FORMER CADIZ NATIVE COMES BACK AFTER 60 YEARS

Daughter of Judge Collins D. Bradley Visited City of Birth On Tuesday.

Cadiz was honored Tuesday of this week by a visit from Mrs. Anna Bradley O'Bryan, now of Princeton, who was born in Cadiz 76 years ago. Mrs. Bradley was the daughter of the late Judge Collins D. Bradley, former Circuit Judge of this district. The home now owned by the Headleys on Main street was the home of Judge Bradley and Mrs. O'Bryan was born there. Mrs. O'Bryan said that it had been sixty years since she had visited the city of her birth. After leaving Cadiz Mrs. O'Bryan moved to Princeton. Later she taught school in Louisville, remaining there for twelve years. In 1886 she entered the Civil Service and was sent to teach Indian schools in the West. Mrs. O'Bryan taught in Indian schools in seven Western states for 22 years, and was retired from the service in 1930 at the age of 70 years. She later returned to Princeton, where she is making her home. Mrs. O'Bryan was in Cadiz looking up some of her family history. Mr. A. C. Burnett, of Cadiz, recently ran an article in The Record telling of some of the law activities of her father.

William Ervine, 20, was cut by flying glass in auto accident at Maysville and bled to death.

TRIGG COUNTY GIRL SECOND IN CONTEST

Miss Lucy Evelyn Ledford Placed Second in Hopkinsville Beauty Contest Last Week.

Miss Lucy Evelyn Ledford, Cadiz, was second in a beauty contest held at the Alhambra Theater in Hopkinsville last week. Miss Jane Webster, of Hopkinsville, won the first honors in the contest. The Hopkinsville New Era of last Wednesday said: The victory for Hopkinsville was not achieved, however, until some more strong out-of-the-city competition had been overcome. Runner-up honors went to Miss Lucy Evelyn Ledford, of Cadiz and third place to Miss Mildred Croft, of Crofton, the 1934 winner here. Miss Webster, representing Hardin Pharmacy, won from a field of 17 candidates and thus became the first girl ever to win Miss Hopkinsville honors for two years. Marion Beats Cadiz In Mud

Small Crowd Saw Marion Wallop The Locals For Six Runs In Sixth.

GAME PLAYED IN MUD HERE

The Marion baseball club came to Cadiz Sunday afternoon and beat the Cadiz team by the score of 6 to 3, thereby proving themselves the better mud horses. The diamond was almost a sea of mud and the infielders had a hard time holding their feet and in some cases doing some circus stunts that were not on the program in a ball game. Both teams were retired in the first inning without getting a man across the plate. In the second inning Cadiz scored one; Conyer having got on first by getting a fluke hit to the pitcher that bounded away from him in the mud, stole second and came home on an error of Wheeler on second for the visitors, he letting an easy one go through him hit by Ross. Marion failed to cross the plate in this stanza.

Neither team scored in the third and fourth innings; going out in one, two, three order.

But in the fatal sixth, what a headache! what a nightmare! G. Stevens, the first man up was fanned by Ross and things looked rosy as Stevens is regarded as a dangerous hitter. Then the barrage began. F. Wheeler knocked a little slow one that passed right through H. Bush on short. Little came in with a single, advancing Wheeler to second. Then B. Wheeler, who had relieved Hinch on first, hit one to right field that was lost by Magraw, as Larkins interfered and F. Wheeler and Little came home, tying the score 2 all. But the matinee did not stop there, as Travis came to the bat and slammed a two-base hit in short left field. Then Swisher was out on a fly ball, making two out and two on the bags. Williams then came up and slammed out a single and scored two more, advancing to third on an error by G. Ryan; and a hit by B. Stevens and a field's chance cleared the bases, making the score 6 to 2 after the smoke of battle had cleared.

Cadiz made one more score in the 9th, but could not overcome the awful lead the visitors had on them. Marion did not have a chance in another inning, as Ross got them well in hand and mowed them down. In the eighth inning he only had to pitch three balls to retire the Marionites.

Taken as a whole and the condition of the grounds, this was a good ball game and both teams deserve credit for the showing they made in such trying circumstances.

Improving Soil Is Aim of Group

Organization Hopes To Get Crusher So That Farmers May Get Lime At 75c A Ton

COMMITTEE WAS APPOINTED

The County Soils Improvement Committee was organized at a meeting held at the court house on Tuesday, June 18th, and attended by representatives of farmers, business men, Relief Agency and educators of the county.

A tentative program of work to be sponsored by this Committee was reviewed and adopted. This program proposes activities in liming, phosphate demonstrations, terracing, use of winter cover crops, the use of legumes for hay, the production of better quality tobacco and the seeding of pasture mixtures on limed and phosphated soils.

An effort will be made to help the farmers in obtaining good quality limestone at a reasonable cost. Plans are being worked out whereby the KERA will buy a portable crusher and tractor and lease the equipment to the farmers. Under this plan it is thought that limestone can be made available on the farm at a cost of seventy-five cents per ton. Work has been started to get the number of tons of limestone contracted for by the farmers that will be required before the KERA will place the equipment in the county. It is not expected that it will be difficult to obtain the necessary tonnage.

An executive committee charged with the duty of working out the details in connection with the various projects of the program was appointed by the County Agent and is composed of: John Street, Joe Nunn, Monte Redd, F. B. Wilkinson, Dan Baldwin, Alfred Wallace and H. A. Ritchie.

Those in attendance at the meeting were Joe Nunn, G. D. Bridges, Monte Redd, Lloyd Blakeley, S. D. Broadbent, D. B. Redd, E. R. Street, Albert Wallace, F. B. Wilkinson, John Street, M. V. Franklin, Luther Green, Carlross Allen, J. Frank Ladd, Alfred Wallace, Prof. G. G. Wadlington and Prof. John B. Carr.

AGED TRIGG LADY DIED NEAR CADIZ MONDAY

Miss Theatin Hite Died At Home of Her Brother R. S. Hite Early Monday Morning.

Miss Theatin Hite, 89 years of age, died at the home of her brother, R. S. Hite, near Montgomery early Monday morning, after an illness of several weeks. Prior to her last illness her condition was not considered serious however.

Miss Hite was the daughter of the late Henry and Mary Hite, and was born in the Roaring Spring community of this county. Her entire life was spent in Trigg county. At the death of her mother many years ago she started making her home with her brother and remained in his home until the time of her death.

She was a member of the Oakland Methodist Church. Funeral services were conducted at the Hite home by Rev. C. F. Allen, her pastor, and burial was in the Rascoe graveyard.

One thing that we are sure of and that is that Cadiz is not without entertainment this week.

There is one thing that the poor man can say that he has as much of as a rich man, and that is an appetite.

Our idea of a person who just don't give a darn, is the woman who put her head in a cheese slicer and started the motor.

Thinking is the least exerted privilege of the American people of today. Maybe at that it is best they don't think too much.

If a person resists temptation once, is that a sign that he is honest? Of course the really honest man resists time after time.

If you hear a loud noise at the Cadiz Hotel tonight don't be alarmed. It will only be the newly-organized Lions of Cadiz roaring.

Let the coal miners go on and strike. Who cares now. What we are more interested in at present is that the ice men don't strike.

"Old Prisons Will Be Made a Playground," said a recent headline. That seems to be the trouble now, too many new ones are playgrounds.

It is said that a nearly nude Lady Godiva riding down a New York street did not attract nearly so much attention as the white horse she was riding.

The absence of Gov. Ruby Laffoon from a convention of Governors held in Biloxi recently was noticed. Evidently Ruby remembers his last trip out of Kentucky.

If it don't stop raining every day there certainly will be lots of "grass take root" in our corn fields and then every farmer will be a "Grass Rooter" for several days at least.

Novelist Pearl Buck recently discarded her husband and took a new one. She is reversing the plot of her recent book. In her "House of Earth" she had the man discard his wife and take a new one.

A recent West Point graduate faced a court martial because he violated the regulations of his school by marrying before he graduated. Too bad he has to face court martial twice. After a few years of married life most men feel they have been court martialed.

