Foreword

THIS Year Book is the third one to bear the name "Cynosure" and the sixth to be put out by a Senior Class of Linden High School. We hope by means of it to bring before the residents of the city of Linden a resumé of the academic and extra-curricular activities of the students during the year 1925-26. The books of previous years have been very popular. May this Cynosure in no way detract from, but rather enhance, that record.

Class Song

(Tune: "Alma Mater")
Through four years of fruitful labor,
Comradeship, and fun,
To the crowning of our efforts
We at last have come.

CHORUS
Linden High School, Linden High School,
Farewell now to thee;
True and faithful to thy teachings
We will ever be.

As our days here now are over,
We must soon depart;
Let us join in praising ever
The school dear to our heart.

CHORUS

On a new road we must travel,
New demands must meet,
Where the future lies before us—
Victory, not defeat.

Diary of the Class of '26

SEPTEMBER, 1922. In High School! Teachers are just getting used to us. Guess we'll never get used to them. We're the biggest Freshman Class in the history of Linden High (in more ways than one!).

October. Why don't people like Freshmen? Teachers give us so much homework there's no time for a diary.

November. . . . .

December. Had to skip last month—there was no time to write. We're getting along all right. We've decided that we like December—only three weeks of school.

January, 1923. Back again. Say—the school's beginning to believe that the Freshmen aren't so hopeless after all! We have some debating team. Alex Ladenson, Robert Carkhuff, Tibor Farkas, and Joe Sparks are good. Wouldn't be a bit surprised if we beat the Sophs—. Most fervently hope so.

February. Beat the Sophs!!! Now for the Juniors.

March. Ahem! Behold the Freshmen, L. H. S., Class of '26. Our team beat the Juniors! In other words, we're the school champions in the gentle art of debating.

April. Teachers are beginning to talk about exams. Hope they're not as hard as they say they are.

May. Joe Sparks won a gold medal in the cross-country run—no wonder they call him "Sparky". Besides that, we won the meet. We may be only Freshmen, but ——!

June. No time to write—Exams.

September, 1923. Here we are—Sophomores. The class is a little diminished, but it's still pretty big. The concensus of opinion is that the faculty aren't any easier on us now than they were when we were Freshmen. The two months' vacation doesn't seem to have done them any good.

October. Taking up French for the first time—no time for a diary.

November. Only eight more months of school.

December. We, the Sophomores of Linden High School, have decided to go on record as believing that June is much too far away from September.

January, 1924. Our debating team's getting to work again. It's the same one as last year. It will be great if we win again this year. Don't think we shall, because the Seniors and Juniors are watching out for us now.

February. We're on our way to winning—we've beaten the Freshmen in debating. Wonder if we'll beat the Seniors? Hope so, but it will be a hard job. Tibor Farkas won the gold medal in the Union County Public Speaking Contest. We have some class.

March. Again the school debating champions. Our team debated the Seniors and we won! That gives us the championship for two years.

April. Nothing worth writing.

May. Cramming for exams—no time to write.

DIARY OF THE CLASS OF '26

September, 1924. Only two years more of high school. Almost too good to be true.

October. Seems as if the Junior boys have turned out "en masse" for football—can't find any of them after school. No detentions—they're all behaving in class.

November. Awfully busy.

December. Mighty glad we get a winter vacation. Only six more months to go.

January, 1925. Debating again. Seems to be our strong point. Hope so. New team this year—Ladenson's captain, with Farkas, Sparks, and Vanderwall. Anyway, we're intellectual.

February. Debating is our strong point. Debated the Seniors and beat them.

March. For the third time the Class of '26 has the school championship in debating. Alex Ladenson and Joe Sparks are on the varsity team.

April. Spring vacation. Only trouble is that it's not long enough.

May. No time for a diary.

June. No more till next September.

September, 1925. Seniors, and in the new high school. Guess it's one of the best in the state. We'll be the first class to graduate from it, 'n the first class to have a Senior Play in it. This is great.

October. Lots of Seniors on the football team. It ought to be a good season.

November. Class has decided to give a Senior Play—it'll be a lot of work, but some fun too. Football awards came out this month—Ted Covalence made the second all-county team.

December. Only three weeks of school. Wish it were that way every month.

January. Everyone's working hard for the play, "It Pays to Advertise." Debating team's working again. It's a new team again this year—Joe Sparks is captain, with Tibor Farkas, Norman Vanderwall, and James Parry.

February. The Juniors beat us in the debate this year—too bad, but our team gave them a pretty good fight. Senior Play comes off on March 6. Did anyone ever say the senior year was easy? We've worked twice as hard as we ever thought of working before.

March. Big month! Senior Play was a success in every way. Big crowd, and everyone enjoyed it (or said they did). Tibor Farkas won a gold medal, and Ellen Swinton a silver one in the Union County Oratorical Contest. Linden debated Cranford a few nights ago and won. Joe Sparks (a Senior) was captain of the team. More yet! Isadore Tamaroff made the second all-county basketball team, and received honorable mention in the all-state selections.

April. Back from the Easter holidays. Working like mad on the Year Book. Hope it'll be a success.

May. Year Book comes out this month. Exams start first of next month—a little too soon for most of us.

June. GRADUATION!!!!

ELLEN SWINTON, '26.

THE CYNOSURE

Cast of "It Pays to Advertise"

"It Pays to Advertise"

"WHERE'S my mustache?"
"Anybody see the lipstick?"

"Get away from that curtain—you ought to know that everyone can see you!"

"Tell me—are my eyes too dark?"

"Aw, help me find my cane!"

You've guessed it—behind the scenes at about 8:14 on the evening of March 6, when the Senior Class gave its play, "It Pays to Advertise." The gods had seemed to be against that play—it may have been that they were not pleased with the fact that it proved us all superstitious. At any rate, it certainly seemed as if they'd given Ralph Hollister the chicken-pox purposely; and then Abe Warshaw was out of school for two weeks—well, to tell the truth, we were worried. However, we needn't have been, for with Miss Light's coaching every afternoon, and Miss Tuttle's managing the business end, the play was bound to go over, and it did!

