'The family vacation'

As a child, August was always a happy time in the Sanders household. It was when we took "the family vacation."

My dad, a town principal, wanted to get out of school before the fall semester began (he always claimed the teachers hated to see summer end more than the students). Our destination was always the same, spending three weeks in a beachfront log cabin on Thunder Bay in the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Actually, that version of "the family vacation" only lasted eight summers -- 1959 to 1966 -- but those were some of the best times I had growing up. Touch football on the beach, swimming in the lake all day, horseback riding, cooking dinner over an open fire on the beach, followed by roasting marshmallows and nightly volleyball games.

It was also on that beach that I fell in love for the first time. The first time I saw her she wore a pink swimsuit with a matching bathing cap with those ugly flower pedals all over it and black cat-eye sunglasses. When she dressed up at night, I thought she looked like Jackie Kennedy. However, it was an ill-fated relationship since she was 34 and I was 8.

The only part of the vacation I hated came before we left, when dad would take my brother and me to the barber shop and Harold "the butcher" would cut my hair the only way he knew how -- down to the skin.

The Michigan weather was perfect for vacations -- a range of 40 to 50 degrees every day. Even on the first few days when I was sunburned, I would still need to wear a sweatshirt that night during volleyball games.

My dad picked the place because it was quiet and sort of secluded. There were only nine cabins and, after the second year, all the vacationing families scheduled to come back at the same time the next year. The cabins had no telephones and no televisions. And we never missed them.

We would leave the beach only three times during the vacation -- twice when we headed to town to the laundromat and then pick up groceries, and once to visit Mackinaw Island, a vacation spot I highly recommend.

After 1966, our schedules changed and "the family vacation" changed with it. Three weeks was reduced to one week, the time shifted from August to spring break and the location shifted from Michigan to Gatlinburg, Tenn., then to various cities in Florida. In college, my brother and I went to Florida with friends for spring break and mom and dad would spend two weeks each summer in Maine.

We still had fun as a family but "the family vacation" was never quite the same after we left Michigan.

Just the Other Day

By Billy Rawls

It is for considerable personal reason that I contemplate today's subject of nicotine and its stature in my life and that of others. As a long time user of this substance, please note that I have no intention of debating the pros and cons of the present and ongoing issues of this concern.

As I unroll my scroll of life, I find that it rolls up to conceal the past as I come closer to the present. But, I am still able to capture some of the chains of events that led to later things. In the following, you may find a hodge-podge of excuses or feeble justification for what became an unnecessary habit. For instance: right now I am dying for a cigarette. WHY? For the same reason that others may crave something else that they could do without.

My hope for this tale is that it may in some way help others to realize that their peculiar ways can be nurtured until they become trapped by harmful habits.

I remember history lessons that told of Indians smoking peace pipes with white men. Sir Walter Raleigh went back to England and blew smoke in the faces of contemporaries and started a fad that led to: even old women smoking corn cob pipes; dipping snuff and the like.

But, how did I get to using tobacco? Well to start with, tobacco seemed to be everywhere and the thing to do. When I was not as tall as my uncle's shotgun, he took me hunting in a field where a weed, that he called "rabbit tobacco," was growing. I reached down and stripped the dry leaves from the stalk and crammed them in my mouth for a "chaw of terbakker" like "Uncle" was chewing. I felt big even though the stuff tasted awful.

'Me'an Charlie Hooks had already experimented with smoking grape vine cigars like the "stogies" that "funny paper" characters, "Mickey McGuire" and "Moon Mullins" always had stuck in their mouths. But, then we graduated to rolling our own from corn silks that flared up when we lit them. If the mean old mule that chased us--when we went to the lot where the corn crib was--had kicked us in the head, maybe we would have abandoned smoking then and there.

Then there came the days with the bigger boys when we bummed red "makin's" a Camel; or even a Atlatlan butt from friends. A taste or habit was becoming acquired by the time we found the occasional ten, eleven, or fifteen 'cents' to feed our yearning to look smart (-Alec?).

Then came the days of smoking bravely in public. I had even thrown away Daddy's promise to give me a gold watch if I did not smoke until I was twenty-one. We flaunted our new found rights with few challengers among those who had taken these rights to be the unstated law of the land as we indulged in a world of ever spreading nicotine choices. Each time our habit seemed to be getting the best of us, we would switch to a new prescription.

Dire warnings that the use of tobacco could be hazardous to our health were shrugged off with rebuttals that "Everyone will die of something" or "Who wants to live until they are no good to themselves or anyone else?"

Excuses ranged from: "I just don't feel right"--in a bevy of different kinds of circumstances--"unless I have my tobacco"--to "I get mad when I can't have my nicotine."

Great logic and truth lie within the arguments for and against the use of tobacco, but, in nearly all cases (I'm leaving myself an out), if tobacco did not exist, other things and actions could fill the void better.

Now, if someone could just convince me and make it stick-- HELP!!!

Do you remember when Phil Harris, a Big Band leader, used to sing:

Smoke, smoke, smoke that cigarette!
Puff, puff, puff until you puff yourself to death!
Tell Saint Peter at the Golden Gate
That I hate to make him wait,
But I gotta have another cigarette!

Mr. and Mrs. Murl Sanders, Jr. celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with an open house at their home on August 12.

Steve Mallory assumed new duties as County Executive Director of the Trigg County ASCS Office.

Four Trigg County officials, Henry Carlross, Bill McNichols, John Calhoun and Burton Aldridge were honored at a barbecue on Thursday after leaving their post with over 100 years of service to the community.

The Class of 1938 hosted their 35th class reunion at Barkley Lodge, where a dinner was served and then, everyone went to the home of Vance Leneave for several hours of visiting and picture taking.

At Economy Cee Bee Downy fabric softener was on sale for $1.29 for a 64 oz. bottle.

User friendly

A shining example of humankind's ability to communicate and retain information occurs when a waitress delivers an order to a cook.

I've seen this phenomenon most often in diners such as the Waffle House. The customer gives his or her order to the waitress, who then turns to the cook, already in the midst of preparing five other orders, and yells out, "Gimme two, over medium, grits, bacon, white toast, buttered!"

The cook continues what he is doing and never acknowledges the waitress' order. But rarely does the cook make a mistake.

Amazing. I've known people with enough degrees by their names to start their own heat wave who can't remember their home telephone numbers.

I think what occurs in diners and Waffle Houses has to do with pride, dedication and concentration. Orders must be given and taken in the shortest period of time possible, so the waitress yells out the order but once, and the cook must remember it exactly.

All that to mention this: My friend George Johnson and I were having breakfast at the lovely Lake Nona Golf Club in Orlando, where George lives.

To the left of our table I saw something I had never seen before in the Lake Nona grill, a computer.

"What's the computer for?" I asked our waitress.

"That's how we send our orders to the chef now," she answered. Odd.

Lewis Grizzard

© 1993 by Cowles Syndicate, Inc.

The door to the kitchen is about two steps from the computer. Why didn't the waitress simply open that door and give the chef the order verbally?

I ordered a western omelette, with onions, green peppers, ham and cheese. George ordered an omelette with ham and cheese only.

The waitress went to the computer and punched in our orders. As usual the Lake Nona service was quite punctual.

My omelette was great. It was filled with peppers, onions, cheese and copious bits of diced ham.

"How's your omelette?" I asked George. "Fine," said George. "But I don't believe the chef put any ham in mine."

George took his fork and gouged throughout his omelette. There was no ham.

He summoned the waitress and alerted her to the situation with his omelette. She smiled and said, "I'll get him to make you another with ham."

Shortly, George's new omelette, with plenty of ham, was placed in front of him.

"Sorry," said the waitress, "but the chef didn't read the computer correctly."

"I'll bet," said the waitress, "if you simply had gone to the door of the kitchen, opened it and yelled to the chef, 'Gimme a western with ham and cheese and a ham and cheese!' the chef would have sent out the order correctly."

But no. The order went through a computer and a mistake was made.

At thousands of diners across the country, millions of orders are shouted out at short-order cooks, who rarely send out ham and cheese omelettes with no ham in them.

I have long been an anti-computer person. I refuse to own one.

Yet, they continue to encroach on my life. I was dictating my column to my secretary recently, who was typing it into a computer. Half way through, the computer ate half my column and we had to start over.

Computers often foul up my hotel reservations, and I saw a movie the other day where a computer tried to start World War III on its own.

And if I ever walk into a Waffle House and I see a computer, I'll know one of the last bastions of the simplest and most effective form of communication -- one human being talking to another -- also has succumbed.

Anderson and his wife Linda have two children, Mark Alan and Michael Wayne.

Stinson, 45, joined the state police in November 1975 after six years in the U.S. Navy.

"I just felt like it was time to move to something new," said Stinson, who will operate an electrical business when he retires at the end of the month.

"I have loved working in Trigg County and the people have been super."

Stinson said the stricter D.U.I. and domestic violence laws have made troopers' jobs easier over the years.

Stinson and his wife Marilyn have two children, David and Robert. Robert is a junior defensive lineman for the University of Kentucky Wildcat football team.

"This will give me plenty of time for football. No more schedule changes," Stinson laughed.

Potter, 49, joined the state police in 1966 at the Henderson Post. After his transfer, he was assigned to the investigations unit where he has served as a special investigator. Potter was the investigating officer into the alleged sexual misconduct involving two members of the Cadiz Police Department. Potter and his wife Virginia have one daughter, Jennifer.

The Mayfield post serves the 13 western most counties of Kentucky, including Trigg County.

