Cadiz-Trigg County

A great place to be

By Keith S. Venable

This article was taken from a story Venable wrote for Back Home in Kentucky magazine.

Keith S. Venable, a 1932 graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, spent 42 years as teacher and County Agent, 31 of them beginning in 1943 as Agent in Trigg County.

As County Agent, he wrote Farm Notes, a weekly column for The Cadiz Record. Since retirement in 1974, his column has been called Voice of Venable.

It is a quirk of geography when two great rivers, born in the mountains of Kentucky and Virginia, should start south for their marriage with the sea, then change their minds, turn west then north to meet the Ohio. The routes of these two rivers, the Cumberland and the Tennessee, are side by side when they cross the Kentucky border into Trigg County in southwest Kentucky.

These rivers have shaped the destiny of Trigg County from the beginning, especially the Between-the-Rivers region. Even today, with their valleys becoming Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley, the rivers continue their influence.

The first settlers passed up the fertile red limestone soil of eastern Trigg for the river and creek valleys where wood, water, and game were more plentiful. The eastern part was called the "Barrens," a treeless plain which, some say, Indians burned over to encourage grass for the buffalo.

In the 1780s there were settlers in the Cerulean community and on Dyer, Casey, Donaldson, and Dry creeks. Between the Rivers had settlers shortly after 1800.

Trigg had a population of 3,870 when it became a county in 1820, partitioned from Caldwell and Christian counties. The county was named for Col. Stephen Trigg, "a man of great ability," who came to Kentucky in 1779 as a member of the Court of Land Commissioners. He was killed fighting Indians in the battle of Blue Licks.

The county seat is Cadiz. Why it was named Cadiz is a matter of some conjecture. An expert who has specialized on the origin of names has suggested that in 1816 an important event occurred in Cadiz, Spain, just four years before Cadiz, Kentucky, was named (in 1820) and may have been in the minds of those who named the county seat.

Cadiz, Kentucky, bears little resemblance to Cadiz, Spain, which was founded in 1130 B.C. by the Phoenicians, who called it Gades or "fenced city." In the Residents of Shotgun Hollow community get long-awaited water line

By Janet Freeman

People who live in the Shotgun Hollow community near Canton will soon be able to "take long, hot showers" and "water their flowers."

James Guess, chairman of the Barkley Lake Water District, said the water commission is in the process of putting a water line in the small community. "We had to overcome several obstacles to get the water line put out there," Guess said.

According to Guess, one of the obstacles was a couple of property owners who did not want the water line to go across their land. "We found a way to go around that," he added.

Workers installing the line bypassed the properties whose owners did not approve and put the water line through tall embankments along the roadside.

Boyd Champion, secretary of the commission, said the group "never could get enough easements or right-of-ways, so finally, I guess you could say we went in the hard way."

A few residents in the area did not want a water line in the community, but one person had been trying for more than 10 years to get a hook-up to county water.

Regina Mitcheson, a Trigg elementary school teacher and a resident of Shotgun Hollow, said she had been working since 1974 to get the water line installed. "I went to board meetings and I went to everyone in the community to ask them to fill out easement papers. I tried to go by the rules, but I would always get disappointed," she said.

Mitcheson said that she and her husband built their home in 1974 and had "already begun talking about buying new property because of the water problem."

Mitcheson said she is pleased that the line is now being placed along the hollow. "Now, I can wash my car; I can water my flowers; I can stand out here and water this holler if I want to," she said.

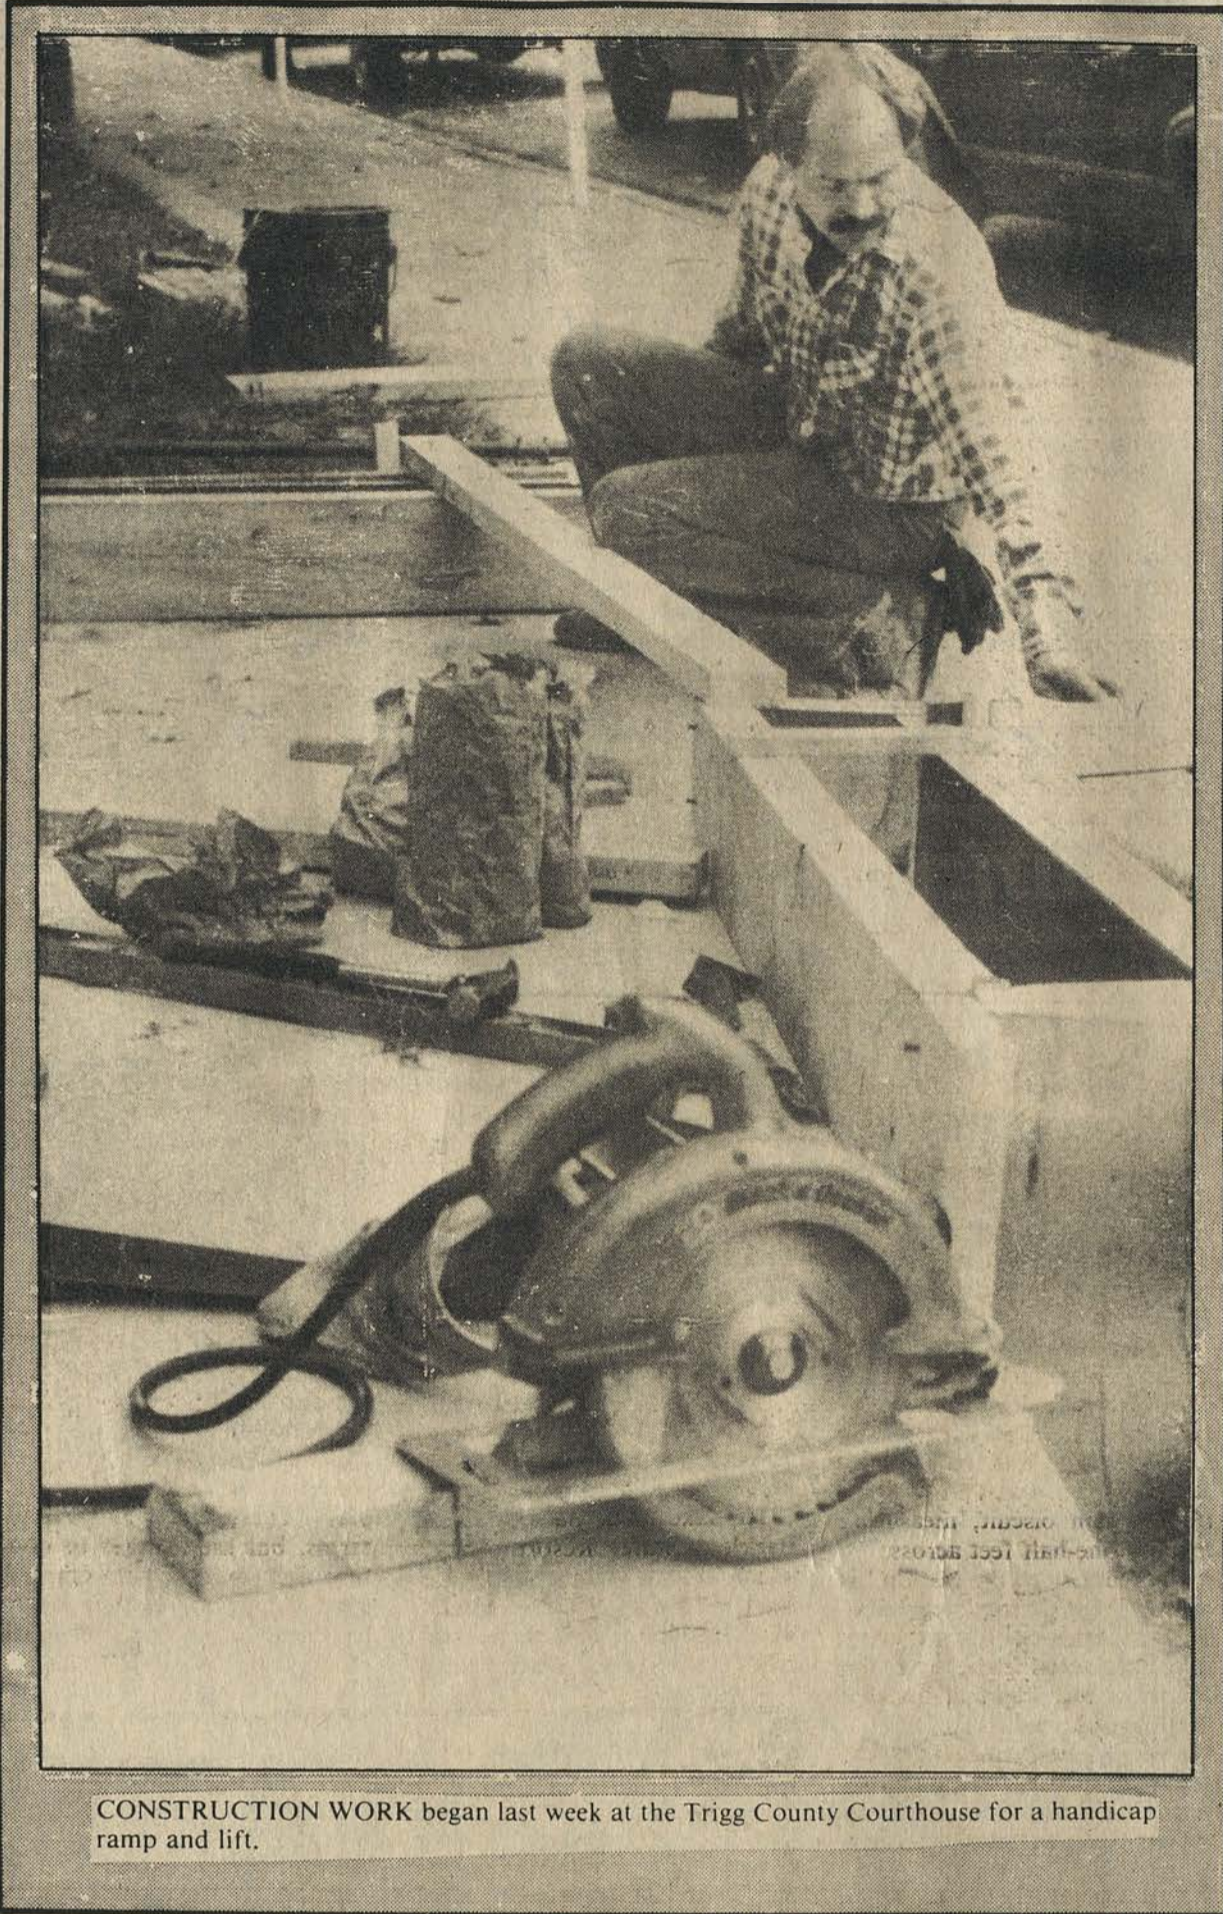

Before the line was installed, Mitcheson's family had to fill water tanks every week to have enough water for clothes, bathing and cooking. She said the expense of county water will be much cheaper than hauling water from the city to the tanks.

Ruth Herndon, also a resident in the Shotgun Hollow area, said her husband hauls water from Cadiz four or five times a week. "The water line is one of the best things that's happened. Our kids love to take showers — long ones. Our cistern just won't hold enough water to last us very long," she said. "Once we're hooked on to the line it'll be so much better for us."

According to Guess the county will have to wait for several years before any profits from the line are made. "It costs a lot to lay these lines and we don't recover the costs right away. It could take years to realize the benefits," he said.

Champion and Guess agree that one of the immediate "side" benefits is that the water line should do away with a pump station that has been in operation for 12 years. "Several people were getting water from a line off of Highway 68, but there was never sufficient pressure to push it back to these people's houses. We had to use a pump station to get pressure for them," Guess said. "This has been costing us, because we have to pay a monthly electric bill for the station," he said.

"I'm glad we could help these people, though. They seem real pleased," Guess said.

CONSTRUCTION WORK began last week at the Trigg County Courthouse for a handicap ramp and lift.

Magistrates examine county jail

By Richard Wimsatt

"The jailer is doing a good job — a very good job," Gene Wright, county magistrate, told the other members of the fiscal court at last week's meeting.

Magistrates were invited for a tour of the jail to see what remodeling had been done. After the inspection, all magistrates agreed that the building was very clean and did not look like the same building.

Judge-Executive Zelner Cossey said the court members visited the jail to inspect the work by Tony Holland, jailer, and by various inmates.

Several months ago the jailer reported specific areas in the jail that were in need of repair. It was at this time when the magistrates moved for the jailer to go ahead with the repairs.

In other jail matters, H.B. Quinn, county attorney, reported that a contract had been signed with Graves County to transfer and to house its male prisoners at the local corrections facility for $12.50 a day, if room is available.

In doing so, Graves County would agree that Trigg County will not be held responsible for medical or dental bills incurred by male prisoners. Graves County also stated that all medical bills would be sent to the state's Finance Department along with other necessary documents.

This contract, as agreed upon by both parties, will remain effective until terminated by either Graves or Trigg County officials upon a 30-day written notice.

Troy Smith, judge-executive of Graves County, and Zelner Cossey of Trigg County both signed the contract. Cossey asked the magistrates to speak out if they disagreed with the contract.

In addition to the Graves County contract, Holland said that he had signed a similar agreement with Calloway County to keep its juvenile prisoners for $15 a day and women prisoners for $12.50 a day.

The signing of the contracts was agreed by the magistrates.

Cossey also reported that Tony DeName had been appointed to the hospital board of trustees and that the handicap ramp and lift were about to begin construction.

In closing, County Attorney H.B. Quinn said that permission was needed from the Fiscal Court magistrates before the Office of Administrative Courts could begin remodeling the circuit courtroom for better sound and cooling. And, he said, under no reason will the county be held responsible for payment of the project.

After a short discussion of the project, the county magistrates moved for the project to begin.

School Board recognizes teacher and businessman

By Richard Wimsatt

A Trigg County High School teacher and a local businessman were recognized by the school board Monday night for their outstanding achievement in education.