All of the parts were taken exceptionally well—in fact, many people said that the presentation was worthy of professionals. Lindenites will long remember Tibor Farkas as the resourceful and hustling Ambrose Peale; James Parry, the fascinating Rodney Martin; Ralph Hollister, the gouty Cyrus Martin; and Ellen Swinton, who played so charmingly the part of Mary Grayson; while Blanche Levine, as the bogus countess, delighted everyone with her inimitable French. The color and variety which made the main theme so much more interesting were lent by Vernon Rogers' boredom with business, Sam Fishkin's indignation, Eva Gordon's petite ways, and Theodore Williams' "butlerish" air. Marion Oppel, Joe Sparks, and Abe Warshaw, as a stenographer, an elderly financier, and a purchasing agent, respectfully, completed the cast.

But there were other features about this presentation that outsiders may not have noticed. The Senior Class was giving this play in a new auditorium; it had no scenery to use, as other classes have had, and scenery was far too expensive to buy. Therefore, the class called upon the inventive genius and the "will to work" of some of the senior boys, and—yes—they built the scenery. We had to have signs, so Theodore Covalence painted them. It seems, in short, that every member of the class did his best to make the play the success that it was.

EXPRESSING SENIORS

You recognize them by:

Norman Vanderwall: "Now what was I talking about?"

Mike Taranto: "Dear, dear, what to do, what to do?"

Sam Fishkin: "C'rrect our history papers yet?"

Ralph Hollister: "Ralph Palmerr Hollisterrr, Juniorrr."

Fred Mauer: "Do your trig?"

James Parry: "Will you please re-state the question?"

Elsie Midgley: "Quit it, Farkas!"

Mauer: "I hear that you are looking for a name for your new Ford. Why not call it Opportunity?"

Taranto: "Impossible. Opportunity knocks but once."

Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1926

WE, the Class of 1926 of the Linden High School, of the City of Linden, in the County of Union, and the State of New Jersey, being of sound minds, memories, and understanding, do hereby make our last will and testament in manner and form following:

We do give, devise, and bequeath:

To the faculty our appreciation of what they have attempted to do for us through the four long, operose years of high school. Their teachings, we hope, will lead us on to nobler deeds.

To the Juniors our scenery—we mean the view from the Senior windows.

To the Sophomores our much-fought-over lunch tables. May they be ever worthy of the honor of sitting close to the lunch counter.

To the Freshmen our mistakes to profit by. In addition to the aforementioned benefits, we do further direct and empower the Freshman Class to lay claim to anything which may be left after the upper-classmen have taken their share of the spoils.

We continue in detail:

James Ashwell bids good speed to Petraitis. You can travel like the wind now, Mike.

Michael Bednar does hereby bequeath his talent as a clarinet player to James Budrecki, whom we expect to see some day as Sousa's successor.

To Louis Glick, Theodore Covalence leaves his popularity with the fair sex. Don't rush, girls.

Kathryn Mauer falls heir to Rose Engel's slimness.

Tibor Farkas bestows his pull with the faculty upon an innocent Freshman, Solomon Kominetsky. Profit by it, Solomon, as Tibor has.

Samuel Fishkin does here, seriously, grant to Somers Osmun his musical ability. It's never too late to learn.

Eva Gordon's soft voice goes to Adelaide Depew.

Jarossy, at last you have achieved your heart's desire. You will be tall! Louis Holland leaves his neck to you.

His conception of "the beautiful" "Ralph Palmer Hollister, Jr.," passes on to Abe Berger.

Our graceful Marian Jacobi bequeaths her dancing ability to Helen Sparks. Helen, Ziegfeld Follies come next.

Lillian Kalugin directs that her numerous typing medals be given to Germaine De Winter. If you haven't already started a collection, Germaine, we sincerely hope that you will do so now.

Her "petite manière française" Blanche Levine leaves to Nancy Weber. Don't forget your "daily dozen", Nancy.

After long and careful deliberation Mauer has decided that his ability in French is to go to Mannis Shapiro. C'est bien!

Elsie Midgley confers her pessimistic disregard of the opposite sex on Margaret Karakas.

Those emphatic expressions of Marion Oppel go directly to Mary Beviano. Mary, the most famous is "Leave me be!"

John Jura has permission from our James Radcliffe Vincent Parry to use his famous initials, J. R. V. P. Perhaps some day you'll work up to a middle name, John.

Most regretfully does Alice Pollack part with her insatiable curiosity to Margaret Molson.

Benny Siegel gains Essie Projansky's business ability.

Theresa Mopsick is the recipient of Bertha Rabkin's extraordinary vocal talent.

The entire Junior Class is hereby appointed guardian of Vernon Rogers' "Liz-zie". As a moving van for stage furniture it is a marvel.

Sadie Rosenblum's golden locks go to the raven-haired Catherine Carrigan. Remember, Catherine, "Variety is the spice of life."

Joseph Sparks generously bequeaths his numerous platform appearances to Harry Berzon. The center of the stage, please, Harry.

Ellen Swinton causes the heart of LeRoy Gibbert to beat ominously by her kind bestowal upon him of her needless worries over scholarship.

Captain Isadore Tamaroff leaves his famous basketball skill to Morris Winetsky.

Davidson falls heir to Michael Taranto's height. "In just proportion, we true beauty see."

Norman Vanderwall's fiery argumentative elocution passes to Charles Bouska. Profit by all that is given to you, Charlie.

Her permanent wave Adeline Wallace graciously bestows on Frances Hurley.

Abe Warshaw is allowing his position at Marshall Field's of "Chigago" to go to Oestreicher.

"Wes" Ainge, you needn't take any more books home. George Wein, as slippery as an eel in getting out of homework, leaves the "trick of the trade" to you.

That Sphinx-like air of Theodore Williams he delegates to Charles Masterson. It may come in handy on your trips South, Masterson.

In witness whereof we, the Class of 1926, the testators, have to this, our last will and testament, put our hands and our seal this twenty-eighth day of April, 1926.

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the above named Class of 1926 as and for their last will and testament in the presence of us who have hereunto subscribed our names at their request as witnesses thereto in the presence of the said testators and of each other.

Signed:

JOHN F. BARRETT

SENIORS' FAVORITE HAUNTS

Jim Ashwell: By the window down the hall.

Sadie Rosenblum: The commercial room.

Ted Covalence: The physics laboratory (compulsory).

Joe Sparks: The platform.

The "Bloc": At the back of the Senior room.

THE "BUNK" OF 1926

Rush to chorus.

No F's or red D's on report cards.

Full cast at Senior play rehearsals.

Perfect copies in typewriting.

No rush to cafeteria.

Leaving school at 2:20 sharp.

All satisfied with their pictures.

