Despite the very obvious fact that 1932 has been a year of retrenchment in practically every field of endeavor, it has given to the field of education an amazing vigor. It is the higher field of education which has enjoyed this unprecedented prosperity. The elementary school enrollment has remained static, while colleges and high schools have been forced to expand in order to contend with the situation.

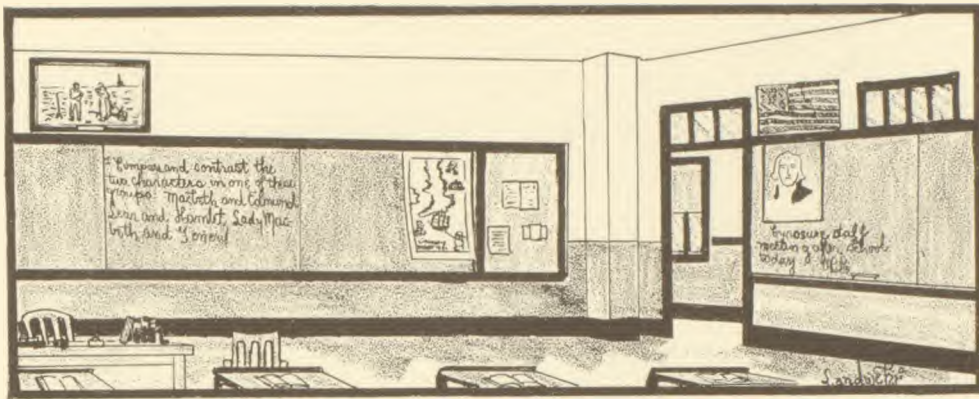

The closest example of the effects of this situation is the one we have in our own school. At a time when building is practically at a standstill a construction project is under way which is employing hundreds. This work is the building of an addition to our school. There is no retrenchment in education in our city.

The efficiency of Linden's High School unit will be increased many fold by the extensions which are now taking place. The increase in efficiency will be evinced in many phases of school life. New facilities such as vocational shops and real office equipment will provide new subjects as well as new methods of teaching. Existing gymnasium and library facilities will be extended to be of greater service through the increase of space and equipment.

The discomfitures which arise from overcrowding of schools need not be emphasized, since we are enjoying a minimum of them. The presence of a construction project cannot be disregarded. Social activities have been curtailed by the inability to use the gym. Riveting machines and steam shovels have disturbed classes and assembly gatherings. The orchestra has had to be divided to play at two assemblies.

Yet, the stagger system of studying has done much to ease a condition which would otherwise have brought about graver difficulties. It would have meant dividing the day into two parts with one section vacating to make room for another. It was possible, however, to have the upper classes report at eight o'clock, with Freshman sections entering the building at various times up to twelve o'clock.

This year our athletes, in spite of the handicap of the impossibility of using the athletic field, made unsurpassed football and basket ball records. Scholastic standards have been kept high. Next year with the improved facilities we shall look for a steady advance in our already excellent attainments.

A word of sound advice
Given with a smile.

Curricula

Recent developments in the field of education brought about by the increased enrollment in high schools throughout the country are affecting our own school. Those who are at present entering and remaining in high school constitute a group who are essentially different from the more academic-minded student bodies of former years. Since industry now excludes in a large measure those who have formerly left school at the earliest legal age, they must direct their energies toward other goals. Many come to high school when they discover the futility of obtaining positions in industry. Such students, who do not intend to go further in study, are not interested in the same subjects as their college preparatory colleagues and demand courses that will be of practical value to them upon graduation. The great increase in Commercial students is explained by this influx of practical minded and serious minded types. In our own school, beside the addition of subjects to the courses of study there have been revisions in the existing courses to meet these new needs.

One of the most popular curriculums is the Commercial course. It proves to be the most practical course, for our graduates can enter business directly upon graduation. Our Commercial course includes cultural subjects such as social sciences, literature, and languages. Business Practice, studied in Freshman and Senior years, is a general course in business procedure. In the Freshman course it covers such fields as filing, business forms and methods of communication. The Senior course aims to broaden further the knowledge of procedure and to develop secretarial ability.

Shorthand, which may be taken as a two-year course, consists mainly in the acquirement of mental and physical habits of alertness and concentration. The speed requirement for transcription at the end of two years is one hundred twenty-five words per minute. Typing is one of the cogs in the machinery which turns out expert stenographers. It teaches concentration and alertness, which are essential requirements for shorthand. The first year of typing teaches technique; the second emphasizes speed and accuracy.

In the first year of Bookkeeping the routine work of learning the theory of debit and credit and the terms used in bookkeeping is accomplished. Bookkeeping I is compulsory for all Sophomore Commercials. If Bookkeeping II is taken in the eleventh year, Stenography Intensive is taken in the Senior year. If Bookkeeping II is not studied in the eleventh year, it is replaced by Stenography I, which is followed by Stenography II.

Some of the most interesting work is carried on in Salesmanship and Advertising classes. Sales talks, making of signs, the discernment of truth in ads and the use of scrapbooks all aid in this, one of the fields with which everyone has daily contact. To know what goes into articles of everyday consumption, where they are made, and how they reach us, are questions which are answered in Commercial Geography. Commercial Law does not aim to make lawyers of high school students, but it does aid greatly in teaching common sense in legal matters. Dramatizations of cases with the attendant court formalities prove to be quite lively and interesting. In this way the points of law are impressed upon the participants.

Of the four languages taught in Linden High School English and Latin are taught four years and French and German are taught three years. Foreign languages are not taken up exhaustively, but with a view toward providing a base upon which to build as the student wishes. The library contains a collection of foreign books and periodicals suitable for student research.

English is a compulsory four-year subject in all courses. The study of drama, poetry, novels, biography, and essays is carried along with the study of grammar. The study of these forms of our literature is commenced by the reading of a classic by the entire group. A reading list which suggests further study is then offered. Under the "Three-Level System" pupils with greater reading and research ability may proceed ahead of their class. The first "level" takes care of the essentials which the pupil must know to obtain a passing grade. In the second "level" the student reads more widely in the subject. He must possess fair facility in the use of English in composition and oral report. The third "level" challenges the exceptional pupil by requiring a still wider reading range and more originality and diversity in composition.

Latin, compulsory for classical students, is by no means the "dead language" it is sometimes called, since it is so closely connected with the modern languages. The first and second years of our Latin course are devoted to the study of grammar. During the second half of the course Cicero's "Orations" and treatises and various books of Vergil's "Aeneid" are translated. Ovid's "Metamorphoses" are read near the close of the fourth year.

All students who require a language may choose between French or German. The first two years in either course familiarize the student with the fundamentals of vocabulary and grammar. Oral recitation is encouraged, but not with the idea of developing a speaking ability. Songs and verse provide pleasing breaks in the routine work of declensions and conjugations. During the third year outside reading, book reports, oral reports, and class discussions on the customs of foreign countries and their histories or the lives of famous men became the order of the day.

Our course in Problems of American Democracy promotes great interest in government. Lively discussions on current topics make it very informative. United States History and Problems of American Democracy are both studied in the Senior year. European History is taught in Freshman and Sophomore years. Early European and Modern European History infuse the student with the cultural background of countries overseas. United States History teaches of the past of our own great nation. The value of history in the making of better citizens cannot be overestimated.

Advanced Algebra, already taught in some schools, will be included in our curriculum in the near future. Meanwhile, General Mathematics, Elementary Algebra, Intermediate Algebra, Plane Geometry, Solid Geometry, and Trigonometry teach our mathematicians habits of logical thought and the meanings of allusions to mathematics in magazines and newspapers.

Five courses in science are provided for the purpose of giving necessary background for later study as well as for their cultural value.