Dr. Jack Sanders, chairman of the board, honored Mrs. Carol Alexander with a plaque on behalf of the board for her work in making Trigg County schools known in the state as a leader in the field of biology.

Mrs. Alexander, who will be honored Nov. 20-21 in Lexington by the state's Department of Education, has been named the 1986 Outstanding Biology Teacher in Kentucky. Her recognition was made through the Kentucky unit of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Also receiving an award was Chappel Allen, president of Kentucky Machine and Engineering, Inc. He was honored by Governor Martha Layne Collins in September at the second annual Governor's Conference on School/Community Partnerships.

Allen, who is also a member of the school board, received a special award from Dr. Sanders that was from the governor's office.

Although Allen's Machinist Co-Op project was only one of the successful projects highlighted during the segment at Lexington, it was because of this specific partnership that he was recognized and honored.

Dr. Jim Jackson, superintendent of Trigg County Schools, Dr. Sanders and other members of the board told those attending the meeting what an honor it is to have people like Mrs. Alexander and Allen working with the school system.

Mrs. Alexander and Allen received congratulations from school officials and people attending.

The superintendent then submitted the 1986-87 working budget to the board for approval before submitting it to the department of education. The budget reflects $4,013,093 of the above-the-line receipts; $909,260 for below-the-line receipts;

$431,481.23 for balance on hand to provide total budget receipts of $5,353,834.23, he said. This is an increase of $693,162.23 over last year. The 1985-86 working budget was $4,660,672.

The board submitted its approval after looking over the budget. Before the meeting ended, the board also approved two additional substitute teachers, approved the board members' conference travel, students' contract agreement, and for the next board meeting to be in November.

Hoover Universal earns highest rating

By Janet Freeman

Hoover Universal Inc., of Cadiz, has earned the highest rating available from Ford's automotive division, as well as an award from General Motors.

According to Donnie Holland, plant manager, Ford conducted a quality survey at Hoover about a month ago. He said the Cadiz plant was awarded an excellent rating and qualification for the Ford Q-1 audit, the highest rating available from Ford.

Holland said Hoover has 17 seating plants, and Cadiz is one of only two that has reached this level.

Employees at Hoover spent a year and two months preparing for the Ford survey. According to Holland, extensive training has been conducted during the past year; manufacturing techniques have been changed to improve quality; and, in some instances, new equipment and fixtures were bought to improve product consistency.

Unlike Ford, General Motors uses a 140-point rating system to determine quality performance.

"We were surprised to learn this week that Cadiz received 142 points. Two incentive points were added for superior performance," said Ralph Thomas, quality control manager for the Cadiz plant.

Holland explained that General Motor's point system for quality is based on rules and regulations that are "stringent." "For every reject or defect in a product, they (General Motors) subtract points," Holland said. "We had a perfect score plus the two incentive points, which to us is an honor," he said.

When asked what the top ratings will mean for the plant's future, Holland said, "Well, we will likely get preferential treatment by the motor companies, and first shot at new business. Basically, it will ensure our plant a long-term relationship with the automotive industry if we can continue to achieve these goals.

The county judge's office received a report from the state's Auditor of Public Accounts office last week for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1985.

Mary Ann Tobin, state auditor of public accounts, said the county's financial statements presents a fair account of the assets, liabilities and fund balances arising from cash transactions by the county government.

The report states the county's total assets, liabilities and funds were $363,246 for that year. The assets were broken down in various categories: general fund, $67,685; cash, $50,000; road and bridge fund (cash), $63,721; revenue sharing fund, $38,365;

"It was an honor to receive one of these awards, but two is just great," he said.

County judge's office receives audit local government economic assistance fund, $12,103.

In addition, the county's sheriff's department collected $150,155 from various county taxes, real estate made up the majority of the amount, $120,805.

Other taxes were tangible personal property, intangible personal property, bank shares, fire protection, franchise corporation, supplemental taxes, increased through erroneous assessments, penalties, and fractional pickups.

In her report, Mrs. Tobin said, "As in prior years, we found the county's accounting procedures and compliance policies in good order. We wish to commend the county for its effort and urge that similar efforts be made in the future."

Those serving office in 1985 were Zelner Cossey, county judge; Kenneth Kennedy, county attorney; Virginia Alexander, county court clerk; Rose Freeman, circuit court clerk; Kenneth Oakley, county sheriff; Wilson Dunn, jailer; Berlin Moore Jr., property valuation administrator; Mary Graham, county treasurer; John R. Vinson III, county coroner; Wendell Sholar, magistrate; Rogers Meredith, magistrate; Rex Cain, magistrate; Walter Humphries, magistrate; Plomer Clark, magistrate; Sidney Bryant, magistrate; and Lonnie Bridges, magistrate.

Allen honored by governor and board

Chappel Allen, President of Kentucky Machine and Engineering, Inc., was honored by Governor Martha Lyne Collins at the Second Annual Governor's Conference on School/Community Partnerships in Lexington on Sept. 25. "It was Mr. Allen's interest and involvement in the Trigg County School System's development of a School/Community Partnership that was instrumental in the new Machinist Course being initiated this year at the high school, that won him the distinction of Outstanding Kentuckian Award from the Governor's Office," states Pam Jackson, Machinist Course Supervisor.

CHAPPEL ALLEN, president of Kentucky Machine and Engineering, Inc., left, receives an award from Dr. Jack Sanders, chairman of the Trigg County School Board. The award was given to Allen from the state for his participation in the Partnership program.

Allen attended the conference as part of the School/Community Partnership Team, consisting of: Dr. Jim Jackson, Superintendent of Schools; Skip Pisa, Principal of Trigg County High; and Pam Jackson, High School JTPA Teacher (who are the co-authors in writing and implementing the Machinist Project); Donnie Holland, Manager of Johnson Control-Hoover Plant, as a community industrial representative; and Dr. Jack Sanders, Board of Education Chairman and local business representative.

The Governor's Conference began Wednesday, Sept. 24, at the Radisson in Lexington, where 16 successful school/community partnerships were invited to share with school and community people throughout the Commonwealth how their specific partnerships were initiated and organized. Each of the 16 were assigned a specific room and an arranged time on a presentation schedule so people attending the conference could actually learn how to develop and implement a partnership with their respective community or school.

The Trigg County School/Community Partnership was invited to attend the conference and give a presentation on the many and varied partnerships that the community and school system share. Although the Machinist Co-Op Project was only one of the successful projects highlighted during the Trigg County Segment (explained by way of a slide presentation), it was because of this specific partnership that Allen was recognized and honored.

The Board of Education recognized this Outstanding Kentuckian and the plaque itself, at the Oct. 6 Board Meeting and reiterated the accolades of the Commonwealth's Governor: "that because of the quality of commitment of this community partner, schools are able to achieve and maintain a standard of excellence!"

1500s and 1600s Cadiz, Spain, was the wealthiest city in Europe, for it received the Spanish treasure ships with their plunder of the New World. Today it is filled with museums and art.

The Spanish say "Kadith" with the accent on the first syllable, while we Trigg Countians say "Kadis."

Until the 1960s, agriculture was the chief industry in Trigg County. It provided a living for a much larger population than the 9,300 in the county today. The population had reached around 14,000 in 1870 and remained near that level until 1920.

Dark fired tobacco was the main money crop and met the people's meager cash needs. Most of their living came from things raised on the farm. "My father and mother didn't buy nothing but flour, sugar, salt and coffee," said 92-year-old Bart Futrell.

Dark tobacco did not generate any surplus money, either. It took Trigg County Farmers Bank, established in 1890, 51 years to reach a million dollars in deposits.

Dark fired tobacco is so named because it is a dark heavy leaf cured in tight barns with wood and sawdust smoke.

Trigg County hams gained importance early in this century when merchants began buying hams for shipment over the country. Some early dealers were Chappell and Cowherd, Albert Wallace, Pollard White and Julian Atwood.

In 1967 the country ham business changed drastically when the Federal Government ruled that only hams from federally inspected houses could be shipped interstate. Broadbent

B&B Foods met the regulations and continues to ship thousands of hams each year.

A few hams are still cured the old-fashioned way in country smokehouses. A show of these hams is held each year at the Ham Festival, which started in 1977.

The Ham Festival, held in October, has become a popular event that attracts thousands to the ham show, a parade, various events and booths. In 1985 an extra feature was the world's biggest ham biscuit, measuring ten and one-half feet across.

"A Nursery to the Nation" is one of Trigg County's contributions to America. Almost every state has a son or daughter of the county or one who can trace his roots back here.

Few counties have suffered or, depending on your point of view, benefitted as much from federal and state land purchase as has Trigg County.

The first purchase was 26,043 acres in 1933 for the Kentucky Woodlands Wildlife Refuge . . .

Next was 12,004 acres in 1940 for Kentucky Lake . . .

Camp Campbell took 22,050 acres in 1942 . . .

Lake Barkley took 27,253 acres . . .

From 1964 to 1969, the land remaining in private hands Between the Rivers was purchased by TVA for Land Between the Lakes. This totaled 28,040 acres . . .

A small acreage was needed for Lake Barkley State Park and I-24 . . .

This brings the total land in government hands to 40.9 percent of all the land in Trigg County.

The benefits from Lake Barkley are direct and visible. Land on its eastern shore, where land once sold for $15 to $50 per acre is now dotted with homes valued in the thousands. More important, the "newcomers" who live there are making valuable contributions to the life of the community.

The lake made possible Lake Barkley State Resort Park, which in turn made possible the Barkley Lake Water District with 300 miles of line serving 2,600 customers. Water lines made development possible throughout the county.

Land Between the Lakes (LBL) Recreation Area was planned by men of great vision. LBL, with the help of a capable staff, offers a great variety of attractions — camping, hunting, study programs for youth and adults, an 1850 farm, a theater, a buffalo herd, management programs for wildlife and forests and much more.

Today Trigg County is a nice place to live, to work and to play. There are still well-run farms, but the number of non-farm jobs exceeds farm employment. Many retirees have come to Trigg County for the quality of life they have found there.

Cars, prices

To no one's surprise, domestic car sales have soared in the wake of the most recent round of buyer incentives offered by American auto manufacturers. Prompted by interest rate reductions on new-car loans, ranging from GM's 2.9 percent to AMC's zero percent, customers have flocked to dealer showrooms snapping up surplus 1986 models in record numbers. Indeed, the sales surge is the second-highest in the industry's history, surpassed only by the late September sales boom of 1972.

The self-evident conclusion is that consumers will purchase American cars if the price is right. Why, one wonders, don't domestic car makers heed that conclusion and slash the prices on their 1987 models?

Instead, GM plans to increase the prices on its new models by as much as 5.5 percent. This despite the fact that the nation's largest auto maker has seen its market share slip four percentage points during the last five years. Given the preference of many consumers for foreign cars, there is no reason to expect that GM will regain that lost ground anytime soon.

Estimates are that higher imports coupled with accelerated production from Japanese plants in the United States could add 2 million cars annually to the domestic market by 1990. The blunt truth is that, unless domestic automakers are able to spur greater demand for their cars through lower prices, another wave of plant shutdowns appears inevitable.

U.S. carmakers contend that they cannot cut prices because high production costs squeeze profits. To the contrary. How can they not afford to trim prices so long as the public perceives foreign cars to be superior to the American models and, in many cases, at lower prices?

Price cuts are entirely possible if American car manufacturers will only pare their production costs. GM's California joint venture with Toyota should be instructive, inasmuch as its efficiency level is roughly double that of similar GM plants. The highly successful operation stems from a felicitous combination of lower labor costs, better work methods and higher employee morale.

Detroit would do well to understand that import limits will not protect U.S. auto jobs indefinitely. Put another way, the domestic auto industry must either become more cost efficient and regain the competitive edge or be overwhelmed by the immutable law of supply and demand.

Off and running

Reagan, Bush, Kennedy, Cuomo, Iacocca and Hollings were among the nation's top greyhounds competing in the Great Race of Champions, the World Series of dog racing held recently at Seabrook, N. H.

The races are operated by private enterprise so we suppose the Chinese communists would call the canines "running dogs of capitalism."

American voters could say this is proof positive that politics has gone to the dogs.

One thing is certain, however — in Seabrook, as elsewhere, it was people who cleaned up the mess after the races were over.

So much for the dogs days of summer!

Breakthrough for AIDS

For the growing number of AIDS victims, the dramatic announcement by researchers the other day could not have been more encouraging: An experimental drug called AZT has proved effective in prolonging the lives of some patients and may be available for all AIDS sufferers in about six months.

The developer of the drug, Burroughs Wellcome Co., is working around the clock to produce enough of the drug to treat the nation's estimated 10,000 AIDS sufferers and thousands more with AIDS-related complex.

Congratulations are due the researchers not only for this dramatic breakthrough, but also for the sensitive way with which they announced it and the humane way they carried out the experiment itself.

AIDS is a killer. Few of its victims survive its attack. It weakens their immune systems, robs them of energy, slowly drains them of life. Ultimately, they may die at the hands of a minor infection.

To say that those suffering from this condition are desperate is obvious. The researchers knew this, of course. They watched sadly as 17 patients involved in the experiment suffered this slow death.

And they noticed the trend.

Sixteen of the deaths came among the 137 patients in the control group that received placebos. During that same period, only one death occurred among the 145 patients getting AZT. Some in the group receiving the real drug also reported renewed energy, clearer minds and no more night sweats, fevers or rashes.

Researchers, in conjunction with a review board overseeing the experiment, then agreed the next step was clear: They discontinued the experiment after six months and began administering the drug to all the patients. The company producing it began building up stocks to reach a wider group.

The researchers acted ethically and professionally in an atmosphere charged with emotion.

We congratulate them and wish them well as they continue in their battle to halt the spread of this deadly disease.

Trigg Countians celebrate ham festival

The pig is being glamorized as well as belittled this week as Trigg Countians celebrate the ham festival.

Voice of Venable

By Keith S. Venable

All this benign creature has ever wanted out of life was to be comfortable and have a full stomach. He has learned well the proverb, "eat and be merry for tomorrow you may die."

