

Our Town....

By Eugene McCormick

We noticed with interest this week that Farmer Boy Drive-In Restaurant has re-opened in East Cadiz. The new owners are Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Perry, who also own the Perry Furniture Co. Mr. Perry stated that the restaurant would be open seven days a week from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m.

In downtown Cadiz something new has been added! We understand that Renee's Figure Salon will be open soon.

In West Cadiz, at the top of Russell's Hill, we have been watching with interest a new building which is being constructed. We have learned that this will be Wink's Shake Shoppe. In an interview with Mrs. Robert Winkler, she stated that she and her husband (the owners) were quite excited about this new venture. She said they had set an opening date for about the middle of April.

We extend our congratulations to these businesses and wish for them much success. Our Town is on the move and we welcome all new businesses to our community!

The Friends of Trigg County Library are proud to announce that the organization will present the Louisville Children's Theater Production of "Androcles and the Lion" on March 25 at Trigg County High Auditorium. There will be two performances, one at 9:30 a. m. and one at 1:30 p. m. This is the first time this famous group of players has performed here and we know that our citizens will take advantage of this opportunity to attend. We will have information on this at a later date.

The Friends of the Library are quite busy these days. It won't be too long before the big building fund campaign gets underway. Also preliminary plans are being made for the 3rd annual Night of Entertainment. This year there will be two nights of entertainment. The first night, May 7, will be the popular variety show program, which will feature some of the best acts in our county. The second night, May 8, will be a very special program of magnificent music, gorgeous costumes and big spectacular production numbers. This program will be entitled, "It Was Only Yesterday."

Then later in the summer the Friends hope to sponsor a special Library Day celebration in West Cadiz Park. But more about all these events will be forthcoming in the near future.

Cadiz citizens will be interested to know that Jimmy Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Drake, of Donelson, Tenn., will appear on the Red O'Donald Show on WLAC-TV, Channel 5, Nashville at 12 noon on March 5th. Jimmy has recently served as Congressional Page for Congressman Joe Evans of Tennessee. The Drakes, who lived here several years before moving to Tennessee, have many friends here who will want to see the show.

It was announced this week that the Art Guild will meet Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the Art Room at Trigg County High School. All members and interested persons are invited to attend and bring their own supplies with which to work.