General Science, a first-year course which is elective for technicals, covers all of the more common sciences. The aims of this elementary course are—first, to promote an understanding of the use and control of environment and to develop a scientific attitude. Observation, project building, practical problems, and the reading of scientific biography are some of the means employed. Eighty-five percent of the report mark is obtained by classwork; fifteen percent by extra reading or projects.

Chemistry with its exciting laboratory periods proves to interest more students each year. It is presented by leading the pupil along the path of common experiences to the more difficult fields. The theory discussed during class periods is put into practice in the laboratory. Before each "lab" period groups of experiments are discussed for the purpose of determining their ability to maintain a parallel with the class work covered.

In physics four periods in each week are devoted to laboratory exercises, which give experience in calculations and the use of formulas. Three class periods are devoted to discussion of topics of interest and study of the text. Note books with drawings and discussions are essential features of the laboratory work.

Applied Biology, which is taught on the "contract plan," is a Freshman course. An outline of the work to be covered is given to the student at the beginning of each marking period. He can then distribute his time wisely. The "contract plan" is not used in the regular Sophomore Biology course, which is more technical.

The field of vocational and commercial subjects will be affected more than the academic courses by the changes now going on. Metal work and printing will be added to a list which already includes Home Economics, Mechanical Drawing, Art, and Manual Training. These changes and the addition of specialized office equipment in the commercial department will do much to increase the usefulness of Linden High School.

The Linden Teachers' Association

The Linden Teachers' Association under the leadership of Mr. John F. Barrett concluded its second successful year of existence on April 10, 1932. The organization is a large one, consisting of 172 members who are employed by the Linden Board of Education.

The outstanding social event of the year was a testimonial dinner given to Mr. D. A. Howell, in honor of his twenty-fifth year as Supervising Principal of the Linden Public Schools. It was held at the Winfield Scott Hotel in Elizabeth, on December 2, 1931. At this dinner the association presented Mr. Howell with a handsome gold watch and chain.

During the past year the organization has been greatly interested in the welfare work in Linden. An extensive program has been financed and carried out by all the teachers of the Linden Public Schools. Cases where pupils were in need of food, clothing, and other assistance have been investigated and action taken to have these conditions remedied. To further the welfare program a benefit card party was given by the association, the proceeds of which were turned over to Mr. Howell for use in schools where the need was greatest.

The Addition

Linden's high school population has increased so tremendously in the past few years that it has become necessary to build an addition in the rear of the school to accommodate this growth. The contractors are putting forth their best efforts to have the addition completed for the term starting September, 1932.

The new addition is to contain the same number of floors as the present building, and the corridors will be extended into the addition.

On the ground floor will be modern improvements erected for the convenience of the pupils. This department will consist of printing, metal-working, and electrical shops. Because of the inconveniences of having both girls and boys sharing the gymnasium, a small gym will be constructed for the girls, while the former gym will be enlarged. Adjoining the girls' gym will be a corrective room for aiding pupils who need specialized work to correct physical defects. A boiler room, a new coal storage, and several class rooms will complete the ground floor.

The future offices of the Board of Education, Secretary to the Board of Education, and Superintendent will be situated on the first floor of the addition. The room formerly used for meetings of the Board of Education will be made into a class room; the Secretary's office will be made into a part of Miss Ebbert's office; and Mr. Howell's will be made into a medical room. There is to be constructed a small auditorium. This new auditorium will be used to advantage by the music instructor or perhaps by some club for its meetings. The finest library Linden High has ever hoped for will be situated, also, on this floor. Beside the main library room, the reading room, there will be three other rooms adjacent to it. These rooms will include a work room, a conference room, and a book room. The remaining part of this floor will be taken up by class rooms.

The second floor will include an art room, an oral English room, and a Commercial department. In this department will be found the typing rooms, bookkeeping room, stenography room, and the business practice room. New equipment will be ordered for the business practice room, including a dictaphone, a mimeograph, a mimeoscope, posting machines, duplicating machines, calculators, and adding machines. The typewriters now in use will be put into the new typing room.

It will be necessary to make some alterations in the present building. Room 109 will be remodeled to form a laboratory for the applied biology. The cafeteria kitchen and the boys' lockers, on the ground floor, will be extended back into the court. The men teachers' room, on the first floor, will be enlarged by joining to it the present art supply room. The present medical room will be attached to the women teachers' room. The lockers that are now standing in the corridors will be set into the corridor walls.

When the new addition is ready for occupants and the alterations are finished, Linden may boast that it has one of the most up-to-date and best equipped schools in the state.

In Memoriam

It is with great sorrow that we record the passing of a friend. To those who had grown up with Alfred Gifford from the grammar school days his death was a hard blow. By those friends whom he made by his winning personality he will always be remembered for his bright smile and willingness to lend a helping hand. While his tastes did not turn toward club work, he was a member of football and basket ball squads, and took an active part in class recitations. Teachers and classmates alike sympathize with Alfred's family and relatives in their grief.

Growth of Class Spirit

When the class of 1932 first came to Linden High School, it was a group of awkward little Freshmen, not very well acquainted or able to work together. In order to enable the members to know each other and to become organized, they were separated into home-rooms arranged according to courses. All the Technical students were put together, all the Classics together, and all the Commercials together. In this way the people who learned to know each other by being associated during their classes had an opportunity to work together in home-room periods. This practice of selecting home-rooms according to courses was continued in the Sophomore year. However, it was expected that by the time they had reached their Junior year, these people would have become well-known to each other, and, therefore, their home-rooms were arranged alphabetically. In this way, different individuals came into contact and by the Senior year everyone in the class knew practically everyone else.

The first organized bit of work done by the class was the buying of a gift for the school in the Freshman year. At this time, everyone was asked to contribute a certain sum and experienced the satisfaction of having done something in common. In the Sophomore year there were home-room clubs, with officers and class dues, which worked together all year and went on a class trip at the end of the term. However, it was in the Junior year that the effects of really organized work were first felt. The entire Junior class was combined into one organization with its officers. This group worked together in giving a Junior Dance and in decorating the main corridor at Christmas time. For both of these events, President Schwartz appointed committees who did special work and ran things smoothly. The efficiency of the committee work was also evinced in arranging the Hallowe'en Party and the Junior Prom. Of course, when the pupils returned for their Senior year they were all eager to be doing things and to start joint work in class meetings. They reflected their president, Nathan Schwartz, and settled down to handling such serious matters as the Senior Dance, the Senior Play and the publishing of the "Cynosure." It is easily understood that unless the efforts of such a group were effectively coördinated, the Senior class could not undertake such enterprises as producing a play and publishing a year-book. Proof of this successful coördination can easily be found in the lively class meetings which are held at regular intervals. There is always a great deal of heated debate in these gatherings, but the class always manages to combine its various theories and opinions and to produce satisfactory results.

Tom: "Hello, Jack! You're just the fellow I want to see."

Jack: "Hello! Why?"

Tom: "Well, you know I'm a Freshman. Since I go to school in the afternoon I don't know much about the school activities. I must write a composition on that subject for English. You can tell me what's been going on."

Jack: "Since I'm a Junior, I can tell you about our activities. Let's see now--- Oh! yes, the Halloween party. Both the Juniors and Seniors worked together on this event. There were dancing, refreshments, and prizes. Stanley Mauzy, Olaf Lawrence, and Louisa Wood won the prizes. It was a great party."

Tom: "I saw some fine Christmas decorations in the cafeteria and on the stairs. Know anything about them?"

Jack: "The Juniors did the decorating, with Miss McBride and Miss Marshall to direct them, and William Feduniak, Stanley Van Dyne, and Sylvia Kaplan as the student committee. I don't suppose you have heard of the council system the Juniors have this year. Have you?"

Tom: "No, what is it?"