The Hallowe'en Party

TRUE to the custom of the High School, the Juniors and Seniors had a Hallowe'en party this year. It was the initial school social event held in the new gymnasium. It proved to be so successful an affair that I think I shall just have to tell you about it. All set, everybody? All right then, let's go!

Once upon a ti—no, that's wrong. Wait! I have it.

On entering the doorway I was accosted by a deep, booming, "spooky" voice which inquired, "Have you your pass?" I humbly replied that I had. After presenting the all-important orange slip, I was allowed to proceed to the gym. What a motley conglomeration of vari-colored costumes and oddly bedecked humanity greeted my astonished eyes! There were bold, bad pirates, old maids, shades of Washington, reincarnations of eighteenth century ladies, gypsy queens, toe dancers (the kind that dance on other people's toes), and even bandits and highwaymen. There was Sparks hopping around as a rather lame ghost. (He must have foreseen the sprained ankle which he was to get in the next day's game with Bernardsville. Ghosts can "foresee", you know.) As a companion to Sparks, Rogers was also a ghost—ghosts don't like to be lonesome on Hallowe'en—and they hopped around quite amiably together.

After the Grand March the prizes were awarded to Evelyn Peterson for the prettiest costume, a Washingtonian habit; Ellen Swinton for the most original costume, a Knight of the Bath uniform of towels and toilet accessories, and Miss Landenberger for the funniest costume, an 1892 Flapper.

When the exclamations of surprise, amusement, and admiration, which followed the unmasking after the Grand March, had subsided, a ghost announced to the waiting assemblage that there would follow a series of diversions appropriate to the occasion. "Then," said the ghost, "we shall eat." (Odd statement for a ghost, who isn't supposed to eat.) After everyone had eaten of the wonderful refreshments prepared by the girls, the merry-makers danced a "going-home dance" to the music of the Junior-Senior Invincible Quartet.

Actually the party is over, but it will long continue to live in the memories of the students who attended that popular annual affair in 1925.