A pig will go to great lengths to be comfortable. He prefers a clean spot but will lay in a mud hole if necessary. In winter he will dig a shallow hole and pile up with his fellows to keep warm.

The hog is perhaps the most intelligent of the farm animals. If given the chance he will push the proper button to get a comfortable temperature.

In early days, hogs ran at large in the woods, living on mast (acorns or chestnuts) and other things. Trigg hog numbers reached 32,000 in 1850, a level not reached since.

In winter hogs were driven to Canton and other points on the Cumberland for sale to men who cured the pork to sell perhaps to Southern planters.

Pork was the principal meat source of Trigg families until a few years ago when beef and chicken became more plentiful. Most every farm had a few hogs for the family meat supply.

In 1945 hogs were sold from 800 farms. Today there are only a few dozen in the hog business. The change started in the 1960s with the introduction of "pig parlors," sheds with concrete floors.

Today's hog no longer roots for a living. He has scientific ancestors, eats a scientific diet, lives out his life in a special building, and never has a birthday for he goes to market at five to six months of age. He also has 30 percent less fat than his forefathers.

Today's pig is in very skilled hands. For example: brothers Robert K. Broadbent and Smith Broadbent III with their father, Smith Broadbent Jr., raise hundreds of hogs and cure their hams for shipment across America. Two other producers with special skills are Dr. Wayne McAtee and Dr. Joyce McAtee, who received their degree in animal nutrition from Iowa State University.

Another example of modern pig technology is Craig Stone, son of John and Mabel Stone of Blue Springs Shores.

Craig got a degree in animal behavior from Southern Illinois University. He is now with Pig Improvement Company (PIC) in Simpson County. PIC is a British company specializing in improved breeding stock. They recently charted a 747 to fly a load of pigs to China.

A cover of National Geographic shows a Chinese farmer and his wife holding two pigs, perhaps from PIC.

What puts "festival" to ham is that special aroma and flavor that comes to ham after aging. We cannot give the pig credit, for it happens after he has departed this life. We must credit the flavor to fellows with a special skill — like Pink Guier Jr., Plomer Wilson, Boyce Braboy, Robbie Flood, Douglas Freeman and many more.

Ham festival off to good start

Ham festival week got off to a successful beginning Monday night with a first-time Oink Talent Contest. June Perry, owner of Hamtown Restaurant and sponsor of the show, scheduled the event so that everyone of all ages could participate.

Fireplace Chat

By Richard Wimsatt

June welcomed all the guests and participants as they entered and found a seat. Finding a seat became difficult as more than 100 people attended.

Bill Thomas, festival's

president-elect, and his wife Brenda were also at the show. Bill was the master of ceremony and kept the show moving on schedule.

It became evident that after nine months of careful planning, the Trigg County Country Ham Festival Committee and the merchants have worked together to put on one of the finest festivals in the Commonwealth.

One should realize that planning for a festival as large as this takes many hours of hard work by each member of the committee. All residents in the county were asked to take part in organizing the programs, which resulted in new ideas and activities.

As president of the committee that approves various activities and programs, Patsy Broadbent has projected an excellent week of festivities.

The committee appears to have the upper hand in making the festival a successful event year after year and should be complimented for its hard work and dedication to the city and county. The members are Patsy Broadbent, Mike Ice, Bill and Brenda Thomas, Polly Bullard, George Bleidt, John Fourqurean, Beck Wilson, Robert Dunnagan, Sarah Neighborgall, Jimmy Hart and Mike Roby.

The country ham festival, one of the major events in western Kentucky, attracts thousands of people each year from Tennessee, Illinois and Indiana.

Mrs. Pageant Free press serves free people

To the editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the sponsors and contestants who have and will again participate and support the Mrs. Ham Festival Pageant. The proceeds go for scholarships for Trigg County students. This scholarship gives a deserving student that little extra that it so often takes to get by with the rising cost of college tuition and books.

I am a second-year nursing student at Hopkinsville Community College. In 1985, I was a recipient of this scholarship and am very grateful for the extra help that it gave me.

So when a member of the Lake Barkley Business and Professional Womens Club calls on you to be a sponsor or a contestant, please say yes. It is the extra funds for some deserving Trigg County student that will make it just a little easier for him or her to attend college.

To the editor:

National Newspaper Week, Oct. 5-11, is an ideal time to thank you and your staff for your contributions to western Kentucky.

This year's theme, "A Free Press Serves A Free People," is particularly appropriate as a reminder to all of us of the importance of our media in maintaining our American way of life.

A dedication ceremony Friday, Oct. 7, saw the official opening for use of the Trigg County Hospital's $1,782 Helipad donated by the Cadiz Lions Club. Though the project was nearly a month in the planning, it took only two days to construct.

Army personnel from Fort Campbell flew a MAST helicopter in to Trigg County and landed on the new pad for the dedication.

State Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts has announced that a contract for building a 3.2-mile connector between the Western Kentucky Parkway and Interstate 24 in Lyon County will be let in late November of this year.

The connector will link the US 62 interchange near Eddyville with a yet-to-be-built interchange which will serve I-24 near Cadiz. It will be constructed as a four-lane, limited-access highway.

According to the latest government report, the number of local residents receiving monthly retirement checks through Social Security continues to rise.

More than ever before, some 1,933 persons locally are presently getting payments.

PrimaCare expands in Cadiz

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky has scheduled a comparative public hearing on proposals from Warren County and Lyon County health care facilities.

PrimaCare II, Eddyville, proposes to expand its home health service to residents of Christian, Trigg and Hopkins counties. No capital expenditure is involved.

According to its proposal, PrimaCare Home Health Services, Bowling Green, would expand its services to residents of Calloway, Graves, McCracken, Marshall, Mulenberg, Ohio, Hart, Metcalfe, Monroe, Grayson, Barren and Cumberland counties. No capital expenditure is involved.

The hearing is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Oct. 7 in the second floor board room, Department for Health Services building, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort.

The hearing will be conducted by the three members of the commission.

Waterland board meeting held

The Kentucky's Western Waterland Executive Board met Thursday with Tennessee Valley Authority General Manager W. F. Willis and other TVA officials in an attempt to reach an understanding regarding commercial sales in Land Between the Lakes.

Following widespread rumor that commercial services would soon be extensively expanded within the boundaries of this National Recreation and Demonstration area, KWW recently urged the agency to respond to these reports.

General Manager Willis assured this group that the commercial sales initiated this summer would be reevaluated, and would not be expanded without full public awareness and comment. He further stated that innovative ways must be found to supplement the LBL budget. These innovative ideas, he said, would not necessarily be of a commercial nature.

A series of public meetings will be scheduled by TVA during the upcoming winter months to review TVA proposals and receive input from the surrounding community.

Kentucky's Western Waterland is a non-profit tourism promotion organization which represents the private sector of the tourism industry in the eight Kentucky counties which surround Land Between the Lakes. Taiwan to buy $20 million in products

"It's a truly great day for Kentucky." That is how Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture David E. Boswell Tuesday characterized the signing of contacts by a delegation from Taiwan to buy nearly $20 million worth of Kentucky farm products.

Commissioner Boswell had a principal role in Tuesday's opening of bids of hundreds of thousands of tons of soybeans, corn and burley, and was involved in the subsequent signing of contracts by Kentucky and Taiwanese officials.

Kentucky is one of 17 states and the District of Columbia which was on the Taiwanese group's "Buy American" itinerary during its three weeks in the United States. The $19.4 million Kentucky purchase is the third largest expenditure incurred by the China External Trade Development Council during this trip.

Commissioner Boswell joined with Gov. Martha Layne Collins, during breakfast and luncheon ceremonies, in inviting the delegation to return to Kentucky next year for a longer stay. The 27-member trade group was in Kentucky less than 24 hours. "Some of our Chinese friends commented that our welcoming ceremonies for them resembled a wedding party," Boswell remarked Tuesday. "I believe there is a great deal of truth in that, because we want our friends from Taiwan to look upon Kentucky as a source of trade in the United States with which they intend to have a lasting relationship.

Tuesday's contract signing featured the sale of 120 metric tons of Kentucky burley tobacco for $800,000; 54 thousand metric tons of soybeans from Kentucky producers for $10.8 million; and 99,000 metric tons of Kentucky corn for $7.8 million.

Both Boswell and Gov. Collins stressed that the products purchased were produced in Kentucky, and that they hoped these kinds of sale contracts would lead to other very beneficial trade agreements involving additional Kentucky farm goods and manufactured products. "This trade relationship comes at an especially critical time for Kentucky farmers," said Commissioner Boswell. "A time when the current farm recession and recent drought have combined to create even more difficulty for an already highly stressed industry.

These kinds of Kentucky farm sales can really be a shot in the arm for our producers," he added.

Contracts were signed Tuesday, after the opening of more than two dozen bids, for 86 metric tons of tobacco from Hail and Cotton Inc., of Louisville;

John Morton Jr. elected to Board of Directors

The Pennyryle Board of Realtors held its monthly meeting and annual election, Sept. 18 at the Port O' Call Restaurant in Cadiz.

Local Realtor John P. Morton Jr. was unanimously elected to serve on the Board of Directors for a three-year term, effective Jan. 1, 1987.

Morton has been associated with Lynn Waller, Realtor since 1982 and has been a member of the Pennyryle Board of Realtors since that time. From 1973 to 1980 he was owner-manager of the Speedway Gas Company here, and served as consultant to the Public Service Commission in Frankfort.

He moved to Trigg County in 1973, after making his home in Princeton prior to coming Cadiz.

PTA membership drive launched

The Trigg County Elementary School P.T.A. recently launched a successful membership drive which resulted in 301 parents and grandparents supporting the school.

The winners of the P.T.A. membership contest for each grade were: Kindergarten — Mrs. Cameron's T-Th class; 1st — Mrs. Landers; 2nd — Miss Hendricks; 3rd — Mrs. Lawrence; 4th — Mr. Eagleson; and 5th — Mrs. Wallace. Mrs. Wallace's class also had the most grandparents to enroll. Dairy Queen tokens were given to each winning class. The winner of the country ham given away at the Trigg-Murray game was Connie Herndon.

The Trigg County Elementary P.T.A. would like to thank the following sponsoring merchants for their support: Bank of Cadiz, Trigg County Farmers Bank, Broadbent B & B Food Products, Dairy Queen, Cadiz IGA, Sivills' United Food Center, and Economy Cee Bee.

34 metric tons of burley leaf from G. F. Evanville, In., 66,000 metric tons of corn from Cargill Inc., of Louisville and 54,000 metric tons of soybeans from Peavey Co. Inc., of Henderson.

Present for the signing ceremonies and farewell luncheon Tuesday were representatives of the Kentucky General Assembly, members of the Governor's cabinet, the Kentucky Board of Agriculture, the

Kentucky Council on Agriculture, the Kentucky State Fair Board, the Soybean Producers Association, the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-Op Association, the Kentucky Farm Bureau; the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association; the Kentucky Pork Producers Association; the

Hite, Butts are wed at Edgewood Baptist

Lezlie Hite and David Wayne Butts were married at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27, at Edgewood Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Reed Hite, Gracey. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Butts of Cadiz.

The ceremony

The Revs. E. D. Helton and Mark E. King officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Milton Marshall, Mrs. Lyndall Shirk, pianists; Mrs. John David Lile, organist; Mrs. Mark E. King, flutist; Mrs. Paul Marshall, solist; and Paul Marshall, trumpeter. Selections included; "Ave Maria," "Praise to the Lord Almighty," "Joyful, We adore Thee" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Sanctuary decorations included Boston ferns flanking the altar, a 15-branch brass candelabra and two seven-branch brass candelabras graced the altar. Baptistry windows were banked with Boston ferns. The church planter was enhanced with English ivy and three large hurricane globes, over burning ivory candles. Windows held English ivy and ivory candles in small hurricane globes. Family pews were marked by ivory satin bows.

The bride

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a formal gown of ivory chiffon and taffeta, trimmed in Alencon beaded and re-embroidered lace. The Basque bodice was covered in front and back with beaded and re-embroidered Alencon lace, featuring an off-the-shoulder look, with a sweetheart neckline.

The leg-o-mutton sleeves with cuffs of re-embroidered Alencon lace and pearls ended in lily points on the back of the hand. The skirt featured softly gathered panels of chiffon over taffeta with Alencon lace scallops around the hem of the gown which ended in a semi-

Cathedral length train. Her ensemble was completed by a halo of ivory silk flowers over a finger tip veil of illusion with a blusher.

She carried a bouquet of gardenias, baby's breath, stephanotis and trailing ivy.

The attendants

Mr., Mrs. David Wayne Butts

Mrs. Paul Marshall, Nashville, Tn., was matron of honor, and Vickie Hogan of Princeton was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Bonnie Workman of Paducah, and Dannelle Thomas of Missouri.

Attendants wore tea length gowns of ivory Baroque taffeta featuring off-the-shoulder look with sweetheart necklines, puffed sleeves and teal taffeta sashes. Bouquets were pink, yellow and white roses, German stative, ivy and baby's breath.

Ushers were Ricky Butts and Van Golmont. Programs were distributed by Mark Butts and Jeff Henault.

The reception

The reception, hosted by the bride's parents, immediately followed the ceremony in the church's fellowship hall.

Serving tables were covered with ivory tablecloths and the hall was decorated with pink tapers in silver candlesticks in hurricane globes surrounded by ivy.

The four-tier wedding cake was made by Mrs. Albert R. Finley Sr. of Hopkinsville. It featured ivory butter cream frosting with praline filling. A miniature bouquet of roses and baby's breath was on the top layer, and ivy encircled the base.

The bridegroom's table featured a chocolate sheet cake with the Atlanta Braves emblem on the top.

Serving were Mrs. Jean H. Henault, Mrs. Victor Armall, Mrs. Ricky Ahart, Mrs. Glenn Samford, Mrs. Mike Hite and Mrs. Ray Fowler, all of Hopkinsville.

After a wedding trip to West Palm Beach, Fl., the couple will reside at Princeton.

