Hoboken City Hall limiting access 42

Hoboken City Hall but as of today the tion make their first stop, has been public will be able to use only the moved so that it is now just inside the main entrance on Washington Street.

The other two entrances, one on First Street and the other on Newark Street, are being closed to the general ment, which occupies the entire ground floor of City Hall.

And when the work has been completed, those two side entrances will remain closed to the public, according Capt Russell Sweeten, who is overseeing the operation.

The police desk area, where suspects are formally booked and

Newark Street entrance to the

That door has been locked but equipped with a buzzer opener public because of modernization be-ing done within the police depart-open the door from inside for policemen wishing to enter the building. That area had been a hallway which led to the City Hall

> Sweeten said the old desk area is being converted into the public safety communications room and the new City hall telephone switchboard area. The room will house the police and fire department radio dispatchers and the telephone switchboard operator.

> "The work being done is primarily for the purpose of creating the comnunications room, but it also gave the department the opportunity to secure its area," Sweeten said. "Our because of the building's layout. With both the Newark and First Street entrances open just about and they've done just that." Sweeten recounted how on several occasions persons had walked into the police area from the First Street entrance and broke into lockers belonging to police officers, taking their guns and personal property.

Once we've completed the work I don't think anything like that could happen again," he continued. "We were pretty wide open, anyone could walk through."

Sweeten said that city employes the top floor of the building to the and visitors to the building will not be ground floor communications room.

There are three entrances to where most persons seeking informa- security has not been good in the past allowed to use the police area to get to their offices on the second and third floors of the building. They must use the main entrance on Washington anyone could walk into the police area Street.

"The only persons other than policemen who will be allowed to come into the building through the Newark Street entrance are those confined to wheelchairs," he added. 'That's the only entrance without steps going up or down."

The captain said that the new operation should be in full gear by Jan. 20. That's the day the radio dispatchers and new telephone system for City Hall will be switched from

Hoboken to arrest entire grey if any tugboat ties up at bief " Hoboken Police Chief George der which the city would rent out part

Crimmins threatened today to arrest of the pier to Mervyn's Midnight the entire crew of any tugboat that Waterfront Beauty Inc. That tugboat the up at the city's Fifth Street Pier company has continued to moor or drops off a barge there.

The chief's threat followed the although it no longer has any legal collapse of negotiations for a deal unright to do so, inasmuch as it lost the pier (and the adjacent Sixth Street Pier) when the city foreclosed on the property for non-payment of taxes.

Crimmins said that the minute any tugboat secures a mooring line to the pier, the crew will be deemed guilty of trepassing.

Frank J. Bartletta, the city's revenue and finance director, said he had offered to let the Mervyn's firm continue to use the pier in return for paying rent, but the dickering fell through when Vin Carriga, the firm's agent, failed to keep his last two ap-

Bartletta also said Mervyn's still has two cranes sitting on the pier but he isn't going to do anything about it until he hears the latest from Crimmins about the illegal dockings.

He recalled that he had asked the U.S. Coast Guard for help (since Hoboken has no boats to chase the intruders away) but the Coast Guard had helpfully advised him to have the offenders arrested.

Bartletta said Mervyn's hauls sand and gravel on the Hudson, with half a dozen tugboats, each of which tows up to three or four barges.

ing apart a little at a time for several years

but continued to flow

until this last section gave way. I know the department has done some major repairs on some of the old wood lines in the pest but I think this is the first time that it is undertaking a replacement on its

Amato said he ex-pected the job would take between four days and a week.

Hoboken teather wins bias case 17/4/17

TRENTON — The Hoboken Board of Educa-tion has been ordered to pay Linda Rutigliano $7,140 in back pay and $1,000 in damages for "pain and humiliation she suffered" because of an act of discrimination in maternity leave case decided by the State Division on Civil Rights.

The division ordered Hoboken to pay the back salary and damages for the teacher who was forced to take a two-year maternity leave even though she was physically able to return to work

one year after the birth of her child. The $7,140 represents back pay for January 1973, through June, 1973, the "period she would have worked had she not suffered discrimination," the division said. The damages were for her pain and humiliation.

Division Director Vernon Potter issued the order on findings of Hearing Examiner I. Leo Motiuk, who concluded the school board maternity leave policy discriminated against Rutigliano on

Her maternity leave began July 1, 1971, and in November, 1972, she informed the board that she would be ready to return from her leave on Jan. 1,

The board refused to reemploy Rutigliano un-til the start of the new school year in September, 1973, despite the fact that she qualified for vacancies in teaching and library posts which occurred between January, 1973, and the end of the school

Motiuk's report, filed in October, concluded that "there is no evidence whatsoever that males. who experienced new children in their families. were ever required to remain away from work for such a period of time." "Accordingly, one can only conclude that the board's policy, in fact, was based on the assumption that it is the place of females to remain home for a substantial period of time after giving birth

Ranieri says HUD disappointed at city for 'slowing down'

A Hoboken councilman said today that he will ask Mayor Steve Cappiello for a "thorough" re-evaluation of the city's Community Development Agency, which has spent millions of Hoboken Economic Development Agency, which has spent millions of Hoboken Economic federal dollars in the city in the last Corp. as an example.

few years.
Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri said he is making the request because officials of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Develop-ment have told him of their "disapointment" with the CDA's efforts in the last two or three years. Ranieri had just returned from a National Conference of Cities convention in San Francisco. He said that while attending the convention he had the opportunity to talk with some top HUD administrators about Hoboken's strators about Hoboken's CDA and its recent efforts.

There has been a definite slowdown, and HUD officials are concerned by it," the councilman reported. "Hoboken in recent years has come to be the showcase—so to speak-for many of HUD's biggest programs. And the national publicity this community received supports

"It appears that our CDA is no longer generating the new programs or ideas it once did and isn't taking advantage of the many new programs available to it from the federal government through HUD and other government agencies. Other municipalities around the county are catching up with us. Some may have even surpassed us in a few areas." Ranieri said that the CDA ap-ordinance creating a special historic district for the Erie-Lackawanna step toward acquiring national designation for the terminal and is "strongly urged" by Robert Embry, assistant director of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Develop-

The mayor told council members at lest night's caucus that he wants to have the designation procedures started by the time he meets with

Embry in Washington on Jan. 11 to discuss Hoboken's redevelopment dollars annually from HUD and Cap-piello said the historic designation would help the city get approval for new projects to rehabilitate the ter-

Cappiello said HUD officials were quite enthused about the possibilities for redeveloping the terminal building and ferry house and said the city would be working with the Port Authority, the New Jersey Department of Transportation and Transport of New Jersey in drawing up was built in 1907 for the Delaware,

Lackawanna and Western Railroad to replace an earlier station that had burned. It is the only one of four major rail-ferry terminals on the Hudson

County waterfront still in operation

although ferry service to Manhattan

was discontinued a decade ago.

The terminal at Hudson Place

Hoboken receives millions of

The city action would be the first railroad terminal area.

ment, said Cappiello.

'The corporation, designed to assist with the economic growth of Hoboken, was created more than 10 months ago but it ends there," he asserted. "We still haven't gone any further than that although more than $200,000 in CDA funds was earmarked

CDA Director Fred M. Bado said that the corporation needed more than the $200,000 in CDA funds but had been unable to get it.

"We have been unable to get a firm commitment for funding for the program from the U.S. Economic Development Agency," he said. "The recommitment of federal funds to other projects, like the Public Works Employment program, has caused the EDA problems which have filtered back to agencies like the CDA on the local end of government."

However, Bado said that he economic development agency concept and thinks it will be able to play a role in a new federal program CDA is applying for—the Urban Development Action Grants program. He said the, program was designed to provide. funds for new industrial, commercial and residential projects. But he added he didn't know at this time what that role would be. 'The funds the CDA set aside for the Economic Development Corp. have not been used and are still available if something should break loose at the EDA," he continued. "The reason we never staffed the program is that our funds represented only a small part of what was needed.

There was no reason to put on a staff that didn't have anything to work with. It would have only eaten up the CDA's funds and failed to produce any results based on current whereby the city will apply for future federal funds through a regional coun-tywide agency rather than individual-

A resolution scheduled for action at tomorrow's council meeting asks the city to adopt the necessary ordinances and contracts with the county.

Bado said that the proposed regional agency cannot be created un-less Hoboken joins because the other eight municipalities scheduled to join do not have the combined minimum population required under federal with the county, Bado said.

The county has agreed to give Hoboken the difference between the $2.5 million it had gotten in past years and the gradually diminishing amounts it is scheduled to receive over the next three years on its old

Next year, he said, Hoboken is supposed to get $1.7 million but if it joins the proposed regional agency it will get an extra $800,000 from that The only municipalities not join-them have sufficient population to qualify individually in the category of cities over 50,000 population, he said.

Monthly spaces go fastgy at Hoboken garages/n/n

The Hoboken parking authority expects by next month to have less than 100 parking spaces available in its three parking garages for monthly parkers, Joseph Hottendorf, executive director, said today.

The authority has a total of 1,650 parking spaces in the three garages. Of that number 1,500 are reserved for monthly parkers and the remaining 150 are used for transients on a dayto-day basis.

"We currently have more than 1,370 monthly customers and should be over the 1,400 mark by the end of this month." he said. "That leaves us with 100 or less spaces that can still be rented - and I don't expect to have them available long."

Hottendorf explained that January and February are usually heavy months for the authority because they are bad weather

"Many local motorists like to get their cars off the streets during those months because of the ice and snow, not to mention the salt used by the city to keep the roads clear." he continued. "But this year those same motorists may not enjoy the luxury of waiting until the last minute to decide on renting a space. With only 100 left f expect to be at full capacity before wary is over."

RAISING GLASSES — Members of the Hebeken Lions Club begin storing the SS pairs of eyoglasses that were collected by McDonaid's in Hebeken to be sent by the Lions to foreign countries. From left are Charles DeFazio, program chairman, Michael L. Spane, a member of the club; Nicholas Damians, owner of McDonaid's fast food outlet and Dominick DiAles, Lions dis-

Hoboken replacing 88 sewer line section " serion

A 15-foot section of sewer line on Jackson Street is now being replaced by the loboken Public Works Department. It is the first time the city has attempted such a large job on its own, according to Director indrew Amato

The director said the section is between ewark and First Streets. It apparently caved in within the last three or four weeks but ses in the area had been experiencing problems "It isn't a matter of repairing, the whole section is shot and has to be replaced - and the Public Works Department is going to try to do it without any outside contractors. Amato asserted. "Maybe that's the wrong decision and side help, but I think the job is within the capabilities."

. The line is one o Hoboken's old wood ones dating back to the Civil War. The sides and top of the line have caved in and cannot be replaced or repaired, forcing the installation

pened all at once,

Mrs. Gaspar

Mrs. Mary Stack Gaspar, presient of Hoboken's board of education, nnounced today that she has made u her mind to run for re-election Feb. 14 ... despite the fact that she seems to be out of favor with the city's Democratic organization.

Mrs. Gaspar denounced the plan o hold a special election on the question of reverting to an appointed board "seven days before the regular board of education election."

"This is a disgraceful waste of 13,000-which the board doesn't have," Mrs. Gaspar asserted. "It's the most stupid thing I ever heard of in my life. If the voters approve the changeover to an appointed board, it won't become effective for a year, and so the mayor won't be able to apoint anyone for a year.

"The people who want the ap-pointed board should have had the special election last August. That way, if they won, the mayor could have appointed three members without waiting a year."

historic status Bado, meanwhile, is asking the Hoboken Mayor Steve Cappiello wants the City Council to introduce an

Hoboken can still apply for funds individually under its current status as a "small city" but there doesn't appear to be any advantage since it wouldn't lose anything under the proposed sharing formula worked out allotment agreement.

ing the county agency are Jersey City. Bayonne and Union City since all of

Garbage collector to be paid next week

pected to approve payment of the check, the same one it held up at the Dec. 7 meeting because some members felt the company wasn't complying with the contract it has with the city.

According to Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius, the Hoboken's contract garbage collector will have to wait until Thursday to get his $40,000 check for collections made in November.

That's the day after the next regularly scheduled meeting of the city council. And the council is expected to approve payment of the contract and won't discontinue service as had been threatened if the check wasn't released this week by the city. But the matter of contract obligations isn't resolved.

'There will have to be some lengthy discussions with the company about the contract and what it can be some lengthy discussions with the company check wasn't released this week by the city. But the matter of contract obligations isn't resolved.

"There will have to be some leasthy disputations and the some leasthy disputations and the some leasthy disputations."

lengthy discussions with the company about the contract and what it requires be done." Chius said. "But I'm sure the matter can be worked out."

Some Council members claim that the company hasn't been emptying our litter baskets or picking up rubbish that is deposited at city fire hydrants. The company claims that it LaFera Contracting Co. of Newark

Renaissance art form to go municipal parking garage which takes up the rest of the block from

The office building now under construction in Hoboken on First Street from Hudson to River streets will incorporate many of the classical art forms of the great Italian Renaissance masterpieces of architecture, Dernard F. Kenny, the owner, said to-

The design theme of the hotel Kenny is planning a block to the north is likewise in the classical style of the

is likewise in the classical style of the Rensalssance. Kenny said.

He commented that this is in keeping with "Hoboken's tremendous success in restoring and rehabilitating old beautiful classic-like structures, including the planned restoration of the historic Erie Lackawasne Railroad terminal."

About 40 of the 127 foundation piles needed for the office building have already been driven, and Kenny said the remainder should be sunk in six more working days. Then, frames will be built around the tops of the piles, so that concretes can be poured on top of them for caps. on top of them for caps.

Asservice driveway will separate the building from the seven-level

Hoboken Public Works Director Andrew

Amato said today he will consult with his personal attorney, E. Norman Wilson of Hoboken, over the weekend, on his role in a controversy with the Hoboken City Council.

First to Second streets. The main entrance of the bu will be on First Street, and there wil be additional entrances to two movie theatres and a full-service drive-in ank, as well as access to a sho mall, Kenny said.

The movie theatres will be operated by Victor Orjelick, who owns and operates four theatres in New York City as well as the Colony Theatre in Union City.

Regarding the design of the building, Kenny, a professional engineer, declared:

"There is an obvious search for

"There is an obvious search for alternatives to the preferences generation of architects and defelopers in America. This fact is very much underlined by the general public's interest in historical designa-tions and landmark preservation of-

Kenny said he did not know of any other building designed in the classic Renaissance style anywhere in New Jersey, since the old Hudson County Courthouse in Jersey City which is being renovated.

"That building was truly a magnificent effort," he added. "We will do our utmost to achieve results close to that fine work of art."

not for Hoboken's clerks Some Hoboken municipal Friday after Thanksgiving as an employes will be getting $200 clothing allowances for the first time this ditional holiday. The issue of time-and-a-half for all Amato wants advice overtime work has not been resolved, on shunning council

year, but not everyone as first an-Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius said today that the final package agreed to by the city and the Municipal Employes Association negotiators limits the clothing

That $200 dress allowance

allowance to only those who must wear other than dress clothes in the performance of their duties. "That would include those involved in physical activities such as laborers, mechanics and persons in similar jobs," he said. "Employes in clerical positions are excluded from the allowance." City employes will also be getting a 13th paid holiday in 1978. Chius said

Chius said, but the employes have agreed to accept the status quo for the time being. And that is their regular hourly wage for any work done beyond their normal work hours for

'However, the city has agreed to continue discussing the matter of time-and-a-half for the future." he said. "We will also look into the possibility of a dental plan as a fringe benefit although the city is not com-mitted to giving one this year."

The council has directed Amato to appear at the next council caucus to defend his refusal to Chius added that 'the clothing heed a council directive. That was a demand that allowance, which is going up from $100 to $200 next year, would be paid he turn over to the council his record of the dates and hours when public works trucks took trips to a 13th paid holiday in 1978. Chius said to employes based on the jobs they the city has agreed to give them the were performing, not by job title. Keansburg, where Councilman Louis Francone has a summer home, when Raphael Vitale was public works director.

Cappiello to issue 88 identification cards " "

ask to see the I.D. cards before admitting anyone who claims to seek entry. represent the city.

identification."

Mayor Cappiello of Hoboken are going to all inspectors — is issuing identification cards housing, fire, electrical, with photos to all Hoboken city building, or others — and meter employees who have occasion to readers, and also to all police go into homes or other premises and firemen, the reason for the latter, he explained, is that off duty police and firemen sometimes have occasion to

It has been a number of years since such I.D. cards "Let the public be wary of were last issued, and the ones he people soliciting at the door or is now issuing constitute a seeking to come into the house," much-needed update, the mayor the mayor said. "It's a simple said. They are laminated, and matter — just ask to see the signed by him as public safety director. There will be close to Cappiello said the badges 400 in all.

Jersey City water meter check urged by Hoboken

telegram to the state Public Utility been getting 9.5 million. Commission asking it to check the meter Jersey City uses to measure mented: the water it sells to Hoboken.

from the strategy decided on at a con- during the summer months for underference of Hoboken city officials late consumption and now we face Tuesday when it was decided to de- penalties for over-consumption." mand that Jersey City produce "facts" to support its claim that it with Jersey City that the meter was has been under-charging Hoboken defective but has now been corrected, almost 50 per cent as a result of a Hoboken will then have to have a faulty meter.

Councilman Robert A. Ranieri, chairman of the Hoboken city coun- November is obviously estimated, cil's water committee, said that un- since it is based on consumption of der state law the PUC is required to practically 9.5 million gallons a day," check meters on request of such agen- the councilman declared, "whereas cies as the city. He said a fee of $5 is we were metered by Jersey City durcharged.

Mayor Cappiello has fired off a water a day, actually Hoboken has Ranieri today caustically com-

"Under our contract to buy water This move was a quick change from Jersey City, we paid penalties

> If the PUC meter reader agrees financial accounting with its neighboring city, Ranieri said. "The bill they have sent us for ing November at only 5.5 million. Jersey City has notified Hoboken Since they say they did not repair the that whereas it has been billing meter until Dec. 8, we want to know Hoboken for 5.4 million gallons of how they arrived at the bill."

School board issue may be on ballot in Hoboken Feb. 14

dum to revert from an elected to an appointed board. But they may not have been successful.

Robert W. Taylor, board attorney, said today he will recommend to the board that the question be placed on the ballot at the regular Feb. 14 election of school board members instead of having the special election.

Taylor said his understanding of the law was that the petitions had to be submitted to the school board and the election held within 50 days of that date. He said the petitions have been given to the board's secretary but the oard itself hasn't officially received them and won't until its next meeting.

"I will suggest to the board members that a special meeting be called for the evening of Jan. 5 since that is the last day for filing board in Hoboken have filed a petition board candidates and there is usually with more than 1,600 signatures ask- a lot of business that must be attended ing for a special election on a referento around that time," he continued. "The petitions for the referendum could be accepted by the board at that

"If they are, then the placing of the question on the Feb. 14 ballot conforms with the law."

Supporters of the appointed board want the matter decided at a special election, separate from the regular school election. Their contention is hat the latest the special election can be held is Feb. 7 and that the 50-day limit started when the petitions were turned over to Thomas A. Gallo, board secretary, yesterday afternoon.

The petitions were filed by Edwin J. Chius, the city's business administrator, and William Van Wie, Mayor Steve Cappiello's confidential

Chius said appointed board supporters still want a separate election but no action would be taken to force the issue until it's known what the board's official position is.

'The board members may not agree with Mister Taylor," Chius said, "and vote for a special election. But regardless of what is decided, at this time there is no official decision for us to take exception to or accept."

Taylor said he did not believe puting the question on the Feb. 14 ballot violated the spirit of the law.

Based on their theory, we could have two elections within seven days of each other," he explained, "a special election one Tuesday to decide the appointed or elected school board question and the regular school board election the following Tuesday."

The petitions carrying the signatures of 1.632 voters were turned over yesterday by Gallo to Hudson County Superintendent of Elections Joseph Brady for verification. Ap-proximately 1,250 valid signatures from registered voters are needed. Politics was the story of Hoboken in 1977 The name of the game is politics. When the mayor moved Herman Bier And as it has been in so many past from his position as business adyears, it was the pastime of most ministrator and removed Raphael P.

battled dissident forces in his administration. ministration had been circulating for Cappiello's thinking and the firings

That prediction came true in April when Romano announced at the mayor and fielded a ticket that comprised Francis X. Leahy, then a councilman, Anthony Russo and Frank Duroy as his councilmen-at-large candidates. Bier and Vitale became campaign managers.

Their campaign started off well, many observers believing that Romano would rout the Cappiello piello ran a highly polished campaign and in less than four weeks overcame Romano's apparent early commanding lead. The day before the May 10 election, bettors in the Cappiello crowd were willing to lay 2 to 1 odds that the mayor would beat Romano by more than 2,000 votes.

The mayor's plurality was almost double that — he polled 9,118 to 5,198 for Romano - and he swept into office with him his three councilmen-atlarge running-mates, Thomas Kennedy and incumbents Robert A. Ranieri and Bernard J. Scrivani. The latter victory gave the mayor a 6-to-3 majority on the council.

Prior to the election Cappiello selected Andrew J. Amato to replace Vitale as public works director but he left the position of business administrator unfilled until after the election, when Edwin J. Chius, who had helped direct the mayor's campaign, was named to the job.

That should have ended it — but it did not. Friend had been pitted against friend, family against family, and the wounds opened by the hardfought contest still have not healed.

Hoboken residents during 1977 as Vitale from the post of public works Mayor Steve Cappiello successfully director a month later.

Both Bier and Vitale were given the formality of a hearing before the Rumors of unrest within the ad-mayor, but neither was able to change more than a year but the public image: stood. The two men had allies on the Romano supporters employed by the sidered the primary opposition Cap-piello would face in the May mayoral called on the carpet for every minor called on the carpet for every minor incident. The same held true for Cappiello supporters on the county level, where Romano and his allies. 11th hour that he was running for Freeholder Vincent J. Fusilli, seem to pull more weight with the county's new Democratic leader, Mayor

Thomas F. X. Smith of Jersey City. After the election Bier moved to Florida, never to return to the city of his birth. He died in August of a heart attack. Vitale remained in Hoboken and continues to be politically active through the Louis Francone Fourth forces. It did not come to pass. Cap- Ward Regular Democratic Club, of which he is president.

Image was the key word for the city during 1977. And the image conveyed nationally was that "No one laughs at Hoboken anymore." The waterfront town that only a few years before had been down on its luck was making a comeback - and that message was splashed across the country on television and through the new-

The foundation for the comeback was housing - rehabilitated houses, and programs financed by the state and federal governments that actually worked thanks to the successful efforts of Applied Housing Associates. That company's latest figures show that between 20 and 25 percent of the city's total housing stock has been rehabilitated since it began operating more than five years ago.

Adding to the picture was a reduction in the overall crime rate for the second year in a row.

But a disturbing fact was the in-volvement of police in several shootings, three of them fatal, one resulting in the indictment of a police officer on a murder charge.

muster the six votes needed to override the mayor's action. Mayor Cappiello never gave any public reason for the dismissals except to say that Bier and Vitale served at his pleasure. But it was a political fact of life that the two were siding with First Ward Councilman Anthony H. Romano, who was con-

On Feb. 22 Patrolman Walter Lehbrink shot and killed Dennis Kierce of Jersey City while off duty in an incident outside a local tavern. The officer said Kierce had a gun and had pointed it at him as though he was gong to shoot. The gun was a starter's pistol that fired only blanks, but this was not learned until after Lehbrink had fired, hitting Kierce in the head.

After a lengthy investigation by the Hudson County Prosecutor's Office, the case was presented to a grand jury, which indicted the young police officer on the murder charge. However, a jury deliberated only a few hours before returning a "not guilty" verdict.

Similar investigations were conducted into shootings involving Patrolmen Peter Falco, James Lynch and Fred Ferrante but all were found to have "acted properly."

Falco shot and killed Angel Nenadich on Sept. 22 in the hallway of 228 Bloomfield St.

Lynch and Ferrante shot and killed Manuel Rivera on April 16 in a shootout in front of a tavern at 86 Garden St. Rivera and two other men has just held up the tavern and were exiting when police arrived.

Environmental troubles that had started in November of 1976 when Hoboken withdrew from the Hudson County Sewerage Authority continued nto 1977. The state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) notified the city on Jan. 21 that it has followed the trail of raw sewage that was being discharged directly into the Hudson River at the Bethlehem Steel shipyard and traced it to the Maxwell House coffee plant nearby. It also told the city to take immediate corrective

City officials exonerated Maxwell House and accepted full responsibility. After several meetings with both state and federal anti-pollution officials it was determined that the eptember 1975 explosion which destroyed the 11th Street pumping station, just outside the Maxwell House plant entrance, was probably responsible for the problem. Work on the repair of the station and connecting lines is underway.

blanket of the county authority, Hoboken had to come up with its own plan for upgrading its sewage treatment. It did so by investing $100,000 to construct two different pilot filtering systems and hiring the engineering firm of Mayo Lynch and Associates to operate the project. A report on the feasibility of the two systems, both of which are reported to be working well, is exend of this month or the beginning of January.

A probe of alleged widespread gambling activities was launched to the spring after another newspaper claimed that police were taking payoffs to look the other way and that those payoffs were reaching city officials. A number of policemen and superiors were called before the Hudson County Grand Jury by the Prosecutor's Office, but no indict-Prosecutor's Office, but no ind ments were handed down. Sources in the prosecutor's office say the probe is still open and the investigation con-

In late January professors at Stevens Institute of Technology launched an 18-day strike over wages and fringe benefits which ended Feb. 11 when both sides agreed to federal mediation.

In October one of the city's land marks, the large Mount Olive Baptist Church on the city's main street, was gutted by a general alarm fire that left only the four walls standing. The disaster gave Hoboken residents ochance to show the generosity and

The all-black congregation has yet to launch an all-out formal fundarising drive to rebuild the church but it hasn't had to. Donations from local residents and business establishme started coming in to the Rev. Odell Stewart the day after the fire.

Council won't accept Amato refusal to supply truck data

Hoboken's City Council will not authority in the matter would be the accept Public Works Director county prosecutor's office. Andrew Amato's refusal to turn over the dates and hours on which city trucks made trips to Keansburg, where Councilman Louis Francone has a summer home. Amato yesterday said he would not comply with the council's request for the data — a request initiated by Francone himself. His reasoning was that the council has no jurisdiction and could not do anything about the truck trips, regardless of what information it obtains about them; and that the only agency with any the prosecutor himself. And he can't

But Coucilman-at-large Robert-

A. Ranieri retorted today: "He'll comply with our request. He's employed by the mayor and council — not by the prosecutor. If we request information pertaining to his department, he must comply. Otherwise he is defying us. It would be an affront to the council. 'On the other hand," Rainieri continued, "if he has information on criminal matters, then he is dutybound to bring it to the attention of

make a judgment as to whether he should or shouldn't. It is his duty."

The councilman said he felt certain Amato would supply the informa-tion sought, "I presume he voiced his refusal in a moment of ill-advised reaction, and he will reconsider and change his mind," Ranieri added.

The city council, at last night's meeting, directed the city clerk to send a letter to Amato directing him to appear at the next council caucus to explain his accusations.

Councilman claims proof to back illegal work case

By RICK SCOFIELD

Hoboken Public Works Director Andrew Amato said yesterday he can support his recent allegations of illegal work performed by city employes over a two-year period with

Amato said his witness is not a city employe but someone who says he has seen men from the Public Works Department working, on city time, in the Keansburg area, near the New

When asked whether he would call the witness before the City Council, which is seeking information about the alleged illegal work, Amato said he would first consult his attorney, E. Norman Wilson, before deciding on a course of action.

Amato first made the charge of the illegal work performed during 1976 and 1977 17 days ago at a council caucus meeting. He and Councilman Louis Francone were arguing about the condition of the trucks in the Public Works Department, when Amato mentioned the illegal work in the Keansburg area.

The question surfaced again this week when Francone asked Amato to substantiate his charge.

Two days after the Dec. 19 caucus, Councilman Walter Cramer, at a regular meeting, called on Amato again to substantiate his charges with lists of employes who drove to the Keansburg area in city trucks and worked on a variety of projects on city time.

Amato rejected Francone's orginal request, saying the matter should only be investigated by the Hudson County prosecutor. He repeated his rejetion of Cramer's request yesterday. "I will not supply the council with any information, nor call any Public Works employes, until I have spoken to my lawyer," Amato said.

Francone's and Cramer's request for the exact times dates, and places the city employes worked cannot be supplied by the Public Works Department. Daily records of mileage, work performed, and materials used by Public Works Employes, have not been kept for the last two years, a 25-year veteran of the department said yesterday.

conduct his own investigation beginning Monday morning by calling in 15 Public Works employes and questioning them

Amato refuses to say whether or not he will deliver any evidence of wrongdoing to the council if he discovers it. But in a letter to the council to be delivered Monday, he said that body should disqualify itself from the investigation.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas Callighy said the council has the full right to request information from Arnato concerning city workers. He added that it is the council's responsibility to inform the appointing authority, Mayor Steve Capiello, if it uncovers any wrongdoing. Callighy also said the council could decide to turn the matter over to the Hudson County Prosecutor's office for further investigation.

Amato ordered to detail charges of illegal trucking

Hoboken Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato has been ordered to appear before the City Council at its caucus 8:30 a.m. Wednesday to answer questions concerning the alleged illegal use of city trucks and Amato said he would attend but declined to make any comment on what information, if any, he would present to the council concerning reports that city trucks and workmen in the past have been sent to Keansburg on city time.

The controversy over the trips out of town with city trucks started when Fourth Ward Councilman Louis Francome charged Amato at a recent council meeting with being unable to keep a sufficient number of city trucks in operation to meet his department's needs.

Amato replied that the trucks had been abused by previous department supervisors and part of that abuse was long-distance trips to Keansburg on city time. Francone, through the council and city clerk, demanded that Amato supply the council with dates the trips were made and the time of day, along with the names of the employees making the trips.

"I see this as a fight between me and the councilman," Amato said. "He attacked me and I'm fighting back. It's an open personal battle and I didn't think the council should get involved. But now that the council has formally asked I will respond. I don't know if it will be satisfied with my answers and suggestions, but I think it

The director said there are no city records to substantiate that city vehis and employees made the trips to Keansburg. But there are witnesses to the incidents.

Chius raps school board aide on petition criticism

for a special election on the question of reverting to an appointed board of education, Hoboken Business Administrator Edwin Chius said today that unless Robert W. Taylor, Board the petition at that time, the placing of Education counsel, was "speaking of the question on the ballot Feb. 14 that unless Robert W. Taylor, Board in the capacity of a private citizen, he should "keep his mouth shut."

Chius exclaimed that if Taylor wished to hold down the board's expenses, "he should take a train when he travels to Trenton on board business, and pay the $10 train fare, instead of traveling in a chauffeured Imousine for $140.

Taylor is recommending to the board that it refrain from holding the special election and instead place the question on the ballot at the regular annual election of three board

Taylor said that, according to his understanding of the law, the special election would have to be held within 50 days of the date the petition was submitted to the school board Although the petition has been turned in to the board's secretary, he said. the board itself has not officially received it, and will not until its next

The attorney added that he would board twice suggest the board hold a special meeting Jan. 5, since that is the last date for receiving nominating peti-tions for the Board of Education election, and that if the board accepted would comply with the law.

To this, Chius retorted that Thomas A. Gallo, the board secretary with whom he filed the petition, "is the statutory officer to file with."

Chius, who circulated the petition along with William Van Wie, Mayor Steve Cappiello's confidential aide, said the petitioners still want a separate election.

Mrs. Mary Stack Gaspar, board president whose term is expiring and who announced Friday that she will run for reelection, said today that she would try to arrange for a caucus of the board Jan. 5.

Repeating her denunciation of the proposed special election, she "It will cost the board an extra $13,000-which we don't have-and for that amount of money we could hire another teacher. Mrs. Gaspar said the voters had already turned down the appointed

Hoboken critics zeroing-in & on trips by city officials

Two Hoboken critics focused on uchers for trips by city officials and or a theater party at last night's city

Robert King wanted to know why three planning board members, the board consultant and an outside architect gobbled up three $16 dinners and two for $41 at a plush Boston eatery during a two-day trip to the Bay State this month to check out a city waterfront project.

Although he didn't ask about it during the meeting, King later told reporters he saw another voucher submitted by one board member requesting payment for taking nine

King said the vouchers indicated the board members and the consultant flew to Boston and back at an economy rate of $74 one-way. Compensation requests for plane fare, taxi rides and parking fees were included on last night's claims list.

Council president Martin J. Brennan said only that the figures presented by King sounded "reasonable. That's about what dinners cost nowadays." King said the vouchers indicated ners cost nowadays."

King chided the council for doing

"very sloppy business" by approving payment of a claim for $240 submitted by the local Community Development Agency for theater tickets for Citizens United for Neighborhood Ac-tion, a local Hispanic group, for a Sunday showing of "Star Wars" when the CDA purchase order "was not signed until today."

Brennan replied that Mayor Steve Cappiello "wrote out his own personal heck" to cover the payment because the voucher request "came in too late to get on our agenda."

To King's complaint that it was "not good policy to give free tickets to private groups," and that he hadn't seen any city-wide public advertisement for the theater program, Brennan responded: "I imagine the word got out about it. I read about it in the chief, inspectors of the city housing, electrical and plumbing departments, city Manpower director, court clerk, signal system foreman, a member of the advisory recreation comission, and the parking authority's executive director, chairman and computroller.

why it authorized as many as 28 peo-ple from Hoboken to attend the three-day League of Municipalities Conven-tion in Atlantic City last month at a cost he said was $200 per person.