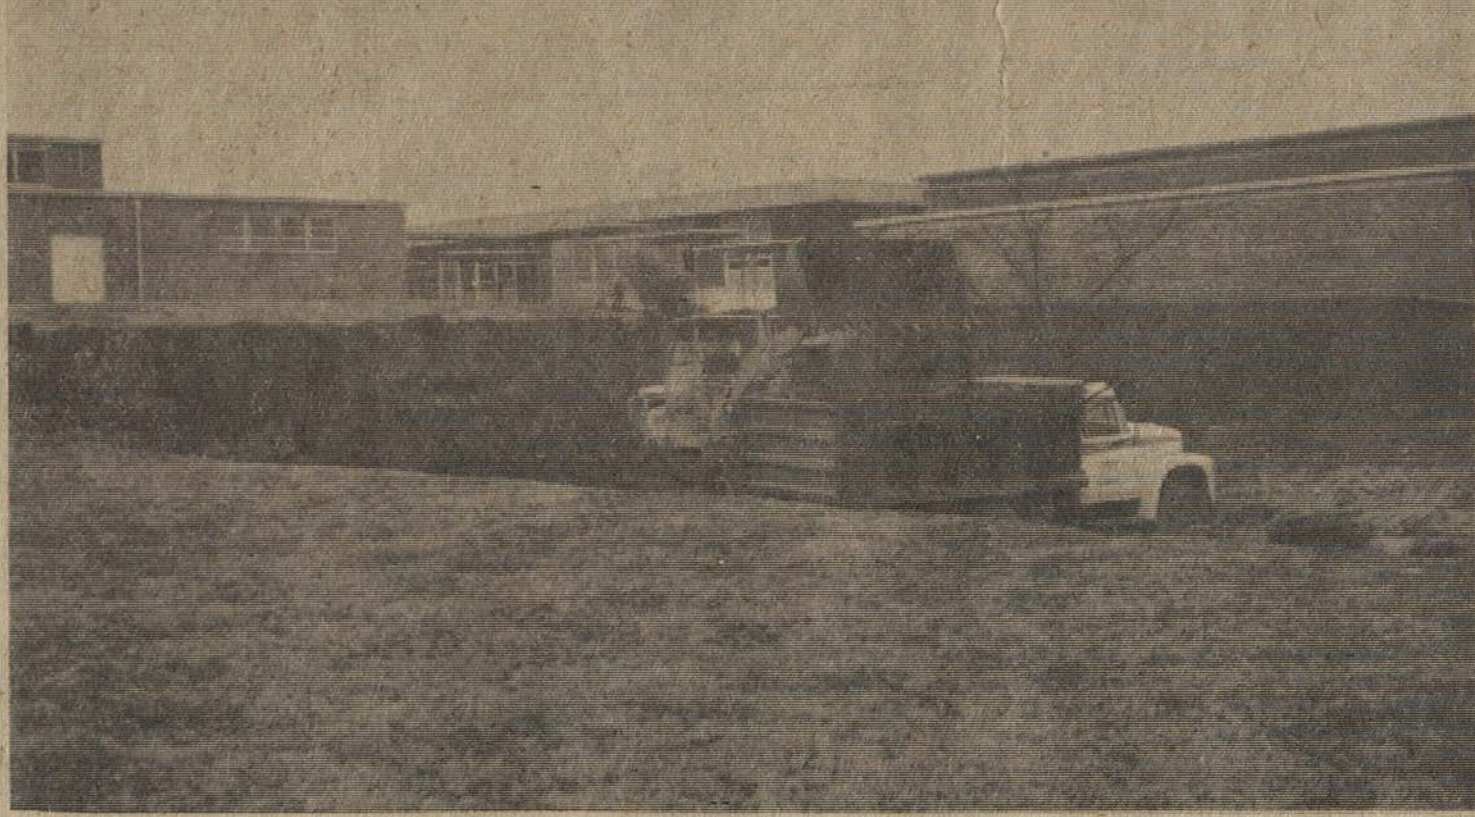

We visited Lake Barkley Park last Sunday and were quite impressed with so much construction going on. Many new campsites are being prepared as well as several "cabins". Work was progressing on the golf course and more of the drive-ways had been paved. By the time the tourist season officially opens, the park will truly be a beautiful sight to behold.

Mrs. Ann Upton of Kirksville, Mo., arrived Sunday to spend this week with Mrs. R. H. Upton, Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston White and sons, John and Henry, of Lexington, spent the week end here the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. White.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ladd and Ashlea of Paducah were here Saturday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vance Leneave.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Morgan of Nashville and Mrs. W. G. Morgan of Owensboro were week end guests of Miss Bird Shaw.

Site preparation which includes some extensive excavating was begun Monday, March 1, on the new Trigg County Elementary School which is expected to be completed in June, 1972.

Rader Construction Co. of Hopkinsville is contractor for the school construction project. Noel Concrete and Excavating Co. of Cadiz is sub contractor in charge of the site preparation.

Workmen for the Noel Co., were busily moving dirt early Tuesday afternoon when this picture was taken. In the background are the Trigg gym, cafeteria and music buildings.

Mrs. Litchfield Awarded Forestry Plaque

Mrs. Woodrow Litchfield, Trigg Soil and Water Conservation District cooperator and Clarence Gray of the Kentucky Division of Forestry admire Mrs. Litchfield's Tom Wallace Forestry improvement plaque. This plaque was awarded Mrs. Litchfield for outstanding accomplishment in forestry management.

As a part of the conservation plan for her farm she has planted trees, improved the woodland by cutting vines, scrub trees and selective harvesting of mature trees. One strip along the road has been cleared of underbrush and planted to grass. "I wanted it to look real good along the road," Mrs. Litchfield commented. "Yes, I do some of the work myself, I usually hide my axe when a car comes along the road and pretend that I am just looking at the trees," she explained. "It is a real hobby for me and the woodland makes a little money sometimes."

Mrs. Litchfield is a career employee with the Trigg ASCS. She is a member of the Cadiz Business and Professional Women's Club and very active in civic activities.

The Tom Wallace awards are presented to timber land owners by the Courier Journal in each county when five or more entries are received. "With more than one half of Trigg County in woodland and much of it needing improvement and re-planting we are very anxious to work with more land owners. Woodland practices are the top priority practices to be used in the Environmental Assistance Program. As much as 80% of the cost of establishing these practices will be shared by the Federal government," Gray stated. Mrs. Litchfield is the contact representative at the ASCS office to handle the requests for this type of assistance.

South-Land Has Come To Trigg County

No! That white stuff isn't the white sands of some Florida beach town. It's just plain old Kentucky snow and South-Land, as the time this picture was snapped by Rodney Cheat-ham, wasn't just exactly the typical "magnolia and mint julep" setting ordinarily associated with such a title.

South-Land is the name given to the community at the crossroads section of the South Road and Julien Road in Trigg County. Giving the community a name came about at the suggestion of County Agent Keith Venable because of the numerous homes and the nucleus of business that have sprung up at the crossroads.

South-Land's only similarity to its namesake this week is the fact of its name, and also

Is Blacksmithing
A Lost Art?