Wester family first permanent settlers in Linton area.

Decades before the first white men crossed the mountain ranges separating Kentucky from the Atlantic seaboard, Creeks, Shawnees, Cherokees and Chickasaws roamed the game-filled hills and bottomlands of the river known to the Indians as the Shawnee.

The name lasted until 1748 when Englishman Dr. Thomas Walker 'discovered' a new river and named it for the Duke of Cumberland. Behind Walker, other white men began pouring through the Cumberland Gap which was also named for the Duke. But Walker had not been the first of European descent to visit the beautiful river basin. French coureurs de bois had been trapping the creeks and the river itself perhaps as early as the 1600's! The first known permanent settler was Frenchman Timothy De Monbruen, who came to the Cumberland on hunting and trapping trips as early as 1769 from the area around Kaskaskia on the Mississippi River in Illinois.

The first permanent settlers in the Linton area was the Wester family from North Carolina. It had been the first state to send surveyors to lay out grants of land for its continental Army soldiers who had served in the Revolutionary War. A private could receive 640 acres, a sergeant 1,000 acres, a lieutenant 2,550 acres and a captain could expect 3,840 acres! By 1830, the countryside around Linton and across the river on Crockett and Pryor Creeks had been fairly well settled.

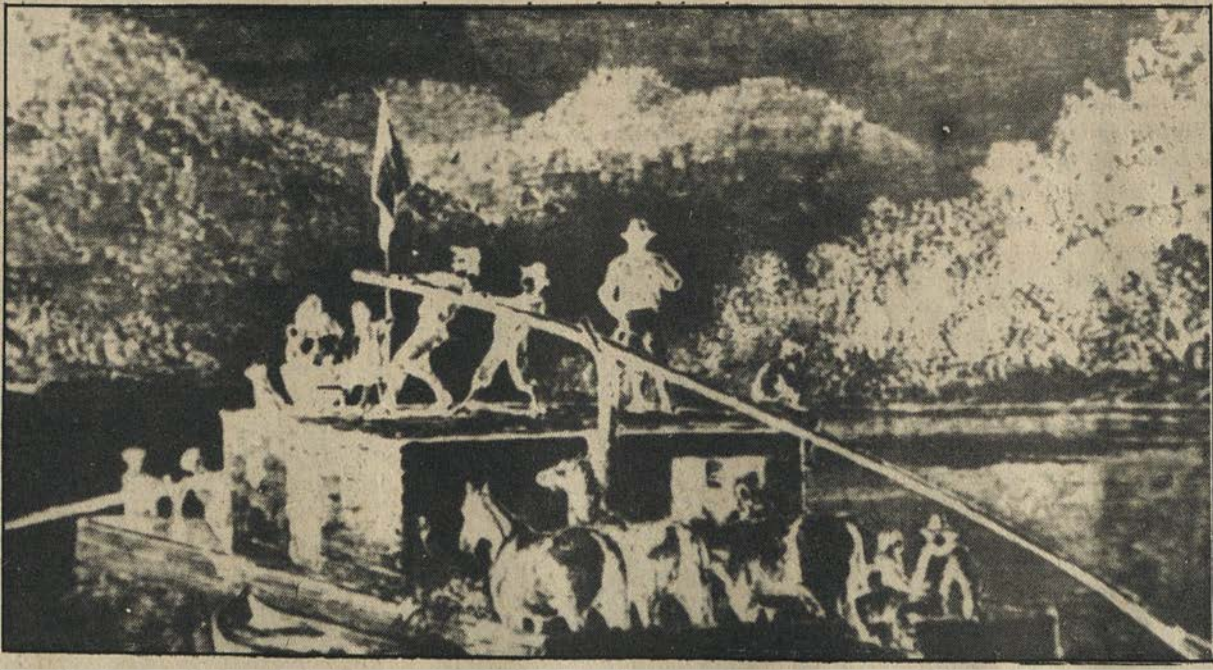

In 1835, a landing was established at the mouth of Dry Creek for the steamboats that had been operating on the Cumberland since 1818. A ferry was also established and for five cents, a rider on horseback would be taken across while a wagon with four horses or oxen demanded 25 cents! The arrival of a steamboat was the social event of the week for Trigg Counties just as it was up and down the river in the more isolated communities.

Traditional forms of river commerce gave way to ironclad gunboats in 1861 as the Cumberland River played a pivotal part in Union strategy to attack the Confederacy. U.S. Grant steamed by Linton on his way to Fort Donelson and his first measure of fame.

After the war, river traffic once again became more traditional and steadily increasing. A burgeoning hardwood lumber industry developed and rafts of logs were floated downstream to Paducah. Timber had always been a valuable by-product along the Cumberland River for home heat, firing the great iron furnaces, powering wood-hungry steamboats or simply running off a batch of 'shine'. Prohibition in the 20's sparked a proliferation of stills that soon became a cash crop for many. The practice was well known because the distillation of liquor had been introduced over a hundred years earlier by Shadrack Futrell who built a distillery on Donaldson Creek. The repeal of prohibition in 1933 forecast the demise of the local producer — for the most part.

Commerce on the river changed again in the 60's when the Corps of Engineers constructed Barkley Dam, 33 miles from the courtesy float and parking lot in anticipation of the hundreds of 'new' boaters encouraged by the development of a 57,920-acre lake. The multiple-purpose project is a key unit in the coordinated plan for development of the Cumberland Basin's water resources.

In the last few years, other improvements have been made to the Linton Recreation Area — a swimming beach, comfort station, playground equipment, ball field and picnic shelter. The picnic shelter may be reserved for group picnics and family reunions by contacting the Resource Manager's Office in Grand Rivers (1-362-4236).

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By T. P. Alexander

Renewal of a Covenant (Joshua 24:1, 14-24)

"The Lord, our God, will we serve, and His voice will we obey." (Joshua 24:24)

Last week's lesson concerned God's law declaring the years of sabbatical and Jubilee; a celebration of justice. From that point in Israel's history until the setting for today's lesson much had happened.

At the foot of Mt. Sinai God had welded the Israelites into a nation, a priestly nation, a people set aside to His service. Henceforth they would be a holy nation, whose actions would be governed by God's laws and God's will.

Moses then led the people to the edge of Canaan — the land which God had promised to them. Here they hesitated, and because of lack of faith in the Lord, refused to go into the land and possess it. For this, God declared that they would wander forty years in the wilderness.

After forty years of wandering, they again approached Canaan, but this time from the southeast, through the lands belonging to the Amorites and Moabites. God gave the Israelites victory over these nations.

At this point they were encamped on the east of the Jordan River, opposite the city of Jericho. Moses had died, and the leadership passed to Joshua who, along with Caleb, were the only adults to survive the exodus and the wilderness wandering. Joshua led the people across the Jordan River and God gave Jericho into their hands.

The land of Canaan was inhabited by various tribes of people. God gave the land to Israel — but the Israelites had to move against the various tribes and possess the land through force, trusting God to give them victory. What a lesson this would be for people of God, in any century, including our own.

God's almighty power is the same today — His will and purpose is the same. God says to us in essence, step forward in faith and obedience.

After conquering the tribes and securing the land in the immediate area, Joshua divided all the land of Canaan between the tribes of Israel. By now Joshua had aged and he was ready to step down from leadership. There was one thing left which he wanted to do — lead Israel in a renewal of their covenant relationship with God.

Israel Called Before God (Joshua 24:1)

"And Joshua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem. And called for the elders of Israel, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers, and they presented themselves before God."

Joshua was about to make a farewell address to the people. He called them to a formal gathering; a solemn assembly. They presented themselves before God, and God would witness the words spoken on this occasion.

It would be a time of remembrance, too. They would remember the covenant made with Abraham. They would remember God's mighty works when Moses led them from the Egyptian Pharaoh's bondage and the crossing of the Red Sea. They would remember that God had fed them in the wilderness, and all the times God had delivered them from their enemies.

This was a time of remembrance, as well as a time of covenant renewal. When we Christians observe the Lord's Supper today it is also a time of remembrance and renewal.

The Crucial Choice (Joshua 24:14-24)

In the intervening verses, Joshua recited to the people some of the significant events of their past. Then Joshua issued a challenge, "Now therefore, fear the Lord and serve Him in sincerity and truth," (verse 14); and again in verse 15, "Choose you this day whom you will serve."

The people answered, "We will serve the Lord; for He is our God."

Taul, Davis exchange vows at Corinth Baptist

Sandra Fay Taul and Robert Lynn Davis Jr. were married Saturday, Aug. 16, at the Corinth Baptist Church in McQuady.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice P. Taul of McQuady. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis Sr. of Cadiz.

The ceremony
Rev. John Meaders officiated the double-ring ceremony. Music for the ceremony was performed by Cheryl Schuchardt who accompanied herself on the piano. Selections included "O Promise Me" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Sharing in the lighting of a unity candle were Mrs. Hager Miller Sr., Hardinsburg; Pat Taul, McQuady; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Brandon, Belleville, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edwards, Van Wert, Ohio; and the parents of the bride and groom.

The bride
Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor-length white satin gown. The southern belle-style gown had an organza applique overlay accented with rows of organza ruffles on the bottom and around the scallop in the back. It featured a v-neck bodice, accented with Italian hand-embroidered and beaded lace. Leg-o-mutton sleeves of organza were covered with rows of rufflorals, as was the cathedral-length train which was dropped from the v-shaped waistline in back. The fingertip veil of tulle was fastened to a beaded and ruffled crown. She carried a bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and gardenias.

The attendants
Linda Knott, friend of the bride, was matron of honor. Attendants were Pearl Standifer, the bride's sister, and Jill Taul, the bride's niece. All are from McQuady. The flower girl was Sarah Vibbert of Baltimore, Md., niece of the bride. They all wore matching purple satin gowns and white baby's breath in their hair.

The groom chose Eric Smith as his best man. Daniel Papajski, friend, and Nolan Davis, brother of the groom, served as groomsmen. All are from Cadiz. Tom Knickelbein of Cadiz and Junie Miller of McQuady served as ushers. Jeremy Taul, McQuady, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

The reception
Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The three-tier wedding cake was decorated with purple lilacs. Nancy Taul, Jenny Owen and Lee Ann Hayes served at the reception. Tammi Ward, cousin of the bride, assisted at the guest register.

The couple resides in Laramie, Wyo., where the groom attends the University of Wyoming.

Pre-nuptial events
A bridal shower was given by Shelia Taul, sister-in-law of the bride.

A going-away party for the groom was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Herndon and Rebecca Herndon at the Cadiz Restaurant.

The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's family in the McQuady Baptist Church fellowship hall.

Kentucky Senior Olympics is in planning stage

Plans are on the drawing board for the first Kentucky Senior Olympics in the spring of 1987, and in the meantime the celebration planners would like Kentuckians to do a bit of drawing themselves.

The Kentucky Senior Olympics Steering Committee is sponsoring a contest to find the most appropriate logo for the games.

The winning artist will be awarded a weekend for four at the Kentucky state park of his or her choice.

"The committee has been receiving ideas from around the state for contests to be included in the Senior Olympics, so a decision was made to go ahead and seek suggestions on an overall symbol for the event," said Prudence Moore, director of the Cabinet for Human Resources Division of Aging Services.

The Division of Aging Services is providing staff support to the Kentucky Senior Olympics Steering Committee.

According to Moore, the goal of a senior olympics is to spotlight the talents and the resources of the most mature citizens of Kentucky. "What we're looking for in a winning logo is something that represents the continuing potential for achievement by senior citizens," she said.

All entries must be postmarked by Nov. 1, 1986, and should be submitted to: Senior Olympics Logo, c/o Ms. Linda Napier, Division of Aging Services, Cabinet for Human Resources, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, KY 40621.

Drawings may be in color or black-and-white on 8 1/2- by 11-inch white paper or poster board.

Fourshee attends leadership conference

A Cadiz woman attended a national family community leadership conference in Denver recently.

Kaye Fourshee, vice-president of the Kentucky Extension Homemakers, was one of six from Kentucky who reviewed an innovative volunteer program focusing on public issues that affect families and communities. About 250 representatives of 48 states and Guam attended.

Participants in a six-state Family Community Leadership program sponsored by Cooperative Extension and state Extension Homemaker councils reported on the progress of this new volunteer program initiated in their states.

Family Community Leadership programs began in 1981 with the support of a $2.8 million W.K. Kellogg Foundation grant to Cooperative Extension and state Extension Homemakers Councils in Alaska, Colorado, Hawaii, New Mexico, Oregon and Washington.

The program's goal is to help women and other family members develop leadership skills necessary to become more involved in public policy questions that affect families, said Fourshee.

"The approach is to involve volunteers in intensive training programs along with Cooperative Extension faculty," Fourshee said. "They, in turn, agree to donate time in which they use their training to teach skills to others in their communities."

An evaluation of the program by Montana State University found that people trained in the program became more involved in community and public affairs.

George Washington Carver left his mark in the scientific community. He was born a slave. After the Emancipation Proclamation, he was freed and decided to go to college. He received his degree from Tuskegee University. Upon graduation, he was invited to remain at the school and teach. He agreed to do so and worked for a salary of $125 a month for the rest of his life. Both Henry Ford and Thomas Edison tried to get him to come work with them. Others offered him as much as $100,000 a year to leave, but he would kindly refuse. He believed it was God's will for him to stay in the South and help develop its agricultural commerce. At his death this simple epitaph was put on his tombstone: "He could have added fame to fortune, but caring for neither, he found happiness and honor in being helpful to the world."

What kind of disciple does Jesus want you and me to be? He wants us to be like him. One word that well describes the Son of Jesus is "minister." Listen to His words: "For even the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." Mark 10:45. A minister is a servant.

We need to keep our eyes and ears open to opportunities before us. Paul wrote: "As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men, especially unto them who are of the household of faith." Galatians 6:10. An opportunity to minister to someone could open the door leading them to Christ or give the gift of encouragement to a brother or sister in need.