The list of participants, which Vezzetti said he got from city business administrator Edwin Chius, included all six planning board members, three members of the local zoning board, three councilmen, two department directors, city comptrol ler, first assistant city attorney, policy and fire chief, inspectors of the city housing, electrical and plumbing

"Did any of these people give you a written report that would make Hoboken that much better?" asked Vezzetti, but he got no answer on that. On whether those persons should have gone, Brennan said: "There's a line item in the budget for this. It's the only meeting during the year which the city councilmen are invited to attend." Brennan didn't mention anything about the others.

Hoboken replies in kind to hospital nonpayment

St. Mary Hospital says it has been unable to keep its agreement to pay up the arrears on a definite schedule. After the last agreement, a couple of years ago, the hospital did pay, for some months, but it later stopped. Chius said the reason given by withholding payment of bills it owes the hospital—in the money.

neighborhood of $50,000.

This was disclosed today by the business administrator, Edwin Chius.

Chius said he has arranged a injured in the line of duty, mainly meeting for 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in his office to discuss the situation with

One large piece of it, he said, is his office to discuss the situation with hospital representatives.

St. Mary has been running behind for many years in its payments for water used, and on at least two occasions in recent years it has agreed to arrived, and he has now asked the department to total them.

PUC to hear Hoboken water complaint

from $420 per million gallons to $476 in the rate it pays to Jersey City for its water . . . but the staff of the state Public Utilities Commission is recommending $553.

The FUC has a meeting scheduled for Tuesday at 2 p.m. to set an interim rate. However, Hoboken yesterday obtained PUC permission to have the PUC hear arguments on the matter at 1 30 p.m. by its special counsel for water, John Sailer of Elizabeth. A series of hearings on the question of setting an interim rate was held over a period of weeks. (After the interim rate is set, the PUC will hold more protracted hearings on a that the meter that measures the water delivery to Hoboken has been "43 percent slow."

The meter will be tested soon by the PUC to verify Jersey City's claim that it under-recorded the Hoboken water delivery by that percentage.

Even before the matter of the meter came up, Jersey City had asked the PUC to allow it to impose an interim increase of 45 percent in Hoboken's water rates, to satisfy requirements for a sale of bonds to finance construction of a $39,000,000 water filtration plant.

That was the issue originally before the PUC, now complicated by Hoboken's $476 figure, Sailer explained today, is what Hoboken calculates Jersey City should receive recommendation of the inaccuracy of the meter. Sailer said the PUC staff's recommendation of the inaccuracy of the meter.

- provided Jersey City is found to be 32 per cent increase over the current correct in its recent announcement rate, and Hoboken is objecting to it as

Sailer said Hoboken would have to sit down with Jersey City to iron out complications flowing from the way the agreement between the two cities is written. The agreement contains a minimum and maximum amount of water Hoboken was to take. Sailer said Hoboken paid Jersey City $30,000 in penalties for "under consumption" in June, July and August, but it now faces penalties for "over-consumption" because the amount it actually draws has been refigured upward.

Move those plans 30 3/5/57

Mayor Cappiello wants the Lackawanna railroad and ferry terminal in Hoboken declared a historic district to belp the city get money for new projects to rehabilitate it.

This is a good idea and it should be followed through aggressively.

However, the city has had possession of the terminal for more than a year now, and it has commitments for $5 million in federal and state funds, yet it has not completed any plans for the use of the terminal, beyond repairing the roof and installing new heating and electrical systems.

The planning should have been farther advanced by this time. At least it should be getting talked about.

The terminal is potentially a big asset - perhaps the biggest the city has toward making the rest of the country take note of Hoboken.

If only Hoboken was as adept at comleting its plans as it is in getting the money for them!

PBA charges Hoboken can't deny vacation

A grievance has been filed with the state Public Employment Relations Commission (PERC) against Hoboken for refusing to give a patrolman his vacation because he had been on extended sick leave.

Detective James Behrens, president of the Police Benevolent Association, said the grievance was filed yesterday by the PBA's attorney, David Solomon. A date for arbitration of the matter will be set by PERC unless the city concedes the issue.

According to Behrens, the patrolman is James Mancuso. He had filed for his vacation to cover the Christmas and New Year's holidays, but the request was refused on the grounds that he had been on an extended sick leave and was not entitled to vacation time. "There are no provisions in our contract with the city to take away cation time because of extended kk leaves," asserted Behrens. "In fact, there have been numerous similar situations within the department where men who were out on sick leaves for extended periods came back to work and were granted their vacations."

Behrens said that documentation of these similar situations would be presented in evidence. He added that some of the men who were granted vacation time after extended sick leaves may be called as witnesses during the arbitration.

The vacation request was disapproved by Chief George W. Crimmins. However, the chief said that the ruling wasn't his. It had been made by Law Director Lawrence Florio. The law director was not available for

Hoboken to seek new supplies if Jersey City ups water rate

away and a new costly pipeline for us to hook up. The cost would have been paying Jersey City $270 for every million gallons of water it bought. But the financial obligations Jersey City took on to rebuild the filtration plant forced it to seek a rate increase. An increase of approximately 56 percent was granted, raising Hoboken's per-

that the PUC granted effective Jan. 1 will boost that per-million figure to on Hoboken water users won't be as bad as the previous increase, said

Chius. Local rates jumped from a lit-tle over $5 per 1,000 cubic feet of water used to $10.50 per 1,000. The new increase would add approximate-customers served two purposes," said

Chius. "Not only did it cover the increase from Jersey City but it made our water utility self-sufficient. Part of the increase covered Jersey City's

'Our last increase to our ly $2 to the local rate.

The 32 percent interim increase

The effect of the water increase

Chius said that looking for a new water rate increase of 32 percent but on the grounds that adding Hoboken to that victory could very well cause it its system would reduce its reserve to lose one of its largest consumers - below acceptable minimums." he the City of Hoboken - and force it to said. "But there are some others who seek even larger increases from the would have taken us on. The problem Public Utilities Commission (PUC) in there was that they were a distance the near future.

Meanwhile, Jersey City will make system would have been necessary another inspection of the meter which reads the amount of water purchased been prohibitive. from it by Hoboken, to satisfy officials of both cities as to its accuracy.

This increase will put Hoboken into full gear seeking a new supplier

Satisfy of cities said under the supplier and working out details of a possible hookup will occupy a large amount of his time during 1978.

For many years, Hoboken had - even if it means we have to build our own pipeline to get there," asserted Hoboken business administrator Edwin Chius. "Jersey City is pricing itself out of the market. It isn't a question of whether Jersey City needs the increase or not or whether it's justified, it's strictly a million rate to $420. matter of economics.

"From Hoboken's point of view, the price of water we will be buying from Jersey City is now equal to or greater than the prices being charged by other water suppliers. Since there is little doubt that Jersey City will be going back to the PUC in the near uture for another raise it now becomes economically practical for Hoboken to start looking elsewhere

Chius said the city had looked for other sources when Jersey City raised the water rate a year or so ago to almost double what the city had been paying - and several were found. However, there were financial disadvantages involved which made Jersey City still the best buy.

"The Hackensack Water Co.

increase to us, the other part eliminated the deficit in the department and made it self-sufficient. In fact, there should be a slight surplus at the end of this year."

In past years, the water department had been spending more money than it took in from local customers. City tax dollars had to be diverted to the department at the end of each year to eliminate the deficit. he said.

The agreement to reinspect the water meter was reached at a neeting yesterday between officials of both cities. Business Administrator Joseph Giorgio headed the Jersey City negotiators, while Councilman Robert Ranieri led the Hoboken

The inspection will be performed by the consulting engineering firm of Buck, Seifert and Jost. A report is expected in about two weeks.

Meanwhile, Hoboken officials have agreed to pay $80,000 to Jersey City for water used last month. Jersey City had billed Hoboken for $115,000.

Jersey City contends that Hoboken was being billed for only 5.4 million gallons daily, while it was actually receiving 9.5 million gallons. Both sides agreed that the temporary November bill would be an average of the August, September and October readings — 6 million gallons a day.

Both sides also agreed to forma-tion of a committee of all municipalities served by Jersey City to monitor the water situation so there won't be any more crises.

to position 13/1/19

Board Attorney Robert evaluation of the situa-W. Taylor is sticking to tion last week. Taylor his contention that a believes that the petireferendum on whether tions weren't filed soon to return to an ap- enough for a separate pointed Board of election and therefore Education should be the question can be put placed on the Feb. 14 on the ballot for the school election ballot regular school election instead of holding a on Feb. 14. special election a week earlier.

despite criticism by Hoboken Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius, "I see no reason on this matter. A - with another $13,000

"To me that is a terrible waste of referendum will have effect until 1979.

later.

spearheaded the peti-tion campaign to get the freeholders. And I tion campaign to get the freeholders. And I the school board questihink that is where tion on the ballot in a Mister Chius is in special election, took error."

Hoboken School exception to Taylor's

He said based on this on the fact that the Taylor said that petitions hadn't been turned over to the school board but to its secretary, Thomas A. Gallo. The earliest the to change my thinking petitions can be presentedf to the board special election would is Jan. 5, if a special cost the school board meeting for that day is approximately $13,000 called. Taylor said that Gallo, while an agent to be spent a week for the board, is not considered to be a functioning board member.

"Even the state money, especially since law governing school the outcome of the board elections does not mention the secretary absolutely no bearing doing or not doing," he on the regular school continued. "It election that follows on specifically states it is Feb. 14. Even if the the school board that public votes to go back does or does not do. to the appointed school Mister Gallo does not board, that doesn't take serve the school board in the same capacity as a city clerk serves the mayor and council, or be held within 50 days of Thursday - and Feb. 14 would meet that require

New bus service OKd in Hoboken

Two Washington Street Hoboken to companies have been notified by the state Public Utilities Commission (PUC) that permission has been granted to begin operating bus service on Willow Avenue and Clinton

A spokesman for the Agresta Bus Co. and Hoboken Transportation said today that service is expected to start no later than Feb. 15 on the route that had once been operated by Transport of New Jersey (TNJ). "We will be operating two buses tinued. "Service will start at 6:45 a.m. and end at 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For the time being, no weekend service is planned."

The spokesman added that the

On the return northbound trip the buses will leave the station going north on River Street to Newark TNJ was charging when it abandoned the route more than six years ago.

'The fare for senior citizens will be discounted to 20 cents if the state approves our application for reimbursement," the spokesman added. "We also will be offering student discount fares of 20 cents during school hours. If the operation is successful we will continue with the student discount. If it is only marginal we may have to discontinue it (the student discount). That can be determined only after we've been operating a while."

According to the spokesman, adfare will be 40 cents, the same fare ditional runs may be made during the morning and afternoon rush hours. But that, too, will depend on how much use the service gets once it has started. Extra buses also may be put into service during those hours if the demand is great enough.

The buses will be using a north and south route, traveling between 14th Street and the PATH train station at Hudson Place. On the southern trip the bus will start at 14th and Hudson streets, go south on Hudson to 13th Street, west on 13th to Washington Street, North on Willow Avenue, south on Willow to First Street, east on First to Hudson Street, south on Hudson to Hudson Place, and east on Hudson Place to the PATH station. Street, west on Newark to Clinton Street, north on Clinton to 12th Street.

east on 12th to Willow Avenue, north on Willow to 14th Street, and east on 4th Street to the starting point at 14th and Hudson streets.

Hoboken, St. Mary reach partial bill agreement

Hoboken and St. Mary Hospital

it had been agreed that the city and St. Mary will trade checks for $57,000. That's how much Hoboken owes the hospital for the treatment of police prisoners and city employees going back over a period of several years.

Chius said the formalities would be worked out after the first of the year since some of the payments owed by the city to St. Mary were for treatment provided in past years and would have to be included as a separate line item in the city's 1978 budget.

But that eliminates only $57,000 of the $130,000 back water bill. Chius said he would take up the matter of the remaining $73,000 with the law department.

"It is a difficult situation because have worked out an agreement that of the fact that we are dealing with a will eliminate part of the more than religious and charitable organization $130,000 in back water water bills the as well as a hospital," he asserted. health facility owes the city. But a final solution will be a lot more difficult to find.

After a meeting with hospital representatives City Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius said that against the hospital in court.

> "We are not going to shut off the hospital's water. I don't think we would be allowed to even if we wanted to. But city officials have certain obligations they must accept, no matter how unpleasant or unpopular they are. We cannot just sit on our hands and allow the bills to go unpaid indefinitely. We are obligated to take some formal action.' Chius said that he would strongly recommend to the law departme that it institute legal action against the hospital and obtain a judgment.

"That is the procedure the hospital follows when it is dealing with patients who don't pay their hospital bills," he added.

Hoboken CDA chief 'upset' by criticism Fred Bado, director of Hoboken's the Hoboken egency or its Congress with some new guidelines and new approaches, includes a new programs." Neighborhood Revitalization Strategy

Community Development Agency," said today he is "upset" by Councilman Robert A. Ranieri's criticism of the agency, and feels it is "inaccurate and unfair."

Ranieri said last week that at a conference of city officials in San Francisco, top officials of the federal Housing and Urban Development Department told him they were "disappointed" in the agency, having detected a "slowdown" in its initiative and drive. HUD finances the Bado replied today that he had met with some national officials of HUD about three weeks ago and they had not expressed "any criticism of monitored by HUD's new regional administrator - I think in October and he was very favorably impressed," Bado continued. "We received nothing in writing or verbally to the He added that he was also recently in touch with the HUD area office in Newark, and likewise did not meet with any "negative criticism."

Bado offered the following as evidence that HUD was pleased rather than dissatisfied with the agen-

"The federal Housing and Community Development Act of 1977, a reauthorization of prior legislation by

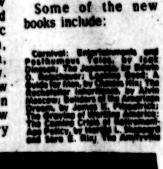

"HUD," he continued, "has asked Hoboken to participate in this national demonstration program." Another new feature of the 1977 act, Bado went on, is an Urban Development Action Grant program, to assist commercial, industrial and residential projects and here again HUD has asked Hoboken to participate, because "we're already on top of that program.

The successful application made by the state for $4.8 million in federal funds to start rehabilitating the Erie Lackawanna Railroad terminal in Hoboken, Bado said, "was prepared for the state by us."

Hoboken library offers new books

A total of 400 new books were purchased by the Hoboken Public Library last month, Lucille Cunningham, director, said today. Many of the new volumes have been delivered and are now available to library fairs has awarded HOPES director, said HOPES Inc., Hoboken's today. anti-poverty agency, an $18,307 grant for the funds would allow the continuation of the "In-School Youth in Com-third consecutive year.

The state Depart munity Service Corp."

members.

ment of Community Af- E. Norman Wilson Jr.,

St. Mary Hospital denies it owes Hoboken $90,000

Hoboken, differ with the city as to the amount of money they owe the city for water. The difference is about

The city claims that the hospital owes it about $135,000. But hospital officials say all they owe is approximately $66,000, and that will be paid shortly—as soon as the city turns over approximately $50,000 that it owes St. Mary for treating city employees and police prisoners.

A spokesman for the hospital said it had been holding up part of the water payments to the city but not because of lack of funds to pay. It was to jar the city's memory about the payment of new daily patient costs it had agreed to but wasn't living up to, the spokesman contends.

"We have an agreement with the city going back to last November in which the basic daily patient care cost was raised to $150 a day from $114," he said. "But the city hasn't paid those bills under the new rate and we wanted to bring that fact to its atten-

The spokesman said the city has now agreed to pay some $50,000 in back bills and the hospital will put up the $48,000 or so that it owes for water. And that should take care of all hospital

Officials of St. Mary Hospital, back water bills except for the current quarter.

City Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius says the hospital owes Hoboken approximately $135,000 over a period of several years. But hospital officials say they worked out an agreement with the city in 1974 through negotiations with Mayor Cap-piello and Joseph Cahill, then director of the Jersey City Water Department. who served as arbitrator.

At that time the city said the hospital owed Hoboken $104,000 in unpaid bills and interest. The hospital claimed that the meters were not operating properly and it had been hilled for more water than it had ac-

The result of the negotiations—according to the hospital—was that the city would forego the interest— some $16,000—and would trim down the bill for water used, reducing the debt to between $73,000 and $76,600 and setting a payment schedule for the hospital to follow.

However, city officials can find no record of such an agreement and have continued to bill the hospital for interest on the original amount owed.

Chius has threatened to go to court for a judgment against the

Hoboken expects to "hold the the budget, saying that it would be premature and that a number of changes may still be made before the out, however, that a reduction in the school board would probably made whetever cuts the city made and whetever cuts the city made

"If there is any increase in the city's tax rate for 1888 it won't be due to any increased spending on the city's part," Chius asserted. "Our taxpayers should understand that the tax rate is actually the product of three factors — the financial needs of the city, the local school district and the county. And the city appears to be

Chius, who has been working on the budget with Mayor Steve Cap-decrease it would probably be Hoboken expects to "hold the line" on spending in its 1979 municipal operating budget, Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius said tochanges may still be made before the budget is finalized and submitted to the city council.

"There are various factors that have an impact on the budget but the bottom line is what really counts," he continued. "And that is how much do the taxpayers have to come up with to support the municipal operation? I do not expect any increase in taxes for the support of the city. In fact, there is a very good chance that Hoboken may show a slight decrease."

Chius said that if there was a piello, declined to go into specifics on minimal. But even a small decrease city's operating costs wouldn't neces-sarily result in a decrease in the amount of taxes property owners would be paying next year. There are still the Board of Education and county to contend with.

"The county budget is still an unknown factor," he continued. "The school budget is approximately $3 million more than last year but it must still be submitted to the public. which could reject it and set off a str-ing of events that could take months

Chius explained that if the public final product for mid-March.

appeal whatever cuts the city mad and force the matter to be decided by the state commissioner of education. This, he said, is a lengthly process, which often isn't resolved for months.

The director said that he anticipated the budget would be finalized by the end of this month and submitted to the city council at its Feb. 2 meeting. The council would then decide if it wants to make any reductions, additions or changes and then schedule a public hearing on the

The Hoboken Board of Education will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. to decide whether it will stage a special election on Feb. 7 to allow residents to vote on returning to an appointed school board or if that question should be part of the ballot for the regular school board election to be held on Feb. 14. The meeting will be held at 1115 Clinton St.

Voters, for the third time, will be asked to decide on keeping the elected board or returning to the appointed board. Those who pushed a successful petition campaign for the referendum say it should be decided at a special election separate from the regular board election.

But board attorney, Robert W. Taylor, thinks otherwise. He says a separate election a week before the regular school election would accomplish nothing except the expen-diture of an additional $13,000 in board money for election costs. Taylor contends that putting the question on the ballot for the Feb. 14 election will satisfy all statutory requirements, and a separate election is not needed;

Supporters of the appointed school board may have to go to court n order to get their special election. An informal poll of a majority of the board members shows that most agree with Taylor.

The petitioners say that the board must hold an election on the question within 50 days of the day the petitions were submitted to the board - and Feb. 14 exceeds that 50-day limit. Taylor, however, claims the board members have not yet officially received the petitions and won't until Thursday's meeting.

Taylor says that the election must

Thursday is also the last day for filing nominating petitions by those who intend to run for the school board. Four potential candidates have picked up nominating petitions to date. They are Louis Picardo of 619 Willow Ave., Joanne Lepre of 1106 Park Ave., Joseph Lotito of 223 Clinton St., and Mary Gaspar of 907 Hudson St., the current school board president. But more are expected to do so before the filing date. Only 10 signatures from registered voters are needed to become an official can-

Hoboken cabs want flat rate within city 10/10

Six Hoboken taxi companies have asked the city for a 25-cent increase in the fare they charge for transporting passengers to certain sections of the

The application for the increase has been submitted by the Hoboken Tube Taxi Co., the Hudson Taxi Co., the Yellow Service Taxi Co., the Radio Cab Co., the Lackswanns Cab Co., and the Hoboken Cab Co., a city pokesman said.

The application calls for the elimination of the dual fare system now in use and the establishment of a flat price for a trip from any one point to any other within the city limits. Currently, the fare is $1.25 for a pointto-point trip between Observer Highway and Eighth Street, from the west to east boundary; and $1.50 from Eighth Street to the northern city boundary. The companies wish to esboundary. The companies was to be tablish one flat rate of $1.50 for all

According to the spokesman, the application was submitted to the city several weeks ago but city officials are in no rush to put the increase into ordinance form and submit it to the City Council for consideration:

"There are a few things the mayor (Steve Cappiello) would like to discuss with them before taking any action on the increase request," he said. "One is the establishment of a taxi stand at St. Mary Hospital. The other is what they can do to eliminate complaints from residents about not being able to get a taxi late at night."
The spokesman said the lack of night taxi service has been a problem for some time, although complaints about it have diminished in recent years. "This could be the result of improved service or the acceptance of poor service by the public," he said. "However, there are still complaints about it."

DeBari won't seek re-election

Anthony DeBari won't seek reelection for a second three-year term on the Hoboken school board and will be replaced on Mayor Steve Cappiello's ticket by Richard F. England

Jr., a parking authority member.

DeBari, a local baker who had also served as an appointed board member before the school board. became an elected body, did pick up nominating petitions but did not file them as of yesterday's 4 p.m.

England picked up his petitions yesterday morning and filed them in the afternoon. He, James Monaco and Robert Wendelken will be runn with the mayor's support. Cappiell confirmed that he will endorse the three as his slate but would not say why DeBari changed his mind and decided not to run.

DeBari," said the mayor. "I can only say that he decided against seeking

Wendelken, a teacher in the Union City school system, also filed his petitions yesterday. Monaco, a Hoboken fireman and head of the Community Relations Bureau, filed England is employed by the Max-well House Coffee Division of the General Foods Corp. at its corpor dquarters in White Plains, N.Y. He has been with the company 15 years and is currently a senior fuction analyst.

Both England and Wendelken were unsuccessful candidates for the school board last year. They oppos the administration's three canlidates, all of whom were elected.

Mary Stack Gaspar, the school board president, and Michael "Spike" Costello, another incumbent, filed their nominating petitions yesterday. They will be seeking their second terms on the board, but this time without the backing of the mayor. They opposed the mayor in the May election last year by backing his main opponent, First Ward Councilman, ough he has filed, Costello, police sergeant, said he may still withdraw as a candidate, for health

If there are no withdrawals from the election, scheduled for Feb. 14, there will be 10 candidates in the Petitions have also been filed by Nick DiTrizzio, George Giordano, Vito Lanzo, Perry Belfiore and Angel Roman.

Cappiello backs 3 for school board

By Pete Hallam

Anthony DeBari, a baker, James Monaco, a Hoboken fireman, and Robert Wendelken, a Union City school teacher, are expected to get the nod today from Mayor Steve Cappiello, the city's political leader, as his candidates for election to the Hoboken Board of Education, according to sources close to the mayor.

All three picked up nominating petitions yesterday. Monaco filed his signed petitions later in the day. The move will leave Mrs. Mary Stack Gaspar, board president, and Michael (Spike) Costello, incumbents seeking reelection, to fend for themselves. Both ran with the ad-

St., is head of the fire department Community Relations Bureau. Wendelsen lives at 1210 Hudson

St. DeBari owns and operates a bakery. He lives at 260 Third St. and is an incumbant board member.

DeBari served as an appointed board member before the school board was changed to an elected board and he will now be seeking his second three-year term as an elected

Monaco has never sought elective office before. Wendelken, however, is making

Hoboken cab fare ///

Hoboken's taxi operators are asking

There has been no increase in fares

Before giving the taxi men what they

for a fare increase. They now charge

$1.25 for rides within a certain distance of the PATH terminal, $1.50 for longer rides. They want a flat $1.50 for all rides.

in a number of years. A $1.50 charge is not out of line with the inflated costs of want, however, the city administration should take this occasion to firm up some points which have been allowed to slide.

arrangement to assure night service.

a taxi stand at St. Mary Hospital must be studied thoroughly - and adopted, unless someone can come up with logical

There must be an enforceable

And Mayor Cappiello's proposal for other services.

reasons against it.

ministration's blessing three years his second attempt at getting elected ago, but went against Cappiello in the to the school board — this time from the other side of the fence. He ran last Monaco, who lives at 1309 Garden year without backing by the mayor, year without backing by the mayor, and placed sixth. But he had help from some administration supporters. Wendelken was backed by Mrs. Gaspar and Freeholder Vincent J. Fusilli as a prelude to the May municipal election when Fusilli openly broke with the mayor and supported First Ward Councilman

Anthony H. Romano According to administration sources, Wendelken's selection is not sitting well with some of the mayor's supporters because of his association last year with Mrs. Gaspar and Fusilli. They argue that there are loyal and long-time administration supporters who are more deserving. It is reported that one of those dispatisfied with the selection of Wendelken is DeBari. And for that reason DeBari was still something of a question mark. Sources reported that as of late yesterday he still had not given the mayor a firm commitment to run or drop out. He could not be reached for comment last night. The first candidate to file his nominating petitions was Vito Lanzo of 10 Church Towers. Lanzo, a baker, was an unsuccessful candidate for councilman-at-large in last May's micipal election. He filed his school municipal election. He most must be be be beard nominating petitions yesterday. Also picking up petitions yester-day was Perry Belfiore of 1021 Park

All petitions must be filed by p.m. this afternoon with the board's secretary. A minimum of 10 signatures from registered voters is needed to become a candidate.

The other potential candida with petitions are Mrs. Gaspar,

Costello, Nick DiTrizzio, George Giordano, Louis Picardo, Joseph Lotito, and Mrs. Joanne (Sissy) Lepre. However, it is reported that Mrs. Lepre picked the petitions up for another candidate and will not file

A special meeting of the board will be held tonight at 8 to discuss matters pertaining to the election, including what to do about the petitions calling for a special election on Feb. 7 on whether to revert to an appointed

Supporters of the referendum submitted more than 1,600 signed etitions demanding the special election. A total of 1,250 valid signatures was needed. According to the office of the county superintendent of elections, however, many of the signatures were qualified and the petitioners had to submit some 100 more.

"The signatures that were disqualified came from registered voters but they didn't meet the reuirements for this kind of election." a spokesman explained. "The enatures had to be those of persons who voted in the last General Asembly election and many of those we received, although from valid registered voters, did not vote in the last General Assembly election and had to be disqualified."

He added that even with the extra signatures that were submitted the itioners exceeded the 1,250 requirement by only 25 or so names.

At tonight's meeting, the board will decide if it will hold the special election on Feb. 7, a week before the regular school election, or place the question of reverting to an appointed board on the ballot for the regular

No separate school board vote

The Hoboken school board has approved a referendum to decide once again whether the panel should be changed from an elected to an appointed board.

But there will not be a separate election on the issue. The board voted last night to include the question on the ballot at the regular school elections Feb. 14. It will be the third time that Hoboken voters have been asked to decide the question. A reference several years ago changed the board from one appointed by the mayor to an elected panel. Two years ago another referendum reaffirmed that

The administration of Mayor Steve Cappiello has been pushing for a return to an appointed system and several weeks ago presented petitions to force the question on the ballot again. However the Hudson County bureau of elections ruled that a sufficient number of valid signatures were not included on the petitions.

But last night, with a majority of those present allied politically with Capiello, the board voted five to two

Voting in favor were Anthony F. DeBari, James Farina, Otto Hottendorf, Jack Rasiowsky and Aurelio Lugo. Voting against were board president Mary Gaspar and James Giani. Absent were Michael Costello and Leo McLaughlin.

Mrs. Gespar called the referen-dum a waste of time and money. "I don't know why we want to try reverting back again when the people have made themselves heard on this have made themselves heard of issue twice before," she said.

She also complained about another board decision to hold the annual budget hearing at 10 a.m. on Feb. 1. Mrs. Gaspar cast the only negative vote on that matter.

The controversy on that matter was similar to the one that erupts every year when board critics say the time is inconvenient for the pu and school officials say it is traditional to hold the hearing at that "I really don't see why we can't have two hearings, one in the daytime and one at night," said Mrs. Gaspar.

Parking, playground planned 97 14/11

Preliminary steps are being taken by Hoboken to establish a metered parking area for approximately 75 cars and a parkplayground on the large city-owed lot that once belonged to the Condenser Service Co. At Observer Highway and nfield Street.

Edwin J. Chius, city business administrator, said today that the loboten Parking Authority, Community Development Agency and the city were generally in agreement on the use of the lot, which takes up approximately half a block. However, a formal plan must yet be worked out and put into package form.

Chius said he visited the site this week with Jame Caulfield, city inspector, to get an idea of ow the area can be laid out to the best advantage. Caulfield is to survey the site and make serveral proposal for the layout.

"The parkingnarea will be operated by the parking authority," said Chius. "It will manage the parking area, maintain it, enforce the parking regulations and collect whatever revenues are generated by tered spaces.

"The city will be responsible for the park-playground area."

parking purposes and although it will be metered, not all motorists using the lot will be required to feed the

"A system is being considered thourgh which city officials and others with dail business at city hall would be exempt from using the meters," he said. "This could be accomplished by using decals or visor cards which the parking authority

Chius said that this system would be better than leaving a number of spaces unmetered for official cars.

The trouble with that is that unauthorized motorists would always be pulling into the unmetered spaces, even if they were marked or posted for city officials only," he explained.
"They would be ticketed of course but the space would be taken and an offical would have to park at a metered

"Metering all the spaces makes more sense," he asserted. "It also makes things a lot easier to enforce."

Joseph Hottendorf, executive director of the parking authority, said that hopefully all of the funds for the project could be obtained through the CDA or applications to the federal government. The authority hopes to keeps its investment in the facility to

"As long as the city keeps posses-sion of the property the authority would have to beep tis investment in the project as small as possible," he continued, "because of our trust agreement. It wouldn't be acceptable to the trustees of our bond issue to have the authority sink a lot of money into the development of the facility and then have the city decide in a few years that it wants the lot back for some kind of development. "If it did turn the area over to the thority and then wanted it back, the authority would have to get back whatever it invested in the development of the area. That's one of the problems but is shouldn't be too dif-ficult to work it out."

Washington Street bus line are going to start a parallel route in the western part

If it works out, the operators should

One reason is that their buses will now be traversing a good part of the area the crosstown bus serves, and it would not take much to extend their operations

The city fathers would no doubt gladly unload their bus operation, which has been a consistent loser. The crosstown bus is frequently out of service for repairs - as at present - mainly because the city just does not have the operational know how or repair

There is a persistent belief that some passengers somehow manage to ride free. There is no doubt the fare is too low to finance efficient operation. Both problems can be traced to local ter chance to make the crosstown line a

Wording of school board vote 'deceitful', Mrs. Gaspar charges

Hoboken's school board president, Mrs. Mary Stack Gasper, declared today that the wording of the forthcoming referendum on reverting to an appointed board is "deceitful."

She said voters who want to keep the elected board will be expecting to vote "no" - right after they vote "no" on the budget — but actually a "no" vote will bring the appointed

The wording is: "Should the local school district (Hoboken) continue as a Type II district (elected board members)?"

The board last week voted to put this question on the Feb. 14 ballot for the annual election of school board members, at which time voters also will pass upon the proposed 1978-1979 school budget.

. Mrs. Gaspar is a candidate for reelection, but without the backing of Mayor Cappiello, whose political organization is pushing to restore the ninted board.

The referendum "is worded to anticipate a 'no' vote from the public," Mrs. Gaspar asserted, "because the public is expected to vote 'no' on the proposed 1978-79 school budget and to be in a 'no' mood when it gets to the referendum on the elected board." Mrs. Gaspar was one of th two board members who voted against putting the question, in any form, on the Feb. 14 ballot at last week's special meeting. The other was James Giani "This will be the third time the public has been asked to vote on the elected or appointed school board,"

she continued. "It has twice voted for the elected board so I don't think a third referendum is really necessary. Unless, of course, you happen to be thinking politically and that appears to be what is happening here."

Mrs. Gaspar said it was "obvious" to her that Mayor Steve Cappiello again wanted to control the board by putting his people on it. Mrs. Gaspar, who is seeking her second three-year term, was elected the first time on a ticket backed by the mayor and his organization.

"I was running on a ticket that was being supported by a mayor who had campaigned for the elected board so that the schools could be taken out the realm of politics." she went on. "He had publicly stated during his election campaign in 1973 and after that the school board should not be an extension of City Hall and that the board members should stand or fall on their own merits. "I still feel the same way but it is apparent that the mayor doesn't and now wants to hand pick the people who will serve on the board.

Sources close to the drive to have vote on the elected school board question on a different date said the board's action last week to include the question on the Feb. 14 ballot was a 'compromise" agreed to so that a special election would not have to be

The petitioners for the special election has fallen short of the number of signatures from qualified voters required to get the question on the ballot. That was verified by

Robert W. Taylor, board attorney, who said that the petitions returned by the Hudson County superintendent of elections were 16 short of the approximately 1,250 needed. A total of 1,600 signatures had been submitted. Sources said that the petitioners would have been granted additional time by the board of elections to get more signed petitions and they could more signed petitions and they could have forced the special election either on Feb. 7, the week before the regular school board election, or on a date after the regular election.

Instead, they said, the petitioners chose to save the school board the cost of a second election by agreeing to having the question on the Feb. 14 ballot — provided the question was provided in such a way that a "no" vote worded in such a way that a "no" vote would signify approval of a return to an appointed board.

Meanwhile, George Giordano, a boken fireman, has been picked for the top spot on the ballot in the election next month. Giordano's name will be on the first line of Column A. He will be followed on line two by Robert Wendelken; Richard England on line three; Mrs. Gaspar on line four, and Perry Belfiore on line five. Mike (Spike) Costello, an incumbent board member, drew the first line in Column B. Vite Lanzo is on line two followed by James Monaco, another fireman; Nick DiTrizzio, and Angel Roman on line five. England, a parking authority member; Wendelken, a Union City school teacher, and Monaco are backed by the mayor.

