

Ten bike riders raise over $800 for St. Jude Children's Hospital

Bike ride for benefit

Ready for the start of the 21-mile bike ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital are Dennis Jones, William Boone, Todd Wallace, Donna Coker, Myra Skinner, Betsy Gray, Tammy Caldwell and runner John Boyd. Other riders not pictured were Teresa Holley, Lee Ann Bridges, Pamela Sumner and Tammy Williams.

With sore bodies and tired legs, riders participating in the St. Jude Bike Ride pedaled the last few feet Saturday, of a 21 mile ride. One young man, John Boyd, ran 15 miles and rode the rest of the way on a bicycle.

But it all seemed worthwhile as the volunteers learned from Bike Ride Chairman, Mrs. Neil Davis, that their efforts raised in excess of $800.

"We were a little disappointed in the turn out," said Mrs. Davis, "but the response of the persons sponsoring was good. We want to publicly thank all those who participated in any way."

The ride was sponsored by ESA Women

International and the Knights of 4-H Club in an effort to raise monies for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tennessee. St. Jude treats children's catastrophic diseases, such as acute lymphocytic leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, solid tumors, muscular dystrophy, sickle cell anemia and malnutrition. St. Jude is nonsectarian, interracial hospital, which treats patients FREE OF CHARGE, even paying transportation, motels, and meals is the patient's family cannot. The hospital doesn't even have a billing department.

It is the largest childhood cancer research center in the world in terms of numbers of patients and treatment successes. The hospital's basic and clinical research findings and accomplishments are freely shared with physicians and research scientists throughout the world.

Financing of St. Jude's is accomplished through volunteer contributions, with the help of some federal grants.

BETSY GAIL GRAY, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Gray, Cadiz, is one of the children being helped by St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn. Betsy is the victim of Rhabdomyosarcoma, a tumor on the inner ear muscle. She has been going to St. Jude's since December of last year, shortly after the malady was detected. Dollars raised by the Epsilon Sigma Alpha bike rides this weekend will benefit the hospital and children like Betsy, who have diseases which are under study at the hospital.

Five year old Betsy was on hand to see the riders start their ride.

All the bike riders will be out this week collecting from their sponsors, each hoping to win the 10-Speed bicycle which will be given to the one bringing in the most money by June 21. Checks should be made payable to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Any persons wishing to contribute, may still do so. Any questions or donations should be directed to Mrs. Davis, Route 1, 235-5446, or Mrs. David Kyler, Route 4, 533-6743.

Bill Fuller appointed to judicial committee

William Fuller of Deepwood Drive, was recently commissioned as a member of the Judicial Nominating Commission for the newly established 56th Judicial District.

In releasing the appointment, Gov. Julian Carroll stated, "I am confident you will serve with distinction and make a valuable contribution to the work of the body."

The Judicial District was rearranged to include Trigg, Lyon, Caldwell and Livingston Counties.

The appointment came from the Governor's office in Frankfort, dated May 27 to Bill Fuller, president of the Bank of Cadiz.

Tentative 1977 schedule

Trigg teachers' salaries are set

The Trigg County Board of Education met in regular session Monday night, June 7, at the Board of Education building. Mr. Tom Vinson, Superintendent of the Trigg County School System, opened the meeting by reading a letter of resignation from Mr. Buddy Sivills, Trigg County Middle School teacher and basketball coach. Mr. Sivills is resigning to enter private enterprise.

Mrs. Jean Ricks was elected to serve as treasurer of the board. She will serve in this capacity for a two year term.

The board next approved a tentative teachers' salary scale. This was set up to be the same scale as last year plus the additional amount allotted Trigg County from the State Department of Education. Mr. Vinson stressed this was only tentative in order to comply with the state law that states that a salary scale or a tentative scale must be approved by July 1. The board also approved a tentative administrators' schedule to comply with the same law.

The school board members approved a tentative extended employment schedule. This involves vocational teachers, librarians and guidance personnel.

A salary schedule for non-certified personnel was passed with every non-certified employee receiving at least an eight per cent increase in salary. Non-certified employees are those without teaching certificates.

The board voted to retain the firm of Richardson and Trevathan, accountants, as auditor for school accounts. They also selected the firm of J. J. B. Hilliard and W. L. Lyons, Paducah, as bond counsel for the renovation of the school cafeteria.

At the May 17 meeting the board voted to set a bid date for gym lockers and a step van at June 18 at 10 a.m. The board voted to add to this milk and milk products, bread and bread products and school bus insurance.

A bid date for the sale of surplus equipment was set at June 26 at 10 a.m. This includes three school buses, a step van and other miscellaneous equipment.

Mr. Vinson reported that the Trigg County schools have been awarded a grant for a learning disability unit. This is the first time Trigg County has received this grant. Janelle Clinkerbeard was hired as teacher for this program.

Mrs. Carolyn Richardson, Chairperson of the Board, read a letter from the substitute teachers commending Mr. August Pisa, Assistant Principal of Trigg County Middle and High Schools, for the fine job he has done in contacting substitute teachers in the absence of regular teachers.

City dump gets new look with help of Army program

Through efforts of the U. S. Army's Civic Action Program the City of Cadiz is getting a clean-up job at an old abandoned city dump. "We have been trying for several years to do something to this area which covers about eight acres within our city limits," stated Mayor W. J. Hopson. "It wasn't until a couple of years ago that the U. S. Army at Fort Campbell agreed to help us out under their community improvement program." These programs are made possible by the Army through the organization of the Lower Cumberland Cooperative Improvement Council. This Council is made up of officials from four counties surrounding Fort Campbell, including five Mayors, four County Judges and the Commanding General at Fort Campbell.

The City Council of Cadiz has been dealing with this problem of the old city dump area for many years.

"We've known what a bad and ugly site this dump has been for years, but we just didn't have any money to do anything about it," stated Senior Councilman, Billy Burke. "Through this program the Army furnishes us with the equipment and manpower to clean the area up, while we furnish them the necessary supplies needed to do the job."

The project was initiated under the command of Major General John McEnery a couple of years ago. The actual construction phase is under way now under the Command of Major General John Wickam at Ft. Campbell.

The Cadiz Civic Action Project is requiring the services of four bulldozers and approximately 12 to 15 men at present. These men are of Bravo Company of the 20th Engineer Battalion led by Lt. Colonel Paul Taylor.

The on-site command is under the direction of Lt. Randolph Hessman, who is the Officer in Charge while the men are working in Cadiz.

This area is covered with gullies, old cans, parts of automobiles, appliances, and all the usual garbage associated with a city dump. This area has been abandoned for several years as the city is now jointly using a sanitary landfill with the county.

The City Council composed of Mayor W. J. Hopson, Wilbur Boggess, Billy Burke, Lynn Bailey, James Hendricks, Cleland White, III, and Gary Thomas has requested Conservation Planning assistance from the Trigg County Conservation District on the area. The city through a cooperative agreement with the Conservation District has developed a Resource Plan for treatment of the area with the U. S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS). SCS works with communities and local units of government only at the direction of the Conservation Districts.

"We are delighted that the City has requested the help of our SCS team here in Cadiz on this project," stated Lewis McCormick, Chairman of the Conservation District. "Community improvement is one of many goals that the local District Supervisors have established herein this county," he continued. "We have joined in with the City Council to ask for financial and technical assistance from the newly formed Pennyrile Resource Conservation and Development project to help treat this area after it is cleaned up by the Army," McCormick concluded.

When the area is completely cleared of junk and debris, plans are to seed the area to grass where it can be mowed and kept clean.