By Helen Price Stacy
Special Writer
My father, the late Earl Price of West Liberty, taught me appreciation of country things. While most of his life was spent in a so-called city area, he was ever mindful of his boyhood years on a farm near Spencer, W. Va. When his work with United Fuel and Wayne United Gas Co. brought him to Kentucky he found it as easy to talk with a farmer or a country blacksmith as with the Cabots and Lodges in his Charleston office—and with the same degree of pleasure. Through the years he acquired many tools, strange and unfamiliar to me, and occasionally passed some of them on to his inquisitive daughter. That is how I came to possess a number of items, handforged by blows of a smithy's hammer on an anvil. Frequently in interviewing farm folk for a story I have come away with an ancient bit of iron that performed an ancient task in what seemed an ancient world. And yet, as history and fashions repeat themselves, a repeat era of the blacksmith is not the most far out idea. Not exactly carried away at the time by my acquisition of these farm and hand tools, I did not bother to learn their uses. I kept trying to work out an artistic wall hanging with tongs—a common piece of sculpture with the anvil. Common sense told me that a large pair of tongs that came with hand forged andirons should be used for lifting another log onto the fire, but not until I bought a second hand book on practical blacksmithing did I learn that slightly smaller tongs were used by a smithy to hold horseshoes. Using the same theory I tried to make a still smaller pair into holders for pony shoes, only to find out they were hand forged tooth pliers used by one of Morgan County's first doctors. When Fayette County—or another county—gets a state park, provision should be made for an oldtime blacksmith or furrier's shop. Many people collect old tools and many farmers retain them to do necessary repairs around the farm. There are yet enough oldtimers, smithies in their day, who could be called on for background knowledge.

FIRST PURCHASE — Gov. Louie B. Nunn got the 1971 Honey Sunday campaign underway when he recently bought the first container of honey. The Kentucky Jaycees will be selling the 12-oz. containers door-to-door on Honey Sunday, March 7, in a statewide effort co-sponsored by the Kentucky Assn. for Retarded Children. Shown here with the governor are Eric Spohn, left, publicity chairman for Honey Sunday, and Terry Coleman, executive vice president of the Kentucky Jaycees. (Chuck Holbert Photo)

In the book on blacksmithing, compiled and published by M. T. Richardson in 1890, he called on guest smithies to relate their experiences in smithery. One told how to weld bug gy springs and said, "I have welded springs in this way for many years, and it has never failed."

If the smithy used wooden parts for handles, they were made with the same degree of perfection as were the iron parts. The handles were soaked in linseed oil for a week then rubbed down every day for two weeks to give them a lustrous beauty and durability. To prevent rust on a tool, caoutchouc oil rubbed on the piece gave good results, as did a coating solution of India rubber in benzine. Another preventive was to use one-half ounce camphor dissolved in one pound melted lard and mixed with fine lead such as pencil graphite. To remove rust, cover the metal with sweet oil for 48 hours, then smear with oil applied freely with a feather and rub with unslaked lime. Some of the tools in Richardson's book were: hatchet for opening bundle iron, col'aring tools, light flatter for finishing flat irons set hammers, heavy flatters, siding down tools and tongs. Farrier tools included shoe spreaders, picks, corn cutters, clinch blocks, plow share tools and the more common wrenches, bolts, and screws. It was agreed that any book was merely an aid to a blacksmith. The smith worked without patterns and diagrams but used his finesse and imagination to turn out a tool for a particular job. The way in which he held his tools and the force and trueness of his blows often gave identity to his work. The book on practical blacksmithing showed all kinds of gadgets that must have been dear to the smith of that day. Then almost every farmer was his own blacksmith using his farm shed or shop to make broad axes, hatchets, plowshares, andirons, froes, hoes and wagon and buggy parts. Not only should books on the art of blacksmithing be collected and saved, but also the tools—and the tools that made the tools. As complete as was the book of 1890, I was disappointed that it did not identify all the metal bits and pieces saved here and there. The book told how to forge iron into a flat piece about four by six inches and how to make the metal bolts and taps to fasten it onto a five foot wooden handle. It even told how to bathe the handle in linseed oil and polish it to a soft patina—but what does one do with a grub hoe after it is made? There are sermons and sermons. We enjoy most of them. With some you lose the line of thought. Some grip and hold you all the way through. Among the latter is one I heard on WKDZ last Thursday morning at 9:30. Matthew 25 is one of my favorite chapters, and you know, we do sometimes "entertain angels unawares." Maybe we can see it clearly afterwards, but at the time it just doesn't register. Have we ever been confronted with either or all of the three illustrations given? How did we react? Administrator, or just turn away. Oh, yes, in last week's Calorie Facts, that was for a 150 lb. person. One can hardly imagine one weighing 15 lbs. doing some of those things! Perhaps you've noticed by now that I like the odd, strange and curious in the news. Somehow it fascinates me. As mentioned before, I'm always scanning the news for some new development in the search for what is believed to be the ruins of Noah's Ark, more on The Abominable Snow Man, the Loch Ness Monster and the Sasquatch, "An elusive creature said to weigh 500 lbs., and lurk about the mountains of the Pacific Northwest and other parts of the world." This quote was from a daily newspaper. I've read magazine articles about this creature. The latest news about the Sasquatch was a picture of the giant footprints near a small town in the Northwest. A magazine article a few years ago featured a rather long description of the creature, with a picture of large, tall hairy female of the species. It seems a hunter spied her crossing a clearing, but for some reason (maybe fear?) he remained in hiding. Pride is detested in the sight of the Lord and of men, and injustice is wrong in the sight of both. In last week's Record I mentioned Glenwood, Maggie and I, visiting a home where the bread winner is "laid up." We went again last week and carried them some groceries. Instead of four boys, there's five. All in school and it's their hope and that of the parents, that they stay in school. But—five growing youngsters need food and clothing. Picture for yourself a home where the father is in bed most of the time, with the mother caring for him and five children, with a big financial problem. The youngsters' ages are 16, 12, 10, 9 and 7, all on the husky side. The mother wears a size 14. If you feel you'd like to help keep this family going until something can be coming in, please call 522-6844. Live for thy neighbor if thou wouldst live for God! —Our Daily Bread. Get well wishes to: Bill McNichols, Mary Linda Futrell, Mrs. Annie Williams. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Clark on the birth of their little daughter, Amber Gayle. (I just love her name!)