Jack: "The council, which meets once a month, consists of a representative from each Junior home-room. The results of the meeting are communicated to the home-rooms through their representatives. If a dance or party is to be given, all Juniors come to a meeting. President Weitzman chooses the necessary committees."

Tom: "I overheard two fellows talking in the corridor about a dance on St. Patrick's day. Is there anything to that?"

Jack: "Oh, yes! From what I hear it's going to be the best of the season. The girls are to ask the boys to the dance. You know it's leap year. Won't that be fun?"

Tom: "Thanks! Now I'll have plenty of material for my composition. So long!"

HENRY SZYMANSKI, '33

CLASS OF '33

The Class of 1933 took an active part in both interclass and varsity athletics during the seasons 1931-1932. They were well represented on the football team by "Abe" Weitzman, able tackle, Paul Archipley, David Bishunsky, Edward Gudaitis, Ben Putnam, Louis Dubino, Michael Woytowicz and Edward Krysiak. Archipley, who showed great promise in the beginning of the season, unfortunately sustained a dislocated shoulder which prevented him from playing for the remainder of the season.

The varsity basket ball squad included a number of Juniors. Louis Dubino, Harry Lampert, and Paul Archipley held down first team berths, while Abe Weitzman, Edward Goldberg and Edward Krysiak were substitutes. Paul Archipley seemed pursued by fate, for after two thirds of the season was over his shoulder was again dislocated. The Junior interclass basket ball team did not have a successful season, but they tied the Sophomores for second place.

When baseball and track begin, the Juniors will be out in front. Louis Dubino, Abe Weitzman, Harry Lampert, Edward Krysiak, David Bishunsky, Julius Horowitz and Ziegmund Wilchinsky are prepared to bring new laurels to the Junior Class.

It is very hard to keep from noticing such active Junior girls as Ruth Hadley, Lucille Jankoski, Emily Koenig, Ada Laidlaw, Clara Matasetz, Ethel Moore, Edith Mackey, Margaret Phillips, Margaret Peterson, Isabelle Servoss, Louisa Wood and Emma Woodward, who have made the teams in girls' varsity sports. Emily Koenig and Louisa Wood also were cheer leaders.

Raymond Bauer and Abe Weitzman were members of the varsity debating team and Milton Freiman was alternate. Many Juniors did fine work in the orchestras and on the Library squad. Members of the class gave many interesting and instructive programs in assembly.

CLASS OF '34

The two hundred and forty-four Sophomores of Linden High School are divided into seven home-rooms, of which Miss Barry, Mr. Clark, Mr. Cook, Miss MacConkey, Mr. Moldaschl, Miss Noddin, and Miss Schoen are the advisers.

The Sophomores have shown great spirit in all sports. While many of the boys have been doing work on the Varsity second team, the Commercial girls have been busy winning the interclass basket ball championship. Although only one Sophomore, Ida Tunkel, is on the debating team, many of them have gained experience which should enable them to go farther next year.

Throughout the year the Sophomore classes have given numerous assembly programs. The Armistice Day program given by Miss MacConkey's home-room included recitations and songs on the human cost of war. On the stage was a beautiful painting, which typified peace, borrowed for the occasion from Hahne's store, in Newark. Members of this class secured pamphlets and posters on the subject of Disarmament. The Sophomores were asked to give this program for the Parent-Teacher Association. With Miss Gilkeson as director Section I, part of the same class, gave a very good performance in another assembly program. The pupils acted interesting scenes from the books "Silas Marner," "Seventeen," "David Copperfield," and "A Tale of Two Cities." This program was one of the most interesting ones given this term.

The Dramatic Club has been formed this year. It originated among a number of Sophomores from home-room nine. This club, under the direction of Miss Gilkeson, presented in the assembly on April 14, "Pyramus and Thisbe," which is act five of "Midsummer Night's Dream." The acting of the members was exceptionally good.

The Spelling Bee

Dedicated to my classmates, Gabia, Helen, and Ethel.

(with apologies to W. de la Mare)

Three jolly girls
 Once bet a pound
 Each spell the others
 Would off the ground.
 Out of their mouths
 Words slipped right soon
 And neat and nicesome
 Began at noon.
 One-Two-Three
 And away they go,
 Not too fast,
 And not too slow.
 Out from Gabia's mouth
 Words slipped correct.
 From "onomatopoeia"
 To "Connecticut."
 Past the word "trochee"
 With colors flying high,
 Helen's mouth a-goin',

Never said die.
 Ethel strong as ever,
 Tongue a-movin' fast,
 From "parabolical"
 To "foremast."
 But by the word "to",
 Gabia missed;
 She spelled "too"
 And went off the list.
 Helen spelled "two"
 And began to cry;
 She took a tablecloth,
 Oh me! My!
 But Ethel was wise;
 She spelled it right,
 She took her two pounds
 And said, "Good night!"

I think that I shall ever be
A dunce in Plane Geometry.

The axiom, postulate, major arc
Leave me completely in the dark.

Do prove to be my Waterloo.

Rhombus, square, and right angle
Before me in a haze dangle.

Lines, vertical and otherwise,
Run before my hopeless eyes.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But Euclid made Geometry.

CLASS OF '35

"The Poor Frosh"

Because of the unsettled state of affairs in school this year, the upper classes see little of the Freshmen. Some of them come at twelve forty-five and work until five. Others come at a different time every day. These people really have about the best hours in school as they usually come about nine thirty or ten o'clock and are through at about two. However, the rest of the Freshmen do not have such convenient hours.

There are about 350 members in the class of '35. This large group is divided into thirteen sections, in eleven home-rooms. Mr. Thompson, Mr. Piper, Mr. Buckman, Miss Phelan, Miss Fitzgerald, Miss Aschermann, Miss Ware, Mr. Ramage, Mrs. McCormack, Miss Light and Mr. Yeisley are the Freshman teachers. Because their home-rooms are in use during the day for other classes, the students assemble only to "check in" in the morning and to "check out" in the afternoon. For this reason, there are no organized home-rooms or class officers. Most of the former Freshman classes have had home-room clubs, but this year's class is deprived of that pleasure. Their inconvenient schedules also deprive them of other privileges, such as participation in sports and clubs. There have been no Freshman class-teams this year. This really is a drawback to their sports as it cheats them of a year's practice, but probably the obstacle will be overcome in succeeding years. Although membership in some clubs is denied them, the Freshmen may join the French, Latin, German, and Debating clubs, and some others. The activity and enthusiasm which the Freshmen display in these organizations show promise of their becoming lively upperclassmen.

AGNES J. COLLINS, '32

CLASS OF '35

Freshman Assemblies

Something has been done in Linden High School this year which has never been done before. There have been four assemblies every week. The upperclassmen have had assemblies on Tuesday and Thursday mornings, while the Freshmen have had theirs on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Thus, the Freshman assemblies are entirely independent. Perhaps these presentations may not appear as polished and smooth as the performances of the more experienced classes, but they show much effort and often much ability.

Among the programs given in both assemblies by the Freshmen was the recent Arbor Day presentation. This consisted of speeches about the origin of Arbor Day, its value, and its connection with the current Washington Bicentennial Celebration.

Another upperclass assembly in which the Freshmen participated was the championship debate between the Freshmen and the Seniors. The topic for debate was "Resolved: that the Eighteenth Amendment be Repealed." On the Freshman team were Nancy Doe, Dorothy Bauer, Doris Daneke, and Jennie Tunnel; on the Senior team, Nathan Schwartz, Herbert Mendelson, and Harry Projansky. It was a case of male versus female in which after a hard fight the boys emerged triumphant. Better debating was done by the Freshman team than had been done by the Freshmen for a long time. Their speeches were well-planned, clear, and excellently delivered. Although the Seniors deserved to win, much could be said in argument for the merits of their opponents.