Refreshing Relief

When You Need a Laxative

Because of the refreshing relief it has brought them, thousands of men and women, who could afford much more expensive laxatives, use Black-Draught when needed. It is very economical, purely vegetable, highly effective. . . Mr. J. Lester Roberson, well known hardware dealer at Martinsville, Va., writes: "I certainly can recommend Black-Draught as a splendid medicine. I have taken it for constipation and the dull feelings that follow, and have found it very satisfactory."

BLACK-DRAUGHT

THE UNFAIRNESS OF IT—

The Record was attracted by a statement made by Henry Ward in his column "Seen While Roaming" in Saturday's Paducah Sun-Democrat. Mr. Ward in a section of his article said: "Citizens of Murray and Calloway county appear to have seen the light, at last, and are wondering what benefits they have derived from the fact that Broadbent has been Highway Commissioner. They now are wondering just why it is that a resident of the section between the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers has to pay 50 cents more in tolls across the state bridges to come to Murray to trade than he does to go to Cadiz."

The thing that struck us forcibly was the unfairness of the statement. Read it carefully and you will see that Henry Ward has not said that Broadbent was responsible for the charge, but his intimation is that this is the case. It was the thought that he would like to put over. Mr. Ward's only object in making such a statement was to antagonize the people of Murray and Calloway county against Mr. Broadbent.

It is not our policy to take issue with any other newspaper or person in The Record, but we feel that Mr. Ward in this statement was very unfair and as a thinking, and sometimes sensible conductor of a column for a great newspaper, he will see the unfairness of the intimation that the difference in toll rates on these bridges are a deliberate attempt to get people to come to Cadiz, rather than to go to Murray, and that Mr. Broadbent is responsible.

No one knows better than Henry Ward that the difference in the cost of the construction of the bridges set the toll rates. No one knows better than Mr. Ward that when the set-up for the bridges was made, the price of the tolls were sold the public stipulating the rates to be charged. Mr. Broadbent was not connected in any way with the Highway Department when this set-up was made, and he did not become Commissioner until just a short time before the bridges were opened to the public. If Mr. Ward had wanted to be fair in his statement he would have said that Roy Shelbourne, of Paducah, was the Commissioner at the time the toll rate was fixed and it looked to politicians about that same time that another Paducah man would succeed Mr. Shelbourne.

Several times during Mr. Broadbent's tenure in office the question of reducing the tolls on these bridges have been brought to the attention of the Highway Commission and in each instance Mr. Broadbent has done all that he could do to have the tolls reduced. Mr. Ward knows it is not in the province of the Road Commission to reduce these tolls. Under the terms by which the bonds were sold, the toll rates were set at a certain price, and unless the tolls over the bridges amount to a sum which will pay the interest and retire the bonds, with a wide margin of safety, can the tolls be reduced. The proposition has been put to the agents for the bondholders several times, and each time they have not agreed to a reduction.

Henry Ward says things in his column as he feels them. We have no issue with him nor do we mean to criticize him. We do feel however that he has been grossly unfair in this statement and it looks, knowing that he knew better, that it was a deliberate intimation that was not true.

We hear a lot of criticism of large papers printing all the details of the search for kidnapers and criminals. It seems that people still believe what they read in the papers. If you will stop to consider for a moment, the papers are printing only that information the police want the papers to have, and in many instances the stories in the papers have been the means of capturing a criminal rather than a help to him in getting away.

Some people claim the day is too long, some too short. The difference of opinion is largely in what we are doing. Those who are really doing things in a big way know that they are not too long and that life is too short.

Stenographers of members of a Business Men's Club were recently honor guests at a luncheon in Louisville. The old pun is that they are honor guests at many luncheons paid for by the boss, but not all at the same time.

Over their pie and coffee, truck drivers praise their FORD V-8's

80 HORSEPOWER V-8 TRUCK ENGINE

This is an ideal power plant for haulage work. It has ample power for tough jobs, yet is as economical to run as a "4."

Important features include: Dual carburetion, exhaust valve seat inserts, high-leaded bronze floating connecting-rod bearings, cast alloy crankshaft and cam shaft, light weight alloy pistons and a new crankcase ventilator.

The compactness of the V-type engine and its new forward location gives greater loading space ahead of the rear axle.

Ford also offers the low cost Engine Exchange Plan and other exchange privileges—such as generator, fuel pump, carburetor, etc.—that reduce maintenance costs.

HUMAN nature is much the same—everywhere. If a driver likes his truck he takes good care of it . . . But if it is hard to ride . . . if it lacks power or speed . . . if the brakes won't hold—if the clutch slips or the engine overheats—look out, for there is a truck that's headed for the scrap heap.

Drivers brag about their Ford V-8's—they like the way the 80 h. p. engine handles heavy loads. They like the husky full-floating rear axle with torque-tube drive and radius rods—the rib-cooled brakes—the new centriforce clutch and the roomy insulated cab. Drivers take good care of their Ford V-8 trucks—haul more tons more miles and earn owners more profits.

Regardless of your haulage needs you will find by investigation that Ford V-8 trucks will do a better job at less cost per ton mile.

YOUTH NEEDS—

(Christian Science Monitor)

One ancient pastime seems to be distinctly outdated—that of condemning youth. While still privately indulged in, it is no more a widely accepted indoor sport to shake the hoary head over young people and wonder what they are coming to. Rather, the young people themselves seem to be the ones who wonder what they are coming to. And they mean to find out. Questioning youth—that is, asking youth questions—for the series under that title just concluded in the Monitor, turned up on every hand a questioning youth. Young people are searching for answers.

It is generally conceded that the youth of today have had a particularly difficult time in which to grow up. They have faced not only unemployment on an unprecedented scale, but also the many swift social changes and constant adjustments of a postwar era. The problems they have had to meet and the decisions they have been forced to make have left many of them burdened or bewildered, even bitter. Never was youth more in need of the understanding friendship of his elders.

Moreover, never were the times more surely keyed for such a friendship. Youth in meeting major problems and decisions has had to acquire, as best it could, a swiftly won experience of age; while age, in the freedom of the era that has discarded many a tradition, has, on its part, thrown away lace caps and fireside arm-chairs in favor of flying grandmothers and able octogenarian executives.

For true comradeship is ageless. Only through eliminating a preoccupation with counting and comparing human years can it be achieved. Youth and maturity, in this time of youth's great need, have a priceless opportunity to win the mutual blessing of a true and understanding fellowship.

Who Is This?

The conductor of this column is certainly surprised that we did not receive more guesses on the picture of Mr. A. C. Burnett, published in the paper last week. It may have been that it was too easy. If you won't guess on the easy ones, we will give you hard ones. The picture this week is an old-one and we just dare anybody to guess it. Even though it is a hard one the picture is of a man that was very prominent in the affairs of this county many years ago, and he possibly has more relatives living here than any other man who has ever lived in this county.

The Record is still pleased with this little game and it will be continued for some time yet, as we have lots of pictures left that have not been used. The rules are very simple and everyone is entitled to a guess. We publish the picture of some man or woman, well-known to Trigg county people, and ask you if you know who it is. If you recognize the picture, you only have to let us know your name and guess and the following week, we will publish it in our column. We have had answers from all parts of the country in this little game and it has attracted much attention. People who get the paper turn to the "Who Is It?" picture the first thing to see if they recognize it. Only a very few of those who read the paper however send in answers. We wish that more people would cooperate in the little game.

In looking over the list this week we find that the following were correct: Levi Cunningham, Seldon Thomas, George Adams, Walter Morris, Marshall Guthrie, J. R. Cannon, Henry Radford, Doc Gresham, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Radford, Wayne Curling, A. T. Vinson, L. E. Bridges, Bob Baker, Carter Meador.

W. H. Bridges, route three, Eddyville, wrote: "My guess on the picture this week is that of A. C. Burnett. Please continue this game."

Eula Holloway, of California, in a card dated June 8th, said: I didn't know Mr. Wiley Hillman, but Charlie did and said he was sure it was his picture. You have this week. I am most sure I do know, anyway, I am going to say, Mr. Ebb Wash. Charlie had a nice trip, arrived Thursday morning, having left Memphis Monday morning. He thought he did well."

We are sorry that Mrs. Holloway missed, but the picture she thought was Mr. Wash turned out to be Mr. Hancock.