NO CEASEFIRE IN TB WAR

The Vietnam war ripped the social fabric of America in unforeseen ways. Now that war may also threaten the control of tuberculosis here. The incidence of TB in the United States is among the lowest in the world. Because of highly effective nationwide control programs. But the Vietnamese population, in sharp contrast, has one of the highest rates of active—as well as drug resistant—TB anywhere. More than 500,000 American servicemen have been stationed in Vietnam. In a recent issue of "Archives of Environmental Health," Colonel R. G. Cowley reported that a random chest survey of Vietnamese civilians showed fully one third of those over 15 years of age had radiologic evidence of active TB. A WHO survey of sputum samples from Vietnamese showed a very high percentage of the kind of TB that is resistant to treatment by the usual drug regimens. Chaotic war conditions in Vietnam have prevented even the most elementary attempts at TB control programs. According to Col. Cowley, a five year analysis of military personnel showed clear-cut indications that drug resistant strains of TB among the Vietnamese are producing significant disease in U. S. troops. Some disease is detected early. But, "there is a distinct possibility that a number of cases of drug resistant TB resulting from exposure in Vietnam," says the Colonel, "will become apparent clinically in settings far removed in distance and time from their military origin." In other words, at home. Military and civilian agencies are alerted to the problem. Servicemen themselves should request tuberculin skin tests in their medical checkups in the years to come. Taking pills can prevent a tuberculosis infection from developing into active disease. For more information about ways to control the disease, contact your tuberculosis and respiratory disease association. This column is sponsored by Trigg County TB Association.

THAT'S A FACT

Shady Lawn Hi-Lites

By Barbara Johnston

Have you had a problem this week? Welcome to the club. Almost everyone has a problem. The difference lies in the solution they seek. I've come in contact with many problems this week. A young soldier stricken by a rare disease, paralyzed from head to toe, the retarded child and the misunderstanding of the public. The alcoholic's escape into his own hell; the battle of a heavy smoker's withdrawal from years of habit. The cry of a young widow, "I feel so empty." The loneliness of a young woman whose husband is a chaplain in Vietnam. The problems of an epileptic mother trying to support four children. Yes, these of my friends have problems. To these I add my own problems. For some of you it may be a problem you consider too personal to mention or too trivial or even too vague to put your finger on. I find my biggest problem is really being honest with God. Realizing this one day I wrote this poem:

Last night I prayed,
Lord, I'm yours to use.
God pulled back the curtain,
Of my soul's recluse.
It shrank from suffering,
In such a way,
I knew I didn't mean what I prayed.
I rephrased my prayer,
And cried, "Keep me, please,"
To be willing to suffer,
Not just fall on my knees.
So often we think we pray when we are really saying, "Handle it Lord but don't let me get involved in this mess." I have found as one lady shared with me this week, "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." Phil. 4:13. Another place it says, "But without Him, I can do nothing." Well, so much for Dr. Barbara's sermon. I kinda get carried away and forget to take you to Shady Lawn . . .

Well, look who's back! It's Mrs. Effie Stallons. I know the phrase, "Sweet little ole lady" is threadbare but that's exactly what comes to mind. Mrs. H. L. Cherry (Dora) is also at the home. Mrs. Cherry said, "I knew you when you were young." Please, Mrs. Cherry, don't say it like that. Mrs. Cherry said she was coming along real well and was having visitors as I left: her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jimmie Cherry and Mrs. C. D. Morris both from Murray.

Mrs. Jettie Stallons had surgery on her leg recently. We're all pulling for you, Mrs. Jettie and I'm asking our readers to put you on their prayer list this week. Mrs. Jettie's address is: St. Thomas Hospital, Nashville, Tenn.

One of the private duty nurses, Mrs. Virginia Oliver, asked me this and I'm passing it on to you, "Where in the Bible does it say, 'The poor were sold for a pair of shoes.'" One hint, Old Testament.

Something new has been added. The Bazaar profits have been invested in several new tables and games for the Sun Porch. Skittles, Pet Billiards and Table Cricket. Several of Shady Lawn's residents including a nurse or two have been enjoying these.