The project is far from being over, but enough progress has already been made to compliment the U. S. Army at Fort Campbell on a fine effort at being good neighbors to Trigg County.

The Cadiz Record takes top in state contest

The Cadiz Record was awarded first, second, and honorable mention awards presented by the Kentucky Press Association at the KPA summer convention at Kentucky Dam Village State Park over the past weekend.

The awards were announced Friday at the honors banquet.

The Cadiz Record took the edge in typography for its selection and use of headline and body type, "in an effective and attractive manner, presswork and neatness." A second place was awarded the Record for general excellence for an "interesting use of photos in multi-picture layouts; generally good editing; few features; interesting editorial page." An honorable mention award was presented for the Record's front page.

Newspapers in the state contest were divided into categories according to their size, circulation and the frequency of publication. Among the daily papers, Class I includes papers with circulations of 15,000 or less and Class II is for papers with circulations above that figure.

For weeklies, Class I is for papers with circulations up to 3,000, Class II for circulations from 3,000 to 4,200 and Class III for 4,200 and above.

The Cadiz Record was entered in the Class I, weekly division.

Boone shows interest in judgeship

George Street Boone, who formerly represented Logan and Todd counties in the Legislature, is one of several Kentucky attorneys who have been identified as interested in an appointment to the new Court of Appeals.

Boone, 57, of Elkton, and a Democrat, is one of three lawyers in the First Appellate District who indicated in interviews with a Courier-Journal reporter that they are interested in one of the new judgeships.

A goal of having the new court in operation by July 1 was set by the commission's chairman, Supreme Court Chief Justice Scott Reed.

Gov. Julian Carroll will make the appointments for each of 14 new judgeships — two for each of the seven appellate districts — from a list of nominees submitted by the commission. The commission will nominate three persons for each of the judgeships. The appointees then face election in November for terms expiring in January, 1984. The position pays $37,000 a year.

The seven-member nominating commission consists of four persons named by the Governor, two persons nominated by the bar association, and the chief justice. The Governor named Democrats Frank Paxton, Paducah, and Austin Mann, Burlington, and Republicans L. D. Gorman of Hazard and John E. White of Manchester. The bar association nominated Ben Cooper of Louisville, an attorney, and Robert Lawson of Lexington, a University of Kentucky law professor.

Martin nominated to wildlife board

William E. "Ted" Martin of Trigg County has been named one of five nominees for appointment to the First Wildlife District seat on the state Fish and Wildlife Commission. Martin is a retired Trigg County Conservation Officer.

Also nominated for the seat is Mike Boatwright, Paducah; Hugh Massey, Murray; Arthur Curtis, Paducah; and Elwood Brown, Murray. Gov. Julian Carroll will appoint one of the five to replace Dr. Donald Boucher, of Paducah, whose four-year term expires in August.

Boone is a graduate of Vanderbilt University law school and has an advanced law degree from Columbia University. Others interested in the two First District judgeships include Earl Osborne, 55, Gilbertsville, who was defeated for re-election to the old Court of Appeals in 1974, and Warren Eaton, 63, Paducah, a three-term former Circuit Judge who was defeated for re-election in 1975. They are both Democrats.

Pryor, Light honored at Ky. FFA convention

Another year for all male leadership became apparent for the Kentucky Future Farmers of America (FFA) at the annual conference of the organization

Ronnie Pryor

Friday, June 4 in Louisville. On the slate of new officers, Ronnie Pryor, of Cerulean, appeared as regional vice-president for FFA.

A member of the Trigg County FFA Chapter, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Will T. Pryor, of Cerulean, Ronnie also captured third place in the state public speaking contest. He also received the Kentucky Farmer Degree, which the state can confer on a member.

Also taking honors at the FFA conference was Roger Light, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Light, of Rt. 3. Light took a first place award in the agricultural electrification contest held during the state convention. His entry will be submitted in the national contest which is scheduled to be held in Kansas City, Mo., next November.

Light's electrification program for the past three years has generated over $5,600 of labor earnings. He has wired barns, homes and shops while working with his father in the family plumbing and electrical business. His future plans include the eventual operation of the family business. Light was also awarded the Kentucky Farmer Degree.

Bloodmobile meets 186 quota

The Red Cross Bloodmobile was in Cadiz Thursday, May 27, at the Cadiz United Methodist Church. According to Mary Jolly and Ann Reynolds, who were in charge of the Bloodmobile visit, 199 pints were donated, with 58 first time donors. The quota for this visit was 186 pints.

The Trigg County Red Cross wishes to thank the Cadiz United Methodist Church for the use of its facilities, the four Trigg County Homemakers Clubs, who donated food, six local nurses who donated a total of 16 and one-half hours and the other volunteers who gave a total of 80 hours service to the Bloodmobile.

Not much time

By Lin Gray

I have much reason to believe this community has lost a great deal of enthusiasm, cooperation and organization for the Fourth of July parade and afternoon celebration. (If there was any to begin with).

Contrary to popular knowledge, I discovered this week that, sure enough, there will be a parade and Fourth of July celebration — on July 3. That is, if it can be put together in just three weeks time. Good luck, but I have my doubts. And it's highly debatable if a haphazardly thrown together parade is better than none at all, especially at a most important time to celebrate our nation's 200th birthday. Our forefathers organized and fought and died in a nationwide effort to attain a free democratic society. And we can't even get together in Trigg County to organize a parade and celebrate that freedom won for us.

It's quite a shame. After all it is our Bicentennial, you know.

Several of us began months ago but were put out and discouraged by the lack of strong organization leadership and cooperation. I must commend Bill Fuller and Martha Eisenmann for their outstanding efforts in trying to foster participation and enthusiasm. It seemed at the time most people were willing to help, but two people cannot do it alone. Then it was rumored the Optimist and Booster Clubs were going to chair the event.

But does anyone know what's going on? What happened? I have been told there will be a parade followed by an afternoon outing at the Recreation Center. But three weeks is not near enough time to initiate plans. I sure hope we can pull through.

I firmly believe the whole problem stems from the lack of communication, and strong organization leadership. Let's put our heads together here in the next few weeks and show we really do care and have the unity to put this thing together.

Another prime example of Trigg County's lack of enthusiasm and perhaps organization is the Trigg County Fair, not to mention last Saturday's bike ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital at which only 10 showed up to ride. But anyway, back to the fair. Until last Monday, I didn't even know anything about the fair. I just wonder how many Trigg Countians know it is to start this Monday, June 14, at the Recreation Complex. I believe if people were informed ahead of time and could plan for its coming, there would be a lot more participation.

The whole idea is to plan ahead and let us all know what is going on and with strong organizational leadership, the event can be a success. Don't sit back and wait until a week before, only to be faced with a great disappointment and wonder why it flopped.

I am encouraged, however, that somehow everything will work out. Perhaps Trigg Countians will pull through and make the Fourth of July celebration and parade a success. I understand they usually come through at the last minute. I hope in this case it will work out as well.

The old proverbial "I don't have time" just won't work anymore. Imagine what kind of society we'd be living in if our forefathers had said, "I don't have time to fight for freedom."

Slide show to be presented on creative flower arranging

Creative artistic design is the theme of a flower arranging slide show to be presented June 17 at the Trigg County Farmers Bank Community Room.

The program will include two presentations, "Variety - the Spice of Life" and "Today's Perceptive Designer." These will be shown at 2 p.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

The public is cordially invited to attend this special event which is being sponsored by the Gateway Garden Club of Cadiz.

Everyone interested in flower arranging and in entering the artistic design category of the annual flower show to be held in July, will find this program quite interesting and beneficial.