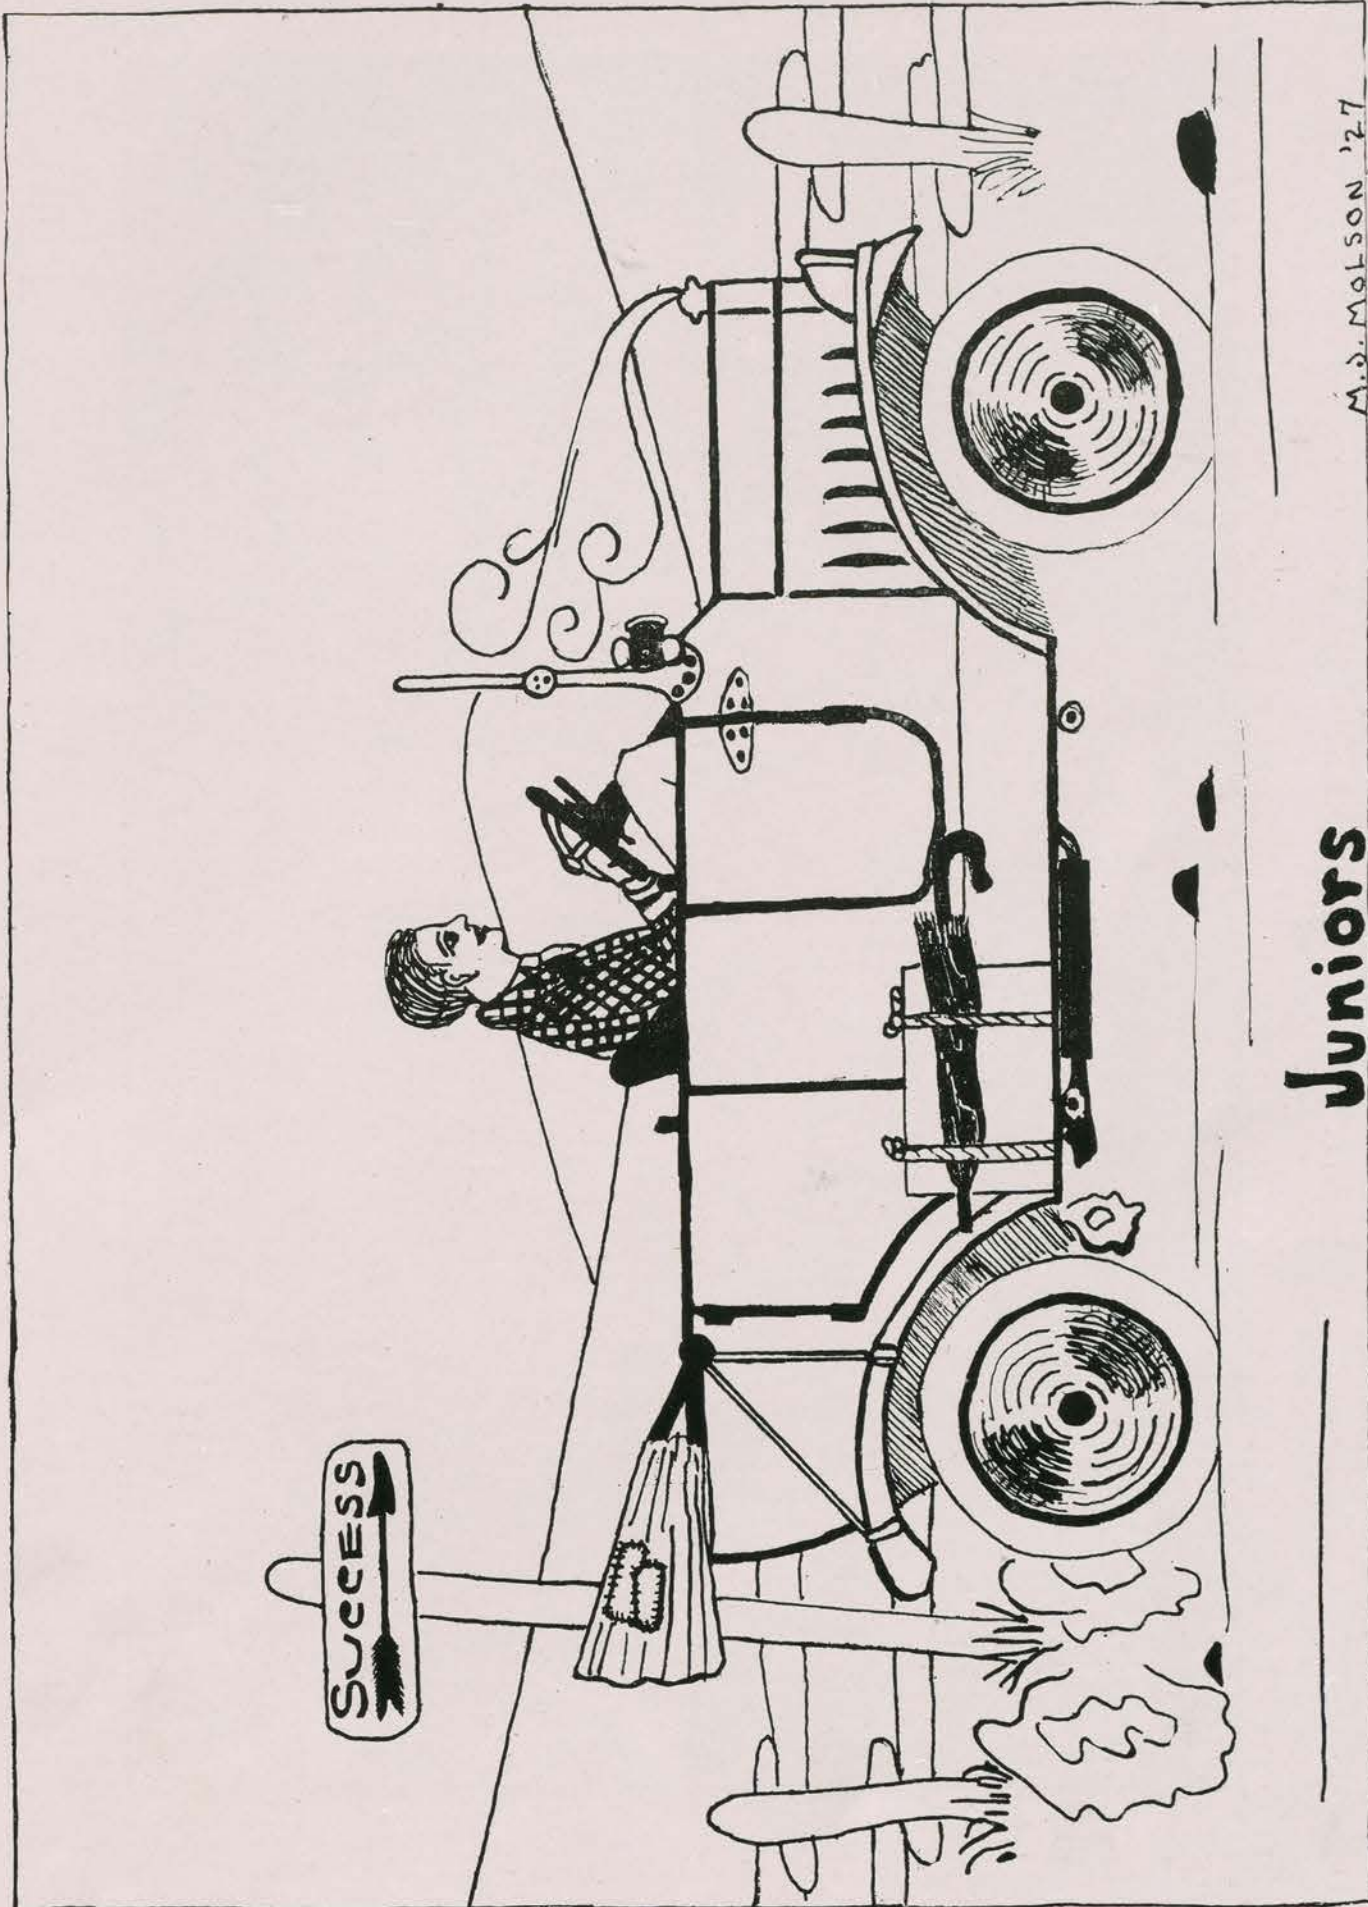

T. M. FARKAS, '26.

THE HUMOROUS POET

'Tis cold for poetry. You ought to know
Genius won't burn amid the ice and snow.
Just wait till sunshine brightens all the hours,
And flowers bloom, and birds sing in their bowers.
Ask now for prose, which works the whole year round,
While poetry is but in season found.
Verses indeed are most elusive things,
Which oft escape the poet ere he sings.
From me, o'er-worked, with lessons piled so high,
Expect no lines till summer draweth nigh.

Juniors

The Junior Class

Juniors

Jolly! You'll admit we are, because of the dances we give.
 United! We are organized as a class, and we pull together.
 Necessary! We are absolutely necessary to the Freshies, Sophs, and even the Seniors.
 Industrious! We work for the good marks we get.
 Optimistic! We too shall have our turn at being Seniors.
 Remarkable! Our extra-curricular activities prove this.
 Studious! You can't help noticing the books we take home every night.

THE CLASS OF '27

AS the Junior Class, we feel that we have reason to be proud, and justly so, of the showing which we have made during the current year. We started our good work by being one of the first classes in the school to have a one-hundred per cent membership in the Athletic Association.

We followed this success by supplying five members of the varsity football team, among whom was the captain. It seems that we were unwilling to let this honor go, for next year's captain has also been chosen from our ranks. When the members of the varsity basketball team were named, we found that the Juniors had provided four of them. At the end of the season the team chose a Junior as the next year's captain. Then again, we proved our superiority in the field of oratory. We defeated the Seniors as well as the Sophomores in debating, thereby winning the school championship, and supplied two members of the varsity debating team. And now we are proud to be able to state that six of our men are the backbone of the baseball team.

Of course, all of these teams, with the exception of the debating team, are composed of boys, but we must also mention the Junior girls, for one of them won a medal in the Union County Public Speaking Contest, and all of the members of the girls' basketball team but one are Juniors. Besides this the girls have won the interclass basketball championship.

EDWARD HOLLISTER, '27.

THE JUNIORS

The Seniors think that they are oh, so much;
 Their talk is centered 'bout the girls and such.
 Or if, by chance, they speak about our school,
 They always say they never break a rule.
 They think we're only useless ornaments,
 To sit and take in all their sweet torments.
 But just you wait and see us shine next year,
 When they vacate without a word of cheer.
 We'll step right in and show them how to act,
 How we'll get what we want, with speed and tact.
 We'll strive and strain to come out on the top,
 And when we start, just try to make us stop.

EDWARD HOLLISTER, '27.

The Sophomore Class

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

Listen, my school mates, and you shall hear
Of the wondrous events in the Sophomore career
Since the seventh of September in "twenty-five".
Hardly a student is now alive
Who's forgotten that famous day and year.