LOCAL/STATE

THOMAS BRIDGES REUNION - At least 13 states were represented at this year's Thomas Bridges Reunion held in Trigg County. A good crowd turned out at the Trigg County Schools' cafeteria August 8 for lunch. The state of Texas had the most represented (other than Kentucky) with 6, while Tennessee and Minnesota each had four in attendance. Ruth and Nathan Thomas Garcia of Escondido, California traveled the longest distance. The youngest descendant in attendance was Christian Thomas Lawson, the 4 1/2 month son of Tom and Mitzi Lawson of Ozark, Alabama. The Thomas Bridges Association was organized in 1971 and has members in all fifty states except West Virginia and North Dakota.

Local man charged with setting car fire

A Cadiz man has been charged with setting his car on fire and then falsely reporting the incident to authorities.

Robert Glenn Cunningham Jr., 32, 164 Old Dover Road, was arrested August 3 by Deputy Gene Jones on the strength of a Trigg County District Court arrest warrant charging Cunningham with falsely reporting an incident.

Cunningham had told Deputy Kenneth Butts that his car began to experience trouble on Kentucky 272 around 3 a.m. July 5. He left the car along the side of the road and said someone later set fire to it. The 1989 Camaro was destroyed.

Meanwhile, a Tennessee man indicted by a Trigg County grand jury in 1992 was arrested August 4 and charged with failing to appear in circuit court July 8.

Joe Carroll Riley, 36, Liden, TN, is charged with two counts of first degree assault and D.U.I. - second offense stemming from a September 12, 1991 traffic accident at the intersection of U.S. 68 and Kings Chapel Road that injured Melissa Terrell and Kathryn Thomas.

Elsewhere, James S. Simpson, 37, Leitchfield, was arrested

August 5 by L.B.L. Public Safety Officer Frank Nelson at the Sugar Bay Access Area and charged with fourth degree assault. Simpson's mother told Nelson that Simpson hit and pushed her to the ground.

A traffic stop on Kentucky 272 near Caledonia August 5 resulted in the arrest of three Cadiz men.

Gary Michael Grace, 39, who gave addresses of 56 Wallace Avenue and Hopkinsville, was charged with D.U.I. - second offense and driving on a license suspended for D.U.I. - second offense. According to Sheriff Randy Clark's report, Grace failed several field sobriety tests and registered a .181 in the intoxilyzer. Two passengers in the car, Michael Edward Deloach, 33, and Steven Douglas Hancock, 32, both of Cadiz, were cited for drinking alcohol in a public place.

Elsewhere, Robert J. Puma, 18, 660 Pleasure Ridge, was arrested on the strength of a warrant charging him with fourth degree assault.

Nita C. Boyd, 32, 33 Meadow Drive, was served a summons August 5 by Deputy Kenneth Butts charging her with terror-

Construction site scene of accident

The construction of the southern bypass is designed to alleviate the flow of traffic on U.S. 68 in the future, however in the interim, the construction area has been the scene of three traffic accidents in a little over two weeks.

The second traffic accident at the U.S. 68 west site since a detour was constructed is on file at the sheriff's department.

Donald Herndon, 50, 178 Candy Drive, told Deputy Gene Jones that someone sideswiped the rear of his vehicle August 3 as they were entering the detour. The other vehicle left the scene according to the report.

Meanwhile, a two vehicle accident downtown August 5 resulted in no injuries.

Courthouse has long, rich history

Some of the information for this story was obtained from the "Trigg County History Book", published by the Trigg County Historical and Preservation Society.

SCOTT BROWN
Staff Writer

When the Trigg County courthouse was completed in late 1922, the total cost was $10,000.

Renovation work has now been completed on the 71-year-old structure at nearly thirteen times the original cost.

Trigg Fiscal Court and the State Administrative Office of the Courts added central heating and air, new windows, did roof work, and renovated the circuit court room at a cost of nearly $125,000, with fiscal court paying 40 percent, or $50,000.

The first county courthouse did not cost the county a penny—it was Samuel Orr's log cabin, located in Warrenton, which is now the Vinson farm, located at Highway 68 and the Blue Springs Road. That was May 15, 1820.

The first actual courthouse was built in the fall of 1821 and cost $1,575. Three years later a new wing was added, which cost $384.

This log house was replaced in 1833 with a brick building that cost $2,445. This building served the county until the spring of 1865.

With the Civil War almost over, General Hyman B. Lyon of Eddyville marched into Cadiz with a group of Confederate soldiers. Rather than see the courthouse fall into the hands of the Federal Army, Lyon decided he would burn it. He did permit all the records to be removed from the courthouse before he burned it.

Lyon also felt that he should "save" the courthouses in Caldwell, Muhlenberg, Hopkins, Crittenden, and Ohio counties so he burned them too.

Ironically, reports say he spared the courthouse in his hometown of Eddyville because it was located across the street from his home.

In 1915, a group of patriotic Daughters of the Confederacy led a successful campaign to erect a monument in front of the courthouse to honor the army which had burned the courthouse fifty years earlier. The monument still stands today.

In June 1865, the courthouse was ordered to be rebuilt. After a tax of fifteen cents on each $100 valuation of property was levied by fiscal court, the county's third courthouse was completed in 1866 at a cost of $7,803.

However, this courthouse was poorly designed and proved to be inadequate. It served the county for sixteen years and was replaced by a new structure in the spring of 1884. Work was completed for $12,400, with an additional $1,600 set aside for furnishings for the circuit courtroom and offices. This courthouse was the first in Trigg County to have a clock tower, which cost $600.

This structure stood only eight years and burned on January 13, 1892.

For a couple of years, county offices were set up in various buildings on Main Street.

On December 2, 1895, the new courthouse, the county's fifth, was completed. The cost of the magnificent structure was $14,648, which was below budget. Construction lasted only nine months.

The new courthouse was highly praised by Trigg Countians, but it lacked on detail that the old courthouse had—a clock.

In 1910, Henry R. Lawrence, publisher of The Cadiz Record, asked fiscal court to look into the installation of a clock. A couple of years later, one was built.

On November 29, 1920, a fire started behind William Holloway's dry cleaning store. The flames spread to the Cadiz Hotel, Turner and Wilkinson's Department Store, and Trigg County Farmer's Bank. The fire then moved to the other side of the street and burned the courthouse. As the clock tower was falling to the ground, the clock was striking four o'clock.

In late 1922, the current courthouse was completed, but it did not meet with the approval of all the citizens. Many complained because it lacked a clock tower and it was not very attractive.

What the courthouse lacked in the way of outside trim, it made up in terms of a spacious courtroom.

The courthouse has stood for 71 years. Nine different county judges have worked from its offices. At one time, the county library was located in its basement. It still doesn't have a clock or tower. Now, the spillovers are no longer located under the benches in the courtroom thanks to the installation of carpet and the tree no longer grows through the rear window and into the courtroom.

Broadbent re-elected to term as co-op director

HOPKINSVILLE -- Robert K. Broadbent of Cadiz was re-elected to a three-year term as a director of the Pennyrile Rural Electric Cooperative, during its annual meeting at the Western Kentucky Fairgrounds.

D.L. Wilkins, Jr. of Russellville and William R. Claxton of Hopkinsville also were re-elected.

Broadbent has served on the board representing the Cumberland District since February 1965.

The cooperative's annual report was presented by Quentin Fuqua, general manager. Fuqua reported that the cooperative continues to be in financially sound condition and that excellent growth of three percent in number of members and revenue sales is well above previous years.

In June 1993, REA approved a new loan for $4,083,000, and TVA approved a supplemental loan for $1,716,000 with this money to make system changes and to provide adequate electric service to the members.

He talked about storm damage suffered by the system in March and June.

Vessel runs aground in lake

SCOTT BROWN

A Mississippi based tugboat towing three barges ran aground in Lake Barkley August 7 while en route to Nashville.

The tugboat Betty Brent, of Greenville, Mississippi, was towing three barges that contained diesel fuel and gasoline on Lake Barkley when it ran aground at the 62 mile mark, near Hopson Creek and about one mile from the Henry R. Lawrence Memorial Bridge at Canton.

The tugboat was about 50 feet inside the navigational channel and ran aground on a sand bar, which was in about eight feet of water around 11:30 a.m. August 7, according to Trigg County D.E.S. Coordinator James Flood.

Eight members of the D.E.S. along with three boats accompanied the Kentucky Water Patrol and U.S. Coast Guard in securing the area while the fuel was transported to another vessel August 8.

Flood said there were no injuries and no damage was done to the vessel.

Ex-superintendent takes similar job

SCOTT BROWN
Staff Writer

Former Trigg County Superintendent of Schools Justin Minnehan has taken a similar job with the Jackson County School System and is over one month into his new duties.

Minnehan, 50, assumed his duties July 1, four years to the day when he took over as Trigg County Superintendent. In November 1991, Minnehan abruptly resigned, citing his desire to obtain a doctorate degree at Vanderbilt University. Minnehan also served a superintendent of the Danville Independent School System. He was one of 79 original applicants and selected by the Superintendent Search Committee as a finalist.

Ironically, Minnehan succeeded Dr. Roy Ragsdale, who was serving as Interim Superintendent. Ragsdale resigned under pressure as Christian County Superintendent in June 1992.

Minnehan told the Jackson County Sun that the superintendent's post would be the last one he would take.

Jackson County, located in eastern Kentucky, has a population of nearly 12,000 and ranks near the bottom in per capita income and poverty ranking, according to census figures.

Councilmen hear tax rate ordinance

The Cadiz City Council heard an ordinance on the new tax rates during its Aug. 3 meeting.

The new rates will not go into effect until councilmen pass the ordinance on a second reading. That reading is expected at the September meeting.

According to the ordinance, real estate property taxes will be 23.1 cents per $100 assessed valuation. That figure will generate approximately the same amount of money as the 22.6-cent rate from a year ago.

Personal property (tangible property) taxes -- which includes professional trade tools, construction equipment, and merchants inventories -- will be 28.1 cents, up from last year's 26.8-cent rate.