Another card from Mrs. Holloway guessing in the picture of Judge Bush said: "There was 'nobody home' last week. I knew Mr. Hancock, well enough not to have missed my guess on him. Well I shan't let that 'down' me. I am saying the picture this week is Judge Chas. Bush, and I am about sure enough I would bet on it."

You were right Mrs. Holloway, but this betting thing is bad business. We have known several who made bets on this little game, and lost.

CADIZ - KENTUCKY.

DO YOU KNOW?

By A. C. BURNETT.

THAT TRIGG COUNTY WAS QUITE AN INDUSTRIAL CENTER IN EARLY DAYS?

Probably no other county in Kentucky had greater natural resources than Trigg, and many of these were utilized from the very beginning. The many fast flowing streams afforded water power to operate mills for meal and flour and many mills of this kind sprang up almost over night when the county was first settled.

The tanning business took first rank in the early history of the county. Plenty of fresh flowing water was necessary in the olden days to tan hides into leather; also the bark of certain trees that were strong with acid. Trigg seems to have had more of this kind of timber than any other part of the country. This was a small tree on the order of the black jack and grew on the lull or ridge part of the county. The trees were cut down while the sap was up. A long steel spear was fastened to the end of a long pole and this spear was inserted under the bark at the end of the log and the bark peeled off easily and left to dry in the woods where it was later gathered up and broken into short pieces and ground into small parts. This gave many men full employment. Vats or pits were dug in the ground along side of a small spring branch or creek where fresh water was handy and could be turned off or on at will. A layer of hides and a layer of tan bark was placed into these vats until full, then the water was turned in, the bark making a very good acid which caused the hair to come off, then the water was drained off and the hides scraped to remove all hair and other things necessary in making good leather. Then the same process was gone through again and the hides remained in this acid water until thoroughly tanned into leather.

The first tannery we have any record of was operated by Mr. Daniel up on Little river between the mouth of Casey creek and Pee Dee on the farm now owned by Lucien and Cleve Wilson. This was about the year 1800 or soon thereafter and was successfully operated for many years.

In the year 1919, Spottwood Wilkinson, operated a tannery alongside the big spring in Cadiz, or where Cadiz is now. This was operated for some twelve years when Robert Baker took it over and continued to operate it. About this same time Levi Harland built one at the spring now known as the Thompson tan yard. Mr. Harland operated this for many years and sold it to Mr. Moses Thompson, who continued to operate it until his death. This was probably the most successfully operated one in the county. Another one was on Dry creek near Linton, operated by Mr. Geo. C. Graham in the beginning and later by Mr. Dully Carr, where J. Mahlon Sholar now lives. This was also reputed to have been quite successful. Mr. Levi Johnson operated two different ones near Canton at different times. Probably there were others of lesser importance but all of these were reputed to have been money makers. In the beginning these tanneries had to depend on hides obtained locally for their business but as the steamboat business came into general use many thousands of hides were shipped in from other parts of the country.

When steamboats came into general use a 'porkery' was established in Canton that used many hundreds of beef cattle, hogs and sheep daily the meat being "packed" and shipped by boats as far south as New Orleans and north back to Louisville, Cincinnati and even to Pittsburgh. The beef and sheep hides were used by the local tanneries. In those days every town and village had a boot and shoe maker that used a large part of this leather. Also harness and saddle makers were in every town. Each large plantation had at least one colored man skilled in the making and repairing of footwear and this afforded a market for tanned hides, but the local market was not depended on entirely as these hides were shipped to many other towns after being made into leather.

Mr. Wiley L. Hillman, now of Clinton, Ky., was the last person to make a profession of making high-grade boots and shoes in Cadiz. It was considered the best taste for a young man who wanted to be really "dressed up" to let it be known that he was wearing a pair of Wiley Hillman's shop-made boots or shoes, and most everybody was so dressed up who lived in Cadiz and hereabouts.

Saddle shops were everywhere. Mr. W. H. Rector was operating a saddle shop at Canton when the War Between the States broke out. He went into the Confederate army. When he came home he found that the Federal army had confiscated all his tools and machinery and he had to start all over. A Mr. Boyd, then living at the cross roads between Cadiz and Wallonia financed Mr. Rector to start another saddle shop which he did out there and made saddles that had a wide reputation. He continued this business as long as he lived.

Mr. Will Hamilton operated the last saddle shop in Cadiz which was located where McCarty's drug store is now. His saddles and harness had a reputation far beyond the confines of Trigg county, as being the best that could be obtained anywhere.

tan bark was considered the very best and had a ready sale wherever it was known. This tan bark was also shipped to tanneries in other towns from Trigg county, and created work for a large number of men.

Next to the tan bark business the hoop pole business assumed the greatest importance. All sugar from the South was formerly shipped in wooden barrels or hogsheads and the hoops were made with hickory poles split into two parts. There were millions of small hickory bushes in Trigg county about like fishing poles. These bushes were cut and split into hoop poles and transported South in flat boats or barges. Hundreds of men were given employment cutting these hoop poles and many barge loads were sent South each year. Robert W. Major was probably the last man to engage in this business. (To be continued next week.)

Homemakers in Graves county raised $30 for furnishing a county reading room, as part of the reading project work.

Mrs. Hugh Oakley Passed to Reward

Member of Old And Prominent Trigg County Family Died After Illness of Ten Days

WAS MOTHER OF 10 CHILDREN

Mrs. Hugh Oakley, 48 years of age, died at her home in the Mer-shon's Bridge community, early Wednesday morning, June 12. Mrs. Oakley had been confined to her bed for about ten days prior to her death.

Mrs. Oakley was born in Trigg county September 28, 1887, and prior to her marriage in 1904 to Mr. Oakley, was Miss Elizabeth Leneave, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Leneave. She was one of ten children of this family. The Leneave family is one of the oldest families in Trigg county, having come to Kentucky from Virginia before the county was formed. Mrs. Oakley's mother was a Cunningham, another family of early settlers in Trigg county.

Early in life the deceased joined the Liberty Point Baptist church, and was a member of that church until the time of her death. She took a very active interest in her church work, and was a member of its organizations and for many years was the teacher of one of the Sunday School classes of that church.

After finishing her elementary school work, Mrs. Oakley entered the Cadiz High School and graduated in 1903.

Funeral services for Mrs. Oakley were held at her residence Thursday afternoon at 2:30 and were conducted by Rev. John Cunningham, of Princeton. Burial was at the Leneave graveyard near the home. A large crowd of sorrowing friends and relatives attended the last rites, attesting the popularity and esteem by which this good Christian woman was held.

Mrs. Oakley was the mother of ten children, nine of whom are living. They are Mrs. Lonnie Morris, of Trigg county; Alvis Oakley, of Corydon, Ind.; Lacy Oakley, of Bowling Green; Aubrey, Stanley, Conly, Tyline, Macy Lewis and Norris Haydon Oakley, all of Trigg county. Besides her children, her husband and six grand children survive, as does many other relatives in this county.

Mrs. Oakley was one of ten children in her family and six brothers and two sisters survive her. They are Mrs. W. H. Pace, Chicago; Mrs. Cecil Ryan, Golden Pond; Homer Leneave, Golden Pond; Clarence Leneave, Paducah; Hodge Leneave and Dale Leneave, of Benton and Claydus Leneave and Louis Leneave, of Trigg county.

Mrs. Oakley's mother, Mrs. Ambie Leneave survives. Her father died in 1924.

Dr. T. A. Wash, 58, Mayor of Harrodsburg, is dead.

U. S. LEADS WORLD IN CHEMICALS PRODUCTION

The number of new chemicals produced commercially for the first time and the number of countries extending their activities into lines of chemical production new to them, probably exceeded all records in 1934, according to a world survey of the chemical industry, just made public by the Louisville district office of the Commerce Department. World chemical trade was larger in 1934 than during the two preceding years, but intense competition, the increased participation by Japan and Russia, and the maintenance of commercial barriers, retarded further progress. The United States continued in 1934 to be the world's leading chemical producer.

SIFTINGS FROM HERE AND THERE

By EDDIE HALE

At times one wonders just what he will write about and after pondering and making many false starts, at last he gets out a real good idea, that is he thinks so whether the reader does or not.

It is rather hard for one to get settled down long enough out here in the midst of the Rockies to write anything. If it is not snowing or doing some kind of peculiar weather, it is taking all your time walking to get a better view of the scenery.