Our honors were many, our reprimands few.
If you've watched us closely, you'll know this is true.
In plays were the Sophomores always right there,
Working and giving with still more to spare.
And we were right at the top in athletics, too,
Sending our athletes so bold, brave, and true.
We did not stop there, but went on straight ahead,
While news of our glory did everywhere spread.
In debating, too, we were well at the fore,
Beating the Freshmen, as befits Sophomores.
The Varsity Debating Team did two classmates make,
Who worked with their might for the High School's dear sake.
Besides all these glories we still had some more,
Too numerous to mention, too glorious to ignore.
And the last, but not least, which came to pass,
The organization of the Sophomore Class.

Freshman Boys

Freshman Girls

We, the Freshmen of Linden High School,
In order to become more perfect Seniors,
Establish Freshman unity,
Insure friendship,
Provide for Freshman honors,
Try to promote the Seniors' esteem of us,
Secure the blessing of A's to ourselves and our report cards,
Have organized and maintained our class
During the school year of 1925-1926.

MIRIAM LIND, '29.

SONG OF THE FRESHMEN

We are the merry Freshmen,
That the Sophomores like to hound;
But we're as quiet as can be,
And near them make no sound.

We laugh when we are happy,
We sing when we are gay,
We're always up to something
(When the Sophomores are away).

So give a cheer for the Freshmen,
For Sophomores soon we'll be.
Then we'll be upperclassmen;
From their torments we'll be free.

About This Time of the Year

YOU are half awake and half asleep, not quite sure whether you're in this world or not. Everything is peaceful. There is not a thing to worry about. This is a pretty nice world after all, and —

"Willie!"

"Uh?"

"Get up right away or you'll be late for school," your mother calls.

"Yes, ma'am," and you roll over and doze off again. In your dreams you are just about to go off the old spring board into the nice, cool water when again your slumber is disturbed. "Willie, you get up this minute! It's eight o'clock already."

You roll slowly out of bed and start to dress. Ten minutes later mother, on coming upstairs to see what is the matter with you, finds you with one shoe on and one shoe off sitting on the edge of the bed and gazing dreamily at the ceiling.

"Young man, what are you thinking about?" she demands.

"Oh, just thinking about somethin'," and you go on lacing your shoes.

"Well, you had better hurry up, because you forgot to take the ashes out of the furnace yesterday, and you can just do it this morning before you go to school."

"Yes, ma'am."

You feel that you surely must have gotten out of the wrong side of the bed, for just before going to school you remember that your geometry isn't done, and your chemistry isn't quite finished. Oh, well, you can get that done before classes begin, and so you start off for school.

It seems to take you longer to get to school than you had expected, for you spend the time before classes start in the office, waiting for Miss Ebbert to write a nice little note saying you're to stay two hours after school.

The first class is chemistry. Of course you're not prepared, but that doesn't worry you, for you see the girl who you think is an angel smiling at you. This sends you off to the land of your dreams again, but just as you're running away with her in your pet aeroplane, you are brought down to earth again by noticing that she isn't even looking at you, but is flirting with that new fellow who sits behind you.

You spend your English period planning how you will make that girl feel sorry some day, and the English teacher mistakes the fixed stare on your face for interest, and so all is well.

In the study hall you accidentally get into the wrong seat. The teacher gives you a talking to, and when at the end of the lecture you absent-mindedly ask, "What did you say?" he gives you an hour after school for being impudent.

The assembly period is best of all, but just as you are climbing out on the wing of the aeroplane, and the crowd down below is cheering you on — "Willie! Don't slouch down in your seat like that. I guess you need a class after school to learn how to behave in assembly."

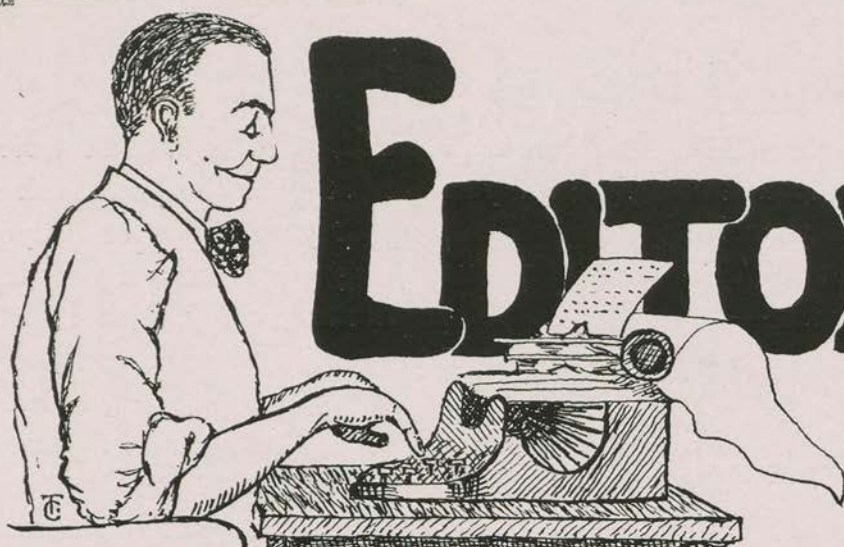

"Yes, ma'am."

After lunch comes another study period. About this time of day you decide to settle down and do some work. You are determined to have your French homework perfect. You translate one sentence, and the next thing you know, the period bell rings, and it is time for French.

In some way or other, you manage to get through French class, and after keeping your various appointments, you start for home. At last the school day is over. Maybe you'll be able to do something now without being yelled at. You slip into the house bent on experimenting with your new radio set, but before you are half way up the

THE past school year, the first one in the new building, has been a very eventful one as far as the students of Linden High School are concerned. To be sure, the regular school routine was somewhat late in getting started, as the building was still in the final stages of construction. But when a regular schedule was established, things went along with vigor. In this new building the students have every comfort and convenience a school can offer, and it must be said that they have responded to the better facilities which have been provided for them.

In all of the extra-curricular activities which the high school participated in, it has had a very creditable, even enviable, record. On the football field the boys did very well, considering the fact that the majority of them were playing for the Orange and the Black for the first time. This year, too, we had one of the best basketball squads the school has had in years.

But it was not only in athletics that the school stood out prominently. In the County Speaking and Oratorical Contests, it showed its brand of scholarship by taking one medal in the speaking contest and two in the oratorical Contest. In debating, Linden High broke through its four-year run of ill-luck by administering a decisive trouncing to the Cranford team.