Many of the Freshman assemblies have had entirely different programs from the ones given in the morning gatherings. A number of these have been given by

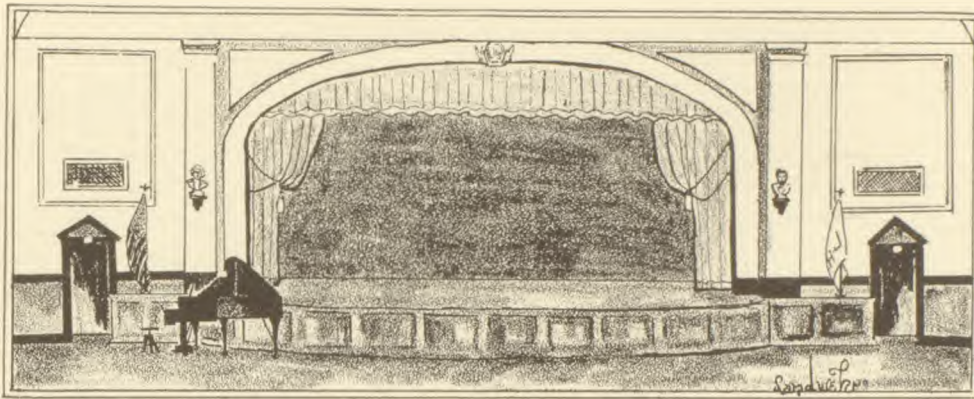

CLASS OF '35

Freshman Section Six. In one of the programs presented by this section were some book reports which interested the audience greatly. These were given by dramatizing short, tantalizing little excerpts of the books, which made the spectators eager to read and find out more about them.

The Freshman audiences have been entertained by some programs given by the upperclassmen in both assemblies. One of the finest of all programs, one of these, was Miss MacConkey's home-room's Armistice Day program. There was an air of reverence and solemnity about it which pervaded the whole school and reflected the seriousness with which the performers took their parts. A very beautiful, symbolic picture of Peace was exhibited on the platform during the assemblies and was viewed with interest and admiration by the students. Two other programs which entertained both Freshmen and upperclassmen were the Washington's Birthday celebration given by members of Room 207, and the "Cynosure" advertising program. The "Cynosure" program was given in the form of a radio broadcast presenting the merits of the year-book.

One of the programs given for the Freshmen was directed by Mrs. McCormack. This was presented to make clear to the students the procedure of Gift Day. The gifts chosen for the school by the present upperclassmen in their Freshman year were exhibited on the platform. A member of the class which presented each gift spoke about it. Since this year's class is not organized, the members can not meet to discuss their plans for Gift Day. This program, familiarizing all of them with the school custom, was distinctly beneficial.

A smile—a song—a careless word—
Life's glad moments are made of such as these.

SCHOOL LIFE

“Green Stockings”

“Say, will you trim this mustache for me?” “Look out! here comes the fire-place!” “Where’s Bobbie’s election speech?” “Is Celia’s rain coat wet?” These remarks recall to the cast and crew “Green Stockings,” the Senior play. Have those people who were not in the cast or on the crew forgotten the play? We say most emphatically, “No!” What is responsible for their retaining “Green Stockings” in mind? Here are the reasons—the crew and the cast. The cast: Enter the hero—John Smith, a dignified man of military bearing. In Jack Moore was found the typical English colonel supporting his lady, even tho’ the support came rather late in the play. His lady, Agnes J. Collins as Celia Faraday, was the dependable practical daughter of William Faraday. Clarence Winans was that elderly English gentleman. Practical Celia’s blossoming over night into a gay, beautiful woman after the announcement of her engagement added to the entertainment.

Admiral Grice, a testy old gentleman, late of His Majesty’s Navy, was portrayed by Lawrence Pietila. The Admiral’s sudden barrages of questions aimed at poor Bobbie, a delightful empty-headed young man, played by Harry Mopsick made the situation more humorous. Bobbie certainly could not stand alone under those bombardments, so he was supported by Rose Caroff as Phyllis Faraday, a charming and pretty girl of twenty.

No play would be complete without at least one widow. Anna Halasz as Lady Trenchard was ours, and her sister, Mrs. Rockingham, was played by Julia Zimansky.

Celia was aided and abetted by dear old Aunt Ida. Edith Weinberg played the part of the charming, warm-hearted old dear of fifty or thereabout.

To get a genuine English atmosphere Elwood Siegel and William Zukowski, as James Raleigh and Henry Steele, lounged about with their monocles and bored expressions. Martin was a perfect, dignified, old family servant in the person of John Remeta.

ISABEL M. KEIMIG, '32

Backstage Boners

"I've just got to sit down and rest for a few minutes," said Isabel Keimig, a member of the stage crew, and she promptly proceeded to do so. Short phrases and scenes from the play whose dress-rehearsal had just been completed danced through her mind like an ever-amusing, ever-colorful and changing kaleidoscope. She seemed to see.

Edith Weinberg—drinking cough medicine in place of tea and trying to look pleased at the taste.

Lawrence Pietila—refusing sugar and milk with his tea, yet unconsciously stirring his empty cup with an imaginary teaspoon a few minutes after his emphatic refusal!

Miss Rose—a second before the curtain was to rise on the third act, persistently urging the cast to "Keep off the stage."

William Zukowski—accidentally dropping his monocle at the all-important moment when he should have been looking most unconcerned and saying "Not really?"

Elwood Siegel—racing through the gym to ring the bell on the opposite side of the stage during an act.

Elsie Hatzuk—from her negligible five feet trying to appear a business-like manager and hastily scoring the 271st laugh on the back of a piece of scenery.

Agnes Collins—reading her fiancé's death notice on the sport sheet held upside down, and attempting to be dramatic about it!

John Remeta—two minutes before the curtain rose, vainly searching for the never-present collar button.

Clarence Winans—distractedly rushing about in his shirt sleeves imploring "Celia! Celia! Where's my moustache?" while a nearby voice shouted "Curtain!"

Harry Mopsick—trying to look handsome while holding his mouth agape to have his throat sprayed by Phyllis.

Rose Caroff—the jazz-mad maiden, unsuccessfully attempting to look enthralled by hearing "To a Wild Rose" on the victrola.

Isabel Keimig—moaning "The Spring flowers are on the table in the Autumn scene!"

Julia Zimansky—trying to act like the sisters they aren't.

Anna Halasz

Hyman Wilner—laughing with delight at the male members of the cast trying to look comfortable in their uncomfortable "tuxes."

Jack Moore—vainly endeavoring to keep from smiling when he repeats the oft-repeated: "Watching the Arab dhows (cows) riding (feeding) at their anchors in the sea—"

The dozing member of the stage crew awoke, startled by a peculiar sound, somewhat like a grunt. It was

Wilma Renner—still struggling with "Zeus' " big auto horn, despite Dora Caroff's fruitless attempts to help.

Lament After Two Weeks' Absence From School

"Oh, I'm feeling very well now, thank you." That's about the fourteenth person who's asked me how I feel. I wonder if I look really bad. Say, I'd better toddle along to Chemistry. Now, where's that plagued make-up slip? Oh, here it is. "Will you sign this please? Thank you." Well, that's that. A few more signatures and this will be settled.

"John, what are those papers he's giving out?" H'm, so I missed a test on halogens, whatever they are.

"Yes, sir, I'll come in on Friday and make up that test. What, are our notebooks due today?"

This class must have worn more than seven-league boots judging by the ground they've covered while I was out. I wonder what I missed in German. I'll soon find out because there's the bell.

"Yes, I'm much better now, thank you."

I guess I'll have to hang out a sign telling people how much better I am.

Say, what's all this? What! Conjugate one hundred and thirty-seven verbs! "Yes, sir, I'll try to have them done by Friday."

Friday is a big day for me—Chemistry test, notebook and those verbs.

