Jump from bridge may have been suicide attempt for Murray man

Rescue squads from Trigg, Calloway and Marshall Counties have been dragging the icy 45 degree waters of Kentucky Lake since noon Monday, Nov. 29, for the body of a Calloway County man believed to have made a suicidal jump from Egner's Ferry Bridge.

Trigg Deputy Sheriff Clarence Choate identified the subject as Edwin Stamps, 57, of Murray.

Sheriff Zelner Cossey said Dorothy Parker of Mayfield witnessed a man on the bridge. Mrs. Parker reported she saw him walk from the north side to the south side of the bridge and put one leg over the railing. That was the last she saw of him, reported Cossey.

Other drivers with citizens band radios reported seeing a man walking along the bridge. Mrs. Parker had contacted a CBer who relayed the message to LBL Ranger Reggie Fields. Fields reported he responded to the call, finding a coat lying on the bridge railing to the south, that was later identified as belonging to Stamps.

Fields said Stamps' car was located beside Hwy. 68 on the east side of the bridge, and found Stamps' wallet and two sets of car keys lying in the front seat. The vehicle registration and Stamps' personal mail were also in the car.

Fields said a couple saw Stamps walking along the bridge and asked if he had car trouble. Reportedly Stamps said his car would not start and the couple went in to Aurora for help. Stamps probably used the excuse to get the people to clear the area, reported Fields.

Rescue squads from Trigg, Marshall and Calloway Counties have been alternating shifts for the dragging operations which began shortly after noon Monday. Cossey said their efforts are being hampered by subfreezing temperatures, strong wind, the deep (50 to 75 feet) water and the river current.

At press time, Stamps' body had not been recovered and it is uncertain if it was a suicidal attempt. However, Cossey said he is "reasonably sure (it was suicide) with the circumstances surrounding the incident."

Drowned Saturday

Body of Greenville youth recovered after hunting mishap on Barkley

The body of a 17-year-old Greenville youth was recovered around noon Sunday, Nov. 28, from Lake Barkley after intensive dragging operations by local rescue volunteers.

Timmy Stovall, a senior at Graham High School near Greenville, drowned around 11:30 a.m. Saturday when the 12-foot johnboat which he and three goose hunting companions were in capsized. Stovall together with Charles M. Moore, 28 of Central City, Tony Cobb, 18 of Central City, and Morris Wells, 19 of Greenville, had been in the water shortly over an hour at the mouth of Linton Bay when the incident occurred.

Dragging operations by the Trigg County Civil Defense Rescue Team and volunteers were begun at 1 p.m. and ceased at dusk Saturday due to darkness and extreme cold weather. A commercial diver from Villa Ridge, Ill., who heard of the incident came to the area and made unsuccessful attempts to locate the body. Dragging was resumed at 9 a.m. Sunday and the body was located at 12:30 p.m.

According to Dan Thomas, Trigg County Civil Defense director, several local men who participated in this rescue, in addition to others, should be commended for their contribution to the community. Some of the men are: Harold Knight, James Flood, Albert Stinson, Ronald Anderson, John Vinson, Steve Emery, Mark Emery, James Butts, Kenneth Butts, Wallace Aldridge, Ed Caldwell, Henry Robert Higgins, Frankie Underhill, Donley Strader, R. L. Perry, Marshall Noel, Albert Thomas, Johnny Joyce, and Zelner Cossey.

Thomas said that the men furnished their own boats, equipment and gasoline in this rescue, and were out in 23 degree weather on a cold and windy lake for hours.

Thomas also expressed his appreciation to the Linton Masonic Lodge for use of the facilities during the search as well as Groeniger's Store and Linton residents.

City Council approves plan

Water extension line

City Water Commissioners and the City Council members met in a special called meeting Monday, Nov. 29, to review a project for distribution of water from the city out Hwy. 68 East beyond the King's Chapel Area.

The Water Commissioners' proposal who accepted by the Council. The commissioners will now present the project plan to the community requesting the service.

The plan stated that the property owners will bring in a list of owners from whom easements are required, with as much information as possible to aid in finding the title reference. For contract preparation, the property owners will bring a list of those who are willing to undertake the obligations set forth.

The City has agreed to prepare the easements and contracts, but the property owners will negotiate for them.

Water Commissioner Chairman Claude Adams reported the total project will cost in excess of $22,000. However, the city is asking for a more definite estimate to be prepared and the property owners are to deposit one third of the cost with a trustee, and pay the city the usual $150 tap on fee, for a three-quarter inch meter.

After proper execution of easements and contracts, and deposit of money, and certification by an trustee that funds have been deposited, the City will bid on pipe and crossings (Railroad and Hwy. 68) and if feasible, procure pipe, fittings, etc., and arrange for crossings. Pipe should be eight inch, Class 160 P.V.C., best available price.

The city will also set up a Project Construction Account. Property owners will at such time as they wish designate a Trustee for the purpose of receiving funds and make necessary arrangements for the digging of the trench and covering of pipe, to meet the City's inspection. The City will take no responsibility for this.

The City will furnish two men for purpose of inspection and direction of laying the pipe, making connections, installing fittings, and doing such work as they can do in connection therewith. Any additional labor required for this purpose must either be furnished by property owners or be hired and paid from the Project Construction funds.

Property owners pay the regular $150 tap on fee for house meter, plus one third of total cost of project, plus one share per hook-up or tap-on in surcharge each month of additional cost.

City will create the Project Construction Account to pay the additional construction cost not covered by the one-third down payment, and will be reimbursed by the surcharge and any additional funds from the extra tap-on fee from other users coming on the line.

The City will not undertake any responsibility nor pay any part of the expense for digging the trench and covering the pipe. Interest rate on account will be seven to twelve per cent.

Any property owner coming on the line prior to retirement of the obligation who dies not participate in this project in the beginning shall pay an additional $200 tap-on fee to apply toward its retirement. The project cost is to be paid off in 10 years.

The City will put the regular tap-on fees in its usual account and pay for meters and expense for connection thereof from usual account.

The original cost of construction paid by the City will be with the two $10,000 certificates of deposit which will be available in January.

The City will not proceed with any of its obligations until the easements and contracts have been signed and the one third due from property owners is paid in full.

Any property owner taking two tap-ons will undertake to pay the surcharge each month on both tap-ons until the debt is retired.

The line will, after construction and a reasonable period of time has elapsed for inspection and evaluation, become the property of the City of Cadiz and be operated as part of its regular system of water supply.

Woodruff awarded contract

THE JOHN WOODRUFF CONSTRUCTION CO., INC. of Cadiz, has been awarded 3.178 miles of grade and drain on the West Kentucky Parkway, which connects the West Kentucky Parkway to I-24 in Lyon County, with a bid of $2,499,033.91. The second bidder being Ralph Rogers and Co. of Bloomington, Ind., with a bid of $2,507,976.94.