The operators of Hoboken's

of the city.

be in an advantageous position to take over Hoboken's only other bus line, the municipal crosstown route.

over the whole of it.

Private operators would have a bet-

Hoboken fiasco 9/1/7/78

not have enough money to keep the schools open until the end of the term. The board somehow hired far more eachers than it provided for in its budget. It has been over-spending every day since school started last fall.

Apparently the board's only option is to lay off teachers; not just a handful, but scores of them. The prospect of taking teachers away from pupils and doubling up in classrooms is appalling.

The board's reluctance to do this on its own is understandable. But if it has to be done, it had better be done now because every day's delay means that still more teachers will have to be laid off as the deficit increases.

To try to find a logical explanation for the over-hiring in the face of years of financial difficulties is frustrating because everyone connected with the dilemma gives gobbledegook answers.

The State Education Department certainly should send someone to Hoboken to find out what is going wrong and to make absolutely certain it doesn't

Todd Shipyard pacts asked

The Hoboken Water Department and Revenue and Finance Depart-ment have been asked by the city council to work out lease agreements with the owners of ships that are docking at the old Todd Shipyard and

A letter was sent to both departments by the city council's water committee headed by Councilman Robert A. Ranieri, recommending that formal contracts for dockies space and the purchase of city water to be negotiated immediately with all companies using the facilities.

But neither Frank J. Bartletta, ue and finance director, nor Andrew J. Amato, head of pul works, which includes the water department, is doing any negotiating. The letter from Ranieri was turned over to the law department. It, in turn, has sent Ranieri a letter asking for more information.

Thomas Calligy, assistant city attorney, asked the councilman how much he felt the city should charge for docking, and how long the agree-ment should be for.

Ships docking at the facility lately have been unable to get any water. The director was having the area checked daily to make sure none had again boshed up/to a hydrant without the city's knowledge. Yesterday, Amato authorized the sale of some city water to one ship. How much the owner would be charged would de-pend on how much water the ship took on, he said. "We'll measure its tanks and then figure out how much we are to get," he continued. "It will be charged the normal rate we charge all our customers, a little over $10 per 1,000 cubic flat."

Although skips have been decking at the city-owned facility for some time, the city has so formal agreements for docking or using city water. That came to light two meads ago ships booked up to a city are nyurant sear the docking site in the northeast section of the city.

According to Ameto, the company that appears to be running the show at the shipyard, Eastern Seaboard Pile Driving Co., has agreed to pay the city $1,200 for water it has taken in the past. However, the city has taken in the past. ceived any payment yet from the backed up to a city fire hydrant

The same company has been making docking payments to Revenue and Finance for the last several the. But there is no written formal agreement with the company. And before it started paying Hoboken it had been making the monthly pay-ments to Seatrain Lines in Weshawken, according to Bartletta. He said Seatrain claimed that the section of the pier the ships were docked at was its property. The city has been negotiating with the company to get a share of the rents paid in the past.

End of controversy seen over Hoboken school vote

Supporters of a referendum on whether the Hoboken School Board should be appointed or elected may change their tactics and temporarily eliminate the controversy that has been kicked up over whether the question should be put to the public at a special election on Feb. 7.

According to sources close to the petitioners, the backers of the petition drive may ask for th eir petition back and then request that the board have the question included on the ballot for the Feb. 14 regular school board election. Support for a referendum on the

Feb. 14 ballot would be needed from a minimum of five of the nine board members," he said, "and we should be able to get that." But there is still one catch. The petitioners want the question worded in such a way that a "no" vote would signify approval by the voter of returning to the elected board.

Another hitch is that if the petitioners should seek to get their petitions back from the board they may not get them, because the board doesn't have them. They were turned over to the Hudson County superinten dent of elections who is verifying the the petitioners have the 1,250 signatures of voters who cast ballots in the November election. A total of 1,600 signatures were submitted to the

An advantage of getting the peti-tions back is that they can be used again should the referendum be placed on the Feb. 14 ballot but be defeated. The same petitions could be bmitted a few weeks later and the board would then have to hold t special election to again decide th

The petitions are expected to returned by the county before Thursday night's special school board meeting. The petitioners have un then to ask for their return.

Ranieri wants catch basins fixed and funds in the budget to do it

There's a game Hoboken officials play every year at this time. It's called "Budget Roulette". the department directors ask for the moon, hoping that by the time their butgets pass through the hands of the mayor and then the City council, they will have enough left to do what they wanted. the script seldom varies. But this year is just might, at least in one area of the Department of Public Works' budget.

Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri thinks the department should have adequate funds in 1978

to make all the necessary repairs to the city's cor-ner catch basins, and if the money isn't already in the budget that Director Andrew J. Amato has submitted to the mayor, Ranieri intends to see that it gets in before the public hearing in March. The catch basins are a problem; unfortunately, it's one that fades out of mind when the weather has been dry for a few weeks," he said. "But we've had enough rain lately to make the problem highty visible around the city — we have a lot of broken basins that are broken or clogged. "Since it always seems to be the same locations that get flooded when we have a heavy rainfall, I'm inclined to believe that those catch basins are broken and in need of repair.

The councilman said his attention was brough to the problem by a flooding condition on the east side of River Street at Second Street.

"The water must have been a foot deep there yesterday," he continued. "It extended at least 100 fet in either directrion of the River Street catch basin that should have been taking the water in, and had spread to the west side of River Street by

"I asked the Public Works Department to send a crew to try to fix it but they were unable to because the water was so high. With the weather expected to turn cold for the next several days that water is going to freeze over and we're going to have one very dangerous street to keep an eye on."

The councilman added he has made an informal survey of the problem citywide and counted almost a dozen trouble spots. He also asked Public Works to make its own.

Hospital debt $130,000

water supplied since then.

Edwin Chius, the city's business administrator, said today it is true as the hospital claimed - that the hospital owes only $48,000 on arrears it built up in the early 1970s. But the

St. Mary Hospital owes the City of Hoboken $82,000 for water supplied to hospital was holding up payment of it in the six months ending Nov. 16 - current bills because the city was not plus charges not yet calculated for honoring an agreement to increase its payments for patient care from $114 to $150 a day. Chius said the city was holding up its payments because the hospital wasn't paying. Chius agreed with the hospital spokesman today that the differences have been settled, the city will hand hospital's failure to pay current bills over a lump sum for what it owes and the hospital will resume paying its bills on a schedule agreed upon.

Center will install Cilento

The installation of Anthony J. Cilento of Hoboken and Peggy Spano of Teaneck as presidents of the Italian Community Center's organizations will be held the night of Jan. 21 at the clubhouse in Union City. State Sen. Anthony Scarding of Lyndhurst, whom Cilento has known since the lawmaker's infancy, will be installing officer.

Cilento and Mrs. Spano were eelected to second one-year terms last month, he as head of the parent group and she as leader of the aux-iliary. Mrs. Spano is a former resident of Weehawken. She is active in many women's organizations. Cilento is a Hudson County Board of Taxation commissioner, chairman of the county Republican Organization, a former freeholder and the organizer of the first Hudson County Unico National chapter in Hoboken in Cilento also is an honorary founder of the Boystowns of Italy and because of his activities in behalf of the Boystowns the Italian government cited him with the Star of Sodality in

Hoboken gets state grant payment

The first installment of the 30,000 state grant to the First Ward Block Association of Hoboken finally arrived this week, and it will pay the salaries of a staff organized o mediate landlord-tenant disputes, an official said yes-

Association President Thomas Newman said the grant request made to the state Department of Community Affairs was approved in November, but the first $7,500 check arrived Monday.

The three-member staff, led by Tomas Ayende, is temporarily housed at 219 Park av. and will move to permanent quarters at 241 Garden st. in five weeks, Newman said.

The office has been open since November, Newman said, and its primary function is to assist tenants and landlords whenever a dispute emerges. "The thrust of the program is to inform as many persons as possible about the state's "truth in renting law"

The grant request was prepared in September, and all money first goes to the City Treasury. Every check re-ceived must be formally accpted and disbursed by the City Council.

Ayende's salary is $13,000, and the budget also provides for two clerk-typists who will each be paid $5,000 annually. The balance of the grant will pay for the normal costs of operating an office: rent, utilities, supplies, and equipment such as typewriters, Newman said. The state Department of Community Affairs makes such grants as part of the neighborhood preservation While the grant to Hoboken does not involve any plans for new housing in the southern section of the city, Newman said improving landlord-tenant relations could only improve the housing market in

"If lendlords receive fair and timely rents for their properties, and tenants get the safe, clean housing they pay for, the quality of housing in the First Ward will at least be maintained," Newman

Cappiello school board endorsements a secret

supporting three candidates in ken's Feb. 14 school board election but political observers will probably have to wait until tomorrow to find out who they are.

The mayor said today that he will endorse three candidates for the school board but declined to name them. "I have to talk with several more persons before making a decision," he said.

Meanwhile, two more potential candidates picked up nominating petitions. They are Nick DiTrizzio and George Giordano, a local fireman and a member of the mayor's political association.

Including those two, eight persons have picked up nominating petitions.

The petitions must be filed with the board no later than 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Mayor Steve Cappiello will be Ten signatures from registered voters are needed to be accepted as a can-

> The others with petitions are Louis Picardo, Joanne Lepre, Vito Lanzo, Joseph Lotito, Michael "Spike" Costello, one of the three in-

Costello and Mrs. Gaspar will be

Work lags, Hoboken acts to take back Grand Hotel

what he said he would when he bought

At the request of the city coucil, City Building Inspector James report back to the council and law department on what progress has been made since September when the council gave Pasquale Severino, the owner, a conditional six months to finish the work.

Severino appeared before the uncil in September, when the council announced that it was going to take back the building because he had not lived up to the terms of the sale imposed by the city which then owned the property. Severino bought the property from the city on Jan. 10 of last year for $27,500. He had 45 days from the city council confirmation of the sale to submit his plans for the building's chabilitation or redevelopment and was to have started work within that same period. The work, according to the sale conditions, was to be completed within six months of being started.

His plans for the old hotel called for it to be gutted. Then a restaurant would be built on the ground floor leval and the upper stories turned into apartments or a hotel. A susbstantial sent to amount of work was done inside the ment.

Hoboken again has its own superintendent of weights and measures. Joseph A. Iervolino, drop-ped from the Hudson County payrol as an undersheriff several days ago.

went back on Hoboken's payroll

The job had been vacant since ler-volino took a leave of absence almost four years ago to take the un-dersheriff's post. His Hoboken salary lervolino's county job went to Stephen R. Kopycinski of Jersey City, who had been serving the unexpired Assembly term of Rep. Joseph LeFante. That term ended Tuesday.

Kopycinski, a strong supporter of Jersey City Mayor Thomas F.X. Smith, will be making $16,500 a year.

dersheriffs not reappointed by John Gillen, elected sheriff in November.

No one has yet been named to fill the

· It had been rumored in Hoboken political circles for several months that Iervolino, a strong supporter of Hoboken Mayor Steve Cappiello, was going to get the ax from the county. Iervolino would not comment on the Iervolino was one of two un-

yesterday in his old position.

will be $12,500 a year.

second slot.

lervolino back as Hoboken weights and measures chief cumbents and Mary Gaspar, the current school board president.

seeking their second three-year terms but unlike their first attempt it will probably be without the mayor's blessings. Mrs. Gaspar and Costello both actively worked against the mayor in May's municipal election.

Anthony DeBari is the third incumbant and is expected to get the mayor's support, if he decides to run for another term. However, DeBari hasn't announced his intentions as

Time is rapidly running out for the owner of a famed landmark, the Grand Hotel in Hoboken, to complete its rehabilitation before the city moves to take it back for failure to do months to complete the job, but conmonths to complete the job, but con-ditionally. The condition was that a ubstantial amount of additional work had to be done on the property by Dec.

> If is had not been done, Severino. wouldn't get the extra three months, and the city would take steps to reclaim the building on the ground that Severino had not lived up to the sale conditions or to the extension

A resolution was to have been introduced at last Wednesday's city council meeting directing the law department to take the necessary steps to get the building back. However, it was not included on the igenda on the advice of Law Director

Lawrence Florio. He told the council that it should follow accepted procedure which, in this case, would be to have the building inspected by Caulfield, have him make a report to the law department and council on the progress made, if any, and then to notify Severino of the findings of the inspec-tion and the city's decision to take the

The council agreed and ordered the city clerk to send a letter to Caulfield asking for the inspection and a report, copies of which are to be sent to the council and the law depart-reports at first, but he eventually con-firmed he had been told by Gillen he would not be reappointed to another that some other Hoboken resident wasn't named to the job is seen by some political observers as an indication Cappiello has only limited pull with Smith, the county's recognized

Democratic leader. It is reported that

Iervolino reportedly was offered a job in the county Weights and Measures Department but declined to accept unless it was the top spot, county

Hoboken police lieutenant, August

Ricciardi, was being mentioned for lervolino's undersheriff slot. Ric-ciardi is a close friend of First Ward

Councilman Anthony H. Romano,

who unsuccessfully opposed Cappiello in last May's municipal election. But Smith he would rather give up the un-dersheriff's post, which has traditionally gone to a Hoboken resident, and have Smith pick one of his own men, rather than see it go to someone from Hoboken whom Cappiello considered to be from his opting along, it doesn't show when the two are together at public functions.

They trade quips, slap each other's backs, and often have long semi-private conversations at such events that are marked by frequent smiles.

If Smith and Cappiello aren't get-

Sources claim Cappiello told that did not come to pass.

Political sources say a former

Iervolino's dismissal and the fact

three-year term.

Board of Ed

The Hoboken Board of Education cannot borrow money to close the projected $350,000 defict in this year's school budget; it can only cut staff or raise taxes, a state official

Assistant Commissioner of Education Vincent Calabrese said borrowing money to erase a projected deficit is in violation of state law. The same state law governing the financial operations of school districts prescribes only two

The Board could put a tax referendum on the ba seeking approval from residents to raise taxes to close the deficit, or simply lay teachers and administrators off,

At the request of Mayor Steve Cappiello, Calabrese led a a review team into the city four weeks ago to examine the board's financial records.

The records were not complete when the review team examined them Calabrese said, and the additional information requested is expected this week.

Calabrese declined to say what records were requi He would only say the records were reviewed, and the additional information expected this week involved the projected costs of operating the district.

Calabrese said his staff will prepare a report and meet with the board to discuss it "in the very near future." While the Commissioner of Education can order the board

When the complete information is supplied by the board, to take specific action to erase the deficit, Calabreas said that "would be a last resort." Hoboken Superintendent of Schools Thomas McFeely, Board Attorney Robert Taylor, and Trustee Otto Hottendorf agree the district will incur a deficit.

Group hoping to get battleship for Hoboken has 2,000 signers,

Il battleship New Jersey to Hobolten, Allan Straten, committee president,

The committee's petition cam-paign is being conducted statewide and has a goal of 10,000 signatures. The signatures will be presented to the state Battleship Committee, Union County petition drive which currently is reviewing several chairman, and Fred Dapuzzo, a possible sites as a permanent former Hoboken resident, will lead birthplace for the ship. Hoboken is the drive in Ocean County.

More than 2,000 signatures have one of the finalists.

More than 2,000 signatures have one of the finalists.

According to Straten, the petition drive to being the World War. tition drive to bring the World War committee at its March meeting. oboken has one representative on the state committee, Richard Eversen, chairman of the Hoboken Parking Authority.

Straten added that John Pitera of Scotch Plains has been selected by the Hoboken Committee to serve as its

Romano not giving backing to school board candidates

None of the 10 candidates running in Hoboken's Feb. 14 school board election will be getting the endorse-ment of one of the city's major political forces, First Ward Councilman Anthony H. Romano, who ran for mayor last May and lost.

Romano is staying out of the elec-tion in spite of the fact that two board members running for reelection whom Mayor Cappiello is opposing, are of Romano's political faction.

Romano said today that he not only won't back any candidates but he will not take a public opposition on either of the two questions on the ballot — the proposed 1978-79 board budget and a referendum on returning to the appointed school board.

"My supporters and members of my association are free to pick their own candidates and become involved in the election if they wish," he said. "However, because of my position as school board business manager, I'm keeping my personal opinion on the matters of candidates and the public questions to myself."

The candidates of Romano's faction are the board's president, Mrs. Mary Stack Gaspar, and Michael (Spike) Costello.

Romano added that there were still bitter feelings among some political factions stemming from the May election. His participation, even by only a personal endorsement, might rekindle them, he said.

"My candidacy for mayor last year disrupted many long-standing personal relationships in which friends ended up on opposite sides of the fence," he continued. "Those friendships are being rekindled and that's the way it should be."

The councilman said his only disappointment about the upcoming school board election was that Anthony DeBari, one of the three incumbent school board members whose terms expires this year, had decided not to seek reelection.

"Mr. DeBari is one of the more active school board members," the councilman continued, "and I think it is a shame that we will be losing his experience and services after all these years on the board."

Illegal parkers get blitzed in Hoboken

blitz that has turned out more than 600 summonses for illegal parking since New Year's Day.

The task of slapping the tickets on the illegally parked vehicles has gone to the Tactical Patrol Force (TPF) and not without some discontent on the part of its members. Because of the blitz, the TPF patrolment are not getting the same beat two days in a row, which is not to their liking.

According to Chief George W. Crimmins, the stronger enforcement of the parking laws is not a blitz. It is a response to some criticism in recent

"Issuing tickets is part of the policeman's job," he continued. "The men have been reminded of this re-quirement and what is expected of them from their superiors and a.m. Jan. I and midnight Jan. 3 a total of 631 tickets were issued by police.

That does not include summonses given out by Parking Authority meter attendants. Of that number, 616 were for parking violations, including overtime meter parking. The remaining 15 time meter parking. The remaining 15 were for moving violations.

'It should be pointed out that more than 70,000 summonses were given out by Hoboken police last year," he asserted. "For a city this size that's a lot of tickets. They were given out by both the police and Parking Authority for assorted parking Crimmins said the ticket ca paign would continue as long as there are motorists willing to risk setting a summons for parking illegally.

"If there is an illegally parked car and a police officer observes the violation, he is to ticket the vehicle." he said. "That's all there is to it."

More are paid for less work says official, vowing check folia

A Hoboken councilman has asked employees on the payroll, I am told," all city departments to provide him Malfetti said. "And that's the highest with copies of their payrolls so that he it has been in some time. Not all of

Letters from Sixth Ward Counilman Nunzio Malfetti to all of the pertments were sent out by the city departments were sent out by the city clerk following last week's council

According to the councilman, he was concerned with the number of oyees in relationship to the come under state a financed programs.

"Even though we have all these people, it seems to me that less and less is getting done in the city. If everyone is doing his job and keeping busy there shouldn't be any reason for Malfetti said he planned to check thoroughly the lists of employees when he received them to make sure "The city has approximately 700 everyone on them was coming to > tions in the city for over a year but did nothing to enforce the local or-

> "I want to know exactly who had this knowledge — and did nothing about it," asserted Ranieri. "And when I do find out, they had better why they didn't point out the irregularities so that the city's laws could be enforced."

to the pinball machine ordinance was presented to the council that the council learned that portions of it weren't being enforced, Ranieri said.

The owners of establishments with pinball or vending machines or juke boxes leased from the distributor ailed for the most part to obtain $15-a-year permits from the city for each machine, and Hi-Score had not ob-

Detective Leo Serrano was assigned by Mayor Steve Cappiello, the public safety director, to investigate the matter and straighten it out.

checked the entire city for devices lacking permits and that all owners have either been granted the permits or the permits are pending. All establishments with jukeboxes, the permits for which run from Jan. 1 to Dec.

31, Serrano said, have filed applica-

The pinball and vending machine permits run from July I to June 31 of he following year, he added.

However, those establishments that did not have permits have all filed ap-with establishments that had more than one pinball machine. Serrano said he located eight throughout the city. The owners and the distributors were notified and the machines were

The council was also concerned

plications and all were approved.

Serrano said today that he tained a distributor's license.

It was only after the amendment work and actually performing a useful function.

"I'm not saying that we have peomay launch his own investigation to them are paid with city funds. Some ple with no-show jobs on the payroll," the councilman conti not saying that we don't have them, either. I do intend to find out." Malfetti did not know how long it would take him to complete his evaluation, but estimated that a minimum of a month or two would be

"I'm a working man myself so I can't devote my full time to this," he said. "It will have to be done a little at a time based on my free time during the regular work week. And I'll go after the obvious abuses first since that's the easiest way of doing it.

He explained that the obvious abuses would be cases where he knows of persons on the city payroll and sees them away from their nor-mal duty assignment at a time when Malfetti is a cargo checker and works throughout the Port of New York in both New Jersey and New York. He said that while he usually worked Monday through Friday it was not unusual for him to have a work day free every few weeks.

"If in my travels I happen to see an employee somewhere where he or she isn't supposed to be during the day I'm going to be asking for some thorough explanations from the supervisor," he added.

in Hoboken hit by Giordano

George Giordano, a candidate for the Hoboken school board, said today that "past and present chaos in the school system is the result of the board allowing employes . . . to become masters without proper control and responsibility to the tax-

Giordano, a Hoboken fireman for 21 years and one of the founders of the Steve Cappiello Association, cited numerous court cases involving the school board and city which cost both the city and board time and money.

"The conditions of the schools themselves have been a direct result of the poor quality of supervision by

of the poor quality of supervision by board members who are directly responsible for insuring that youngsters are given instructions in the best possible conditions," he as-

"I will not be part of the type of system that has led our schools to their present sorry state of affairs."

Crosstown bus back 99

The Hoboken crossor has in The Hoboken crossown bus is back in full operation after being out of service for almost two weeks, a spokesman for Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius said to-

The bus was taken out of service two weeks ago because its radiator had to be replaced. The city did not hire a replacement bus for the line.

Ranieri probes possible pinball coverup

company was distributing pinball machines and other electronic vending devices without obtaining a license and why nothing was done to see to it that the applicable city ordinances were enforced for more than a year.

Councilman-at-large

A Hoboken councilman said today Ranieri said he takes exception to the mayor introduced in the council machine the will push to find out who in the claim of Hi-Score Amusement an amendment to the pinball or nual lice nual license from the city at a cost of dinance." Ranieri said. $2,500. The other limits the number of electronic amusement devices "And all the facts really didn't start coming out until several weeks In the papers it filed in Hudson County Superior Court early last month, the company contends that the city had full knowledge of its opera-

Hi-Score, which is located at 206 Jackson St., is attempting to have two sections of the city's pinball ordinance knocked out in court. One section requires all pinball and vending

Hoboken mystery 99 1/11/11

the required licenses and pay the fees.

ing him please to comply?

It was not that the city officials were unsympathetic to their own ordinance. If that had been the case, they could have had it annulled. They knew that the competitors of this distributor were obtaining licenses and paying the fees, but they made no effort to have him do the same.

Hoboken's hard pressed taxpayers could have benefitted by the thousands of dollars in fees which went uncollected. And even today this unlicensed distributor is allowed to continue operating in Hoboken without paying a cent. Does this not add up to a resounding .

Why not in Hoboken?

sociation struggled through many a public hearing before it finally got the city's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to seize the license of a tavern whose patrons night after night disturbed their

Policemen, too, spent many an hour testifying in support of the residents. The long effort finally resulted in

The tavern owners now have appealed to the state ABC board. The board gentlemen have graciously granted a new hearing to be held in Cranford, miles

This is not to be a hearing only on the legal aspects of the case. No, it is to be a completely new hearing, starting from scratch. The residents will have to prove their case all over again. And, if they are to win again, they will have to bring

If the state has to hold this hearing, why can it not be held in Heboken? Why does everyone have to traipse to Cran-

A distributor of electronic amusement devices is suing the city of Hoboken because it recently asked him to obtain

This announcement gives rise to a disturbing question: How is it that the city officials have allowed him to operate for more than a year in violation of the ordinance, and without even ask-

This shocking failure was not made public until it accidentally happened to get out as a result of the mayor asking the city council to soften the ordinance's provisions. The council refused.

Hoboken's First Ward Block As-victory . . . or did it?

away from Hoboken.

along the police witnesses.

ford?

WHY?

Aide: Holgoken due major investment Private developers are prepared to invest up to 325 million tion scheme. Output L //12/75 Cappiello came away octimistic about the city's chances.

Private developers are prepared to invest up to $25 million in an urban renewal project for Hoboken's First Ward and waterfront areas, the city's community development chief said vesterday

Fred Bado, director of the Community Development Agency, said the size and scope of the project was dependent on the amount of federal aid which accompanied the investments from the private sector.

Hoboken Mayor Steve Cappiello and Bado met with federal Housing and Urban Development (HUD) officials yesterday in Washington to discuss a new aid program for small cities.

HUD's new aid plan, labeled Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) program ties the aid granted directly to the level of private money committed to any building or renova-

Bado said his staff will draft a grant application, which is scheduled to be filed before Feb. 28, for between $3 and

Accompanying that request. Bado said, will be a committment from private developers, for between $18 and $25

The ratio of private to public money necessary for approval by UDAG has not yet been firmly established. Bado said But the figure now used is 10 to 1.

While the city's grant request for between $3 and $5 million falls well below the 10-to-1 private to public money ratio, Bado said he felt confident the city's request would be viewed

Cappiello came away optimistic about the city's chances for a large slice of UDAG's $100,000,000 budget for the first year of the program.

"I think we impressed upon Assistant Secretary for Community Planning Robert Embry and Action Grant Officer David Dresser that we did our homework before coming to Bado declined to name the developers who would supply the private capital for residential and commercial projects in the southern part of the city and on the waterfront. He said any advance publicity about the application could jeopardize federal action on the request.

The UDAG program evolved out of HUD only Tuesday. and the small cities programs (for those under 50,000 population) will not officially begin until Feb. 1.

Hoboken has until Feb. 28 to qualify for the first of four quarterly grants. Bado and Cappiello were cautiously op-timistic about meeting that deadline.

But if the city can not amass the necessary data by that time, no money will be lost, Dresser said.

Hoboken may get free garbage stud

Hoboken will get a free evaluation of its garbage collection operation and what could be done to improve it, if a resolution authorizing the Garden State Paper Co. to perform such a survey is approved at next week's council meeting.

According to Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri, who is having the measure introduced, Garden State to come. has self-interest in doing the survey it wants to see if Hoboken's operation can be changed to one that uses source separation.

"Source separation means that residents will have to separate their rubbish into four different categories paper products, cans, glass, and everything else," Ranieri said.

"After this has been done, the rubbish is put out for collection, not

Ranieri said Garden State is one of several companies which think there will be shortages of glass, metal and paper in the future and that recycling of these products will be a financially feasible operation in years

"There are already industries that are willing to buy such items for recycling," he added.

The councilman said that if source separation can be used in Hoboken, the city could get some income from Garden State.

"The survey will determine if it can be done," Ranieri said. "A report will be made to the city showing several different methods that could before," he continued. "If such a be used," he continued. "Under our system can be applied to Hoboken it present collection system, the could mean additional income for the products would be turned over to products would be turned over to Garden State by our contract collector. Garden State would then pay Hoboken, based on whatever figures we agreed to for the paper, glass and

"If we go into our own garbage collection program when our current collection contract ends, the source separation system becomes even simplier to operate since we'll be dealing directly. Ranieri said the survey would take about five days.

Stevens to help plan county trash disposal

Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken will serve as the consultant for planning a garbage disposal system for Hudson County.

The planning efforts will be funded by a $60,000 state grant, to which the county will add about $30,000 in cash and $30,000 in services. A recommendation to use Stevens Tech as the consultant was unanimously approved at yester-day's meeting of the county Solid Waste Advisory members include the mayors of each Hudson County municipality, expect the county Board of Freeholders to concur with the recommendation.

Thomas Leane, planning coordinator for the project, said Stevens Tech was chosen because of its expertise in urban planning and because it was considered non-partisan and, therefore, wouldn't favor any municipality over another. The county is under a state mandate to Jersey City and 140 other municipalities currently cart their garbage in the meadowlands, but that area is being closed to dumping in April 1979.

Leane said the study conducted by Stevens will first try to determine exactly how much garbage is produced by Hudson County. Then it will consider various means of disposal, most of them involving some kind of productive use for the refuse.

eriers are ewern in at corementes in the city hall council chambers. From left are new sorgeants Kenneth McGurk, Marie Merto, John Alelie and Edward Stelly and new Houtenants Angele Radetick, Robert Hochstader, Robert Davis and Gabriel Ferralmole.

New Hobeken police officers display their shields after they took the eath of office in the city hall council chambers. The new members of the force, from left, are Michael Lies, John Gilbarty, Michael Pluskott, Edward Maker Jr., Paul DiMartine, Edward Mecks, John Picurre and James Tuminare Jr.

New cops on streets in 2 weeks

Eight new Hoboken policemen all of them local residents started their first day on the job today by attending orientation classes conducted by the Tactical Patrol Force and the Police Community Relations Bureau but it will be at least two weeks before most of them get out on the

The new patrolmen were sworn in yesterday during ceremonies at Hoboken City Hall. They are Paul DiMartino, Edward Maher, Michael . Lisa, James Tuminero Jr., John E. Gilbarty, John Picurro, Michael Plunkett, and Edward Mecca.

At the same time, the city

Radetich, Robert Hockstedter. Robert F. Davis and Gabriel Ferraiuolo. The new sergeants are Edward Skelly Jr., John Aiello, Ken-neth McGurk and Mario Mercado.

Chief George W. Crimmins said that the new superiors would remain in their current assignments for the time being but duty changes would be made within a dagor two.

The new patrolmen, the first to be appointed by Hoboken under the new Civil Service regulations which allow municipalities to give local residents first crack at police and fire jobs, will promoted four sergeants to lieutenant be under the supervision of Capt. Rusand four patrolmen to sergeant.

The new lieutenants are Angelo said the men will undergo at least two they will be dropped from the force.

weeks of training before being put on the streets with one exception. Sweeten said that Turninaro, the son of Sgt. James Turninaro, had already taken portions of the training course and would probably be assigned to street duty sometime next

The training will be conducted by Lt. Paul Tewes and Sgt. Tuminare with Lt. Joseph Pereira of the Community Relations Bureau in charge of Sweeten added that all of the new patrolmen will also be required to also attend the State Police training academy at Sea Girt within one year and which admits it has been operating in the city for more than a year without obtaining licenses or permits — or paying for them — has filed suit against the city, claiming that the fees and licenses are violations of its constitutional rights.

Hoboken firm

HiScore Amusement and Vending

Inc., of 200-206 Jackson St., served Hoboken with a show cause order for an appearance in Hudson County Superior Court on Dec. 16. The hearing was postponed at the city's request and is to be rescheduled for Hoboken Law Director Lawrence

The company is seeking to have two sections of the city ordinance governing the operation of pinball machines and other electronic amusements devices set aside.

The first section deals with the fee schedule. It calls for companies such as Hi-Score to pay Hoboken $2,500 a year to do business in the city. 'It also requires the stores that lease the machines from the company to pay the city $15 for each machine leased.

The second portion of the or-dinance limits the number of pinball and amusement machines to one per

In its legal statement, the comknowledge" of the fact that it had been operating in the city for over a year without paying the fees or obtaining the licenses but chose not to enforce the ordinance. It further claimed that enforcement now of the ordinance would seriously hinder its ability to honor the contracts it has entered into for the amusement equipment and would cause financial hardships for the company.

Florio said that the city would contest the company's position, but he would not disclose the city's strategy.

Hi-Score was incorporated in August 1976, according to the records of the Secretary of State.

At the time, the corporate address was given as 44 South Main St., Lodi. That is still the address given, although the mult filed in Hudson although the suit filed in Hudson County Court lists 200-206 Jackson St.

The state also says the corporation has not filed a corporate report for either 1976 or 1977.

The corporate papers list Steven Lutz of Lodi as the agent and Thomas Principe and Anthony Peranio as directors. Both Lutz and Principe give the Lodi address as their Principe is the son of Thomas A.

Principe of Little Ferry, who is reputed to be connected with illegal sambling and loan-sharking activities but has never been convicted. The father operates the Orlando Construction Co., which also gives its address as 206 Jackson St., Hoboken.

Hoboken police began cracking down on the pinball machines three months ago when an amendment to the pinball ordinance, introduced by Mayor Steve Cappiello was presented to the City Council. The amendment would have eliminated the portion of the ordinance that prohibited an establishment from having more than

Hoboken School Board: It's All in the Family

By DANIEL HAYS

Hoboken's school board is becoming such a family affair that it may not be able to conduct business, school board president Mary Gaspar said yesterday.

The issue of nepotism, which surfaced during the present school board election campaign, involves four candidates with relatives who work for the board and four incumbents who also have kin on the payroll. The election is

Feb. 14.

Mrs. Gaspar said she noticed the clause on board candidate petitions that forbids anyone from serving who is "interested directly or indirectly in any contract with or claim against the heard." The board, she said, "might not have six people to vote a budget."

Lawrence Township Case

A New Jersey Department of Education spekesman said the most recent case on the question, in 1974, involved a Lawrence Township school board member where husband was custodial services supervisor for the district. The State Board of Education ruled she could serve but could not vote on anything related to her husband's contract. However, conflict cases will "be reviewed and decided on its own facts and merits," the board stated.

Two Hoboken board members have daughters who are teachers. The sister of another is a school clerk and one has of another is a school clerk and one has a brother who is a school custodian, according to Mrs. Gaspar.