Since being here I have been looking over the old mining sites where the old prospectors found fortunes—and lost them. Only yesterday I was riding along through a canyon and commented upon it looking desolate and deserted. Much to my surprise, my companion said that we were riding over the site of what was once a city of 3,500 people! Farther on he pointed out where another town was, only smaller, and like the one who had just passed through, there was nothing there either. Only a few scattered stones and possibly a stray water main was all that one could identify the lost city. What caused it to be lost? Very simple. During the old gold rush days, towns and cities sprang up like the well-known Jack-in-the-Box. When the fever died down the people found out riches were not to be had as easily as they thought, they sought other places, leaving their hastily built houses to ruin. The vicinity still goes by the name of the town but there is nothing there but a single prospector's hut and he tells stories of the days gone by with a wistful look in his eye.

The gold mining game is one of the most uncertain, lucky or unlucky, undertakings that man has ever gotten into. One can go along the road and see vast holes in the hills where man has searched in his mad attempt. Many of the mountains look not unlike a huge ant hill, in fact, in reality a human ant hill. Human ants that let nothing get in his way in the mad, greedy, lustful hunt for the valuable, yet elusive metal that would make him rich.

One can look upon the mountain sides and view the great scars getting a good idea just to what heights a man will go to be a little more wealthy than someone else. It's a great life if you don't weaken but the majority weaken and go off to some safer, safer method of living and I might add, a little more safe.

One of the most beautiful sights that I have witnessed in a long time was a moonlight ride through the mountains. One really has not seen beauty until he has taken one of these moonlight rides.

The moon was almost full and cast a pale, ghostly silver light over the towering peaks. Patches of snow lent a more weird atmosphere to the already breath-taking view. The road wound around steep cliffs and up the side of narrow canyons. On one side the terrain would extend upward for immeasurable distance and on the other, it would drop to sheer depths into the shadows. The steep cliffs would cast dark shadows over the winding road making it seemingly come to an abrupt end, yet the penetration of the automobile lights would reveal the narrow tortuous trail still leading deeper into the magical creation of Mother Nature.

Such sights makes one feel just how little he is and how insignificant his puny efforts are in making the "world go round" so to speak. One can really appreciate the greatness of his Creator and it seems to bring you in closer touch with him as you view his majestic greatness.

If you ever have a chance to see the Rockies, see them a little off the beaten path of regular tourist trail, and season. See them in winter and at night. It is a common sight in summer even though beautiful, it is nothing compared with the winter, and a most, in winter at night.

In a mining camp like this, one sees quite a bit of the old time "rough and tumble" life. He sees men fighting in what is seemingly a death struggle yet get up and leave the best of friends. There is still the old-time saloon with its bar and brass railing. However the state of Colorado has passed laws regarding the sale of alcoholic beverages, this still remains more of a frontier town and more or less, makes its own laws. Things are tightening down though. Eventually, it will be as tame as all the other so-called civilized towns. Now there is a Sunday law regarding the sale of intoxicating drinks. All your drinking has to be done before eight o'clock p.m., or you are liable to fine and imprisonment. Of course the law is held up as rather comic and the police force make a half-hearted attempt at enforcing it, but nevertheless, the town is taming down. It's not like what the old timers tell about it. They said that it was wide open and meaning exactly that. Got to see my first real honest to goodness cowboy the other day but it was a little disappointing to note the difference in the real thing and the "movie hero" type. He wore the regular "ten type" hat, leather chaps, spurs, and even the high heeled boots. As he walked on the concrete they made a resounding pop like some of the women's spike heels only louder.

He had no doubt ridden to town from one of the numerous ranches in the surrounding territory to take a little rest like some of the farmers come into Cadiz on Second Monday or some of the other well-known public days back there. He did seem embarrassed like I would have been if I had appeared on the streets of Cadiz in such a uniform. Naturally he was at home and I wasn't so all I could do was stare and get an eyeful, and he stared at me, possibly getting another "eye full."

Even 'midst this alluring beauty, tragedy stalks and takes its devastating toll. I am speaking in reference to the recent flood that swept through several little towns among the foot hills of the mountains and the more famous resort town of Colorado Springs.

It is well-known how these mountain streams go swiftly on their way but even the citizens who have been living here did not realize what damage they could do until they had already done their destructive work.

One can read about a flood but he cannot realize the terrible, devastating seriousness of it until he sees it face to face and sees the damage it has done. Little streams that are hardly more than a trickle in normal times were swollen to many times normal from the effect of a cloud burst and swept down upon unprepared little towns, taking homes, property and lives. Bridges were washed out as if made of cardboard and buildings were smashed as if built of paper. Many people were trapped in the buildings and washed away before they could have any idea as to what danger was approaching. Colorado Springs and Maitou, in the midst of welcoming a new tourist season, were thrown into confusion on account of the destruction. Railroad and bus transportation was at a standstill. Red Cross and the State Relief Board had to come to the aid of hundreds. Damage in Colorado Springs alone was set officially at between one and two million dollars. Naturally extensive and elongated repairs will have to be done and all the scars cannot be hidden from the tourists. Tourists will see and tell, possibly the most dependence for a livelihood will be damage on that account. The loss from tourist travel will be far beyond estimation.

While flood waters were receding Colorado, they swept on over in Nebraska, and did a likewise damage to property and lives there. One of the ironies of life, where recently the countryside was suffocated with dust and flying sand, now lay covered in a coat of mud and water. Many who had experienced the dust could not be convinced that a huge wall of water was rolling down upon them.

During the water shortage recently in Colorado, the Governor issued a state-wide appeal for everyone to pray for rain. Now they have it and plenty—too much but they can't complain, they asked for it. Somehow we believe that it is best to not to insert our puny efforts toward the assistance of our Creator in running this great universe, particularly concerning the natural forces that are so much concerned in our very existence or destruction. It is said that God has meant everything for a definite purpose and if we ask him to change it, well we might be a trifle sorry before it is all over.

Good or bad, beautiful or homely, even in spite of the snow or floods, one cannot help but to like the state he lives in. If he did not like it, well, he just would not live there. I still say there is not a state in the entire United States that can beat our good old state of Kentucky and let me hear from all you who are loyal.

THEY LIKE AMERICAN MOTOR TRUCKS IN JAPAN

Increased sales of motor trucks in Japan during the current quarter is predicted by Trade Commissioner P. P. Steintorf, Tokyo, in a report to the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce. Mr. Steintorf was in Louisville a short time ago and spoke before the Lions' Club on Japanese business conditions. The country's commercial and industrial activity is steadily rising, he points out, road conditions are improving, and the use of commercial vehicles is progressively expanding. American manufacturers will secure nearly all of this business, as European prices are not competitive and domestic output will continue to go to the Government. American medium capacity, low-priced vehicles accounted for at least 90 per cent of the total volume the first quarter this year.

SOY BEAN OIL PROPOSED AS FUEL FOR TRUCKS

That American trucks equipped with Diesel engines and employing soy bean oil for fuel could be successfully marketed in the Far East is a novel idea recently advanced, according to advices to the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce. The sponsor of the plan is the representative of a German Diesel engine company located in the Orient. He is desirous of obtaining the agency for American motor trucks in which he will install his Diesels. He claims that he has interested the Chinese Government in his engine, and has demonstrated to Chinese officials that it could be run on either soy bean or coconut oil.

Here's a Jump-Out-Of-Bed Breakfast

WHEN he wakes up in the morning, does he feel about half dead, and, alarm clock clamor scolding, pull the covers over his head? Does he want to sleep still longer, to stay cuddled in his nest, and, ignoring calls of hunger, try to get a further rest? Well, then, try this on the fellow, and you'll surely make a hit, for you'll find he'll wake up mellow and not hesitate a bit. But he'll fling away his covers and jump out of bed with zest, if the sweet aroma hovers of this breakfast at its best.

Strawberries with Powdered Sugar
Cereal with Cream
Ham Waffles Syrup
Coffee

Ham Waffles: Beat three egg yolks well and add two cups of diluted evaporated milk. Sift together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt, and add with one-third cup melted butter. Add one cup finely-chopped cooked ham, and fold in three stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake as any waffles. This recipe makes eight of them.