Woodruff was also the low bidder on re-surfacing 4.217 miles in Hopkins County with a bid of $95,560.67. Second bidder being Dixie Pavers of Hopkinsville, with a bid of $95,794.91.

Weather incidents

Sunday's sudden temperature changes caught many local residents unaware and stranded out of town visitors, as Trigg County's second seasonal snowfall mixed with freezing rain.

Hwy. 68 was as nearly impossible as secondary roads, causing the schools to grant an extended vacation through Monday. Activity returned to normal on Tuesday.

As temperatures dropped to the low teens, Trigg residents were confronted with still another inconvenience. The west portion of the county had no electricity for about eight hours Sunday from 9:15 a.m. to about 5 p.m.

John Bannister, Pennyryle Rural Electric manager, explained the loss of power resulted in an unbalanced breaker. Possibly a squirrel sat on it; that's usually what happens, explained Bannister.

Miles of line connected to the breaker had to be balanced. In order to do that, stated Bannister, it had to be taken apart a piece at a time and put back. "It just took time," said Bannister.

Electricity was restored late afternoon in that portion of the county from a top Swimming Pool hill to Cumberland and Blue Springs Shores.

Democrats to meet

A meeting will be held on Saturday, Dec. 4, in all of the Trigg County Precincts to select a Democratic Precinct Committeeman, a Committeewoman and a youth Committeeman, at 10 a.m.

Black representation lacking in Trigg elected official positions

Cadiz and Trigg County are among the cities and counties singled out as having "the most severe under representation" of blacks in councils and school boards in Kentucky.

Trigg, with a black population exceeding 17 per cent, has no black county officials.

Kentucky blacks hold 67 elective offices in the state, compared to 63 one year ago and 26 in 1969, but Galen Martin, executive director of the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights, cautioned against overlooking "the severe under-representation of black citizens that continues to exist in Kentucky as a whole and in many cities and counties."

A report released by the Commission cited the following areas as having severe under-representation of blacks in public office:

- the all-white school boards in 11 school districts where at least one fifth of the total enrollment is black and in 23 other districts where the black student enrollments range between 10 and 20 per cent. The Trigg school district is 24.8 per cent black with no black representation on the board of education.

- the all-white city councils in 32 cities with populations of 1,000 or more and black populations greater than 10 per cent.

- nonlegislative city government positions in cities with substantial percentages of black residents.

The Commission's 25 page report, entitled Kentucky Directory of Black Elected Officials, found that since 1969 the total number of black officials has increased by 41, or 157.7 per cent, and the number of Kentucky counties with black officeholders within their boundaries increased from 14 to 34.

Despite these gains, Kentucky has dropped eight places since 1970 in a national ranking of states by total number of black elected officials. In 1970, Kentucky ranked fifteen among the 50 states in black elected officials, and in 1976 Kentucky ranked twenty-third, according to statistics compiled by the Joint Center for Political Studies in Washington, D. C.

A gap of 366 black officials was found between the present total and the number needed to provide Kentucky's black citizens with a level of representation comparable to their proportion of the state's population, the report said.

To close the gap, the Commission called on government officials to appoint blacks to elective positions as vacancies occur. The Commission also urged party and community leaders to encourage blacks to seek public office.

Although blacks make up 7.2 per cent of Kentucky's total population and 6.6 per cent of its voting age population, the 67 blacks now in office represent only one per cent of approximately 6,600 elected officials in the state.

Kentucky's 67 black officeholders include 41 city council or city commission members, 12 school board members, 9 county officials, 2 state representatives and one state senator, one mayor, and one police court judge.

The greatest gain since 1969 was reported at the city government level where blacks gained 27 additional council seats.

County and school board offices, where the number of blacks have tripled since 1969, showed the greatest proportional increases. Black county officials increased from 3 in 1969 to 9 in 1976, while the number of black school board members rose from 4 to 12. No change has occurred in the number of blacks in state level offices since 1968 when the election of Kentucky's first black State Senator increased that total to 3.

The 13 Kentucky cities found to have the most severe under-representation of blacks in council or commission posts in 1976 are Guthrie, Clinton, Paris, Hickman, Cadiz, Providence, Franklin, Paducah, Danville, Elkton, Midway, Benham, and Maysville. The commission reported Trigg's total population at 8,620.

The 11 local school boards reported to have the most severe under-representation of black officials are Earlington Independent, Christian County, Fulton County, Maysville Independent, Georgetown Independent, Henderson Independent, Shelbyville Independent, Trigg County, Mount Sterling Independent, Providence Independent, and Frankfort Independent.

Commonwealth attorney seeks state funding for detective position

In his home the new Commonwealth Attorney of the 56th Judicial District has a map of his jurisdiction taped on the wall with population centers - crime concentration - circled in red. In his office, files are stacked up against the wall and his docket notebook was open on his desk. When he ran for Commonwealth Attorney, Bill Cunningham promised to wage a personal battle against crime.

As of Saturday, November 15, when he was sworn into office, the war began.

Sitting in his office in Eddyville recently the 32-year-old attorney talked of the task ahead. "We're an orphan child right now," he began, speaking of the new district. "The other circuits are funded and the Commonwealth Attorneys have staff support. We have nothing. Tom Pruett, our Commonwealth Detective, is working for nothing."

Cunningham went on to cite some interesting statistics. As of October 18, when the survey was conducted, Lyon County alone had only 16 less indictments than the entire neighboring 42nd District, which is composed of Marshall and Calloway counties. On that date the 56th Judicial District, consisting of Caldwell, Livingston, Lyon and Trigg counties, had almost twice as many indictments, as the 42nd and yet the latter had both an assistant Commonwealth Attorney and a Commonwealth Detective.

Cunningham and Commonwealth Detective Tom Pruett have made numerous trips to Frankfort attempting to obtain financial assistance. "We haven't gotten much help up there. No one seems to care. We're trying to get some money from the Governor's contingency fund. His assistant won't even return our calls. There's a lot of talk at campaign time about law and order, but when it comes to paying the price, well, the bureaucrats take over."

The new prosecutor talked about the program he hopes to put forth in this district. "We've already started setting up our Judiciary Councils for each county. They will be our link with the community. We hope to use them as a means of informing the community about the business of the Circuit Court."

Within the near future Cunningham's office will be establishing his volunteer staff for processing applications to the new Crime Victim's Compensation Board. "Dave Armstrong is doing a great service with this in Louisville," he explains. "We intend to do the same here. It not only provides a needed service, but it also gets people involved in the system."