Mrs. Betty White has had several visitors and gifts. Mrs. Barefield and also the Wallonia Homemakers Club. Mrs. Ruth Woodruff often carries her interesting books which are also enjoyed by the others. To me that's one of the nicest gifts a person can get. Mr. Bredford Turner had been visited by Mr. Luther Downs. Mr. Downs had also been visiting his mother, Mrs. Link Downs. The latest buzzing was about Easter plans for Shady Lawn residents and a skating party in April for the employees. Both sound like fun. I went skating (if you could call it that) the other night and you were right

Mrs. Cherry I did use to be younger. By the way, Mrs. Cherry is a friend of a reader in Dayton, Ohio. Hi, Sally! You'd never guess what just happened to me. I had just written Shady Lawn and started to prepare a little lunch (I have been ill for 3 days) and there were these young mothers at my door, babies & all with this delicious dinner. These were my Young Married Sunday School Class and my problems just went down the drain. Aren't people wonderful?

April Showers May Bring Tornadoes

Spring is just around the corner, and with the winds of March, April's showers and the flowers of May comes a more discouraging aspect of springtime—the tornado.

According to A. Ben Elam, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Climatologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, more severe tornadoes strike the state in March, April and May than at any other time of the year.

"Last year," Elam said, "there were seven known tornadoes in Kentucky—but there were no deaths. In fact, though there were a number of injuries associated with tornadoes in the 18 year period from 1953 to 1970, deaths occurred in only six of these years."

The number of deaths resulting from tornadoes has declined in recent years, Elam explained, noting that there were 16 deaths in the period 1953-1970, while 180 deaths were recorded from 1916 to 1952.

"Tornadoes occur at any hour of the day or night, Elam said, "but because of the meteorological combinations which create them they, form mostly during the warmer hours of the day."

"During the past 18 years, 40 to 50 percent of all tornadoes struck between noon and 6 p. m.," Elam said. He added that 20 to 30 percent of the violent storms struck from 6 p. m. to midnight, while 10 to 20 percent occurred from midnight to 6 a. m. or from 6 a. m. to noon. In those cases where the direction of the striking tornado was reported, 80 percent of the storms struck from the west through the southwest.

Tornadoes can occur in almost any section of the state, and at any elevation—hilltop or valley. "Generally, a greater number of tornadoes was observed in the western and northern portions of the state. However, the chances of experiencing a tornado are very small in any part of Kentucky," Elam said.

National Weather Service records indicate that tornadoes were reported in Kentucky as far back as 1830. The worst outbreak of tornadoes in the state's history occurred on the night of March 27, 1890, when at least five tornadoes and a number of lesser storms were reported. Seventy-six people were killed in Louisville, and although it was reported that at least 30 people were killed outside that city, the exact number cannot definitely be determined. Various sources report from 20 to 60 additional deaths.

"Tornadoes are the most destructive and violent of all the winds that sweep the earth's surface," Elam stated. The storms are capable of destroying tremendous amounts of property—and of course, are capable of causing widespread death and injuries to individuals in their paths.

Elam notes that tornadoes often may be unobserved and unreported, due to the time of day, communications facilities and other factors. For example, the National Weather Service has determined that the more populated areas of the country report more tornadoes, simply because there are more people to observe them.

The Kentucky Association FFA has a leadership training center at Hardinsburg. The Center is valued at nearly one million dollars.

Be Sure You Are Getting Your Money's Worth

Friends, have you ever reached into your pocket and found only nickels and dimes when you "could have sworn you had a five dollar bill left." That's a common error today. Everything costs a lot more than you expect. Before you know it, the money you were counting on, is gone.

The Trigg County Insurance Agency, reminds you that today, many homeowners are having this experience with their insurance protection. Fire strikes and the insurance policy that once would have covered replacement and repair costs with no trouble . . . now does only half the job. The fellow who insured to protect his family from financial loss finds that, despite some protection, he still loses.

Don't let this happen to you. If you're dangerously under-insured, now's the time to find out. Ask The Trigg County Insurance Agency to review your protection today. That's the Trigg County Insurance Agency in Cadiz.

Kentucky's attorney general has ruled that it is illegal for pharmacists to type information in filling prescriptions for narcotic drugs.

The opinion held the information must be handwritten on the face of the prescription to cancel it according to the law.

TCH Wildcats Advance To 5th District Semi-Finals

The Trigg County Wildcats, in winding up their regular season and starting tournament play, seem to have found new self-assurance. They have plowed under three victims in a row—Providence, North Marshall and Crittenden County.

Coach Jim Wallace has found new depth in his reserves with recent good performance from Junior, Kieth Larkins and Sophomore, Robert Baker. Dwight Martin's 2½ game absence from the lineup, because of an injury, led to a deeper probing of Wildcat resources.

Trigg's victory over the 5th District tournament host, Crittenden County, advanced them to the semi-finals. They will meet the Caldwell County Tigers at Marion tonight at 7:30 p. m.