Motor vehicle taxes will remain at 26.2 cents, its rate since 1984, and bank shares at 23.0, same as last year.

In other action, councilmen donated a parcel of land on North Jefferson Street, formerly owned by Effie B. Bacon, to the Housing Authority of Cadiz to be developed into a playground. The lot is 185 feet by 185 feet. There are 37 children under the age of 12 living in that area.

Police Chief Ray White announced that he will begin a search for a part-time patrolman. Mike Lane, a part-time police officer, resigned from the force effective July 31 because the responsibilities of his full-time job would not enable him to attend the mandatory 10-week training session at the Kentucky State Police Academy in Richmond.

City Clerk Jim Lancaster reported that the city ended the 1992-93 fiscal year with a surplus of approximately $15,000. The city government had revenues of $783,072 while expenditures were $767,531.

Councilmen also agreed with a request from the Pennyrite Area Development District to assist in identifying homeless people in Trigg County.

Local band hopes to hit the charts

ROBIN CARTER

Staff Writer
At June's Summer Lights Festival, Nashville's kick-off to Fanfare, a group from Trigg County got a chance to strut their stuff.

The South Road Band has played at Main Street On Stage, the Ham Festival, the 4th of July celebration at the Recreation Complex, Piney Creek and Hillman's Ferry to name just a few of their local appearances.

The group's members are A'Neial Bell, lead singer and guitar; Clay Sholar, guitar;

Chris Jones, bass; and Jim Fuller, drums.

The group, which specializes in country music, owes its existence largely to Russ Calhoun who, at one time or another, gave lessons to most of the band members on their various instruments.

Russ is now playing with Midnight Blue.

"I really can't give Russ enough credit," said A'Neial's mother LaNell. "He got the first band together, and even though it's changed some, when he's home, he always comes to see and play with them."

Being invited to play after Mark O'Conner at Summer Lights has been a highlight in the South Road Band's promising career.

Only one thing threatened to mar their performance.

"I forgot my drum sticks," Jim said. "We were going around asking if anyone had any I could borrow."

"Now this was on a Sunday and most everything was closed," said Cindy Sholar, Clay's mom. "We finally had to go to Toys R Us to find some."

The band owes much of its success to Cindy and LaNell who put their time and money into the group.

"They listen to the top 40 country songs each week. The band learns those songs and adds them to the hundreds they already know."

As songs' popularity fades, those are dropped. The group currently does about 100 songs.

Clay's dad, Jerry, helps the band figure out how to play the songs.

"We listen to their songs and tell them if something's wrong," LaNell said. "But we can't tell them how to fix it." "The kids say, 'It sounds just like the record, only different,'" Cindy said.

David, A'Neial's dad, helps make sure everything runs smoothly.

"The group is really a family thing," LaNell said. "Everyone is as important as everyone else. It takes each of the band members to carry it off."

"When Russ left, he left a hole in the band," Cindy said. "Chris has really filled that hole."

Chris, who is married to the former Teresa Williams, has only been playing bass for about four years.

Jim has also been playing for four years. His wife Samantha and son, one-and-a-half-year-old Ethan, are supportive of his musical career.

Sixteen-year-old Clay has been playing one instrument or another since age two.

"He was supposed to play drums," Cindy said, "but he kept picking up the guitar. He'd listen to songs and try to play them."

"Mama, is this right?" he'd ask.

"Finally we decided it was time he took lessons," Cindy said.

At the tender age of 10, A'Neial has been taking music lessons in one form or another for most of her life.

Clay and A'Neial are both currently taking lessons from Eric Horner, who was Lee Greenwood's guitar player until he decided to start his solo career this past June.

Cindy and LaNell take turns driving Clay and A'Neial to Paducah where Eric gives lessons once a week.

"Their big weakness right now is harmony," Cindy said. "They haven't had much experience with that."

"Sometimes we forget A'Neial is just 10. We want her to do something she just can't do," LaNell said.

"Sometimes we have to back off," Cindy said. "We expect as much from a 10-year-old as we do from the others, and sometimes that's just not possible."

"The kids perform at least once a month," LaNell said. "They're ready to play out there now. It's just a matter of finding places to play."

"All of the kids are serious about a musical career, and we're serious about helping them. Anyone can call us for booking information."

The South Road Band got a chance to play in Nashville at what is sure to be the first of many performances at Summer Lights. The group will perform at the Trigg County Ham Festival for the hometown crowd.

EDUCATION

Local teachers attend Kentucky Vocational Technical Conference August 4-6 in Louisville

The 1993 Kentucky Vocational Technical Conference has held in Louisville on Aug. 4 through 6.

The theme of the conference was "The Challenge: Preparing A World Class Work Force."

Approximately 2,300 administrators, counselors and teachers attended the conference to gain new ideas to help educators and students improve life-long education and learning.

Keynote speakers for general sessions were Sam Heltman, vice president, Toyota Motor Manufacturing U.S.A., Inc.; and Emory Austin, author and talk show host.

Heltman challenged educators to develop the team approach, to develop analytical thinking skills and to help students learn to discipline themselves. Austin focused on how to use skills of educators and students to be more productive, positive and build self-esteem.

Each program area sponsored concurrent sessions related to their technical areas.

Several Trigg Countians participated in the conference. Joyce Bozarth, business teacher, conducted a session on "Climate of Change" for the business technology area.

Vicki Wynn, commercial foods teacher, was a presenter for the concurrent session for gainful teachers. Brenda Southwick, child care services teacher, presided at the Child Development Services Teachers session.

Bozarth and Southwick also conducted two sessions for the special vocational education, student services, and special projects program area. The topic of these sessions was "Climate of Change in the Classroom -- No Pain, No Gain."

Jackie Oakley, home economic teacher at TCHS, was recognized for her selection to the National STAR Events Task Force. Wynn also served on a panel sharing information about home economics and tech prep. Wynn discussed her culinary arts articulation program with the West Kentucky Vocational Technical School in Paducah.

Others attending this challenging conference were Clayton Burgess, assistant high school principal and vocational center principal; Connie Kennedy, business technology; Amy Underhill, marketing education; Sue Harrison, health services education; and Daniel Hale and Kenneth Oakley, agricultural education.

Trigg County High School has one of the top vocational programs in the state as is evidenced by the successes and dedication of its students and teachers.

High school teacher selected to serve on national events task force

Jackie Oakley, home economics teacher at Trigg County High School, has been selected to serve on the National STAR Events Task Force.

STAR stands for Students Taking Action for Recognition and is in place from the local chapter level to the national events.

State advisors of Future Homemakers of America were asked to nominate teachers in their respective states to serve on the task force. Oakley has been actively involved in STAR events since its beginning in 1981. Trigg County High School FHA/HERO chapters have had many students win at the regional, state and national level.

Oakley served as state chairman of STAR events when her daughter, Tara Oakley, was state vice president for STAR events. Serving on the national task force involves reviewing the guidelines for conducting competitive events at the national level, establishing any new events and selecting sponsors for these events.

The committee will meet during the school year and will finalize plans at the National FHA/HERO Leadership Conference in Orlando, Fla., in July 1994.

Rev. Wayne Glass officiated the double-ring ceremony. Nuptial music was provided by pianist Sue Ellen Hendricks, cousin of the groom, and soloist Missy Fowler. Selection included "Holy Ground," "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The church altar was decorated with an arrangement of casa blanca lilies, gladiolus, snap dragons, and seeded eucalyptus. Nine-branch candelabras graced each side of the altar and were decorated with silk ivy. Family pews were marked with white satin bows. The front doors of the church were decorated with white bridal wreaths created by Miranda Ricks.

was edged with Alencon lace and decorated with matching sequined and beaded appliques. For the bride's headpiece, shantung and beaded Alencon lace was used to create an elegant layered bow from which flowed a full chapel-length illusion veil. The bride designed her gown and had it created by Denise Williams of Hopkinsville.

The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white casa blanca lilies, bridal white roses, calycina, and English ivy with fresh seeded eucalyptus. Her baby ring was incorporated into a bouquet with satin ribbon.

Kelly Broadbent of Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Kristen Burnam, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Shelly Pisa of Louisville, friend of the bride, and Stephanie Humphries, sister of the groom. Each wore a navy taffeta tea-length gown. The back of the gowns featured a V-shaped design accented with a butterfly bow. The attendants carried white casa blanca lilies accented with an elegant iridescent white bow. Amanda and Lauren Broadbent of Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., nieces of the bride, served as flowergirls and wore white taffeta tea-length gowns accented with a navy satin bow. They carried Victorian country hoops with English ivy, baby's breath and Madame del Bard rose petals.

Steven Sanders, friend of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Terry Amis of Murray, Aaron Christ of Marion, Ill., and Robert Harrison of Murray, friends of the groom. Ushers were Eric Bleidt of Lexington and Corey Harper of Paducah, friends of the groom. Thomas Broadbent of Twenty-nine Palms, Calif., nephew of the bride, served as ring master.

The guest register was kept by Alison Jackson and Sarah Jackson, both of Frankfort, cousins of the bride. Sara Kesten of Lexington, friend of the bride, read Scripture during the ceremony.

The reception was hosted by the bride's parents in the fellowship hall of the church. Complimenting the bride's table was a silver punch bowl and tray with a four-tier wedding cake of Italian cream with vanilla cream icing. Decorating each silhouetted cake were bridal white roses, spray white roses, white cushion pons and calycina. The groom's cake was chocolate with chocolate ganache frosting. A sports scene was the highlight of the groom's cake. Mixed nut, decorated mints and a silver punch bowl completed the groom's table. Serving at the reception were Lori Garner, friend of the bride, and Tammy and Dana Shelton of Mt. Airy, N.C., cousins of the groom.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Cadiz. The wedding coordinator was Miranda Ricks.