Cunningham is also in the process of filing discovery motions on behalf of the Commonwealth, something which has never been done. Included in his motions is a request for a list of the defendant's witnesses. The Commonwealth is currently being compelled by the Court to supply the name of its witnesses, to the defendant prior to trial. "I'm for open and liberal discovery. But it seems to me it should work both ways as far as constitutionally possible. The people also deserve not to be caught off guard at trial by surprise witnesses. Criminal justice is not a game to me. It's a very serious process within which innocent citizens in the community as well as individual defendants have a lot at stake."

In addition to all of this activity Cunningham will have to handle the Governor's Blue Ribbon Commissioner's Report on the prison which will be before the Lyon County Grand Jury in March.

Cunningham was asked what would happen if funding is not forthcoming for an Assistant Commonwealth Attorney. Undaunted, he simply shrugged. "We'll get the money. Tom Pruett is a family man working for nothing. Even bureaucrats and politicians can't ignore that type of dedication."

Neither can the people.

Use caution in purchasing appropriate children's toys

By Attorney General Robert F. Stephens

The Christmas season is quickly approaching and many people will be buying toys. To insure that your family has a safe Christmas, check all toys to make sure that they cannot hurt your child.

There are toys with obvious hazards, like dart games, but there are also many unsafe toys that might not appear so hazardous at first glance. To be sure, ask yourself six basic questions when you shop for toys:

- Are there any detachable parts which could easily fall off or be taken off, and then caught in the throat, ear or nose, or swallowed?

- Is this toy marked "flame resistant", "flame retardant", or "non-flammable"? Is it washable? Look for these labels on dolls and stuffed toys, especially.

- Is the toy appropriate for the child's age? A chemistry set may be fine for an older child, but remember

Cook selected for AFB training

Selected for training at Keesler AFB, Miss., in the communications electronics field after completing basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., is Airman Lowell E. Cook, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack N. Cook of Cerulean.

During the six weeks training at Lackland, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Airman Cook is a 1976 graduate of Christian County High School, Hopkinsville.

Cunningham sworn in

Bill Cunningham is sworn into office as Commonwealth Attorney of the new 56th Judicial District Saturday, Nov. 13, by Circuit Judge Edward H. Johnstone at the Lyon County Courthouse. Cunningham won a contested election for the post in the May Democratic Primary and was unopposed in the recent general election. The 56th Judicial District Court is composed of Trigg, Caldwell, Livingston and Lyon Counties.

that younger children in the home may injure themselves on an older child's toy. To be safe, heed the minimum ages recommended by manufacturers.

- Is the toy made of a substance that will splinter or shatter easily? Try to buy flexibly constructed toys, with smooth, rolled edges. Sharp points could cause punctures, so avoid toys made with nails, staples, pins, or wires.

- Are there no-toxic labels on any art supplies or painted toys?

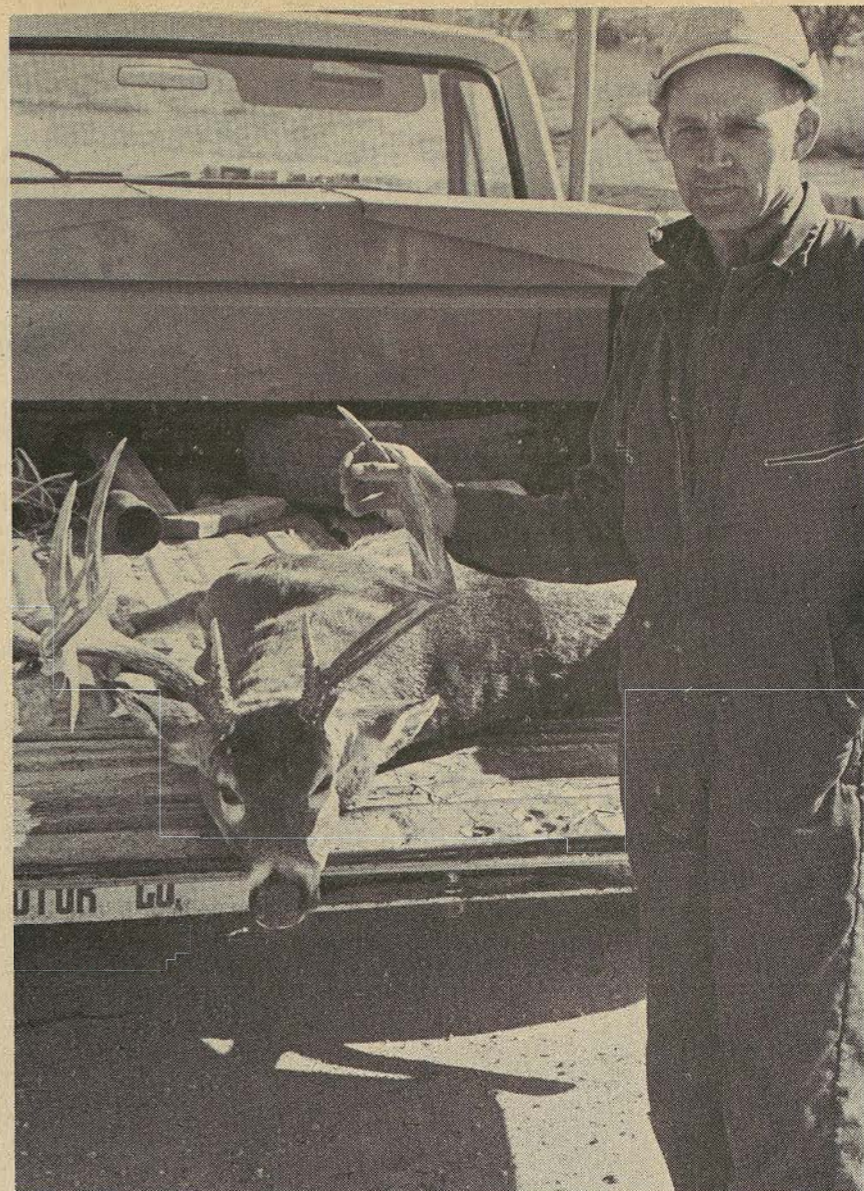

- Finally, beware of electric toys which could cause burns or shock, propelled objects which could injure eyes, or toys which are terribly noisy and could cause ear damage.

If toys have directions for children, make sure that they are easy to read and understand. If necessary, explain or demonstrate how to use a toy properly.

Teach children how to disconnect electrical toys: show them how to hold on the rubberized plug and pull, without tugging on the cord.

And just because a toy was in good condition when you bought it, don't forget to check toys periodically for breaks, jagged edges, loose parts, or deterioration.