When we review these various meritorious accomplishments of our school this year, we cannot help but feel that it has been a very successful term, one that everyone connected with the school, as well as the citizens of Linden, who support the school, can be justly proud of.

Let us keep up the good work, always remembering "Thus far, and further."

IS every student getting the most he can out of his high school training? This is a question which is vitally important to the parent or guardian of the high school student, but even more so to the student himself. In the high school he is given a chance to develop and fit himself for life, and it is his duty to make the most of his opportunity. Many of the students do realize this and do their best, but there are some who are content to sit back and leave the work for others to do; some who are content just about to pass their subjects. If this were the attitude taken by the rest of the students or by the faculty, it can easily be seen that there would not be much progress made. So it is to these students who, perhaps unintentionally, but nevertheless really, are neglecting their work or are not doing all that they can do to aid the school, that we make this appeal. Let us all get right down to work and do whatever we're asked to do, whether it is homework or some task outside of the regular school curriculum. If we do this, we can justly say that we have done our bit toward keeping the status of the school at the high standard which it has attained.

DEBATING

THE 1926 debating season opened with a spirited contest between the forensic representatives of the Junior and Senior classes, from which the former emerged victorious at the expense of the three-year champions. The triumphant Juniors then proceeded to administer the same dose to the Sophomores, winners of the Sophomore-Freshman debate. Hail to the champions of 1926: Wesley Ainge, captain; Margaret Molson; John Jura; and Abe Berger!

Once again Linden joined the Rutgers Interscholastic Debating League, sending Joseph Sparks as official delegate to the conference at New Brunswick on February 9. At the conference Linden was grouped with Cranford, Verona, and Millburn. The question decided upon for debate was, "Resolved: That the United States Government Establish a Separate, Unified Air Force." Under the capable direction of Mr. Barrett, debating coach, a first and second team was organized, and a trial debate between the two was held shortly before the contest with Cranford.

On the evening of March 19, before an audience which filled the auditorium almost to capacity, the varsity team, consisting of Joseph Sparks, captain; Wesley Ainge; John Jura; and Norman Vanderwall, alternate, won a 3 to 0 decision from Cranford. This victory entitles Linden to debate Millburn, the victor of the Millburn-Verona contest, for the championship of the group. The debate will take place at Millburn on May 14. Our team is going after the championship banner with a will and hopes to bring it home to Linden.

After the debate with Cranford, the resignation of John Jura and Norman Vanderwall, on account of the pressure of other activities, necessitated a reorganization of the varsity team. The new team consists of Joseph Sparks, captain; Wesley Ainge; Irene Molson; and Genevieve Doktor, alternate. It is this team which will uphold the negative side of the Air question in the championship debate at Millburn. Throughout the season the varsity debaters have been fortunate in the expert guidance of Mr. Barrett and the helpful co-operation of Eva Gordon, Essie Projansky, and Louis Glick, of the second team.

CLUBS

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB

EARLY in the fall the Commercial Club planned the activities that were to carry it through the year. We can say now that we have had the utmost co-operation from every member and feel that each one has been benefited in some way.

Our business meetings have been conducted in a strictly business-like manner. In every way possible the club has tried to be an honor to the school. Though we have not done anything to startle the city, we have done much to stir up and enliven the school.

In October, members of the club staged a Hallowe'en play for an assembly period. If you remember, the stenographer had a dream, while at the office, about a party she was expecting to attend. While she slept, Sadie Rosenblum, with the assistance of four other clowns, gave a good exhibition of a clown dance. Following a gypsy dance by six girls, Lillian Caroff and Ray Gordon gave a very pretty fairy dance. In fact, the atmosphere of the whole was very much like Hallowe'en. The sketch was so successful that we decided to present an evening play. However, in spite of the great amount of work done by our faculty adviser, Miss Duncan, the play had to be postponed for this school year because of lack of time.

In December, we gave a "Christmas Surprise". This was an afternoon dance with several short acts during the intermissions. Many attended, and the financial returns, plus the entertainment, made it a success.

We were honored during the year to have Mr. Forrest Farmer, of the Linden National Bank, attend one of our meetings. He gave us a talk on "The Value of Saving and the Use of Banks."

In May, our Senior teams, all members of the Commercial Club, expect to gain new laurels at the State Typewriting and Shorthand Contest to be held this year in Newark. They are working hard to keep up the record established last year, when Linden won the State Typewriting Championship.

The officers of the club for 1925-1926 are:

President: Blanche Levine
Vice-President: Essie Projansky
Secretary: Rae Weinstein
Treasurer: Adeline Wallace

La Societe Francaise

La Societe Francaise

PARLEZ-VOUS FRANCAISE? If so, report to Mr. Bancroft's room the first Thursday of any month and meet "La Société Française."

For four years the French Club has been considered one of the leading organizations of the High School. The membership, the personality of its officers, and the good order maintained at its meetings have won for the club deserved recognition. "La Société Française" offers the students a valuable opportunity to increase their knowledge of the French language—the real key to an understanding of French thought and life. This is the ideal to which "La Société Française", under the leadership of the following officers: Ellen Swinton, president; Eleanor Kozlowsky, vice-president; Blanche Levine, secretary; Rose Gutkin, treasurer; and Anna Kalugin, corresponding secretary, is pledged. To this end the society has adopted a very progressive program—good speakers at its meetings and an adequate opportunity for discussion in French.

THE HIGH SCHOOL ORCHESTRA

"O music! sphere-descended maid, Friend of Pleasure, Wisdom's aid!"

BECAUSE there has been a teacher of music this year, we have had for the first time an organized and really dependable orchestra. This orchestra was formed in the early part of the school year, when the following officers were elected: president, Samuel Fishkin; treasurer, Alice Pollack; and secretary, Irene Molson. After several earnest practice periods the orchestra was ready to begin its career of service to the school. Many numbers were included in its repertoire, and their successful interpretation drew forth much favorable criticism. At present the orchestra has to its credit successful performances on the following occasions: The Japanese operetta, the Senior play, the Cranford-Linden debate, and the Union County Oratorical Contest.

The success of the orchestra this year has been due in large measure to the criticism and the painstaking care which its director, Miss Tams, has given it at all times.

