without opposition to the seat he still occupies in that Board. In Mr. Steljes are united the rare qualities of a skillful politician, a genial and popular gentleman and a man of the strictest integrity, honorable and upright in character and a successful business man, qualities which command respect and eminently fit him to be a model representative.

Both parties are to be congratulated upon the men they have secured to make the contest in the Ninth District. Mr. Steljes and Mr. Wiggins are and have for years been warm personal friends, and no doubt regret opposing one another in the campaign. But Mr. Wiggins' chances for success will be less probably with Mr. Steljes for an opponent than with any other candidate, for whatever is even more popular than our Assessor. The Independent Germans will vote for him almost to a man, and he will, of course, poll the full party vote.

With these two candidates in the field, the campaign will be nearer a strictly party contest than it was last year, for they are both popular, and the party issue, a vote for United States Senator, will make it an exceedingly interesting race. It will be a fair test of party strength in the Ninth.

In the Seventh District, Hon. Dennis McLaughlin was of course re-nominated, and equally as a matter of course will be re-elected by a regular "Horse-shoe" District majority—a rousing Democratic one. Mr. McLaughlin made an excellent and hard-working Assemblyman last year and will do so again. The Seventh does not contain a better man for the nomination or one whose name on the ticket will give it greater strength.

Hoboken Democrats have every reason to be pleased with their candidates for Assembly, and it is gratifying to all concerned that entire harmony exists in the ranks this fall. It is only necessary for every voter to do his duty to win the victory on November 7.

WANTED—SCHOOL ROOMS.

Somebody has suggested to the Council that the Armory be used for a school room until a suitable building can be provided for the purpose. This, at first sight, would appear a good idea. We would like to see a speedy solution of this important question, but we hardly think this last plan proposed a feasible one. There are many difficulties, apparently insurmountable, in the way of its adoption, not the least of which is the difficulty of heating the room. To be sure, there is a heating apparatus in the City Hall, but the problem of heating so large a room is not solved by the existence of a steam boiler and coils of pipe. The Armory is unquestionably the largest room in the city, not only in the floor area, but in the actual cubic contents of atmosphere to be heated, and while in the warm weather this would be an advantage, it only increases the difficulty of supplying artificial heat. Another important objection would be the interference with the work of the city officers, for the noise and bustle consequent upon the holding of school in the rooms overhead would amount to almost a nuisance to the Mayor and the inmates of the City Clerk's, Collector's, Treasurer's, Assessor's and Water Commissioner's offices, to say nothing of the wear and tear on the building, and other inconveniences that might be mentioned. It would pay better in the end to lay out a considerable sum to get another building, than to attempt to use the Armory.

Political Notes.

Steljes and victory.
Two stronger and more popular men than Mr. Martin Steljes and Mr. John R. Wiggins could not be pitted against each other.

It is a fact worth recording that no money was used in our Democratic Conventions. They were not run in the interest of cunning politicians.

The Anti-monopolists of Hudson County held a meeting at the Court House, Thursday night, and endorsed the nomination of Hon. Wm. McAdoo for Congress.

The Democrats of New York City have agreed upon a first-rate candidate for Mayor—Mr. Franklin Edson. We congratulate the party on his choice and on its prospects.

In the elections thus far held, the Democrats have elected seventeen Congressmen and the Republicans fifteen. The present delegations from the same States give twenty-two Republicans and ten Democrats.

If fate is good to the Democratic party, there will appear in Secor Robeson's district in a day or two a man who deems himself great and slandered. Speaker Kefauver is the man. He will speak in Robeson's district.

Democratic Assembly Conventions have nominated Joseph T. Kelley in the Second District, Frank O. Cole in the Fifth District, John M. Shannon in the Eighth District and re-nominated Hon. Denis McLaughlin in the Seventh District.

Ohio simply starts the tide of Republican defeat that will sweep over Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Indiana, and Illinois may be greatly bent if not broken in the storm. To the lesson of Ohio is the lesson of Republican disintegration.—Phila. Times.

The Democrats of the Sixth Congressional District, have nominated ex-Mayor W. H. F. Fiedler, of Newark. Mr. Fiedler's friends say that by reason of his message leading to the exposure of the City Hall frauds he will poll a very large independent vote, in addition to his party vote.

The Democracy of staunch old Hudson did a good day's work at Hoboken, on Tuesday, by nominating for Congress Hon. Wm. McAdoo. The nominee is one of the ablest young Democrats in the State, and will take a front rank in the next Congress as a ready, able and effective speaker.—Central N. J. Herald.

A young man is going about this State to Republican meetings and asking: "Is Gen. Slocum here?" If this anxious person will wait until the next Congress meets, and will then go to Washington, he will find the object of his present search at the Capitol, occupying a seat on the Democratic side of the House of Representatives as a member of Congress from New York.—Sun.

