THE BELLS ACROSS THE SNOW"

BY FRANCES RIDLEY HAVERGAL.

O, Christmas! Merry Christmas! Has it really come again? With its memories and greetings With its joy and with its pain. There's a minor in the carol, And a shadow in the light, And a apray of cyprus twining With the holly wreath to-night.

And the hush is never broken By the laughter, light and low, 'As we listen in the starlight

To the bells across the snow.' O, Christmas! Merry Christmas! Tis not so very long Since other voices blended With the carol and the song. If we could hear them singing

As they are singing now If we could but see the radiance Of the crown on each dear brow: There would be no sigh to smother, No hidden tear to flow,

"As we listen in the starlight To the bells across the snow. O. Christmas! Merry Christmas!

This never more can be: We cannot bring again the days Of our unshadowed glee. But Christmas, happy Christmas, Sweet herald of good will. With holy songs of glory,

Brings holy gladness still; And peace and hope may brighten And patient love may glow, "As we listen in the starlight To the bells across the snow."

RETTA'S CHRISTMAS EVE.

BY S. A. F.

"Writing to-day, Retta?" The question came in a tone of surprise, as Mr. Saunders saw pen, ink and paper placed upon the little table at his

"Yes, indeed, papa. Why not?"

"Why, you told me yesterday of wonderful preparations for my Christmas dinner, all to be made to-day; of turkey to stuff, chicken pie to manufacture, pies to bake, and pudding to boil, sauce to sweeten, and gravies to spice-'

"Stop! stop! Allow me to remark. sir, that I am afraid your exalted ideas will have to come down before your dinner! But all is done. Was I not up before the peep of day, baking and preparing, in order to have time to spare for the editor of the Evening Star, who wants, if you please, something funny. Funny? My brains are baked as dry as a chip, and my head would certainly rattle if anybody would take the trouble to shake it! Now, papa, here is the pen, there the ink, and under my hand the paper; only one thing is wanted-I haven't the ghost of an idea."

"It is all some writers ever do have. and dreadful work it seems to be to raise it." "Do you mean to be personal, Mr.

Saunders?" "Not at all, Miss Retta. But what are you going to write, and must it be done to-day? You look tired." "I am not very tired, only rather

Where are all the unfinished articles you were talking about the other day?" "Oh, those are my heroics! They ain't funny. They are the wonderful productions that are one day to place me at the head of American authoresses, and send my name, wreathed in laurels, down to posterity. They are to be the evidences of the 'startling original genius' of our talented contributor, Retta Somers, the highly finished artistic finish of which, etc., etc. You know all about it."

"Well, why don't you finish them?" "Because-whisper, papa; walls have ear-I can't, if my life depended upon it, think of a single 'startling original' line

Once upon a time, not many years ago, there lived in the pleasant city of P— a gentleman who had one little daughter. Many years before, when this little girl was a wee baby in arms, he had lain his wife in her long, narrow grave, and taken this tiny pledge of her love into his inmost heart. He loved the child fondly, yet in his love he was blind to men who have lived long enough in the world, who cannot call up such thoughts any day in the vear.

THE DEAD-LOCK

The disagreement in regard to the City Clerkship, which has resulted in dividing the Council equally in two opposing factions, has brought about a dead-lock in the business of that body. For two or three weeks the supporters of Mr. McDermott have refused to vote for the payment of claims, on the ground that such a transaction would be illegal while the city is without a legally elected City Clerk, that wing of the Board claiming that the Assistant is acting in the capacity of City Clerk without legal authority. The outcome of the dead-lock has had the effect of producing such great dissatisfaction among those having bills against the city, that an effort was made at the last meeting of the Council to settle the difficulty. One side has provided for the private payment, temporarily, of the laboring men employed on the streets and sewers, and the other side voted for the payment of the Public School requisition, which caused it to pass without a dissenting vote. From remarks made by some of the members. Early Christmas morning the Wareing Bros.' Combination takes the road again. It will be about the same troupe that achieved such unprecedented success in its tour of the New Jersey towns a couple of weeks ago, which includes Zanfretta, the greatest clown and pantomimist of the day, the members of his family and Mr. Geo. The company will play a matinee knife for a pistol, the pistol for a shotgun, and an evening performance on Christmas, at Plymouth, Pa., a town about three miles from Wilkesbarre. From there they go to White Haven and play on the 26th and 27th. White Haven is the former home of Mr. John D. Wareing. He is widely known and popular in that section of the country, and while his name alone will "fill the house," it will at the same time be a guarantee of the superi ority of the show, and we predict for these enterprising managers more than the success which has always attended their ventures elsewhere. After leaving White Haven they turn towards home, and play in three Jersey towns, Morristown on the 28th, Newton on the 29th and Dover on the 30th. Mr. J. D. With your permission, I would like to state the truth in regard to the race that was advertised to come off Thanksgiving day, which Mr. Wakefield (as he calls himself) has not done in his card of the 12th inst.