"Anna, you don't mean to tell me that you've read three chapters of that story—and you've had your six weeks' test." I'll have a double relapse and three kinds of pneumonia after I've made up this work.

"I can't come in Friday for that test. I have to go to English now. I'll come in after school to see about the test." I'll be late for English if I don't "mach schnell." "Oh, I'm fine now, thank you." (I guess I do need that sign.) What, book reports!

"Will you sign this, please? Thank you. Yes, I'll have that book report by Tuesday."

Now for lunch. Thank the stars that I haven't any work to make up here. If I did it would be a pleasure.

"No fooling, girls, did you really cover all that work while I was out or are they trying a new advanced method on me?"

Oh, the bell! I'm afraid to go to math. I'm likely to have to write a couple of Algebra books or review advanced trigonometry.

"Yes, I see, this is the Binominal Theorem; you had just started it before I was absent. I'm sure I can make it up in a few days."

In a few days! I've only to make up two tests, write a book report, notebook, read three chapters of German and about fourteen other things. Believe you me, I'm not going to miss any more work if I have to come on two pairs of crutches and in a wheelchair. Phew! Two tests, those accursed verbs and—oh, death, where is thy sting?

The Library

A studious murmur pervades the air;
A laugh and a giggle escape here and there;
A gentle request, "Be quiet, please!"
Is answered by a half-suppressed sneeze.
The magazines, flaunting their colors gay,
Tell us of fashion, invention, and play.
The book on the shelf, more soberly bound,
On reading, reveals a world newly found.
"Michael, you owe on a book overdue!"
Says Michael, "That old bugaboo!"
But he digs deep down into his jeans,
And subtracts a small sum from his "ways and means."
The murmur crescendos to a roar of noise.
Books bang, pads rustle, and all girls and boys
Rush to the desk to get their slips
With "Late? Not me!" and other quips.
A patter of feet, the slam of the door—
Deep silence reigns, noise king no more.
All work is left for a time, at least;
Till the next mob comes to the knowledge feast.

Assembly Programs

Assembly periods, a half hour in length, are held in the Linden High School auditorium every Tuesday and Thursday. Because of the unusually large student body this year, it has become necessary to hold the upperclass assemblies in the morning, and the Freshman assemblies in the afternoon. Usually the same program is presented to both groups, but sometimes, when this is impossible, a few Freshmen come to both gatherings.

Following the usual custom, the first assembly period was devoted to welcoming the Freshmen. A few days later Mr. Cooper and Miss Siegman explained boys' and girls' sports. Next came the Athletic Association rally with an exciting election soon after. Fire Prevention Week, Armistice Day, Book Week, and Washington's birthday all served as bases for discussion. Miss Gilkeson spoke on her visit to England. Mrs. Rosa told of her visit to the British Isles, and Mr. Moldaschl spoke on German schools and the political situation there.

One day Mrs. Tanneyhill told how to conquer our common enemy, colds. Twice the National Music League sent singers and instrumentalists who gave very pleasing selections. However, it is not necessary to rely on professionals for talent, which was proved by the French and Literature Club plays, and the Seniors' "Cynosure" program was broadcast over station L. H. S.

In addition to providing entertainment, the programs are very educational. They serve to integrate the school by informing the average student of the activities of other clubs and classes. They also give the student who takes part an opportunity to add public speaking to his list of accomplishments.

Hallowe'en

Dear Tom:

I received your letter telling me about the Hallowe'en party you had at your school. It sounded suspiciously as if you were trying to make me jealous, so I will tell you about ours. Perhaps that will make you green with envy. To begin with, nature coöperated and gave us the atmosphere and some wonderful scenic effects. The night was dark and cloudy; a stillness hung about everything. It made you feel strange even to walk alone. And when you got inside the gym, for that's where we hold all our high school affairs, everything, decorations, costumes, and atmosphere was in startling incongruity with everyday things. The gym was decorated in the traditional orange and black, which was appropriate, because they are our school colors. In the costumes there was certainly no lack of variety. Devils, Southern belles, and tramps laughed and danced together. "Herb" Mendelson—you know him, don't you?—was master of ceremonies and he was good at it, too. After many, many dances (I suspect that many girls went home with very sore feet) the grand march was formed, and after a great deal of discussion the prizes were awarded. Stanley Mauzy won the prize for the funniest costume. He was dressed like, and walked like, a gouty old man. Olaf Lawrence, dressed as a two-faced man, won the prize for the most original costume. Louisa Wood, as a charming belle of the old South, won the prize for the prettiest costume. Then all of us went down to the cafeteria. Besides receiving a glass of punch, a lollypop, and an apple each, we were entertained with songs and music. Lillian Bober sang "Among My Souvenirs" and "Lady of Spain" quite nicely. Alexander Antonio, our own "mammy" singer, entertained after the manner of "Al" Jolson. Adeline Czurczak played several accordion solos. After this we went upstairs again to enjoy as many dances as we could until 11:30. Finally 11:30 came around, and we all went home tired but happy.

Your friend,

ROBERT FITZGERALD.

The Senior Dance

One of the few afternoon dances of this term was given on November 19 in the high school gym. The dance was the annual Senior Dance, and because of the new wing's erection, the music was forced to rival the sound of riveting. Not so large a percentage of Freshmen were present as was common in former years. The main reason for their non-appearance was not because they had no desire to attend, but because the double schedule compelled them to attend classes while we waltzed to the sublime strains of the dance orchestra. But, although few Freshmen attended, the upperclassmen were there in a body; in fact, it seemed as if all the upperclassmen were there. The ever-present set of male wall-flowers who usually grace afternoon dances was conspicuous here by its absence, for the girls were determined that no one should be an innocent bystander. And what Linden High School girls set their minds on is usually accomplished!

Boys' Week

Boys' Week was started in Linden eight years ago by a group of citizens who thought that it would be beneficial for the boys in school to witness and even participate in the local government. The election of the boy officials is held about the middle of April. Each year the high school students elect the mayor, councilman-at-large, and city clerk from their student body. The councilmen are elected in the Junior High School, and the other officials are appointed by the boy mayor. A whole week is given over to these boy officials, during which they assume the duties of the position to which they have been elected or chosen. The weekly schedule usually is:

Monday, 7:30 P.M. All officials are sworn in at the city hall.
Tuesday, 8:00 P.M. Board of Health meeting.
Wednesday, All officials make a tour of industrial plants.
Thursday, 6:00 P.M. Lion's Club Dinner.
8:00 P.M. Board of Education meeting.
Friday, 8:00 P.M. Council meeting.
Saturday, 9:30 A.M. Track meet at Athletic Field.
Saturday, 2:00 P.M. Officials visit public buildings in Linden.

Soon the name "Boys' Week" will have to be changed to "Students' Week," because of the fact that girls are beginning to participate in it.

Boys' Week, 1932, will be observed during the first week of May.

The National Oratorical Contest

Elwood Siegel was the deserving winner of two ten dollar prizes for the best written, and best orally presented essay on the Constitution of the United States. The title of his essay was "The Political Philosophy of the Constitution." The "New York Times" is the sponsor of this interesting annual contest.

All Seniors participated, and the result of this contention brought forth several other fine and instructive essays. On April 12, in the auditorium, the contenders for the oral prize gave evidence of their speaking ability. The very close runners-up to Elwood Siegel received honorable mention. They were in order Julia Zimansky, Agnes Collins, and Lawrence Pietila.

Inscription Contest

"The foundation of every state is the education of its youth," a quotation by Diogenes, was the inscription which was chosen as the most appropriate for use over the entrance of the addition to our school. The submitters of this quotation, Nancy Doe, '35, and Elwood Siegel, '32, each received a reward of five dollars. All suggestions, which were not to be greater than fifty letters in length, were entered with fictitious names. The judges were Mr. Howell, Miss Ebbert, Miss Tuttle, and Miss Waterman. The H. B. Brady Company, architects for the addition to the building, sponsored the contest.