PRESSURE CANNING

Pressure canning is the only recommended method for canning meat, poultry, seafood and most vegetables. The bacterium Clostridium botulinum in low-acid foods is destroyed when they are processed at the correct time and pressure in pressure canners. Using boiling water canners for these foods poses a real risk of botulism poisoning.

If these bacteria survive and grow inside a sealed jar of food, they can produce a poisonous toxin. Even a taste of food containing this toxin can be fatal. Low-acid foods should be boiled after their jars are opened, even if you detect no signs of spoilage and are certain the food has been properly processed. In Kentucky, boiling for 13 minutes destroys the toxin that causes poisoning.

The Canning Contest for the Country Ham Festival is sponsored by the Bank of Cadiz, Linton and New Hope Community Homemakers Clubs. Canned food is judged on the basis of guidelines and recommendations of the University of Kentucky specialists and USDA.

One consideration is the fullness of the jars. There is a recommended headspace for the various fruits, vegetables, jams and jellies, and pickles. Liquid in jars is another checkpoint. Look for spots, floating particles which do not belong in the jar, cloudiness of liquid (some canned foods automatically produce a cloudy liquid or a sediment) but in a lot of fruits and vegetables, the liquid should remain clear. Jars should be free of nicks, cracks, and white deposits. Lids should be free of rust and the screwband should be left on the jars for judging purposes. Following the judging, the band can be removed and reused.

The canned product should be done within the year. It is obvious with most canned foods whether the canning was done recently of whether it is a jar from a previous canning season. Uniformity of size of pieces of fruits and vegetables is another consideration in judging. Packing of foods in the jar will be checked.

Be careful about tightening the screwbands on jars before processing. Sometimes the directions on the box will indicate how tight the band needs to be. If the band is too tight, there will be no room for food and liquid to expand and the jar may not seal.

Low acid vegetables that must be pressure canned include: asparagus, lima beans, snap beans, all varieties of shelled; dried beans and peas, beets, carrots, corn, mixed vegetables, mushrooms, okra, green or English peas, hot or sweet peppers, white or sweet potatoes, pumpkin or winter squash, vegetable soups, spinach or other greens, succotash.

For complete guidelines on canning procedures and recommendations, contact the County Extension Office.

All educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

Bookmobile making its rounds

The bookmobile will be making its regular rounds again. Mary Jane Somers has replaced Linda Pate as the bookmobile librarian. Mary Jane has been a volunteer in the library for some time.

Mary Jane and her husband Don have retired to Trigg County from Fort Wayne, Ind., area. They are the parents of nine grown children. They have a home in Canton.

She is very excited about her new position. We believe you will find her very friendly and very accommodating. Be sure and wave at her as she goes by.

If you have any books out, we would appreciate it if you would return them to Mary Jane. Also if you have any questions or suggestions, please call us at 522-6301.

The Kentucky Summer Reading Program was held each Wednesday during the month of July. It was a great success. Pam Metts, children's librarian, puts in many hours of work planning and executing this program.

The children really enjoyed the activities. This year there were approximately 100 children attending. They checked out more than 700 books.

McDonald's Corp. was a sponsor this year. They furnished many of the gifts. Kala Dunn's name was drawn for the grand prize. But all the children were winners.

Be sure and let Ms. Pam know how much you enjoyed the programs.

I thought you might like to know that the library checked out 56,023 books, videos, magazines and records this year. We have a present inventory of 20,000 books. We have registered 7,516 patron. The door counter said 47,131 people entered the library this year. Would you believe that I talked to all of them? Hope you were one of them. If not don't let it happen again next year.

What was the most requested book this year? Scarlett? No.

Library notes

by Margaret Newby

Danielle Steele's latest? No. It was Bridges of Madison County, by Robert Waller. It is a short book that touches the heart-strings and stirs up memories of the one great lost love.

Written by an unknown writer and a forgotten musician, the book climbed to the top of the best seller list and stayed there. It has been made into a video, "The Ballad of Madison County." Robert Waller plays the lead part himself. There will be a movie later.

Waller is tall, thin and has long white hair but insists that he is not the Robert Kincaid of the story. But he says that readers insist that they have met Robert Kincaid and Francesa Johnson. They don't want to accept that the book is fiction.

Watch for his new book, Slow Waltz in Cedar Bend, due out this fall. Close behind Waller in popularity is the books by John Grisham. His books are A Time to Kill, The Firm, The Pelican Brief, and The Client. Grisham is a lawyer living in Memphis, Tenn. His career as a writer has done so well he has given up his law practice.

The most requested video was Ray Stevens' comedy video.

If you plan to use the basement this year for your scout troop, it is time to sign up. You need to let me know the day, the time, the leaders' names and telephone numbers.

The library has out a lot of overdue books. Guess you just don't realize you are keeping others from enjoying the book like you did. Also, if the book isn't circulating, we aren't getting the use of the money we invested in the books. Look around for library books and bring them home. I miss them.

Arrests

istic threatening. Boyd allegedly threatened to kill Ruby Holloway of Cadiz.

Dewayne A. Childres, 26, Alto, was arrested August 5 on the strength of a Trigg County District Court warrant charging him with musseling without a license and harvesting shells illegally.

Elsewhere, Christian S. Estep, 20, Hopkinsville, was arrested and charged with non-payment of a fine in Trigg District Court.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Randy Clark is investigating the theft of two ski jackets from a boat that was docked at the Blue Springs community dock.

Robert Lundquist, 4056 Blue Springs Road, told Sheriff Clark that when he went to the boat August 3, the jackets were missing. Lundquist had been on the boat 10 hours earlier.

One of the jackets, which were valued at $15 each, was found floating in the water the next day.

Wrecks

According to Cadiz Police Chief Ray White's report, Roger C. Boyd, 51, 2913 Princeton Road, was stopped on Main Street waiting for a car to turn right onto Brown Street. The report said a Mack truck operated by Joe O. Malone, 41, 157 Cunningham Avenue, could not stop and collided with the rear of Boyd's car.

Elsewhere, a report filed by Officer Wayne Hart said Roy Swensk, 72, 75 Linton Lane, was pulling onto Kentucky 139 near Little River Bridge August 3 and pulled into the path of a car driven by Denise C. Garvin, 36, Canton, Michigan. No one was injured in the mishap.

A traffic accident August 2 in front of Trigg County High School resulted in no injuries.

According to Officer Hart's report, a truck operated by Michael Fuller, 19, 33 Holiday Drive, pulled from the school's parking lot and into the path of a truck operated by David R. Futrell, 39, 2634 Donaldson Creek Road, who was west-bound on U.S. 68.

people, to be hired locally.

According to PADD Economic Development Specialist Chris Sutton, the loan to the industrial authority is the second awarded by PADD under the program, which began when PADD received a $500,000 grant from the state Economic Development Council. PADD matched the grant with $167,000. The first revolving loan was given to a Christian County entity.

The Industrial Authority will have 7 1/2 years to pay back the loan with an interest rate to be set at the close of the loan.

Sutton said about 10 to 12 loans could be awarded through the revolving loan program before the money begins to recycle through payments made by the loan recipients.

In other business at the monthly PADD meeting, State Auditor Ben Chandler gave a report on some of the projects his office has either began work on or completed in the past year. He included the audits of Jefferson County Sheriff Jim Greene (who later resigned), and the ongoing audits of the Kentucky Lottery Corporation and Kentucky Retirement System.

John Cubine, Deputy Secretary of the Governor's Quality and Efficiency Commission, brought the PADD board up to date on what steps the 55 member commission is taking to eliminate waste in state government.

Also in attendance at the meeting was David Shore, who assumed his duties as PADD

Executive Director August 1.

"I'm going to do everything I can to make the PADD as successful as it can be. There is no 'I'. It will be a team effort," Shore told the board. "I wear a size-13 shoe, but I don't think I will be able to fill Johnny Adams' shoes," he said.

Adams announced earlier this year that he would step down as PADD Executive Director after 24 years. Adams will remain on the job until September 3 to help Shore with the transition.

Knight and Hale "call" title their own; defeat J.C.I. twice

Knight and Hale, who finished third during the regular season, won when it counted in knocking off regular season champion Johnson Controls August 3 to win the 9-10 year old Bambino Tournament at the Trigg County Recreation Complex.

Knight and Hale won the title through the loser's bracket and beat J.C.I. 19-5 and 17-1.

Knight and Hale used a nine run second inning to down J.C.I.

in the first game thanks to triples by Chad Taylor, and Jamus Edwards. Donovan Lander later tripled as did Taylor and Brian Johnson as Knight and Hale pounded out 15 hits.

For J.C.I., Blane Ford tripled while Shad Seals and Timmy Jackson doubled.

In the championship game, Knight and Hale picked up where they left off by scoring ten runs in the first inning. For the game, Knight and Hale would hammer out 19 hits.

Donovan Lander had a pair of doubles while Jamus Edwards added three singles and a double.

The 9-10 year old Bambino League wrapped up a successful season that saw Trigg County's all-star team win the District 11 championship and advance to the Kentucky West-State Tournament.

8-11 PEE WEE SOFTBALL CHAMPIONS - The Dairy Queen Blizzards won the 8-11 girls' softball regular season and tournament title, with the latter coming August 7 by way of a 11-5 win over the Love Bugs.

Although it took one more game than they would have liked, the Dairy Queen Blizzards claimed the Pee Wee 8-11 year old Girls' Softball League Tournament title August 7 at the Trigg County Recreation Complex.

The Blizzards, who were regular season champions, defeated Johnson Controls Love Bugs 11-5 in the championship, which followed a 13-3 Love Bug win to set up the final game.

