THE FITZ JOHN PORTER CASE. Letter of General Grant to Senato

J. D. Cameron-Thorough Innocence of the Accused Officer Established.

We print below a letter from General Grant to Senator J. D. Cameron, dated evidence of any persons on the Union February 4, 1882, and bearing upon the Fitz John Porter case, which has only been given to the public this week:

New York, Feb. 4, 1882. Hon. J. D. Cameron, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR-It has been my intention until within the last few days to visit Washington this winter to spend some time and there to have a conversation with you and with General Logan on the subject of the Fitz John Porter case, but having now pretty nearly decided not to go to Washington I have determined to write, and write to you so that you may state my position to your friends, and particularly to General Logan, and, if you choose, to show this letter to any such people.

When I commenced the examination of the Fitz John Porter case as it now stands it was with the conviction that his sentence was a just one, and that his punishment had been light for so hideous an offense; but I tried to throw off all prejudice in the case and to examine it on its merits. I came out of that examination with the firm conviction that an entirely innocent man had been most unjustly punished. I cast no censure upon the court which tried him, because the evidence which now proves his entire innocence of disobedience of orders it was impossible to have before that

When I completed the investigation and came to the conclusion that I didof his innocence-my first thought was to write to General Logan, because I regard him as my friend, and I am sure I am his, and he had made probably the ablest speech of his life in opposition to the bill for General Porter's restoration to the army. I thought, therefore, it was due to him that I should inform him of the conclusion I had come to after the investigation. But as the President was just about visiting this city when my letter to him w. written, and it was desired to present it to him here, I requested, in lieu of a letter to General Logan, to have a copy of my letter to the President sent to him. This was done. You are aware that when General Logan made his speech against General Porter it was in opposition to a bill pending in Congress, He, like myself, was thoroughly convinced of the guilt of General Porter, and was, therefore, opposed to the bill. His investigations, therefore, were necessarily to find arguments to sustain his side of a pending question. I, of course, have no knowledge of the papers he would refer to or would examine to find such arguments. but I know that he could have the testimony which was taken before the courtmartial which convicted; probably also the arguments of the officer who acted as prosecutor when the case was before the Schofield court, and arguments that have been made by lawyers, J. D. Cox and others possibly, all of which were in opposition to General Porter, as much as that of paid attorneys in cases before civil courts.

But my investigation of all the facts that I could bring before me of the occurrence from the 27th of August, 1862, and for some little time prior, to the 1st of September, the same year, show conclusively that the court and some of the witnesses entirely misapprehended the position of the enemy on that day. General Porter was convicted of disobedience of an order of General Pope's dated at half-past four P. M. on the 29th of August to attack the enemy on his right flank, and in his rear, if possible. Despatches of General Pope of that day show that he knew General Lee was coming to the support of Jackson, whom he thought commanded the only force in his front at that time, but he could not arrive until the evening of the following day, or the morning of the day after, It was sworn to before the court that this order of half-past four P. M. reached General Porter at about five or half-past five in the afternoon, but it must be recollected that this testimony was given from memory and unquestionably without any idea at the time of the occurrence that they were ever to be salled upon to give any testimony in the case. Investigation shows a despatch from General Porter, dated six B. M. of that day, which makes no mention of having received the order to attack, and it is such a despatch as could not be written without mentioning the receipt of that order if it had been received. There is other testimony that makes it entirely satisfactory to my mind that the order was not received until about sundown, or between sundown and derk.
It was given, as stated before, to attack the enemy's right, and, if possible, to position that Jackson was there alone, as General Pope had stated he would be until the evening of the next day, or the morning of the day following. I believe the court is convinced that on the evening of the 29th of August, Jackson with his force was there alone; but now it is proved by testimony better than sworn side that by eleven o'clock A. M. on the 29th Longstreet was up and to the right get into his rear. This was on the sup-of Jackson, with a force much greater than General Porter's entire force. The attack upon Jackson's right and rear was therefore impossible without first wiping out the force of Longstreet. The order did not contemplate either a night attack, and to have obeyed it, even if Longstreet had not been there, General Porter would have been obliged to make a night attack. But even as it was I find that General Porter, notwithstanding the late hour, did all he could to obey that order. He had previously given a command to General Morell, who commanded his most advanced division or one most fronting the enemy, to throw out a skirmish line to engage the enemy or to keep him occupied, and on the receipt of this order, although at this late hour, he immediately sent orders to General Morell to increase it from a skirmish line to a large force, and that be would be with him as soon as he could get there. He did actually go to the front, although it was dark, to superintend this movement, and as far as possible to prevent the enemy detaching anything from his front, thus showing a desire to obey the order strictly and to