Fresh Coffee

One of the great points of this breakfast, and of all breakfasts, is to have your coffee fresh. That means that it must be made from coffee that has been vacuum packed because that is the only modern method of keeping coffee absolutely fresh until the can is opened. There are many brands of coffee that are vacuum packed, so you can choose the one you like best and make a hit with that husband of yours with this appetizing better breakfast.*

PEARS PAIR WELL WITH MANY FOODS

NOT pared pears but paired pears is what we have in mind in this story because pears, so sweet and juicy all by themselves, pair off wonderfully with other fruits and foods. You can make a marvelous fruit cocktail, for instance, by pairing them off with grapes. Here's the recipe for Grapes in Nests: Drain syrup from a can of Bartlett pears, tint a pale pink and bring to boiling. Scoop out the pear halves, making cases. Add to the syrup and simmer gently until a pale pink. Remove from the syrup and chill. Skin and seed some green grapes. Fill the pear halves with them, and squeeze over a little lemon juice. Tuck four or five salted almonds in each nest of grapes, and serve icy cold on small green glass plates.

Marvelous with Meats

Pears pair off with meats in an equally appetizing fashion. They will even go inside them deliciously in this

Roast Chicken with Fruit Stuffing: Mix three cups dry crumbs with three-fourths teaspoon sage, three-fourths teaspoon thyme, three-fourths teaspoon summer savory and salt and pepper. Add one-third cup melted butter. Then add one-third cup apple sauce and three halves of canned pears and three halves of canned apricots, mashed. If the mixture is not moist enough with this amount, more of any of the fruits may be added. Stuff a roasting chicken with this as usual, and roast as usual. This is enough for a three to three and a half pound chicken. When making the gravy, after the chicken is cooked, use half and half milk and the combined fruit juices.

Better Breakfasts

YES. There is a way to make that first breakfast dish of fruit different, and, oh, the difference it makes! The exclamation: "But this is something new!" is balm to the soul of the solicitous housewife who has to plan three hundred and sixty-five breakfasts a year. She'll hear it if she serves the following breakfast:

Orange Slices with Cranberry Jelly Cubes
Flaked Cereal with Cream
Buckwheat Cakes Syrup
Sausages
Coffee

The ingredients of the first dish consist of oranges and canned cranberry jelly.

Allow one medium orange for each person. Cut off peel, removing all the white fibre. Cut in slices crosswise and lay in an overlapping circle on plates. Cut some chilled cranberry jelly in small cubes, and pile about one heaping teaspoonful in center of each service of orange circles. This not only looks pretty, but the combination tastes mighty good.

Appetizing Coffee

The coffee that you serve at this breakfast should be of the kind you can't wait to taste—the kind the aroma of which is so tempting that you scald yourself with the first sip. It's easy to have coffee like that now that so many popular brands are put up in vacuum packed cans. These cans keep the coffee fresh until they are opened, and freshness is the principal thing—for fragrance, taste and strength—in the making of good coffee.

No oxygen can get to the coffee, you see, if it is enclosed in vacuum packed cans, and oxygen is the chief enemy of coffee. When exposed to it, the coffee gases quickly evaporate, and much of the taste and aroma is soon gone.*

POULTRY PROSPECTS GOOD, SAYS EXPERT

The way things look now, egg prices should be good next fall and winter, says J. E. Humphrey, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. He, therefore, advises extra care of pullets, to insure growth and health, so that good egg production can be had when prices are high.

Move pullets to clean ground, away from the old flock, where they can be kept free from worms and diseases.

Keep an abundance of growing mash before the birds. A good growing mash, starting when the birds are 10 to 12 weeks old, is made of 200 pounds of mixed wheat feed or shipstuff, 100 pounds of yellow corn, 100 pounds of meat scrap or high grade tankage and 5 pounds of salt. Grain should be kept in the hoppers with the mash.

Clean water and milk troughs daily and scald them once a week. Provide low roosts when the chicks are three weeks old. It is best not to remove the source of heat until the birds are roosting. Inch-mesh poultry wire nailed to the under side of the roosts will keep the birds off the droppings.

Supply an abundance of water and shade during the hot months.

Watch for lice and mites as the weather gets warm. Use sodium fluoride or 40 per cent nicotine for lice, and drainings from the crankcase diluted with kerosene for mites.

All cockerels, except a few of the largest and most rapid feathering ones, and the cull pullets should be sold as broilers.

Write to the College of Agriculture or see a county agent for Leaflet No. 4, "Producing Profitable Pullets."

SOUTHERN RHODESIA WANTS AUSTRALIAN TOBACCO MART.

Efforts are being made by Southern Rhodesia to obtain a foothold in the Australian leaf tobacco market, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce. Considerably more than 95 per cent of the total imports of unmanufactured tobacco into Australia originate in the United States, no other country having supplied as much as 300,000 pounds in any year since 1928. Imports into the Commonwealth from the British Empire have formed only an insignificant proportion of the total, so that Southern Rhodesia is turning toward that market as a natural field for exploitation within the British Commonwealth. Bright flue-cured and dark Virginia tobaccos are the principal American types imported into Australia and these are likewise the chief types produced in South Rhodesia.

It has been found that tobacco leaves gathered 10 days before becoming ripe, and so treated, turn yellow much earlier and stronger than those not treated. Tests showed it to be "biting and empty" in taste.

STRANGE NAMES FOR CHILDREN.

Home visitors in the Lincoln county relief headquarters encounter many eccentric names that relief families have given their children.

One home visitor reported that a family had named its thirteenth child "Etc." because the mother had seen the abbreviation in print at one time. Which caused relief workers to wonder why "and so forth" was used instead of "and so on."

Another family, euphemistically minded, named its latest progeny "Gasoline," and whether it is "Ethyl" or merely a boy is left in doubt.—Elizabethtown News.

Keelor Warns Of Little Sins In Sermon Here

TEMPTATION OF DRINK SCORED AS LIKELY TO WRECK HUMAN CHARACTER.

Today Is Said To Be A Dangerous Time For The Youth Of Our Land Because Of Little Sins.

"The deceitfulness of sin," taken from Heb. 3:13, was the text for a sermon delivered here recently by Rev. E. M. Keelor at the Cadiz Methodist church. A large crowd heard the popular Cadiz pastor.

"There has always been a tendency to minimize the consequence of sin," said Rev. Keelor. "Satan would have us believe that sin is essential to our happiness in this life, and whenever he can convince the human mind that evil indulgence will not be attended by any sad consequences, he has achieved a master stroke. To convince men that sin is harmless is one of the cleverest schemes his Satanic Majesty has ever devised and accounts for the sad fact that multitudes are walking in the way that leads to everlasting ruin.

"It is my desire to warn the young people of this community before the inevitable sad day of disillusionment comes, and while there is yet opportunity to build strong and stable character. Beware of the devil's devices. Many of the pleasures of the present day have the appearance of innocence and bear the deceptive title, 'No harm in this,' but those who yield to these subtle temptations find, sooner or later, that they were evil, and only evil.

"Dr. W. L. Watkinson gives us this illustration. He said: 'In the legend, the Duchess Isabella, wishing earnestly to obtain some object, was instructed by the crafty court astrologer to kiss day by day for a hundred days, a certain beautiful picture and she would receive the fulfillment of her wish. It was a sinister trick, for the picture contained a subtle poison which stained her lips with every salutation. Little by little the golden tresses of the queenly woman turned white, her eyes became dim, her color faded, her lips became black; but, infatuated, the suicidal kiss was continued until before the end of the hundred days were complete the royal duchess lay dead.' And thus it is that we yield to the deceitfulness of sin.

"Despite the numerous warnings we have received, we persist in following what seems to be truth, beauty and pleasure, until our lives are blighted and our souls destroyed.

"The Christian Herald gave utterance to a great truth when it said some years ago that there would be no sin in the world if people had to take the bitterness of it first, and the sweetness of it last. The Bible declares that 'Sin when it is finished bringeth forth death,' and the truth contained in this solemn statement is the verdict of universal experience. Sin may appear as a little thing, incapable of doing great harm, but the so-called little sins open the way for greater sins, until after awhile he sinner finds himself bound by evil habits from which he cannot escape. Sin, whether it seems great or small, finally fastens itself upon the soul, and death and destruction is the awful result.