In the championship, the Blizzards jumped on top with a five run first inning thanks to singles by Allison Birdsong, Ashley Sumner, Jamee Jones, Latasha Rawlins, and Jenny Cansler.

The Love Bugs countered with three in the bottom of the first inning, with the trifecta all coming on a home run by Tiffany Fowler. Fowler's blast was her second over-the-fence home run this year and marked the first time in five years that a home run had been hit in that league.

The Love Bugs tied the game in the second inning when Heather Turner singled, Lectoria Grubbs doubled, and Carla Heckmann and Leslie Dawson each singled.

The Blizzards took control of the game with a five run third inning that came on six hits.

The Love Bugs could not mount a rally the rest of the way.

The championship game was set up when the Love Bugs routed the Blizzards 13-3 earlier in the evening.

The Blizzards opened the game with two runs in the first inning, but the Love Bugs countered with three runs of their own. The Love Bugs were able to coast to the win thanks to

TBA Golf Scramble termed a success; record turnout raises over $600 for scholarship fund

Over $600 was raised during the ninth annual Thomas-Bridges Golf Scramble held August 6 at Boots Randolph Golf Course.

A record 52 golfers turned out for the four-man scramble tournament with proceeds going towards the Thomas-Bridges Golf Scramble Scholarship, awarded each spring by the association to a graduating Trigg County senior.

The four-man team of Preston Freeland, G.D. Bridges, Jack Thomas, and Scott Brown scored 10 birdies and an eagle on hole 6, good for an 11-under-par 66 and first place.

Second place went to Gary

Curtis, Jerry Faris, William Nichols, and Don Thomas, who shot a nine-under-par 63.

According to tournament organizer Thomas Gentry, about $620 was raised after expenses, through registration and sale of mulligans.

Curry's 'Cats need fast start, or else

Observations 'n things.
If Kentucky's football team — picked to finish last in the SEC East — is going to be "better than we think," the Wildcats must have a 2-1 record coming out of the Indiana game," a veteran analyst said last week. "Because the next three games are very winnable. But after that..."

UK's three dates after IU are (at) South Carolina (on ESPN), and a two-game home stand against Ole Miss and LSU.

Then the Wildcats go on the road for three bruisers — Georgia, Miss. State and Vanderbilt.

By the time Curry's team returns to Lexington Rick Pitino's club will be having practicing for a week. And Howard Schnellenberger's Louisville team could be hearing bowl bid overtures.

Unless Curry's team is on a roll, we know where those factors would put the Wildcats in the sports section, don't we?

When UK hosts East Carolina Nov. 13 it could be the most important game in Curry's tenure here. Cheers or echoes (off all those empty seats) depends on whether UK is 5-and-4 or three-and-six coming out of the tunnel.

Key to season? The kicking game which is also the team's biggest mystery.

HOOPS SOARING POPULARITY

(Some) reasons why basketball's pop has become year round...

1. Money. (Ask McDonalds, Pepsi, Coke, all shoemakers, and other sponsors of summer hoops.)
2. NBA playoffs extend into mid-June.

3. Nike Camps and rivals have long provided a huge meat market for college scouts. Difference in the 1990s: media coverage, led by ESPN which was airing live competitions two weeks after camps had ended.

4. Explosion of summertime three-on-three tournaments (with media coverage and, in some cases, sponsorship).

5. AAU Tournaments allow high school teams (intact) to play a no-game-limit summer schedule beyond reach of high school association rules.

RIK PITINO

Kentucky's coach has done something quite special, again.

Rick Pitino announced last month that one fourth of profits realized from his benefit golf tournament Sept. 3 in Owensboro will be used to help buy a church to be used as a shelter for the homeless and hungry.

The annual Daniel Pitino Scholarship Golf Tournament is named for the coach's infant son who died in 1987.

Other shares will fund two scholarships, and to the Jimmy Valvano Cancer Research Fund. All of which brings us to Readers (Right) Write.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE

• Bob Vaughn of Springfield, Ill. (with ties to Providence, Ky.)

writes: "I think Rick Pitino is a great basketball coach. I would hate to see him leave, but I think he has done more for Ky. basketball than anyone could have. I would be sad if he left, but would not be mad at him."

• A Sports In Ky. reader in Ohio writes for LSU Coach Dale Brown: "If God ever made a player for Kentucky's system it is Ronnie Henderson, LSU signee who made the wrong choice."

• Carl Bible of Milford, Oh. predicts: "UK's recruiting class this fall — Sean Daugherty, Antoine Walker, Michael Lloyd or Allen Edwards."

COMMENT: Thank you for writing.

UK BASKETBALL

Kentucky is paired against

Texas in round one of the Maui Classic Dec. 21-23. Others: Chamaine vs. Boston College, Arizona-Notre Dame, and Ohio State-Tennessee Tech.

Coach Tom Penders' team should be loaded with (best in America?) guards: Terrance Rencher and B.J. Tyler joining returnees 6-10 Sheldon Quarles, and 6-8 Albert Bardett. And, the transfers Tremaine Wingfield, Rich Melver and Rod Anderson.

Will be interesting if UK and Ohio State reach the finals. Wildcats would face a player C.M. Newton would not allow Pitino to recruit, Lawrence Funderburk, and one the coach apparently didn't want, Derek Anderson.

ONLY IN CAROLINA

Thursday, July 29, the Winston Salem, N.C. Journal devoted an 8-page 'C' Section' to Recruiting 1993. Basketball.

The edition leads with a story on hoops guru Bob Gibbons and a segment on Allen Wallace, a left coast attorney-turned-football-recruiting magazine publisher.

The section includes recruiting reports and impact analysis on Duke, Wake Forest, North Carolina State, Maryland, Virginia and of course, NCAA King North Carolina's nation-best recruiting haul.

Kentucky fans will find interesting one writer's conclusion on UNC's Rasheed Wallace, Jerry Stackhouse and Jeff McInnis. "This class could be part of several important wins in the next four years."

"It could help UNC win another NCAA title. And, at the rate UNC has been winning the last five years, it could help (Dean) Smith surpass Adolph Rupp as the coach with the most wins in major-college history."

PREP FOOTBALL RECRUIT SERVICE

A 42-year-old attorney-turned high school football talent scout, Allen Wallace publishes Super-Prep out of Laguna Beach, Ca. Having attended Southern Cal he was smitten with football and wondered about the stories behind recruiting. After practicing law for eight years Wallace says he "wasn't happy. I was desperate."

One of the major reasons I did it was fear. When I grew older, I didn't want to look back and hear that someone had an idea about recruiting and had started a magazine."

Leaving Wallace to say, "I had that idea," but hadn't done anything about it."

He hired stringers and reporters throughout the U.S. who feed him information on top players in their regions as well as colleges players are interested in and why.

Today, SuperPrep has a circulation of 5,000. Yearly subscription rate: $59. For more information write to Box 487, Laguna Beach, Ca. 92652.

WORTH REPEATING

• Thirty-six NCAA staff members in Shawnee Mission, Kansas are driving Oldsmobiles with dealers' tags lent to them by an Olds dealership and nobody is paying sales tax, licensing and title fees, nor personal income tax.

Let me see if I've got this straight... if an NCAA investigator drives his Olds into a campus lot at UK or UofL and discovers a scholarship student-athlete is tooling around in a dealership coupe, it's cool? Right.

• Hall of Famer Harmon Killebrew visited Kentucky last week. In Louisville for The Upperdeck Heroes of Baseball, the former Washington Senator/Minnesota Twins star said, "I think I played during the golden age of baseball. As far as players are concerned, the 1950s and 60s was the best. It was a time when more of the greatest players were in the game."

Killebrew is right. From DiMaggio, Mantle Williams and Mays to Bench, Rose, Koufax and yes, Nolan Ryan.

It was a golden era too because greed was not so evident. The owners had most of the money, all of the control and the media was content to report The Game.

Beef-Forage Tour set for Sept. 21

CATTLE NEWS

Mark your calendar now for this year's annual Beef-Forage Tour, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 21, at 5:30 p.m. Our County Agriculture Development Council Beef-Forage Committee has made some preliminary plans and will meet soon to finalize the remainder. One thing for sure is the same good beef dinner as in the past. You won't want to miss this year's tour as it is sure to be something you'll want to be involved in.

Agriculture notes

ADVANCED CPH INFORMATION
The Pennyrite Area CPH feeder calf sale will again be held at the Christian County Livestock Market. This is the 14th year for this sale and it gets bigger every year.
This advanced information is especially for those who want to purchase calves and pre-condition them as well as for those that have home grown calves.
Calves must be owned by the consignor by Sept. 15, 1993. Calves must be processed (health treated) and weaned by Oct. 23. Calves can be worked (treated) between Sept. 1 and Oct. 23 to be eligible for the sales.
Sale dates are:
Nov. 22 -- (Heifers only) all counties participating.
Nov. 29 -- (Steers only) Trigg County participants (M-Z counties).
Dec. 6 -- (Steers only) Counties A through L letters.
We recommend that you have the calves worked several weeks before weaning and that you not necessarily wait until the last day to wean. Experience has shown that calves that have been treated the longer period and weaned the longest, hold up better when arriving at the feedlot.
Your first step is to set up an appointment with your veterinarian and then call the Extension Office to let us know you are in the program. There is an inspection we must perform on the calves and your pre-conditioning facilities in order to complete the required certification. Not all veterinarians are as cooperative in this program as Trigg County when it comes to notifying Extension as to who is participating.

TOPPING TOBACCO
We continue to stress the importance of timely topping. I have already seen several patches that are 50 percent plus in bloom. I believe that tobacco leaf still sells a little better than tobacco flowers, so don't put off getting the tops out.