There is a reward for us in serving. Remember the words of Jesus: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts 20:35. When we help someone, we are really helping ourselves! To share with someone is to experience joy and happiness in life. Someone once said, "We are not put on this earth to see through one another, but to see one another through." That's why we are here!

Today, look for an opportunity and go out and minister to someone in the name of the Lord. Just as Carver found happiness and honor in serving, so can we!

McConnell agrees to nominate Rehnquist

Sen. Mitch McConnell joined the majority in the Senate last week in confirming the nomination of William Rehnquist as the next Chief Justice of the United States.

"It is the duty of the Senate to confirm judicial nominees based on qualifications, not on political beliefs," McConnell said. "Justice Rehnquist is highly qualified to lead our nation's highest court and perform his duties with distinction. The vote shows a large majority of my colleagues agree with me."

McConnell, who sits on the Judiciary Committee which reviewed Rehnquist's qualifications at length, also added his personal endorsement of Justice number of birds in this area alone averages 60 per year, with the highest ever recorded being 117.

The poles, along with the manpower and equipment to set them in the ground, were donated by the Jackson Purchase Rural Electric Cooperative, which Davis said was instrumental in aiding with the project. The perches are designed to give the eagles a choice of which structure they prefer. Biologists will observe the eagle to determine the most suitable type of perch, and a total of 50'60 will be placed in the area.

Davis said two older dams (52 and 53) on the Ohio are scheduled to be replaced in the mid-1990s with construction of a new lock and dam. In the construction, an additional 11 acres will be added to the bank where the perches will be erected. This extra land will serve as a buffer between the eagles and human activity on the river. Davis said nesting becomes, it is less likely one detrimental incident, like poisoning, will wipe out the entire species.

"Our first goal is for this nest to be successful," said Davis, "then to work to see the environment remains productive for other eagles to nest and winter."

Kentucky scores higher than national Nationally, about 1 million students took the SAT this year. The national verbal average was 431, and the national math average was 475, the same scores as last year, the College Board reported.

The average scores of Kentucky students taking the test were 52 points higher than the national average on the verbal section and 44 points higher on the math section, McDonald noted.

"We recognize that average scores are higher in states where fewer students take the SAT," McDonald said. "In general, these are students with strong academic backgrounds who are seeking entrance or scholarships from some of the nation's most selective colleges."

McDonald noted that national scores on the SAT have shown a gradual decline over the past 20 years, reflecting an increase in the number of students taking the test and a growing proportion of females with less preparation in math.

"In the decline we see this year, Kentucky is just catching up with a national and regional trend that began several years ago," she said. "Nationally, the figures are beginning to level off from this change in the test-taking population, and we can expect to see that same thing happen with Kentucky's scores in the next few years."

The score differences also point up a need to encourage more girls to take the tougher math courses in high school and to strengthen their overall preparation in math, she said.

On the Math portion of the test, male students in Kentucky outscored females by 542 to 497.

$1,000 to First Amendment Essay winner

In an effort to focus national attention on the importance of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, Kentucky writers are invited to submit essays on the value of the First Amendment to American business.

Phillip Morris Magazine is sponsoring the contest which will award $1,000 to the best essay submitted from Kentucky. The state's winning entry will then be judged with top essays from 49 other states for a national first place award of $15,000. The second place national prize is $7,500; third place is $5,000; fourth place is $2,500. The best essays will be published in national publications.

Citing the purpose of the contest, Guy Smith IV, Vice President-Corporate Affairs for Philip Morris U.S.A. and publisher of Philip Morris Magazine, said, "A real threat exists today to commercial free speech in this country. The husbandry of the First Amendment has been the occupation of writers and scholars, journalists and politicians. But it has also drawn the grateful attention of business leaders as it protected the country's commercial words, promising as it does that flow of information about goods and services will not be damned by government or by mindless interpretation of what deserves to be heard."

Essays must be received by Philip Morris Magazine by Jan. 1, 1987. The documents must be less than 2,500 words and include reference to the following topics: 1) censorship of expression in American life; 2) defense of the first amendment's application to American business; and 3) the negative ramifications of a ban on cigarette advertising.

The contest, which will be judged by an independent panel, is open to anyone 21 years of age or older and not a Philip Morris employee. The typed essays should be submitted directly with the author's name and address to Philip Morris Magazine, 120 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 110017.

Philip Morris Magazine is a quarterly publication circulated to approximately 1.5 million individuals in the United States.

Senate passes anti-drug abuse bill

Emphasizing that government programs cannot take the place of support groups such as the family, school and church, Sen. Mitch McConnell (R-Ky) recently joined the majority in the Senate in approving a $1.4 billion anti-drug abuse bill.

"We need stronger penalties for drug dealers and better tools to catch them," said McConnell. "This bill addresses these needs and also provides aid for treatment and prevention programs. But over the long run, we need strong anti-drug attitudes. Families and other support groups must join in if this bill is to make a difference."

The Senate vote followed

House approval of an anti-drug bill costing more than double the Senate bill.

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Martha Layne Collins, Governor
Honorable Zelner Cossey, County Judge/Executive
Members of the Trigg County Fiscal Court

We have examined the statement of assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Trigg County as of June 30, 1985, and the related statement of cash receipts, cash disbursements, and changes in cash balances for the year then ended. We also examined the Sheriff's settlement — 1984 taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1985. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards and, accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The county does not maintain a general fixed asset group of accounts. Therefore, our examination could not include this group of accounts.

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statute (KRS) 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, except for the exclusion of the general fixed asset account group, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Trigg County at June 30, 1985, and its cash receipts and disbursements, and the Sheriff's 1984 taxes charged, collected, and distributed during the year then ended, in conformity with the accounting system described above, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

The accompanying additional information, provided on Schedules A through C, is not necessary for a fair presentation of the financial statements, but is presented as additional analytical data. This information has been subjected to the tests and other auditing procedures applied in the examination of the financial statements mentioned above and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state and federal laws and regulations including federal revenue sharing requirements enumerated in the Commentary on the Audit Requirements of the 1980 Amendments to the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act issued by the Office of Revenue Sharing. Unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state and federal laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in compliance.

As in prior years, we found the county's accounting procedures and compliance policies in good order. We wish to commend the county for its effort and urge that similar efforts be made in the future.

Yours for a better Kentucky,
Mary Ann Tobin
State Auditor of Public Accounts

The above transmittal letter accompanied the audit report presented to fiscal court and is published pursuant to KRS 43.090(2).

Copies of the complete audit report are available upon request by contacting the State Auditor of Public Accounts, Suite 158, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

The tour will feature the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Thomas, Streetland Drive; Mr. and Mrs. J.F. Ricks, Streetland Drive; Mrs. Betty Fitts, Main Street; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brame, Highway 272. Refreshments will be served during the tour hours at the Cadiz-Trigg County Tourist Center on Main Street.

Admission for the tour is $3 per person. Tickets may be purchased from any club member.

This house, the third that the family has built, has six large, combined rooms that were designed for comfort and to be lived in.

The functional kitchen features an island in the center with a grill and burners. One of Mrs. Thomas' hobbies is growing plants and she uses them throughout her home, including the kitchen.

The dining room features light blue walls and beige carpeting. On the walls are a still-life of fruit and wine and three tole paintings of Gothic scenes.

The oak table, with six matching chairs, has a centerpiece of silk flowers in a pewter bowl and pewter candlesticks.

Through an arch from the dining room is what the Thomas family calls the "great room." Against one wall is a tea cart, holding a brass candelabrum.

The beige carpeting accents pale tan walls. In the room are a burnt orange recliner and a pine end table with a glass lamp. A matching lamp is on the cherry occasional table.

The dining room and great room feature light blue curtains with silk-screened blinds.

The plant room, off from the master bedroom, lives up to its name. There are many hanging plants and even a tree. Mrs. Thomas also has a pineapple plant which she rooted from a pineapple crown.

Filled with the souvenirs of the family's many travels, the Clifton Thomas house is a warm place to come home to.

entire room, however, is the Early American border around the ceiling.

A double-wide passage leads to the eating area off the living room. Centering the room is an Early American oval table and Windsor-backed chairs. Mrs. L.E. Brame, mother of Mr. Brame, has made pillows in the same federal blue and beige colniture in cherry. Mrs. Brame says this room has been her most welcomed change as it gave her an opportunity to add a walk-in closet, a large bath and dressing area, plus plenty of room for her bedroom furniture which they have wanted to use for years. The colors in this area are dusty rose and soft browns with lighter shades of pink used as in the coverlet and dust ruffle of the bed. Again, Early American ruffled eyelet curtains were used with a print wallcovering on the walls and a soft cocoa-brown carpeting.

The decor in the room has an oriental influence with a silk print from China; a gift from George Major to the Ricks; a painting of several Birds of Paradise over the sofa; and oriental lamps and accessories. The draperies are shaded salmon and feature beautiful padded cornices.

An archway leads to the dining room. The furniture is oak with an oval table, tall ladder-back side and arm chairs and a china breakfast.

The kitchen features wooden cabinets of oak. It has all of the modern conveniences available including an island cooking center. An antique washing

The Brame Home

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brame and their three daughters, on Highway 272, has a most interesting history. The wind storm of March, 1986, destroyed much of the house. The storm damage enabled the Brames to make changes that often arise after you live in a house and realize what you should have done originally.

Dutch-colonial in style, the house sits on a hill beside Mr. Brame's farm supply business. Cross ties form a low wall around the parking area with a sandstone aggregate walk leading to the entrance. A straw wreath with rust print ribbon on the entry door sets the color scheme for the entire house.

The living room features carpeting, walls and beautiful Princilla curtains in a sour cream color. A grandmother clock hung beside an antique print from the late 1800s are over the sofa.

A corner cabinet houses the TV and other pieces in keeping with the Early American style of the room. The focal point of the rooms for the chairs. A grandfather clock, a blue tiered shelf holding antique figurines, and a straw wreath with the same motif are used.

To the side of the dining room is the very efficiently planned, modern kitchen. The same style of Early American decor is found here in color and style of the accents used in the dining room.

A hallway leads to the three downstairs bedrooms in the center of the house.

Ginger, the Brames' oldest daughter who is nine, occupies the bedroom to the left of the hall. The focal point in this room is the gleaming brass bed covered with a white eyelet spread and dust ruffle. Eyelet curtains against the pale pink walls which have a wallpaper border in blue, white and pink and royal blue carpeting complete the color scheme.

The master bedroom which was added during the remodeling, offers a sitting area for television viewing and features Lillian Russell bedroom fur-

The J.F. Ricks' red-brick, tri-level home on Streetland Drive is accented with granite-colored siding and marine blue trim and shutters. Mrs. Ricks has used dusty pink and blue to capitalize on these colors at the entrance. The large entry hall has parquet flooring and a beautiful wallcovering in salmon and cream colors.

The living room carries the same colors as the entry hall with warm sugar and spice, peach

SKIT is widely supported by Trigg County

Have you ever thought you might like to be an actor? Maybe you have wondered how it felt to stand on the stage and hear all that applause. Shakespeare did say, "We are such stuff as dreams are made on."

Thousands of ordinary people from every segment of society dream this dream and just once they would like the chance to try their hand at show business. Our community is fortunate enough to have that opportunity available. Southern Kentucky Independent Theatre, Inc. could be just what you have been looking for. Better known by their acronym, SKIT offers a stage in which the community may display their talents.

Organized only four years ago SKIT set out with one simple goal in mind; to produce quality entertainment by and for the members of our community. "We try to present something for everyone, although everyone may not like all the plays we do," explains Wayne Goolsby, a member of SKIT's board of directors. This is accomplished by offering plays from many different categories such as: Broadway musicals, childrens plays, comedies and dramatic plays.

SKIT has received praise from the state arts council for producing a diversified and well rounded season. SKIT has such plays to their credit as "Count Dracula," "California Suite," "Life With Father" and the musical "Grease." Twelve productions in all with five more planned within the next year.

In the summer of 1984 SKIT had the honor of working with playwright William Moseley and produced the premier performance of his play "Blocks." This is a privilege usually reserved for regional professional theatres.

Almost all performances are presented at the recently restored historic Alhambra Theatre in Hopkinsville. "Every year we try to do at least one production in Cadiz," states Ann Taylor, another board member. She continues, "Percentage-wise Trigg County gives us as much, if not more, support than anywhere. This is a statistic we are very proud of in light of the fact a statement had been made that Trigg County was hard to reach with the arts. We feel that we have successfully disproved this inaccurate conclusion."

Trigg Countians are involved with more than just attending performances. Three of seven board members and nearly twenty percent of the membership are people from Trigg County.

Strong financial support is also essential in community theatre. "We've had single show budgets of as much as $6,000. In a case like that you have to know where the money is coming from before you can ever sell a ticket," states SKIT treasurer Paul Fourshee. "Many area businesses and industries have been generous with their support of local arts, especially theatre. SKIT is a non-profit organization and without the help of these industries community theatre would die."

If you have intended to see one of these productions you now have a great opportunity. The 1955 comedy "Bus Stop," under the direction of Paul Fourshee, is currently in rehearsal. Production dates are Oct. 18, 19, 24 and 25 at the Alhambra Theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

The play takes place inside a diner during a snowstorm. "We are experimenting with two different kinds of snow," says the director. "The audience will be expecting snow and I don't think they are going to be disappointed."

The cast includes Eddy Craft and Lucy Kimsey in the leading roles of Bo, a boisterous young rancher trying to get a wife with the same domineering methods he uses to break a horse, and Cherie, a Kansas City night club singer who is trying to escape his lasso. Also appearing in the cast are Smitty P'Pool, Wayne Goolsby, Barrett Burke, Ed Sanders, Karen Hamrick and Nathan Felts.

If all this sounds like fun and you would like to get involved, contact: SKIT, Inc., P.O. Box 952, Cadiz, KY 42211. Membership is free to anyone with an interest in theatre.

A double French door leads off the eating area to a spacious wooden deck with umbrella table and chairs. This deck offers an extension for family living and entertaining.

From the center of the house a short stairway leads to the second level where the bedrooms are located.