Gift Day

Each year they leave us a lovely token—
A famous painting—
A picturesque vase—
A colorful volume—
These clubs and classes,
Wanting to be remembered,
Showing their gratitude.

A tiny group some years ago said,
"We are leaving soon,
A token—to express, oh, many things!—
A few pennies? Yes! Pennies soon make dollars."
So they saved, and gave their token.
An idea soon grows into a custom.
So it did.
The groups have grown
And their desire for expression, too.
They also give their lovely tokens.

The Cafeteria

One of the most satisfying periods which the students of Linden High enjoy is the lunch period. At the ringing of the last bell before lunch period all the students who buy their lunch form a line outside the cafeteria door. Then a few at a time are permitted to pass by the counter with their trays and buy the edibles of their choice. A smiling cashier, seated at the end of the counter, accepts the price of the meal.

Although the prices of different dishes have been cut this year, the average number of lunches bought per day by students totals only about 225. This year 1900 quarts of ice cream, 25 bushels of potatoes, 900 heads of lettuce, 950 pounds of butter and 550 dozens of eggs were used. This is but two-thirds the amount used in the previous years. The reasons for this decrease are that many upper-class students are through with school at 1:20, while many freshmen lunch before they get to school at 12, and there are but two lunch periods, one starting at 10:43 and the other at 11:15. The lunch periods come early in the day because school starts at 8:00 o'clock.

The teachers have a private dining room off the cafeteria. The girls on the cafeteria squad, who help at the counter, also prepare trays, according to the advance requests, and, at the time indicated, carry them to the faculty dining room.

On the cafeteria squad there are six girls; three serve during the first lunch period and the others during the second. In return for their work, each member of the squad is allowed a free lunch each day—a great help to the girls, and a greater help to the cafeteria staff.

Will You Remember?

Music is felt, rather than remembered.
We recall some favored song
When we hear an unknown lilt,
Or some distant note.
They strike the sensitive chord of memory,
And we seem to be again
In the auditorium.
We might never have left it, it seems.
The instructor gives the page,
And then stands poised
Ready to begin.

We see ourselves lustily singing
"The Clang of the Forge,"
Or rollicking thru our favorite,
"A Capital Ship."
Recall the funny words?
The captivating rhythm?
Then we are again slowly gliding
"On Venice Waters,"
Loving "Annie Laurie,"
Sighing for "Loch Lomond,"
Dreaming under "Stars of the Summer Night,"
Sunning under "O Sole Mio,"
Laughing, with a tear trickling from our eye,
Because, after all, it was really
"A Merry Life" we led here.

Or the hymns?—
Fresh young voices rising in the beautiful chords of
"Holy, Holy, Holy,"
The majestic, solemn strains of
"Come, Thou Almighty King."
They still linger in your ears?
Do you still "Fight the Good Fight?"

Many years from today
Will some vagrant lilt recall
To you the happy times—
Our beloved songs—the happy
Place they filled in our fleet school lives?
Will you smile and—
Remember?

Track, 1931

In the spring of nineteen thirty-one the first organized track team of Linden High School began its career. This was the first year in which students participated extensively in track events. Surprising as it seems, the first season was a great success. The team defeated Roselle, Roselle Park and North Plainfield easily, while they barely subdued a strong squad from Summit by a few points. In the final meet at Warinanco Park, against strong opposition, the Linden squad upheld the prestige of our school by placing in many events. Nogi and Zimmer placed second and third respectively in the class "A" javelin event, while Givens took second place against keen competition in the running broad-jump. Kudak and Herman won third place in the class "A" and class "B" shot-put events. Matejewicz raced brilliantly against strong opposition to capture second place in the class "A" hundred-yard dash, while Horowitz placed third in the same event in class "B."

The prospects for the track team of 1932 seem exceptionally bright, for many students who placed in the Warinanco meet will be back. The increasing popularity of track will call forth many new recruits for the coming season.

Football 1931

The football season of 1931 was one of the most successful experienced by a Linden High School football team in eleven years of competition. In 1931 the high school eleven captured its first county championship.

At the beginning of the season, prospects for a county championship were great as nine veterans returned. Our optimistic views were, however, somewhat darkened by tying Somerville and losing to North Plainfield by the margin of a safety. The team finally struck its stride and scored its first county victory against a stubborn Summit, using a strong aerial attack to win 6-0. With a powerful running offense, Linden conquered Rahway 13-0. A long forward pass gave Linden an unexpected victory over an overrated Thomas Jefferson team by the score of 7-0. A veteran Roselle team battled with Linden to a 6-6 tie in a fast and hard-fought game. Again, as in 1930, Linden ran riot over Roselle Park, its ancient rivals, to win by the score of 18-0. After this game Linden was tied with Roselle for the county championship, but Roselle played a scoreless tie with Roselle Park, thereby giving Linden its first football championship.

The season ended quietly with the eleven playing cautiously against Millburn to win 12-0.

The football team's record shows Linden with five victories, one defeat and two ties, while scoring 62 points to opponents' 8. Captain Deutsch, Zimmer, Nogi, and Putnam made the coaches' first all-county team, while Captain-elect Gudaitis, Moore, and Weitzman made the second team. Prospects for 1932 are fairly good with the line remaining almost intact.

Row 1—Archipley, Krysiak, B. Putnam, Goldberg, M. Zimmer, captain; Nogi, captain; Dubino, Lampert, Burian, Orlando.
 Row 2—Schoenberg, assistant manager; H. Rosenberg, Sladowsky, Tallon, Ravaszy, Crosby, Robbins, Weitzman, Lintur, D. Putnam, Rosenblum, Coach Cooper, E. Poskay, manager.

Basket Ball, 1932

The Linden High basket ball team of 1932 brought another championship to the school by capturing the county title with ten straight victories in the county league. The Coopermen have the honor of being the first team in the history of the league to win the championship without a defeat.

Beginning the season with three veterans, Linden made a bad start, losing its first two games, which were not league games. The team then struck its stride and completed its winning streak by defeating Summit in a hard-fought game. Linden managed to stave off a last-minute Summit rally in an extra period by 21-19. The success of the team was largely attributed to the phenomenal playing of "Al" Nogi, who was the leading scorer of the State.

In the State tournament, Linden eliminated Irvington 41-40 and Thomas Jefferson 28-24 in fast and interesting games. In the third round, however, Linden encountered a strong South Side team. After playing brilliant basket ball in the first half to lead the highly-touted South Siders 19-18, the Linden offense and defense collapsed. The final score was South Side 49, Linden 31.

Again as in 1931, the Linden team, although occasionally showing good teamwork and cooperation, was merely a group of individual players. The shooting of Nogi, Zimmer, and Lampert was of high order, while the passing and floor-work of Dubino and Archipley were fairly consistent.

Prospects for 1932 are exceptionally bright, for three veterans are returning, and there are many promising recruits from the second team. With a little luck, Linden should rank high in the county league and in the State tournament.

HARRY ROSENBERG, '32

Row 1—Pyrttek, Weidenburner, Gray, Orlando, Burian, Simpson, Antonio, F. Moore, Givens, Nogi, M. Zimmer.
Row 2—Poskay, manager; Lampert, Krysiak, Sladowsky, Weitzman, Tallon, Birk, Bravo, Whitley, Lombardo, Coach Cooper.

Baseball, 1931

The Linden High School baseball team of 1931 experienced a good season, leading the County League with five victories and one defeat. The Coopermen were defeated by a veteran Hillside nine. The score was 3-4 at the end of a hard-fought game in which hits were scarce and errors many. The worst defeat of the season was the non-county game with Westfield by 2-13. Incidentally Linden had beaten Westfield earlier by 12-5, which shows the erratic play of the local nine. The success of the 1931 baseball team may be directly attributed to the All-State battery: Al Nogi, pitcher, and "Dutch" Moore, catcher. The airtight pitching of Nogi and the brilliant work of Moore behind the plate and while at bat were the outstanding features of the season.