PLAN AHEAD ON BLACKSHANK

You need to know some of the latest information on resistant and non-resistant varieties, blackshank pressure, response to Ridomil and yields involved.
The following is a table received from the Plant Pathology Department at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

- These results were obtained from over 70 on-farm tests conducted in Kentucky. Black shank was the major disease present, but the aphid-borne virus complex and black root rot were also present in nearly every test.
- Yields (rounded to 10 lbs) are those actually obtained from one of the tests between 1980 to 1992.
- Ridomil 2E was applied preplant incorporated at 4 to 6 qts/ppi. The higher rate was used on sites judged to have moderate to severe black shank pressure.
- Black shank levels: None = black shank not detected; Light = less than 10% of susceptible variety (without Ridomil) showing symptoms; Low = less than 2% of medium resistant variety dead with greater than 50% of the susceptible variety; Moderate = From 3 to 20% of medium resistant variety dead and all plants of susceptible variety dead by harvest; Severe = greater than 20% of medium resistant variety dead (without Ridomil).

Consider field curing solution

Many of Kentucky's tobacco barns are in bad shape due to weather or age and producers may find themselves in a quandary about rebuilding or replacing them.
"Before a producer decides to put a lot of money and time into rebuilding or replacing a dilapidated tobacco barn, he may want to consider a low-cost, field structure option to cure the crop," said George Duncan, an Extension agricultural engineer with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The essence of the field structure is a framework covered with plastic. There are various designs available, he said.

Three advantages of the field framework for tobacco curing are low-cost, simple construction, and the reduced labor needed for hanging and removing tobacco, Duncan said.
The disadvantage of such a structure is the added care and management to secure the cover against wind and rain to protect tobacco, Page B-6

Programs help communities

Many Kentucky counties have success stories involving 4-H environmental education programs that benefit members and their communities.

In Trigg County, recycling and pre-cycling are notable programs.

Trigg is one of five counties that will part in a recycling program this fall," said Paula Howe, Extension county agent. Through 4-H school programs, students are learning what types of things can be recycled. This experience could have a positive impact on their parent's participation in the county recycling program.

Howe said 4-Hers remember what they learned in the recycling programs. "One student came up to me and said he wasn't buying individual boxes of juice anymore," she said. "Little things like this make you feel it has been a success."

In Whitley County, water quality is one educational program.

"Water education is part of an environmental camp," said David Perry, Extension agent. "We have a stream walk to identify good and bad environmental scenes and during Clean River Month, 4-H members make tapes about the importance of clean water to Whitley County for local radio stations."

Perry said members also help with the annual Cumberland Falls clean-up.

"One 4-H family goes out each year," he said. "They started inviting other relatives. Now, about 20 people participate."

"These 4-H programs help citizens of the future become involved with the environment."

Fertilized pastures up grazing capacity

Kentucky farmers should start thinking now about lime and fertilizer needs for fall seedlings of alfalfa or grass. Topdressing time is also here for stockpiling fescue pastures.

"Stockpiling has become a common practice for many beef producers," said Ken Wells, Extension soils specialist at the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture.

"The amount of fescue stockpiled can be significantly increased if fields are topdressed with nitrogen," he said.

UK research indicates that topdressing fields with 40 to 80 pounds of nitrogen in the latter part of July or early August is a cheap way to increase fall grazing capacity, especially with fescue.

Wells suggested producers keep animals out of fescue fields after the nitrogen has been applied, and to not graze them until after frost.

"A good cold snap and low temperatures in the fall dramatically increases the amount of sugar in grass and greatly improves nutrient value," Wells added.

With appropriate stocking management, such as strip grazing, producers can often graze their animals well into December or even January in mild winters on stockpiled fescue.

Ammonium nitrate or urea are widely available nitrogen sources for topdressing, Wells said.

When using urea, there is a possibility of losing 15 to 25 percent of the nitrogen if rain does not occur within a couple of days after application.

'U-pick' fruit good for buyers, sellers

Local 'U-Pick', road-side, or farmer markets provide an excellent economic opportunity for local producers and consumers.

These "direct markets" allow horticultural produce to be sold directly by the producer to the consumer, said Forest Stegelin, Extension agribusiness economist at the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture.

Consumers feel this type of retail offers fresher and higher-quality produce than if obtained elsewhere, he said.

"This produce tantalizes all of texture, fragrance, and even hearing when a producer overhears someone praising the virtues of the products," Stegelin said.

However, 'U-Pick' farms can be a disaster if not marketed correctly. Stegelin suggested producers plan a marketing strategy to allow the operation to reach its full potential. This includes developing key marketing skills.

"A successful 'pick-your-own' operation should emphasize the need for action," he said, "because consumers, other growers, and even mother nature can alter the fate of an operation."

'U-Pick' farms have relatively short seasons that occur only about once a year. Moreover, this precious time can be cut short because of loss due to a late freeze or harsh winter.

Therefore, effective marketing procedures are critical. Successful marketers have knowledge of their own direct market outlets. They have a good grasp about the customer's needs, their competitors, and their reactions to marketing strategies.

To realize the maximum potential for a 'pick-your-own' harvest, Stegelin suggested the following for growers:

- ✓ practice sound horticultural principles,
- ✓ advertise effectively to a select audience and,
- ✓ practice sound people management and fulfill the expectations of the local retail customer.

In addition, the grower should be prepared to adapt to alternate marketing strategies to meet weather-related changes in either the speed, volume, or ripening of produce during picking season.

"The bragging rights are yours," Stegelin said. "Let the consumer know when and where to get the best, brightest, juiciest, largest, most beautiful and flavorful produce to be found in the local area for a worthwhile and profitable operation."

Rate of gain is question when selling calves

Beef producers can expect a seasonal slump in the price of cattle come late September. That slump usually lasts through November. Whether cattlemen can make more money by holding on to their calves through the slump depends on how fast they can put weight on their calves.

"Lower prices means that cattle producers need to offset decreased prices by putting weight on their calves fast and efficiently. If they can't put on weight fast enough and quickly, they may be dollars ahead by selling the calves before prices drop," said Lee Meyer, Extension agricultural economist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Producers who have enough hay on hand may find it financially beneficial to feed the hay now and sell in late August or early September, he said.

"Although farmers traditionally don't want to feed hay until winter, this year may prove that it would be financially rewarding to begin feeding hay soon," he said.

Cattlemen who can keep gains up to above two pounds per day may make more money by keeping the animals for another four to six weeks. If the cattle gain only about one pound per day, selling them now is the best option, because there is no financial gain for keeping them longer and risk increases.

"Pastures right now are thin because of dry weather. If rains come soon, pastures could start growing again and gains could be substantial," he said.

Tobacco

vide adequate protection for the tobacco for good curing without serious damage.

Duncan noted that weather conditions and management of the plastic during the cure will greatly affect the quality of the cure of the tobacco housed in the structure. Some structural designs and coverings are more durable against strong winds he emphasized, which reduces the risk and potential damage should bad weather occur during the curing season.

The structure can be built rather inexpensively if native wood is used in its construction.

"Home-ud posts of native trees would keep cash costs to a minimum if you have the time

Choice of building lumber, he said, would affect how long the structure lasts, with some species of wood being more resistant to aging than others.

Plans for the various field structures are available from County Extension offices in Kentucky, Duncan said.

Fertilizer

Rain washes urea through the grass and into the soil," Wells said. "Therefore, the best time to use urea is just ahead of a predicted rain."

Producers should also be preparing for fields to be seeded with alfalfa the fall. Wells suggested farmers pull soil samples now to determine need for lime, phosphate, or potash. These nutrients can then be spread and mixed into the soil when the seed bed is worked.

For more information about soil sampling and fertilizing fields for fall, contact your county agricultural Extension agent.

Breed cows early for increased profits

Farmers who begin to breed their beef cows after the traditionally-recommended May 20 start-up date may be hurting themselves in the pocketbook.

By starting the breeding program a month earlier, University of Kentucky research suggests farmers may achieve a significantly higher pregnancy rate among their cattle herds which graze fescue pastures.

"Two years ago, we began to notice poor breeding rates across the state," said Roy Burris, Extension beef specialist with UK's College of Agriculture. "We noticed that most cows were being bred earlier or they weren't conceiving at all."

So Burris looked at 10 years data on weather patterns and found that after June 20, the weather typically hovered over 90 degrees. Temperature that high apparently interferes with cattle re-breeding, especially for cattle feeding on high endophyte fescue.

"Kentucky has 5 million acres of fescue," Burris said, "and most of it is the high endophyte fescue type. We're not going to get rid of it, so we may have to learn to live with it. Earlier breeding is one way to do that."

Last year, Burris conducted a study on UK's herd at its research and education center in Princeton.

"We started our breeding program a month earlier, on April 20," he said. "From April 20 to May 20 we had 17 or 20 cows successfully re-bred. From May 20 to June 20, we had 17 of 21. Then from June 20 on, we had 8 of 16, only 50 percent, of our cows successfully re-bred."

He added, that certainly supports my thesis that an earlier beginning to the breeding program is better."

UK is continuing the experiment again this year, but Burris believes last year's data will be repeated.

Why would a farmer not want to begin his breeding program earlier?

"Many people don't want their cows to calve in February because it's too cold," said Burris. "My feeling is that February is really not much colder than March and it might be less muddy which would be an advantage during calving time."