Of nine candidates running for three seats on the board, four have relatives working for the school system. One candidate, Perry Bel Fiore, has asked to have his name removed from the ballot.

"I can't ask people to vote for me if they think I will gain from it memetari-

ly. My wife is a contracted teacher." he

Richard England and James Monaco whose wives are teachers, and Robert Wendelken, a Union City teacher who has five relatives with the Hoboken system, have not withdrawn. "There has to be a suit proving we have exercised a conflict of interest. We have exercised a conflict of interest. We are now just candidates," said Wendelken. He insisted that there would be no conflict because "I can't violate the trust of the electorate," he said.

Wendelken said he would expect to vote on all issues, including teacher salaries. He said he would remain a member of the New Jersey Education Association branch in Union City.

Calvin Hurd, an Elizabeth lawyer who is chairman of the advisory committee for the New Jersey Education Beform Project, said "It might be possible to project a situation that might make the beard immobile."

THE JERSEY JOURNAL, TUESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1978

Crosstown bus riders may soon rejoice

By Ronald G. Leir

Riders of Hoboken's irregularly run crosstown bus will find some welcome news in the city administration's 1978 budget proposal.

City Business Administrator Edwin Chius says there are plans to replace the existing mini-bus with a new one and to buy a spare one as well for an estimated $16,000 apiece.

In other developments at last night's public caucus, the City Council:

· Agreed to drop an investigation of charges by the city's public works director that his predecessor dispatched public works trucks to Keansburg for his personal use. · Prepared to award a contract for the furnishing of six walkie-talkie radios for the fire department to the higher of two bidders.

o Gave a lukewarm reception to a proposal for a free market study by the Garden State Paper Co. on the feasibility of residents separating their garbage for the recovery of certain types of

Responding to Council-at-large Robert A. Ranieri's question about an $800 claim for a new electrical system for the crosstown bus, Chius said the work had to be given to an outside firm "because our garage mechanics were unable to Expanding on the condition of the bus, Chius said the city "can't stock parts for it" due to their age and the special make of the bus. He said it took five days just to find a new radiator, for example.

If the city had a more conventional mode bus with available replacement parts with which city mechanics would be more familiar, said Chius, chances are the bus would run more efficiently.

"When the bus would run more emciently.
"When the bus operates on a good schedule," Chius added, "the people do ride it." Chius said, however, he could ast gauge the impact of a new Willow Avenue bus on the crosstown patronage.
"We need the crosstown bus," said Fourth Ward Councilman Louis Francone. "If we're going to get two new buses, that's great."
Whether his colleagues will agree remains to Irappears that nobody will ever know if Public Works Director Andrew Amato's charge that Hoboken's public works vehicles are run down because the were driven to and from Keansburg for use in other than city business is true.

The governing body's three-man public works committee, headed by Second Ward Councilman Walter S. Cramer, advised the council, in writing, that it is not pursuing the matter further.

that it is not pursuing the matter further.

"We questioned Director Amato concerning the alleged use of the trucks to and from Kean-sburg," the committee states, "and were in-formed that the charges were the result of hearsay and rumor and Director Amato had no personal knowledge that these trucks were ever sent to Keansburg by former Director (Raphael) Vitale. "Under the circumstances, the committee felt that the matter should be dropped and it would not be necessary to question Councilman Francone (Vitale's brother-in-law, who reportedly has a summer home in Keansburg)." The council is being asked to let a contract to Motorola Communications, Glen Rock, for a half-dozen fire department protable radio units at $657.90 per unit, despite a bid of $647 per unit submitted by General Electric.

Thomas J. Vecchione, city signals superintendent, and Fire Chief James Houn are recommending the action, according to Martin J. Brennan, council president, because if firefighters were to use the lower bidder's equipment, they'd have to take time out to remove their gloves to operate the transmission switch on the units.

Asked by Brennan if the council could legally give the contract to the higher bidder, Law Director Lawrence Florio said that West New York

"had a similar problem and Motorola was upheld in court, although it didn't have the low bid.
"I think we're on solld ground," said Florio.
When Ranieri asked if city efficials could be in legal difficulties on possible charges that contract specifications were drawn up to coincide with Motorola equipment, Chius replied that Vecchione prepared the specifications which, he said, are "not Motorola's tailor-made specs."

It appeared questionable last night whether Ranieri would introduce a resolution proposing to accept the offer of the Garden State Paper Co. to conduct a description of the Carden State Paper Co. uct a resource-recovery feasibility plan for

When Ranieri said that if the city were to adopt such a plan by ordinance that residents would have to separate their trash into three piles for regular waste, bottles and cass and paper products, sneers and snickers from colleagues and members of the audience resulted.

Commented Brennan: "We're having trouble" now with just one (garbage) pickup. And you want

In other business, the council:

• Made rendy to rendvertise for bids on a new street flusher, a device that ejects streams of water to clean the rondways. The city has done without them for some 10 years, since the Public Works Department decided to use salt water in the old machine during a drought, according to Chius, The result was a permanent rusting, he said. The city, meanwhile has received a $27,000 state grant to buy another.

• Learned that firemen stationed at the firehouse at Second and Jefferson streets will probably have to make do with five electric heaters to brace against the cold the rest of the winter because officials don't consider repairing a two-inch crack in the boiler there an emergency. Chius said. There are plans to enlarge the building, he added, and the heating units are likely to neglected until work is started.

Will, at tomorrow night's council session, authorize Mayor Steve Cappiello to enter into a contract with the Public Service Electric & Gas Co., which, said Chius, will give the city a "blanket agreement to use all the poles along Washington Street" for attaching seasonal decorations.

Fight sidewalk displays Fight

Councilman-at-large Robert A.
Ranieri of Hoboken said today he will ask police to issue summonses to any merchants who display their merchandise on the sidewalk in front of their shops - because it is a violation of the city's ordinances. According to the councilman, a number of shopkeepers have complained to him that other merchants are ignoring the ban on sidewalk displays and the city appears to be ignor-ing the fact that they are violating a

The law says that they are illegal unless special permission has

"And the only time I now of that such permission is granted is during the summer months in conjunction with special promotions conducted by our Retail Bureau.'

Ranieri said those merchants who complained probably felt that the sidewalk displays were a form of unfair competition, especially since been granted by the mayor," said the councilman. "To my knowledge the mayor has not granted any individual merchant permission to display his competitors were not. Ranieri, who helps run a family-owned furniture store on Washington Street, added that enforcement of the ordinance, or lack of enforcement, didn't affect his business either way.

"We don't put out any outside displays, nor do any of the other furniture stores along Washington Street," he said. "Our items are too big to bother with moving them out-side and then back into the stores. even when there is a special sale on and permission for outdoor displays: they were observing the law and their have been granted."

Ranieri calls for storm reports

A Hoboken councilman has asked for written reports from the directors of public works and public safety on how their men and equipment performed during the storm emergency.

Councilman Robert Ranieri said he is sending his requests to Mayor Steve Cappiello, the public works department. "I would like responses before the mext council caucus on Feb. 6," said the councilman. "I would like to know how they met this test and what their recommendations are for the future."

From Amato, Ranieri said he

Steve Cappiello, the public safety would like an appraisal of how departine backbone of these departments," mining backet director, and Andrew Amato, who ment equipment performed and he said, "and from this experience we plained.

whether the equipment that was can determine what is needed." He rented was adequate. From Capsello, he said he would like to know during the past four years for capital how fire and police services functioned when streets were open to fire apparatus and to the general traffic.

"This emergency is a true test of the backbone of these departments."

"The packbone of these departments."

during the past four years for capture improvements and this could be available for new equipment if it is meeded. The reports from the two directors will be important in deter-

Hoboken construction fees depend on agency's costs

mits required for construction and rehabilitation have doubled since last year. But they could go down - or up - during the next six months, depending on how much it costs the city to operate its new Uniform Construction Code Agency.

The agency was created when the city this month adopted the state Uniform Construction Code after a delay of more than a year. It consolidates the offices of the building, electrical, plumbing nad fire inspectors into one central agency instead of separate entities each at a dif-ferent location in the city.

Adopting the code and living by it are two different things, according to James Caulfield, city building inspector, who is expected to head up the new central agency.

According to Caulfield, the city is charging the higher fees for the plumbing, electrical and building permits but it hasn't yet consolidated those offices into one central agency with one central point for the issuance of all permits.

Caulfield and the electrical inspector share office space at Hoboken City Hall. The plumbing inspector is located at the city's Health Center, 916 Garden St., and the fire inspectors have their office at an old firehouse on Grand Street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets.

"The income from the fees is supposed to cover the cost of operating the agency, including the salaries of those who man it," Caulfield said. "We're not going to be able to determine that until the agency is formally operating as a unit. "But once it has been determined whether the

have to be adjusted again. If we are making more than the operational cost they'd have to be reduced. If we're making less than they would have to be increased. The whole idea is to make the agency self-supporting, based on fees, not tax

What is the difference between the old fees and the new ones? Not too much, according to Caulfield. They have doubled, but that brings Hoboken up to rates in existence in most other Hudson County municipalities - and it is still lower than a few

"Take renovation work as an example," he continued. "We were charging $2 for every $1,000 in estimated cost of the work to be done. Now we

"On new constructing we used to get $1 per .000. Now it is .005 cent times the cubic content of the new building. And .001 of the .005 goes to the

"The real big change is that we now have minimum charges for everything. It's $10 for renovation work, $25 for new construction work, and an average minimum of $5 to $10 for smaller jobs. The same applies for plumbing, electrical and fire inspection work."

Caulfield said the agency would need at least three more employes. He said another secretary would be required as well as two more field in-

Caulfield said he was only assuming that his department would head the new agency,

Cappiello wants millions from U.S.

Mayor Steve Cappiello said today Hoboken intends to apply for several million dollars in federal aid under a new development program which could mean vast improvements for the First Ward area and "perk up" the once busy waterfront.

The mayor and other city representatives conferred in Washington yesterday with the staff of William Embry, assistant secretary of the U.S. Department of of the $400 million program
Housing and Urban Development. "Personally, I feel w

Cappiello said the city made a presentation for an Urban Development Action Grant under a new program which will make $400 million available nationally over the next

Although HUD officials were noncommittal, the mayor said he is area would be the target for develophopeful that Hoboken will get a share ment. He points out that the nearby

"Personally, I feel we are in there early with our presentation and we will have our application ready to file before the Feb. I deadline," he said. Another plus, he felt, was that Hoboken "has a good track record in putting its federal funds to good use."

The mayor said the First Ward

in the ward, will be rehabilitated through a $4 million program funded by the state Department of Transpor-

The new federal program, he explained, is intended to spark private development. Once a private developer is interested, the city can use the HUD money to improve streets, sidewalks, and sewer and water services, he said, making the development package more attractive to private investors

"Some of the funds could be used to perk up our waterfront," said the mayor, who added that he would like to induce martitime businesses locate there.

Accompanying the mayor to Washington yesterday were Fred M. Bado, director of the Hoboken Community Development Agency, and Joseph Sicala, head of the Neighborhood Preservation Program - a CDA project.

Hoboken snow loader 88 taken off scrap heap

Hoboken officials have an added automatically dumped into trucks apon in the fight to remove the that wait below the other end of the weapon in the fight to remove the tons of snow that accumulated last Friday.

One of the two snow loaders that Hoboken was planning to sell at public auction on Feb. 15 isn't in as bad condition as originally thought. All it needed was a new battery and it's now being used in the snow removal operation.

Two mechanics from the police garage were sent to the Public Works yard at 16th and Adams streets Monday night to see if they could get either of the two machines working again, city sources said. Both ma-chines had been condemned by Public Works Department mechanics.

The police mechanics reported that one snow loader is operational it still needs a tune-up but it is running—and the other needs between $200 and $300 in repairs before it can be put into service.

Once running, the loader was towed from the yard and pressed into service along Washington Street Mon-day night. The loader is used to pick up large quantities of snow by means of a conveyor belt. The snow is

Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato said he would have the two snow loaders removed from the list of vehicles his department planned to sell next month. But it won't end

"I'm going to have a little talk with my mechanics and some of my top supervisory personnel," he said. "I authorized the sale of that equipment on their say-so. Someone is go-ing to have some explaining to do."

Amato said that he may ask the Public Works Safety Department for the use of its mechanics to check out some of the 13 other vehicles Public Works is planning to sell to see if they has been told.

Meanwhile, Mayor Steve Cappiello has ended the city's official 'snow emergency" and ordered that most personnel be put back on their regular shifts and duties.

"We're not out of the woods by a long shot but some semblance of order has been re-established," said the mayor. "There is still a lot of work that must be done before anything is back to normal. However, I feel that we can handle what remains to be done with our normal work force and equipment.

Hobokén stalls radio contract

Hoboken City Council last night tabled a resolution awarding a $3,900 contract for six firemen's pocket radios.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas P. Callighy, in a letter to the council,said a representative from a radio company which submitted the lower of two bids but was not awarded the contract, was protesting the action.

Thomas Fenton, a Warner Communications Co. official, complained to Calligy that the contract award to Motorola Communications Co. of Glen Rock was not based on the Council President Martin Brennan read the attorney's letter and suggested the council table the award until the law department was consulted further on the matter.

Centrex system starts taking calls in Hoboken Friday

system will go into operation at 5 p.m. Friday night. And although the basic monthly equipment charges from the telephone company will be about $300 more than what is now being paid, the city expects to save a minimum of $3,000 a year.
"That's the minimum savings I will be satisfied with." said Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius who has been working with telephone company officials since the installation work started.

"The Centrex system which is now in final installation stages is much more efficient than the old system and should result in a considerable savings to the city. I expect it will be much more than $3,000."

According to Chius, the new equipment will cost $300 more a month but the charges will be more than offset by a reduction in call

The new system will combine four existing systems into one. There will be one central operator who will handle all calls for the city, the Community Development Agency, the Fire and Police departments and the Board of Education. This will allow the elimination of several telephone

Chius said that a number of electronic restrictions are being included in the system which should reduce substantially the number of unauthorized calls made by all employees who have access to the "Same of the phones will be set up system works.

Malfetti will finally get to look at the city's payroll records — but at a cost

The Sixth Ward representative

an agreement from City Clerk Anthony Amoruso last night that he could come into City Hall after hours, starting this week, and look over or

Malfetti told his colleagues on the council at their regular meeting last night that he was tired of waiting for copies of the lists which he had requested of all department directors in a Jan. 6 letter.

"I'm not waiting for this any longer, I demand that the payroll list be given to me," Malfetti told Council

nan. "You're the one who want it, not one copy of the payroll and it could not be taken out of the city clerk's of-fice. However, he said Malfetti could Malfetti. "I want to take it home."

and then asked Amoruso if he would let the councilman see the records.

Malfetti. "What do you think this is?"

trying to get it for you," said Bren-

Amoruso said he would keep his office open in the evening — the only time Malfetti said he was free to ome - but added, "I'll have to pay my help overtime."

"Then you'll have to do it," said

"as a special favor to me."

me. Go in and get it yourself."

"You demand?" retorted Bren-

He told Malfetti there was only

"I want a copy given to me," said

Brennan said this wasn't possible

"A special favor?" interjected

"Look, you asked for it, I'm just President Martin Brennan.

to be borne by the taxpayers.

copy the records.

Malfetti to see payroll, 88

but it'll cause overtime

Hoboken Councilman Nunzio Malfetti, pointing to Brennan.

telephones in Hudson County and Newark," he continued. "Others will be set up so that calls can be made only in the 201 area code district. others will be limited to the system and can't be used for outside calls without going through the operator, and a few others will be unrestricted. "The unrestricted telephones will be allotted to such high ranking officials as the mayor and directors."

The city's new main telephone number will be 430-2000. The current number is 792-3000. There is also a main number for police and fire, Community Development and the school board but they will also work off the new city number. All of the new telephones will have 420 as the first three numbers.

Unlike the current systems where all incoming calls must be handled by the operators who put them through to the proper extensions, all of the telephones in the new system have their own seven-digit numbers which can be dialed directly from the outside. The call goes to the telephone dialed without the operator having to pick up and route it.

A feature to be added to the new system, said Chius, will be a direct line to Trenton for all telephones that are not restricted to system use alone. The city will have two tie-lines to the state capitol.

Chius said that a number of classes will be conducted this week by the telephone company for city, police, fire, CDA and school board employees to show them how the new Centrex

"That's the way he wants it."
In business on the relatively brief agenda the council decided to post-pone awarding a $3,882 contract for the purchase of six radios for the fire department to the highest of two bid-asked for the delay saying he wanted an opportunity to present his case directly to the council. Brennan said the city wanted to award the contract product was more compatible with the equipment the city already has.

about $70 Brennan said.

The difference in the total price is

Brennan said the lower bidder

the higher bidder because his

Ranieri, Amato at odds over handling snow crisis

Hoboken between factions in Mayor Steve Cappiello's administration. The main combatants appear to be Amato replies, "That's a lot of imately Councilman-at-large Robert A.
Ranieri and Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato.

Ranieri charges Amato's department "isn't under control administratively," and that led to a lot of confusion last Thursday and Friday during the snowstorm. Ranieri said the city didn't get in control of the situation until Saturday morning. "when Business Administrator Edwin

"We tried to get outside equip-ment before Saturday but most com-panies were busy with other towns," Amato said, adding, "I'm not taking anything away from Director Chius. He worked very hard during the emergency."

The Public Works Department was able to keep 80 percent of the city's streets open throughout the snowstorm with only its own equipment, Amato said.

"I admit that the streets weren't perfect, but they were passable," he continued. "And if we had our own continued. "And if we had our own continued." sent and didn't have to call in outside help that was already hed thin, we would have been in good shape. I can't run a department with chewing gum. I need equipment improvement funds. Ameto says he wants most of it for outfitting the department. Ranieri says, however, Amato isn't going to get it unless he can show the council an acceptable plan of action for the department's

If there is one thing that the direc-tor and councilman agree on, it is that there just might be a need for a "shake-up" in the lower levels of the

Amato said that he spent most of his last four working days on the streets with his workmen, not because he wanted to, but to make sure all employes were doing their jobs. There very likely will be some major changes in the department among beth supervisors and

SENATORIAL COURTESY — State Sen. Walter Shell is honored by Hobeken business and civic leaders on his election to the Legislature. Exchanging placeantries, from left, are Hebeken Mayer Steve Cappielle, Shell, Jecoph Castele, dinner chairman; and Jersey City Mayer Thomas F. X. Smith. The Union Club dinner was postponed from last Friday because of the snowsterm. Costole presented a large portrait of Shell to the new senator.

Hoboken landlords face state fines

according to the city's Housing Squad, are being ignored, said Curcio, were and it could cost them a considerable amount of money in state-imposed fines.

Michael Curcio, housing squad

Michael Curcio, housing squad supervisor, said today that the number of fines imposed for violations on Hoboken property owners who have buildings with three or more dwelling units is on the increase while the number of landlords who do comply is decreasing.

Curcio said that he didn't know why the property owners were ignor-ing the inspection reports on their properties and not making required improvements or correcting violations. One possibility was that the property owners were assuming that

The owners of multi-family the improvements were suggestions buildings in Hoboken aren't paying attention to violations in their buildings,

Some of the improvements that

Curcio said that the state can impose fines that start at $200 for failure to comply with the inspection reports, and some have even gone as high as of Housing Inspections which reviews the reports and sets the number of days the owner has to make the repairs — usually 90 days. Nothication to the property owners comes directly from the state, not the local housing squad.

The housing squad serves as the state's agent by making the inspections, he continued. Copies of the

"We don't become involved again-until the state tells the housing squad to make a re-inspection of the building to see if the violations and improvements needed that were noted the first time have been attended to," he said. "Our findings are sent back to the state and the state takes it from there. It sets the fines for non-compliance and collects

Curcio said landlords are also ignoring the city's ordinance requiring them to have all vacant apartments inspected before renting them out to

Ahoy, the 'Hoboken'

Not our Hoboken - their Hoboken

The name "Hoboken" will soon be carried to all parts of the world. That's the name of a 73-ton ore ship in the final stages of construction at the Cockerill Shipyards in Belgium.

That's Hoboken, Belgium.

The ship was floated Nov. 10 with Mrs. Joseph Wijninckx christening the vessel. Her husband is a former Belgium senator who spent some time in Hudson County's Hoboken last year as a guest of the Hoboken Retail Bureau and John Vervoort. The exsenator is now Belgium's minister of the ship began last April and delivery of the vessel is expected to be made senator is now Belgium's minister of of the vessel is expected to be made

sometime this month after sea trials

HOBOKEN TRIBUTE — Mayor Steve Cappiello of A Hoboken, left, congratulates Michael Martinelli, right, the city's plumbing inspector, on his election as chairman of the N.J. State Board of Examiners and Master Plumbers, the agency which licenses all of the plumbers C. Redner, outgoing chairman.

New Hoboken switchboard goes on line smoothly 1/24/18

Hoboken has completed its first full business day with its new Centrex telephone system and most city of-ficials are pleased with the initial results.

Business Administrator Edwin Chius said the switch from five different swithchboards to one went "much smoother" than he expected. "You always anticipate some problems the first few days," said Chius. "There are always a few bugs that have to be worked out but ours were relatively few. The telephone company and its men are to be com-mended. They did a highly profes-sional job."

The new system consolidates the switchboards of the city, fire and police departments, Community City Hall manned by one operator. quently. And then the complaints will The transition was to have taken the place at 5 p.m. Friday but due to weather conditions it was delayed until noon Saturday.

While Chius and other city of-ficials are impressed with the new system, employes are not. For them it means learning a whole series of new telephone numbers that replace the ones they've been dialing for the last five or six years.

'That, too, was expected," said Chius. "It will pass with time. As employes become familiar with the new extension numbers there will be less and less grumbling. No one likes to have their routine broken up or familiar things changed.

"Everyone has a directory with the new numbers. In a few weeks Development Agency (CDA) and most employes wil have memorized board of education into one location at the number that they call most fre-

Garbage sale backed

Hoboken City Councilman Robert Ranieri said yesterday he will defer until next month introduction of a resolution authorizing a study of the feasibility of the recycling and sale of garbage. Ranieri suggested the idea at the council caucus Monday night and the reaction from the council and spectators was negative. He said a net gain would result from such a program. Garden State Paper Co., Saddle Brook, has offered to conduct a study of the current waste disposal and recycling programs in the city at no cost and make

An environmental representative of Garden State. Frederick G. Schmitt, said his company only buys waste for recycling. The larger problem of collecting paper, glass, and metal in separate bags, and probably on separate days, remains to be solved.

Schmitt said, given current dumping fees, pollution control laws, and the cost of acquiring raw materials. it is likely the city can realize a net gain if it sells

Farrah Fawcett-Majors, in Hoboken to film movie scenes, prepares for behind-the-scenes transformation vesterday.

Forrah Fawcett-Majors was in Hoboken for two days this week to film scenes for the new movie, "Somebody Killed Her Husband," in which she co-stars with Jeff Bridges. Macy's warehouse on 15th st. was the location for the indoor set, which was outfitted as a toy department for the Hoboken segment of the love/mystery story, in which Femmy Grimes also has a leading role. Farrah, seen in 'before' and 'after' shote—before and after makeup and wardrobe—started work on the film in late

Hoboken school budget 'deliberately inflated' %%,

bargaining position if the budget is defeated by the voters on Feb. 14 and put into the hands of the city council or appealed to the state commissioner

"As the budget now stands, it would require a tax increase of $25 per $1,000 of assessed valuation to raise the additional funds the school board claims it needs in the budget," said Chius. "That would cripple the city and every private homeowner in "Such an increase would be dis-asterous for us. It would mean more than $300 a year in additional taxes for someone whose home is now assessed at around $15,000."

Robert W. Taylor, the board's at-torney and financial expert who does probably couldn't be reached until sound right, either." ay, the day of the scheduled budget hearing. Chius said there are several; things in the budget which lead him to believe it doesn't reflect the board's true needs for the 1978-79 school year.

"To begin with, the board is get-ting $1.6 million more in state aid yet it wants an additional $2 million from local taxpayers," he continued. "That doesn't sound right.

"The board's budget is $17,000,440 for the '78-'79 school year. The Union City Board of Education's budget for the same period is $17,138,745— almost $500,000 less for the education of almost 2,000 more children than we have in our schools. That doesn't

Edwin J. Chius, Hoboken business most of the budget preparation, was have 200 more pupils for the 1978-79 administrator, today charged that the not available for comment. Thomas school year. However, the student proposed 1978-79 school budget has A. Gallo, board secretary, said that been "deliberately inflated" so that Taylor has taken some "time off" and been steadily declining. That doesn't

Chius said that if the budget is defeated by the voters, as he expects it will be, the city council and school board will have to negotiate reduc-tions and bring it down to a level that both can live with. But if an agreethe council will make whatever cuts it deems necessary and the board must either live with them or appeal to the commissioner of education to have

"It is my opinion that the board's budget was deliberately overloaded so that in the event the voters defeat it. the board will have a substan surplus that can be cut out withou cutting into the funds that it actually

Brennan defuses hassle between Ranieri, Amato

Several concerned parents youngsters attending the Wilson and Washington schools in Bayonne called up newspapers, complaining that the classroooms and lunchrooms were not heated and threatening to keep their children at home until the situation was

School officials, however, said that all classrooms were heated comfortablly, as well as the lunchrooms. So did a parent group member after spending several hours in the schools. A photographer assigned to get pictures of chilled youngsters found no unheated got some false information leading them to believe that their children's health might be endangered, or they would not where rumors spread rapidly. The best course for parents who hear of anything in the schools that might affect their children adversely is to check first for

Bayonne is a close-knit community

Apparently the complaining parents classrooms or lunchrooms.

have reacted as they did.

corrected.

An expected verbal blowup tween Hoboken Councilman Robert Ranieri and Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato over Ranieri's criticism of Amato's snow removal job during the recent heavy snow has been defused — at least temporarily — by Council President Martin Bren-

At the same time a threats recall of Ranieri, announced yester-day by some supporters of the direc-tor who were angry over the coun-cilman's criticism, has also been called off — at least temporarily.

Amato showed up at yesterday's aucus meeting of the council, with bout 30 employees of his department, hoping to question Ranieri bout the criticism.

In a letter to Amato, the coun any questions Amato wanted to direct to Ranieri should be written out and nt to the council for tomorrow's 10 a.m. meeting.

In turn Amato was asked about reports that he would refuse to pay those private contractors and laborers hired to help the city with snow removal operations by Mayor Steve Cappiello or Edwin Chius, business administrator.

Amato was relieved of respon sibility for directing snow removal temporarily when Cappiello declared a state of emergency in Hoboken on Jan. 21. The mayor took over the chore of directing the cleanup. Amato said any contractors hired by city officials other than himself certainly would be paid once they received proper authorization from the official doing the hiring. He has not yet refused to pay any contractors' bills, Amato claimed.

In the meantime, the council's public works committee, headed by Councilman Waiter Cramer, has called for a special council mee Friday at 2 p.m. to hear experts discuss exactly what sarbage removal equipment is needed by the city.

The city will have $200,000 to spend on equipment this year if the fourth annual allocation of $50,000 in a special contingency fund is included in the city's 1978 budget.

Next week the budget itself will be the subject of a special meeting.

to receive the budget, with a public hearing, expected about March 15, to be scheduled at that time. Warner Communications has informed the council it may take least action to block the council's award of an almost $4,000 contract for six mobile radios to the fire department. Warner contends that its bid wa

$78 lower than a bid from Motorole Communications, Inc. The council had planned to award the contract to but said it did not fully comply with the city specifications for the equip-ment. Asked how close the Warner bid came, he estimated it complied

Cramer, saying that did not sou like a substantial deviation from wi the city was looking for, remarked, "We can't throw out the lowest bidder so easily."

Ranieri pointed out that, since the equipment the city was looking for-might only be available from Motorola, "in effect we're not really bidding. We're precluded from purchasing any other type of

At any rate, the council will quesmeeting tomorrow about the contract before deciding whether it will award vote tomorrow to repossess the Grand. Hotel. The city sold the building to the 232 Hudson Street Corp. on cor that renovation work be started by the end of the year.

The developer had hoped to con-struct a Victorian restaurant on the ground floor and turn the upper floors into hotel rooms or apartments. But after gutting the interior, work step ped and the city will move to take possion of the building again.

Both Ranieri and Council Louis Francone questioned payment of $1,222 to Mayo Lynch Associates but Joseph Lynch explained the money was for engineering fees in connection with repairs on the little Street pumping station, seriously damaged in an explosion about 15

Lynch explained there was dis-ficulty in obtaining pump parts from the Worthington Pump Co. and the was delaying completion of the sta-

Hoboken auto revenue rises

By RICK SCOPIELD 1/24/78

Revenue from the meters and garages owned by the Hoboken Parking Authority totalled $463,000 last year—an $165,000 increase over 1975, Executive Director Joseph W. Hottendorf said last night at a regular meeting.

The increase reflects the increase in the parking capacity in the garages, from 918 spaces in 1976 to 1;360 at the end of last year.

Meter revenue increased only slightly, from 866,000 in 1976 to $65,000 last year. The three garages the Authority operates are filled to to capacity, ending the fear the Authority would not be able to pay current expenses and service the debt incurred by bonding the three buildings, Hottendorf said. The anticipated revenue from the garages was only $340,000,but the final tally showed $75,000 more collected. While the meter revenue showed only a modest gain over 1976, the combined total of 1975 and 1974 collections equal last year's $66,000.

In other business, Hottendorf said he will meet with other city officials to discuss the purchase of four lots at the intersection of Willow av. and Eleventh st., fodese as parking lots. The lots were recently acquired by the city in a While the Authority does not now have the money to construct parking places on the vacant lots, Hottendorf said he would pursue the release of some of the meter and garage fees for such a construction project.

City gets bulk of parking tab ***

Hoboken will have to come up with $296,791 towards the payment of the $375,566 that is due March 1 on the Parking Authority's $5.5 million parking garage bond issue. The authority is paying $76,777 towards what is due.
That's a lot less than the $220,000

plus the authority was expected to pay this year on the bonds. But Joseph Hottendorf, executive director, says the September payment — payments are made twice a year — is the imper-

"In order to fulfill our pledge of have been larger. The authority does authority is paying more than half of the annual cost of the bond issue."

More than half of the authority's approximately 1,650 parking spaces transfer the funds to the account from were supposed to be rented to tenants

$76,777 Hottendorf said it is more than their own financial problems and dif-$40,000 more than what the authority ficulty in getting tenants to take park-contributed last March. That paying spaces in the garages.

The authority is suing the owners paying more than $220,000 this year on towards assuming a larger share of the bond issue the authority will have the bond payments," he said, "even to come up with a minimum of though it is handicapped by the fact $147,222 by September," he said. "I that it does not have the monthly see no reason why we can't meet that parking and income from it that was commitment."

Hottendorf said that the age apartment building complex. We authority's March payment could should reach a point shortly where the

which the payment is being made. of the four apartment houses in the "That will not be the problem in John J. Grogan Marine View Plaza

September so the payment will be project.

much larger," he added.

Even though the authority's apartment buildings materialized, and the building owners, because of

"The authority has been making for failing to live up to their contract very steady financial progress but the suit is still to be resolved.

Pro-Cappiello Por school hopefuls kin on payroll

Four of the nine candidates in the Hoboken Board of Education election on Feb. 14 — including the three backed by Mayor Steve Cappiello—have family members on the board payroil, and if elected may find there's very little they'll be permitted to participate in.

According to school board rec-ords, candidates Peter "Perry" Belfiore, an independent, and Richard England, James Monaco and Robert Wendelken — backed by the mayor all have relatives on the school board

Belfiore's wife, Patricia, England's wife, Delores, and aco's wife, Ann, are all teachers.

Wendelken's mother was recently hired by the board as a teacher's side. He also has a sister-in-law, Maureen Wendelken, a teacher, who is being considered for a promotion.

According to the state Department of Education, the four may run for office and serve if elected, but must avoid possible conflicts of

The state spokesman said he was not aware if the issue had ever been item to court, but the opinion was occurred a year or so ago involving a Lawrence Township woman an achool board member whose husbar was the district's maintenance sun

He said that the woman was instructed to refrain from voting on all board business that directly or in-directly involved her husband or the performance of his duties and that the me directive would probably apply

if they are elected to the board.

That means that they probably wan't be able to participate in any labor negotiations, vote on labor contracts, vote on the payroll, take action on the annual board budgets if they contain the salaries of their family members. or vote on any board business in which their family members are directly or indirectly involved," he added. "If any of the four are elected they'll have to be very careful in their voting and play an almost passive role on the board."

Hoboken school candidate drops out to avoid conflict

Unofficially, there are now only eight candidates seeking election to three seats on the Hoboksa School board on Feb. 14.

Peter "Perry" Belfiore of 1621 Park Ave., an independent, said today that he is withdrawing as a candidate and will not campaign for one of the three board spots because he might be in a conflict of interest, if elected.

the ballot for the time being, however. The deadline for candidates to withdraw has passed and only a court order can have a candidate's name removed from the ballot. Belfiore said he has not decided whether he will go through that ex-

"But I have told my supporters that they are released from any obligation to me and are free to partitipate or not participate in sup-porting any other candidate of their choice," he said.

"I have decided not to run as a result on the story in a recent edition of The Jersey Journal which pointed out that if I and three other candidates were elected we could possibly be in a conflict of interests because our wives or close relations are employees of the Hoboken School District," he explained.

"Although the legality of the point hasn't been tested in the courts, I believe even the mere suspicion of a conflict is enough to nullifly the trust the voters would have placed in me as a board member. I sought no personal gain by my candidacy and I don't want even one voter to think that I did. The only way of proving that point is to withdraw."