Should you have questions about the safety of any particular toy or discover that one appears to be hazardous, contact Edsel Moore, Kentucky Product Safety Program, Department for Human Resources, 275 E. Main, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The Product Safety Program investigates products which are hazardous, unsafe, or defective in their design, construction or composition. The Product Safety Program will be glad to answer questions about any toy you are considering purchasing.

Thanks for giving

editorial

By Lin Gray

With the Thanksgiving season behind us, we hasten to look ahead to the Christmas holidays, a time which traditionally involves giving.

We must pause this week and be thankful for the time and efforts given voluntarily by the members of the Trigg County Civil Defense Rescue Squad in the searches for two men who lost their lives in our lakes.

They are always charitable and are always ready when we need them. Their gift of love to Trigg County is shown through their concern for Trigg citizens and neighbors visiting in our community.

The rescue teams from Marshall and Caldwell counties also provide an invaluable service to their communities and are on call to aid neighboring areas in times of despair.

As the Thanksgiving season passes, we realize we have a lot to be thankful for. But, as Christmastime arrives, we should also think about the many ways we can GIVE of ourselves to also help our community.

Wildcat seasons

We've hit head-on into this season's basketball schedule as Trigg County's Wildcats are on their way to a "hopeful" season.

I hope we can all give them our full support, starting (it's not too late) with Friday's game (Dec. 3). The sporting Wildcats meet Henderson County on their home court.

But basketball isn't the only athletic program at Trigg County getting underway. The wrestling Wildcat matmen open their season today (Thursday, Dec. 2) as they compete with Fort Campbell (there) at 6 p.m.

And for another season opener, the Lady Wildcats begin regulation play Monday, Dec. 6, as they take on Lyon County (away).

Good Luck to all Wildcats!

Anyone for snow? Seems it's no trouble for it to snow in November. Sundays snowfall made three in this month.

The Kitchen had a nice Thanksgiving. Turkey and dressing, and all the fixings. The Girls Mission Group of East Cadiz Baptist made a Thanksgiving poster for decoration.

Mrs. Pink Carr was in Southside, Tennessee, Wednesday until Sunday of last week to be with her sister and her

Mrs. Nina Herndon, and son "Chip," Hazel Park, Mich., were visiting in Trigg County during the Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Swanson, Glacier Park, Montana, are spending some time, in Trigg County.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jarvis, and daughter, Steph, Evansville, were Thanksgiving guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hembree.

Charles Looney of Herndon, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bart Futrell, Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Lenfers of Evansville, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Groeninger of Atlanta, Ga., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Groeninger last week.

Though I don't live on the farm any more I still take a number of farm magazines. Farm life still appeals to me. It's a good life, in fact, the most rewarding way of life. The work is hard. It used to start before sunup and go until after dark, now it's nothing unusual for a farmer, with tractors, to work on into the night.

If you think old-time neighborliness is gone, you're wrong. It's nothing unusual if illness strikes a farmer, for neighbors to pitch in, plant, and or, harvest a crop. Just last week I read in Farm Journal where just such a kind deed had been performed.

Sorry to hear of the tragedy which occurred here last week. A seventeen-year-old boy, who was duck hunting, drowned just above Linton. I understand it was at the mouth of Dry Creek. The two things that are so essential to life and are so very deadly — fire and water. They must be treated with a great deal of respect.

There may be a substitute for a pleasant nature, but as yet it has not been discovered.

The temperature hit a low of 11 degrees in my neck of the woods Monday morning.

Mrs. Madge Fleming and Mrs. Gladys Hembree were in Evansville recently.

George Fleming, Murray College, spent the Thanksgiving holiday at his home here.

Until next week, hopefully, remember, your mansion in the sky cannot be built of mud you've thrown at others.

See you in church Sunday?

Mrs. Louise S. Thomas, chapter chaplain, gave the blessing before the dinner, reminding those present of the freedom and opportunities which were insured by the sacrifices of our ancestors, whom the DAR honor. Following the dinner a brief business session was held, with a fellowship period afterward.