SAMUEL W. FISHKIN, '26.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

THE presence of a supervisor of music this year has been responsible for the organization of a Girls' Glee Club in Linden High. Under the leadership of Miss Tams the club has had a most auspicious year. Its membership has been large, and its meetings enthusiastic; in many ways its cooperation in school activities has been helpful. The big event of the year for the club was the successful performance of an operetta, "The Japanese Girl," on January 16.

This year it was the policy of the club to elect officers each semester. Those serving during the first semester were: president, Lillian Smith; vice-president, Irene Molson; secretary, Ethel Tondora; treasurer, Margaret Danninger; librarian, Helen Hickey; and recorder, Margaret Molson. The officers for the second semester were: president, Blanche Levine; vice-president, Julia Motylewicz; treasurer, Camilla Taranto; secretary, Sadie Rosenblum; and librarian, Theresa Mopsick.

ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL

WITH ever-increasing interest, football has come into a very important position in athletics in the high school. The 1925 team, while it did not win the major part of the games on its schedule, did make wonderful strides in its effectiveness in attack and defense. Out of a schedule of nine games, Linden succeeded in winning four. Our team was handicapped by a number of accidents to its players, which resulted in the loss of games that should have been won. Linden's four victories were over North Plainfield, Woodbridge, the Pingry Reserves, and the Alumni. Its defeats were by Roselle, Roselle Park, Millburn, Bound Brook, and Bernardsville.

Too much credit cannot be given to the hard work of Coach Cooper and Mr. Beck, who developed the forward-pass play which was carried out by the splendid teamwork of Sparks and Ashwell, and which enabled us to roll up such good scores. This was evidenced by the splendid game at North Plainfield, from which Linden emerged victorious by a score of 25 to 0. Ashwell's work placed him second highest in the scoring of points in the county. We have also reason to be proud of the work of Ted Covalence, which was most commendable. Ted was awarded a place on the second All-County team at the close of the season.

At all of our games the team was well supported by the student body. This was most encouraging to the players at the critical points of the games. Certainly the 1925 football season was a success, and as we look forward to 1926, we can expect great things under the leadership of Captain-elect Sydney Atkin.

At the close of the season letters were awarded to the varsity team and the manager.

THE BOYS' BASKETBALL TEAM

WHEN the Linden High School basketball team defeated the Alumni quintet, one of the most successful basketball seasons in the history of the school was completed. With much better facilities for playing home games, the 1925-1926 team met defeat only twice on their home court in ten encounters.

Much credit must be given to Coach Ted Cooper, who created such a formidable aggregation. Having lost four varsity men last year by graduation, Coach Cooper, with Captain Tamaroff as a nucleus, developed a splendid team. Its record is ten victories in nineteen contests. During the season Linden defeated such teams as Roselle, Roselle Park, Cranford, North Plainfield, Carteret, Millburn, and Woodbridge on one or more occasions. In the annual state tournament, however, Linden was nosed out by Rahway High School by the score of 21-17, although the Linden High boys led for three quarters of the game.

Captain Isadore Tamaroff, who played remarkably well throughout the season, was rewarded with a guard position on the second All-County team. His stellar offensive playing gained him recognition on the All-State team. Charles Bouska, captain-elect, played a very fine brand of basketball, while Rosears Givens' performance won for him mention also on the All-County team. A precedent was established this year in the organization of a second team. Under the able tutelage of Coach Cooper, the team showed up so well that material for future varsity teams is assured.

At the close of the season letters were awarded to members of the varsity team and to the manager, James Parry.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

IT seems that this national indoor pastime has taken hold of our girls as well as our boys. When the first call for basketball practice was issued, a great number of aspirants were on hand. With a gymnasium which compared favorably with the best in the county, and under the capable direction of Miss Siegman, the team made a very creditable showing. Five outside games were played during the season, and of this number the team won two.

The opening game of the season was lost to the St. Benedictine girls after a hard-fought tussle by the score of 27-26. On two occasions Linden was defeated by the Roselle High team, which captured the county title. In the return game with the St. Benedictine lassies, Linden, after an extra period of play, defeated the Elizabethans by the score of 10-9. The most impressive game of the season was that with the Alumnae. This encounter evened up the defeat experienced at the hands of the Alumnae the year before. The score of the game was Linden 27, Alumnae 10.

The playing of Margaret Molson, who scored practically all of her team's points, was exceptionally fine. Captain Ethel Tondora, Margaret Berry, and Margaret Karakas also played consistently well throughout the season.

At the close of the season letters were awarded to members of the team and to the manager, Marion Oppel.

INTERCLASS SPORTS

Boys' Interclass Basketball

THE Freshmen have the honor of being the first Freshman class in Linden High to win an interclass basketball championship. As all varsity players were barred from interclass activities, the Freshman team, which was composed of the members of the second team of the high school, had an easy time in emerging victorious over the other classes. In recognition of their signal success each member of the winning team will receive his numerals.

Girls' Interclass Basketball

Interclass basketball between the girls proved very exciting this year. In order to stimulate more interest in this sport, Miss Ebbert, principal of the high school, donated a silver loving cup to the winner of the interclass series. As in the case of the boys, varsity players were ineligible to compete in interclass activities. Under these restrictions the Junior team proved by far the best. It consisted of F. Hurley, captain, E. Peterson, M. Beviano, M. Nolan, T. Mopsick, G. DeWinter, and E. Rogers, substitute. As a reward merited by their skillful playing, each member of the winning combination will have her name inscribed on the handsome cup.

Miss Tuttle (at the beginning of English class): "Where's Charles Masterson?"

Several pupils (at once): "He's down in Virginia."

Miss Tuttle: "What did he go there for?"

Margaret Molson: "Oh, for a week."

"Do you know that Jones, the fellow with the spiffy car, made his pile in graphing?"

"Graphs?"

"No, autographing—he's a ballplayer and autographs balls."

BASEBALL

ALTHOUGH the baseball season of 1926 will be only fairly begun as this book goes to press, the opinion about the school is that a promising season may be expected. The varsity team of 1925 is practically intact this year, there being only one position to be filled. James Ashwell has been elected captain, and Edward Hollister manager. With the ability and experience of the members of the team and the expert coaching they will receive, it is not too much to hope that the county baseball championship will rest in Linden for the year. As is the usual custom, letters will be awarded to the varsity team and the manager at the close of the season.

LINDEN HIGH SCHOOL

No matter if our teams are small,
No matter if they're light,
E'en if the other teams are tall,
We're always there to fight.

We fight our hardest, try to win,
We play until we're sore,
But if we lose, we always grin,
And come again for more.