entirely, but throw some censure upon him for having expressed a lack of confidence in his commanding officer. Such conduct might be censured, although if every man in the army had been punished who had expressed lack of confidence in his superior officer many of our best soldiers would have been punished. But, in fact, if this was not stated in the summing up of the case by the Board, should not have found that he had expressed any such lack of confidence. On the contrary, to my mind now, he was zealous in giving a support to General Pope, and more so, possibly, for the reason that he knew among his former army associates there was a good deal of apprehension, to say the least, of his fitness for his nev place. It must be recollected that General Pope was selected from a Western army and brought East to command an army where there were a great many generals who had had experience in a previous war, and who had, like himself, a military education, and there may (improperly) have been a feeling that it was a reflection upon them to go out of their own comnand to find a suitable commander: and it is also very probable that expression was freely given to that feeling. But it would be well to reflect what would have been the sentiments in the West if an officer for the Eastern army had been bank, and made the six miles to home, sent to superced all of them and to command them, and whether or not there might have not been some harsh criticisms, even by men who proved to be among our most gallant and devoted

Then, too, in re-examining the case, my attention was called again to General Pope's early order in taking command of the Army of Virginia. I send you a copy of this order. You will see that it was calculated to make the army to whom it was addressed feel that it was a reflection upon their former services and former commanders form that of a company to the commander of the whole and that even as amiable people as General Logan and myself are would have been very apt to have made some very uncomplimentary remarks if they had been addressed to an Eastern officer sent West to command over us in our field of duty.

the conviction that General Porter had been guilty as found by the court, but came out of the investigation with a thorough conviction that I and the public generally had done him a fearful injustice, and entirely satisfied that any intelligent man or lawyer who will throw aside prejudice and examine the case as I have done will come to the same conclusion,

As stated in my letter to the President, I feel it incumbent upon me, in view of the positions that I have held heretofore and my failure then to do what I now wish I had done, to do all in my power to place General Porter right before the public and in future history and to repair my own unintentional injustice, I address this letter to you knowing that you will have a desire to do just what your judgment dictates as being right in the matter and that you will state to whomsoever it may seem to you proper and necessary my present convictions on this case

Wery truly yours, U. S. GRANT. Ben Butler's Bridge.

The just achieved triumph of Ben Butler and the clever devices with which he neutralized the effects of the "splits' in his own ranks, recalls an incident of the general's early career, and which is interesting as showing that even in his outh Ben displayed those strategic abilities which have since done so much for his military and political career.

It appears that young Butler was much namored of a pretty girl who lived on a farm about six miles from that of the Butler family in the western part of Massachusetts. The country beauty was a coquette, however, and kept quite a large train of admirers in suspense, each rival doing his best to gain the advantage of the others. At last matters were brought to a climax, and the damsel appointed a certain night when she would render her final decision as to which suitor she preferred.

It goes without saying that they were all better looking than Ben, but the latter determined to put the inside of his head against the outside of those of his opponents. The nearest way to the fair flirt's house, and the one taken by all her eager followers, was over a bridge formed by a single and somewhat slippery log placed across a deep brook in the rear of the house. Young Butler repaired to this bridge an hour earlier than the accustomed "courtin' time." carrying a pail of lard with which he carefully annointed the log by the mellow moonlight, backing himself across it astraddle.