With only five veterans returning, Coach Cooper is found faced with the problem of building a 1932 team to uphold the championship of 1931. The veterans are "Al" Nogi, pitcher; Steve Orlando, third baseman; "Joe" Zimmer, John Burian and "Lefty" Antonio, outfielders. Much material will be available from last year's scrub team. Some of the students who will battle for regular positions are John Tomaszewski, Ben Putnam, Eddie Krysiak, Abe Weitzman, Bill Whitley, Eddie Le North, Stanley Mauzy, and "Tony" Lombardo.

Each year the schedule becomes shorter since many county teams are abandoning interscholastic baseball in favor of track and intramural sports. The 1932 baseball team will travel much in South Jersey to compete against strong teams.

The season opens on April 14 against Millburn.

Interclass Sports

Each year a greater number of students have participated in some form of interclass athletics. In the spring of 1931 the interclass program was inaugurated by a track meet which was held in accordance with the annual Boys' Week exercises. After keen competition in every event the Juniors conquered the Seniors to capture the intramural championship for the second consecutive year. After this meet an interclass softball league was formed.

As the new school year rolled around, the next sport to arouse wide interest was basket ball. The Seniors, last champions, were favored to annex the title again, and in the first round easily defeated a weak Freshman team by the one-sided score of 44-8. In the other game the Sophomores defeated the Juniors by one point in an overtime game. But on account of faulty scorekeeping, the game was called a tie and was to be played later in the season if necessary. An over-confident Senior team was badly outclassed by the alert Sophomores. The Freshmen were defeated by the Juniors in an uninteresting game. The Seniors, still in a slump, barely nosed out a fighting Junior team. The Freshmen were beaten by the league-leading Sophomores, but showed a marked improvement.

Opening the second round of the tournament, the Seniors again defeated the Freshmen easily, while the Sophomores continued their winning ways to overcome the Juniors in a hard-fought game. The leading Sophomores were surprised by a strengthened and rejuvenated Senior team to lose its first game, 34-12. In the next game the Seniors were forced to their utmost to win by a small margin against a gallant Junior team, thereby tying the Sophomores for first place. But the Sophomores were required to play off the tie game which occurred earlier in the season. Surprising the Sophomores, a revised Junior team defeated them, therefore giving the Seniors its second consecutive title. HARRY ROSENBERG, '32

Girls' Sports

Girls' sports have attracted more girls than ever before in the history of Linden High School. A girl can win an "L" by earning three hundred points and numerals by earning two hundred points. Last year seventeen girls received "L's" for participating in various sports and earning the required three hundred points.

The present Seniors added a volley ball championship to their basket ball triumph last year. The team consisted of Anna Halasz, captain, Tillie Braun, Julia Zimansky, Lillian Chevalier, Mavis Chambers, Anna Hensel, Mae Hilyard and Dorothy MacMillan.

The first event of the year was paddle tennis. After numerous eliminations and breath-taking games, Margaret Nusse and Margaret Kerry emerged as winners with Elizabeth Budrecki and Edith Weiner as runners up.

Basket ball season began soon afterwards. Varsity practice was the center of interest and after a series of practices the squad was chosen, consisting of Anna Halasz and Julia Zimansky, co-captains, Sabina Skladal, Helen Seaman, Angelina Ubaldi, and Lillian Chevalier. The varsity met the Alumni with high hopes of victory, but their expectation fell short. They were the victims of a 23-19 defeat. Attention then turned to interclass games. The Commercial Sophomores marched away triumphantly with the cup, but only after a hard tussle with the Classical Seniors. Next comes foul shooting. The requirement in this sport was accuracy. The girl who completed most baskets out of fifty tries was the champion. Ellen Jolly won with 31 out of 50.

Basket ball was left rather reluctantly, but soon forgotten to pursue the sport of volley ball. Eleven girls were chosen to represent their respective classes and after all elimination contests the victor was chosen.

Track succeeded volley ball. Track was divided into three departments, running, jumping and basket ball throw.

Forty Minutes

Five minutes to dress! Oh, what a scurry!
Girls pushing each other, trying to hurry.
They must report to gym on time
Or be scolded and forced to spoil the line.

The squads are ready and they stand,
To hear roll call and note the command;
All bend and twist—some think it fun,
But others frown, fail to see the fun.

The whistle summons the girls to play.
Hurrah! It's volley ball today!
All scamper into line to start;
Both sides are eager and all play their part.

The ball is volleyed to both sides.
"One" is ahead; next the score is tied.
A sporting fight is put up now;
Squad "two" is winning this happy row.

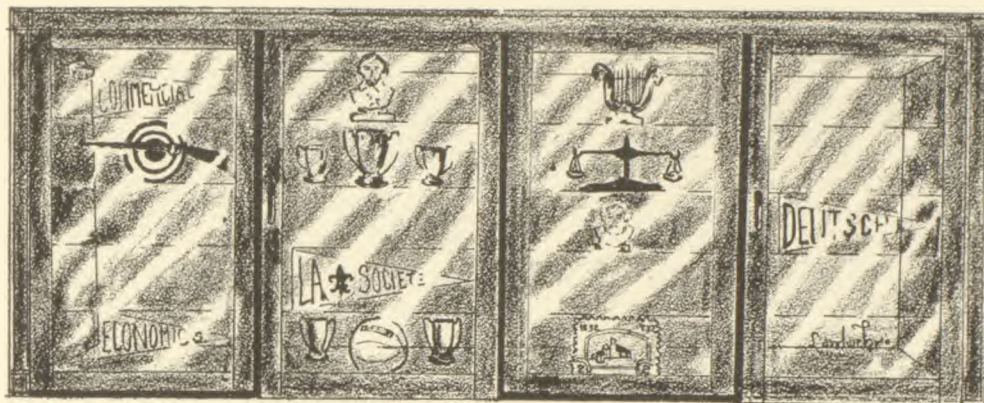

The whistle closes our class of gym;
All girls must hurry to dress again.
Five minutes to dress! Oh, what a scurry!
Girls pushing each other, trying to hurry.

Linden, Fight!

(Tune: "Washington Lee Swing")

Here's to the school for which we proudly yell,
And to the team that wears the great big "L";
For all their hearts are strong and brave and true.
With flying colors Linden's team will battle tru.
Then here's a yell to Linden's victory,
And to all those who fight with varsity.
Each one his thoughts in loyalty unites.
Linden, fight.

Genial groups—
Working, laughing, seeking
Common interests.

La Société Française

In spite of the fact that everyone has been handicapped by the part-time schedule this year, the French Club, or La Société Française, has managed to have regular meetings which were educational as well as enjoyable. A short business meeting was usually held the first part of the period. The rest of the time was turned over to the entertainment committee. The programs dealt with French men such as Clemenceau and Joffre, important cities and sections in France, and other topics concerning France which were of interest to the members. The theme of one of those entertainments was Alsace-Lorraine. The history of this mutilated province was discussed. La Société Française has been most fortunate this year in hearing a talk on Paris given by one of the teachers who visited France during the summer months. An interesting Christmas assembly program which included a French play, songs, and recitals was given by this active group.

The picnic outing which the club held at Surprise Lake in October will long be remembered by the members who attended it. On the bill of fare were roasted "hot dogs," roasted potatoes, and dill pickles, with coffee, cake, and apples as dessert. Everyone went home well-fed and happy. The party was chaperoned by Miss Noddin, the faculty adviser. All the members are looking forward to another outing like that, and it is very probable that their hopes will be fulfilled in the spring.