"Beware of those little sins that seem insignificant and harmless. Henry M. Stanley tells us that when he was passing through the forests of Darkest Africa, the most formidable foes he encountered and that caused the greatest loss of life to his caravan, were not the savage village chiefs, but the Wambutti dwarfs. These men of very low stature had only little bows and arrows for their weapons, so small said Mr. Stanley, that they looked like children's playthings; but upon the tip of each one of these tiny arrows was a drop of poison which meant certain death to man and beast. They defend themselves by means of poison and traps. They would steal through the dense forest and, waiting in ambush, let fly their deadly arrows before they could be discovered. They dug ditches and carefully covered them over with sticks and leaves. Spikes were driven in the ground and tipped with poison. On these spikes and into these carefully concealed ditches both men and animals would step and fall to their death. Mr. Stanley said that one of the strangest things about their mode of defense was the fact that their poison was made from honey. In a similar way Satan wages his warfare against you and me. Clothed as 'an angel of light,' he comes offering us the sweets of life, but his honey-coated sins are poisonous to the soul, and death and destruction awaits those who are easily deceived by his tempting offers. We look upon the little sin as harmless, so we do it repeatedly until it has grown into a habit of sin that enslaves us, and we find ourselves apparently helpless to escape from our bondage.

"Today is a dangerous period for the youth of our land. The temptation of alcoholic drink is making a strong appeal to the boys and girls for we find it on sale at most of the eating places, and it has become the popular refreshment at many of the social functions. Many who believed that the foaming liquid was an innocent beverage are already in the clutches of the alcoholic habit, from which they find it difficult to free themselves but cannot.

"The admonition of the Wise Man uttered many centuries ago sounds a note of warning that should be heeded at this present day. He said, 'Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder.'

"Thousands who yielded to the temptation of drink at a comparatively recent date have already verified the truth of the Biblical statement. May I urge both young and old to avoid this evil habit which is so destructive to human character, and which, if unrestrained, will break down the home life of America, and also impair our national character. Let us not be so easily deceived by the enemy of our souls. Let us remember that 'God is not mocked,' and that 'whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' If we persist in sowing to the wind today, we shall reap the whirlwind tomorrow.

"It is a blessed truth that God has power to save the vilest sinner, but he does not have power to erase the scars that sin has made upon the character. It is said that when Da Vinci was painting that wonderful masterpiece, 'The Last Supper,' he searched a long time before he could find a model for his Christ. He finally found a young man by name of Pietro Bandinelli who met the artist's requirements. He had a splendid countenance, and a pure character, and sang in the choir of one of the churches of Rome. 'At last I have found the face I wanted,' said the artist. Years passed before the painting was completed, and the artist went out to look for a model for his picture of Judas, the last of the twelve apostles to be painted. He was looking for a man whose features should give evidence of a very wicked heart and of the hardening influence of sin. One day he came upon a wretched, repulsive creature, a beggar in rags, whom he persuaded to come to his studio and sit as a model for his Judas. Upon entering the studio the artist asked, 'What is your name?' The repulsive, wretched, hideous-looking beggar answered, 'I am Pietro Bandinelli. I also sat as a model for your Christ.' Sin had done its work. That once fair, sweet face, so fair and beautiful that from it the artist could paint a picture of the Christ, had now become so marred and disfigured and mean, that from its horrid features he painted the picture of Judas who betrayed the Christ.

"Sin is the arch-enemy of the human race and would destroy every human soul. But God has mercifully provided a way for our escape in the time of temptation, and an effectual remedy for the serpent's sting. Let us avail ourselves of His merciful provisions, and thus escape the sinner's awful doom."

JAPANESE TIRES ARE GAINING IN PERU.

Japanese tires are making noteworthy progress in Peru, says a report to the Louisville district office of the Commerce Department. In the seven months that the Bridgestone tire, the Japanese product, has been offered for sale in Lima, about 1,500 have been imported from Japan. Local agents for the Japanese tire have been including a tube with each casing purchase, making the purchase price approximately 10 per cent under the prevailing prices of American, Canadian, English and French second-line tires. During the past year the United States accounted for about 48 per cent of total imports; Canada, 24 per cent; England, 18 per cent; France and Italy combined, 5 per cent; and Japan, 5 per cent, statistics show. General business conditions in Peru at present are sound and the cotton industry appears to be in an especially favorable position.

Better Breakfasts

FRUITS for breakfast are part of the start of a fine day. They make you feel fine, even if the weather isn't. The following breakfast contains so many kinds of fruits that it ought to make you feel extra fine. It will make sunshine inside of you whether the weather is cloudy or not. Here it is:

Fruit Appetizer
Cereal with Cream
Creamed Kidneys on Toast
Gooseberry Jam
Coffee

And here's the recipe for the dish which contains several kinds of fruits in addition to the gooseberries in the gooseberry jam:

Fruit Appetizer: Combine three-fourths cup pineapple tidbits or sliced pineapple cut in wedges, three-fourths cup white grapes, halved and seeded (either fresh or canned), one-fourth cup syrup from the canned pineapple and one cup orange juice. Chill over night, and serve in glass dessert dishes. Serves six.

Fine Coffee

But even this breakfast will be a failure if the coffee you serve is not fresh. Fortunately it is easy nowadays to be sure of the important fact that your coffee is fresh. All you have to do is to make a practice of buying one of the many brands of coffee that are sold in vacuum packed cans. Oxygen is the enemy of freshly ground coffee, and these vacuum packed cans absolutely exclude all oxygen, so that the coffee is sure to be fresh when you open them.

If you use vacuum packed coffee and plenty of fruit in all the breakfasts you serve you'll find that it makes a great difference. Ask your own doctor about it and he'll tell you that these two elements in every breakfast will go far toward keeping you in good health.*

A MODERN MIRACLE

THIS is a wonderful world. A modern housewife can reach with one hand right out into the middle of the ocean and with the other into the cornfields of Kansas and combine the two products she grasps, right at her kitchen table, into a dish that tastes as wonderful as the feat she has just performed. Here's the recipe for Corn and Salmon Pudding: Mix the contents of a No. 2 can corn, one tablespoon melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, the contents of one small can salmon, being careful not to break up the salmon too finely, and one tablespoon heavy cream or evaporated milk. Bake in a buttered baking dish in a moderate-300 degree-oven for thirty minutes. Serves eight.

But that first feat is nothing to the one she can casually perform in making the following second dish. If deviling is done in Hades she has to reach with one hand into whatever part of the cosmos it lies and with the other into the cornfields in order to make

Deviled Corn Scallop: Mix together two cups canned corn and the contents of a 2½ ounce can deviled ham, and season to taste with salt and pepper. Pour forth into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with a few crumbs (you will need half a cup of them in all) add the rest of the corn mixture, and pour in one-third cup milk. Cover with the rest of the crumbs to which two tablespoons melted butter has been added. Bake in a moderate-375 degree-oven for thirty minutes. Serves four.*

A $1.50 Dinner for 6

YOU don't have to serve an ordinary dinner even if you want it to cost as little as twenty-five cents each for six persons. Here is a dinner for six which can be served for approximately that price, and which contains two unusual dishes. The menu and approximate costs are:

- Chilled Prune Juice 17¢
- Macaroni and Liver 40¢
- Battered Stringless Beans 17¢
- Cucumber and Romaine Salad 25¢
- Bread and Butter 12¢
- Pumpkin Ice Cream 22¢
- Demi-Tasse 5¢

The recipes for the main course and dessert, the two unusual dishes, are as follows:

Tested Recipes

Macaroni and Liver: Pour boiling water over one-half pound liver, let stand three or four minutes, drain and remove membranes and blood vessels. Chop fine. Chop one onion and sauté a few minutes in three tablespoons butter, but do not brown. Add liver and sauté a few minutes longer. Add the contents of a No. 2½ can tomatoes, salt, pepper, paprika and one-half teaspoon sugar, and simmer five minutes. Cook one package macaroni in boiling salted water, drain and add to the tomato and liver. Reheat and serve.