The winner of this pairing will play the lower bracket semi-final winner on Saturday night at 7:30 p. m. Both the winner and runner up from each district will play in the 2nd Region tournament at Hopkinsville next week.

Trigg 77—N. Marshall 71

The Trigg County Wildcats shared with the North Marshall Jets in one of the quality basketball games of the year last Friday. The contest at North Marshall was the last regular schedule game on the slate for Trigg County and also one of the best.

Trigg was hitting fine, from the floor as well as from the foul line. North Marshall passed Trigg at the gratis stripe by four points and shot slightly over the Wildcats in percentage from the floor. The Cats clamped 15 more rebounds than the Jets and committed two less errors in a reasonably well-controlled game.

Rebounding was the key to Trigg's success. The Wildcats were led on the boards by the game's top rebounder, Lennus Redd. Redd pulled down 12 stray shots while George Barnes and Robert Baker got 7 each. Keith Larkins entered the game for Trigg shortly before the third quarter ended and managed to grab 5 rebounds in the fourth quarter.

The Wildcats and the Jets put together a slow warming first quarter with Trigg leading by four at the first stop. The Wildcats then cooled to the extent that the Jets' Ronnie Faithe, nearly single handed, put his team in the lead. North Marshall then caught fire and advanced their advantage to 7 points before George Barnes started a Trigg holding action on the last play of the half.

The two teams launched into the second half for an eventual 21-21 third quarter. Midway in the quarter, the combined efforts of Trigg and North Marshall produced 15 points without a shot being missed by either team.

George Barnes brought the score to 61 all on a free throw with four minutes remaining. Barnes then proceeded to tack on 6 consecutive points for Trigg while the Jets hit for 4. The Wildcats blanked the Jets on five of their eight remaining opportunities and poured in 10 points going away as the horn ended the game.

George Barnes headed Trigg's four man double figure combo with 29 but was eclipsed by Ronnie Faithe who had 33 points for the Jets.

Scoring: Trigg: James Hopson 10, Keith Larkins 5, George Barnes 29, Lennus Redd 17, Simon Ladd 14, Robert Baker 2. N. Marshall: Charles Dougherty 14, Rick Hughes 7, Rod Edwards 4, Tom Ringstaff 4, Ronnie Faithe 33, Rick Cocke 9.

The Trigg J. V. wound up the season with a 62-37 loss to the Jets. Their final 1970-71 record is 10-8.

George Barnes raises his No. 13 over Crittenden's Mike Howard. Mike is 6.3 and George is 5.10, but George can make adjustments. Barnes missed this shot but made up for it later with a game high 24 points.

The frenzied defensive pace took its toll on both teams and invoked the bonus ruling before the first eight minutes were up. The two teams used a total of 16 players and committed 47 fouls.

Trigg took a 3 point lead into the second quarter on a free shot by George Barnes and a fielder by Lennus Redd. The Cats held on for several minutes but fell behind after two fielders by Dennis Porter.

At intermission Trigg was six points under. Coach Wallace sent in Dwight Martin with his ailing foot. Martin helped harness some needed rebounds, and the Cats set sail. Barnes, Hopson, and Ladd pelted the nets with round robin shooting that developed 10 points before Crittenden could score.

Simon Ladd next added a 3 pointer to put Trigg in front by 5 to stay until the fourth period.

George Barnes accounted for seven points in the last frame before he was fouled out. Bruce Higbee and Robert Baker hit for 3 points at the foul line to give Trigg a 14 point edge as the time faded, and coasted home.

The Wildcats played just for the good shots during most of the last quarter, and the Rockets sent them to the free throw line 10 times.

Crittenden outshot Trigg all around but were far behind on attempts because of errors, fouls and Trigg's rebounding. Lennus Redd got 15 rebounds and Robert Baker got 9 for the Cats. Bennett Smith got 17 for the Rockets.

Scoring: Trigg: James Hopson 8, George Barnes 24, Dwight Martin 4, Lennus Redd 14, Simon Ladd 7, Bruce Higbee 2, Robert Baker 9.

Some Conservation Cost Sharing Practices Now Authorized

Approval of some conservation cost sharing practices under the 1971 Rural Environmental Assistance Program have now been authorized, according to L. I. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Trigg County ASC committee.

He reported that development of the 1971 county pro-

six points in the second quarter when Trigg needed them. Two of these baskets were put backs.

gram for REAP is still in progress but that pending final determination, authorization had been given for the county committee to approve certain kinds of conservation practices.

Practices under the 1971 REAP which can now be approved include those through which farmers would establish or improve permanent vegetative cover, plant trees or shrubs, improve stands of forest trees, or build water impoundment reservoirs.

The chairman said all these fit well within the objectives of the 1971 REAP investment plans which aim at environmental improvement and pollution abatement through farmland conservation practices.

"Meanwhile," he said, "the county committee is continuing to consult with community leaders and other interested persons in developing our total REAP investment plan for Trigg County in 1971. We hope to announce the complete program in the near future — one that will benefit everyone in the area through its emphasis on improving the environment and helping reduce agriculture's contribution to deterioration of our natural resources."