The facts I state I can prove by the gentle men that were present on the different days the race was postponed. First, he says the race was to come off "rain or shine," which is not true. He says "there was good sleighing that day," which is also an untruth. tified the high praise they received at their Samuel J. This has been a notable week at Wareings' Theatre. One of the best evening entertainments that has ever been put on the boards has been given to full houses every night, and the audiences have been more than satisfied. The Zanfrettas open the performance with one of their laughable sketches and close with Alex's great pantomime, "Mons De Chalumeaux." in which the veteran actor, Manager Riley, makes a hit as Mr. La Rose. Jennie Southern makes her mark in sweet songs, the Winstanly Bros., do fine clog danc ing and concertina solos, Harry Van Auken does excellent horizontal bar work, assisted by George Kane, Zanfretta's right-hand man, as clown; Nellie St. John gives pleasing selections from the latest operas: McCarthy and Monroe, the comedians, are fine in their Chinese-Irish sketch; Shepherd and Hallam are back again and delight everybody with their nonsensical performances on all sorts of instruments, and Keegan and Elvin, the great English sketch artists, who are performing here their first American engagement. They give a pathetic sketch, adapted from Dickens Bleak House," which includes the death seene of "Poor Joe," the crossing sweeper. It is a fine piece of acting and given with great dramatic effect. It is the best performance of the kind we have ever seen in a variety theatre. A special matinee performance will be given on Christmas at 2:30 P. M.

MAYOR'S OFFICE, HOBOKEN, N. J., Dec. 19, 1882,

To the Council:

I desire to bring to your attention and advise an investigation into the condition of Liberty Hose Company No. 2, of the Fire Department. Company No. 2, of the Fire Department.

From complaints and general information I am led to believe the Company is in a bad state of disorganization and that its usefulness has gone. Internal dissensions prevail amongst its members, to the public detriment; public property in their charge has been was unnly damaged and destroyed;
disorderly conduct in and about their house, late into the night, very frequently amongs the neighbors; and it were well the Company be disbanded.

E. V. S. BESSON,

A report of C. H. Miller, Acting City Clerk, making statement of having received the sum of $55 for license fees, and of having paid the same to A. "As I was tellin' you, Jim, the dinner was great. An' we had moral improvement, too. Now, yer an ignorant little cuss, Jim, an' don't know much; so I 'spects yer comes to be a real newsboy, you'll know wot it is, too. Moral improvement is to be of physical measurements: kep' waiting for dinner when yer hungry. If a feller, when he's hungry, is 'lowed to 15 to 16 wade right into a dinner, it ain't no good 16 to 17 17 to 18 for his morals. It hurts 'em, I reckon, an' he's liable to go wrong, so when the whole gang of us had got in front of the doors of the Young Men's Christian 'Sociation building we was all let up into a big hall, on the second story. We thought we was goin' straight to the turkey an' pie, but we didn't know then 'bout moral improvement no more than you, Jim. Instead of turkey we got a temperance lecture. That was part of the improvement, Jim, an' a long part, too. There was lots of high-toned folks there, dressed in matinee clothes, an' on the stage was a woman wat improved us. First she asked us if we knew who made us. 1 'spect she thought she'd catch us on that, but a lot of us old hands, we knew, you know, and yelled out 'God!' The schrimps, they caught on and they yelled out 'God!' too. Then the improver, she showed us a big picture of a man's insides all gone wrong; it showed all a man's Latin parts, you know, an' asked us would we like to have a stummic like that. I saw wat she was driftin' at, an' so I yelled 'No mum!' but Swartzy -you know Swartzy wot peddles papers by the Geary street cable turn-table? Well, Swartzy, he chipped in, 'Yes mum!' That kind o' broke up the improver, an' she asked 'Why?' 'Coz,' says Swartzy, 'it looks like a full stummic, which I wish mine was.' Some of the high-toned folks they giggled then, but the improver, she went on an' told us that the man had no moral improvement, but had been a hard drinker. 'Whisky done it,' says she. But after half an hour or so we was let up stairs

"In front of every seat was a plate heaped up with turkey, an' stuffin', an' mashed potatoes, all covered with hot gravy. An' by each plate was a cup of coffee, pipin' hot. Well, each feller took a seat, an' each feller made a grab for his knife. 'Hold on, boys,' says the boss of the concern, who stood on the platform, 'hold on,' sez he, an' then he set to work, an' he morally improved us. Now, I do jest love to be morally improved, coz I'm in need of it much, but I saw the gravy gettin' cold an' hard on the turkey an' fixin's, an' I did wish in my wicked little heart, Jim, that I could make just one go at that mashed potato while the gravy was hot. But pretty soon he got through, an' sez 'Now, boys, yer'll find printed slips by yer plates, with the words of 'Ameriky on 'em, an' I want to hear yer sing a verse.'