For summer fishing

It's important to find right depth

By Hope Carleton

In spite of the wet spring weather we've had lately, summer is just around the corner. As the water temperatures in Kentucky's lakes warm up, fishing generally seems to slow down.

This doesn't mean that the fish have stopped eating. In fact, in warmer water a fish's metabolism speeds up, requiring a larger intake of food. What happens when the surface temperature warms is that the fish move out into deeper, cooler water, where they're often harder to locate.

So, except for early morning and late afternoon (or at night) the rule for summer angling is "fish deep." But fishing too deep will practically guarantee that you won't even get a nibble, thanks to a phenomenon known as stratification.

Beginning about this time of the year, almost all lakes in the state will stratify into three distinct layers, and the fisherman who is familiar with this layering will be far ahead of the angler who doesn't take it into account.

The surface layer, technically called the epilimnion, contains the warmest water. Much of this layer is usually outside the comfort range of most game fish, although they may "visit" this area for feeding, particularly at night or early and late in the day. Just below the epilimnion is the layer of water which will hold most of the fish most of the time—the thermocline.

The thermocline (literally, "slope of temperature") is marked by a rapid decrease in water temperature, sometimes as much as one degree every foot. This is where most fish will be, because they can find their preferred temperature range here.

Below the thermocline, the temperature decrease becomes gradual again. This third layer, called the hypolimnion, can begin within 15 feet of the surface (but varies, as do all the layers, from lake to lake). This is an area of dense, stagnant water which is often too low in dissolved oxygen to support fish life.

The hypolimnion, obviously, is the area to avoid, and the fisherman who casts into deep water without regard for this layer may find himself fishing in water in which fish cannot possibly exist.

To see how this layering effect works, let's take a specific body of water—Lake Malone in West-Central Kentucky. The maximum depth of this lake is 40 feet, and from November through May in a normal year there is oxygen throughout the lake. But in May the thermocline starts to form and by the end of June the lake is stratified.

The hypolimnion now extends to within approximately 20 feet of the surface, with the thermocline from about ten to twenty feet. This means that throughout the summer, most of the fish in the lake will be in this ten-foot range of the thermocline. Fishing deeper than 20 feet is a waste of time, and fishing shallower than ten feet during most of the day probably won't produce much either.

So by finding the depths at which these various layers occur, the fisherman can pin down the correct depth at which to fish. What should be obvious, then, is that a thermometer is an almost indispensable tool for anything other than hit-or-miss summer fishing.

The handiest are the electronic temperature meters, consisting of a probe which is lowered into the water and a scale that can be read from the bank or boat. To find the thermocline, just watch for rapidly decreasing temperatures as the temperatures as the probe is lowered. When the water temperature levels off again or decreases slowly with depth, the hypolimnion has been reached. By reading the depth scale on the thermometer cord, the angler can determine rather closely where the thermocline begins and ends.

Then it's just a matter of looking for suitable bottom cover at the thermocline depth and fishing there. By knowing the stratification pattern of the lake, you've considerably narrowed the possible places the fish are likely to be and, in the process, tipped the odds in your favor.

Early civil war times

County torn between Confederate, Union armies

By Berry F. Craig

During the Civil War, Trigg County furnished almost 400 men to the Confederate Army and 268 men to the Federal Army. Here, as in most other parts of far western Kentucky, Confederate sentiment was predominant.

The county's pro-Southern majority was first to organize companies for the war. On July 1, 1861, Captain J. L. Price and 92 men rendezvoused at the old Brick Inn in Canton and prepared to march to Camp Henry C. Burnett, named for Trigg County's rebellious congressman, just over the Tennessee line from Christian County.

According to the late Hall Allen's book about the Civil War in western Kentucky and Tennessee, they got a rousing sendoff. In fact, the flag-waving, singing, cheering and speechmaking so excited Captain Price that he marched halfway to Hopkinsville with his men before he remembered leaving his horse back in Canton.

On August 15, Price's rebels became company 'G' of the Fourth Kentucky Infantry. At Bowling Green in September, 1861, the Fourth was assigned by the Kentucky Brigade of the Army of Tennessee.

The Fourth Kentucky fought at Shiloh, Corinth, Baton Rouge, Stone's River, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Kennesaw Mountain and Atlanta. Mounted late in the war, the regiment finally surrendered at Washington, Ga., in May, 1865. When company 'G' fell in for its last roll call, only 37 men answered — Yankee bullets and disease had claimed most of the rest. In September, 1861, two other Confederate companies formed up in Trigg County. Jabez Bingham and A. C. Buckner led nearly 200 men to Hopkinsville and signed on with the Eighth Kentucky Infantry. Bingham and his men, almost all from Wallonia, were made company 'B' while Buckner and his band of rebels became company 'G'.

The Eighth Kentucky went down to Fort Donelson on the Cumberland River near Dover, Tenn., where General Grant's army captured it and most of the Confederate garrison in February, 1862. In September, 1862, it was exchanged near Vicksburg, Miss., and fought in several battles around the heavily fortified river town. In February, 1864, the Eighth Kentucky received mounts and joined General Nathan Bedford Forrest's hard-riding cavalry. It was in most of his important battles in 1864-65, including Brice's Cross Roads.

Another group of Trigg countians left for the Confederate Army in November, 1861. P. C. Harrell took about 30 men to Fort Donelson and they mustered in as part of company 'F' of the Fiftieth Tennessee Infantry.

The Fiftieth Tennessee was captured at the battle of Fort Donelson and, like the Eighth Kentucky, was exchanged near Vicksburg in September, 1862. The regiment helped defend the town in 1862-63 and later was in the battles of Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Kennesaw Mountain and Atlanta. It also fought in the Army of Tennessee against General Sherman's "march to the sea" and surrendered at Greensboro, N. C. in May, 1865.

The Federal occupation of Kentucky in the spring of 1862 did not stop Confederate recruiting in Trigg County. On August 1, 1862, G. G. Goodwin raised about 80 men at Wallonia which became company 'B' of the Second Kentucky Cavalry. In September, E. A. Slaughter and 86 more men from the eastern part of the county joined the Second Kentucky as company 'D'. These two companies enlisted for a year's service, but in December, 1862, the Confederate authorities declined them and they disbanded. Some of the men went home, but most joined other Confederate organizations.

A group of men from the Second Kentucky and several other Trigg County recruits made up an independent cavalry company under the command of Given Campbell. Campbell's company fought in Forrest's cavalry at Stone's River, and Chickamauga and in General Joseph Wheeler's cavalry at Kennesaw Mountain and Atlanta. In April, 1865, they were part of Confederate President Jefferson Davis' escort in his ill-fated escape attempt through the Carolinas and Georgia.

According to the Kentucky Federal Adjutant General's Report of 1865, 205 white and 63 black Trigg countians served

Hall to appear at Kaintuck June 13

Audiences visiting Kaintuck Territory, near Benton, on June 13 can look forward to a special tribute to the Bi-Centennial with Tom T. Hall's AMERICAN COUNTRY MUSIC REVIEW IN THE SPIRIT OF '76!

One of Nashville's greats of the day, Tom T. Hall is becoming a living legend in contemporary and country music.

His recording success has seen No. 1 chart action for "I Love," "Country Is" and "Sneaky Snake" with best selling Phonogram-Mercury LP's, and his "Songs of Fox Hollow" LP that promises to be a classic!

When people talk about Tom T. Hall, they refer to him as a storyteller, a songwriter, a philosopher and a genius with words. He is also called a new breed of country singer.

He wrote the noninstrumental score for the movie "Bonnie and Clyde," received the Grammy Award for writing "Harper Valley P.T.A.," and was named Songwriter of the Year in 1972.