February is also a less busy month for most farming activities which would be an advantage. Also, if the calves were born earlier, the farmer would have increased weaning weights in the fall, because the calves would be a month older.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Business and pleasure don't mix this week. Small problems could arise now in connection with a friendship. Career concerns may take priority over recreational pursuits. Guard against a tendency to spend too much money.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Feelings deepen in romance, and couples will enjoy good times together this week. Home life may be upset in some way. It is not the best time to have company over. The weekend finds you in an extravagant mood. Make sure that your plans are down to earth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Not everyone will agree with you this week. It is a poor time for financial negotiations, though some progress will be made in a career endeavor. You could overlook some important details now. Some you deal with this week tend to exaggerate.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Plans for shopping should be put off until another time. Some extra expenses could arise this week. Make sure you get the proper compensation for your services. Social life is active this weekend, and you will spend a bit too freely. Happiness comes through romance and leisure activities.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You will be able to bring an end to a family problem this week. Guard against a tendency to overdo, and watch your sweet tooth. It is not a good week for work interests. Hence, an existing assignment may take more time to complete than anticipated.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You could be fretting about little things this week. Try not to dwell on problems, but make a point of getting outside of yourself through relaxing endeavors. Not all is clear in the romance department. Advice you receive may be misleading. Weigh opinions carefully.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member with hurt feelings needs extra attention this week. Shoppers may come home with an unusual purchase. An obstinate partner may not want to join you at a social function. The weekend spells merriment, but watch a tendency to go overboard on spending or the use of credit.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You have charisma this week and are effective in getting your ideas across to others. It is not the best week for career interests, however. Be less critical of others. This weekend, your moods veer from over-optimism to unjustified fears. Seek a middle ground.

FREE WILLY

On the surface, the more cynical among you may sneer that this movie couldn't possibly miss. After all, it has the requisite heart-tugging bond between a precocious kid and a very clever animal (in this case, a whale). Not only that, the movie is politically correct in that it champions the "Save the Whales" movement. Yet, after viewing this flick, there's much more going on here. This is truly a stunning film. It is artistically executed, and all the actors, including the whale, know just how to get through some of the more wrenching scenes without overdoing it, as is the case with many movies of this ilk.

Entertainment Extra by Evelyn Ludvigson

Q. A few years ago, I read that Marlon Brando had a sister who was in the movies. I don't think I ever saw her. Does she work under another name? Wilma K.

A. Brando's sister, Jocelyn, did several films and was considered by many at least as fine a talent as her more famous sibling. However, she never attained the star stature he still enjoys.

Q. What's the status of Jackie Onassis' relationship with her married lover? A friend says he read he's been trying to get a divorce, but his wife won't give it to him. How does Jackie feel about that? Alice W.

A. Jackie and Maurice Templesman remain "good friends." (That's how their circle describes their relationship, although it's believed he lives in her spacious Manhattan apartment.) Apparently, the current Ms. Templesman doesn't believe she need be in any hurry to accommodate her husband's request for a divorce. Perhaps she feels, one day he'll come back home. (This was, reportedly, the philosophy of Marcello Mastroianni's wife, who endured many years of her man's mating habits with other women. She resisted divorce on the grounds that one day he'll settle down to some quasi-domestic lifestyle. It seems her patience paid off.)

In any event, neither Jackie nor Templesman feel their relationship is in any way encumbered by lack of a marriage license.

Q. A few months ago, someone asked you the name of a movie in which a man falls in love with the portrait of a dead woman who then turns out to be alive. You said it was probably the movie, "Laura," which starred Gene Tierney as the woman and Dana Andrews as the detective who investigates her "murder." Someone else wrote in to say that it was more likely "Portrait of Jennie" with Jennifer Jones as the girl in the picture, and Joseph Cotten as the man who loves her. But in "Jennie," Cotten, as the artist, draws a portrait of a young woman he meets in a park, and every time he sees her, she grows older. It turns out, she really did die many years earlier. So I would say "Laura" is probably the right answer, because that woman didn't die. Someone else did. The murdered person's body was mistakenly identified as hers. I hope this clears this up. Adele N.

A. Thanks, Adele. If anyone has any other suggestion, or wants to take issue with Adele's (I must say) very well presented argument, please write to me.

Q. Now that Tom Arnold's show has been canceled, will Roseanne Arnold leave ABC as she threatened? Vicki L.

A. Probably not. Roseanne is a very smart businesswoman and, no doubt, has herself one very good contract with the network that would take priority over some hurt feelings in the family.

Q. Has Whoopi Goldberg made any statements about her relationship with Ted Danson? Ernie B.

A. Not publicly, but I'm told she's upset at some of the things she's heard from close friends.

Q. Please tell me what Estelle Getty's real Italian name is. I know it's not Sophia, the name she uses on her show. I read her name in a newspaper a year ago, but I can't recall it. Vincent F.

A. Estelle Getty is not of Italian ancestry, although many people assume that she is, based on the brilliant performance she gives as Sophia Petrillo, the bright, feisty character who will now be moving over to "Empty Nest" with the cancellation of "Golden Palace."

Q. Exactly when will Conan O'Brien's new late night talk show debut, and what is it going to be called? Linda G.

A. Conan's new show will debut on NBC Monday, September 13, 1993 at 12:35 a.m. The show will be called "Late Night With Conan O'Brien."

Q. Is it really true that after all these years, NBC has dumped Bob Hope from the network? Kaye B.

A. I am happy to report that recently, Bob Hope signed a new one year contract with NBC. Hope, 90, will host two primetime specials with the network with which he has had an ongoing relationship since 1934.

Q. What plans does my favorite actor, Meshach Taylor, have now that "Designing Women" has been canceled? Anne R.

A. I am delighted to report that Meshach has signed on with CBS' new sitcom titled "Dave's World." The new comedy stars Harry Anderson and debuts next fall at 8:30 p.m. (ET) on Monday.

ASK EVELYN

Q. I was wondering what Diana Ross is doing professionally these days. Trent B.

A. Diana is a very busy lady these days. She has signed a deal with ABC to produce three movies — two of which she will star in. In addition, Diana will produce and appear in a 90-minute documentary about her life (scheduled to air next October). If this isn't all enough, Ms. Ross is releasing "Forever, Diana," a four-CD boxed set due in stores this September along with a 1993-94 tour of personal appearances. And, since so much has been written about the electrifying Diana Ross, some good, some not so good, Diana is penning her own memoirs — to set the record straight — titled "Secrets of a Sparrow" due out next October.

A misalignment in your body can occur anywhere along your spine. Abnormal stress and strain on ligaments, muscles and joints can end in back pain, shoulder pain, neck, leg or arm pain. Pressure on nerves as a result of spinal misalignment can give rise to a host of disorders, from headaches to stomach upsets, from kidney troubles to respiratory ailments.

Your feet are important to your over-all health. They must be leveled and balanced if your spine is to stay in proper alignment.

Your doctor of chiropractic is trained and skilled in locating and correcting spinal misalignments — the basic cause of vast a majority of health disorders. Your doctor of chiropractic can also perform tests to determine whether your feet are involved in your health problem. Your feet may need corrective action to supplement and reinforce any other therapy that may be indicated.

Wishing Well

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SIMPLY TREASURE THESE WORDS

Where is the treasure buried? Answer is stated tersely in the diagram above. BY SUNDIAL. And, acting on this clue, a treasure hunter is at work at the site.

Coincidentally, there is another significance to the words BY SUNDIAL. Number the letters 1-9 from left to right in order, as shown, and it is possible to restore the missing digits of the multiplication problem at hand.

That is to say, simply substitute number for letters—1 for B, 2 for S, 3 for I, etc. See how quickly you can make the changeover.

SURE SHOT! One of four throws is sure to reach the basket. Which one? Pick a line and then see if you are on target.

Justice will be done

One moment... please

by Harold Rose
Pastor
East Cadiz Baptist Church

John Demjanjuk, accused as Ivan the Terrible, a sadistic Nazi prison camp guard, is coming home to the United States. The 72-year-old auto worker was extradited to Israel in 1986 where he was convicted of murder charges and sentenced to death. The appeals process delayed his execution long enough for Soviet WWII records to cast some doubt on its identity as the brutal Ivan.

Two weeks ago the Israeli Supreme Court overturned the conviction and death sentence. Then it was a question as to where he could go. We didn't want him, even his native Ukraine has refused to take him back, he was a man without a country. But a federal judge ruled last week that he can return to the USA while he appeals his 1986 extradition to Israel.

Is there no end to court rulings that offend our sense of justice?

We are trying to recover from the extradition of baby Jessica from their loving parents to the Dan Schmidts. The birth female had lied about the identity of the father in the adoption process. Our courts seemed obliged to reward her for lying, ever mind the rights and welfare of the child.

Kimberly Mays is 14 years old. She is desperately clinging to the only father she has ever known and may not get a court ruling to protect her from Ernest and Regina Twigg. They are her biological parents, but the child doesn't want them. Does this not mean anything? Our court system seems always to favor the bad guys. Judges are people, and even the best of people make mistakes. It surely is a hard job, being a judge.

There is coming a day, when perfect justice will be done by the perfect person. "Rise up, O Judge of the earth Render punishment to the proud. Lord... how long will the wicked triumph?" (Psalm 94:2-3 NKJV) Many times the bad guys will come their way. But the time will be done by He who is imminently qualified for the job.

In the meantime, we are buoyed by the grace of our Lord Jesus to have patience and compassion. Let's try to change our laws to protect helpless children and never be afraid to condemn injustice wherever we see it. The court system as we know it will make mistakes. This is an imperfect world. But when that which is perfect is come, that which is imperfect will be done away.