"Well, we let go our knives an' forks agen' an' sang a ve . Then every blessed one of us young sin ers made another grab for our knives, when the bos sez, sez he, 'I see there is three more verses, which I want you all to sing.' Now, Jim, I set a great sight by singin', an' you know yourself I can sing every verse of 'Mary Kelly's Beau' without a miss, but when I see that coffee a gittin' stone cold I wisht only one verse of Ameriky had ever been writ. But there was no use. There was nice-lookin' young Christians standin' all around, a lookin' at us. who laid a soft Christian hand on a feller if he dared to touch a knife, and so went at the other three verses. Swartzy would play smart and sing fast, so they could wade into the stuffin' before the gravy got all solid on it. They sang so fast they was windin' up the fourth verse when we was a startin' in on the third. But they got left, for the boss kep' a eye-he has a 'hey like a heagle,' Jim-on 'em an' they could make no go at the grub. But pretty soon we finished Ameriky and then, my! but the kids made a grab for the knives, forks, spoons, coffee, turkey, fixin's, everything. But they all got left, Jim; they all got left. The boss, he sez: 'Hold on, boys,' meaning to let go, Jim, 'hold on; there's grace to be said vet.'

"Well, Jim, the things couldn't git no colder then they was; an' as for me, I was gittin' kind o' weak, so we let go, while a improver said grace, He told us about wot he called the Last Supper, and lots of other things while we watched the last bits of steam died away from our coffee, and then at last they turned us loose on the goods. Well, Jim, you should have jist seen it! After we began there was a lot of young Christian women who jest kept things goin' lively. They seemed as glad that we were at last settled down to the true business as we was. They put sugar in our coffee, passed bread to us, put pickles on our plates, gave us cakes, and wound up by passin' 'round two kinds o' pie-mince and numbkin - and ast us which would we take. There was an awful pretty one ast me. Jim -she had a face like them pictures of Christ's mother, you know-ast me, as I was a tellin' you, which would I have. Both,' sez I, cheeky like, you know. She laughed, soft like, you know, or rather you don't know, Jim, coz yer such a ignorant little cuss; but she laughed, soft like, and put a big piece of both kinds on my plate.

The hours during which candidates may present themselves for enlistment are from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., daily-Sundays and legal holidays excepted-at the Navy Yard, foot of York street, Brooklyn. To secure despatch, and avoid unnecessary correspondence, it is desirable, if at all practicable, that candidates be accompanied by their parents or legally appointed guardians. The latter will be required to file. either the original or a certified copy of their letters of guardianship in the recruiting office, for the records of the vessel.

Each apprentice is furnished an outfit of clothing, the cost of which is charged to his account, or the parent or guardian maypurchase the necessary outfit from the Pay master of the ship and give it to the boy.

Funny Holiday Presents.

For brothers there is no more acceptable present than arctic overshoes. If any lady has a young and handsome brother who is rather proud of his personal appearance let her buy him a pair of "arctics." She should remember that "arctics" cannot be to large, and, to avoid the possibility of a mistake, she had better get the largest pair she can find. If she personally appeals to pare to be pulverized!" her brother to wear the shoes for her sake, and begs him to let her know if they pinch his feet, she will do more than she imagines in the way of promoting harmony and strengthening fraternal affection.

It is the opinion of book publishers that books make the best presents. There is some degree of truth in this, but the books should be selected with great care. Ladies are for the most part unaware that a series back to his girl and his hat. Stretching of works of immense interest to thoughtful men has been published by the United States Government with the view of supplying the people with wholesome literature. This series is entitled "Patent Office Reports," and each volume is sold separately. She will be overwhelmed with delight, and will never for a moment doubt that the present was bought at a fashionable shop and cost forty-seven dollars. Indeed, her gratitude to her husband will probably greatly astonish him. Gloves can also be bought very cheaply, and no one can tell them from the best kid gloves unless they examine them very closely. As for shoes, which are especially dear to the female heart, they can be had at a quarter of their cost elsewhere. The wife to whom half a dozen pairs of these beautiful shoes are given will, in most cases, be too deeply moved to be able to express her feelings in and walked up Jefferson avenue yesterday. She had long curls and a pink dress and a yellow sash, and he had a standing collar sawing his ears off, a button hole bouquet, and a pair of new boots freshly greased and one size too small. They hadn't walked two blocks when they came to a man sitting on a box in front of a store, and as he caught sight of them a grin crept over his face like molasses spreading out on a shingle.

"Grinning at us, I 'spose ?" queried the young man as he came to a halt. "Yes," frankly replied the sitter.

"Tickles you most to death to see us take hold o' hands, don't it?" "It does."

"And you imagine you can see us feedng each other with caramels, can't you ? " "I can."

"And you shake all over at the way we gawp around and keep our mouths open.' "That's me."