Most of Hall's songs are about personal experiences, "I ran away from home when I was 15," he said. "Well, I really didn't run away...I just left."

He has worked as a country disc jockey, a gravedigger and a laborer for several industries. But, Hall didn't like the work or the life. "You do the same thing every weekend," he said. "It's sort of an artificial existence...The security blanket routine. Industrial security is a form of slavery."

Hall said he became a disc jockey at 15 and worked for several stations until he was 21. Then he joined the Army.

"I finished high school in the Army," he said, "because it dawned on me there were a lot of words I couldn't spell."

He got out of the Army in 1960 and returned to radio. He studied journalism at Roanoke (Virginia) College and began writing songs... (then) left Roanoke (1964), moved to Nashville and wrote more songs...

After several years of writing songs for other people, he became a performer. "When I first started picking and singing, I used to work in the Muses Mills Jamboree in Muses Mills, Ky.," he said. "It's not a very big town, but I wasn't a very big act."

In the last five years or so, he has become a big act. And he now performs throughout this country, Europe, Japan, Australia and New Zealand. His travels are often related in his songs.

But being in the spotlight so frequently seems to have little impact on Hall. He is easygoing, down-to-earth, humble — the sincerity and friendliness show in his eyes, wide smile and firm handshake.

Tom T. Hall will be featured in concert June 13 at Kaintuck Territory in their new 5,000 seat amphitheatre. Shows are at 1 and 5 p.m.

Better never trouble trouble until trouble troubles you — for you only make your trouble double trouble when you do. And your trouble like a bubble that you're troubling about may be nothing but a cipher with the rim rummed out. — Norman Vincent Peale.

Mrs. Beth Reams of Louisville spent from Monday until Wednesday with her aunt, Miss Nellie Wallace. Mrs. Reams is a teacher in the Jefferson County Junior College.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry White had as their weekend guests Preston White and little sons, John and Henry of Lexington. John and Henry are spending this week with their grandparents.

Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Heaton of Lexington were weekend visitors of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster and Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Heaton.

Mrs. Vernon Montgomery and children, Mark, John and Laura of St. Louis, Mo. spent memorial day weekend with her mother, Mrs. E. R. Street, Sr.

Mrs. Jack Nunn has returned home after spending several days with her daughter in Central City.

Mr. and Mrs. Smiley Wood spent Memorial day weekend in Albany with friends and relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. Pete Panzera of Murray were Sunday guests of her mother, Mrs. Forrest Henderson enroute to West Virginia for a visit with his mother.

Mrs. Larry Hoskins, Steven and Vincent of Lafayette, Mrs. Samuel Armstrong and Randy are spending this week in Detroit, Mich. visiting Mr. and Mrs. Darce Turner and children, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Armstrong and Joel, and Mr. and Mrs. Norm Kucharski and children.

Mrs. James F. Gentry and Jimmy visited Rev. and Mrs. J. Norman Ellis in Grand Rivers Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Bob Allen suffered a broken hip at her home Monday. She is a patient at Baptist Hospital in Nashville, where she underwent surgery Tuesday but at press time we do not have a report on her condition.

Honeymoon in Florida

Double ring ceremony unites Donna Cuda, John Gattie

The Dania Methodist Church, Dania, Florida, was the scene Saturday, April 3, of the wedding of Miss Donna Lynn Cuda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Cuda, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., formerly of Cadiz, and John E. Gattie, Jr., of Pompano Beach, Florida.

Mrs. Carol E. Crews, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a blue floral full length gown, and carried a French bouquet of blue carnations and baby's breath with blue satin streamers. Her headdress was a blue picture hat. Miss Toni DeBello, friend of the bride, wore a salmon floral full length gown, and carried French bouquet of salmon carnations and baby's breath with salmon satin streamers. Her headdress was a salmon picture hat.

The Rev. John Brabham of Dania performed the impressive double ring ceremony in the presence of family, relative and friends. Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by the organist, Mrs. Alice Bommer. The traditional wedding marches were used. Tiers of seven branched candelabra held white tapers, flanked with white satin ribbon and green ferns, formed the background for a kneeling bench.

Keith Firestone of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., friend of the groom, served as best man. Paul McAllaster of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., served as usher. Keith Anthony Venable, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. The reception was held at the Escrow Country Club in the Monte Carlo Room, a buffet dinner was served.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a full length gown of white satin with Spanish lace overlay, long tapered sleeves with pearl beading on the sleeves and down the front of the gown. Her headdress was a three tier cathedral veil with pearl beaded cap, and she carried a white Bible with a white orchid and carnations.

After the reception, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Gattie, Jr., left for a honeymoon to Orlando, Fla.

The couple is now making their home in Pompano Beach, Florida. Mrs. Gattie is employed in the office of Dr. Bennett Kemper. Mr. Gattie is self employed.

New officers installed at recent DAR meeting

The James Thomas Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, May 5, in the Bank of Cadiz Community Room with Regent Maurine Mabry presiding.

The DAR ritual was led by Regent Mabry, Chaplain Jane T. Wright and Flag Chairman Roberta Cunningham.

There was a short business meeting. National Defense Chairman Gertrude Humphries, assisted by Eunice Humphries, presented a slide program "The Cradle of Liberty," which showed the growth of our nation from the 13 original colonies to the 50 states that are now proudly celebrating our Bicentennial. She pointed out that the people who assisted in the birth of our nation came from numerous foreign countries, and for a variety of reasons.

Those early patriots proclaimed their belief in freedom by writing the Declaration of Independence. They established that freedom by fighting the Revolutionary War; and they protected that freedom with the Constitution of the United States of America.

Chaplain Jane T. Wright, in an impressive ceremony, instilled the following officers to serve for the next two years.—Regent Sally Boyd; Vice Regent, Stella Finley; Chaplain, Louise S. Thomas; Recording Secretary, Grace Hall; Corresponding Secretary, Virginia Alexander; Treasurer, Roberta Cunningham; Registrar, Gertrude Humphries; Historian, Ivy Rogers; Librarian, Mary Bridges.

Regent Maurice Mabry passed the gavel to Sally Boyd, and the meeting was dismissed with the Mizpah Benediction. Hostess for the evening were Ivy Rogers and Eunice Thomas.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, June 22, in the Bank of Cadiz Community Room.

Miss Paula McAtee

Miss McAtee to wed in July

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McAtee of Route 5 announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Paula Ann, to Mr. Kenneth J. Roelike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Roelike of Elrosa, Minn.

The bride-elect is a 1976 graduate of Trigg County High School and plans to attend Hopkinsville Community College in the fall. Mr. Roelike is a graduate of Belgrade High School and Willmar Vocational Institute. He is presently engaged in farming.

The wedding is scheduled for July 10 at 2:30 p.m. at the Cadiz United Methodist Church. All friends and relatives are invited to attend. Invitations will be sent to out of town guests only.

White bass fishing around Kentucky is about to enter the second phase of its

Meeting set for Thursday

Sportsmen of the First Wildlife District will meet tonight (Thursday) 7:30 (CDT) at Ken Bar Inn, Gilbertsville, to elect five candidates, one of whom will be appointed by the governor to serve a four-year term on the state Fish and Wildlife Commission.

All resident sportsmen in the district who have been licensed to hunt or fish in Kentucky for each of the past two consecutive years are eligible to vote in the yearly cycle. The fish are returning to the main lake after their spawning runs into the headwaters and tributaries, and they're hungry.

election at Ken Barr which is located one mile south of Kentucky Dam on Highway 641.

Counties in the First Wildlife District are Ballard, Caldwell, Calloway, Carlisle, Christian, Crittenden, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Lyon, McCracken, Marshall and Trigg.