He was employed as a civil engineer in the construction of a new railroad, and while at work fell a victim to mountain fever. His death occurred about 100 miles from the nearest railroad station, and his body was about six days in transit. The funeral took place on Tuesday, from St. Paul's Church, and was attended by a large circle of sorrowing relatives and friends. The body was well preserved and looked remarkably life-like. The interment took place at Greenwood.

Chief Donovan, of the Hoboken police force, will be a witness for the prosecution.

Officer Kerrigan, when called into John Deak's saloon, corner Ferry and Hudson streets, Tuesday, to arrest a disorderly man, was assaulted by the fellow, who was crazed by rum, and beaten severely before he could defend himself. The man escaped. Kerrigan is badly bruised and probably injured internally. He is still in bed, too sore to attend to his duties.

Patrick Ganley, of 435 East Forty-first street, New York, aged twenty-eight years, came to Hoboken on Thursday and went from house to house trying to sell photographs. Chanceman Harrison, of the Hoboken police force, was up on the "hill" on business yesterday and while there arrested two suspicious-looking characters and took them to the station house. They turned out to be two sneak thieves, who had entered and robbed No. 15 Reservoir avenue, Jersey City Heights, and the stolen goods were found in their possession.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scribner, of 77 Bloomfield street, have met with a sad loss in the death of their infant son, who died on Tuesday morning after a brief illness of only two days. Are you going to Philadelphia on the 24th, 25th, 26th and 27th inst? The latter day will be the greatest in the history of that city, as 25,000 militia and Grand Army of the Republic men will join in a monster parade. New

Those wishing to attend the grand concert of the Misses Conron, at the German Club Hall, next Monday evening, should remember that their tickets must be purchased in advance, as none will be sold at the door on that evening. This concert will be the first one with a programme of exclusively classical music ever given in this city, and the character of the performance and the reputation of the artists is sure to fill the hall. No time should be lost in securing tickets.

A LIVELY CONVENTION.

The Hudson County Republicans held their Congressional Convention in Jersey City on Tuesday. It was a scene of "confusion worse confounded." Though many names had been mentioned recently for the nomination, it was understood that no prominent Republican would take it. Colonel Tuffey, John H. Bonn, ex-Congressman Brigham and Gilbert Collins had all refused to run.

After a few chairmen had been declared elected, nominations were called for by Assembly Districts. The first named Gilbert Collins. Mr. Collins jumped up and repeated his declaration that he didn't want it and wouldn't take it. Notwithstanding this, the Second District followed suit and also named him.

The Third named Major Pangborn, the Fourth was silent, the Fifth and Sixth named Collins' forces, and the Seventh and Ninth lifted up their voices for Mayor Benson with the exception of one delegate, Col. B. F. Hart, who made a telling speech against "Bridge," saying that he did not consider him a competent and fit person to run for such an office. The Eighth went for Bonn and the Tenth for Toffey and Collins.

The vote stood: Collins, 36; Pangborn, 24; Benson, 20; Toffey, 19; Bonn, 11; Brigham, 1. On an attempt to declare Collins nominated, violent "kicking" ensued and they had a regular "monkey and parrot" time for a while. Finally some sort of a second ballot was taken, and Collins secured a sufficient number of votes, and a motion to make the nomination unanimous was declared carried.

Though some of the Hoboken delegation refused to vote for it, and when the contrary votes were called for, there was a "certain uncertainty" about the way in which they voted in the negative.

Mr. Collins then mounted a table and made the "cheekiest" speech on record. He said that he did not intend to devote his voice, his influence, his physical strength or his money to the canvass. He was in no condition to do either. He did not want the nomination and wouldn't accept it, "but if you vote for me and I'm elected, I'll take the office. If you are willing to put me before the people on that platform, you may do it at your own risk."

The Convention pocketed this with its pride and gave three cheers for this candidate who was not a candidate. After the Congressional fuss was all over, Irvin D. Applegate, Jr., of this city, was nominated for Coroner without much opposition, and the excited Convention adjourned.

September's Vital Statistics.

During the month of September there were 412 deaths, 300 births, 14 still-births and 134 marriages in Hudson County. The death rate for September was 24.8, an increase of 7.10 over the annual rate for the past five Septembers, though below that of September, 1881. The rate in Hoboken fell 1.10 below that of the past five Septembers, but was above the mean county rate for '82. The slightly increased county rate as contrasted with the average for five Septembers resulted altogether from deaths of very young children. Whooping cough and lung diseases were very prominent, but very few from consumption, as compared with the average, took place. The Board of Health reporting but 35 deaths from that cause during the month of September.