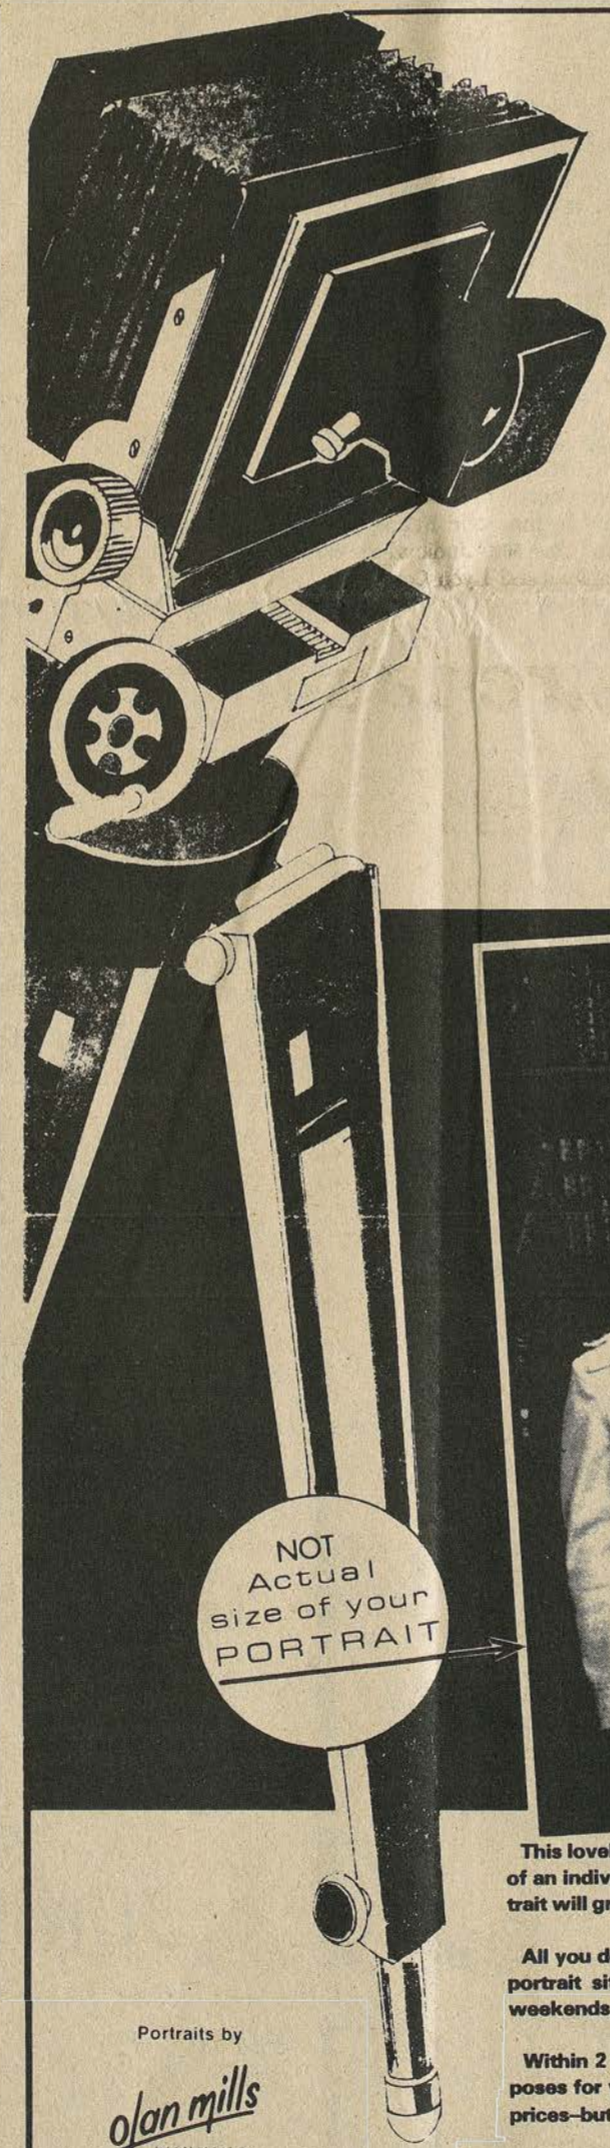

Guests were Mrs. Lucille Sumner, John Dawson, Gilbert Bridges, John Bridges, O. J. Cunningham, T. H.

Christmas ... 'Tis the season to be jolly'

By Mrs. Dottie Walsh

As in many previous years, the Cadiz Woman's Club has again undertaken the task of bringing the "Look of Christmas" to Cadiz. The Christmas Decoration Committee this year is headed by Mrs. Martha Eisenmann of Cadiz Interiors.

Taking advantage of a beautiful day, the lights were strung among the evergreens at the Courthouse Saturday afternoon, Nov. 20. The Woman's Club, in an effort to involve the youth of Trigg County in community affairs, was aided in this task by the Future Homemakers of America of Trigg County High School. These girls also lent a helping hand Nov. 27 when the Courthouse, Library, Post Office and Community Tree were "decked with bows of holly."

The Woman's Club has purchased green garlands and wreaths for the library.

Sammy Bentley, as in the past, was in charge of the electrical wiring involved with the decorations. Kidell Bridges and other City employees played a large part in aiding with the Yule decorations.

Thirty Canadian Hemlock trees have been purchased from Ned Southwick of the Ellenwood Nursery to be placed along the business section and the Gateway Shopping Center. The trees will be set in green painted baskets with red pom-pom bows for accent. Enough of these bows were made to hang from various light poles through town.

Volunteers from the County Homemakers of Trigg County spent many hours making these bows for the Woman's Club. Their names are Mrs. Joan Oliver, Mrs. Vickie Fourshee, Mrs. Geneva Wallace, Mrs. Dean Carr and Mrs. Kay Fourshee.

Preparing Santa's house for his yearly appearance to our "little ones" is Mrs. Carla Sanders. Aside from a general cleaning and dusting, an ample supply of "goodies" has been ordered so Santa can treat each of his dedicated believers.

Needless to say, many long hours of planning and plain old physical labor go into this venture undertaken by the Cadiz Woman's Club every year in an effort to bring the people of Trigg

By 8th graders

Language, arts studied

The eighth grade language arts program centers around four areas of study: grammar, oral communication, spelling and writing. These four areas are used as a means of improving your child's language arts skills.

All students have been exposed to English grammar since their days in elementary school. The eighth grade program is an expansion of those skills previously introduced. A more in-depth study is attempted in the parts of speech, sentence structure and the development of paragraphs. It is anticipated that the student's skills in oral communication will increase as a result of his study of English grammar.

In order to live in today's society, it is necessary for each of us to be able to speak in a way that our wishes can be made known. The English program is designed to help the students apply the skills learned in grammar to their everyday use of language.

Weekly class discussions are held, as well as discussions with small groups, class reports, impromptu speeches, demonstrations, and eventually debate will be tried.

Spelling is another important part of the language arts program. Each student has a weekly spelling lesson which explores new words and words which cause difficulty in spelling. Each lesson is designed to increase the student's vocabulary as well as teaching the spelling of words. Each week students make sentences with the words and learn their meanings.

The three study areas of grammar, communication, and spelling are studied as a means of attaining the fourth area which is writing. Often it is quite difficult to try to put one's words on paper. Yet, each of us uses writing in some form almost every day of our lives. We write letters to friends or family, make applications for jobs, letters of inquiry, and other such writings.

In the classroom, students write essays, stories, and themes on varying topics. Each week they have a period of time devoted to creative writing. Students write opinions about current problems, teenage problems, or topics concerning the school. Sometimes students choose topics that are strictly fantasy or make believe.

It is hoped that through these four areas of study, the eighth grade language arts program will aid students in those skills necessary for improving both their oral and written communication.

How Parents Can Help

- Encourage your child to read.
- Provide students with magazines, comic books or any type of reading material.
- Help students with their weekly spelling words.
- Set aside a study time at your house. Help the student during this time if he needs you.
- Encourage your child to attend school regularly.
- Feel free to contact the school if you have questions about your child's education.

For a better choice

Plan and prepare a productive career

In the 1970's more than ever before, all young people must concern themselves with the complex task of planning and preparing for a productive career. The time when Trigg County High School students will be putting in their eight hours a day may seem a long way off. But if high school students start thinking about careers now, they will be able to make a better choice when the time finally comes.

An important and startling change that students have to look forward to is this: in 1985 when they will be well established in their chosen career, they will be part of a civilian working force of about 105 million persons. To gain an understanding of different kinds of occupations it is necessary to learn as much as possible about the educational and career opportunities available.

Career Day at TCHS gives the students a chance to learn about educational opportunities after high school and vocations in which they can expect employment and success.

Right to Read

MARGARET THOMAS, Regina Mitcheson, June Kennedy, Becky Hartigan, Gail McKillip and Geneva Guinn participate in the Right to Read inservice program.

Held November 22

Right to Read inservice

The Trigg County elementary teachers, aides, and administrators assembled Monday, Nov. 22, at the elementary school for a Right to Read inservice. The purpose of this inservice was to study and discuss ideas for developing a scope and sequence for reading in the elementary school.

Dr. Yancey Watkins, consultant from Murray State University, and Mr. Jack Turner, Coordinator of Federal Programs in Trigg County, headed the meeting. The highlight of the four hour session was a debate between two randomly chosen three-member teams who presented arguments for and against developing a scope and sequence in reading for the elementary school. A three member panel of judges monitored the debate.