Belfiore said he decided to become a candidate because he sincerely felt that the school system was in need of vast improvement.

'I own my own home in Hoboken on which I pay taxes to support the school system," he continued. "I have 2-year-old son who will eventually be going to school. I have no desire to pay twice for his education — once at a private or parochial school. I want my child to go to public schools, but I also want him to get a decest cation. At this time, I don't believe the children going through the public school system in Hobelton are public achool system in Hobelton are on the school board payrell.

That appears to be common practice at the board, however. Six of the none current board members here potting a quality education."

Belflore's wife is a teacher in the Hobeles school system, as are the wives of Richard England and James foneco, two of the three conditates sing backed by Mayor Stove Captello. The mayor's third choice, Robert Wendelben, also has relations none current board members have close relations on the payrell in teaching, administrative or junitorial

The state Board of Educat

husband's malory, not to valo on the portion of the payroll in which his malory was included, and not to vote on the annual octual budget because it e annual ocheof budget because it: shoot his entery and expenses for

The decision was handed down as a specific ruling applying only to that serticular case.

The state Board of Education and loser of Education Fred Burke say they do not intend to become involved in Hobakan's situa-tion unless someone files a complaint.

Hoboken council to weigh Grand Hotel repossession

The Grand Hotel, which Hoboken sold last year at a public auction, is about to return to the city's possession because the buyer hasn't lived up to the conditions of the sale. A resolution by Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri, directing the city to repossess the hotel at Third and Hudson Streets, is on the agenda for Wednesday's city council meeting. The successful bidder on the property last year was Pasquale Severino, who announced at that time that it would be converted into a quality steak house with either apartments or hotel rooms occupying the upper floors.

But one of the conditions of the sale was that proved the sale of the building and that the work be completed within six months of the approval be completed within six months of the approval on a new water rate for Jersey City.

construction was started.

sidered taking the building back, but Severino won an extra six month extension on condition that a substantial amount of work be done within three months. Little, if any, work was done during the period, according to Ranieri.

The council will also accept bids for an electric aerial ladder, a base station for the fire department communications center, and a street flusher truck. The meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m.

Also on the agenda is a resolution authorizing the payment of $18,921 to John R. Sailer, the attorney who represented the city in the negotiations

Hoboken ed budget gap discussed

Board Attorney Robert Taylor said the talks with Com-nissioner Vincent Calabrese and Russell Carpenter, Hudson County superintendent of schools, were "just in the pre-iminary stage."

The precise amount of the deficit was not discussed, nor vere ways to close it, Taylor said. When pressed further to disclose the substance of liscussion, Taylor refused all comment; saying it was nappropriate before Calabrese had received all the information he requested from the board. Calabrese called a meeting two weeks ago to gather more nformation about the financial position of the board for the

Taylor and Thomas McFoely, Hoboken superintendent of chools, agree there will be a deficit if the district maintains ts current spending level. But they don't agree on how the effect was caused and how large it is.

esignated for a remedial program, for the salaries of new eachers who should have been transferred from existing ositions.

McFeely countered Taylor with the charge that the board id not cancel the contracts of 32 teachers during May of ast year but failed to include the cost of their salaries in he current school budget.

The issue has not been resolved, and that is one of the easons state and county education officials are meeting with aylor, McFeely, Mayor Steve Cappiello, and Finance Direc-The meeting yesterday was originally scheduled for last riday in Trenton, but the snow storm cancelled those plans.

Hoboken school board ?! is facing hard choices

recommend one of two things:

spend the money - however much is commissioner and we're looking for a needed to square accounts.

Direct the city government to last night's board meeting by Robert and Efficient program.

Taylor said he didn't know how Order a public referendum ask- much money the board would need. ing the voters if they're willing to "The matter is in the office of the determination," he said.

The state has asked the board for supply the school board with the re- "a three-year analysis for its exquired funds, as permitted under penses and personnel payroll which Chapter 12 of the state Thorough and has been submitted" and a follow-up request, he added, has been made for That was the opinion advanced at information on the board's Thorough-tion is not to go broke, the state Commissioner of Education will have to member of the audience.

Casulli's question was triggered by the board's vote to rehire 15 of 17 teacher aides let go last year when money to put them on the payroll. Now, however, said Taylor, the board has secured a special state compensatory education grant that will cover the expense. The aides, among whom are the mothers of Hoboken bi-lingual education coor-dinator Edwin Duroy and of school board candidate Robert Wendelken, are being hired on a "per diem" basis at $20 a day and will earn $75 less a week than the prevailing rate, according to Trustee James Giani.

Abstaining on the vote was Trustee Otto Hottendorf, who said the board would do better using existing personnel to perform the aides' jobs and paying them with the state funds.

When Evelyn Kiely complained that her daughter has sat in 52-degree classrooms at the Brandt School for the last three days, Giuni replied: "You're right; it was cold there and

Cancel computer cancellation

Hoboken has changed its mind about discontinuing the computer processing of its parking violations paperwork, at least for the time being, Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius said to-

The director said that he has sent a letter to the East Orange Violations Bureau advising it that Hoboken will continue the service, voiding the 90day cancellation notice the city had sent in Oc-

"We had hoped that by now an operational audit of the violations bureau in Hoboken would be completed and we would know what changes, if any would or should be made in our procedures," he continued. "The procedural audit is still under way so we should continue with what we have until it is completed."

Chius said that the audit is being performed by the operational audit unit of the state Department of Community Affairs. He said the free service would determine if there were any weaknesses in the procedures now being used and what should be done to improve them. The audit will not cover the financial end of the violations bureau.

"If it is decided as a result of the recommendations made in the audit that the computer service should be terminated we will have to give East Orange another 90 days notice of cancellation," he added. Hoboken pays East Orange 25 cents for each ticket it processes. Some city council representatives have complained about the fact that the use of the computer has not upped the amount of money the city has been collecting from persons with overdue tickets. However, Chius said that the purpose of using the Last month, the bureau took in more than $21,000 in parking fines, the largest amount in the bureau's history for a one-month period. That did not include fines for moving violations or other financial penalties imposed by the court.

to be appealed

Mayor Steve Cappiello, Hoboken's public safety director, said today the city will appeal the order from Civil Service to appoint Michael Dapuzzo, 35, to the fire department as of last

The mayor said that the city still believes Dapuzzo would be "an undesireable appointment for a formal appeal will be filed with Civil Service within the 20 days allowed for that purpose. The appeal must be filed no later than Feb. 22.

The mayor said that the city based its opinion on Dapuzzo's record over five years as a special policeman with the Hoboken Police Department. However, he would not elaborate on any specific incidents concerning Dapuzzo.

The Hoboken Board of Education must pay a contractors and a lawyer, later upheld the Pisani-

The Hoboken Board of Education must pay a balance of $165,000 due the general contractor on the Public School 4 (Calabro School) project, 524 Park Ave., Superior Court Judge Thomas S. O'Brien has ruled.

The judge upheld a finding by a three-man arbitration panel that the Pisani & De Bari Construction Co., Hoboken, should be paid. The court decision puts legal "teeth" into the arbitrators' award so the firm can collect.

Originally, the firm was awarded the court decision in the collect.

Originally, the firm was awarded the general contract of approximately $000,000, but the school board, after paying most of the money, refused to pay the last $100,000 installment. The school board claimed some work was defective, but the general contractor asserted that it was not responsible and contractor asserted that it was not responsible and any such conditions were caused by the board or some other contractors.

An arbitration board, composed of two general

eting, a resolution authorizing

The resolution was authored by Hoboken to reclaim the property from

Councilman-at-large Robert A.

Ranieri. Only Councilman Louis Francone of the Fourth Ward voted against it. Councilman Nunzio Malfetlast year with the understanding that the new owner would begin work on it within 90 days after the council ap-

Hoboken sold the property early

the 230 Hudson St. Corp.

ti missed the meeting.

contractors and a lawyer, later upheld the Pisani-DeBari firm's position. Then, Arthur D'Italia, representing the general contractor, got court con-firmation of the arbitrators' award after a hearing at which Robert W. Taylor represented the school

Mrs. Mary Gaspar, board president, said Taylor hadn't told her of O'Brien's ruling and she had no idea how the payment of the money to the contractor would affect the existing school budget or the proposed 1978-79 budget.

Mrs. Gaspar added that she thought Taylor has gone on vacation and won't be in touch with the board until the Feb. I budget hearing.

James Farina, the school board's vice president, said he wasn't aware of O'Brien's decision and that Taylor hadn't contacted him shout it

nd that Taylor hadn't contacted him about it

Ranieri, Amato tangle over snow pay

director if the current head, Andrew J. Amato, doesn't back down on his refusal to pay private contractors and laborers hired to help the city during ast week's snow removal operation.

So says Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri who today assured the contractors and their men that they would be paid and paid on time for the work they did.

"The charges will be billed to the Public Works Department," the coun-cilman continued. "And the director might have a new director."

Ranieri declined to say what he office. The directors are appointed by the mayor and can be removed only by him. The exception would be for the council to put public works under another department and eliminate the director's position.

The director should realize that we were in a state of emergency last week during the storm," said the councilman. "That means that the en-

$200,000

grant to

Hoboken

munity Affairs Com-

grant for the second phase of the

vation Demonstration

Program in Hoboken's

It was described as a unique partnership between the state,

Hoboken and the First Ward Block Associa-

one-year $30,000

demonstration grant was awarded to the block association.

'This grant will test

the effectiveness of neighborhood non-profit organizations in improving the living con-ditions in the

"By combining these efforts in the same ward, Hoboken is building the kind of partnership between residents and municipal officials that has been assails

gag rúle

One Hoboken councilman said today he doesn't agree with the stand of Council President Martin Brennan

who has placed a gag rule on an administra-

denied that right."

"This is America and

tion critic.

neighborhood: Sheehan said.

First Ward.

of the mayor and the business administrator, who acted in the mayor's behalf. If the director feels that his feelings have been hurt because he wasn't consulted on every move, then let him take it up with the mayor. Or better, come to the council caucus tonight and discuss it with the council."

According to Amato, he isn't against paying the contractors. He's against authorizing payment and having to sign their claims.

"If the mayor and business administrator authorized the hiring of the contractors and their men and equipment, then let them sign the forms," he said. "I have no way of knowing who was and wasn't hired, since no one checked with me about t. It's all right with me if they bill Public Works under the signature of the mayor or business administrator.

"I'm not going to sign for anything that I know nothing about. The councilman wouldn't do it."

Ranieri reasserted his claim that Amato and the public works department did a poor job of keeping the city's streets open.

"The director did not just lose the battle against the snow, he lost the war." Ranieri continued. "If Public Works had been able to handle the emergency we wouldn't have had to call in outside contractors to do it for Amato would not comment on his department's efforts on the snow removal operation. However, he said he was accepting the councilman's in-vitation to talk about it at tonight's caucus. And he wouldn't be alone.

"The workmen in the department have had it," the director said. "They gave their blood Thursday night and Friday morning, and all the thanks they're getting for it is abuse. I know a lot of the men plan on being at the caucus meeting.

move to Hoboken?

Everybody pitches in, and chearfully, as this family from Connecticut fixes up a rundown but sturdy building in Hobeken to make it an attractive home, as others in the area have done. Daniel and Reserve as helpers for dad and snom, Denald and Jame Isanbers.

By Peter Hallam

It was with some hesitancy that Donald and Jane Isenberg, left their comfortable two-family home in New Haven, Conn., for the uncertainties of living in Hoboken. But that was five months ago, and there haven't been any regrets.

The move was one of necessity. Isenberg, a lighting designer, had taken a job with a New York firm and the family needed a new home that was closer to the city. Their house-hunting efforts were centered in Hoboken. Word of the positive things that were happening in the waterfront community had spread to New Haven.

They found a three-family home at 227 Garden St. that suited them. Early in their search, the Isenberg's had read about the New Jersey Hortzage Finance Agency's Neighborhood Loan Program (NLP) but thought the area they had selected was not climble.

"The crime rate is low and everyone wants to keep it that way. Everyone is involved in one stage or another of fixing their homes and somebody is always ready to lead a

The Isenbergs moved into the new home shortly after Labor Day. It is an old house and it needed a lot of work. a lot of which they hadn't unexpected. But they didn't get discouraged.

"We might have if the problems that came up happened in a house somewhere else," said Mrs. Isenberg. "If we all didn't like Hoboken so much we very easily could have been discouraged by the extra work and ex-

The Isenbergs have two children. Rachel, 8, who attends the new Calabro School on Park Avenue, and Daniel, 4, who is enrolled at the Stevens Cooperative Nursery School.

The Isenbergs are one of the first families to buy a home in Hoboken through the state's NLP. But they need not be the last. Many sections of the city are eligible for the program. Persons interested in buying homes in the city can check with the state Mortgage Finance Agency to see if the site they have selected is eligible and to obtain more information. The agency is located in Newark and can be reached at (201) 648-2774.

Then they met Thomas Newman, president of the First Ward Block Association, and found that their in-tended home was eligible for a 7.5 percent loan and 30-year mortgage. Their loan was obtained through the United States Savings Bank of Newark, one of 36 leading institutions participating in the program.

"Our main concern was for our children," said Mrs. Isenberg, a native of Passaic.

"We were concerned with the safety on the streets and with them having friends to play with. Especially since my parents were very troubled when they learned that we had decided to buy a house in good place to live. But they were wrong. The children have plenty of friends and we feel that they are as safe here as anywhere else, maybe

"We have wonderful neighbors.

They care about their homes and they care about their neighborhood.

Everyone in the neighborhood looks out for each other and there is a sense of the residents having control of the streets, thereby giving everyone a feeling of security. . .

The Hoboken Public Works could do about removing Amato from tire city was under the direct control

Department may be getting a new had better back down on his stand about not paying them or we just

Grand Hotel reclaimed 74 2/1/18 Hoboken is taking back ownership of the old Grand Hotel at Third and Grand streets because the owner progress was noted. The owner plan-progress was noted. The owner plan-progress was noted to turn the old hotel into a quality motorola would be able to meet them missioner Patricia Q. Sheehan yesterday an-nounced a $200,000

The matter was to be studied and

Chilly reception at City Hall isn't

door. Any door.

Temperatures inside the building have been hovering in the 40s and 50s in some offices, lower in those exposed to the wind on the north side of the building, because the building's heating system has finally given up the ghost, with the help of a small fire early Wednesday morning in the boiler room.

Public Works Director Andrew J.

Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato has declared the breakdown to be an emergency so that work can start on repairs without having to go out to public bidding, a process that could leave the building without heat for several weeks.

The work will cost over $2,560," and done quickly. Otherwise we'll be without heat for may weeks. We've been fortunate in that it really hasn't been that cold outside for the last few days. The weather has been clear and mato said the problem appeared to be in the heating system's combu tion chamber where water was turned to steam to heat the four-story

"If the contractor doesn't run into any unexpected problems we should have heat by Monday," the director continued. "It might even be on sooner, maybe sometime over the weekend."

It's easy to get a chilly reception at Hoboken City Hall. Just walk in the door. Any door.

said Amato. "But it has to be do ounny — and that helped.

In spite of the cold, city officials are keeping the building open and are not permitting employees to go home early. Many don't bother taking off their coats when they come in the morning. Others do, but put on heavy sweaters immediately.

Knock it off $ 2/4/18

In Hoboken, Councilman Ranieri has threatened to bring about the removal of Public Works Director Amato, and Director Amato's wife has threatened to bring about a recall of Councilman Either way, Hoboken would lose. Both officials are sparkplugs of Hoboken's city government. It is unfortunate that at the moment they are eyeball to eyeball.

These men are outstanding public servants. Each should realized that the city would suffer if either were to leave the scene. Let them calm down and continue to make their valuable contribution to Hoboken.

Sewer line trouble spot unclogged in Hoboken

The department began working on the line two weeks before Christmas but had to step because further work could have closed down a ment packing business in the area and caused the backup of raw sewage into basements. Work was resumed

According to the director, the city

everyone is entitled to speak," said Nunzio Malfetti, the Sixth Ward representative. 'No one should be

Malfetti said he would not go along with Brennan's action in declaring that Robert King, a constant critic, will not be permitted to talk or ask questions for the next two council

Brennan said the council could tolerate King's criticism but it would not and could not tolerate his "ridicule and rudeness."

recognized as a key to A troublesome sewer line on Jackson Street in Hoboken, just south of the intersection of First Street, has been unclogged, Public Works Director Andrew J. Ameto said today. by trying to connect the two ends to the remaining wood lines. The new stuff is round while the wood lines are rectangular in shape. So we would Malfetti<sub>aa</sub>

"The line had collapsed," said Amato. "It was one of those old wood sewers and it finally gave in."

will repair the line itself by reconstructing an entire new section of line-made from wood like the part

It's the best and quickest way for more of a load this kind of repair," he continued. "If. on the street

the new section starts giving way we'll be in the position of replacing all of the old wood lines and won't have to worry about them anymore."

Amato said that the city will remove the top of the sewer line and replace it with concrete slabs, giving the side walls added strength. Wood planks now cover the tops of the wood lines. He said the cement can take more of a load from vehicles that pass

2/8/78 J.J. Battleship unit in new office

The Jersey City Battleship after investigating and analyzing our seum Commission, which wants to application, found that the goals of bring the USS New Jersey to Liberty State Park as a tourist attraction, will open its new headquarters Monday at

"The headquarters," said Commission President Richard T. Bozmembers include Thomas Rush, vice

the big J to Jersey City, but also to Liberty."

have to adapt the new round sewer lines to the old wood ones.

"By reconstructing the section with wood we eliminate that problem. It won't last as long as concrete or metal but I cortainly hope by the time zone Sr., "which will ultimately be principal of Ferris High School; John manned by a staff of four persons Stallworth, executive secretary to along with the necessary supportive Mayor Thomas F. X. Smith and services, is the result of a Anthony DeVivo, an engineer. Frank Comprehensive Employment and Burke will serve as unsalaried at-Training Act (CETA) grant. CETA, torney to the commission.

Half of Hoboken students to receive hot lunches Approximately half of Hoboken's ceeds the federal income limitation the charge is 45 cents." Palmieri added that 45 cents was substantial amount of work wasn't completed within three months, the last three months of the extension

jected a bid from the Motorola Corp.

for supplying the Public Safety Department with new walkie-talkies.

The bid was rejected because another company that had also submitted a lower bid for the radios had objected.

companies from meeting them and

The council decided to re-

In other business, the council re-would be voided.

board officially starts its hot lunch program in the two junior high John Palmieri, head of the food program, said the board expects to feed approximately 3,000 youngsters to start in the seven schools. The high

the time that was allotted by the city. steak house with apartments or hotel

By a vote of seven-to-one, the City rooms occupying the upper floors. Council approved, at yesterday's The owner was given a six-month ex-proved the sale and complete the evaluate the specifications to make work within six months of that same sure that they did not prevent other school has its own cafeteria and has According to Palmieri, the number of children who participate in the federally funded hot lunch the individual lunches cost the board been offering hot lunches for years. program is expected to increase to more than the individual cold lunches between 4,500 and 5,000 once the that were featured.

program is under way. youngsters who come from poor families." said Palmieri. "For those who come from families with "The number taken out to be heated borderline income levels the charge is up depends on the attendance record to cents per lunch. And for those for that day, so waste should be youngsters whose family income ex- drastically cut."

the maximum charge any student would have to pay for the lunches. The lunches are supplied by Morton Foods. They are already prepared and flash frozen. The schools in microwave ovens and then served to the students.

unches are heated at the individ

"With the hot lunch program, The lunches are free to each school has its own frozen food freezers where the ready-to-heat lunches are stored," he continued.

Hoboken sharing // success of CDA 2/1/78

Hoboken is sharing its success. The know-how and expertise that helped get the city national recognition in rehabilitation and redevelopment through the Hoboken Community Development Agency is being shared with other municipalities from around the state.

The Hoboken agency vesterday hosted CDA representatives from six other communities - Salem. West New York, Phillipsburg, Asbury Park, Wildwood and Perth Amboy and the North Hudson Council of Mayors at a Neighborhood Preservation and Community Revitalization

The conference covered neighborhood preservation and the shop front modernization program munity Affairs Department and included a tour of several commercial and residential rehabilitation

Fred M. Bado discussed the overall effect of the two programs. Bado is Hoboken CDA director

The economic development aspects of the programs were taken up by Ken Pai, director of planning and economic development. Barbara Oif, a CDA planner, explained the design and development of the storefront modernization program. George Beggs, a CDA architect.

discussed the problems and solution of integrating architectural standards, designs and concepts while still accomodating individual preference and preserving the character of the neighborhoods. Representatives of the state Community Affairs Department also at-

After Mary Stack Gaspar, board president, made the verbal complaint to Hudson County Prosecutor James T. O'Halloran, he contacted state officials and the complaint was relayed to the state education department.

She maintains that absentee ballots were apparently mailed out Tuesday or Wednesday and started arriving at homes on Thursday. They were mailed out by the county clerk's office, she assumed.

'However, the budget figure is not necessarily correct," she said, "because the school board is waiting hear from the state if it will be allowed to go over its caps" or spending limit. If we are not allowed, the figure on the ballot will be in-

Mrs. Gaspar said it appeared that someone assumed the board would approve the proposed budget on Wednesday and jumped the gun by mailing out the absentee ballots.

She told the board, "We are deal-

She said she is asking Thomas A.

new figure placed on absentee ballots.

"We are misrepresenting our budget if our absentee ballot has the

"I would probably vote no on the $6 million and might vote for the $4 million which does not increase the tax levy."

Although there will be no personnel layoffs, the board adopted a policy of attrition and said it would not replace teachers or other employees who retire or take leaves of absence or maternity leaves. It was estimated this will save $851,277 in the new con-equipment. There was also a $10,000 slash in student body activities.

In another severe move, the board eliminated its traditional Adult Evening Program, School for Pérsian

Born and summer school, which made

he was elated at the board's action, particularly since it will mean that the city will have to contribute less last been done," said the councilman.

the policy advocated by the city over the past five years by cutting staff through attrition in teaching, custodial and administrative personnel. He urged school officials to take a second look at a plan presented to them by the council two years ago, advocating relieving of overcrowding in one school by making use of space in another. This would mean balanced classroom populations and the need for fewer teachers, he said, and should achieve the "thorough and ef-ficient education" goal.

Councilman Robert Ranieri said

"A responsible job has at long

He said the board should practice up the balance of the cuts.

Other major cuts were $773,787

However according to Robert W. Taylor, board attorney, the mailing of the absentee ballots was probably routine in that the time for them to be mailed had come.

Taylor pointed out that the absentee ballots do include a notation explaining that the budget may be subject to change based on the decision of the state on the waiver request. An election notice that appeared in the newspaper yesterday also carried that notation.

Taylor said the county clerk's office may have to void old ballots and send out new ones if the figure is revised but he doubted if the school election set for Feb. 14 could be post-

According to Mrs. Gaspar, 546 absentee ballots had been certified for the school board election-more than had been cast in either the May municipal election for mayor or the general election in November. She said 375 of the ballots had been mailed

Joseph A. Zach, assistant education commissioner in charge of controversies and disputes, is now looking into the situation. Russell Carpenter, Hudson's superintendent of schools, also was appraised of the problem since he was on business at the education department in Trenton

Informed sources said Carpenter may have sought to get a waiver of the Hoboken board's cap, which might clarify the situation. Other sources said the need for compliance with school election law deadlines, so bsentee ballots could be mailed out in time, may have led to prematurely putting the question on the ballot.

Some officials suggested that state clarification on the caps and subsequent earlier adoption of school budgets might prevent such an occurrence in future years.

To meet the Feb. I deadline set by the state, the Hoboken board held its public hearing Wednesday. Since no final word was received from the state, the meeting was continued until 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. The $6.1 million is the amount of the local tax levy in the overall budget of $17.6 million. It was estimated that the school board exceeded its spending limit by almost $2.5 million and asked the state for a School board cuts budget in Hoboken

The Hoboken Board of Education has approved more than $2 million in cutbacks in its proposed 1978-1979 budget and, although there will be no ing with human beings, not jelly personnel layoffs, virtually every area of the school system will be af-Gallo, board secretary, and Robert W. Taylor, the attorney, to have the

The board was compelled to take drastic action last night when the State Department of Education turned down its request for a waiver of the 5.9 percent cap, or spending $6 million figure and the machines have the $4 million figure," she said.

As a result of the cutbacks, the budget was reduced from $17,009,440 to $15,112,927 and the local tax levy was dropped from $6,149,664 to $4,073,151. This would mean the city will have to contribute about $122,000 less toward school costs then it did in the current budget.

The vote on the $2 million cuts was approved 7-to-1. One member, Michael Costello, did not attend. The ione negative vote was cast Mary Stack Gaspar, the board from fixed charges, $209,000 from contracted services, $100,000 from teaching supplies, $50,000 from administrative expenses, $40,000 in other expenses involved in operating costs and $36,000 by cutting back the maintenance and replacement of "I know the budget had to be cut but there are some deletions I cannot

oboken board tace cuts

Negotiations have begun between oken Board of Education an Hoboken Teachers Association (HTA) on a new contract, but they might as well not have started at all.

According to sources close to the nesotiations, the board will not offer any pay increases and wants to take away $1.3 million a year in benefits that were granted in previous con-tracts over the years. Robert W. Taylor, the board's attorney and negotiator, would not comon the report, but did admit that the school board is committed to eliminating $1,284,064 by removing almost all contractual fringe benefits. This was part of the $2.8 million the school board removed from the proposed 1978-79 school budget.

"The fringe benefits are not utomatically carried over from one contract to the next," he said. "They are negotiable. And the board has decided that, in order to reduce the budget in accordance with the edicts of the state, part of the money will have to come from this area.

Taylor added that by eliminating the fringe benefits the need to dismisser may off teachers would be avoided. However, dismissal was another pos-

Staff reductions are another way of making the reduction," he con-tinued. "But that is something that the teachers will have to decide. The board is interested in cutting approx-imately $1.3 from the teachers' salary and fringe benefit accounts. It will accept staff reductions as an alternative to the elimination of fringe benefits."
In addition tothe $1.3 million, the board cut $200,000 in materials and class room supplies, $200,000 in service contracts, $50,000 in administrative expenses, $300,000 in general expenses, $35,000 for new school equipment, $75,450 in salaries for teachers who won't be replaced.

The adult evening school is being eliminated for a saving of $125,000. The evening school for foreign born and summer school are being ended for a saving of $22,000. Student acvities are being cut by $10,000 along oth $40,000 from skilled trades and 41,000 in arbitration awards made in

Hoboken scores

Hoboken's city administration got off to a late start in dealing with last month's heavy snow. Evidently they smarted under the subsequent criticism. More than that, they did something about

The repeat storm found them armed to the teeth. They counterattacked with formidable forces which were ready and waiting. By nightfall of the first day, all Hoboken's streets could be traversed. This was a notable feat, for the city's streets are narrow, the corners difficult to turn.

By the next day, on the city's main thoroughfare, Washington Street, all metered parking spaces were back in

It was a case, not only of working around the clock, but of being fully prepared. This town showed it could be done. Good work, Hoboken.

Hoboken will cut tax rate by 25 cents

Hoboken taxpayers will be asked to raise approximately $200,000 less this year for support of the 1978 municipal budget but it will mean no more than a 25-cent decrease in the Mayor Steve Cappiello and Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius submitted the mayor's proposed budget to the city council at a special meeting yesterday at noon. The amount to be raised through local taxes is $5,423,473 as compared to $5,655,911 last year.

According to Chius, that would normally account for a decrease in the tax rate of more than $2 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. However, Hoboken has lost almost $5 million in ratables since last year, and that ing Act (C reduction of the tax base is enough to offset most of the budget reduction. Program.

The city's tax rate is currently $104.66 per thousand.

"Of course, we are assuming that the local school and county contributions from the city will remain the same," continued Chius, "and we are fairly sure that they will not. There probably will be a slight increase in the tax rate but the very worst we anticipate would be about $6 per $1,000 of assessed valuation - and it would be the result of increases for the schools and county, not the city."

For the year, Hoboken plans to spend a total of $18,306,493 — up approximately $1.3 million from last year. Much of the additional money will be coming through the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) programs and the state's Safe and Clean Neighborhoods

THE JERSEY JOURNAL, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1978

HEATING UP - Doris Alexiandro and Edwin Morales, fourth-graders at the Calabro School, Hoboken, pick up some of the first hot lunches dis-tributed to an estimated 3,000 school children in the city as the district's first "hot" meal program begins. School officials believe the total will climb to between 4,500 and 5,000. Morton Foods is the federally-funded supplier of frozen lunches which are warmed in microwave evens before being served the children.

Hoboken could require second school election

It appears unlikely today that the Hoboken Board of Education election will be postponed tomorrow, but chances of a second election to determine the budget figures are good.

And, the $2.5 million that caused so much turmoil is still in the middle of the controversy that could force a special election.

School board officials have been seeking a postponement of the elec-tion because they contend the public has not been properly presented with the correct figures of how much money will be needed through local taxation for the 1978-79 school budget.

Hudson County's Superintendent of Schools Russell W. Carpenter said he doesn't have the authority to postpone the election. He said that was up to Education Commissioner Fred

Originally, the school board had been seeking $6.1 million, which was $2.5 million more than the caps set by

The school board asked for a waiver which was refused and the budget was trimmed to $4,673,151. But Carpenter said the correct figure ld be $3,352,252

The school board last week tried to notify the voting public that the $5.1 million waiver from the state million figure printed on absence ballots was wrong. But, even the new figure, according to Carpenter, was not correct and less than one day remains for the school board to notify

"I frankly don't think we can do it," said Mrs. Mary Gaspar, president of the school board.

Meanwhile, Vincent Calabrese, head of the department of administra-tion and finance in the state Depart-ment of Education, still held out hope that Hoboken's Board of Education could get a crack at getting the $2.5

Callabrane said the state hasn't fused to grant the waver but was nable to make a decision on the request because the school board twice falled to take an adequate presentation to substantiate the waiver re-

board it was explained that Commissioner Burke would consider the possibility of a special referendum after tomorrow's school board election on the cap waiver, but the board must provide the state with the information

Nine names on ballot in Hoboken contest

By Peter Hallam

Tuesday's school board election in Hoboken, possibly the last school board election the city holds, will be a contest among three candidates backed by Mayor Steve Cappiello, an incumbent who had the mayor's support three years ago, four independents, and one non-

Voters will also decide on whether or not they wish to keep the elected school board and the proposed 1978-79 school budget. The mayor is seeking to turn the school board back to an appointed body. If the voters agree, the first three appointments by the mayor won't be made until April of next year.

The mayor is backing Richard England, Robert Wendelken and James Monaco, and, based on the support they will get from the mayor's administration and organization. they are considered the

But Mrs. Mary Gaspar, the current board president who fell out of the mayor's political favor for supporting one of the mayor's opponents in last May's municipal election, feels she has a fair chance of beating the odds and gaining a second three-year

"Maybe things worked out for the best," said Mrs. Gesper. "All things being equal, I think I'd rather run on my own record over the past three years than on the mayor's. The main reason I'm running as an independent now is that I acted independently dur-woman to serve as school board presi-real estate firm which has been a Hoboken landmark for over 50 years.

She and her husband, George, have six children and live on Hudson

Street. Mrs. Gaspar is a graduate of Ss. Peter and Paul's School and Lacrdaire Academy. She studied at Georgetown Visitation Junior College and the Laboratory Institute of Merchandising. She is a Hoboken Library Trustee, and represented Sc. Peter and Paul's on the Title I Advisory Committee.

visory Committee.

Both England and Wendelken have sought election to the Hoboken School Board before — but as independent candidates who were bucking those selected by the mayor. Monaco is making his first attempt at elected office.

Monaco, 29, was also born and raised in Hoboken. He is a 1986 graduate of Hoboken High School and attended Jersey City State College.

Married to the former Ann Palumbo, the couple have two children and reside at 1300 Garden St.

He is a member of the Hoboken Fire Department and has been in charge of its Fire Community Rela-tions Bureau for several years. He initiated the department's invalid and currently doing graduate work in urban education at Jersey City State.

Married to the former Margaret

Married to the former Margaret Maroney, they and their two children live at 1210 Hudson St. He is a lifelong resident of Hobokes.

DeTrizio

England is a 1950 graduate of A.J. Demarest High School, one of the least classes to graduate from Demarest before the new Hoboken High School opened. He holds a bachelor of science degree in marketing from St.
Peter's College and a masters degree in business administration from Fordham University.

An Army veteran who served 13 months in southeast Asia, England has been with General Foods for 14 years. He is married to the former Dolores Donofrio. They have one son and live at 457 Seventh St.

ing my three years in office and that did not sit well with the mayor." are George Giordano, Nicholas DeTrizio, Vito Lanzo and Angel Roman. Of the three, only Roman did not respond to inquiries about his per-sonal history. dent and is currently the only woman on the board. She is a member of one of Hoboken's oldest families — her father founded the Stack and Stack

Like Mrs. Gaspar, Giordano is considered by some to be a possible dark horse in the school board race. He is an active member of the mayor's political club and has been affiliated with Cappiello for many years. Although he is going against the mayor's wishes by running, it is expected that some of the mayor's backers will cut one of the three

Giordano has been a Hobohen fireman for 21 years and is currently assigned to the Fire Prevention

Bureau. He, too, is a life-long resident of the city. He attended local schools and has taken job-related course at John Jay College, Rutgers University, and Jersey City State College.