Pumpkin Ice Cream: Beat one egg yolk slightly, add one-half cup sugar and one-half cup hot milk, then cook in double boiler, stirring constantly, until mixture coats the spoon. Add to one and a half cups canned pumpkin mixed with one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon cinnamon, a few grains nutmeg and two teaspoons lemon juice. Beat one egg white until stiff, add one tablespoon sugar and fold into first mixture. Add one-half cup beaten cream. Pour into refrigerator trays and freeze, stirring occasionally. When half frozen, add one-fourth cup chopped nuts. This may also be frozen in an ice cream freezer.*

THE FARM AND HOME.

Horses and mules, when working, should receive a pound of grain and a pound and a tenth of hay or good forage for each 100 pounds of live weight. Thus a 1,000 pound animal requires 10 pounds of grain and 11 pounds of hay daily.

If lice get on poultry, put a little melted lard on their heads at night, or poultice over a week old may be dusted with two small pinches of sodium fluoride. Dust the hens in the morning, but never at night or on a rainy or damp day.

Unless pruned regularly after they have bloomed, flowering shrubs tend to become unsightly. By removing the old wood gradually, the top will be renewed and the plant will look better and produce more and better flowers. Size and shape may be regulated by pruning.

To control plant lice, spray with two teaspoonful of nicotine sulfate to a gallon of water, or three-eighths of a pint to 50 gallons. Add soap at the rate of an inch cube to the gallon or 2 pounds to 50 gallons. Apply so the insects will be wet, including under-sides of leaves.

Never add fresh or warm cream to previous milkings until the new cream is cool. Adding warm cream to cream which has been cooled warms up the whole mass and may start undesirable bacteria to growing.

Most gardens need an application of well-rotted manure. Commercial fertilizers are desirable, especially if the ground contains plenty of humus. Care is needed, in any event in the application of either manure or commercial fertilizers.

Soil Treatment Doubles Yield

That good soil treatment pays is shown by the results on the Campbellville Soil Experiment field which the University of Kentucky established in 1919. Four tons of limestone per acre were applied between 1919 and 1923, and an average of 180 pounds acre per year of 16 per cent superphosphate has been used with the lime. Land untreated with limestone and superphosphate has yielded an annual average of 29 bushels of corn, 5.2 bushels of wheat and 1,800 pounds of mixed grass and legume hay per acre, not counting the years when there were crop failures.

The average yield for the land treated with limestone and superphosphate for the same time was 56 bushels of corn, 13.4 bushels of wheat and 4,100 pounds of hay.

In the 16 years the treatment of limestone and superphosphate on three acres in the three year rotation has produced a total increase of 379 bushels of corn, 98 bushels of wheat and 13,75 tons of hay. At 50 cents for corn, 75 cents for wheat and $10 for hay, these increases were worth $133 per acre. At $2 per ton for limestone and $1 per hundred for superphosphate the treatment has cost $37, leaving a net of $96 above cost of materials or $6 per acre. Furthermore, there is enough reserve of phosphorus in the soil from the superphosphate to decidedly increase crops for several years, as has been definitely shown by experiments.

When crop prices are high, large applications of phosphate can be used at a profit and leave a reserve in the soil for periods of low prices. For example, if 200 pounds of phosphate produces an increase of 10 bushels of corn and 200 pounds more would produce just enough more to pay for it, the most of the extra application would be left for future crops. Heavy fertilization of small grain and the grass and legumes seeded with it can be made to pay for the fertilization of a following corn crop or greatly reduce the cost of fertilizing a following tobacco crop. When the grain and hay crops have been well fertilized and manure is returned to the land, corn will need little if any fertilizer and tobacco will need little. Legumes and grass crops need liberal fertilization.

CUBANS EAT A LOT OF ONIONS FROM UNITED STATES

Imports of American onions into Cuba increased substantially during the past year as compared with 1933, according to a report to the Louisville district office of the Commerce Department. Most of the remainder came from Egypt and Syria. American onions imported into Cuba come chiefly from eastern, western and mid-continent States. They are usually imported in ventilated paper bags. Cuban consumption of onions is estimated at from 7 to 10 pounds per capita.

Legion Show Has Many Features

Shirley Temple in "Now and Forever" Will Be Main Attraction At Local Picture Show.

Bingham Stephens, manager of the newly opened Legion Theater in Cadiz, has announced the pictures that will be shown during the coming week. The selection is varied and include such pictures as "Now and Forever," starring Shirley Temple; the Paramount production, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," and a Jack Perrin Western, "Rawhide Mail."

Starring with Miss Temple in the picture, "Now and Forever," which will be presented on Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week are Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard.

Adapted from an original story by Jack Kirkland and Melville Baker, "Now and Forever" not only permits Shirley Temple to exhibit her talents as an actress, but also gives her opportunity to display her unusual gifts for singing and dancing.

The "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" will be presented Friday of this week, and stars Gary Cooper, and Franchot Tone. Four years ago the Paramount company began making this picture, which is based on the famous story of the most heroic fighting regiment in history. An expedition was sent to India for thrilling, authentic scenes of then Bengal Lancers in action, surging scenes of life in mystic Indian cities, pictures of the glamorous Nautch girls in their exotic dances. Gary Cooper plays the part of a British captain in this picture.

In the picture to be presented Saturday night, Mr. Stephens said that Jack Perrin's in the saddle again, gun ablazing, his faithful horse, snorting, galloping, as ready as his daring master to face death and danger as they ride furiously through the stormy action of "Rawhide Mail," the new Western thriller with a dynamic punch in every scene.

At the Friday and Saturday night shows, the second episode of "Tarzan" will be shown. The new movie got off to a good start last week and the boys of the Legion, who are sponsoring the new theater, are enthusiastic about the prospects for a good picture show in Cadiz.

Tons Of Food To Feed The Family

Suppose that, over a period of 22 years, a farmer and his wife rear a boy and a girl and send them out from the farm home on their 18th birthdays to seek their fortunes. The food supply for such a family for 22 years, as calculated by Miss Miriam Birdseye, U. S. Department of Agriculture, would be worth approximately $12,000. Here are the amazing totals required by this family:

- 6,000 gallons of milk.
- 4 tons of meat and poultry.
- 1,300 dozens of eggs.
- 2 1-2 tons of butter and other fats.
- 8 tons of potatoes.
- 1 ton of dried beans and peas.
- 4 tons of leafy or green vegetables.
- 3 1-2 tons of tomatoes.
- 1 ton of dried fruits.
- 5 1-2 tons of other fruits and vegetables.
- 7 tons of flour and cereals.
- 2 3-4 tons of sugar, molasses and other sweets.

District Camps Met In Cadiz

Nine Soil Erosion Camps In This State Represented At Meeting Held Here Thursday.

WORK IN FIELD INSPECTED

A district meeting of Soil Erosion Camps of the CCC was held at Cadiz last Thursday with the local camp as hosts.

According to H. A. Ritchie, forester in charge of the work at the Cadiz camp, the meeting was for the purpose of outlining the program and policy for the group of soil erosion camps in this state. The conservation of soil and the planting of soil saving crops were stressed by the speakers. Terracing of hill lands also came in for discussion.

In addition to the nine camps represented, the county agents and assistant county agents in the counties where camps are located were present. Dinner was served to 48 at the Cadiz Hotel. The meeting was held at the camp here and members of the party were also taken to view some of the work in the field.

Among those who were on the program were: Dr. Prescott Bost,

ARGENTINA WANTS TO SELL U. S. HORSES AND MULES

That the United States at the present time may afford a profitable market for Argentine horses and mules is pointed out in a recently published report of the Argentine Ministry of Agriculture, according to advices to the Louisville District Office of the Commerce Department. The decline in American horse production during the past 17 years, from 1918 to 1935, it is stated, has been over 50 per cent. Whereas there were 21,550,000 horses in the United States in 1918, there are now reported to be 11,827,000. Good work horses are reported to be available for from $25 to $35 a head. Accordingly, $45 would be a normally profitable price for good quality stock. The United States import duty on horses and mules, valued at not more than $150, amounts to $30 a head. The Argentine report states that the average price of horses in the U. S. has increased to $80.55 while the price for mules has risen to $100.17 a head.

NATION'S FARMS SHOW HALF-MILLION INCREASE

Complete preliminary tabulations of returns from the nation-wide Census of Agriculture, just received by the Louisville district office of the Department of Commerce, show 6,883,109 farms in the United States January 1, 1935, as compared with 6,288,648 farms April 1, 1930, an increase of 594,461.