During the debate, scope and sequence was explained. A scope and sequence is a listing of concepts or skills which are to be presented or taught at various designated levels in the educational process.

The overall tone of the meeting seemed to indicate that the teachers are interested in developing a workable scope and sequence for the Trigg County elementary grades. It is the aim of the teachers to accomplish this goal during the course of this school year.

Colonels down Wildcats

In Christian County Invitational Tourney

Trigg County basketball got into full swing over the past weekend as they joined three other teams to battle in the opening round of the Christian County Invitational Tournament.

For basketball fans attending the opening games of the tournament, there was an error-filled game showing by both Colonel and Wildcat squads. The Wildcats bowed to the Colonels 92-63.

The Colonels took the lead with 16 seconds gone in the game. Trigg County moved to within one point when Rickey Radford connected on the back end of a pair of free throws to move the score to 9-8.

The Colonels then spurred to a 17-8 lead with 1:26 left in the stanza. The Wildcats continued to fight back as they connected on six of nine free throws in the last minute of the quarter for a 19-14 County lead at the end of the stanza.

The Colonels shot 55 per cent from the field (10 of 18) to extend their lead to 41-31 at the half. For the first half, County had shot 53 per cent (17 of 32) while the Wildcats connected on 10 of 30 attempts for a dismal 33 per cent. The Wildcats remained close because of free throws. Trigg County went to the stripe 19 times in the first half and connected on 11 attempts. The Colonels shot 10 times at the line and connected seven times.

Christian County outscored Trigg 28-12 in the third quarter. The Wildcats went the last 5½ minutes of the stanza and only hit three of eight attempts from the field.

The Colonels biggest lead in the game came in the opening minute of the fourth quarter as Mike Reese connected on a lay-up and moved the score to 71-41. The Wildcats went cold against the Colonel defense as they hit two of 14 field goals in the last quarter and at one point went six minutes without a tally.

For Trigg County, Fred Wilson used five field goals and seven charity shots for 17 points and George Crump added 11.

Saturday night, Trigg County and Hopkinsville squared off in the consolation game in the first contest of the evening.

Cats fall to Murray

The Trigg County Wildcats fell to Murray in their first game of the season Tuesday night, Nov. 30. Murray came out on top 73-55.

The score was tied at 31 as the Wildcats ran a tight race the first half, but Murray captured the lead for the third stanza 46-39 and continued through to the end with 73-55.

Top Trigg scorers were Bill Stallons,

14; Ricky Radford, 12; and John Ben Travis, 8.

Trigg Wildcats hit 29 per cent for field goal attempts, hitting 20 of 68. However, Murray outranked Trigg with a 37 per centage.

On the free throw line Trigg shot 15 of 32 for 47 per cent, while Murray shot 69 per cent, hitting 29 of 42.

The high rebound man for the Wildcats was Stallons, with 15.

TCHS Wrestling Wildcats open season tonight

The Trigg County High School "Wrestling Wildcats" open their season Thursday, Dec. 2 at Ft. Campbell High School. The first home match will be Dec. 7 at 6:30. The Wildcats will be wrestling the Christian County Colonels.

There are 21 boys out for the team this year. "Although low in numbers we are high in enthusiasm." The boys are really excited about this year and are anxious to get started.

This year's team will be a combination of talent and inexperience. Fans can look for a steady improvement and by region we may surprise some people.

Wrestling is a sport which requires a "bushel-basket" full of dedication and sacrifice. Right now we have about 5 or 6 boys willing to do this. If 3 or 4 more made up their minds to work and sacrifice, we could have a good season.

In the 98 pound class we will have 4 or 5 boys. Vernon Crump, if he gets dedicated, could be tough, along with John Deloach, Ricky Woods, Donald Wilford, and others pushing him for the job.

At 105 we have very little depth. Here we have Mike Choate, who has no experience, but is showing improvement. In the 112 pound class will be an 8th grader and a freshman, Dana Haslett and John White. Neither has wrestled before.

Wrestling 119 will probably be Thomas "Rat" Thompson. He has looked good in practice and may be one of the "surprises" on the team.

Dennis Acree will return at the 126 pound class. He was the only Wildcat to qualify for the state tournament last year, and may be the best in the region this year. He is a senior.

At 132 pounds is Mike Sadler, a sophomore and Raymond Boyd and Ricky Jessup. This should be one of the strongest classes in the region, yet we have three pretty good wrestlers there, and should do alright.

At 138 we have Greg Haslett, a sophomore, and Harry Mays, neither of whom has ever wrestled before.

The 145 pound class should be one of the strongest with a senior, Ernie Wallis, holding down the position. He is probably one of the best wrestlers in the region and is one of the most dedicated on the team. He is a senior.

Greg Briggs or Iven Boyd will be at the 155 pound class. Both are strong and tough and should make this one of the strongest spots on the team. They will be backed up by a sophomore, Eric Mitchell.

In the 167 pound class will be Randy Clark. He is a sophomore and has never wrestled. He is smart and learns quick. He also has the physical abilities and a great attitude. He is one of the hardest workers on the team and may be another "surprise" by region time.

Heavy weight will be Fexcell Wharton, a junior, who weighs 201 pounds. Although light for a heavyweight, he is quick and may do well here. Before the season is over he may be wrestling in the 185 pound class.

"The key to our season will be whether or not our inexperienced wrestlers come along and do the job for us." But, even a more important key may not even be on the team — support! "You would be surprised what a kid can do if he has people behind him."

"I hope everyone will come out and support these kids." They work hard and deserve it. One thing is for sure, even if they don't win they will give you 100 per cent and you will enjoy watching them perform."

Deer tags must be validated at check station this year

Kentucky's hunters who take deer during the Dec. 4 through Dec. 8 gun season must visit a deer check station for validation of their deer tags, according to regulations adopted this year by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Check stations will be set up in all counties open to deer hunting. These stations are at service stations, country grocery stores, sport shops, wildlife management areas or other locations, and each location will display a sign designating it as an official check station.

At the station, the hunter will fill out a special portion of the deer permit, which will be retained by the station operator. The remainder of the tag will be stamped for validation.

A statewide list of check stations is available wherever deer permits are sold or from all county court clerk's offices. Hunters buying deer tags should receive this list when the tag is purchased.

All conservation officers may also check deer and validate tags. The deer must be taken to the nearest officer or to the nearest open check station no later than 9 a.m. on the day after the deer is harvested.

Bow hunters need not check their deer, except at a few areas with specially managed hunts. However, bow hunters who purchased their permits before the check station list was distributed and who plan to gun hunt during the Dec. 4 through Dec. 8 season should obtain this list, either from the county court clerk or by writing the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky.