The master bedroom features 18th century traditional cherry furniture. A queen-sized bed, a highboy and double dresser are elegant against the tiny paisley print dark rose wallcovering. Shades of burgundy, pink and rose are used in the fabrics and accessories throughout the room. A special treasure of Mrs. Ricks in this room is an antique round top trunk which was given to her grandmother on her 16th birthday. Pam's Country Curtains created the paisley print coverlet and curtains in this suite, as well as the most unusual window and shower treatment in the master bath. A ballooned-pouf valance is used on the windows. Cherry cabinets and brass fixtures give the bath a very dressy look. Mrs. Ricks' grandmother's dough bowl holds towels in the dusty rose color of the master bedroom-bath suite.

The bottom level of the house is a family-living area which is designed for comfort. Cornflower blue paper with a cream-color print and ivory trim is used in this room. Windows across the room overlook the spacious back yard. A sectional entertainment center holds the television set, books, stereo and many family portraits. A trunk which Mr. Ricks' father refinished holds the Ricks' sons' childhood mementos.

The J.F. Ricks home has been very carefully planned and executed. One can tell it was built with great care to satisfy the builder and the family for which he was building it. The setting is perfect for a family accustomed to the country but removed to the "city."

Hobbs speaks to DKG

Jane Hobbs of Carlisle County presented the program on personal growth and development at the meeting of Gamma Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary organization for women educators, Saturday, Sept. 13, at 9:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn, Murray.

Ms. Hobbs works closely with the children of Carlisle County in 4-H Club activities and is the editor of Southern Sheep Producer Magazine. She related how the influence of Margarette Henry, author of many books for children, had enriched her life personally and professionally. Ms. Hobbs shared with the group the excitement of her many personal communications with the author.

Attending the meeting from Trigg County were Ben Helen Burkeen, Joyce Fortin and Judy Mull.

The Fitts Home

One of the charming old houses on main street has been refurbished to its original beauty by Mrs. Betty Fitts. The one story colonial home of the Vernon Thomas Estate was built in the early 1900's but Mrs. Fitts and her son, Kevin Stroud, have lived in the house only one month.

The entrance of the home features a very ornately carved wooden door.

Since Mrs. Fitts is an avid antique collector and does her own furniture refinishing, the house is filled with products of her own works.

An unusual architectural feature of the house is a center section where the fireplaces are positioned at angles in all of the adjoining rooms.

The dining room is directly behind the living room. It is featured with windows that reach from the ceiling to the floor which provides light for the navy print wallpaper. The woodwork is off-white as is the carpet.

The furniture in this room is Early American with an oval table and tall ladder back chairs. Priscilla curtains hang inside the window frames enabling one to appreciate the beautiful woodwork.

Off from the dining room is the huge, square kitchen. A square oak and pine table is in the center with straight back chairs. The same color scheme of mountain blue, brown and white is carried throughout the room. A table and wooden ice cream chair and a beautiful oak and tin paneled pie safe complete with drawers and bottom doors complete the kitchen.

A sewing room with storage cabinets, a deck which Mrs. Fitts has added, and a utility room lead off from the kitchen. All of these rooms are filled with Mrs. Fitts' collectibles and family mementos.

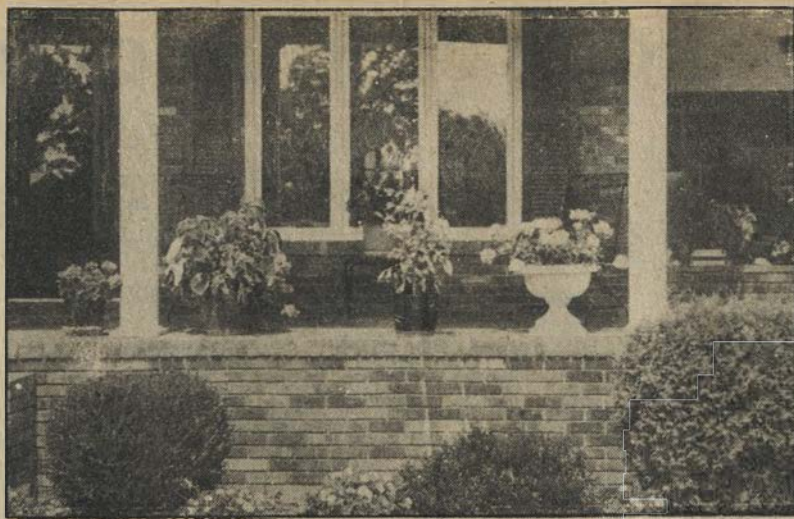

The master bedroom features a Jenny Lind bed with an off-white bedspread. Dusty rose pink wallpaper with tiny off-white print and off-white woodwork give warmth to the room. Balloon valances top white sheers. Other antiques in the room consist of a double wardrobe and dresser and a caned bottom and back rocking chair. There is a fireplace in this room and a built-in closet with wallpapered panel doors and drawers.

Another of Trigg County's beautiful old homes has been brought back into pristine beauty by a young family interested in maintaining the area's heritage.

THE CADIZ Gateway Garden Club's residential beauty spot for September is the yard and porch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Hamilton, Hwy. 139 South. There are many geraniums, a variety of begonias and impatiens, and large multicolor coleus.

Princeton hosts garden club

The Gateway Garden Club met Wednesday, Oct. 1, as guests of the Princeton Rose and Garden Club at the George Coon Library in Princeton.

Mary Lambert, president of the Princeton club, welcomed 12 members and two guests of the Cadiz club and then conducted a short business meeting.

Both clubs enjoyed a film that was furnished by the College of Agriculture, Princeton extension.

The film was "Garden Study; Indoor Plants." The film told of environmental and cultural needs of indoor plants and how they can best be accomplished by the gardener.

The clubs then traveled to the Princeton Country Club for lunch where more ideas were exchanged both on gardening and other aspects of club interest.

Judicial College held at park public communication for judges. Stressing that judges make sure their communications to the public are efficient and effective, he offered the 97 judges in attendance assistance in preparing speeches and presentations and interacting with an audience.

Defense highlights Wildcats comeback; Ross Flatt recovers two fumbles

Who is Ross Flatt? That's what everyone was asking after Friday night's football game between the Trigg County Wildcats and Murray High School Tigers. Murray won the contest 30-22, but not before Flatt made his presence felt on the field.

Ross Flatt

Flatt, a 5' 8" 140-pound cornerback, led the Wildcats with two fumble recoveries. Flatt's first recovery was good for a touchdown and the second set up another score.

The Wildcats, who trailed by 23 points at the half, were given a shot in the arm as a result of the fumble recoveries. The Wildcats' no-named defense received praise from the hometown fans after Flatt's recoveries.

After the first half, some fans had given the Wildcats no chance of making a recovery from the domination of the Murray team. That was before the Wildcat defense scored two touchdowns and held the Murray offense to limited yardage in the second half.

Murray's first score, of the game came with less than five minutes off the clock when Mark West, quarterback, hit receiver Chris Padgett with a 25-yard touchdown pass. James Payne kicked the extra point to make the score 7-0.

Murray wasted no time in scoring its second touchdown of the night. This score came when Payne kicked a 46-yard field goal. That put the Tigers up 10-0.

The Wildcats failed to move the football on its second possession and were forced to punt.

Murray received the ball on its own 26-yard line after a 36-yard punt by Stan Humphries. But in 11 plays, the Tigers scored their second touchdown of the night. This time West, considered one of the best high school passers in the state, hit Mark Miller with a 16-yard pass to set up the score. A few minutes later, Rodney Skinner ran up the middle of the Trigg County defense for six points. A two-point conversion by the Tigers failed, leaving the score at 16-0.

The Wildcats tried to get some offense going and made its first 1st down of the night when quarterback Chris Radford was able to draw the Tigers' defense off sides. The drive was short-lived as Radford threw two incomplete passes and running back Steve Sanders was held to a short three-yard gain.

On their next possession, the Wildcats fumbled the ball away to Murray. Murray capitalized by scoring its third touchdown of the night. The score came when Skinner swept wide to the left shaking off two Wildcat tacklers. Murray cushioned its lead with an extra point by Payne making the score 23-0 at the half.

When the Wildcats returned in the second half they were a new team with a new attitude toward the game.

The Wildcats (defense) scored its first touchdown of the night when Murray punter Hugh Houston missed a snapped from center. A scramble for the ball ended in the hands of Travis Carneyhan. He not only recovered the fumble, but did it in style, racing 55-yards for a touchdown. A two-point conversion by the Wildcats made the score 23-8.

In the scramble for the ball was Eric Bleidt who knocked the

"Honeymoon" is over for UK football; Issel jersey to be retired

Three-oh-and-one and things. That's UK's football record after an impressive 32-0 thumping of Southern Mississippi last Saturday. But don't get too excited, it's still wait 'n see on Jerry Claiborne's team. The "honeymoon part" of UK's schedule is over.

Sports in Kentucky

By Bob Watkins

Good items from the last two victories...

Tailback Ivy Joe Hunter has started to demonstrate the consistent power running he has always been capable of, a weapon UK needs to compliment its passing attack.

The swarming defense has started to exhibit confidence, maturity. It might even be time for a nickname.

Punter Jeff Nelson has emerged as a reminder to the days of Larry Seiple (1964-66).

The wait 'n see... Starting with Ole Miss (2-2-1) this weekend, and continuing the next three with LSU (2-1), Georgia (3-1) and Virginia Tech (4-1), well, we shall see.

The "honeymoon" of UK's schedule is over.

Kentucky Mr. Football? Who is the hottest high school football prospect in Kentucky this season? Kentucky Mr. Football? Certainly no college recruiter is going on record with the name of one player, lest it offend others and compromise his ability to sign them, but the state's top prospect, and therefore Kentucky's Mr. Football, might be Eddie Thomas of Fort Knox High School.

The 6-1, 177-pound wide receiver exhibits many of the same qualities that made basketball star Rex Chapman such an fascinating performer to watch last winter. A blend of talent and charisma.

University of Kentucky assistant coach Jerry Eisaman watched the Fort Knox-Danville game last week and said he was impressed.

"The thing about Thomas is that not only does he have break away speed, he can move and cut and think," Eisaman said. "Every time he touches the football it's a potential touchdown. He's just one of those gifted players, a super athlete. Real exciting."

Recruiting hype? Maybe. But I don't think so.

"I'm amazed at Thomas's savvy," the UK coach added. "He's head and shoulders above anybody else on the field."

Eisaman has no doubts that, "Thomas can play in the Southeastern Conference."

It is a fair comparison to note that Thomas bears a resemblance and playing style to Alabama All-American flanker Albert Bell right down to their jersey numbers - No. 1.

"Potentially, Thomas can be a better wide receiver than either (Cornell) Babbage or (Eric) Pitts," Eisaman said, adding, "He has the opportunity to come in at our place and step in for Pitts next year."

Another bonus? Thomas has the concentration and hands to be quite a kickoff returner.

But, given Coach Jerry Claiborne's preference for redshirting freshmen, Eisaman's last remark could be hype. But on the other hand Mark Higgs, Carwell Gardner last year, and Al Baker and Donnie Gardner this year, played as freshmen.

There may be some question as to whether or not UK will throw the football as often what with Bill Ransdell's graduation this season.

"I introduced Thomas to Chuck Broughton (sophomore quarterback from Ashland) during his visit," Eisaman said with a grin. "In fact, we're recruiting (Cawood High School) quarterback Freddie Maggard) this year."

"I think Eddie and Freddie would make a nice combination."

Of course UK's courtship with Thomas could be academic since he is also interested in Purdue, Georgia, Michigan, Louisville and UCLA, among others.

But Thomas attended the UK-Southern Mississippi game. It was his second visit to UK this season.

Special recognition to 4-H members

National 4-H Week, Oct. 5-11, is when we pause and give special recognition to over four million 4-H'ers.

4-H
By Tim Hendricks
UK College of Agriculture

For over seven decades, 4-H has been offering programs to youths that assist them in acquiring knowledge, developing life skills, and forming positive attitudes about their future.

In Trigg County last year, 634 youths between the ages of nine and 19 participated in a 4-H-sponsored program. There were 99 volunteer 4-H adult leaders who gave freely of their time and talents to conduct our programs.

National 4-H Week has a tendency to get lost in the ham festival celebration, but the 4-H'ers know that this is their week.

There will be some 4-H posters around town, and 4-H exhibits will be on display at Hart's General Store. 4-H is also sponsoring a pet show on Friday, Oct. 10, at 4 p.m. at West Cadiz Park. On Saturday, Oct. 11, the Knights of 4-H Teen Club will be sponsoring the pedal tractor pull around the courthouse square. 4-H will be having a float in the parade, so anyone interested in riding needs to meet behind Dairy Queen at 1:30 p.m. On Monday, Oct. 13, at 9 a.m. there will be a bicycle rodeo at West Cadiz Park for youths five to 19 years of age. All you need is your bike. All 4-H events are free except for the pedal tractor pull, which will be a quarter per pull.

4-H Wranglers Horse Club

The 4-H Horse Club will have a meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the basement of the John L. Street Library. Final plans will be made for their trail ride. The trail ride is open to all 4-H members who have horses and their families. It will be Saturday, Oct. 18, at LBL's Wrangler's Camp. More information will be out next week.

World Food Day

World Food Day will be Thursday, Oct. 16. This is an excellent time to do something for those less fortunate than you. A donation to A.C.T.S. would be a wonderful way to celebrate this day.

Livestock Club

The 4-H Livestock Club will have a meeting on Monday, Oct. 13, at 7 p.m. at the County Extension Office. The meeting will cover the livestock projects available and we will determine what field trips we want to take. Also up for discussion will be a trip to the North American Livestock Expo.

BRANDON OLIVER, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Oliver, showed the 4-H Grand Champion Other Breeds at one of the regional 4-H and FFA Heifer Shows this summer. Brandon is an active 4-H member in the beef cattle and livestock judging activities.

ball lose from Houston's hands. "I was just trying to tackle him when the ball sprang loose."