President needs steadfast support

Everywhere I go I am constantly hearing put-downs heaped against the President of the United States. Bill Clinton is not just "the President of the United States," he is the President of "our country." He is OUR PRESIDENT. It does not matter whether I voted for him or for one of the other two candidates. Bill Clinton was the winning candidate and deserves our support as such. Five minutes after he was sworn in last January, I heard news commentaries criticizing him for not having accomplished all the things he promised during the campaign. I haven't always agreed with everything any president has done, but the most important thing I know is that I couldn't do any better; and, probably until we have a better solution to many problems facing this country and are willing to step forward and

by Martha Malone Smith

take responsibility for trying to resolve them, we need to give OUR PRESIDENT (whoever he might be) our steadfast support. The President cannot do anything for our country without the cooperation of our other elected officials in Washington. Our responsibility is to let our Senators and Representatives know how we feel on any issue and request that they support the ones who elected them by voting on issues in a manner to represent their constituents. Even then, we will not all be pleased as individuals. As many of you know, I worked for the federal government at Fort Campbell for 30 years. One of the things that made our military personnel so ready and able to defend this great country was discipline. Most of them had grown up during the depression and, more importantly, had grown up with a sense of what is right and wrong and what is moral and what is immoral. In the early '70s, the gate was opened to the "modern volunteer army." Almost overnight discipline went out the window (discipline as it had been known). In the office where I worked I saw the lack of respect which enlisted men has toward their officers after they had been to a bar together the night before. I saw young soldiers lying across chairs (Not sitting up) with their legs stretched halfway across the room. When you walked into the room, they didn't move -- they just let you step over their legs to get to the other side. Hair grew long. Respect for themselves as individuals was lost.

When we lose respect for ourselves as individuals, we lose respect for everything. I was taught that no one else could love me unless I loved myself first -- not in the current "me first" way but in a manner that is positive and reflects the thought that as individuals, we are worth something and are capable of contributing something to make this a better world in which to live.

Traditional virtues of self-control, honor, fortitude, frugality and duty seem to be held in low esteem these days. They have been replaced with what can be called "easy virtues" like tolerance, non-discrimination and egalitarianism.

American was once a country where people had moral expectations of each other and respected each other's property. Now we are a country where people have very low moral expectations of each other and feel free to rob each other through the medium of government.

Unfortunately, the solution to our problems is not easy because it requires a cultural change -- behavior modification on a massive scale. In a free society, the ultimate responsibility rests with the people themselves.

When successive generations are not taught the lessons of free governance, the entire premise of our society begins to unravel. Prosperity and freedom are contingent on the habits of responsibility, productivity and safety. We need to rededicate ourselves to the principles upon which our government was founded, our frontiers settled and old people prospered -- the values of faith, family and responsibility.

THOUGHT TO PONDER: A church that admits only saints is like a hospital that admits only healthy people.

From Tidewater Virginia to Oklahoma the rate of strokes is higher. One reason may be the lack of Selenium in the soil. New research shows that Selenium helps prevent damage to blood vessel walls by harnessing incompletely metabolized molecules. Other risk factors are salty, high fat diets, smoking and family history. Lies That Will Condemn Your Soul - Part 4

Another lie told by the religious world that will condemn your soul is that "doctrine is not important." The prevailing attitude of many religious people is, "if it feels good do it." This false idea of what is right and wrong in religious matters makes our faith subjective and not objective. We are told by those who hold to this view that truth is not absolute nor relevant. What they mean is that we can have no absolute standard by which to measure what we do in religion. Is this true? Are we to determine what we do in religion based upon our own interpretations, feelings, or subjectivism?

Our Lord said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matt. 7:21). God's will has been revealed to us through the word of truth, the Bible (see 1 Thess. 2:13; John 17:17; 1 Cor. 14:37). Our faith cannot be subjective, or according to how we feel, but rather based upon what the Bible says (Rom. 10:17). Let no man tell you that doctrine, or teaching, is not important. The Bible tells us that doctrine is all important. John wrote, "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son" (2 John 9). Timothy was instructed by Paul to "take heed unto the doctrine" (1 Tim. 4:16). Yes, doctrine is important! It makes a difference what one believes, practices, and teaches in religion. Believing a lie will condemn your soul to hell. The standard of authority in religion is the Bible and its teaching. Think about it!

BACK-TO-SCHOOL

Students go back to school on Aug. 20

Classes for Trigg County Schools will begin on Friday, Aug. 20. This will be a full day of classes for grades 1 through 12.

Monday, Aug. 16, will be an opening day without students. Teachers will begin their year with staff development on Tuesday, Aug. 17.

KINDERGARTEN AND FIRST GRADE

All parents who will have a student entering kindergarten for the first time and have not notified the school, should contact the elementary school prior to the opening day of school. Children must be five years old by Oct. 1, 1993, to be eligible to enter kindergarten. Children must be six years old by the same date and must have successfully completed kindergarten to be eligible to enter the first grade. Items required for enrollment in the kindergarten program include an immunization certificate, social security number, a medical examination, a tuberculin test and a copy of the child's birth certificate.

Kindergarten will have all-day sessions this year with the exception of students who prefer to come half days. If a student attends, all day there will be a fee for the expense of the teacher which is not paid by the state. If there are questions about the kindergarten program, contact Dr. Martha Davis, elementary principal.

STUDENTS ENTERING FOR THE FIRST TIME

All students who are entering Trigg County Schools for the first time must have proof of immunization. New students will not be allowed to enroll unless they have this information. This applies to kindergarten and all other students entering Trigg County Schools for the first time.

All new entering students must have completed a form showing they have had a medical examination no longer than six months prior to the opening of school or no later than one month after school begins. If the health exam records are not completed by a month after school opens, the student will not be permitted to attend school until the record is completed.

A state law passed the 1986 General Assembly requires that a certified copy of the student's birth certificate (or other reliable proof of identity and age) be presented upon enrollment or a student for the first time in any Kentucky school. If this documentation is not provided within 30 days, the school will notify the person enrolling the student that they have 10 days to comply with law or the case will be referred to the Kentucky State Police and local law officials for a missing person investigation.

All students entering a public school in Kentucky for the first time shall have proof of having been tested for tuberculosis by tuberculin skin test prior to entering school.

A child who has not been tested prior to entering may attend school for a period of 30 days. Further attendance is conditional on proof of having been tested for tuberculosis.

CAFETERIA PRICES

The prices for lunch and breakfast will remain the same as last year. Paid students lunches will be 90 cents in kindergarten through fifth grade and $1 in grades 6 through 12. Reduced price lunches will be 40 cents. Adult lunches will be $1.40.

Paid breakfast will be 75 cents for students and $1 for adults. Reduced price breakfast will be 30 cents. Extra milk is 20 cents per container. Free meals will be provided to those students who qualify. Breakfast will be served every morning from 7:30 to 8 a.m.

Free and reduced applications will be sent home with all student on the first day of school. These applications must be returned within 10 days in order to qualify for the school year 1993-94. Any student who qualified for free and reduced price lunches and breakfast last year will be eligible for free and reduced meals until new applications are processed.

Several regulations for new Trigg County school students

Trigg County students will begin the 1993-94 school year on Friday, Aug. 20, with a full day of classes.

Any student entering Trigg County Schools for the first time must have proof of immunization. They must also have completed a form stating that they have had a medical examination no longer than six months prior to the opening of school and no later than one month after school begins. Proof of having had a tuberculin skin test prior to entering school or within 30 days of the beginning of school is also required.

A certified copy of the student's birth certificate or other reliable proof of identity and age must also be presented within 30 days of the beginning of school, according to a state law passed by the General Assembly in 1986. If the documentation is not provided within the 30-day period, the school is required to notify the person enrolling the student that they have 10 days to comply with the law or the case will be referred to the Kentucky State Police and local law enforcement officials for a missing person investigation.

Also, children entering kindergarten for the first time must be five years old by Oct. 1, 1993. Children must be six years old by the same date and have successfully completed kindergarten in order to be admitted to the first grade. Those entering kindergarten must have an immunization certificate, a medical examination, a tuberculin test and a copy of the child's birth certificate. Parents who have children entering kindergarten for the first time and have not contacted the school should do so before classes begin on Aug. 20.

Kindergarten will have all-day sessions this year with the exception of students who prefer to come for half a day. If a student attends all day, there will be a fee for the expense of the teacher which is not paid by the state. If there are questions about the kindergarten program, contact Dr. Martha Davis, elementary principal, at 522-2220.

Jim Wallace, superintendent of Trigg County Schools, says he expects to have a good year.

"One of my big goals that I have informed the staff of is that I want us all to have a positive approach about everything we do and toward everyone we come into contact with," said Wallace.

Wallace also said that two open houses may answer questions that parents may have. The elementary open house is scheduled for 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 19, in the high school gymnasium. The open house for the middle school is set for 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 17, in the Trigg County School Cafeteria.

"Parents will need to be aware of the traffic problem on the first day. If at all possible, send the older children by bus," he said. "The traffic is pretty hectic the first day, but it works itself out in a few days."

The state requires that schools to have four Emergency Bus Evacuation Drills each year. The drills will be conducted by the bus drivers on the school campus before they leave school in the afternoon. On these days, the students will arrive home 10 to 20 minutes later than usual. The drills are scheduled for the following days: Aug. 26, 1993; Nov. 19, 1993; Jan. 27, 1994; and April 1, 1994.

Trigg County High School

COMING TOGETHER IS A BEGINNING;
KEEPING TOGETHER IS PROGRESS;
THINKING TOGETHER IS UNITY;
WORKING TOGETHER IS SUCCESS.

The faculty and staff of Trigg County High School, along with the School Based Decision Making Council, looks forward to the 1993-94 school year with renewed energy and a mission in focus. With the commitment of family and community, the mission of Trigg County High School is to educate and prepare each student to be a contributing citizen in this complex and changing world.

With this mission in mind, the council solicits any and all interested community members to become involved and work with the school by volunteering to serve on a council committee. Funding committees include Finance and Budget, Attendance, Space, Communication, Discipline, Curriculum, and Needs Assessment. Committee sign-up sheets are in the high school office.

Realizing that school programs can be organized and initiated successfully by using many different approaches and that everyone makes unique contributions, it is important that the "team" attitude be reinforced. Together, a team can be successful -- separated, the team is not effective! Your suggestions concerning ways to develop and enhance programs that will make TCHS a more