The purpose of the check stations, according to Game Management Director Joe Bruna, is to allow fish and wildlife to obtain a quick and accurate assessment of the total deer harvest in the state.

In past years, harvest estimates were obtained by a post-season mail survey, with the results coming in too late for the information to be used in setting seasons for the coming year, Bruna said, adding that the check station method of obtaining information will prove useful in a variety of deer management projects around the state.

Opening, closing dates listed for hunting seasons

It won't be long until Kentucky's hunting seasons get into full swing, and with the number of different opening and closing dates for different game species, it's sometimes hard to keep track of everything.

So here's a rundown of opening and closing dates for the remainder of this season's hunting, courtesy of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

- Dec. 2 — Last day of first phase of split duck season.
- Dec. 3 — Small game seasons close; for duration of gun deer season; trapping season remains open.
- Dec. 4 — Statewide gun deer season opens. Hunters taking a deer during this season must have deer checked by conservation officer or at check station.
- Dec. 8 — Last day of gun deer season. Check stations will be open Dec. 9 to check deer taken on Dec. 8.
- Dec. 9 — Small game seasons reopen.
- Dec. 11 — Second phase of duck season opens; dove hunting resumes.
- Dec. 18 — Second phase of deer archery season opens.

KET offers holiday tips

'Tis the season thieves love best . . .

'Commonwealth Call-In' offers some smart tips for protecting yourself, your home and car during the holiday season Monday, Dec. 13, at 9 p.m. (ET), 8 p.m. (CT) over Kentucky Educational Television (KET). Preventive measures can help stock pickpockets and burglars from taking the "happy" out of holidays, and "Call-In" provides helpful suggestions for viewers.

Also, coming with the seasonal celebration, holiday trappings can create unnecessary fire hazards. Safety measures for the home are highlighted during the program.

Host Bob Shy and his guests: Capt. J. T. Gilbert of the Lexington-Fayette Police Department; Capt. James Sallee of the Fire Prevention Bureau in Lexington; and James L. Thomas from the Office of Crime Prevention, a sector of the Kentucky Department of Justice, are on hand to answer viewers' questions.

The "Call-In" telephone bank is staffed during the hour-long program. Toll calls are accepted.

"Your Satisfaction Seals the Deal" voice of venerable

Keith S. Venable

Much talk is in the air these days about the percent of unemployment, and most of this talk does not face up to the facts.

We will always have some unemployment, for we live in a fluid society with a large number of workers shifting from one job to another.

Wage scales, which are going ever higher and higher, make it uneconomical to hire untrained unskilled workers.

Fringe benefits, now amounting to thousands of dollars per worker in some industries, encourage these companies to pay overtime to their present crew rather than put on new workers.

Unemployment is very damaging to those it affects and we should make every effort to bring work to every one desiring a job.

One of the publications which comes to our house is "Pig International". It is edited in England, printed in English, with summaries in French, German, and Spanish.

It says that Brazil has increased hog numbers from 25 to 41 million head. In Hungary they have a two tier system of pens. And in Provence, France, there is a 6500 capacity piggery. Here the manure is highly prized for the vineyards.

It is nice to know what you are getting for Christmas. I am getting a "Bionic Woman," and Katherine is getting her a "Six Million Dollar Man."

Through error last week I spoke of Aubrey's wood pile. It should have read, "Aubrey Oakley's wood pile."

Soybeans are growing in importance but scientist have been unable to dramatically increase bean yields like they have corn.

Now studies are under way to learn the secrets of this fine plant which can

Unemployment due to our fluid society use the nitrogen from the air to make protein.

There is new interest in milk from the soybean. Over 2000 years ago the Chinese soaked the beans, squeezed the milk out and drank it.

Soy milk is nutritionally almost as good as cow's milk, but the taste has never been up to Western standards. Maybe some day soy milk will replace milk just as margarine from soy oil has replaced butter.

I like to tell the boys in the barber shop how to cut my hair. Once I said, "Part it in the middle."

"I can't," Lexie said, "You've got an odd number."

This morning I turned on some beautiful music from Murray College Public Radio. This reminded me of that night back in the 1920's when a college professor from the young college at Murray brought his violin and gave a program of classical music to the folks at Kirksey High School. This was fiddling country and his violin received a cool reception.

Most of you have noticed the new Southern States Coop building being built on the road to Montgomery. This is going up without fan fare or even a ripple.

This could not have happened 25 years ago. An effort to start a cooperative store then triggered the only big debate and conflict to occur in the County Agent's Office.

We had the Trigg County Soil improvement Association, organized primarily to handle TVA fertilizer for our demonstrators. The president of the Association wanted to start a Southern States Coop Store. Another of our strong leaders was violently opposed, believing that business should be left to private firms. In the end he won out and the store was never built.

It is sad to see what a mess the government can make of things. I remember when Weldon Campbell would make an ambulance call for $25. I read in the Record last week that a run now might cost $500.

Paul Revere and I have something in common. He considered himself an artist and silversmith while his fame is centered on his midnight ride.

I would like to be an economist of sorts while it seems many people look on me as a jokesmith of sorts.

Do you have to have a license to tell fishing jokes?

The editor of a sporting magazine was walking over a frozen Northern lake and came upon two boys fishing through a hole in the ice.

"Are you having any luck?" he asked.

"Um um", said the older boy.

"He can't talk now," piped up the smaller boy. "He's warming his worms."

Further on he came upon a little bear looking down a hole in the ice. "What do you say?" he asked.

The little bear shivered and said, "My tail is told."

Soil testing time

Last year was a different year for soil sampling than anytime during the past. Nearly 50,000 samples were sent to the University of Kentucky's soil testing laboratory at Lexington. Over 500 samples were tested in Trigg County. This was an increase of about 20,000 more samples at UK and 400 in Trigg County than in any previous year. Most of these samples were sent to the lab during February-March period resulting in a severe overload of the laboratory capacity, and chemical supplies.

Since that time the University of Kentucky soil testing lab capacity has been increased and re-organized which will result in faster, more accurate service.

Even with this increased lab capacity, the best way to avoid undue delays is to bring your soil samples in now. If you have questions about how to take a good sample or need other information on how to get samples tested, call or come by your county extension office.

Sample now while soil is relatively dry. Sample containers may be obtained from your UK Extension Office, 31 Jefferson St., Terrell Bldg., in Cadiz. One measuring cup of soil is all that's needed to run a test. Testing still remains at $1.00- recommendations are free of charge. Be sure to test your soil- testing yields profits. See your UK Cooperative Extension Service today.

Plan pond for winter watering use

Have you been breaking ice for cattle already during this cold weather?