As he afterward sat with his sweetheart, waiting for the other suitors to appear, a loud splash came from the direction of the brook. Ben's game eye twinkled, and in imagination he could see one of his gorgeously gotten up fellow candidates climbing up the opposite bank with his teeth chattering and heading for home across lots, but the conspirator looked as innocent as a cat in the dairy and said nothing.

Pretty soon there came another souse, and after a while another. The beauty began to look at the clock and show evidences of decided pique at the negligence of her other admirers-a circumstance Ben did not fail to turn to his own profit.

Presently he could faintly hear voices in the distance, and he knew that the last two swains were approaching together. Pretty soon came a tremendous double splash.

"Dear me," said the young lady, how the fish are jumping to-night." The upshot of it was, that when the future Governor rose to go, the slighted beauty gave him her hand. Sealing the bargain with an old-fashioned huskingbee kiss. Butler left his prize in such a state of exultation, that he forgot all about the greased log, and the first thing he knew both heels hit him in the back of his head, and he took a header down below, just as his victims had done. He climben up the already well clawed uttering Kearne isms unfit for publication. He was taken with chills and fever as a result, and when he got well, found his flancee had eloped with a hired man. Butler tells this as the narrowest escape of his life, as he says the girl began eating onions the very next day after she became engaged. The general has been lucky every since.-San Francisco Post.

This Their minds are busy with conceiving phenomenon has been repeatedly proved and projecting Argonautic expeditions by the most careful and able scientists in this country and Europe to be really the result of natural forces, subject to the same laws which govern other physical powers. This being known, the question naturally arises, why has it not been utilized commercially? The field control" "to every inch of territory in for its practical use is absolutely limitless, for it follows that if one could become possessed of the thoughts that occupy the minds of everybody by simply touching "everybody's" hand the knowledge so gained could be turned to immense advantage. The possibilities in the line of blackmail alone are simply boundless, and it can be easily imagined large united city is like a large stock how a little knowledge of what you are company. The interests of the citizens thinking about, if possessed by an unscrupulous person, could prove a dangerous thing. The first answer that suggests itself to the question is, perto our surprise we find our esteemed haps it has been utilized, and this view of the case would explain a great many revival of this consolidation scheme and mysteries. How "things get out," for instance. Why is it not true that Jay Gould is "a person of acute mental perception?" Would this not furnish a clue to his wonderful "foresight," as it is called? Let every man who has ever withstanding the old aphorism that God shaken hands with Gould run back with made the country and man made the his memory "through the corridors of all the other numbers of the programme town, there are many men of sound time" and try to recall what he was mind and memory who believe that the thinking of when the grasping palm of Creator still exercises some control over the little dried-up looking millionaire "touched his flesh." Some one should be found whose "mental perception" is more the men who pay for it. The official acute, one with greater will power. He should be introduced to Gould and shake hands with him, and repeat the shaking process at every available opportunity. If Jay "tumbles," and refuses to shake hands with this person then he will have same consolidation scheme was agitated to come in close contact with him in some other way. THE DRUMMOND FAMILY.

Their Successful Concert at Odd Fellows' Hall, Tuesday Night.