After scoring the touchdown, Carneyhan said, "I picked the ball up and ran as fast as I could. I didn't want anyone to tackle me from behind."

It was this touchdown that excited the hometown fans and motivated the team. For the next 14 minutes of the contest the Tigers had a fight on their hands.

Murray's next set of downs stalled when Flatt recovered a bad snap from center. This ended in Flatt's first touchdown of the season and the defense's second of the night. That made the score 23-14.

Trigg County's comeback ended when the Tigers scored with 8:19 remaining in the fourth quarter. The score came when West connected on a pass play with Mark Miller for a touchdown reception. The extra point was good making the score 30-14. However, the Wildcats defense was not finished. With 2:15 remaining in the period, Ross Flatt recovered his second fumble of the night deep in Tiger territory. Radford then connected with Sam Gallogly with a 37-yard touchdown reception to narrow the margin. Another two-point conversion made the score 30-22 with a little over a minute to play.

The Tigers managed to make a first down and ran out the clock, eliminating a Wildcat comeback. The win improved the Tigers record to 4-2, while the Wildcats slipped to 0-6.

For the Wildcats, senior Steve Sanders was the leading rusher with 27 yards. Freshman Greg Bridges added 25 yards and senior Kenneth Wharton had 12 yards.

On the receiving end, Stan Humphries had two receptions for 22 yards, Sam Gallogly caught two for 65-yards and Steve Sanders one run for 8 yards.

was a two-time All-American in 1969 and 1970, and remains the all-time leading scorer in men's basketball at UK.

And here is heart of the reason why: "When you talk about retiring somebody's jersey, you have to look not only at what a player did while he was in school, but also the things he did two and three years after he graduated," the UK spokesperson said.

No athlete I can think of has been more a credit to his alma mater than Issel. After his UK days, he went on to success in the American Basketball Association with the Kentucky Colonels, then the NBA Denver Nuggets—after which he took time out to write an autobiography of his basketball days called "Parting Shots." And now he is back on his farm near Versailles where he has become a success in the horse industry.

So, after 32 years, UK will retire a player's jersey.

Footnote There is a bit of a catch to retiring Issel's jersey however. It goes something like this:

So, what happens to Rob Lock's No. 44?

"He'll keep it," the UK spokesperson said. "We don't retire numbers, only jerseys."

Other people in sports

Ever outspoken and often controversial, Fort Knox High School football coach Joe Jagers was in "good form" last week. In an interview with The News-Enterprise in Elizabethtown, Jagers spoke with Patton-esque zeal (and candor).

➤ About winning (and losing): "If you beat somebody every once in a while they love ya. You do it every year and they start calling ya a son of a ——. The old American saying that everybody loves a winner is hogwash. The only people who love a winner are the ones associated with the winner. How many people liked Adolph Rupp that didn't live in Kentucky?"

➤ Jagers coached at Nelson County a few years ago. "I played Bardstown and lost six years in a row. And I didn't like Bardstown, Garnis (Martin) or even the color purple one bit. But since I beat him I like him and Bardstown a hell of a lot better. I might even go over there and get me something to eat sometime."

➤ About those who say Jagers wins because his teams enjoy a steady stream of talented players coming on the post at Fort Knox: "Not everybody can coach talent. Some coaches just can't do it. I'd rather have a talented kid who has never played football before than a slow guy that weighs 230 pounds and has been playing 10 years."

➤ One of Jagers' complaints has been that, while he has been named coach of the year in some state-wide polls by his contemporaries, local coaches (in the Big 8 Conference) have not voted for him. "They're jealous," he said.

Parling shots

➤ Tulane football coach Mack Brown was asked about his team's "defensive execution" after a 48-31 loss to TCU earlier this season. "I don't think we ought to execute them right now," he said. "Give them two or three more weeks and see if they improve."

Comment: After watching Tulane get ripped 35-10 by Ole Miss a month later it might be time for an execution.

➤ Chicago Cubs pitcher Ed Lynch on being traded away from the New York Mets earlier this season after being with them since 1980 — "It's like living with a family for a whole year and then being thrown out on Christmas Day."

And so it goes. 117

University of Kentucky's experimental corncob burner, which produces cheap energy to dry corn in grain bins, is getting its first field test on a real, working farm this harvest season.

The field test also will look at using a different fuel — wood chips.

Sam McNeill, Extension Engineer at the Princeton Experiment Station, said Wayne McAtee, who has a corn and hog operation in Trigg County, has agreed to a two-year trial to test the burner.

This year, McAtee will use wood chips from a nearby lumber operation, and in future years he plans to use corncobs.

McNeill said tests at the prototype burner at the Princeton Experiment Station suggest that there should be no problems with the silver-dollar sized wood chips produced as residue at the lumber mill. They are more dense than corncobs and produce more heat than an equal amount of cobs. But because cobs are lighter, the two fuels should produce an equal amount of heat by weight.

McAtee said he was interested in using the chips because they were easily available while he looks for an efficient way to gather the corncobs. According to UK tests, the experimental burner can produce enough energy from one-third of the corncobs grown on an acre of land to dry all of the corn produced on that acre. This could represent as much as one-third to one-half the traditional cost of drying by butane gas.

That's why McAtee was interested in testing the burner, even though this year petroleum costs are down markedly from the high point a few years ago.

He doesn't think current low prices for oil products will last long. He believes, in fact, that this summer marked the low point.

"We'll have stable oil prices in this country when we get stable governments in the Middle East," he said. "That means the long-range picture for this country does not include cheap fuel."

McAtee pointed out that LP gas in the 70s cost about 25 cents a gallon while corn sold for about $2.40 a bushel.

"Even with today's cheaper prices, it sells for 50 cents and cash corn prices are around $1.50," he said. "That's not cheap fuel."

Even so, a few years ago that same gallon of LP gas cost 75 cents, and if McAtee is right, it soon could be back at that level again.

But with the burner developed by UK, he is confident he will have less expensive fuel than he'd have otherwise.

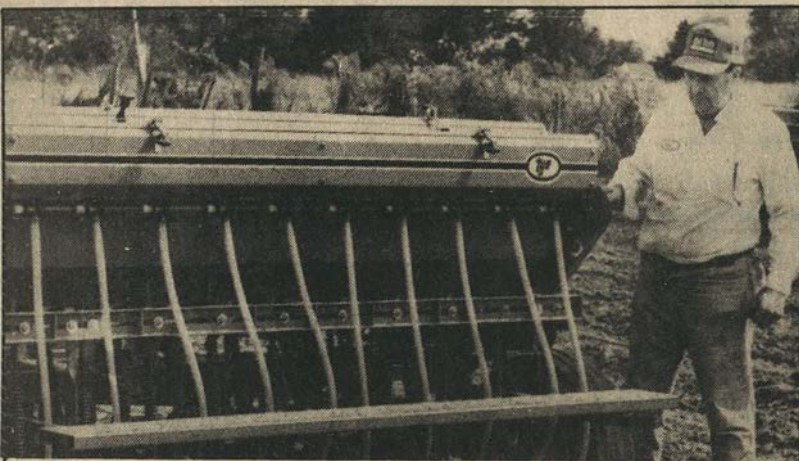

No-Till Drill Now Available

You asked for it . . . and you've got it. Numerous inquiries were received at the County Extension Service office concerning the no-till drill that Kemp Equipment Company had available for local farmers during the time the business was open. When the company sold out, the drill was sold to a group in Tennessee, leaving the county without the service.

Due to popular demand and your concern, Earl Carr of Cadiz has purchased a new no-till drill to offer the convenience and service to local farmers. His rental rates will remain at $5.00 per acre, and for a small fee (probably less than you can travel to Cadiz and pick it up) he will deliver the machine to you and show you how to operate it. If you don't have the equipment and time, you can even negotiate a deal to have him do the seeding for you. Rental units in other counties run from eight to ten dollars per acre.

Recognition is given to David Ditsch, UK Extension Agronomist, who was instrumental in arranging a meeting with the Tye No-Till Drill Company representative and Mr. Carr to set up a dealership here in Trigg County. Those of you who need parts and service for Tye equipment can call or stop by the Standard Service Center in Cadiz, 522-9937, or call Earl Carr at his home, 522-6280.

EARL CARR of Cadiz shows his new no-till drill. The drill is offered to local farmers.

SAM McNEILL, UK Extension Engineer, and Wayne McAtee discuss the research being done with the Biomass experiment with a tour group of TVA Agricultural Development Program personnel and Extension, SCS and ASCS personnel from the seven Tennessee Valley Authority states of the Southeast.

Hogs and pigs report issued

The quarterly Hogs and Pigs Report issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture recently confirmed earlier expectations of lower production figures and higher prices.

A. Lee Meyer, University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist, said the numbers released by USDA suggest that producers will bring about five percent fewer hogs to market in the coming months than they did a year ago. Prices, which topped $60 per hundredweight during the summer, have dipped to the $54-57 range and are expected to hold steady to slightly higher through the first quarter of 1987.

"The most important part of the report concerns the longer run. Producers show intentions of farrowing nine percent fewer sows between now and December than they did a year ago, and six percent fewer from December to February of 1987," Meyer said.

These figures confirm earlier reports, and suggest that expansion in the pork industry has not yet begun.

"As a result, prices should average in the high end of the $50-60 range during early 1987, slipping two or three dollars during the second quarter," Meyer said.

Cheap feed and favorable prices are likely to prompt expansion in the industry.

"Pork production will probably exceed year-earlier levels by the second half of 1987, dropping prices below the $50 mark," Meyer said.

McConnell supports tax reform

Calling it a vote for fairness in the tax code, Senator Mitch McConnell (R-Ky) joined the majority in the Senate in approving the tax reform bill, thereby clearing the measure for the President's signature.
 "The bill has shortcomings and we don't yet know what impact it will have on the economy," said McConnell, "but it makes great strides toward taxing Americans fairly by closing loopholes and passing those savings on to taxpayers through lower rates."
 McConnell noted that most Kentuckians will not pay more than 15 percent of their income in taxes and many in the lowest brackets will pay no tax at all under the bill.

Venable making appearance as grand marshall

Former Kirksey High School Basketball Coach Mr. Keith Venable will be making an appearance as grand marshall of the 1986 Trigg County Country Ham Festival Parade.

Keith S. Venable

Mr. Venable is the second former basketball coach in as many years to be named as grand marshall. Joe B. Hall, former basketball coach at the University of Kentucky, was last year's grand marshall.

"I don't think it's a requirement to be a former

Saturday afternoon prior to the start of the parade. He will be the fourth grand marshall selected for the parade.

In 1985 Hall was named to the honors and in 1984 Coy Bacon, a former native of Trigg County and a former professional league football player, was grand marshall. And in 1983 the festival's executive committee chose Major General James E. Thompson, formerly of Fort Campbell.

Mr. Venable, a native of Calloway County, served as county agent in Trigg County from 1943 to 1974. Prior to this job, Mr. Venable served as assistant county agent in Christian County.

Today, Mr. Venable writes a weekly column, 'The Voice of Venable,' for The Cadiz Record newspaper. He has been writing the column since 1974. While serving as county agent Mr. Venable wrote a farm market report for the newspaper.

Mr. Venable graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1922, during the Depression years. "I believe that I was the only student with an agricultural degree who had a job after graduation," Mr. Venable said. Approximately 100 students are believed to have graduated with an agriculture degree that year.

In 1985 Mr. Venable received special recognition from the Trigg County Business and Professional Women's Club in Trigg County. He received praise from several groups during the club's dinner and was awarded a plaque.

The festival's parade will begin at 2:30 p.m. at the Trigg county High School Saturday, Oct. 11. From the high school the parade route will go through downtown Cadiz and end at West Cadiz Park.

Also in the parade will be the Trigg County Wildcat Marching Band, various floats, antique cars, clowns, a number of dignitaries, Miss Trigg County, Mrs. Trigg County and the famed Miss Trigg.

History of the hog

By John Hall

As the anticipation of the 10th annual Trigg County Ham Festival increases, one might be interested in the role of the hog in Trigg County history.

The wild west had its wagon trains and large cattle drives. Trigg County, on the other hand, had its hog drives. From the pages of a diary written by J. W. McGaughy in December 1853, details of these historic hog drives from Newstead to Canton were recorded. McGaughy's diary spanned the time period from 1852 to 1905. Dr. Robert H. McGaughy III, former chairman of the Department of Journalism and Radio-TV at Murray State University, edited the 53 years covered by the diary into a book titled Life with Grandfather.

The annual autumn hog drives of the 1850s consisted of seven to eight farmers and farm workers. They worked like the cowboys of the wild west with a few changes. Instead of chasing after the hogs on horseback, they used dogs to keep the hogs moving in the desired direction. These highly-trained dogs, mainly collies, worked the drives and sent after strays. Most of the farmers on the hog drives walked. Like the cattle drives, a chuck wagon followed in the rear and two additional wagons were used to haul corn to feed the hogs.

The hog drive from Newstead to Canton required approximately 31 hours to complete. The average speed of the hog drive was one mile per hour. Additional time was required to make rest stops to feed the hogs and drives. The path of the hog drive was along dirt roads and open fields. The hogs crossed Little River at a shallow point.

Hog drive across Trigg County were made to shipping terminals in Canton and Linton on the Cumberland River. Once the hog drive reached Canton, the hogs were placed in pens to await processing and shipping to larger terminals in Nashville and St. Louis. Hog prices at that time were 4½ cents per pound.

It would not surprise this writer to discover that, perhaps, after the hog drive, one of the hog drivers would turn to his faithful dog and say, "Good girl, Lassie; let's go home."

Freeman famed for delicious hams

By Janet Freeman
Most country folks will tell you that there's nothing better than an old-fashioned country ham, and there's one Trigg County farmer who couldn't agree more.

Douglas Freeman has been in the country ham business for more than 30 years. When he was a boy he said he liked to watch his father and grandfather salt, trim and smoke the hams until they were "just right." He said that after he married he decided to process a few hams for himself and his family.