Winter is not even here yet! But it is cold enough to freeze many ponds so that cattle can't get water.

Not only is it an inconvenience to have to get up early and break ice, but there is a very good chance of losing a calf or two when the ice is thin.

Many farmers during the past few years have eliminated worrying this winter by building ponds where they can use watering troughs below them. Ponds that have water pipes installed underneath the levee can provide a steady supply of warm water. By leaving the water running through the pipe into a water trough and out an overflow pipe the water will remain unfrozen during normal winters.

Marvin Broadbent, Jr., Corbie Litchfield and Sons, and Jimmie Turner have built large ponds this year and installed livestock drinking water facilities during construction.

Other alternatives to breaking ice for cattle this winter would be to install troughs on existing wells or public watering lines. These systems must conform to the local Health Department policies before installation can begin.

Cost-sharing monies are available through the local ASCS programs for eligible landowners for these and other conservation practices.

Chris Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Turner, of the Cerulean community, has big thoughts of catching the big one next spring. The fish were furnished by the Department of Fish and Wildlife and placed in ponds that was built with cost-share money for livestock water and recreation through the ASCS program.—SCS photo.

Metric system will affect many everyday experiences

—One of a series.
By Cecil Peaden

People who think they will be able to continue to drift along using the English system of weights and measures while the rest of the country converts to the metric system are going to be in for a rude shock.

That's because they don't realize the extent to which the metric system is going to affect our patterns of behavior. The fact is that the metric system more and more often is going to invade a vast number of everyday experiences, and those who tenaciously cling to the old system are going to soon find themselves hopelessly lost.

Dr. Charles Thompson, assistant professor of education at the University of Louisville who has taught a number of classes and seminars on the metric system, pointed out some of the more common ways people will find their patterns of thinking changing.

Many of the most obvious and pervasive changes will occur during the weekly trip to the grocery store.

The grocery shopper will no longer find gallons, half gallons and quarts of milk in the dairy section. Instead, Thompson said, there will be liter, two-liter and four-liter cartons. By the same token, her favorite soft drink will not be available in the familiar quart and half-quart sizes.

In fact, Thompson said, several bottling companies — such as 7-Up and Coca-Cola — have already started limited distribution of their products in metric-sized bottles.

(The same thing will be true of the liquor industry. As a matter of fact, that industry has already decided that it will be totally metric by 1979.)

The shopper will also find some changes when she heads for the meat counter. She may not believe her eyes the first time she sees hamburger selling for $2.15 — until she realizes that is $2.15 per kilogram and not per pound. If she knows that a kilogram equals approximately 2.2 pounds, she will realize that's about what she is used to paying.

Cans and packages of food won't be measured in eight ounces, 16 ounces, 24 ounces, and so on, any longer; all weights will be listed in grams or kilograms. Many food processing companies have already started listing both metric and English weights on their packages, in fact. And in a short time the English listings will be dropped altogether.

Thompson said today's more-or-less standard food package sizes will undergo a change, and new standardized metric sizes will be substituted. Just what the new sizes will be hasn't been determined, but a number of committees have been set up by various food industries to reach an agreement on this point.

Cooking that food once it gets home will be a little different, too. To begin with, none of the measuring cups and spoons in the kitchen will be exactly the same as the ones most Americans are familiar with. Measuring cups, Thompson said, will not be measured in ounces but will come in 50-, 100- and 250-milliliter sizes. But he also pointed out that 250 milliliters is only slightly larger than what we know as a cup.

And measuring spoons will probably come in five- and 15-milliliter sizes — almost exactly the same sizes as the ones in use now.

Because the sizes of the new utensils won't be radically different, Thompson said, the change will be mostly a matter of learning to think in terms of milliliters rather than ounces.

Once the ingredients are mixed, the cook will find she has a charcoal-black mess on her hands if she tries cooking that casserole at 350 degrees. That's because her stove won't be calibrated in the familiar Fahrenheit temperature scale. It will be marked in degrees Celsius, which uses the freezing point of water as zero degrees and the boiling point as 100 degrees.

Thus, if she wants to cook her casserole at the proper temperature, she will set her oven at 175 degrees.

The new temperature scale will force some changes in ways other than cooking, Thompson pointed out. For example, radio and TV weather reports will be given in degrees Celsius, and people will have to learn that 24 degrees is a very pleasant temperature but that when the mercury climbs to 30 degrees things are starting to get a little uncomfortable.

And a person's normal body temperature won't be 98.6 degrees any more; it will be 37 degrees. Perhaps a word of caution is due here. Parents need to remember that, if they find their child has a temperature of, say, slightly more than 38 degrees, it is cause for alarm. Because a Celsius degree is larger than a Fahrenheit degree, a rise of a little over one degree Celsius represents a rise of about 2½ degrees Fahrenheit. Therefore that 38-degree temperature really represents a temperature of almost 101 degrees Fahrenheit.

For those who want to know how to convert a temperature from Fahrenheit to Celsius, the formula is C equals (F-32) x 5-9. In other words, take the Fahrenheit temperature, subtract 32 from it and multiply the result by five-ninths.

Adjusting to the new weight system can also be misleading. For example, a woman who weighs 55 kilograms (about 121 pounds) may rightfully consider herself pretty trim. But if her weight goes up by two kilograms, she may not realize that is nearly a five-pound jump and probably signals the need for a little dieting.

The metric system is also going to alter the way we buy and make clothes, Thompson said. A man will have to know that his old, familiar 15-35 shirt sizes won't be in stock at his favorite clothing store. Instead he'll have to look for a shirt with a 38-centimeter neck and 90-centimeter sleeves.

Coats, shoes and underwear will also undergo a switch in how they are sized.

Women's clothes will be marked differently, too, but because women's sizes are not currently as standardized as men's, it is taking the women's clothing industry longer to change their size designations.

The woman who likes to make her own clothes is going to have to throw away her old rulers and tape measures, because they are marked in inches, and the patterns she will buy in the future will have directions in centimeters.

However, Thompson said, there will probably be a "grace period" during which patterns will list both English and metric measurements to help the seamstress become familiar with the new system.

Undoubtedly, there will be countless other ways in which Americans are going to have to learn to "think metric." And a number of those will take place when they step into their cars.

Card of Thanks

Words are inadequate to express our thanks and heartfelt gratitude to our many friends and neighbors for the love and kindness shown us in the loss of our beloved mother, Cosie Noel. Especially do we thank those who made sympathy calls, those who sent all the beautiful flowers and those who brought food. A special thank you to Bro. Ervin Darnell for his comforting words, the singers of the South Union Baptist Church for the beautiful songs and music, the pallbearers and to the staff of the Goodwin Funeral Home. You all helped to make our burden a little lighter. May God bless each of you is our prayer.