He is married to the former Lucy Lepre. Glordano, Sl, has been active in local politics for many years. He is past treasurer of the mayor's club, and served as president of the clubs headed by Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri and former Sixth Ward Councilman Edward Yard Councilman Edward Sclaughlin.

DeTrizio, who lives at 627 Bloom-ield St. with his wife, the former dichele P. Schofield, and their two sons, is a research and development technician for the American Cas Co. He attended local schools and spent ive years in the Navy.

titated the department's invalid and tot-finder programs and established a fire safety and prevention course which is given in the local public and parochial schools.

Wendelkan is a 1965 graduate of Hoboken High School and a 1969 graduate of St. Peter's College, where he majored in science. He has been teaching at Emerson High School, Union City, for the past seven years and has also coached baseball and basketball at that school. He is currently doing graduate work in DeTrizio is the vice president Sixth Ward Councilman Nunzic Maffetti's association, and treasurer of the Hoboken Character Club. He is taking his first crack at elected of-Lanzo, a local baker, is making his second attempt. He ran unsuccessfully in May for councilman-at-large.

A livelong resident of Hoboken, Lanzo and his wife, the former

Carolyn Cherico, live at 10 Church

He is an Army veteran of the Korean conflict and is a member of the Hoboken American Legion Post. The last candidate is Peter (Perry) Belflore, who has withdrawn as a candidate but whose name re-mains on the ballot because he did not England, a senior production as a cand analyst with the Maxwell House Coffee Division of the General Foods obtain a corp. in White Plains, N.Y., is also a removed. obtain a court order to have it

Good work 99 2/13/18

The people of Hoboken should feel grateful to the one among them who brought about the arrest of a man he saw breaking into a store and stealing from

Commonly, people who see such crimes being committed either turn away or, at most, make a perfunctory phone call to police. The Hoboken witness not only called police but followed up by leading them to the burglar a block away after they arrived. May others be moved to follow his exam-

Cappiello trip set

Mayor Steve Cappiello of loboken is set to leave tomorrow for a four-day trip to the Dominican Republic. He declared Feb. 20-27 Dominican Republic Week in Hoboken.

Cappiello was invited by local Dominicans, who spon-sored the trip, to visit their native land on the eve of this year's celebration of the country's independence day on Feb. 27. The mayor will meet with municipal and fed-mon ties between Dominicans and Americans. The sponsors of his trip are local shop-keepers and businessmen, the mayor said yesterday.

Incumbents, budget lose in Hoboken

Two incumbents, Board President Mary Stack Gaspar and trustee Michael Costello, were defeated for relection yesterday by Hoboken voters by a margin of approximately 3-2 with some 3,900 ballots cast. Richard F. England, James Monaco and Robert Wendelken won.

This year's election marks the last for Hoboken, since voters also approved the referendum to return to an appointed school board. It will now be up to Mayor Steve Cappiello and the council to appoint or reappoint school board members as vacancies occur due to expired terms, resignations, or for any other reason.

Voters also soundly defeated a confusing proposed school budget listed on the ballot as $4 million and on the absentee ballot as $6 million, by a vote of 1986 to 600. According to Hudson County Superintendent of Schools Russell Carpenter, the correct budget figure is $3,352,252.

The Hudson County superintendent of schools is expected to ask the state commissioner of education today to throw out last night's Hoboken Board of Education budget election

"We're recommending that the election of the budget be rendered null and void," Gary Deutsch, school program coordinator, said yesterday. Deutsch said Carpenter would The actual budget amount is $3,352,252. Mrs. Gaspar said

The dollar amount of the budget was not printed accurately on the absentee ballots, Carpenter said. He said he sent a telegram Sunday ordering the matter corrected by vesterday's election.

According to Mary Stack Gaspar, Board of Education president who was defeated for reelection yesterday, the matter was not cleared up.

The amount printed on the absentee ballot was $6,149,644.

school budget has been ordered by the Hudson County superintendent of schools, to be implemented before

"I don't know how we'll survive," said Board of Education President Mrs. Mary Stack Gaspar yesterday.

Further compounding the problem is the fact that there has been no official public notice on the new budget, Mrs. Gaspar said.

The latest word on the bidget, entangled in a complex political dispute, was issued by Supt. Russell Carpenter, who heads the county division of the state department of educa-

In a telegram sent out late Friday afternoon, Carpenter said that the budget figure placed on the absentee ballots already mailed out, is incorrect

"According to our calculations," the telegram said, "the correct figure is $3,352,252

Previously, the board had approved two separate proposed budgets which were turned down by the state.

The first budget, which now appears on the absentee ballots, was for more than $6 million, representing an approximately $2-million increase over the budget for this current school year.

But last Tuesday, the board voted for a budget of $4,073,151, after having received word from the state that the higher budget simply wouldn't do.

This $4M budget, according to Mrs. Gaspar, is what appears on the voting machines.

Tomorrow, voters will elect school board candidates, decide whether they should be elected or appointed; and vote "yes" or "no" on the budget. Before 1973, candidates were

Carpenter charges that neither the $4 million figure which will appear on the voting machines, nor the $6 million figure appearing on the ballots were ever state-approved.

"So what's happening is that we have one group of people voting on a 84 million budget and another group voting on a 86 million one; and what we really have is a $3 million budget," said Mrs. Gaspar.

Board Secretary Thomas Gallo, who is also an as-aemblymen in the 32rd District, said Friday that he could not comment until he receives the telegram from Carpenter. He could not be reached yesterday for comment.

Hoboken school election re-run

Mayor Steve Cappiello said today he has conferred with the state educa-tion commission and there is a possibility there will be no need for a se-cond school election to decide a budget discrepancy.

The mayor said he contacted Commissioner Fred Burke last night and Burke said he will ask the state attorney general for an opinion on whether another election is necessary.

Russell W. Carpenter, Hudson

Russell W. Carpenter, Hudson County superintendent of schools, reportedly recommended that the Feb. 14 election results be set aside. He cited the fact that absentee ballots carried a $6.1 million figure to be raised by local taxes in the 1978-1979 school year while the voting machine figure was $4.03 million because the state refused to grant Hoboken a waiver on its budget "cap."

Cappiello told Burke he felt that the school board and the city could work out a budget figure through reg-ular administrative channels. The $4.03 million budget was defeated by the voters and now goes to the city council for action. the mayor said he learned that if the state rules that a special election is necessary, it will be for the budget question only. The vote on candidates for the school board and a referendum to return to the appointed board system will remain valid, he said. Robert Wendelben, James Monaco and Richard England were the winners in the Feb. 14 balloti

Mary Stack Gaspar, who unsuccessfully sought reelection, has been seeking a new election because she id she may have lost votes over the discrepancy is budget figures.

88 2/11/18 Oops!

The bloopers of Hoboken's Board of Education go on and on, incredibly.

The board failed to provide for the teachers' summer pay checks, and then had to rush out and borrow $1,500,000 to cover them.

It failed to put enough money in the current budget for teachers' salaries, and as a result it will run out of salary funds in May.

Its cumulative acts of mismanagement boosted the coming school year's budget $2,800,000 beyond the cap - the amount of increase allowed by the state.

When the state rejected the extra $2,800,000, the board had to wipe out the adult evening school, the foreign-born evening school, the summer school and the fringe benefits won by teachers and other employees in years of contract

Blue Cross and Blue Shield have notified the board they are discontinuing coverage of all employees as of Feb. 28 unless the board starts to comply with

Now it turns out that the reason the state refused to waive the cap and allow that extra $2,800,000 was that the board had failed - twice - to submit the necessary data. In sending out the absentee ballots for the recent school board election and referendum, the board announced the wrong figure for the amount to be raised by taxation in the coming year. When this was discovered, the board hurriedly changed it to another figure ...

What next?

Gaspar tries 11th-hour move to postpone school election 17

in an attempt to postpone today's school board election and to have County Clerk James F. Quinn removed as the top election official.

According to Mrs. Gaspar, the voting public is actually unaware that it will be voting on 1978-79 budget figures that are incorrect.

"The correct amount to support the school budget through local taxes is $3,352,252 according to the figures of Hudson County Superintendent of School Russell W. Carpenter," said Mrs. Gaspar. The amount on the

Mrs. Gaspar, Thomas Gallo. school board secretary; and Superintendent of Schools Thomas F. who are running for the school

Mary Stack Gaspar, the Hoboken McFeely were notified of the new school board president, will seek a figure by Carpenter over the weekend Wendelken and James Monaco. meeting today with Hudson County and were instructed to do everything Assignment Judge Thomas S. O'Brien within their power to make sure the public was alerted to the new figure. "Since the figures reflect back on the school board members, and I am a candidate for re-election," Mrs. Gaspar declared, "I think the entire election should be postponed until the proper figures can be placed on the

Carpenter has indicated that such a decision is up to state Education Commissioner Fred Burke. If he calls for another election, however, it would in all probability be only for the budget and not the candidates as well. Mrs. Gaspar added that she will also seek to have the county clerk disqualified as the top official for conducting the election because he has publicly endorsed three candidates

"The county clerk is supposed to conduct the election in an impartial manner," she asserted. "His impartiality went out the window yesterday when a paid advertisement went into the newspapers with Quinn's name on it. He cannot be impartial when he has publicly announced his support for three candidates and should not be illowed to officially participate in the election in any way.

Besides the controversial bu Hoboken voters will also be asked to decide whether the elected school board should be continued or returned to an appointed board and select three board members for three-year terms. There are nine candidates. More than 800 absentee ballots have been issu for the election, the largest num for any Hoboken election in recent

22 Hoboken policemen may get commendations

Angel Alicia.

tal Protection (DEP), Department of Community Affairs (DCA) and, in the future, Transport of New Jersey, will be serving on the task force commit-

"We are thinking about three, possibly four, task force committees," he continued. "One would be headed by a representative of the DOT and concern itself with the terminal and land development. Another would be chaired by a Port Authority representative and deal with the development of the pier and waterfront area. A third committee would be be chaired by the Com-munity Development Agency and coordinate the development of the might be formed to coordinate policy. It would be chaired by Mayor Steve

Cappiello and include the chairmen from the other committees among its

The ground work for those task force committees was laid Wednesday by the mayor and Bado during a meeting with representatives of the Port Authority, and the DOT in ounding area."

Bado said a fourth committee

tal awards at one time.

The group is among the largest recommended for the departmen

Twenty-two Hoboken policemen have been recommended for department commendations, including two will get the commendation bar, the second highest award in the department, Chief George W. Crimmins said today.

Thomas Connor, Arthur Divincent, Anthony Faico (two letters), Carl

Patrolmen Frank Altomare and Celestino Gasbarro have been recommended to Mayor Steve Cappiello, the city's public safety director, for the commendation bar for the actions David Matthews, Martin Perez and following the investigation of the murder of two women at the John J.

Grogan Marine View Plaza.
The chief said that Altomare and Gasbarro were able to calm down the suspect in the case and convince him to turn over to them the loaded gun he had in his possession.

Recommended for letters of commendation are Lts. Patrick Donatacci begins to shape up

The first visible signs of Hoboken's $4.8 million Erie-

Lackawanna train and ferry terminal restoration and development project should materialize by April, Fred M. Bado, director of the city's Community Development Agency (CDA).

said today.

According to Bado, contracts for the repair and replacement of the copper roof on the terminal building at the foot of Hudson Place, the refurbishing of the roofs on the train sheds and for a further engineering investigation of the area for future signed within a few weeks.

ment are expected to be

Hoboken has a federal Public Works grant of $4.8 million for the project but the city hopes eventually to draw a minimum of $10 million for the development and refurbishing of the area, he added.

"The scope of the project has in-creased since the original concept," said Bado. "And because of the size and amount of money involved, a being set up to help coordinate various aspects of the project."

Bedo said that the Port Authority, state Department of Transportation (DOT), Department of Environmenaber of task force committees are irst round in its efforts to skip over a local resient for appointment to the fire department. Morris C. Ianni. director of Local Government Services for Civil Service, has ordered the city to appoint Michael Dapuzzo to the fire department as of April 18, 1977 or to appeal his decision to were resolved without Civil Service Division the officer being found of Hearings and guilty, and the records Regulations by Feb. 22. show that Dapuzzo Dapuzzo, 35, a resigned because of inveteran, was No. 2 on a list of five men certified by Civil Service for appointment to the fire department last May. The city made four new firemen but skipped Dapuzzo claimdesireable appointment based on his record over five years as a special patrolman. Dapuzzo filed the complaint with Civil Service. Dapuzzo was a special patrolman in Hoboken from May 1972 until January 1977 when he resigned.

In justifying its action, the city cited several reasons for not appointing Dapuzzo.
They included extended

The Hoboken Board of Education will hold its annual reorganization meeting Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Wallace School, according to Thomas

A. Gallo, board secretary.

Last night's board caucus and meeting were cancelled when only two of the board's nine members —

ames Giani and Leo McLaughlin -

Officers of the Hoboken Teachers

Association, led by Michael

School panel session off 89

there is no record of Dapuzzo being paid while on sick leave, that the criminal charges against him were resolved without

Hoboken 2/9/78

Hoboken has lost the sick leave, charges against him signed by civilians and his ultimate resignation from the department under the threat of dis-periencing serious physician shor-will have additional fiscal problems in tages has been rejected. will have additional fiscal problems in the 1978-79 school year as a result."

Health Center in Newark, two to the Dayton Division of the Newark Health and Welfare Department and four to Cooper Medical Center in Camdan.

In votes against her had been basis of her court challenge.

Although unsuccessful in her re-election effort, Mrs. Gaspar said she was "pleased" with her vote.

Requests by Paterson and Bridgeton have also been dealed, said the spokesman. as only 2 trustees show up 2/4/2

Under the program, the federal overnment will pay for participating actors and provide them with a principal of headity.

county judges to hear the matter was the reason.

The outgoing school president added that she may now wait until she hears what State Education Commissioner Fred Burke has to say on the election before pursuing her least an election before pursuing her least

Not over yet for budget, 30 candidates in Hoboken

election may still be on. Two different actions are being initiated today that could have some impact on the out-

Mrs. Mary Gaspar, the incumbent school board president defeated in her bid for a second three-year term, will go back to court today seeking to have the entire election thrown out on the grounds that she, as board member, was misrepresented" because the ballots were incorrect on the budget figures.

And Russell Carpenter, Hudson County superintendent of schools, will be in Trenton today to meet with state Education Commissioner Fred Burke on the Hoboken election and the failure of Hoboken school officials to alert the voting public to the fact that the budget figures on both the bsentee and voting machine ballots were incorrect.

The outcome of the election didn't produce any surprises. Richard England, Robert Wendelken and James Monaco, who had the backing of Mayor Steve Cappiello and his political organization, were easy win-ners with a large vote, including more than 400 absentee ballots in their

were: England 2,341; Wendelken, 2,300; Monaco, 1,979; Mrs. Gaspar

A spokesman for the National Health Service Corps said yesterday that 15 doctors would be sent to New Jersey starting in July. They will remain at least two years. It is the first time help is being given by the federal government to hospitals in urban areas.

Under the plan four doctors are being sent to Heary J. Austin Community Health Center in Treaton, three to North Jersey Community Union North Jersey Community Union Health Center in November, two to the Health Center in November (1988).

The number of doctors in Ner Jersey's urban areas was reporte declining steadily in recent years.

The voting is over in Hoboken's 1,371; George Giordano, 1,133; 1978 school board election but the Nicholas DeTrizio, 688; Vito Lanzo, 453; Angel Roman 399; and, Peter Belfiore, 212. Belfiore was a noncandidate. He withdrew as an active candidate several weeks ago but did not go through the formality of having his name taken off the ballot by court

Hoboken's elected school board will come to an end as of next January. The voters decided by a margin of 1.710 to 1.188 to return to the appointed board.

The proposed 1978-79 school budget was defeated by a margin of 2.023 to 638. But few voters knew exactly what figure they were voting on. The voting machines carried a figure of $4,073,151. The absentee ballots read $6,149,664. And according to Carpenter, they are both wrong. The correct figure, he said, is $3,352,252.

The $6 million figure represen what the board was asking for in local taxes for support of the budget before the state refused to grant it a "cap" waiver of more than $2.5 million. Th $4 million figure represents the adjusted budget as the board's attorney and fiscal advisor, Robert W. Taylor,

Carpenter and his staff saw it differently, however. The county superintendent sent a telegram over the weekend to Mrs. Gaspar, School Board Secretary Thomas A. Gallo, and Hoboken Superintendent Thomas F. McFeely advising them that their figure was wrong and directing them to use all possible means to advise the public of the $3.3 million figure. No public of the $3.3 million figure. No action was taken to do so, according

Taylor said the $720,000 Carpenter mo guarantee "We have no commission the state for the funds," he said, "so the state for the funds should be taken out of the budget. If the funds should not be forthcoming then the school board a result. cut from the Hoboken budget

Mrs. Gaspar, with her attorney. Charles DeFazio Sr., appeared before Hudson County Superior Court Judge Maurice A. Walsh Jr. yesterday morning in an attempt to have the election postponed so the correct budget figures could be included on the ballot. After an informal conference, however, Walsh did not take any action and the voting proceeded

When you figure that I had the entire Hoboken Democratic and Republican organizations against me, I think I did very well," she asserted. "I lost out by 500 votes and 600 of those were abs The new board members will be sworn in Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the board's annual reorganization meeting. Otto Hottendorf is expected to be named the new board president, a position he held up to three years ago when Mrs. Gaspar succes

Willow Avenue bus line restarts limited service

route, discontinued six years ago, is short, Agresta said. back in operation today, with a new

Buses are running on a 30-minute headway. The fare is 40 cents, the same charged by the Public Service Bus Co. when it was allowed to fold the route as a loser.

The first bus left 14th and Washington streets at 6:45 a.m. vesterday. The last departed from the PATH station at 6: 15 p.m. The hours in between are the only hours the route will operate at present. There will be no service on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays.

Business was not so good yesterday, but Joseph Agresta, a partner in the new venture, said that was to be expected, since no notice had been given to the public. A final settlement of details with Public Service and with the state Public Utilities Commission, he said, was not effected until the last minute.

Double-parked cars on Willow Avenue also hampered operations, Agresta added.

School children are being allowed to ride for half fare, from 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, though this is not operating the crosstown route, he adrequired by the franchise, and it may

Hoboken's Willow Avenue bus have to be dropped if revenues are

Starting from 14th and Washington, the buses run on 14th to Willow Avenue, to First Street, to Hudson Street, to Hudson Place, at the PATH station. They return via River Street, Newark Street, Clinton Avenue, 12th Street, Willow Avenue, and 14th Street, to Washington Street. Senior citizens ride for half fare

The route is being operated joint-by the Agresta Bus Co. and the Hoboken Transportation Co. These are two of the three companies that operate buses on the Washington Street line. The third, the Maria Transportation Co., is not involved in the Hoboken Business Administrator Edwin Chius said today that if the newly-revived route is patronized, proving that the residents of the western area want buses, he would like to have it combined with the Washington Street route and the municipal crosstown route. Chius has in mind creating a loop route, with buses circling the city simultaneously in opposite directions.

The city is losing $40,000 a year in

D'Onotrio, president, conferred brief-ly with board counsel Robert W. Taylor on the status of the pending tion any further. She contends that because the wrong budget figures appeared on the ballots she, as the only incumbent seeking re-election, may have lost discontinuation of teachers' Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage. the HTA membership will bear what the board's new contract votes that cost her the election.

HUD magazine features Hoboken

hining on Hoboken.
"Challenge," the monthly

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1978

national magazine published by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), is featuring this month a lengthy article about Hoboken authored by Mayor Steve Cappiello.

Entitled "Hoboken: America's Comeback Town," the article deals with Hoboken's commitment to the Neighborhood Preservation Program and what it has meant to the city. The four-page story also features several pictures of various sites in the city. And a picture of the Erie Lackawa ferry and train terminal on Hudson Place is featured on the cover.

This is a great honor for the city. but it is by no means the first time that's good."

that Hobelton has been the subject of such publicity," said Cappiello. "The accomplishments in housing rehabilitation and neighborh preservation over the years speak for themselves. Much has been done, but there is much that remains to be proposal is at a union meeting on Wednesday, said D'Onofrio.

Mary Gaspar made only a limited effort yesterday to take her challenge of the Hoboken school election outcome into the courts. Mrs. Gaspi

Cappiello said that the purpose of the article is to help convince other urban municipalities that rehabilitation and preservation are good alternatives to wide-scale demolition and

"Rehabilitation and preservation do not change the identity of the municipality," he added. "The characteristics that make Hoboken what it is have been retained. And

Meter reveals proper ## Hoboken water use

The meter which records how present. The state Public Utilities much water Hoboken purchases from Commission also sent observers to Jersey City is reasonably accurate, the test, which was held Jan. 31.

The test showed that the Newark

The meter at the Newark Street of water to Hoboken by about 2 per-(Hoboken) station presents "a cent. reasonable record of the measured Joseph Giorgio, Jersey City flow to Hoboken," according to a business administrator, said the test study made by the engineering firm of clearly upheld his city's position.

Buck, Seifert and Jost. "Ninety-eight percent accuracy evidence of exessive mechanical recommended the measuring instruments be replaced.

between 20 and 25 years, the Jersey City and Hoboken have engineers reported. been arguing for months about the contends the amount is less, and that Newark Street be replaced."

k, Seifert and Jost.

"Ninety-eight percent accuracy
However, the engineers found is pretty good," he said. evidence of exessive mechanical The present metering system was wear in the recording mechanism and installed 15 years ago, and the normal

Street meter understated actual flow

However, their tests indicated examount of water used. Jersey City essive wear and in order to achieve contends that Hoboken uses about 9 consistant accuracy "it is recommillion gallons daily, while Hoboken mended that the instruments at the meter is faulty.

A new system would cost from
To help solve the dispute, both $25,000 to $30,000. Giorgio and Jersey ducted with representatives of each to the recommendation.

Hoboken school ballot budget figure in error

A flaw has been found in over 400 absentee ballots mailed out in the hotly contested Hoboken school board election and they have been declared invalid by the state commissioner of education's county division head, leaving the district superintendent's office one working day to resolve the situation in time for Tuesday's election.

A telegram sent to the school board president, secretary and district superintendent by Russell Carpenter, the county superintendent of schools, stated that the budget figure which

Hoboken officials are proving

It will be two weeks Monday since that their snow removal plan is not

20 inches of snow fell on the city - and the snow removal operations have been "on-going" ever since, according to Public Works Director

"By Monday we should be finishing up Adams Street and going on to Clinton Street and Willow

Avenue," said Amato. "Everything

west of these strets has been cleaned up - or at least cleaned to the best of our ability as allowed by existing con-

Streets, by the end of the week removing all of the snow that has accumulated in large piles, taking up hundreds of parking spaces around the city, but could not say what effect the snow predicted for today would have on his timetable.

Amato said he hoped to have his men up to Garden or Bloomfield called "July."

Andrew J. Amato.

didates' names on the ballot was incorrect.

"Please undertake whatever efforts are necessary to insure that the correct (budget) question is put before voters in the election on Tuesday, Feb. 14," said Carpenter. He added, "please advise me of the success of your efforts.

"That means," said Carpenter, during an interview last night, "that between now and Tuesday, all the ballots will have to read the correct (budget) figure and all voting machines will have to reflect this figure."

The decision on whether also to invalidate the candidates' portion of the ballot will be up to the local board of education, Carpenter said, adding however, that he will

Snow piles have been responsible

Policemen are assigned to traffic control in the area during the morning and evening rush hours, according to Chief George W. Crimmins. However.

the chief said even that wasn't much

"If there isn't any room for the vehicles to get by it doesn't make any difference if we have one cop or several, they're not going to move and we're going to have traffic tieups un-til the snow has been removed."

Amato said that 14th Street would

Even the city's Parking Authority is helping out. The authority's jeep has been going around the city opening up parking spaces wherever it could get enough rom to plow. Joseph Hottendorf, the executive director, for numerous traffic jams, especially along 4th Street where double-parking

by motorists and commercial vehicles making deliveries has increased appeared adjacent to the can- "ask Trenton for advice," should the candidates' tallies in the new absentee ballots not coincide with the tallies of the old absentee ballots.

It will be the district superintendent's problem, said, Carpenter, to make sure that the absentee voters receive new ballots in time for the election.

By state law, school board election ballots contain the names of the candidates as well as a state approved local budget for the education district. Voters have the choice of accepting or rejecting the

Recently, the board voted for a $6,149,664 local fax

But at a meeting Tuesday, the board voted to knock down the city's share of the budget to $4,073,251.

Amato appealed to all motorists

"The city really doesn't want to to move their cars from areas that are posted for snow removal opera-

Hoboken snow removal spelled n-o-w, not J-u-l-v

County schools chief asks Hoboken re-run

By Peter Hallam

The Hudson County superintendent of schools, Russell W. Carpenter, has recommended to state Education Commissioner Fred Burke that Tuesday's Hoboken school board election results be thrown out and a new election held.

Carpenter is attending a con-ference in Atlanta, Ga., until Wednesday. A spokesman for him said that were both incorrect.

Education Department's Division of Disputes and Controversies for consideration.

Waiver on its budget "cap."

Even the second figure, according to Carpenter, was wrong. His calculathe superintendent hand-delivered a On the absentee ballots sent out letter to Burke's office making the two weeks before the election, there recommendation. The grounds were appeared the statement that $6.1 that the budget figures shown on the absentee ballots and — though different for the 1978-79 school budget. In the ferently - on the voting machines corresponding statement on the voting machine ballots, the figure was The spokesman added that the down to $4.03 million, because the matter has been turned over to the state had refused to grant Hoboken a provided it is constructive. But we will not listen to name-calling or irrational remarks with no basis in zetti's right to speak at the March 1 stitutional rights are being violated and he has no intention of allowing the council president to get away with

"I will be at the March I meeting and I will speak," Vezzetti said. "The police will have to drag me out of the and March 15 meetings.

Brennan said he suspended Vez-

According to Vezzetti, his con-raised through local taxes is $3.3 million. Carpenter notified Hoboken school board officials of the error last weekend and directed them to use every possible means to alert the public to the correct figure.

According to Mary Gaspar, the outgoing board president, the board's administrative officers did not make any effort at all to tell the public.

Robert W. Taylor, board attorney and financial adviser, agreed, saying there wasn't enough time, since Mon-day was the first day the board could take any action, and the election was the next day.

He added that he disagreed with Carpenter's figures and felt that the $4.03 million figure was correct.

Mrs. Gaspar would like to see the election thrown out since she feels she may have lost votes on the absentee ballots because of the $6.1 million budget figure. The spokesman for Carpenter's office said he believed that this was one of the reasons included in the superintendent's letter, but he was not sure, because he did not have a copy of it. He added that the state had two options. One, to accept Carpenter's recommendations and throw out the entire election, the other, throw out only the vote on the budget it was voted down and order a new election on the budget, putting the correct figure on the ballot.

Meanwhile, Taylor expected to hand-deliver today official notification to Mayor Steve Cappiello and the City Council that the $4.03 million budget figure had been defeated and to request a conference between the council and the school board for the purpose of negotiating a new badget.

Taylor said he hoped to start the negotiations no later than next week.

It'll take cops to silence critical

could be going to jail on March 1.

That's the day of the next Hoboken City Council meeting and added that the jeep was being used to ing made to post the areas with signs open unmetered spaces as well as as far in advance as possible so resithose governed by the agency's park- dents wil have ample time to dig their cars out and move them.

> "If we have to tow we will. But it interferes with the snow removal

He added that the owners of vehitow any cars away if it can avoid it," cles that are towed will have to the director said. "Every effort is be- pay for the cost.

Vezzetti plans on being there and say-ing what's on his mind even though his provided it is constructive. But we speaking privileges have been suspended until April.

City Council President Martin J.

Brennan revoked Vezzetti's right to address the council at last Wednesday's meeting because, according to Brennan, "he was getting out of hand."

"We (the council) have a very liberal policy concerning the right of citizens to speak on matters — before the council takes action on them," said Brennan. "But some people tend to abuse that right and Mr. Vezzetti is one of them.

one of them.

"He has a tendency to say sianderous things without so much as one lota of proof or evidence. The council chamber to stop me."

Brennan, when advised of Vezzetti's intentions, said: "If that's what he wants, that's what he'll get."

A star is born and it's Hoboken #0 april

"I was born in Hoboken!"

A lot of people over the years have made that claim. Some of them will be a history of Hoboken narrated by a number of long-time residents. It is expected the film will be completed around $5,000. The Hoboken Arts. minute film being produced by the some time this summer and ready for Center for Media Arts at Jersey City distribution in early September.

State College.

The film is a joint venture of the Center, the Hudson camera Corp., which is supplying the photographic materials, and the Hoboken Arts Council, which has awarded a $1,000 grant to help finance the film. According to Dora Stern, a tor of the college Center, is directing the film. He is being assisted by Duke Earl and Brian McCourd, both stu-dents, who have been researching the film for the past year, she added.

Originally, the film was expected

Council, which will share in the proceeds from the film and use them for other creative and performing arts projects, will be seeking dona-tions from the public to help with the production costs.

Mrs. Stern said that persons wishing to contribute can send their donations to the Council at P.O. Box M-528, Hoboken, N.J. 67030,

Hoboken parking fee to rise

will probably lose some of its monthly parking customers April 1 when the monthly rental goes up to $35 from $25—and that's exactly what the authority is hoping for.

Joseph Hottendorf, the authority's executive director, said the increase is expected to drive away some of the almost 1,500 monthly customers the authority now has and free some of those spaces for transient parking.

sient needs," said Hottendorf. "The ideal arrangement is to have about 1,200 monthly customers paying $35 a Hottendorf explained that each transient space produces about $45 a month in revenues for the authority. In addition, transient parking is less of an expense to the authority, he ad-

"Before the recent snow storms we had 1,390 monthly parkers, which was more than we should have had," he continued. "Now, we are up to 1,490 for this month and in a real bind for transient space."

According to Hottendorf, the decision to increase the monthly park-ing fee from $25 to $35 was unauthority's commissioners. He said if there are any misgivings they involve whether the increase is high enough to reduce the number of monthly rentals

"If we don't get down to arous the 1,200 figure we will probably seek another increase," he added. "Even at 1,200 monthly customers the authority's income for the remain of the year, based on the new rate, will be about $100,000 less than last authority within eight months. Last August, the authority increased its original monthly fee of $30 to $25.

Hoboken residents recover of $22,000 through city 2/22/78

Hoboken residents saved or got number of complaints for 1977 inback more than $22,000 during 1977 on unsatisfactory home repairs, appliance malfunctions, inferior merchandise, poor workmanship through the city's Consumer Affairs office, Audrey Borg, director, said to-

According to Mrs. Borg, the creased over past years. The Department of Consumer Affairs is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. to handle complaints from local residents. Mrs. Borg can be reached during those times at her City Hall office or by calling 420-2038. At other times she

Loop route 7/2/24/11 The newly restored Willow Avenue bus route - running north and south in the western part of Hoboken - may be the forerunner of more bus service for If western sector residents patronize

the new route, Hoboken's business administrator proposes to combine it with the existing north-south route in the eastern part of the city - the Washington Street line - and also with the municipal crosstown line which bisects both routes.

He would create a loop route, with buses circling the city simultaneously in opposite directions. The $40,000 a year the city now loses on its crosstown line could be diverted to the new route as a subsidy, if necessary.

The problems involved would take skillful negotiation and hard work, but the plan is imaginative and would do much to strengthen Hoboken's notable

Hottendorf notes service on board

After a two-year absence, Otto Hottendorf is again president of the Hoboken Board of Education. Hottendorf was unanimously elected at last night's reorganization meeting, the last such reorganization of a fully elected board for at least several years.

Hoboken voters decided Feb. 14 to return the board to one with trustees appointed by the mayor — voting 1,710 to 1,180 for the change — and at least two years have to elapse before the question can again be placed on the ballot.

Hottendorf has been a member of the Hoboken board since 1950 and says he has the longest service record of any school trustee in Hudson County. He had served as board president from 1972 until 1976 when he was replaced by Mary Stack Gaspar. Mrs. Gaspar ran for re-election but was defeated.

Attending their first board meeting as trustees were Richard England Jr., Robert Wendelken and James Monaco. They replace Mrs. Gaspar, Michael Costello and Anthony DeBari, none of whom ran

"My family did not want me to be resident," Hottendorf told those at the meeting after he was elected.
"But I felt I had a duty to serve so I accepted it."
Elected as vice-president was

The board decided to continue

James Farina.

holding meetings on the second Tues-day of the month at 8 p.m. and to use the Trust Co. of New Jersey as the depository for school funds. Martin Brennan, Hoboken City Council president, was among those who attended last night's meeting.

After congratulating Hottendorf, he said he hoped the council and the board could enter into "a new era of amicable relations. As regards the coming budget which we have not received, I hope we can agree on something that will satisfy the city of Hoboken and not just the individuals involved." Since voters rejected the school budget, the council now can amend the budget as it sees fit. At the request of England, Hot-tendorf set up an ad hoc committee on policy to collect opinions and recom-

"We are required by law to for-mulate policy," Hottendorf told England. "The usual way is to have a consultant who reviews the minutes and then goes over them with the board discussing policy decisions."
But he acceded to England's request saying perhaps the board could accomplish the work without outside

The board also set Monday night for the regular February meeting. The regularly scheduled meeting on Feb. 14 was postponed one day because of the school elections and that was not held because of a lack of Mugh Kilmer, an artist employed by the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program in Hebelson, puts the finishing touches on a mural of the Mutti-Service Center. The mural will be officially dedicated at caremonies temorrow.