The Kentucky Association of FFA was the 39th state association to receive a charter from the national organization.

Forty-nine states and Puerto Rico have chartered associations of the national organization.

A.S.C. News
The 1971 feed grain set aside program was designed to give all participants several options while at the same time providing them with farm income protection, thereby eliminating the need for a special small farm provision, according to a local farm program official. Some inquiries have been received, he said, about the absence of a small farm provision in the new feed grain program. "If farmers keep in mind that this year price support payments will be based on set aside acreage and not on feed grain production, then they can see one big reason why the small farm provision was not included," said L. I. Martin, Jr., chairman of Trigg County ASC committee.

In earlier feed grain programs, he explained, participating farmers were required to plant feed grains in order to receive price support payments. Since many farmers who had bases of 25 acres or less seldom found it worthwhile to plant any grain, they did not qualify for these payments. To compensate, payment was made to them for required diversion. This was the small farm special provision. For diversion in addition to their required acreage diversion they were paid at the same rate as large farms.

However, under the 1971 feed grain set aside program, the payment will be made for required diversion and this payment will be made to every participant, even if he plants no crop on his land. "It is highly probable that the set aside payment will be as large or larger than the payment for required diversion which the producer with the small feed grain base received last year," Martin said.

He also explained that under the 1971 feed grain program no additional diversion will be authorized beyond the required set aside acreage.

This is due to the possibility of a feed grain supply substantially less than is needed to feed the nation's livestock and to maintain U. S. export markets. Therefore, no participant in the 1971 feed grain program will receive payment for additional diversion.

A participant in the program will set aside a required percentage of his feed grain base and will maintain his farm's conserving base. In return, he will receive a set aside payment and will also be free to plant his acreage to feed grains or not, as he chooses. This means some small farm producers will continue as before not to plant feed grains, while others will be able to farm more efficiently because they can plant feed grains well in excess of their small base. If for some reason a program participant finds it impractical to plant a crop himself he is free to lease out the acreage, except for the set aside and conserving base, for any use he wishes.

"For these reasons and because of the number of options open to the farmer with the small feed grain base, no special small farm provisions are contained in the 1971 feed property damage, which would increase an average of just over 21 percent, collision, to go up 10 percent, and comprehensive coverage, up 20 percent in the new filing.

The company proposes a reduction in medical payments coverage cost of 13.8 percent, while liability coverage for bodily injury would remain relatively unchanged.

Farm Bureau's last rate revision came after a hearing in May 1969, when a 4.5 percent increase in rates was approved.

Conservation Notes
By Boyd Champion,
Soil Conservation Service

To improve the quality of life for all people is one of the goals of the Rural Environmental Assistance Program. Through the conservation of land and related natural resources food and fiber can be produced as well as providing for wildlife, open space, landscape beauty and outdoor recreational opportunities. Federal cost share assistance is available to Trigg County landowners to apply these conservation practices to prevent or reduce pollution of water, land and air.

This program replaces the ACP which has been in operation for several years. Some of the practices that have a high priority include tree planting, woodland improvement, wildlife food plots, lagoons for animal waste, sediment retention structures and other measures to stabilize a source of sediment. As much as 80 percent of the cost needed to apply some of these practices is available through the program. Other practices include pasture and meadow establishment, ponds, diversions, waterways, grading and seeding critical areas, erosion control dams, ponds for wildlife and improving a vegetative cover. There are practices available that will fit about any problem or condition in this area.

The Trigg County ASCS office is ready to accept applications from land owners and operators for this type of assistance. On some of the practices the SCS will help with the field work and others the Forest Service has the responsibility. This program has made an outstanding contribution to the landscape in Trigg County. The grass covered fields, sparkling ponds and healed gullies can be observed on about any road in the county. There is still plenty that needs to be done. We appreciate the opportunity to be associated with the other agencies and organizations in helping with this program. We believe with the continued splendid cooperation of the landowners and operators in Trigg County even greater benefits can be realized in the future.

Spring Forest Fire Season Begins In Trigg

County Ranger Charles Butts has announced that an unwelcome day rolled around on March 1st, as this is the day that officially begins the spring fire season. Since the fire season only lasts five months each year, 2½ months in the spring and 2½ months in the fall, people tend to forget when it is unlawful to burn. If you must burn, first take precautions to prevent the fire from spreading, wait until after 4:30 p.m. in the afternoon, and then burn only when the wind is calm!!

Since it is illegal to burn before 4:30 p.m. we will be checking all smokes reported, Mr. Butts said. These laws are necessary during the season because of extremely dry conditions which prevail.