"I started out with just six or eight hams for myself and then somebody would want one, so I would do a few more the next year, and then a few more, and a few more..." he said.

The popularity of Freeman's country hams has grown so much that he said this year he prepared 200 of them. "Last year a man bought 40 of them just to give to his employees," Freeman said.

Freeman's wife, Euneda, said they not only sell the hams locally but have had orders from as far away as New York and Canada. "Ever since Douglas won first place for one of his hams at the ham festival we have had people call us from all over the United States," she said.

Freeman was awarded first place for his country ham entry in the 1983 Trigg County Country Ham Festival.

Just what makes Freeman's country hams so popular? Freeman said he believes people liked his because they are "true" country hams.

"Back a few years ago everybody who lived in the country would have a smokehouse and do their own hams. Now you just don't see that. I think there will be fewer people making country hams as time goes on," he said. "But, I think people like mine because I use that old-fashioned, slow, genuine process," he said.

Euneda said some shoppers may think they are buying a "true" country ham in a store when actually they aren't. "Some stores do carry true country hams, but some people are fooled because they don't realize that there are places that speed up the aging process, yet they still call the product a 'country ham,'" she said.

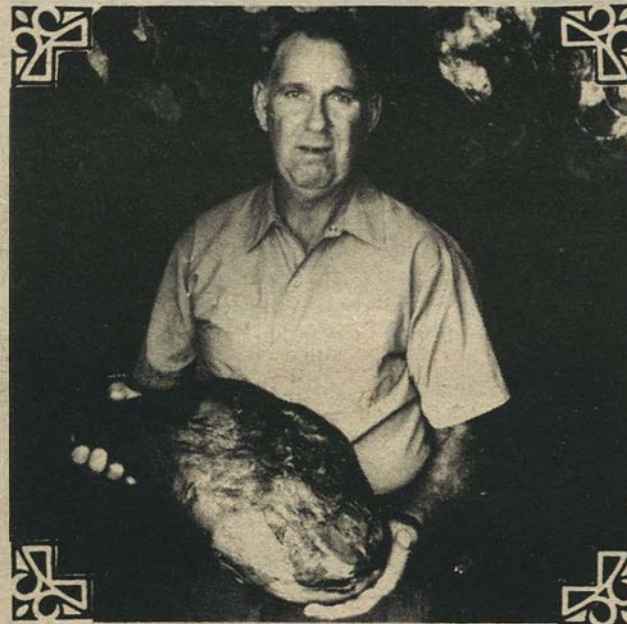

According to Freeman it takes at least a year to make a "good" country ham. "It's a big job. I know some may think doing this is not much trouble, but when you trim or salt over a hundred hams at a time it becomes a lot of trouble and hard work," he said.

Freeman's daughter, Shirley, said she tries to help out by addressing labels for hams that are to be shipped. "I don't know much about country hams," she said. "It's something I never really thought about because I've always been around them," she said.

This year Freeman's biggest ham weighs approximately 50 pounds. He said he has already sold that one plus several others. "I'm expecting to sell all that I have this year, but now it's almost time to start getting hams ready for next year," he said.

Freeman plans to make his smokehouse bigger so he will have room to house all of next year's hams. "I don't know if I'll have that many more hams next year, but I would like to have more room to hang them," he said.

How successful is a small country ham business? "Well, I make some profit," Freeman said, "but I make the hams because it's something I enjoy doing."

Douglas Freeman holds one of the many hams he has processed in 1986.

Bring out the roses — pig derby a special event

The second running of the to-be-famed Kentucky Pig Derby will be held Saturday afternoon at West Cadiz Park. Spectators will stand glued next to a four-lane race track as the announcer says, "And they're off!"

More than 100 people witnessed the first running of the pig derby that proved to be one of the many highlights of the 1985 Trigg County Country Ham Festival. This year an even larger crowd is expected to witness the event. Bleachers will be placed near the race track to accommodate the spectators. No admission fee is charged for this event.

Playing of "My Old Kentucky Home" prior to the start of the race will also be added this year to help establish a festival-type atmosphere.

Go, Pig, Go!

To the left: Racing pigs are provided with a meal at the finish line. Below: A large crowd gathers to witness the first 'run for the roses.'

Four heats of racing will determine the grand winner. In this race each pig will wear his silk racing jacket with a number clearly printed on the side.

Bob Broadbent, who master-minded the pig derby, said that this year there will be 16 or 17 pigs vieing for the crown of roses. The pigs will be properly conditioned before the race in order to prepare them.

Broadbent also said that the people wanted to see more pigs run in the derby so the field was increased to 16.

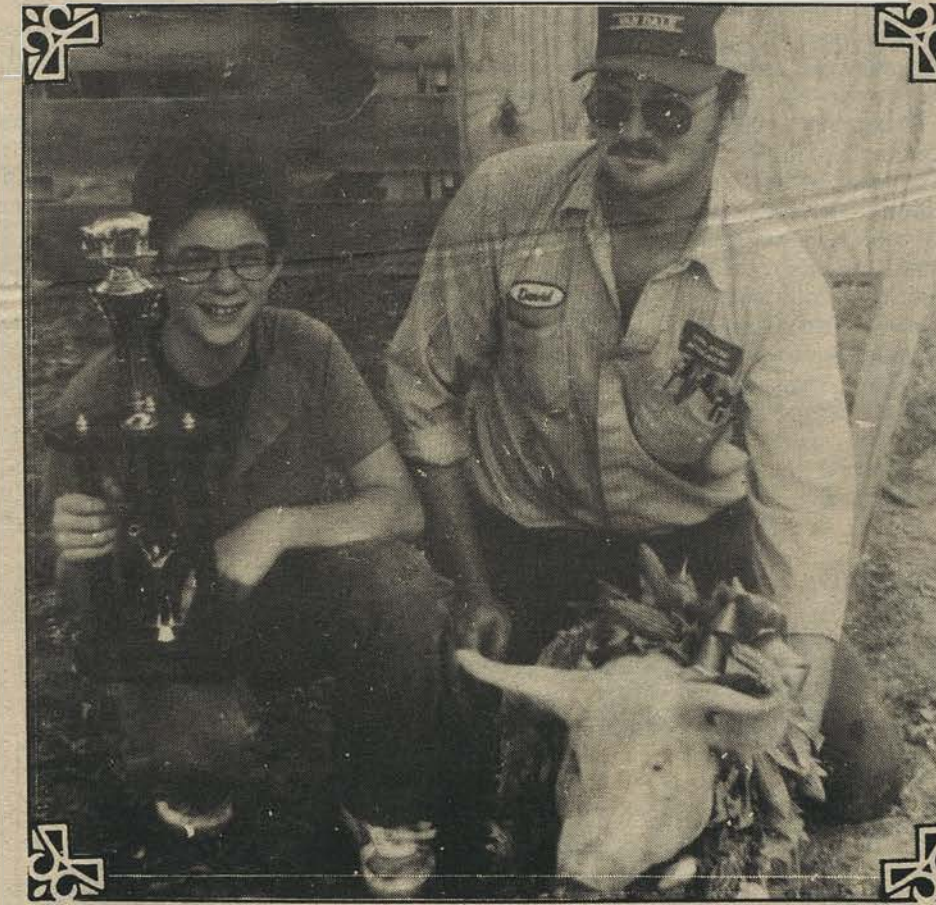

After the race the pigs are auctioned off to the highest bidder. They weigh approximately 100 pounds each.

In explaining the races, Broadbent said that there will be a first place winning pig, a second place to-place pig and a third place to-show pig. Each pig will run one race and the winner of each race will qualify for the championship heat. This will determine the Kentucky Pig Derby champion for 1986.

Even though there will not be any mint juleps served at the derby, many clubs will have booths located in the area of the race track and be serving refreshments.

Broadbent added that the sponsors of the event, Trigg County Farm Bureau and Broadbent Farms, hope that the derby will create more interest and be enjoyed by everyone at the festival. The derby will get underway at 4:30 p.m. at West Cadiz Park Saturday, Oct. 11.

Broadbent keeps a country ham tradition alive

By Mike Cöheen

The country ham, which was once a commonplace food in country kitchens, has been transformed into a specialty item eaten mostly on special occasions.

"A lot of people don't know what a country ham is," Smith Broadbent III, who operates Broadbent's B&B Products in Cadiz said. Broadbent's hams have won the grand championship of the Kentucky State Fair six times and also at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, Tn., both times he has entered there.

Broadbent said the curing method he uses is essentially the same as his grandfather's, only he uses a modern processing plant instead of an old-style wooden smokehouse to suite USDA regulations.

He starts his hams with the hog — his brother and partner, Robert Broadbent, raises them, breeding them to be lean and have bigger hams.

By raising their own hogs, Broadbent said that they "can give a ham ideal conditions throughout its life," from the barn to the smokehouse.

After the hogs are slaughtered, the hams are trimmed closely and packed with salt and sugar in proportion to their weight. The hams are stored in a curing room at 38 degrees for 36-44 days depending on the ham's size.

The curing room simulates the winter weather of the old-time hog killing — but without variations. The cool temperature and low humidity allow the salt to penetrate the meat quickly and remove moisture from the meat.

After curing, the remaining salt and sugar are washed from the hams and they are moved to a "salt equalization" room where warmer temperatures and higher humidity simulate springtime in the old farmer's curing process and allows the amount of salt to become equal throughout the meat.

After two to four weeks in the equalization step, it is time for the ham to be smoked.

Broadbent follows his grandfather's process, which calls for sassafras mixed with the usual hickory smoking wood. He burns sawdust in a specially-built machine. Broadbent cuts the sassafras on his farm and gets the hickory from commercial sawmills.

The third-generation ham maker said he smokes his hams until they have a rich "pecan color." He said smoking gives the ham color and flavor, as well as sealing the pores of the ham to prevent rancidity.

Next the ham goes through what an old-time farmer would call the "summer sweat." Broadbent lets his ham age at around 75 degrees until they are at least nine month old. He says that many "quick-cure processors don't age their hams, selling them as soon as they are smoked. Aging gives a ham "that unique country ham flavor," he said.

Broadbent includes the aging step because he "feels strongly about doing everything like my grandfather did; doing everything by hand."

B&B Foods sells about 20,000 hams each year through a mail-order catalog and retail store at their plant in Cadiz.

Broadbent recognizes that his item is a specialty product: "A country ham isn't a necessity of life," he said,

His business grows about 10 percent each year. Broadbent says he doesn't want more growth because he's interested in quality, not quantity."

He wants to keep up a tradition that is fading fast. With the demise of the wooden smokehouse on every farm, he said "this is an art that's just about gone."

The World's Largest Ham and Biscuit made in 1985 was sponsored by B&B Products and Broadbent Seed Co.

Brentwood square dancers to participate in 1986 festival

By Cynthia Hoskins
Record staff

In 1978, a group of square dancers and round dancers from Kirkwood, Mo., started meeting annually at Lake Barkley State Resort Park during the second week of October. After years of attending the ham festival, the group decided to be a part of the autumn festivities. Now, for the third year the group will be a part of the annual Cadiz-Trigg County Country

Ham Festival.

The group of 220 to 225 square dancers will be promenading and displaying their talents to the thousands of people attending the festival. They will have their demonstration Saturday, Oct. 11, at 1:30 p.m. at the Bank of Cadiz parking lot. They will perform for an hour before the parade gets underway.

In 1977, two residents of Brentwood, Mo., Bob and Doris Collier convinced a new square dance caller, Wayne Akers, into starting a square dancing class. Now, nine years later, the group has increased its membership to an overwhelming crowd. In addition, there is a list of more interested individuals ready to learn.

The group of Brentwood dancers became known as the Kirkwood dancers when they no longer had a place large enough to accommodate the space they needed for weekly workshop and bi-monthly dances. It was then that they consulted a neighboring city, Kirkwood, to fulfill their needs to pursue dancing.

Mrs. Collier said, "The interest and enthusiasm that these individuals have is just too much for words. They devote so much energy into their work of art — square dancing."

To these individuals dancing is fun and relaxation. While these individuals may be competitive in their everyday work force, they are a family of dancers with no competition whatsoever when the group meets. It is a time they can join together to let tension be released and let relaxation take control.

According to Marilyn Ladd, group reservationist for Lake Barkley State Resort Park, they are a group of energetic people. They are interesting and extremely nice. They are always complimenting our festival, the police force, and the hospitality that Trigg County offers. They are always looking forward to coming back next year as we ask them to come back."

Therefore, when attending the festival and you want to relax and find some excitement, one sure place to be is at the scene where the dancers are sure to take a load off your feet.

Pork recipe cook-off — a new event

Kentucky Machine & Engineering and the Trigg County Extension Homemakers are sponsoring a new event for the Trigg County Country Ham Festival — a Pork Recipe Cook-Off. This contest will be held Friday, Oct. 10, at the old high school cafeteria. There will be two divisions: youth attending the Trigg County School System, and adults (male or female). There are four categories in each division: appetizer dish; main dish; creative dish (home use); and creative dish (fast-food restaurant use).

Entries will be accepted Friday, Oct. 10, between 1 and 2 p.m.; judging will begin at 2 p.m.

All entries must be picked up between 4 and 4:30 p.m.

The overall champion in each category will receive $50. Other prizes include: first place, $25; second place, $15; and third place, $10.

Participants may enter one or more categories. Bring ONLY ONE SERVING of each category. Any item needing to be reheated must be in a microwave-safe container.

Paul Stallons "A Voice For The People"

Ask Yourself These Questions:

1. Are we getting the best education for our dollars?
2. Is our school system using its funds wisely?
3. Can we improve our methods before we raise taxes?
4. Do we take our system seriously or is it just a job?

These are questions often asked.

Euen Compton Says:

The voters of Trigg County defeated the utility tax by a 4 to 1 majority last December.

In The Cadiz Record of Dec. 19, 1985, Dr. Jack Sanders said, "Prior to the election all of us felt we would jump right in and do it again, if defeated."

My question now to Jack Sanders and Judy Braboy is: If re-elected, what will be your stand on a utility tax?

The voters deserve an answer NOW.