Murals add touch to class

Ten Hoboken residents will be hard at work until September on the beautification of municipal facilities as part of a new program under Title 6 through the Hudson County Comprehensive employment and Training Act (CETA) program.

And it's one program that is resulting in more than fresh paint and a few nails. The program is employing six painters, three repairmen and one clerk-typist. One of those painters is also an artist, and his talents are being put to good use.

While the co-workers have been busy putting on coats of fresh paint at the Multi-Service Center in Hoboken, Hugh Kilmer has been putting on some paint of his own — a five foot by eight foott mural of a senior citizen park, scene.

mural of a senior citizen park scene.

The mural is painted on the wall in the senior citizen section of the building at Second and Grand Streets. It will be officially dedicated at ceremonies tomorrow.

According to George W. Crimmins Jr., CETA

director for Hoboken, hiring Kilmer as one of the painters in the CETA program has added a "new painters in the CETA program has added a "new demension" to the project.

"We've taken the word beautification seriously," he said. "Just painting a building and making necessary repairs makes it look claim, nice and a host of other descriptive phrases. But beautiful isn't necessarily one of them. Klimer's murals give our program added depth and brings out the meaning of beautification."

Kilmer, who resides at 1205 Bloomfield St. with his wife, Beth and their four children, is a cofounder of the Hoboken Arts Council. Besides painting, he is also a poet and writer. He is a graduate of Fairfield University, Conn., and was a college instructor of community affairs.

Crimmins said that several other murals are being planned both at the Multi-Service Center and on or in other city buildings.

Amato asks DPW assistant

Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato of

Hoboken wants a helper.

The director said today that he has already discussed the matter with Mayor Steve Cappiello and will take it up with the city council within the next week or two.

"The administrative and field duties of the department are too much for one man," said the director. "I could get by but the result of that is having a department that just gets by, and that's not what I want.

"It is important that the director have a direct influence on the work that is being done both administratively as well as what is happening in the field. And one man can't do both with any degree of efficiency." When asked if he planned on asking the council cussed his candidates with a to recreate the position of deputy director, Amato council.

said he hadn't thought about titles.
"I need an assistant," he asserted. "I don't really care what they call the job — assistant, deputy director, chief foreman, whatever. What I need is someone to whom I can delegate authority." and be sure that they will carry out my orders.

For many years Public Works was the only

For many years Public Works was the only city department with a deputy director. The post was held until last year by Carmen Cutillo. However, the job and Cutillo went out shortly after the mayor fired former Director Raphael P. Vitale and replaced him with Amato. The city council eliminated the deputy director's position from the department a few months later.

Amato said he had several persons in mind for the job if the mayor and council go along with granting him an assistant. However, he hasn't discussed his candidates with either the mayor or the council.

The stars still shine in the Garden State

Is that Farrah and her glorious mane making a film in Hoboken?

By WINNIE BONELLI

ome back, all is forgiven. The film industry might not be your typical prodigal son, but stop and remember movies were conceived and weaned in the cradle called Fort Lee. Like many adolescents, films expanded, grew up and with any growth comes change and sometimes new horizons. For fledging filmmakers California held a promise of greener pastures or at least

The fact stands now that New Jersey is actively courting movie companies back to the East Coast and received the needed support through the establishment of the New Jersey Motion Picture and Television

There is a new man Joseph Friedman at the helm. The Montclair resident has occupied the executive directership for the relatively short period of five weeks. His credentials have adequately prepared him for the challenge beginning with a nine year Paramount Pictures affiliation as vice-president plus the same status with American Film Theatre and as Sir Lew Grade's film representative in America.

"It is conceivable that if everything breaks right by April or May we might have three or four movies being filmed simultaneously," Friedman optimistically

So far the commission, under the guidance of Pulitzer Prize winning playwright Sidney Kingsley has tallied an impressive list of credits beginning with William Friedkan's "The Sorcerer," "Eyes" starring Faye Dunaway and "Slow Dancing in the Big City" directed

Woody Allen headed for Englewood when shooting "Annie Hall" while the cast of "Hair" departed for Jersey City and a lady known for her glorious mane, Farrah Fawcett-Majors, came to Hoboken to make the upcoming film "Somebody Killed Her Husband." Top this off with "Ripoff," which was filmed in Weehawken and West New York and combined the talents of Karen Black, Edward Albert Jr., Lee Van Cleef and Robert Alda and it adds up to lights, camera, action plus increased

What is the attraction and why did Raymond R. Homer and Carlo Ponti, the producers behind "Ripoff" chose New Jersey? In a nutshell they required some special physical demands that sites in the Garden State were easily able to accommodate contended Sidney Kingsley, chairman of the commission.

Kingsley explained, "The film revolves around a jewel robbery and a crucial but difficult scene involved a night time car chase. The results were better than anyone hoped for when we set that one up in West New

What are some of the new movie titles and celebrities area residents might expect to see walking down their neighborhood streets? "I'm not really in a a position to make that information public since there are several film executives, at various levels, who are just looking into what the state has to offer. We don't want these people to think they are being exploited," stated Friedman.

"An episode of this nature happened recently when representatives from the Artists Entertainment Complex visited Trenton. The Complex was simply scouting locations for the filming of "The Senator" and Governor

Brendan T. Byrne extended his hospitality and assured the group of the state's full cooperation. Immediately the news went out via the various reporters assigned to the Statehouse prematurely since no tentative plans were

"Although we are only too glad to help a company publicize their work, the initial decisions and announcements should be made by the movie makers

According to Friedman, the most ambitious project to date will begin next month in Hudson County. Described as a "romantic drama" written by and starring John Herzfeld, the MGM production will be directed by Robert Markowitz. Slated to be filmed in its entirety in New Jersey, the film has a budget which hovers around $4 million.

Two additional facets of the current campaign will be advertisement in two Hollywood trade papers and the preparation of a small brochure entitled "Why New Jersey? which will be distributed to every potential international film maker.

"The commission laid a fine foundation on which I can build. We already have a location library. If a producer needs a waterfall, we can offer him perhaps half a dozen possible locations," said Friedman.

"An important part of the commission's job is arranging for permits or what we call the 'red carpet' treatment. Things can get a bit complicated. For example. New York City has five boroughs to contend with, whereas New Jersey boasts 21 counties and 580 What has the response been on the part of these communities both before the crews come in and during the actual filming? "Everybody loves show business and people have had great fun. There have been no adverse effects or incidents whatsoever." commented the executive director.

Also, when it comes to the bottom line, the movie industry will benefit the economy of the state and also provide local employment. This, after all, was one of the top priority in creating the commission.

"As a matter of fact, we are trying to establish a network of contacts throughout the state which could assist on a local level," said Friedman. Volunteers or those with suggestions can write to 1100 Raymond blvd.,

The New Jersey Motion Picture and Television Development Commission, headed by Kingsley and cochaired by Paul Peterson, a film exhibitor, consists of 11 commissioners, who were appointed for their particular expertise and ability to contribute.

Perhaps one of the best-known faces on the commission belongs to actress Celeste Holm. Miss Holm feels a serious responsibility, far beyond the mere formalities of having her name identified with this cause.

"One of the commission tasks is to upgrade the state image. People have unfortunately in the past identified New Jersey with the turnpike and Route 22, which I call Catch-22. Actually there are many beautiful country streams and every variation of site equally appealing," stated the Oscar-winning actress.

"Interior scenes can be filmed inside anywhere, and it doesn't matter what state the set is located in. We have many warehouses which make perfect sets. Even California's appeal of having more sunshine no longer holds any weight since you would not believe the smog hovering over Los Angeles."

"The success of any film is not as dependent on locations as it is on how good the script is, and whether the director and cast capture on film the desired effect. Equally important are the unions and their locals which have been very cooperative," she explained.

Miss Holm, it seems, practices what she preaches. Her one-woman show entitled "Enter Laughing" will open tonight at the George st. Playhouse in New Brunswick and is scheduled to run through Mar. 12.

Hoboken school budget. what is bottom line?

Although both the Hoboken City Council and board started talking on the budget, eager to resolve the matter of the 1978-79 school board budget which was rejected by local voters last week, it may still be a few weeks before the two sides can sit down and start their negotiations.

"The problem is information, or the lack of it," said Councilman-at-large Robert A. Ranieri who is chairing the council's negotiating committee. "No one is exactly sure of what budget figure they are negotiating on — $4.073 million which was on the ballot or $3.3 million which the Hudson County superintendent of schools says is the correct figure."

"If the state says the correct figure is $3.3 million then the negotiations will be concluded swiftly, Ranieri continued. "The council will accept that figure without further

'However, if it is decided that the correct figure is the $4 million one then some cuts will have to be made and the school board can appeal it to the state if it wants any of the funds reinstated."

Ranieri explained that the budget with the $4 million figure was defeated by the voters last week and the council felt "duty bound" to make some reductions in it.

Serving on the council's Ranieri said the council felt it would be wise to wait until the state comissioner of education, Fred Burke, decided the issue before the negotiating team with Ranieri are Council President Martin J. Brennan and Second Ward Councilman Walter S. Cramer.

Auditors to aid Hoboken with school budget 2/2/1/75

A team of auditors from the state Department of Education is being sent into Hoboken to help out the Board of Education with its 1978-79 budget that was defeated by local voters Feb. 14.

Hoboken school board administrators were notified of the pending visit by state Education Commissioner Fred G. Burke in a letter to the school board sent two weeks ago. The board members, however, won't be officially briefed on the contents of the letter until tonight's meeting.

The board is facing a budget gap of at least $2.5 million for 1978-79 or at least $2.5 million for 1978-79 because the state has refused to grant a waiver of the "caps." In his letter, Burke suggests to the board that a special election be held leaving the question of the additional funds up to local voters.

The board will hold a public caucus at 7 p.m. and it's regular meeting at 8 p.m. in The Wallace School. The meeting was to have been held last week but was postgoard because only two board members showed up.

In a reply letter to Burke from Robert W. Taylor, the Hoboken school board's attorney and financial adviser, the commissioner was advised that it was unlikely that the local board would approve the referendum.

Taylor also informed Burke that it was his opinion that the local school district would not be able to function during the 1978-79 school year with the $2.5 million in budget cuts that were made to eliminate the "cap" overage.

Hoboken to clear snow at night,

Hoboken Public Works crews will be working up to midnight starting to-day to help beef up the snow removal operations, Director Andrew J. Amato said today.

And the director is asking that local motorists cooperate by not parking their cars where the snow

According to the director, the city expects to get more done during the night tour than during the day. He said that is when most people are home and available to move their parking in the city during the day," he continued. "They park and go, and then can't be reached to move their vehicles. So we have to tow them if we want them out of the way."

Crews worked both Saturday and yesterday on snow removal. Another reason for the shift is that the city will be testing out a new piece of equipment it is thinking about buying and is taking advantage of the week-long free test to get as much work out as possible. The Another reason for the do as much work out as possible. The equipment is a heavy-duty backhos. "The company claims it's almost indestructible," the director coa-tinued. "Well, I've got the men to test that claim."

Hoboken would add parking beard jobs

TRENTON - THE Assembly voted, 63-0, yesterday and sent to the Senate legislation which would permit Hoboken to appoint its traffic engineer or chief of police to its parking authority.

Assemblyman Thomas A. Gallo,

Hoboken Democrat, sponsored the statute prohibiting any officer or employee of a municipality or county from serving on a parking authority.

If enacted by the Senate and signed by Gov. Byrne, the authority could appoint Hoboken Police Chief George Crimmins or Traffic Engineer James Caulfield to the

By a 67-0 vote, the Assembly enacted a bill sponsored by Speaker Christopher J. Jackman, West New York Democrat, extending workmen's compensation benefits for civil defense volunteers.

Basic right / 2/25/71

Today the dispute is in Hoboken, tomorrow it could be anywhere; and that is why what happens in Hoboken is important everywhere.

Russell W. Carpenter, the Hudson County superintendent of schools, has asked the state education commi to order a new vote on Hoboken's school the absentee ballots informed voters that $6.1 million was to be raised by local taxes. Voting machine ballots in-formed voters $4.03 million was to be

Carpenter calculated that $3.3 million was to be raised by taxes.

Voters defeated the budget. Carpenter reasons they did not have the proper information on which to base a decision and so a new election should be

The defeated budget is now being studied by the Hoboken City Council which has indicated it will accept a budget based on the $3.3 million figure, reasoning the voters would have accepted the lower figure.

There are those who argue that the City Council is right and that it would be foolhardy to spend $13,000 just to go through the motions of another school budget vote.

Carpenter disagrees. He insists that a basic right is at stake, the right of the school district voter to cast his ballot on the school budget, based on accurate information. Carpenter is right.

If the City Council is permitted to substitute its guess concerning how the voters would vote rather than the actual voter decision then a dangerous precedent has been set.

If the state education commissioner permits this confusion to be resolved by compromise, then he is opening the door for future compromises which could dilute or even dissolve the right of the school district voter to cast his ballot on the school budget, based on accurate in-

Hoboken leads rehabilitation parade

Future urban planning, according apartment units since 1972. These to Hoboken Mayor Steve Cappiello, former five-story tenements now must recognize the work of have modern kitchens, spacious "neighborhood preservers" and rooms, elevators, garbage compac-strive to bolster those areas that have long been the heart of urban ex-istence.

In addition, 754 new housing units

Success in Hoboken's case has More than 500 Hoboken amounted to the rehabilitation of 1,300 homeowners have taken out special

Neighborhood people, Cappiello have been constructed and an old fac-said, are the "ones who are seeing it rough; they are the secret of our suc-decay — is now a 173-unit low- and ment this resulted in the improvement of 1,800 additional housing units.

A total of 35 percent of the housing stock in the city has been rehabilitated during the last five years, Cappiello said. Contralises social services now emenate from a new $1.5 million center and the city has invested $10 million to replace its antiquated water maters.

Hoboken builds for the future

For merchants, the more people

the better their business.

The president of the Hoboken Retail Bureau, Charles Lallo, feels that Hoboken's new image, as a good place to live and work, greatly con-tributed to making 1977 a "great business year" and the prospects for 1978 even better.

'The employment picture in the city appears to be getting better," he continued. "More people working means more people spending money

Our physical surroundings are good. We have new apartment buildings, numerous renovated apartment buildings and more people than ever wanting to live in Hoboken."

The general rehabilitation of the city hasn't been limited to the owners of residential property, Lallo pointed out. Merchants have gotten the bug as well and a number of them have done extensive renovation and modernization work to make their establishments more pleasing to the eye and attractive to their customers.

In recent years, night shopping has been on the decline in the city because residents did not feel safe on the streets after dark. But ad police protection along the main shop-ping thoroughfare at night has en-couraged both merchants and shop-pers to again put their evenings to

"New high intensity lights and visible police patrols have started to turn that decline around," Lallo continued. "And our crime rate in general has dropped throughout the

Lallo said that many local merchants have started to return to some "old fashioned business values" making sure their customers are pleased with the purchases and doing their best to stand behind the merchandise they sell.

Lailo added that the city has also been very cooperative with the bureau and its various promotions, es-pecially the new Christmas lighting program. The bureau has purch permanent decorations in a joint venture with the city. The city had electrical connections installed on the street lighting poles and pays for the cost of the electricity used during the

These improvements, made through a combination of low-interest home improvement loans, federally subsidized rehabilitation and federal and state financed public improve-ments have made Hoboken America's Comeback Town, according to Cap-warns that while Hoboken may have won its battle, America is looing the war to preserve its great cities. To stem this tide, Capplello said that urban planners must reevaluate the high-rise dreams of real estate interests and chambers of commerce.

"We must invest in a timely and total ways in received in the state of the stat

"We are dealing mostly with local people who we want back as customers. The best way of insuring their return is to make sure they are completely satisfied with their purchases."

Lallo added that the city has also have years connected with the continued and attitude of care that is assumed and attitude of ected of all who live there."

For urban planners to cope with this atmosphere, they must employ a sensibility to deal with the business sector — the banks, the builders and the developers — and the sensitivity electrical connections installed on the street lighting poles and pays for the cost of the electricity used during the holiday season.

Laffo is the new president of the Retail Bureau. He replaced Charles Heitner. Lallo extended the bureau's thanks to Heitner, William Roth and James Ungerleider for their assistance in the transition of administrations.

the developers — and the sensitivity to deal directly with the community.

"Neighborhood preservation comes from the people," Cappiello concluded. "It seeks to maintain the cultural diversity and stimulation of urban life. It remembers walking to work, hanging out on the street corner, the softball game on the corner lot. It is a cry against destruction and a cry against boredom. It is the affirmation of the integrity of the working people. It is the hope of survival." people. It is the hope of survival."

the rehabilitation of run-down brownstones such as these on Bloomfield Street between 13th and 14th

Authority, council to meet % on Hoboken parking ills

Hoboken's parking problems, es-pecially in the northern section of the meeting its primary goal. The city, aren't getting any better. But a joint attack by the Hoboken Parking Authority and the City Council's Transportation Committee could result in begin working on a long-range plan a long-term plan that might help.

According to Joseph Hottendorf, executive director of the authority, the commissioners expect fo formally contact the city within a few weeks and ask that a series of regular meetings be held with the council's Transportation Committee to begin work on a long-range off street parking plan with the council."

Councilmen Anthony H. Romano.

The authority's basic problem is that the income from its three parking garages does not cover the a payments on the $8.5 million bond issue floated to build them. The city guaranteed the payment of the bonds and has been picking up whatever the authority is short.

And the authority has been short for several reasons. The original con-Walter S. Cramer and Thomas Kennedy are the committee.

"The authority's main concern is to develop off-street parking facilities," he continued. "However it's financial position because of the problems it has been having with garage revenues has prevented it from but tenants of the two weren't required to take the parking space.

According to Hottendorf, the developers owe the authority more than $430,000 in parking space rentals under the terms of the contract. The authority is suing them and is supposed to go to court within a few weeks.

Hottendorf said that in spite of the problems, the authority has been making steady financial improve-ments. He said it expects to make a minimum of $100,000 this year over last year just on monthly rentals by increasing the fee from $25 to $35 as of April 1. The authority has 1,490 monthly customers, but wants to trim that number to approximately 1,200 and thereby increase the number of spaces for transients. The authority averages approximately $45 a month from every transient space.

Hoboken may give tax breaks on non-residential properties

The owners of non-residential property in Hoboken may soon be able o make major improvements without having to pay any additional taxes on the work for five years after it has

Councilman-at-large Robert A.
Ranieri said today that he will ask the city's Law Department to prepare such an ordinance in time to present it at the March 15 council meeting.

'Under a new state law municipalities have been given the op-tion of granting tax abatements to the owners of industrial and commercial sus that adopting the law local-

Ranieri said that if Hoboken is to encourage economic development and lure new industries to the city it should have something to offer. He added that if the city is to keep the industry it has industry too, must be given a reason for staying.

"Expansion and modernization of facilities means higher assessments," he continued. "Coupled with our already high tax rate, we present a discouraging atmosphere for reloca-tion or expansion. However, we have stabilized the tax rate, we hope to be able to decrease it, and with the tax batement we can make Hoboken

The councilman said there would not be any maximums imposed on the extent of renovations or moderinization that could be done. He added that there probably would not be any minimums either. But if there were they would be very low so as not to discourage small businesses from taking advantage of the law.

"There is a certain amount of work involved to the individual ap-plications will probably be judged on their own merit," he said. "An abate-ment for a few hundred dollars wouldn't be worth the east of prepar-ing the paperwork."

Ranieri said that the abatements would be subject to the approval of the city assessors, the City Council, the state Department of Community Affairs and its Division of Local Government Services.

Hoboken aiready has an orresidential property to get abatements for work they do to improve their properties. The councilman said he is also going to have that ordinance amended to eliminate the "blighted area" term from it and replace it with "housing in need of "The phrase is objectionable," he asserted. "But we were required to include it under the state law. Now, the state law has been changed so that the objectionable phrase can be stricken and replaced with the new

Hoboken occupancy law ruled unconstitutional

Hoboken's ordinance requiring landlords to obtain certificates of occupancy when they want to rent their apartments has been set aside as unconstitutional and vague by Hudson County Judge John J. Grossi Jr.

Theodore Lobsez, who owns 24 apartments at 725, 727 and 729 Washington St., brought the action to set aside the ordinance approved by the Hoboken mayor and council last May 4. He represented himself.

Hoboken, which claimed the measure was designed to insure compliance with city codes and prevent overcrowding, was represented by Carl Schaeffer.

Judge Grossi said it was exces- parently similar to the Ho sively punitive and denied apartment measure, was superseded by feder owners their constitutional right by preventing them from the profitable use of their property while awaiting city inspection. They could be fined up to $50 per day or get maximum 90-day

A West New York ordinance, ap-

regulations in a case involving a federally-subsidized apartment project, according to a ruling by Superior Court Judge Thomas S. O'Brien last year. That decision did not directly pass on the validity of the ordinance

MAYOR FOR THE DAY — Boy Scout John Eyskens of Troop 48 in Hoboken (left) takes over mayoral duties as part of Scouts in Govern-ment Week observance. With him are William Van Wie, mayor's aid (center), and Edwin Chius, acting mayor.

11 Scouts run Hoboken for a day

Eleven Hoboken Boy Scouts and Cub Scouts got a taste of what it is like to run a municipality yesterday as the city observed "Scouts in Government Week" and allowed the youngsters to take over various city offices and jobs.

John Eyskens of Troop 68 at Our Lady of Grace sat in for Mayor Steve Cappiello for the day. He was assisted by Edwin J. Chius, the city's business administrator, who is serving as acting mayor until Cappiello comes back from his visit to the Dominican

Eyskens had a second aide, Alexander Del Rio of Pack 68, also from it will have to be plural.

Amato is opening a Fifth Ward chapter of his Fourth Ward

Democratic Association and plans to open a third club in another ward sometime this summer, maybe in the Third Ward, the director said. The new club room is located on

Ninth Street, between Garden Street and Park Avenue. The Fourth Ward

Our Lady of Grace, who served as the mayor's confidential aide for the day William Van Wie, the official

Also participating in the day were Michael Bruno, Troop 159 Knights of Columbus, police chief; John Milne, Pack 86 of St. Francis, police captain; Nino Giacchi, Troop 20 of St. Ann's, fire chief; Thomas Gallagher, Pack 20 of St. Ann's, deputy fire chief; Milton Ortiz, Troop 86, St. Francis, judge; John Servello, Troop 150. Knights of Columbus, law director; Vincent Evens, Pack 54 of Hoboken Housing Authority, Recreation director: Domingo Ortiz, Troop 154

Amato ward club multiplies

them. He'd like to be mayor when Cappiello staps down sometime in the future. But the new clubs serve another purpose which Amato feels is more important at this time.

made up of people from all over the city," he said. "By opening units in other wards we're making it easier

"My club in the Fourth Ward is Hoboken Housing Authority, Public Works Director; and Kevin Strunk, Troop 11 of Hoboken Community Church, finance director.

The scouts were treated to lunch by the city following their morning of

Hoboken bike path found § loaded with state money 7/28/78

The Hoboken Council, which had been seeking a $30,000 federal grant to be made available for the project. construct a bicycle path along River Road, is now re-designing its plans

The Hoboken Players will present

The Hoboken Players will present
"Any Old Rags" March 5 at 1 p.m. in the Hoboken High School auditorium.
There is an admission fee, but children under five will be admitted free. The group includes Isabel Casales, Albie Cavener, Thomas
LaBruno, Elaine Lawton, Donna
Marnell and Nancy Marnell.

having their own club."

Players set 'Rags'

The city has been working on the idea for the past year and a half and was designing the path to meet the limit of the $30,000 in federal funds that were available. Councilman Robert Ranieri, a prime mover of the project, said he was delighted to hear from the state, which allocates the funds, that it has unspent money for that purpose which it can make available to Hoboken.

"With that kind of money," said Ranieri, "We can alter our origin plans to provide a safety barrier for both bicyclists and joggers. Joggers have been using River Road at all times of the day and night, he said.

In another business at last night's council caucus, representatives from the State Department of Transportstion were unable to meet with the councilmen on redevelor for the lower waterfront area. Ranieri said Fred Bado, director of the Community Development Agency, will arrange another conference data.

At tomorrow's regular council meeting, Ranieri said the city will approve its semi-annual payment of $345,000 for the interest on bonds issued by the Hoboken Parking

Recreation needs listed 89 3/24/78

the beginning of something good last night.

The commission held a public meeting to gather ideas from residents about what recreation programs citizens think are needed in the town. About 80 persons crowd into a second-floor room at the public library to tell the commissioners exactly what they want.

This was "really just a bagis-ning," Commissioner Sue Newman said after the meeting. "We've got to find some way to make these sugges-

Earlier, she had told the crowd "If things don't happen, its because we don't make them happen."

But she was quick to point out that the city presently has only about 50 cents per person allocated annually for recreation activities. The program at two recreation centers has a budget of $30,000, of which $40,000 is used for salaries and only $20,000 for arts and crafts materials buses, flyers, trophies and whatever else makes up a good recreation

Part of the meeting was set aside for a workshop session, with the group breaking up into five ganels to discuss recreation for pre-schoolers, elementary students, high school students, adults and senior citizens.

The Hoboken Recreation Com-mission fervently hopes Hoboken saw school activities were a film program on weekends and holidays, better and safer playground facilities, and lec-

> For grammar school age youngsters mini recreation centers within walking distance of various neighborhoods were suggested, along with publicizing better the various public library programs. This group also said an excellent recreational program, one for all ages, would be a city marathon. The Hoboken Jay-Cees said they would be willing to subsidize

tures and workshops on childhool for

Teenagers said they would like more dances, including some cheduled for the uptown section, better promotion of the PAL programs, increased bowling and tennis and conThe adult committee questioned

why the Hoboken Board of Education's liesure program was being phased out. That included high school equivalency, English as a se-cond language and reading courses. They also requested that the Young Mens Christian Association permit use of its facilities for women.

Seniors hoped there could be a theater program they could participate in, as well as arts and crafts. They also suggested better attempts be made to reach those elderly persons not living in senior citizens projects. Also proposed was an "in-vite a senior citizens to dinner" program that would have reside playing dinner host occasionally to

Fires in Hoboken keep 2 cities' firemen busy

Several fires in Hoboken kept firefighters busy through the night and early morning, officials reported. A resident of one building was critically burned and a patrolman was injured attempting to rescue a family from their burning building in spearate fires. At the same time, Union City fire units battled an uptown blaze while Hoboken units were occupied elsewhere early today.

Hoboken police said a man identifled only as R. Terrebachia, 65, received first, second and third degree burns in a 9 p.m. blaze in his apartment at 400 First St. Terrebachia was being detained at St.

Mary Hospital in critical condition.

An hour later, Patroiman John Picurro dashed into a three-family house at 6 Paterson Ave., to rescue the only family living there when he was overcome by smoke, police said.

Picurro was taken to St. Mary Hospital and detained in antisfactory condition. Police said the family in the building got out safely.

At 4:22 a.m., police said, a general alarm fire broke out in a garage at 556 Fourth St., quickly spread to houses back of the garage on

An hour and 20 minutes later Union City firefighters were called to battle a Hoboken blaze in a multiple dwelling building at 203 14th St.

Hoboken trying services of contract dog-catcher

As of today, when Hoboken Public Club is located at 550 First St.

Works Director Andrew J. Amato thinks or talks about his political club it will have to be plural.

Club is located at 550 First St.

Does the director have future political ambitions? Definitely — and he's told Mayor Steve Cappiello about

Hoboken is negotiating with the Associated Humane Societies of Newark to take over the dog-catch and animal care responsibilities

the city, Health and Welfare Director
James Farina said today.

According to the director, the agency is "highly regarded among animal lovers as being 'responsible' and taking good care of the animals it

"The city hasn't had a fully operational dog-catching and animal care service for some time," he con-tinued. "We have attempted to use our own personnel and equipment but didn't work out. There were complaints of improper treatment, and then personnel problems." Farina said that although the negotiations haven't been completed. the Humane Societies would provide daily coverage in the city Monday through Friday during the normal business day. At other times, such as would have someone on call to conto the city as needed.

is being used on a temporary basis through April to see how its service works and if the city would be satisfied with it.

"We are also thinking about a doc registration drive," the director coninued. "There are a lot of dogs in the city who are not licensed and they present a problem for the city.

"Unlicensed dogs can't be checked for rabies shots in the event of a dog bite case, putting the victim in the position of having to undergo a series of painful injections. Unlicensed dogs can't be returned to their owners because the city's doesn't have any way of determining who the owners are.'

Farina estimated that approx imately three-quarters of the dogs in the city are not licensed.

Hoboken will try to draft acceptable occupancy law

certificate of occupancy ordinance even though a court has ruled that it is

Thomas Calligy, assistant city attorney, said today that an effort wil be made to revamp the ordinance to that it meets constitutional requirments. However, the recent decist of the court will have to be review first to determine the grounds on which it was set down.

"The feeling of the city's housing squad is that the ordinance was an effective tool for the city, tenants and property owners," he said. "It otected tenants by making sure the partments they were about to move to met the minimum standards. And it gave the property owner certified proof that on the day tenants moved in they had an apartment that was up to

Hoboken's ordinance prevented property owners from renting out vacant apartments to new tenants un-less they had first obtained a certificate of occupancy from the hous-ing squad. This entailed an inspection of the apartment by the squad. If the apartment was up to code standards the certificate would be issued. If not, the owner would be advised what repairs had to be made and would not te until the correcget the certificate until the correc-tions had been made and verified by a Calliny said that since the ordinance was set down in County Court, the city could appeal the deci-sion to a higher court. However, he added, it would be simpler to determine which portion of the ordinance is unconstitutional and to change it. "If we can't do that we can always put together a new ordinance patterned after municipal ordinances that have been challenged in the courts and have stood up," he continued. "There are a few from South Jersey who have such ordinances, according to our chief housing inspector (Michael Curcio). Of course, what might stand up in district court in South Jersey might not here. That's the chance that is taken."

Calligy said he would discuss the matter today with Carl Schaeffer, the assitant city attorney who prepared the original ordinance.

In ruling the ordinance unconstitutional, County Judge John J. Grossi Jr. said it deprived landlords of the right to the profitable use of their property while waiting for the city inspector to come around and make his inspection.

Hoboken rent rule struck down

A judge yesterday struck down as illegal and unconstitutional a Hoboken city ordinance requiring landlords to obtain certificates of occupancy before renting their apartments. The ordinance is said to be almost identical to one in effect in West New York, and the ruling leaves doubt about its validity. It was not immediately known if Hoboken would appeal the ruling. "This ordinance is vague and it is not the least onerous way to insure the result desired," said Hudson County Court Judge John J. Grossi Jr. in rejecting the ordinance. Hoboken's mayor and council approved the ordinance May 4, 1977, for the purpose of insuring that city housing codes were complied with and to prevent over-occupancy of apart-

It required landlords of apartment houses to apply for and obtain from the city certificates of occupancy for each apartment they wanted to rent each time it was rented.

Once a landlord applied for the certificate of occupancy, the city had 10 days to inspec-tions the flat. During that time, nothing could be done with the dwelling unit which would cause a loss of revenue to the owners.

Non-compliance with the ordinance subjected landlords to fines of up to $50 per day each day the ordinance was violated and/or up to 90 days in jail.

The judge said the fines potentially could exceed the $500 maximum for such fines llowed in such cases under New Jersey law and were thus illegal.

Attorney Theodore Lobsenz, owner of 24 partments at 725, 727 and 729 Washington st., represented himself as plaintiff in the case, asking that the ordinance be thrown out. Carl Schaeffer represented the City of

Judge Grossi held that the ordinance was an excessively punitive way to enforce the city housing codes and that it forced landlords to. suffer unnecessarily the profitable use of their property while, awaiting inspection. He also said the ordinance;

The judge said the ordinance denied apartment owners their constitutional right to due New York.

West New York's certificate of occupancy ordinance has also been the subject of litigation. Superior Court Judge Thomas S. O'Brien ruled the ordinance was superceded by federal regulations in the case of Overlook Terrace Apartments vs. West New York. Overlook is a federally subsidized housing project. He did not, however, rule on the validity of the ordinance itself.

Mayor Anthony Del'ino said at least some parts of the ordinance are still in effect in West

Which is the real Hoboken budget? 2/28/78

please stand up?

Following the format of the television game show, a state Department of Education official will examine the three versions of the Hoboken school board's budget and decide tomorrow which one is the real article.

Included in the ruling of the official in the division of controversies and disputes will be a decision about whether Hoboken will have to stage another election on the board's budget.

The decision is necessary because superintendent the board, the county superintendent of schools and the state education department have all arrived at different totals for the amount to be ation may be even higher than the sioner of education.

academic year.

The board's version calls for the largest tax levy, some $4.07 million. The state says the figure is actually $3.5 million while Russell Carpenter. the county superintendent, figures the total to be $3.3 million.

Robert W. Taylor, the board's attorney, said at last night's board meeting the problem stems from the placement in the budget and computation of anticipated revenues, the total school aid to be received by the

Will the real Hoboken budget raised by taxation for the 1978-79 present $4 million figure in the

Based on tomorrow's decision. headed by Robert Wendelken, will meet with the City Council Thursday to discuss the budget.

The confusion over the budget has left the council in a quandry, according to Councilman Robert Ranieri, who represented Mayor Steve Cappiello and the council at the meeting.

Once a budget has been defeated at the polls, the board submits it to He claims he followed the council which decides what the Carpenter's instructions in the place- school budget will be. If the board the school budget.

Ranieri said the document sent to the board's school finance committee, the councilmen lacked two of the necessary three signatures and was missing vital information about anticipated revenues. "We're being asked to act on a budget we're not at all certain is the correct budget," Ranieri said.