The current commissioner from the district is Dr. Donald L. Boucher of Paducah, whose term expires in August.

Bluegill fishing better

Bluegill fishing on the state's major lakes continues to improve with black bass and crappie fishing generally fair statewide. The lake-rundown according to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

Barkley: Bluegill good along shallow banks and off rip-rap; black bass fair to good on spinner baits and artificial night-crawlers in inlets and bays; in tailwaters, catfish good, murky, stable at pool and 72 degrees.

Kentucky: Black bass fair to good on bass bugs and spinner baits along points and shoreline cover; crappie fair over drop-offs; in tailwaters, catfish fair, sauger and white bass slow; clear to good, rising slowly at pool and 69 degrees.

Stephen Foster Story to open

Paul Green's outdoor musical "The Stephen Foster Story" opens its 18th season at Bardstown Saturday, June 12. Stephen Foster for a fourth season is Reese Holcombe, a Bardstown native now living in New York City.

Performing opposite Holcombe will be Daune Mahy, a faculty member at the University of Nebraska at Omaha. This is her fifth season in The Stephen Foster Story.

Miss Cullison given scholarship

Melissa Jean Cullison, a senior at Trigg County High School, has been awarded a $400 Board of Regents Scholarship to attend Murray State University for the 1976-77 school year. Melissa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cullison of Cadiz. Melissa was a member of the Beta Club and the Marching Band while attending Trigg County High.

The show's director, Horace L. Kelley, has designed and supervised the construction of a number of new sets for the 1976 season, which runs through Sept. 5.

The Stephen Foster Story will play nightly, except Mondays, at 8:30 EDT, with a matinee indoors each Saturday at 3 p.m. beginning June 19.

Reservations are available by writing P. O. Box D, Bardstown, Ky. 40004 or by calling (502) 348-5971.

The most productive angling method to take advantage of this post-spawning feeding spree is night fishing. By shining the rays of a lantern or other artificial light into the water directly beside the boat, the fisherman attracts schools of bait fish. This in turn draws in the white bass, and the angler is set for a night of fast action.

The best areas of the lake for this type of fishing are usually along a deep bank, off a point or beside a hogback. The secret of success is attracting the bait fish. Usually an overcast or moonless night is better than bright moonlight, since the darker conditions seem to cause the bait fish to concentrate around the lights more readily.

Most fishermen like to make night fishing a dusk-to-dawn affair. While most activity seems to take place after midnight, it's a good idea to be on the lake before dark to find a good location, anchor the boat at both bow and stern, get the rods rigged, the lanterns fueled up, and so on.

To find the depth at which the white bass are feeding, lower a baited hook to the bottom and retrieve it slowly toward the surface. When a fish takes the bait, count the number of turns of the reel handle it takes to bring him up, and you'll have a good idea of how far down to fish. Either spinning or bait casting tackle is suitable for this type of fishing and the most popular hook is a number four or five Aberdeen. Two to three inch minnows are the usual bait. Some other helpful items are two anchors and plenty of line, warm clothing, rain gear, an extra light and several gallons of coffee.

If you plan to run your boat at night, make sure that the lighting conforms to regulations. Running light requirements are rather specific, so if you're not sure, better check with the Division of Water Enforcement, Department of Transportation, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

If the fishing gets really hot, don't get carried away and forget that the daily and possession limit on white bass is 60 per person. That's a lot of fish, but when conditions are right, limit or near limit strings aren't unusual for the night fisherman.

After being up all night, that's also a lot of fish-cleaning to be done before finally hitting the sack. But any confirmed night fisherman will tell you this kind of fishing is worth losing sleep over.

Lyn Crysler and Opel Roberts of the Murray Art Guild are busy this week putting up posters in high traffic areas throughout the area and in major cities announcing the 7th Annual Arts and Crafts Show to be held at Land Between The Lakes, TVA's public outdoor area in western Kentucky and Tennessee June 26 - 27. The show is sponsored by the Murray Art Guild and TVA's LBL. (TVA PHOTO)

Events planned

Arts, crafts show set June 26, 27

Lyn Crysler and Opel Roberts of the Murray Art Guild are busy this week. Mrs. Crysler as chairman of the publicity committee for the 7th Annual Arts and Crafts Show set for Land Between The Lakes, TVA's public outdoor area June 26-27, is conscientiously working at putting up posters announcing the event.

Other members of the guild, including Mrs. Roberts and the staff at Land Between The Lakes, are also working to finalize plans for the show. This year emphasis is being placed on releasing information in major cities in the northern and southern perimeter states. The impact the Bicentennial theme will have on the show is yet to be seen.

But many artists and craftsmen from several different states have already notified officials of the Murray Art Guild that they intend to display a wide variety of handcrafted products. And a wide variety it is indeed. Exhibits ranging from handcrafted wood items, leather goods, paintings, pottery, original photographs, cornshuck dolls, candles, quilts, handmade jewelry, and needlework will be on display.

One of the biggest shows ever is expected from both the exhibitor and visitor standpoint. Last year more than 30,000 people visited the two-day show. No one is guessing at attendance this year.

Mrs. Crysler emphasized that if there were artists and craftsmen who had not yet reserved space for this year's show, time is running out. Interested participants are encouraged to contact the Murray Art Guild, Murray, Kentucky or Mrs. Larry Doyle, 103 South 14th Street, Murray, for preregistration forms.

To encourage creativity and insure a quality show, only pieces of original design and craftsmanship may be exhibited.

The annual show is sponsored by the Murray Art Guild and Land Between The Lakes.

TIPS FROM HOME AGENT

Canning questions answered for preservation of foods

Elaine M. Clift
County Extension Agent
Home Economics

Information sent to county extension offices recently by Evelyn Johnson, Extension Service Home Economics Specialist, answers some of the questions frequently asked by consumers in regard to home canning practices.

In 1974 and 1975, there were nearly two billion home canning closures produced each year. However, increased home canning has caused shortages of jar closures made by established manufacturers. As a result some companies began producing a variety of closures, some with unknown testing procedures for suitability, and particularly seal integrity.

In 1974, there were more outbreaks of botulism attributed to home-canned foods than in any year since 1935, with 19 outbreaks, 28 cases, and six deaths reported. It is essential for home canning consumers to receive reliable information on proper procedures for home canning as well as availability of reliable, proven-safe home canning closures.

According to USDA and FDA, only known, good quality closures and jars should be used. Careful attention should be given to sealing home canning jars properly. Instructions should be followed from reliable sources. Any questionable jars or closures should not be used. Also, jar rubbers and gasketed closures from a previous pack should not be reused under any circumstances for any home-canned foods. Any questionable sealed or packed products should be discarded without tasting and in such a way as not to be consumed by human being or animals.

Examples of questionable products and procedures are given below which were encountered in one or more offices of the FDA and about which you may also have inquired:

1. A plastic lid or insert - Lined with a sealing compound and suggested for use with any screw rings as a replacement for the metal screw rings that have been sold and used successfully. There have been many complaints from people using this lid. Immediately after processing there are "hard swells" (non-concave appearance). The carton insert implies FDA approval. FDA had not approved this lid. Acceptance of "hard swells" with the plastic could lead people to think the two-piece lid with "hard swell" is acceptable. Food in a can with a two-piece lid like this should never be consumed. This plastic material allows oxygen to enter the jar and may affect quality and appearance.

2. One piece closure sold loose in box or paper bag - this lid is being sold by fruit stands. They were commercial canning closures and should not be used for home canning.