On Tuesday evening Odd Fellows' Hall was filled to its utmost capacity by the largest erowd ever gathered within its walls, attracted by the announcement that the famous Drummond Family would give a concert and literary entertainment, under the auspices of Protection Lodge, No. 634, K. of H. Every foot of standing room even was taken up, and it would have been impossible, after the beginning of the exercises, for another person to get beyond the door. This wonderful musical family gave an entertainment that was more than satisfactory to the hundreds of interested listeners and added to the already enviable reputation enjoyed by its members. There are eight of the Drummonds, Mr. and Mrs. and six daughters, the eldest being a married woman, and the youngest one, "Baby Pinky," less than seven years old. Mrs. Drummond played all the accompaniments on the piano with the skill of an artist. A bell-ringing solo was played by Miss Nina, and was followed by Miss Maggie, who sang very prettily some popular melodies. She has a remarkably peautiful and perfectly cultivated voice. Miss Nina then gave some selections on the banjo in a manner which showed her to be mistress of the instrument. Miss Bella, a remarkably good elecutionist, gave "Spoopendyke's Bathing Suit," and other recitations. Then Miss Ada, an excellent male impersonator, with a genuine tenor voice, and Baby Pinky, gave some comic duets. Baby Pinky is a wonderful child, a born actress, sings sweetly, dances as gracefully as a fairy, and took the house by storm. She sings in thirty-nine pieces, some part songs and some solos, without prompting. Misses Lizzie and Ada gave a song and dance, each accompaning herself on a banjo. This performance was simply perfect. Miss Nina performed beautifully on the xylophone. The "Gobble" duet from "Mascotte," by Misses Nina and Maggie, was finely rendered and enthusiastically applauded by the audience, as in fact were Baby Pinky made a decided hit, when dressed in a military captain's uniform, she sang "The Captain" solo.

While the preparations were making for the the programme concluded, P. G. D. Wm. C. Morris delivered a brief address to the audience, giving an outline of the K. of H. order and a sketch of its objects and past work. After the entertainment was brought to a close a hop was inaugurated and the opening grand march was led by Mr. Morris, who is a veritable giant in stature, and little Baby Pinky, to the amusement of everybody.

The Committee of Arrangements, consisting of Wm. C. Morris, Chairman; Carsten Pope, Secretary; Jas. Winstanley, Jas. Moffatt, Timothy Crough, D. Ranges, A. V. H. Cook and Jas. Stanfield, managed the evening's entertainment, and they are entitled to great credit for the manner in which they performed their duties. A more successful entertainment has never been given in this city, and so delighted were the Hoboken people with the Drummond Family, that efforts have been made to have them here until the 24th of November, a week after he again. They have been engaged for an entertainment in the First M. E. Church, on Wednesday, the 20th inst.

The "D. G." Out Again. A musical and literary entertainment and broom drill were given at the First M. E. Church last night in the presence of a large audience. The programme opened with an organ voluntary by Prof. Shaw, which was rendered in his usual artistic style. Messrs. Julius and Alfred Boehm played a piano duet which was distinguished by the brilliance of its execution and was much admired by the audience. Mr. Ithmar C. Conkey recited "Mr. Pott's Story," and Miss Ida Young, "The New Church Organ," both of which were given with good effect and were well received. Prof. Beckmann's baritone solo was finely rendered. Then followed the first exhibition of the broom drill, which was substantially the same as that given at this church last June by the same "Darling Girls." or "Day Guards," as we have since learned the "D. G." on their dust-pan knapsacks signified. The Guards were: Captain, Miss Ida Young ima laencke, Jessi Pritchard and Lille Howland; privates, Misses Sadie White, Clara Durland, Winnie very evident, opposition on the part of McCain, Lillie Butler, Clara Butler, Mabel Wiggins, Venie Taft, Tessie Feierabend, Kittie Day, Lidie Curtis, Emily Brightman, Gussie Patterson, Clara Burt, Fannie Green, Addie Pritchard and Nellie Boyd. The officers were armed with feather dusters and the privates with brooms. The Guards went through the maneuvers and evolutions with creditable exactness and precision and had the manual of Hughey; the time for consolidation is and property owners on the Hill even arms down to a fine point. They marched to present Hoboken will cry down and Hoboken should be selfish and refuse to ton being the sole member of the military band. not a weapon to be avoided. After the first drill there was another organ voluntary by Prof. Shaw, and "Good Night, duet on the piano. Miss A. B. Lorton sang a solo beautifully and was enthusiastically applauded. The evening's entertainment was then brought to close by another drill of the Guards, which was as well done as the first, and the audience went home greatly pleased with the "girl soldiers."

The City Clerkship.