Dr. Dafoe says quintuplets will soon be restored to parents.

It is quite a contrast to come right out of spring weather into winter but that is what I did, and was it a contrast? Just imagine how the grass and trees were greening back in old Kentucky and think of it snowing here and not a trace of green except in the pines. Even as I write it is snowing and a small blizzard is blowing. This morning when I arose, the clouds were hanging low over the town and looked like a heavy fog. Having never been in London, I cannot compare it with a London fog but I'll bet that it would supply plenty of competition.

I am now around nine thousand feet above sea level, way up in the Colorado Rockies at a little town called Cripple Creek. Once it was a booming town of thirty thousand population, but now it has dwindled down to around three thousand. In the district around the town is possibly one of the greatest gold mining sections in all the United States. On the sides of all the mountains surrounding is mute evidence of a prospector's hopes and efforts to find the ore that would make him rich. Mostly the efforts were disappointing though. It took more than the puny efforts of a pick and shovel. Most of the valuable ore is deep in the ground and is reached by a deep shaft sunk by machinery. Still people make a living by digging the ore. It does not pay much. Maybe sometimes one will hit a rich vein but the old saying: "Easy come; easy go," applies in this case too. Rich today, a pauper tomorrow and they go merrily on their way. Little do they care. They still believe that "tha's gold in them thar hills," and when all the pay dirt is gone they go back into the ground and search for more.

Most of the people here are ones who come from other states in search for ready wealth. Most of them meet disillusionment, but still they stay here rather than go back home and admit defeat. Only the other day I met a grizzled old prospector. He came here from Pennsylvania back in 1876, then a young man with visions of gold in his head. He rambled from mining camp to mining camp and never did find what he had dreamed of. He has never been back home. Though trying several times, he never got across the state line simply because the old urge would not let him. Now... he is an old man. His hopes and dreams will never be realized. He puts about

you're safe on CONCRETE

At night the superiority of concrete becomes most apparent because of its visibility. Its light gray surface with sharply defined edges reflects light but is not glossy.

Concrete conforms precisely to the formula for the ideal pavement set up by the International Illumination Congress of 1928 and by the Illuminating Engineering Society in 1934. The importance of this is emphasized by the fact that the rate of death per accident is 45% higher during hours of darkness.

Concrete, smooth but non-skid, insures a quick, certain stop even in the rain. Blow-outs, spring breakage, steering gear failures, accidents of all kinds are less apt to happen on concrete.

Yet concrete is not only safe—it is more comfortable—it saves in driving costs—it costs less for upkeep—and cost of construction is less than that of any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

town talking of the good old days when everything was booming, and now being supported by an old-age pension supplied by the state. He has a ready tongue for those who will listen. For me he found a willing listener. It was like turning back the pages of time and seeing for myself, the booming days of the gold rush. When the town was young and full of enthusiasm, when gold nuggets were passed over the counters of the stores more frequently than real money, when fortunes slipped through fingers and were soon forgotten. Still they dig for what they see in their minds, riches and great wealth. It's still there, a lot of it. Many old mines have been gone into. Ones that were thought to be exhausted and rich veins have been struck. As long as that keeps happening, the quest will go on.

A lot of the people who came here when the town was booming, are still here and have put up a safer and more sane business. Some have gone into "grocerying," buying and selling, "restauranting," and even the old time saloon and dance hall since repeal. There is one old lady who came here from Illinois with her husband. They lost all they had in a wildcat mine. The husband soon died and now she is making a modest living running a rooming house. She doesn't regret it, it seems. She says that it would have been nice to have made a fortune but, she says money isn't everything.

I could go on for numberless pages telling of the different people who have a different story to tell. It is interesting to note the stories and the little ray of hope that still burns. "Thurs gold in them thar hills" still burns their brains and they go on... hoping, wishing and praying...

When I first sighted the mighty Rockies I was about a hundred and fifty miles away from them. I was then crossing the dust tortured plains of Kansas and part of the prairies of eastern Colorado. Even through the flying silt, the snow-capped peaks stood out like a mirage to a thirst-crazed desert wanderer. They stood in majestic greatness rather taunting I thought, thinking of how the natives of the dust swept plains would have appreciated the snow over their territory. However now it is different. Most all the dust bowl has received plenty of rain and they have visions of a fruitful crop yet.

I was rather disappointed in the mountains. I still think that there is nothing in the country to compare with our hills back in old Trigg County. Its true that they are many times as great but I cannot say that they are that many times as beautiful. Maybe it is because these hills are home, and no other ones, no matter how great, can replace them in my heart. I would like to advocate a "See America First" campaign and include the hills of old Kentucky at the top of the list.

In the "See America" tour, you may see St. Louis with its smoke, Chicago with its machine bullets, and the recent World's Fair, New York with its skyline, Detroit with its automobiles, and Kansas City with its sweltering heat in summer and the Soldier's Memorial, but if

HOPKINSVILLE PROTESTS AGAINST BRIDGE TOLLS.

Chamber of Commerce Believes That High Tolls Are Hurting Its Tobacco Market

The Hopkinsville Chamber of Commerce has joined Murray's organization and other bodies in Western Kentucky in an effort to reduce tolls on Egner's Ferry Bridge over the Tennessee river, a special dispatch carried by the Associated Press said last Thursday.

In a letter to the Highway Commission the Hopkinsville body said: "The present high rate of toll at this point causes reduction in travel across the bridge. Our burley tobacco market suffers quite a lot during the winter months."

The Murray organization cites that it costs $2.70 in toll rates for a citizen to make the round trip from Murray to Cadiz, county seat of Trigg county, an adjoining county.

that he was wrong. Those who went to school when I did and got to learn the expression, "from time to time," or the ever as comical: "It actually happened," can readily appreciate his jokes which are not stale but mellow as the years go by. Even when you can't see the point, he will tell when it is time to laugh and get as big a kick out of it as you would, if you had caught the joke.

Fishing is his hobby but the fish do not know it. However he gets as much fun out of casting for them as they do at dodging the fly. Of course one does get caught "accidentally" but nevertheless he cheerily takes it off the hook and vows to be more careful next time.

Seriously though, Cadiz is very fortunate in having as fine a man as Prof. Townsend and the board can be commended upon electing him for another school term. I extend my hearty best wishes and I am sure others will do the same, ones that really know him.

I have given a real clue or possibly two clues as to who I am, in this issue of the column. Many that knew me as my "other self" will readily identify me. Of course several were almost sure who I was but they did not really know so here is a good chance to prove what you strongly thought. Many of my high school mates should recognize me when I say that Miss Glenn was our class sponsor. Now go to it.

TIP TOP SHAPE NOW; CONSTIPATION RELIEVED BY HONEY KRUSHED BREAD

Mrs. F. F. Atwood, 505 Webber Street, Like Many Others, Finds Walden Baking Co.'s New Bread Highly Beneficial.

This worthy lady, manager of the Coffee Pot, writes the following letter:

"I want to thank you for the wonderful help the new Honey Krushed Wheat Bread has given me. Being new on the market, I thought it was just another brown bread and did not think it would do all you claimed for it. Now, however, I am thoroughly convinced, for since eating it at every meal Honey Krushed Wheat Bread has made me feel a hundred per cent better. My faulty elimination and headaches from constipation are gone and I feel better than I have for many months. And for a really delicious food it cannot be excelled."

Many people, who have been eating the new Honey Krushed Wheat Bread regularly every day, report constipation relieved and in some cases eliminated. Now for the first time you can get a delicious loaf of bread which contains the entire whole wheat kernel.

The formula and the franchise to produce this marvelous, sustaining and beneficial bread has been secured for Hopkinsville and is now obtainable at all grocers and dealers selling bakery products.

Make This Ten-Day Test. If you are troubled with faulty elimination switch to Honey Krushed Wheat Bread for ten days. After the third or fourth day you will feel more peppy, your bowels will begin to move regularly and you will begin to feel like a different person.

Go to your grocers today and be sure to get the original and genuine Honey Krushed Wheat Bread. Eat a slice with your eyes shut. You'll be surprised at its marvelous flavor and almost swear it is full of nut meats. It is tastier than other breads because it contains an abundant supply of honey.