3. Lid sold as home canning replacement - lid fits the screw rings of standard closures. It consists of two sections, the first a flat, thin metal piece which is placed in the ring first. The second is a plasticized flexible disc covered with adhesive on both sides. No information available on materials used in this plastic disc. It may not be suitable in compliance with food additive regulations.

4. One piece caps with gasketing material similar in appearance to reliable home canning lids - FDA has no evidence that these caps are unsuitable for use, but one home canning closure manufacturer states that they have not been able to develop a one-piece closure fully suitable, particularly for low-acid foods.

5. "Two-year tried method" for re-using old lids - an ad in a newspaper solicited a dollar for instructions advising using a thermoplastic hot melt glue sealing gun to apply hot melting caulking compound. Run a smooth continuous bead of hot sealant in the depression on the lid. The plastic sealant may contain non-safe food additives which may contaminate food canned in this manner.

Some questions you might like to have answers to include the following:

1. Is food safe when the lid shows a convex, swelled, or "hard swell" appearance? No. They may have spoiled from inadequate heating time in the cooker.

2. How do you test the lid for a seal? A concave appearance on glass jars the day after canning. Press center of the lid and jar is sealed if it doesn't move.

3. How do you check for spoilage? Store jars without leaks.

4. Is there anything you can do when you purchase poor caps? Wash leaking or poor sealing caps and return to the manufacturer. Defective caps will usually be replaced free of charge by most manufacturers.

By the end of May most of the spring flowering bulbs such as tulips, daffodils, crocus and hyacinths have flowered and are no longer beautifying the landscape as they did in March and April. You may expect an even greater display of color next spring if plants are properly cared for now.

The plants that will have flowers next spring will grow from an underground swollen stem, called either a bulb, corm, or tuber. These specialized plant parts obtain the necessary energy for developing next year's leaves and flowers from light and nutrients that are available during early to late spring. They will also, in a good growing environment, produce small bulbs that will produce flowers in future years. If the plants are not properly cared for during this period the quantity and quality of flowers may be sacrificed.

Care of the plant should begin when the leaves first emerge from the soil in the spring. If fertilizer has not been applied to the area for other plants, an application of 5-10-15 fertilizer at the rate of one pound per 50 square feet should be used. If flowers are cut from the plant in spring, as much foliage as possible should be left on the plant so that a maximum amount of energy substrate may be produced for further growth and development of the bulb.

After flowering, the flower heads should be removed because the production of seed will use energy which could be better used by the rest of the plant. The leaves should not be removed or mowed until they begin to yellow and die back to the soil surface. The dead leaves and stems should then be removed and destroyed to eliminate a possible source of disease which may infect next year's growth. After a few years the bulb, under good conditions, may have produced many bulbs and the planting may become crowded; the flowers will become smaller and there will be fewer flowers produced.

Daffodils should be separated three to four years. However, crocus may be left unseparated for many years. Tulips normally will be so reduced in quality after three years that most varieties should be replanted with new bulbs. Hyacinths may be left for several years without being separated.

The bulbs can be separated after the leaves have died back in late spring. After digging, the bulbs should be graded and inspected. Any diseased bulbs should be destroyed. It is best to keep only the largest bulbs; the small ones will take two to three years to form a flower. The bulbs should be dried away from direct sun and then be placed in a cool dry area such as a basement or garage at 60-65 degrees. Higher temperatures may be harmful. Be sure there is good air circulation around the bulbs to prevent possible diseases. A loosely woven pack hung in a basement would be ideal for storage of bulbs. The bulbs can then be replanted in September or October.

Four Trigg County 4-H'ers attended the 21st annual 4-H Regional Resource Development Conference at Fontana Village, N. C., May 31 - June 4. 30 members from Kentucky attended the event which drew more than 250 4-H'ers from the seven Tennessee Valley states. Trigg County's delegates from left to right were Lawrence Cheatham, returnee delegate, and Mary Jane McAtee, Rochelle Wimberly, Keith Cox.

Make Your Garden Portable - With Containers

Use containers and hanging baskets, so plants can be moved easily—in or outside the home, as lighting conditions change, or for different decorative effects.

You've heard of portable TV's and portable radios—and now you can even have a portable flower garden as well.

You can move your plants around as lighting conditions change—and move them indoors to add temporary color as decorations. How is this "miracle" possible? It's simple—just plant in containers.

Growing flowers in containers is easy, according to the new Ortho gardening book, "House Plants Indoors/Outdoors." Almost any kind of container will do—clay, plastic, glass, etc. You can even use something quite different that doesn't usually hold plants to make an excitingly unique display—like an old fish bowl, a kerosene lamp, a decorative storage jar, or whatever else you can think of; let your imagination be your guide.

Just make sure, cautions the Ortho book, that the container is deep enough for roots to develop, and that it has proper drainage. If there is no drainage hole—and you wouldn't want one in a hanging display—simply add a handful of gravel or broken crockery on the bottom, before you put in the soil.

Tomatoes are Particular

To raise beautiful and flavorful tomatoes, the new Ortho garden book, "Fundamentals of Gardening," suggests you pay particular attention to air temperatures.

Tomatoes are America's favorite vegetable crop for amateur and veteran gardeners alike, and the more you know about their growth habits—the easier it is to cope with their sometimes peculiar behavior.

One of the things you should know is that the tomato is rather particular about air temperatures—especially at night, according to the new Ortho garden book, "Fundamentals of Gardening."

In early spring, for example, when day temperatures are pleasantly warm, but night temperatures fall below 55 degrees, many tomato varieties will not produce fruit because it's too cold in the evenings. Most early maturing varieties

Pick a Peck of You Know What!

A peck of peppers—not necessarily pickled—makes a good looking and good tasting display, according to "When The Good Cook Gardens," a book from the Ortho garden book series.

Pick a peck of peppers on your patio this summer! Their shiny green leaves, small white flowers, and fruits in many shapes and colors make peppers a colorful container plant for any home, according to the new Ortho garden book, "When The Good Cook Gardens."

The easiest way to start a container pepper garden is to buy transplants. The book cautions, however, that transplants should not be put out in containers until the weather has warmed, and night temperatures don't fall below 60 degrees.

When first blossoms open, give the plants a light application of fertilizer and water. The best peppers for containers? The Ortho book suggests that the hot varieties with small fruits make the most handsome plants—but if they're too hot for your taste, you can try some of the other varieties.

voice of venerable

Myrtle Hayes has been writing "Bennetstown Notes" in the Kentucky New Era for as long as I can remember. Myrtle has a fine appreciation of nature and the enjoyable sights, sounds, and smells of the country.

If you don't know where Bennetstown is, I will say it is sort of east of Pee Dee.

Sometimes you see a TV program worth watching. One last week was by a real Louisiana character from Cajun country around Lake Charles who was showing how they make chicken gumbo. The gumbo was well seasoned with stories.

"Once a fellow was sitting in a barber chair getting the works with his head in a towel when a man rushed in and shouted, 'Herbert, your house is on fire!'"

"The man rushed down the street about a block and then stopped and said to himself, 'why am I running? I ain't got no house in the first place and in the second place my name is not Herbert.'

"There were two little boys who wanted a shoot gun more than anything. One spring their father sold his winter catch of muskrat skins for enough to pay his expenses and have some left for a 10 gauge shot gun."

"The little boys took some eggs to town and got enough money for one shell, and were on their way to the lake to try for a goose, when they saw a sight they had never seen before."

A Model T Ford was rattling down the road driven by a man all dressed up in goggles and duster.

"What is that," whispered little brother.

"I don't know," said big brother, "but I'm going to shoot it."