Ranieri told the board the council wanted the missing figures for past budgets as well as an exact breakdown of the anticipated up to "an even $500,000," Ranieri said. "Usually figures are not cool and even like that. This seems to be an estimate while it should be exact."

der the listing of state aid to be it.'
received by the board, every single line item had the words "left blank" written in, instead of the anticipated

"That is the reason, in my opinion, that Mr. Carpenter did not sign the budget. That is why Mr. (Thomas) Gallo (the school board secretary) did not sign the budget," Ranieri said. Gallo's signature had been placed on the budget by Taylor, at Gallo's in-struction, Taylor said.

What most concerns Ranieri and the council, however, is which version of the amount to be raised by taxation

Ranieri pointed out that the difference between the Carpenter estimate and the board's amounts to just over $8.50 on the tax rate.

'That's the difference between Hoboken existing or ceasing to exist," Ranieri also complained that un- Ranieri said. "I make no bones about

In other action at last night's meeting, the board heard an appeal from Michael Donofrio, president of the Hoboken Teachers' Association, to act on the payment of retroactive premiums due the State Health Benefits Commission Bureau.

Although Taylor said that the matter was going to be discussed at a March 10 hearing before Hudson County Superior Court Judge Frederick Kentz, he later said that no specific issues had been decided as vet for the court hearing.

The teachers say the pureau has told the board that if $12,000 in retroactive benefit premiums is not paid by April, then it would drop all those in the system covered by the plan, teachers, clerks and janitors.

On the ball 1/ 3/1/19

Congratulations to Assemblyman Thomas A. Gallo of Hoboken for calling for public hearings by the Assembly Municipal Government Committee on legislation providing tax credits for businessmen participating in certain community services. The legislation, on the surface, encourages business participation in community services and allows tax credit for such contributions. However, the legislation also permits the state to rip off 3 to 5 percent of the industrial contributions to charitable organizations and to dictate which charities get how much.

Hearings definitely are needed. We hope that Assemblyman Gallo will insist that at least one hearing is held in Hudson County and that it is held at a time that will permit industrial and charitable organization leaders to attend and join in an open discussion of the merits and liabilities of this proposed legislation.

Hoboken pays

Hoboken has paid $298,791 of the $375,568 principal and interest due on the Parking Authority's $8.5 million bond issue. The payment was due

The remaining $76,777 of the payment was made by the Parking

Authority, which has promised to con-tribute a minimum of $224,000 this year toward the bond payments. To keep that promise the authority must come up with at least $147,000 for the Sept. 1 payment.

Joseph Hottendorf, the parking bonds

State rules out Hoboken tally

Order new school budget votel

Roboksa voters will be soing back to the pails to vote on the 1978-79 school beard budget. State Education Commissioner

Prod G. Burte has accepted the recommendation of Hudson County Superintendent of Schools Russell Carponier and ordered a new election aboken school board on the board to stage the election on or will be before March 26, the last Tuesday in milition.

City and school board officials were notified of the decision yesterday by Joseph Zach, head of the state Education Department Division of Disputes and Controversies. Formal letters were also being sent to both the city and school board, giving a formal explanation of the decision.

school board will be working with Ranieri, chairman of the special Carpenter and representatives of the council committee created to state Education Department on a new budget proposal and the amount to be budget that was defeated Feb. 14, mised for the council committee created to negotiate with the school board on the budget that was defeated Feb. 14,

Councilman-at-large Robert A.

cancelled last night's meeting

the vicinity of $3.3 to $3.5 That budget figure was $4.073 million and was soundly defeated.

Several days before the Feb. 14 election, Carpenter notified the school board that the $4.073 figure was incorrect. It should have been $3.3 million. He instructed the board to make every possible effort to alert the public to the figure. No action was

Carpenter, when notified by former school board President Mary Gaspar that no action had been taken to change the budget figure, wrote to Commissioner Burke and recommended a new election for the budget

Hoboken has 7 police cars 3/2/18

head of the public safety garage, car, even an unmarked car."
three of the disabled cars should be The city used to reimbu repaired and ready for work by next men who used their own cars by givweek. But five others have to be sent ing them gas. But orders from the out for extensive front end work and state have put an end to that. Since he did not know when they would be

Although most divisions of the department have at least one vehicle for their men, some, like the detective bureau, are feeling the pinch. Contributing to the latter is a ban on the use of private vehicles. "We've had problems like this before," remarked one bureau cars are in working order and it will not having enough cars by using our be at least a week before there is any improvement.

Included in the case of the cars of According to Sgt. Mario Mercado, cars are less conspicious than a police

The city used to reimburse the Hoboken gets $120,000

THE JERSEY JOURNAL, FRIDAY, MARCH 3, 1978

for a bicycle path

Revised plans for a more and Walter Cramer agreed to go back elaborate bicycle path for Hoboken should be in the hands of the state by the end of this month. Officials hope to have the ribbon cutting ceremony sometime in early summer.

The councilmen conferred with Renneth Pai, a CDA planner and Robert Donly of Wayne, an architect. With the additional funds "We can the city buys tax-free gas, the state says it can be used only in vehicles owned by the city. And because they aren't getting the gas, most men aren't using their own cars.

Chief George W. Crimmins, however, didn't feel that the seven out-of-service cars were hampering the department's effectivene

"If we lose a few more we could have a problem," the chief continued, the cars that are currently available. Eight cars are adequate about six feet wide and the waterfront area will be landscaped. The Hudson Street segment will be painted lines on the street with painted warnings to motorists that the route is used by bicyclists and joggers.

Ranieri said the overgil route will be over two miles in length, the longest in the county and in any urban area. He recalled that the project ac-area. He recalled that the property tually started when he read a news government was making funds

Three spectators at last night's meeting held at city hall were Thomas Vezzetti, Robert King and

Charles De Fazio.

the city's public safety director, is again considering the appointment of a separate public safety director.

The mayor has budgeted $21,500 in the 1978 public safety department budget for a director. He has held the post without pay, taking a salary only Cappiello says he wants to recreate it as a separate post because he would like, due to his duties as According to Edwin J. Chius, city prepare the budget with the mayor, Cappiello does plan to name someone to the post but probably not until sometime in late summer.

The entire $21,500 isn't going to stay marked for the director's salary," he said. "Some of it has already been switched to help pay for the overtime we incurred during the two recent snowstorms. But that was done because the mayor decided that he wasn't going to make the appointment now, and we needed to take funds from somewhere to make up for the cost of the snow removal

He has already trimmed portions of the budget to the tune of $85,000.

Cappiello may name safety chief

Mayor Steve Cappiello of That money will be used to pay the last year. The smaller tax base wipes boken, who has been doubling as bills accumulated by the city for over- out most of the reduction. Chius save during the two snow emergencies.

"No spectacular cuts were made," he asserted. "A lot of small cuts were made throughout the budget to amass the $55,000." By the time the city has paid its snow removal bills Chius expects to have about $10.000 left for any snow and December of this year.

"It should be enough," he said.

"Those aren't normally heavy snow months. But if we do have an aculation we won't be in the por tion of having to hire outside equip-ment. The city has budgeted for the purchase of a number of new trucks for Public Works and other departments. The $10,000 will be spent on any overtime needed for snow removal, that's all." Hoboken's budget total for 1978 is tax rate of approximately $2. But the city lost almost $5 million in ratables out most of the reduction, Chius says the actual reduction, all things bein equal, amounted to about 25 cents.

But there is still a big factor that hean't been included in the budget the cost to the city of supporting the local school district for the second half of 1978 — July 1 through Dec. 31. "Since the state has called for a new election on the budget portion of the school budget for 1978-79 we don't know what fleures to be included." he said. "I assume it is going to be somewhere between $3.3 million and $4.073 million. But that's for the entire 1978-79 school year, and a portion of those funds will have to be budgeted by the city in next year's nion that if there were a tax increase at all for Hoboken property owners it would be minimal — no more than $3 removal, that's all."

Hoboken's budget total for 1978 is $18,308,403. That represents an increase in spending of $1,136,158 over 1977. However, the amount to be raised through local taxes for support of the 1978 budget is only $8,422,432. That's $232,438 less than last year. Normally, according to Chius, that would result in a reduction in the tax rate of approximately $2. But the city council chambers at City council chambers at City.

The Hoboken City Council Com-

$2,560,000 from its original budget to beep it within the maximum or "cap" decreed by the state Department of Education.

Councilman-at-large Robert A.
Ranieri, who heads the committee, said today that by using "proper accounting processes" the board's budget, which was turned down Feb. 14 by Hoboken voters, could be istration of the schools, or the

from the budget. However, he added that "someone" was "going to be held accountable" for the calculations. He or someone else, or just what the tion has not yet decided which of three differing figures as to the amount of the budget to be raised by taxes is correct — $4.073 million as reckoned by the board, the state's $3.5 million figure, or Hudson County Superintendent of Schools Russell W. Carpenter's figure of $3.2 million. The council, however, is proceeding negotiations based on the box

p.m. in the city clerk's office.

School budget may be cut more

mittee set up to negotiate with the city's board of education on the 1978-79 school budget expects to cut at least another $800,000 from the amount to be raised by local taxes when the committee meets with

and members tonight.
The board itself had already cut

"We have been able to decipher (Robert W.) Taylor's figures," said the councilmen. "A number of inap-propriate calculations were made on the original budget, not to mention the fact that it wasn't properly presented to the council because the required signatures weren't on it." Taylor is the board's attorney and

The councilman declined to state any specific items that were to be cut did not say whether it would be Taylor figure of $4.073 million. 'We'll adjust to the state's decision when it comes," said Ranieri, "but in the meantime, we have certain procedures that are to be followed by law. Negotiating on the budget is one of the requirements." The meeting will start at 7:30

Hoboken recount confirms victors

build a more complete and safer path

The city now hopes to create a loop, starting at the Erie Lackawanna Terminal which will undergo substantial facelifting. The route will be along River Street to River Road, along River Road to 11th Street and back on Hudson Street to the

There will be a six foot wide path with a special surface for bicyclists.

The path will be spearated from and one that will be more esthetica

caling," said Ranieri.

candidate for the Hoboken school board in the Feb. 14 election, has an additional nine votes as a result of yesterday's recount by the state Department of Education. But the outcome of the election remains un-

That was the preliminary timetable worked out last night as a council committee conferred with architects and representatives of the city's Community Development

The city already had approval for a $30,000 project to be financed through federal funds administered by the state. Earlier this week, however, Hoboken was told that approximately $120,000 could be made available. As a result, Councilmen Salvatore Cemelli, Robert Ranieri

Mrs. Mary Gaspar, the former school board president who was defeated in her bid for re-election, asked for the recount - and paid for it - because of certain voting "irregularities."

Three voters, Nicholas and Michele DiTrizio, and Nunzio Malfetti claimed they had cast votes for Roman on the machine in the first district of the Sixth Ward. But the tally showed that Roman received no votes

The recount was conducted by Eric Erricson, assistant commissioner of the division of disputes and controversies, state Department of Education. His check showed that the machine used in the first district of the Sixth Ward actually registered nine votes for Roman. The fact that was shown on the tally sheets

the polis when they closed at 9 p.m. that day was attributed to "human error." The additional nine votes gave Roman a total of 408, not enough to change his position of eighth in a field of nine candidates.

Only one other machine of the 24 sed in the election was questioned. The machine used in the second district of the Fourth Ward did not have a seal on the inside and no one could explain why it was missing. Two seals are normally used, one outside and that the machine in 6-1 wasn't tampered with," Mrs. Gaspar said. "I can't believe that four people working on the polls could make the same mistake. And if one machine was tampered with maybe they all were. But pursuing this any further would be costly and pointless. "I chalk the whole thing up to ex-perience and accept the results. But that doesn't mean I'll be fading into

Mrs. Gaspar said she planned to remain active in both school and civic citizen," she asserted. "Certain board members have already started cerning me and my actions on the school board. According to a state-ment made by the new board presi-dent, Otto Hottendorf, I was responsi-ble for the budget problems that led to a second election on the budget ques-tion this month. The record clearly shows this to be a lie.

"I was the only member of the board who voted against adopting the $4.073 million budget that was defeated by the voters and declared to be incorrect by the state Department of Education. I consider his unwarranted attack on me as a lienge. I'll be at every possible board meeting to meet that

Chius rips work slackers # 3/1/11

Some Hoboken directors and division heads have been lax in enforcing the working hours of City Hall employes, Business Administrator Edwin J. Chius declared today.

And just to make sure that they all know what those working hours are, Chius has sent a notice to them explaining. Besides reminding the direc-tors and division heads that the work hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., it also directs them to make sure every department has someone on hand during those working hours, especially during lunch hour. "The notice was prompted by my own observations," Chius said. "

have noticed employes coming in late, and others going home early. If a director or division head has given his approval for the employe to do so, it's to be allowed. arranging of the lunch schedule. My own personal experience has shown that some offices are unattended dur-

all right. But the employe doesn't have the right to leave or come in whenever he or she wants to.

"Some employes don't take their lunch hour and instead go home an hour early. If the director or supervisor approves, that's all right with But it should be the superior's decision, not the employes, if that is

"But my main concern is with the ing the lunch hour. That obviously hour at the same time, and that's

No office should be completely unstaffed between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Our new telephone system with direct outside dialing to all city offices demands that all offices be manned at all times. There will not be any exceptions to this."

Chius said if there are instances where a city office isn't manned during the normal working day the person responsible for that office will have to answer to the mayor.

authority's executive director, said he doesn't foresee any problems in meeting the commitment. Parked cars

holding up

Night snow removal operations in Hoboken are working out well, according to Public Works Director Andrew J. Amato, but the city could stand some better cooperation from motorists. 'We're not towing, so it would be a big help if residents who see there is snow removal going on on their blocks would move their cars," said Amato. "We haven't been able to do as thorough a job as we would like because of parked cars."

The night operations started Monday. The department worked on Garden Street. It finished up Garden yesterday and began on Bloomfield Street. Today, Bloomfield will be finished and work will start tonight on Hudson Street, Amato said.

The director issued a warning to all motorist advising them to use extreme caution on some streets and to travel slowly throughout the city

"I have to admit that the street are bad and that we aren't doing too much right now to fix them," he con-tinued. "The department is hampered by an equipment shortage and the fact that there's still a lot of snow on the ground that keeps melting and filling the potholes with water. We can't patch potholes that have water in them, ohe patch would come out as soon as traffic started going over it."

The director said the city has been trying to fill in the larger potholes as they come to the attention of the desartment. But it has meant potnoies as they come to the attention of the department. But it has meant pulling men off other jobs because they had the trick or equipment needed to fix the pothole.

Amato added that as soon as a little more snow melts away his department would start working on the potholes. If the holes can't be patched

If the holes can't be p because of ice or water they will at least be filled with dirt until they dry out and can be patched.

Time limit 99 3/2/19

Now that a court has held unconstitutional a Hoboken ordinance requiring landlords to obtain certificates of occupancy before re-renting apartments, the city is planning to rewrite the ordinance to meet the court's objections.

As we pointed out in this column when the ordinance was first introduced. it imposes an unfair burden on the landlord by requiring him to wait until the city's housing inspector gets around to checking out the apartment, however long that may be. The court agreed with

An inspection delay is not only hard on the landlord, but it is against the public interest because it would keep rentable apartments untenanted.

In re-drafting the ordinance, why not put a reasonable limit on the time within which the reinspection must be made?

Seamen's home preservation requested

By WILLIAM BETZ

An application is scheduled o be presented today to the Historic Sites Section of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) in an effort to save the German Seamen's Mission in Hoboken from destruction, the president of the Hoboken Environment Committee said yesterday.

If the application is ap-

Hoboken test considered for

By Robert Larking

or two away.

moving walkway

A weary commuter in the even

rush hour leaves the train and releaves

while a moving floor or sidewalk

whisks him to his connection a block of a typical commuter, or a scene from a science fiction movie.

The Tri-State Regional Planning Commission, though, notes that such "accelerating walkway systems" are in use in other parts of the United States and some .. reign countries.

The commission may vote Thursday to apply for $2.64 million in federal maybe even in Hoboken.

 "We're trying to find a spot where we could build it," a commission spokesmans aid. "It would be three blocks long, something like

Many factors, including cost and the ability to build it without interfering too much with normal traffic, will determine where the demonstration project would be built. But the

the Port Authority Trans Hudson

(PATH) trains and the Erie-Lackawanna trains at the Hoboken terminal is one of many examples of places in the New York, New Jersey and Connecticut region where it could

At the commission meeting Thursday at 10:30 a.m. in the World

Trade Center in Manhattan, the commission may change its rules to citizen advisory panel if the governor of the state doesn't fill vacancies

Each state is supposed to have six panel members, but only Morris

Pesin, former Jersey City councilman, is still serving from New Jersey, the commission spokesman also vote on a federal grant for a consultant to study train stations, in-cluding those in Bayonne, Hoboken,

Kearny and Harrison, to see how they make provisions for elderly and han-

The commission Thursday will nable it to select members of its prove useful.

within 90 days.

dicapped persons

sman said the distance between ds to build such a system as a demonstration in the tri-state region

That may sound like a daydream

site, in which case it could not be torn down, said Helen Manogue, the environmental group's president.

Current plans call for the sale of the property to a supermarket chain which intends to use it for a parking lot.

The grounds on which the proved, it would result in the environmental group has based Hoboken population was Gernission, located at 64 Hudson its application are the historic man St., being declared an historic significance of the mission and the building's architectural value. Mrs. Manogue said.

> German population in Hoboken." Mrs. Manogue said. ing the two world wars. "In 1907, when the mission was established, well over half the vote on the city's Board of Education budget at the second election this month can get all their questions answered at a public hearing to be held before the day of the election.

This was promised today by the board's attorney, Robert W. Taylor.

See Editorial:

STUDY IT

On Page 14.

item in the budget, we will explain it to him," Taylor declared. Those at-tending will be entitled to tell the

The board probably will decide to have the hearing in the daytime rather than in the evening, Taylor said. He conceded that this would make it difficult for day workers to attend, but observed that people who work evenings find it hard to attend night hearings.

"It's hard to satisfy everyone,"

Meanwhile, board member

James Farina asserted today that the second election is "a waste of money."

"You could knock that budget down to $2, and the woters would still reject it," Farina averred. "That's the history of our elections here, and it's not going to change now."

The budget—actually that part of it which has to be raised by local taxes—has already been turned down by the voters. It will be put up for a vote again, not later than March 28, after the total amount has been recalculated, giving it a different

The state commissioner of educa-

board their views on the propo

"If anyone has a question on any

There'll be a hearing before school voté

first election on the ground that the figure presented to the voters was in error—too high—a fact still vigorously disputed by Taylor.

The board's finance community is revising the budget total in line with a newly received written statement from the county schools superinten-dent, which, Taylor says, commits the state to giving the board certain revenue which it had been unable to

of a formal declaration," Taylor said. In arriving at the higher total for the budget, the board had not figured in this revenue from the state.

If the board as a whole accepts the new budget figures to be recom-mended by its finance committee, the new budget will then be delivered to the county schools superintendent, Russell Carpenter.

If he approves it, and it is approved by the state education commissioner, Fred G. Burke, the board will set a date for a hearing and advertise the budget in newspapers, along with the budget itself. Farina, who is also the city's health and welfare director, declared that since the state ordered the re-run

He said he had hoped to repair the floor of the high school gym which has warped because of leaks in the roof. But he probably will have to forego this expenditure, he said, "since it turns out that the city will have to put all that money when there are so many needed things we could use it on," he declared. "For that money, up $13,000 for another election."

"It seems like a waste to spe

we could even hire another teacher care of the cost.

'We had not had this in the form

describe the history of Hoboken's Germans through-First and foremost, this out this century: a history that building captures within its was stormy at times when miswalls the whole history of the sion residents became the subject of government raids durfounding. Hoboken was the . The construction of the mis- cised from the American lan- ment of the entire area for principal seaport for the North sion represented a cooperative guage, including "sauerkraut" which historic district status in German Lloyd Line and the effort on the part of not only (which was called "liberty being sought, Mrs. Manogu Hamburg-American Line, two Hobokenites of German de- cabbage") and "frankfurter" German shipping companies, scent but also various other (which became "hot dog"), Mrs. Manague pointed out. Fel- contributors, ranging from Eu- Mrs. Manague said. low nationals in Hoboken, out ropean royalty to housewives, of concern for German sailors Mrs. Manague said. whose ships docked in the city.

house them and give their stay arrested by agents of the FBI, said, and the German in America a geographic cen-according to reports published harassment accompanied the in Hoboken's history. 'suspicion of anything German during both wars, Mrs. Man-during the war can be seen in one was filed by the city.

the fact that many German The mission building repre-

As a result of prevailing attitudes, many Germans left whose ships docked in the city. In March, 1942, 68 residents Hoboken during and after decided to build the mission to of the seamen's mission were World War I, Mrs. Manague Seamen's Mission is a valuable at that time. A pattern of remnant of an important stage > historic site status is independent of another application al-A reflection of what it must ready on file with the state for have felt like to be a German historic district status. That

The current application for words were unofficially ex- sents a very important ele-is destroyed, it will create an architectural gap in the whole area," she said.

The area to which the environmental group's president referred includes the Eric-Lackawanna Terminal, the Hotel Victor, and the Garibaldi Building, Mrs. Manogue said.

Mrs. Manague described the prospects for the application's success as "uncertain." She planned to deliver it personally today to Judith Blood, acting supervisor of DEP's Historic Sites Section, she said.

Stevens Park, with luck, to get $25,000 'facelift'

That is the amoung city Health and Welfare Director James Farina has in his 1978 budget for park im-provements, $10,000 more than the city spent last year for that purpose. How much of it is spent on one it submitted for Church Square

Farina said that if the CDA car get approval of its requests for federal funding this year, most of the city's $25,000 will be used to spruce up Stevens Park. If not, a portion of it will be diverted to make some improvements at Elysian Park as well.

The director added that most of the $25,000 will be spent on new park play equipment regardless of what play equipment regardless of what park it goes into. The funds will also cover some landscaping.

Machines' recheck sei for Hoboken

By WILLIAM BETZ

Voting machines used in the Feb. 14 Hoboken Board of Education election are scheduled to be opened today in response to charges by the former board president that they may have been subject to tampering or other irregularity. Mrs. Mary Gaspar, the former president, said yesterday that the machines would be opened at 10 a.m. today at the Emerson Warehouse in Jersey City. At least three people signed affidavits charging they voted for a specific candidate without their votes being registered.

Mrs. Gaspar said. Mrs. Gaspar, an incumbent who was defeated, board, said she does not expect the inspection to result in her re-election.

The voting machines were impounded Tuesday by the state Department of Education, Mrs. Gaspar said, after she agreed to pay for their inspection personally. One of the major issues arising out of the recent election is the incorrect school budget figures which appeared both on the voting machines and on absentee ballots, although both incorrect figures differed from each other. According to Otto Hottendorf, new president of the Hoboken Board, the fact that the figures were incorrect will of itself necessitate a new election. But, Hottendorf said, the election will concern only the budget and not the election

Hottendorf said responsibility for the errors in the budget figures must be borne by Mrs. Gaspar.

Mrs. Gaspar said the resolutions on the ballot were clouded by "deceiving wording," which she had tried in vain to clarify before the election.

Mrs. Gaspar also said she feels there may be a "conspiracy" on the part of Hoboken officials regarding the budget we. She said Mayor Steve Cappiello had sent a letter to Hoboken taxpayers claiming the new budget represented a $25 increase on $1,000 of assessed property valuation when, in fact, the correct figure represented a tax decrease.

It is still unclear what exactly the correct budget figure is, but Mrs. Gaspar referred to the figure of $3,352,252 put forth by the Hudson County Bureau of Elections as correct.

Hottendorf said the state has arrived at a figure about $200,000 higher than the county's figure, and that either could

With a little luck, more than $25,000 will be spent this year on improving Stevens Park, at Fourth and Hudson Streets in Hoboken.

Stevens Park will depend on how successful the Community Development Agency (CDA) is in getting state and federat funds for the improvement of Elysian Park at 11th and Hudson Street. That's where the luck comes

"The CDA has submitted applications for various funds for a general park improvement program for Ely-sian Park," Farina, said today. "The application is much the same as the

Hoboken's schools won't lose hospitalization

The Hoboken school system will not be losing which time the board will present its position on its hospitalization and medical coverage provided whether or not the board of education required to make certain reimbursements to teachers over 65 Blue Shield), Robert W. Taylor, board attorney, years of age for medical coverage.

According to Taylor, the district has a ten-tative meeting with health plan officials April 11 to be made and has threatened to drop its coverage

Hoboken council ejects critically

"I don't want anyone here to think hat what has transpired here today ffected this decision." Brennan told the almost-capacity crowd of residents. "I had decided almost two weeks ago to reinstate Mr. Vezzetti's privileges so that he would be able to speak at the next council meeting and at the public hearing on the 1978

municipal budget."

• Vezzetti took exception to the ban

originally imposed, and announced that he would attend yesterday's meeting and speak. And the only way he would be stopped he said, was if police had to remove him. He lived up

The frequent council critic showed up at the City Hall for the meeting almost an hour before it was scheduled to start — and got an early indication that the council and Breanan were going to stand firm on the speaking suspension.

Vezzetti was prohibited by City Clerk Anthony J. Amoruse from look-ing at the claims and resolutions that were on the agenda for the meeting.

When he complained to Brennan, the council president ignored him and walked away.

The meeting started off quietly enough. But that lasted only until Amoruso read off a claim resolution that Vezzetti wished to spetit on. Brennan called on Robert King to speak, ignoring Vezzetti's name on the speaking list. Vezzetti jumped up and demanded to be heard.

Brunne informed him that the council, under state law, had the right to prohibit a citizen from speaking on claims or resolutions, adding that he had chosen to prohibit Vezzetti.

Councilmen Nunzio Malfetti and Leuis Francone attempted to overrule Brunnen's decision, but the motion was defeated by a price of $5.2 Brunnen.

was defeated by a vote of 5-2. Breanan abstained and Councilman Anthony II. Romano was not at the meeting.

King was again called on by Brea-nan to speak but Vezzetti refused to relinquish the floor, "You're out of order, Tom," said Breaman. "I'll have to have these police afficers remove

But Vezzetti continued to speak and Breaman signaled Capt. Patrick

Totare and two policemen into action. Capt. Totare tried to excert him out of the chambers, but Vezzetti ignored him and hept on talking. The captain then motioned to the two patrolmen and the three of them ousted Vezzetto from the cauncil chambers.

Vezzetti returned to the council chambers a few minutes later. He again stood up and started to talk but quickly sat down when Totaro warned him that another outburst would result in his ejection for the rest of the meeting.

During the clashes with the council, Vezzetti urged Brennan several times to file a complaint against him. Brennan declined, saying that he didn't want Vezzetti arrested, just

Vezzetti tried to speak again in the public part of the meeting, which follows the conclusion of official business. Again, he was refused. But several others did speak, and they all thought the council was wrong. Siding with Vezzetti were King, Albert Pfeifer and Charles DeFazio.

health plan and there won't be any cancellation of coverage at this time," Taylor said. "I don't know what the outcome of the meeting will be next month but I feel that the board's position is fair."

Michael Donofrio, president of the Hoboken Teachers Association, said that the board education is supposed to reimburse between 30 and 40 teachers for health coverage they paid for after

"We are making our monthly payments to the

they were entitled to Medicare at age 65.
At that age their health plan coverage is reduced and the premium lowered unless the individual decided to maintain full coverage. Those

Taylor said that the board is willing to do this but not retroactively and not for teachers who are retired from the system. He added that the board did adopt the reimbursement system for active eachers last year. But the teachers assoc wants the payments retroactive to 1972 or 1973.

Cops, firemen to play ball Hoboken firemen and policemen will battle Delta Tau Delta frat will take to the basketball court of Stevens Institute of Technology

March 16 at 7:30 p.m. to help raise lunds for the Uptown Recreation

The Fire Department will tip off gainst the Hoboken High School

vill battle Delta Tau Delta fraternity Delta Tau Delta supplies volunteer coaches for the recreation center, according to Dr. Robert King, who is running the event.

rules at the Feb. 15 meeting, has his speaking privileges back.

Vezzetti challenged the council's right to keep him quiet at yesterday's meeting — and lost to three Tickets are available from the teachers in the first game; the teachers, policemen and firemen, or Policemen's Benovolent Association at the door. policemen. But after a lengthy harangue between Vezzetti and the council, which resulted in Vezzetti's ejection by the policemen, Council President Martin J. Brennan announced that he was limiting the suspension to yesterday's mosting.

Cappiello to replace Fusilli for treeholder on Dem line

Mayor Steve Cappiello of Mobolion will run for fresholder this year on the Regular Democratic Organization's ticket replacing Via-

Also, County Clerk James Quina, of the Mile Square City, can have the organization's backing for the asking. It depends on his health. If he does not want another term, Martin Brennan, the Hoboken City Council president, will get the nod.

Yesterday, West New York Mayor Anthony DeFino announced his support for the reelection of Freeholder Joseph Simunovich. The district covers all of West New York, Guttenberg and three wards in North

There had been some doubt about Simunovich's standing with DeFino but the mayor cleared that up yesterday. He said he spoke for all five West New York town commissioners.

He said it was too early to would run as a team for reciec-

DeFino confirmed he had discussed with Commissioner James gan the possibility of his making freeholder run. The mayor said gan was not particularly in-

With Cappiello, Simunovich and Quinn set, the only undecided alot on the organization's ticket is the Bergen-Greenville freeholder seat now held by Glenn Cunningham.

Three are considered best bets: Izetter McDuffy, Donald Howard and Harry Massey. Frank Manzo will replace Peter Zampella as freeholder from Downtown Jersey City.

Incumbents Peter Mocco, who is also mayor of North Bergen; Anne O'Mailey, Morris Longo, Angelo Cifelli and Samuel Kaye will run for reelection as freeholders.

As mayor, Cappiello's salary is more than $20,000 a year. As freeholder he will add $12,000 plus a car to his annual assets.

Hoboken's public library acquires 428 new books

Hoboken's public library bought 428 new book last month, Lucille Cunningham, director, said today. Many of the new volumes have already been catalogued and are available. alogued and are available.
Among the new books are:

Thomas Vezzetti of Hoboken, who was ordered barred from speaking at the two March meetings of the city council for breaking the council's

Combay hate the Country, by John McPhase the management, by Lorent Lemins: The Family Crysthia, by America V. Inselfer, Pa.D with Corn A. William, JA.C.; A Dwall Antendary State of the Country State of the Country State of the Country State of the Country of the Country State of the Country of the Country of the Country of the Country State of the Country of the C

Unsafe

Hoboken is to have a bicycle path over two miles long, the longest in any urban area of New Jersey. Uncle Sam is providing $120,000 for it.

The path will start at the PATH-busrailroad terminal. From that point to the turnaround in the northern part of the city it will be separated from auto roadways. It will be landscaped and will have a special surface for bicycling. All that is great, but the return trip to the terminal is something else. The route is on a main street and one on which vehicles travel faster than elsewhere because it is one-way.

Lines will be painted on the pavement, allegedly warning autoists to watch out for bicyclists and joggers. How many drivers pay attention to lines in the street?

With $120,000 to spend, can Hoboken not devise a bicycle path which will be safe for its entire length instead of only

Unpopular, but...

Seldom has a public official come up with such an unpopular order as the one just lasued by the business administrator

Fed up with making unanswered telephone calls to City Hall departments during lunch hours, he has put department directors on notice that they are to keep someone on duty at lunch time.

He is doing the bureaucrats a favor, because there is nothing that infuriates the working public more than to find City Hall untended during hours when work-ing people can take time off to go there or phone there.

The business administrator could stiffen his order a bit more: Make sure there is always someone manning the office who knows enough to answer the public's questions, not just an office boy or the clerk with least seniority.

He is right 3/4/785,5

Hoboken's able public works director is asking for a deputy - or an assistant, or a chief foreman — anyone to whom he can delegate authority.

If it were some other public official, cynics would be justified in suspecting this was a ploy to add another no-show job to the public payroll. But this man's record since he took office almost a year ago sharply contradicts such a suspicion.

He has been working around the clock, trying to man his own desk and answer his phone while at the same time superintending his many men on the road. It is surprising he has been able to accomplish as much as he has.

There should be somebody to whom he could entrust some of his responsiblities, with the power to give orders and, if necessary, make on-the-spot decisions.

Hoboken wars on potholes has begun in plained. "We just had to allow some doing day and night last the solt to war away." he said

Public Works Director Andrew

300 potholes lying in wait for weary Hoboken motorists, and he said today that he expects to have them filled "withing a week and a half." Amato said he has two three-man trucks working full time this week to over to it." cover every street in the city. preliminary battles against potholes because of the sait still in them. The salt eats up the blacktop snow from many of the city's side no cars; that patching material, the director ex-of the salt to wear away," he said. The crews started the project Amato estimates that there are over yesterday, according to Amato.

"We're not just picking out spots." he explained. "We are going to try to cover the city street by street. If a particular pothole is dangerous, though, we'll get a crew Meanwhile. Amato declared that He said the city has lost the he is "not happy" with the extent of the snow removal so far." He said he had wanted to remove doing day and night last week, but the city's front loader is out of commission, and he had to return the one be was using last week on a demonstra-

"I'm hoping to get our machine in order this week," he said, "and I'm going to ask the mayor to allow us to tow cars from the side streets to give "It takes about an hour to remove the snow from a block when there are no cars; that doubles or triples with