If other teams come over here,
And trim us fair and square,
-We always take it with a cheer,
And say the "ref" was fair.

We always hold to these three things:
Play fair, play hard, be gay;
No matter what the outcome brings,
'Tis ever Linden's way.

LOUIS GLICK, '28.

LINDEN HIGH WINS DEBATING CHAMPIONSHIP

This, the latest addition to "The Cynosure", is wonderful news for Linden. On the evening of May 14 some 250 students and townspeople traveled to Millburn to cheer our debating team to a 5-4 victory over Millburn High School. This victory over Millburn means that Linden High School, as the champion of its group, will receive the Rutgers trophy for 1926.

ALUMNI NOTES

LINDEN High School is proud of the fact that one of its alumni, Leon Herman, '22, has been rewarded for his high academic standing at Rutgers University, where he is a senior, by election to Phi Beta Kappa.

Harry Spillinger, '20, who last year was graduated among the first ten of his class from the United States Military Academy at West Point, is now a lieutenant in the aviation corps at Kelly Field, Texas.

Helen McManus, Marie Franke, and Dora Herman, '24, will be graduated in June from the Newark Normal School, and Adeline Stoll, of the same class, from the Trenton Normal School.

Beatrice Fornwald, '22, is completing the fourth year of her course in the New Jersey College for Women.

Irene Danninger, '23, who was graduated from the Montclair Normal School in February, is now teaching at Colonia.

stairs — "Is that you, Willie?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Well, you change your clothes and get down into that cellar right away. I thought I asked you to take the ashes out this morning."

At last the cellar is all cleaned up, and there is nothing else to take your time. You go up to your room, and on thinking over the events of the day, decide that it is a pretty hard life. Then you remember that your uncle has invited you to his camp (which is on the edge of a nice big lake) for the month of July. This thought makes you feel one hundred per cent better, but just as you are thinking of the wonderful times you had at the lake last summer, your attention is drawn to an article in the newspaper which reads, "Scientist Predicts Snow on Fourth of July—Summer of '26 will not be a summer at all."

Well, I've found that you feel much better after writing down all your troubles in black and white. The more times you read them over, the funnier they seem. I really hope you will get as much amusement from the above diary as I have.

Teacher (during discussion of "Robin Hood"): "Now, Siegel, don't you think Robin Hood was the master thief of them all?"

Siegel: "No, Atlas was. It took some nerve to hold up the world."

GOOD RESOLUTIONS, BUT—

THE world probably would have seen the greatest electrical engineer come from Linden High School, because John Jura made a firm resolution to become one, BUT Santa Claus came along and presented him with a set of drums which immediately offset his plans. Now we hope Paul Whiteman will recognize him.

Likewise, Edward Hollister made a resolution to surprise the chemistry instructor by handing his notes in on time, BUT will power lost out, and Edward as usual was found after school finishing up his notes. Let's hope will power "takes the cookie" next time.

"I hereby resolve to become a great poet some day," said Kenneth Carkhuff, better known as "Shakespeare." When he made this resolution he was preparing a poem for an English assignment. He probably would have become a great poet, BUT he received a low grade on his poem and lost all ambition. Now I hear he is excelling in some other line. I hope he succeeds.

Le Roy Gibbert resolved not to be reminded any more to take off his lumber jacket when he went to physical training, BUT before he even had a chance to take it off, he was reminded about it. This was five minutes after the period began.

The Junior boys' class basketball team resolved to win the Interclass Basketball Championship, BUT the Sophomores misunderstood their meaning and defeated them. However, they still hold to their resolution to win it next year.

On New Year's Day Harry Berzon resolved that hereafter when a teacher asked him a question he would say, "I know," with full explanations, BUT unfortunately he lost one of his books the next day, and when the teacher asked him where it was, he was forced to say, "I don't know," with little explanation.

Wee William Weisbrot made a resolution that he would try his utmost to be a little bigger, BUT I'll fool you this time. He carried out his resolution. After the Easter holiday we found William sporting a new suit, with his first "longies," which make him look like a big man.

Benjamin Siegel was heard to make a firm resolution to become a star motion picture comedian, BUT as he was going to apply for a star position, he found out that Harold Lloyd had got in just before him. Too bad.

Charles Bouska made a good resolution, BUT he forgot what it was. I will stop here until he reminds himself.

ABE BERGER, '27.

Teacher: "A biped is anything that goes on two feet. Can anyone give me an example?"

Houlroyd: "Yes, ma'am, a pair of stockings."

Davidson: "Say, do you know why you haven't red hair?"

Clayton: "No."

Davidson: "Well, you know, ivory doesn't rust."

Senior: "I'd like to go to the ball game. May I make up my time tomorrow?"

Teacher (amazed): "What! Not going to the dentist's or anything like that?"

Senior: "No, just to the game."

Teacher: "An honest baseball fan. Go ahead."

Sophomore: "A Freshman removed his hat the other day in the presence of a Senior."

Junior: "What happened?"

Sophomore: "The Senior is home now with a case of brain fever."

A LINDEN SOPH

Always smiling,
 Never gloomy,
 Helpful, willing,
 Never sad.
 Very friendly, oh, so truthful—
 Each and every lass and lad.
 Loves his neighbor,
 Is a real sport;
 No, indeed, he is no bore!
 Not a knight from some old fable—
 Just a Linden Sophomore.

MARGARET BERRY, '28.

THE CYNOSURE

---

"Silence is golden."

But not when your teacher calls on you for an English recitation.

---

"History repeats itself."

Napoleon spoke rather poor French in his youth—so do we.

"People who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

Or as the intellectual child would have it: "Individuals residing in transparent edifices should refrain from hurling geological missiles."

Margaret Molson (during First Aid period): "Miss Siegman, I wonder why they call dentists' offices parlors?"

Ethel Tondora (interrupting from the back of the classroom): "Because they're drawing rooms!"

---

"Now down at my bank, er——."

Who says it? Right! Ezayuk.

---

Teacher: "Jack, why is your history paper like Frank's?"

Jack: "It must be because history repeats itself."

Teacher: "Where's your grammar?"

C. Miles: "She's dead."

---

E. King: "Helen, do you like gym?"

H. Kalocy: "Yes, isn't he just adorable?"

---

Some of the Seniors will start as office boys and go right up the ladder to wash windows.

---

"Jim, do you know that one man is knocked down by an automobile every twenty minutes in Los Angeles?"

"Gee! you would think it would tire him out."

Correct this sentence:

The group consisted of high school students and freshmen.