Society and Lodge Notes.

Seven new candidates will be initiated in Hoboken Lodge, Knights of Pythias, on Monday evening.

An appeal for aid for the yellow-fever sufferers at Pensacola, Fla., has been issued by authority of the Grand Sir of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F.

The Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows of this State will meet in Trenton, on Tuesday, November 16th. The election of representatives must take place within thirty days of the time of meeting of the Grand Encampment; this is also the case with the subordinate lodges throughout the State.

NINTH ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.

Hon. Robert McCague, Jr., Declining to Run—The Nomination Given to Martin Steljes on the Ninth Ballot—He Accepts.

The Democratic Assembly Convention of the Ninth District met at 75 Washington street, Saturday night, and was organized by ex-Mayor McAdvis. Judge Foster was elected permanent Chairman and Anthony McHale, Secretary. The nominations made were Robert McCague, Jr., Martin Steljes, August Bente, Wm. Stuhr and others. Patrick Smith, one of the delegates, presented the following letter from Mr. McCague:

HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 14, 1882.

To the Chairman and Members of the Ninth District Assembly Convention:

GENTLEMEN—Anticipating that your Convention might follow the rule of party usage and hence not give me the nomination for Assembly, I deem it just to those of your members who have kindly insisted upon my candidacy to say it is impossible for me to accept that favor. My acceptance last year was the result of personal solicitation by many valued friends, who assured me that I could aid our common cause by becoming a candidate for a position which I did not then desire.

This year it would be impossible for me to serve our party without doing injustice to those who have a right to command my time and attention in business relations. I have therefore to request that you will not consider my name in connection with the nomination. With assurances that I will use my utmost endeavors to elect the gentleman upon whom you may unite as my successor, I remain, with great respect and appreciation of your friendship, personally and politically,
Yours, &c.,
ROBERT McCAGUE, JR.

Voting then commenced on the other names and on the ninth ballot Martin Steljes received 9 out of 13 votes. The nomination was made unanimous, and was received with unbounded enthusiasm. In fact the Democrats were elated, as he was unquestionably the strongest candidate, under the circumstances, that could be nominated. The fact that Mr. Steljes had repeatedly declared that he would not accept, caused many people to believe that he would preposterously decline, and even as late as Monday night it was conjectured that he would refuse to become the Democratic standard-bearer.

The sentiment in favor of the candidacy of Mr. Steljes was so overwhelmingly strong that the Democrats with an accord proclaimed in his favor and used every available means to secure his word of acceptance.

The main obstacle in the way of Mr. Steljes was on account of the sad bereavement in the family of Mr. Wm. Buck, his business partner. He was conscientious enough to admit to his friends that he had not the heart to enter into a political skirmish while his partner was so sadly afflicted by the sudden death of his beloved daughter. To all influential Democrats and personal friends, Mr. Steljes made one reply:

"I cannot conscientiously accept the honor until I have consulted with my partner. It would be unnatural, ungrateful for me to do so."

Meanwhile the Democrats were not idle. They besieged Mr. Steljes and advocated their cause with such effect that, after a visit to his partner, the nominee said he would accept.

The Convention reconvened on Monday night and awaited with eager expectation the arrival of the nominee. Even at that late hour many of the delegates were not cognizant of the fact that Mr. Steljes had accepted, but there was but one opinion, "He must become our standard-bearer."

The first business transacted on reconvening was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution, a copy of which was ordered sent to Mr. McCague:

Resolved, That we have heard with regret the unalterable determination of the Hon. Robert McCague, Jr., to decline a re-nomination for the position of Assemblyman, and therefore tender to him the assurance of our gratitude for his services to our party as a tried and true public servant.

A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Smith, Kenney and Kunkin, were delegated by the Convention to secure the attendance of Mr. Steljes. They escorted him into the hall and introduced him as the nominee amid enthusiastic applause. Mr. Steljes was visibly affected by the reception, and after the applause had subsided he made a few appropriate remarks. The nomination, he said, had not been solicited by him, in fact, he had persistently declared that he was not a candidate. As the honor, however, had been conferred, and the party wished him to make the sacrifice, he had no alternative but to accept. If elected, he proposed to do his duty fearlessly and conscientiously.

Mr. Steljes is a member of the Board of Water Commissioners of this city, and he can point with pride to his official record. He is the junior partner of the well-known firm of Buck & Steljes, of New York, and is a thorough business man. His Democracy is unquestioned, and on his standing in the community it is needless to remark. As a prominent citizen said, "His integrity and honesty speak for themselves."

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.

The widow of the late General George H. Thomas is in Washington.

Major General McDowell, late commander of the Department of the Pacific, will permanently reside in Philadelphia.