Nothing is more disastrous than a fire that is out of control. Literally years of work can go up in smoke in a very short time. The preventing of forest and grass fires means a lot to the people of this county, and it will take the efforts of every man, woman and child

FARM NOTES

By Keith S. Venable,
County Agent

We have just come through some hard winter weather. No one has to tell you that heating bills have gone up, and there are indications that they will go still higher. Insulation becomes more important. One recommendation I have is for an "R" value of 19 for the ceiling and 9 for the walls. This would be about what you would get from 5 inches of rock wool over the ceiling and 2 inches on the wall. Each part of the construction contributes to the insulation or "R" value. A dead air space adds some value. If you are building a new house it is important that you work out with your contractor enough insulation.

Good insulation is one of the cheapest ways you can add value and liveability to your house. If you have an old house, insulation may be blown into the walls or ceiling. Basil Wiist insulated his house at Mershon's Bridge for less than $500.

It's not the heat but the humidity" is the comment of UK writer, Nevyle Shackelford. Very dry air makes us feel colder than we really are and causes us to turn up the heat. Very dry air contributes to poor health. About 40 percent relative humidity is where we are most comfortable but many homes may drop to 13 percent. As much as one gallon of water per room should be added to the air by a home humidifier.

I found a humidifier made our home much more comfortable and also helped our furnace filters to work better and clean the air more.

The average household produces about 10 pounds of solid waste per day. This waste for a county the size of Trigg would require a land fill of 2 to 3 acres per year. The yearly cost to the rural family will be about $50 per year.

I saw the waste dumped along the Rocky Ridge Road decided our land fill dump was not being used by some people. It may be necessary for the county to start a county wide pick up plan. One way an Alabama county did was to place over the county, garbage bins for people of the neighborhood to dump their waste and have the county truck to come at regular intervals to pick up. The county would have to pay the cost out of the general fund or impose a special tax. The city has no problem as it can add the expense to each water bill.

The government is at last talking about the high cost of construction wages and wants to hold them down. A few years ago the government wanted to hold up or increase wages. Remember the first bid on the Cadiz Sewer System had to be rebid on the basis of the Fort Campbell wage scale and the second bid was $100,000 higher. Every month we in Cadiz pay part of that $100,000.

The price of feeder cattle are said to have dropped at Hopkinsville when buyers found their trucks marooned on the snow blocked highways of Oklahoma and Kansas, in the worst storm of 50 years. The weather is said to have influenced the rise in the hog market.

Only our select hog men showed up for the hog meeting with Dr. Doug Wood last week. Dr. Wood showed figures to give the average cost of raising a 45 pound pig at $15 with feed costs more than half of this.

He also said that the more efficient hog men could make three times the profit of the ordinary producer.

Present trends in the hog business are: the efficient producers are expanding their production. Some new operations invested a lot of money in buildings but not enough in management are closing up.

A large feed company is putting in several sow operations in Graves County. The company furnishes the sows, the feed and the management and gives the farmer 4 cents per pound for furnishing his labor and buildings.

Young farmers moved faster to line up good seed corn is the belief of one dealer. If you are over 35 are you slipping?

Demonstrating the proper use of commodities, which the poor of the county receive, is one of the jobs of our three foods assistants, Mrs. Josie Bridges, Mrs. Emma Ford and Mrs. Earlie Lander. Last week at the commodity center, Mrs. Lander let me sample several of the tempting dishes she had prepared using commodities, dried eggs and rice and cream soup, dry eggs, rice and tomato sauce; yeast bread, eggs and milk; raisin bread; banana bread; prune cake; and potato bake.

"The 4-H clubs are very popular in Norway," Bill Moss Extension Agent from McCracken County told our Pennyrite Agents last month. Bill led a group of American 4-H folks on a visit to Norway last summer. White is the top ribbon for them instead of blue. Their 4-H song book has several songs in English. A 4H record book has a place for Navn, Glubb, and Dato.

Our Trigg County teachers are studying and learning so they can be as modern as our new school will be when it is finished.

The untapped potential of man was one subject they viewed. Most people use only a small part of their capacities. The human brain is said to have 4 billion brain cells, but man uses only a few hundred thousand.

Blonde: "You don't think I look 30, do you?"
Redhead: "No dear, not any more."

Ricky, the young son of Katherine's sister in Greenwood, Miss., saw the barometer drop very low and the family fled to the fall out shelter. Fifty tornadoes were seen in Leflora County, but their area escaped damage.

THE FAMILY

In Memory
In memory of Betty Jane Rulo who passed away Jan. 11, 1971. Betty would have been 31 years old, Sunday, Feb. 28. Happy birthday, Betty! We'd like to be with you, dear, But God said wait a while yet, He still has work for us here. Your Dad and Mom and the others, Especially little brother, Gene, Will try not to be too lonely. As we picture the beautiful scene. You were still so young and lovely. Your life still in its prime, But God doesn't measure life. As we do . . . simply by time. Some tiny seed you planted here, Is growing within some heart, And spreading out to others. Somehow, you're still a part. We'll sing our Happy Birthday And darling we'll really try, To realize we part for a while, But Christians never die. We feel you're a whole lot nearer, Than human heart could know Sometime, we can almost touch you, We're so thankful God made it so. By her family: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wheatt and all those who loved her.