So, propping up the 10 gauge, he banged away. Picking themselves up after the explosion, the boys saw a man running down the road.

"I sure don't know what kind of critter that was," said big brother proudly, "but I sure made him let go of that man."

"You can make gumbo out of just about anything. Once I was walking down a dusty road and met a small boy lugging a big bird over his shoulder, with its wings dragging the ground."

"What's you gonna do with him," I asks.

"Gonna make Buzzard gumbo," he says.

"Is that good," I asks.

"About like owl," he says.

Our corn fields are a joy. The stalks are flat and the leaves are green and healthy down to the ground. The Treflan insecticide has stopped the fleabeetle. There is no Johnson Grass. The Treflan used in previous years and the Eradacain this year has stopped it.

But Robert McAtee says, "Keep your fingers crossed. It may come back this fall."

The fate of the crop rests on rain about the 4th of July.

"How safe the future of America is," I thought as the honor graduates of Trigg High walked by me on graduation night. So clean and bright were their faces.

Trigg folks got another good feeling about America on graduation night when John D.

Minton spoke to the graduating class. There is something so calm and steady about John D. that you just know everything is going to be all right.

I can see why Western students turn to him for council.

No water was flowing into one water trough on the farm. I drove around and found the pump stopped. A little checking by Charlie showed burned breaker points on the pressure switch, which he was able to replace in a short time.

Charlie's UK engineering training was paying off.

Everybody said that corn prices would not go higher. Now, suddenly they have shot up 40 cents per bushel. There is one thing certain about farming, it is uncertain.

Labor unions have tried to build up a sure thing by fixing wages even higher and higher. But even they are not completely sure. In one eastern city the building trade unions, with wages around $10 an hour but no one working, decided to lower wages in hope of getting back to work.

I know of a Louisville sheet metal company whose labor cost, when everything is added, is about $20 per hour. They don't have any work either.

Insect Control Diseases in Tobacco

Insects attack tobacco from the time the tobacco seedling starts to emerge until the tobacco is consumed. Although some insects are relatively new pests, the early settlers growing tobacco in the then-new colony of Virginia had to cope with the attacks of the tobacco hornworm and many other insect pests still in evidence now.

Today, the use of chemicals is the most important tool the tobacco grower has for controlling insect pests. This method of control must be used carefully so as not to cause undesirable effects. The use of too much insecticide or the wrong insecticide, the applying of insecticides when not needed, or not following the proper directions, can result in damaged crops, undesirable insecticide residues, or injury to the applicator or persons working in the field.

Unnecessary use of insecticides may result in unusually high populations of other insect pests by killing off their natural parasites and predators.

In order to insure proper and economical use of insecticides, Extension entomologists annually prepare revised recommendation leaflets for both tobacco beds and fields.

The leaflets can be obtained from your County Extension Service. Currently registered insecticides are listed in the leaflets, along with rates and suggestions for use. In addition, growers are provided with Economic Threshold Levels for the major insect pests to aid in decisions relating to if and when insecticide applications should be made. Information is also provided to help in the decision of what to use. Growers should check the insecticide label to be sure that particular insecticide is registered for use on the type of tobacco they are growing.

Most of the insecticides now used as foliar treatments on tobacco will give control for only three or four days. These new materials break down readily, thus reducing the danger to people and animals. Therefore, it is necessary to keep a close watch on the crop during the growing season in order to apply insecticides at the time they are most needed.

The soil-applied systemic insecticides can be especially beneficial where spray equipment is not available or when tobacco production is providing a secondary income. The part-time farmer may not be able to visit the field every day to check for insect damage, or he may be unable to find spray equipment. These materials will give from five weeks to season-long control, depending on the insect and the insecticide used.

Testing new chemicals to find more effective, less costly and safer insecticides is only a part of the research program on controlling insect pests in tobacco. Much of the recent work on tobacco insects at the University of Kentucky and other universities in the tobacco-growing region of the nation has been devoted to finding effective non-chemical ways of controlling the pests, determining how much damage insect pests actually do to tobacco and evaluating the effects of various cultural practices on insect pest populations.

Some cultural practices have been found to have an important effect on insect pest populations. Early planting and harvesting of tobacco can help the grower avoid some serious pest problems, because the heaviest populations of aphids, hornworms and flea beetles do not build up until mid-August.

Harvesting the tobacco crop early also helps reduce the numbers of some of the pests that are able to overwinter successfully. The use of systemic sucker control materials and the destruction of the tobacco plants after harvest, prevents ground suckers and aids in reducing overwintering populations of the insects.

Diseases can be serious at all stages of tobacco production-in the plant bed, in the newly-transplanted field, during growth of the crop in the field and during curing.

Root diseases and virus diseases pose the greatest threats to tobacco production.

One disease that is a strong threat is black shank. The reason black shank is so easily spread is that it is a hot weather disease. Resistant varieties are available that control black shank. Burley 37, Burley 49, Burley 64, and Va 509 are moderately resistant to all races of the black shank fungus in Kentucky. These varieties are the only safe ones for use on land where black shank is found. The L8 hybrids are highly resistant to the common race of black shank, but a race which kills L8 hybrids usually develops within a few years in fields that are heavily infested with the common race.

Black root rot is another serious tobacco disease in Kentucky, causing estimated annual losses of more than $11 million. The loss occurs even though most recommended varieties have some degree of resistance and the disease rarely causes spectacular damage in any one field. Since the black root rot organism is present on most farms, it is important to use cultural techniques that reduce build-up of the disease.

Practices to aid in reducing damage from black root rot include:

1. Select well-drained soils with good structure for tobacco.
2. Check soil pH and don't over-lime. Keep soil pH about 6.0 to 6.4.
3. Turn cover crops in early spring to prevent the build-up to toxins in the soil.
4. Do not use over 10 tons of manure per acre on tobacco fields.
5. Fertilize according to the soil test. Excessive fertilizer can cause root injury.
6. Avoid transplanting when soils are still cold or when the air temperature is low.
7. Change tobacco fields at least every two years to reduce build-up of the black root rot organism.

There are a number of viruses which affect burley tobacco. Fortunately, only two viruses cause significant yield losses in burley. Aphids pick up these viruses from weeds near tobacco fields and spread them as they feed on tobacco. Control of weeds such as groundcherry and horsenettle, in which the virus lives over the winter, helps reduce the virus population.

Tolerant varieties are the best means of reducing damage due to the viruses.

Cucumber mosaic, tobacco streak, tobacco ringspot, alfalfa mosaic, potato Y and peanut stunt are other viruses occasionally found in burley, but they are seldom serious enough to warrant attention.

The same viruses which affect burley also affect dark tobacco.

New wheat allotments now available at ASCS office

A new wheat allotment may be established for 1977 crop wheat acreage for farms that did not have a 1976 allotment, if they meet eligibility requirements, and file an application at the county ASCS office in Cadiz.

A 1977 wheat allotment will be established automatically for most farms that had a wheat allotment in 1976.

To be eligible for a new farm allotment, the operator must expect to receive more than 50 per cent of his income from farming. Neither the farm owner or operator may have an interest in any other farm which will have a 1977 wheat allotment, at the time the request is made. The person taking application must have had at least one year of wheat production experience in a prior year.

Applications for a new farm allotment may be filed at the county ASCS office on or before July 1.

Any interested producer who can meet these requirements should contact the county office before the final date for filing an application.

Fashion Revue set for June 15-18

The State 4-H Fashion Revue will be held June 15-18 at the University of Kentucky, Lexington. Trigg County will be represented by Jo Alyce McAtee and Mary Jane McAtee.