The Council Chamber was packed Tuesday night in anticipation of a disturbance in the City Clerk matter, but there was no ground for the expectation of the crowd in this respect and the sequel proved it. An attempt was made by the four Councilmen who had voted for McDermott's appointment, to have him take his seat. A very heated debate ensued, in which some very sharp things were said on both sides. The charter was profusely quoted, and both factions proved to their own satisfaction that they were in the taking his seat was finally put to a vote, four Councilmen voted "aye" and four "no," Mr. Grassmann, to the surprise of Mr. McDermott's friends, voting in the negative. He was the member who was willing to do any thing to end the controversy, but who has really been the obstacle in the way of a settlement. The matter is still in statu quo, and, as the ADVERTISER said in the beginning, the question can only be satisfactorily settled by an appeal to the courts, and Mr. McDermott. or his friends, should have taken this step at the outset and avoided all the useless dis-

His wife stated Thursday that although she did not know what had become of him, she thinks he has probably gone to California, where he has a brother. No reason is given for his leaving home without warning. The money he had with him was intended for the purchase of cattle in Rondout. He had gone there but was not satisfied with the live stock he had inspected. He returned home and left the next day without warning. He was not reported to the police as missing had disappeared.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, HOBOKEN, N. J., Dec. 1, 1882,

To the Council

I would recommend the discontinuance of employment for the winter of the gardener of the city's parks. There is no need or occasion for his services during the season, and it would be a waste of the city's money to continue paying him with nothing to do. It is not incumbent on the city, in any sense, to ministain him under such circumstances; he is not a city officer; he has had a monopoly of the employment; he has been well paid for his services; an I understand, is well provided for, he or his wife, having charge of two large tenement houses belonging to one of our most generous citizens. E. V. S. BESSON.

Fields.

On plans and specifications as adopted, regularly, Mr. Fields' bid was $4.600. This exceeding the amount authorized for expenditure, your resolution proposes to make certain modification of said plans and specifications and award him the contract therefore at $4.220.0. What those modifications in the contract therefore at $4.220.0. contract therefore at $4,220.9. What those mio-ications may be your resolution does not state, at think I should know something about them, as un, also, a responsible party in the matter. Yo resolution states that these modifications are " be put" on file in the City Clerk's office. It will time to pass on these modifications when they " put on file in the City Clerk's office."

time to pass on these modifications when they "be put on file in the City Clerk's office."

Independent of this, the contract price exceeds the balance of the fund. The carpenter's contract is $2.45; the plumber's contract is $2.45; these, to gether with the proposed contract with Mr. Fields, amount to $6.949.40. The amount in the fund is $6.939.64. We are prohibited by law from exceeding that amount. From what I understand, it is proposed to evade the law in the construction of this building, by dispensing with many things and considerable work (to keep within the lawful sum) and to furnish and do them heroafter, at extra expense to the city, from the Fire Department Fund, or by an act of the Legislature, to be obtained, or some other way.

This will not do. The building should be erected and thoroughly equipped for the company to enter it for an amount inside the balance remaining. One important and necessary expenditure you have not considered at all and that is sewer connection for the house. This you will find quite expensive. There being no sewer in front of the proposed lot, connection will have to be made otherwise and many feet must be traversed to the nearest one. This it not your first essay in modifications of your plans and specifications of mason work. I am afraid you have already modified too much. The great trouble is, your plans and specifications, originally, were too elaborate and expensive, and the only proper course now would be, to and Chairman Miller.

A PROFESSIONAL CONFESSION.

The Unusual Experience of a Prominent Man Made Public.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger always brings a person to his senses even though it twenty-one pounds, in whose stemach was may be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases the symptoms of all of which I really had. While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor the Rev Dr Foote rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come Three miles and a half from Hoboken, is now under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, would waive my prejudice and try the remedy so highly recommended. I began its use on the 1st day of June, and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued Four tall men attracted much attention to take it; the sickening sensation departed good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined I had an opportunity.