The Trigg County delegation, accompanied by Daryl Montgomery, 4-H agent for Trigg County, will leave for Lexington Tuesday, June 15. That afternoon, Fashion Revue participants will have an orientation session and will hear a panel discussion on "Teenager- You Are Consumer."

Members of the panel will be: Sharon Johnston, Simplicity Pattern Co., Inc.; John Hinkle, vice president of the Kentucky Retail Federation Inc.; Diane Smathers, University of Kentucky College of Home Economics' Department of Textiles, Clothing and Merchandising; and Sally Gregg, buyer for McAlpins Department Store, Lexington.

Tuesday night, the Fashion Revue contestants will join 4-H Week delegates for the fun of "Anything Goes" games and a get-acquainted dance. Wednesday is devoted to rehearsal for the Fashion Revue and judging of the participants and their outfits, and the Fashion Revue itself is scheduled for 8:00 that night at the UK Coliseum.

Thursday's program for Fashion Revue participants will be the 4-H Week assemblies, seminars, tours and a banquet and dance to close the event.

Police activities

Richard Wright, Public Information Officer for the Kentucky State Police Post 1 out of Mayfield, reported the following state police activities for Trigg County; 81 motor vehicle citations, 34 warnings for equipment violations, 12 motorists' assistances, 28 accident investigations, six criminal investigations with four criminal arrests and 15 arrests for drunk driving. Also reported was one traffic fatality since July, 1974.

State Police stationed in Trigg County are Ronald Anderson, Randall Cruse and Albert Stinson.

William Handley awarded Expert Infantryman Badge

Army First Lieutenant William J. Handley, son of Mrs. Frances C. Handley, of Route 2, was awarded the Expert Infantryman Badge May 17 while assigned to the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell. The badge is the Army's highest non-combat proficiency award for Infantrymen.

Lt. Handley qualified for the award through proficiency in combat tactics, weapons firing and physical fitness tests.

He also passed a series of written examinations.

Lt. Handley, executive officer of the division's 187th Infantry, entered the Army in 1973.

The 25-year-old officer is a 1968 graduate of Trigg County High School, and received a B.S. degree from the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N. Y., in 1973.

Vets aide to be here

H. S. Miles, a veterans counselor of the Department for Human Resources, Kentucky Center for Veterans Affairs, will be present June 14 and 28 at the Trigg County Court House to assist veterans and their dependents with claims for benefits due them as a result of their military service. He will be present from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

What to do in June

By Neville Shackelford
 UK College of Agriculture

On the farm, in the church, in the garden, and in nature, June is a busy month. In Nature, bees are busy gathering and carrying home nectar and helping fertilize flowers. Some mother birds brood over clutches of eggs while others hustle about in search of food for young already hatched.

In the Garden, weeding and cultivation commences in earnest, and there is much hay to be cut on the farm. In the church, young maidens are eagerly getting married and everywhere roses are blooming, poets are writing poems, and the overall scene is one of undiminished activity.

Summer really gets down to business in June. During the month's long "perfect" days the poet sang about, plants and vegetables rush to maturity before the "letting down and drying up" season in the hotter months of July and August puts a damper on growth activities.

No other month, not even December, enjoys the popularity of June. In the opinion of the ancients, it was the best month in which to get married, especially during the periods when the moon was full. The beauty, freshness, and luxuriance of its flowers and its usually fine weather fit well in all and for all its festivities and activities.

If by chance there is a let up in weeding and hoeing in the garden, cutting hay, getting married, attending "infaires", and writing poems, June is a fine time to mow the grass. If moisture is favorable, cut the grass about two inches high. If dry weather prevails, raise the height to three inches.

It is also a fine time to rejuvenate the strawberry patch. Check with your county Extension agent if you do not already know the best way to do this. Also by mid-month, plant seeds of broccoli, cabbage, and cauliflower for fall transplants. Later in the month, spray peach tree trunks with Thiodan for peach tree borers. For best results, follow with other sprays in early August and September.

Like several of our other months, June was named by the Romans. Some calendar authorities insist that its name was taken from Juno, special genius of the female sex, great queen of the gods, and the patron saint of marriage, geese and cuckoos.

This seems reasonable enough, but other historians claim the name was derived from "juniores", because in early Roman times this month was specially dedicated to young men fated for matrimony.

By name and by nature, June is a pretty month as well as a busy one. It is a time when bees swarm, butterflies hover over milkweed blossoms, students graduate, and maiden aunts swoon to the strains of Mendelssohn. It is a glorious month.

County Court
 The following persons were fined recently in cases appearing before Judge James Mathis at the Trigg County Courthouse.
 Irene G. Cartwright, of Princeton, public drunk, fined $30.
 Homer Ramey, of Princeton, driving while under the influence, fined $121.
 Carol M. Johnson, of Princeton, driving while under the influence (amended to disorderly conduct), fined $121.
 Nina L. Boren, of Evansville, Ind., drinking beer on highway, fined $29.
 Darrow V. Simmons, of Clarksville, Tenn., non-resident fishing with resident license, fined $64.
 Hugh M. Fulton, of Fort Branch Ind., non-resident fishing without license, fined $34.
 Walter B. Watson, of South Holland, Ill., non-resident fishing without license, fined $34.
 Randall K. Riney, of Evansville, Ind., non-resident fishing without license, fined $34.

On used cars

More information available

By Robert F. Stephens
 Attorney General

After June 30, Kentucky residents will have access to additional information when buying used cars. This will be made possible through a new Kentucky consumer protection law.

In the past, upon request of the prospective buyers, the car salesmen were required to furnish the name of the previous consumer-owner. Under the new law, you will also be given the address and phone number of the previous consumer-owner. To remind you to ask for this information, a sign will be posted on the windshield of every used car. This sign will state that:

"Notice: KENTUCKY LAW REQUIRES THAT, IF REQUESTED, WE SHALL FURNISH YOU WITH THE NAME, ADDRESS, AND TELEPHONE NUMBER, IF AVAILABLE, OF THE PREVIOUS CONSUMER-OWNER OF THIS VEHICLE (KRS 190.080)."

"Previous consumer-owner" means the last owner of the vehicle who could reasonably be expected to have operated the used car for personal, family, household or business purposes, but does not mean the owner who possessed the vehicle primarily for resale purposes.

When you have obtained this information, you should use it. Contact the previous owner of the used car you are considering. Be sure to ask at least these questions about the car:

- Why was the car sold?
- How was the car primarily used by the previous owner?
- When the car was sold to the dealer, how many miles did it have?
- Has the car ever been wrecked? What kind of damage did it receive? Who repaired it?
- Did the car have any major or minor defects? What were they? Have they been repaired and if so, when?
- What type of gas mileage does the car get in the city and on the highway? How much oil does the car use?
- Check on the service the car has received. Was it maintained on a regular schedule?

The answers to these questions and others that you will have should aid you in deciding which used car to buy. But remember the effectiveness of this law depends on you. The best protection any consumer has is the wise use of information available to him.

If you have a consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, The Capitol, Frankfort, Ky., 40601.

The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

REAL TRUTH

WANT TO SELL YOUR HOME?

The record will show that listing with a licensed real estate agency is the surest and safest way to receive full value for your property.

Thomas Real Estate is interested in representing you in the sale of your home and making sure you receive full value. We must however be honest with ourselves as to the fair market value of property. All too often we are asked to list property at a price that is inflated above its actual value. Experience has proven that overpricing property results in property just not selling. We have refused listings when the owner demanded too high of a selling price only to see it listed with another agency but the story remains the same. It just won't sell if overpriced.

If you want to sell your property please invite us to give you an appraisal of it. We will shoot straight about its value and your chance of selling.