The Girls' Glee Club

Every Tuesday afternoon the Girls' Glee Club comes together for its weekly meeting. Mrs. Weinheimer, the director of the club, tests the voices of the girls who wish to enter, and notifies those accepted as sopranos, second sopranos, or altos. The girls who have not been accepted may try to enter the next year. During Glee Club rehearsal, the girls practice and learn to sing such classical songs as "Homing," "Lift Thine Eyes," "Request," and "May Day Carol." Each year the Glee Club gives a program which is liked very much by the students. The Girls' Glee Club has been asked to sing in the corridors of hospitals and the corridors of the High School at Christmas. They have also been asked to entertain at the Parent-Teacher Association meetings. This year Mrs. Weinheimer was asked to select fifteen girls to sing in a County Glee Club. They sang in a program called "The County Choral Festival." In order to rehearse for this program the girls went to Plainfield. The program was given in Roosevelt High School, Westfield, on March 10. The girls selected were: Helen Klein, Isabel Robillard, Ethel Diamond, Doris Daneke, Anna Halasz, Jennie Tunkel, Betty Swinton, Dorothy Bauer, Marion Wadel, Helen Matrejek, Lois Tobin, Adeline Mehrman, Julia Zimansky, Elsie Hatzuk, and Mary Eichhorn.

The girls of the Glee Club also entertain themselves each year by going on their annual trip. Last year the club went to Crystal Lake, where the girls enjoyed themselves immensely. This year the members intend to go to some amusement park.

The Debating Club

One of the most active clubs of the Linden High School is the Debating Club. Its monthly meetings, which are held on the second Friday of each month, are always lively. It is the club's boast that it is the only organization at whose meetings one can exercise his lungs. Debates are constantly going on and everyone takes part in them. The object of the Debating Club is to provide an opportunity for those students who are interested to better their speaking ability.

It was the good fortune of the Debating Club this year to act as host to the various debating clubs and coaches of several schools in Union County. All pupils interested in debating and the coaches from the Hillside, Roselle Park, Roselle, Thomas Jefferson, Scotch Plains, and Linden high schools were present at a meeting which was held in the Linden High School auditorium on the nineteenth of December. Everyone took part in the discussion of the topic which was to be debated by the various schools, and finally the topic "Resolved that compulsory unemployment insurance be adopted by the several states" was chosen. Other matters, such as dates and judges, were discussed, and the meeting was adjourned.

Because of the disbanding of the Rutgers' Interscholastic League last year, the Union County Debating League was organized and the debates have been carried on as usual.

The Debating Teams

The varsity teams, under the direction of Mr. Barrett and Mr. Thompson, the faculty advisers, expect to do some fine work this year. There are two teams, the negative and the affirmative, that will debate on the subject of compulsory unemployment insurance. The schedule of the debates is:

February 26 Linden against Scotch Plains, at home. Winner, Scotch Plains.
March 4 Linden against Hillside, away. Winner, Hillside.
March 11 Linden against Roselle Park, at home. Winner, Roselle Park.
March 18 Linden against Roselle, away. Winner, Linden.
Linden against Thomas Jefferson, away.

The teams are:

Affirmative	Negative
RAYMOND BAUER, captain	ABE WEITZMAN, captain
HARRY PROJANSKY	IDA TUNKEL
MILTON FREIMAN	EMILY KOENIG
NATHAN SCHWARTZ	HELEN DANEKE

In addition to the two varsity teams three others have been picked for the purpose of offering the varsity teams some competition, as well as for the purpose of helping the other members of the club to develop their speaking ability. However, debating develops initiative and poise as well as speaking ability. It is necessary for the student on the team to search for information and for authorities concerning the topic which is to be debated. He usually finds these in the school or city library. After reading all the material and carefully studying the subject, he makes an outline and then writes his brief, which is criticized by his colleagues.

The Latin Club

The meetings of the Latin Club are held every third Friday of the month during club period. At the beginning of the period the members discuss business and the rest of the meeting is given up to entertainment. This entertainment usually concerns Latin words or other phases of Latin. At one meeting there was a contest to see who could form the most Latin words from the Latin word "adulescentia." The winner, Clara Matasetz, was awarded a year's club dues. Winners of second, third and fourth place were Arthur Hirschman, Angelina Ubaldi, and Walter Olejniuk.

Each year the members of the club have gone on a trip. Last year they went to New York where they went sightseeing, visited International House, the residence of graduate students from all over the world, attended a play, and went to the National Broadcasting Station, WEAF. This year the club intends to take a similar trip since many of the new members, having heard about the wonderful time the members had last year, wish to go.

The Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club has always been proud of its "up-and-doing" spirit. This organization was started five years ago, and today is recognized as one of the outstanding clubs in the high school. To become eligible to this organization a student must attain an A in either of the first two marking periods in art, cooking, or sewing. Because of the part-time sessions which are in effect this year, the members have been compelled to meet every third Wednesday of each month in the sewing room. At these meetings old and new business is discussed, domestic subjects are considered and last but not least the remaining minutes are devoted to a program which has been prepared by a committee. This year the Home Economics Club went to Echo Lake and Reid's Ice Cream Company, and has planned to sell candy during the baseball season. The members are anxiously looking forward to the club's annual trip. We have a new faculty adviser, Miss Ware, who has coöperated with the members in every way to make the club successful.

Commercial Club

The purpose of the Commercial club is to better fit commercial students and to further interest them in their work. With these ideas in mind the club was greatly interested in the performance of one of Pace Institute's graduates. She had graduated after taking two years of study in night school and two years in day school. The young woman took dictation from one of her old teachers at many different rates of speed. Court testimony was given to her at the high rate of two hundred and forty words per minute. All this dictation she took on the board and then transcribed to us. After the exhibition the girls in the club taking Shorthand II were given a letter by the dictator at one hundred words per minute. Then various girls were called upon to transcribe it back to the dictator. Miss Marshall is now holding special shorthand classes for those who wish to build up their speed and accuracy of dictation.

During the club's February meeting, Miss Maihl, the city librarian, gave a talk on "Further Reading After Graduation." Miss Maihl emphasized the importance of reading good fiction and good non-fiction. She extended an invitation to everyone to visit the main library or any of its branches to get books or any necessary information.

A very interesting trip to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York was arranged by Mr. Alles of the Linden Trust Company. The members were shown the vaults, where the country's gold supply is kept; the counting department where all coins are counted and packed and counterfeits detected; and the devices by which the building is protected.—GLADYS MENKE, '32; WILMA RENNER, '32

Der Deutsche Verein

This year the activities of Der Deutsche Verein began with a party for the initiates of the club. Each new member was given or rather had to take the chance to contribute something toward the entertainment, and the party was a fine success. To become an initiate to Der Deutsche Verein one must get an "A" during his first year of German or a "B" in Sophomore or Junior German. The purpose of the club, which is to increase and deepen the interest in German, must appeal to many students, because each year there has been an increasing number of candidates for membership. After the marks have been given out the secretary of the club, acting on the recommendation of the German teacher, sends the prospective members an invitation to join the club. If the student accepts the invitation he informs the secretary of his intention of becoming a member, and there remains but the initiation.

The meetings which are held the second Friday of every month in room 103 are opened with the club song, which has been adopted this year—Mozart's "Brüder reicht die Hand zum Bunde." During the meetings entertainment is provided for the members. This year, owing to the interesting political situation in Germany, reports were given on men prominent in the present situation. Two of the reports were made on Adolph Hitler, the National Socialist leader, and Heinrich Bruening, Chancellor of Germany and a leader of the Center Party. The reports gave a small part of the early life of each man, but were devoted mainly to his political activities and beliefs.

Literature Club

Juniors and Seniors make up the membership of the Literature Club, which was organized to promote a further interest in Literature. In order to become a member of the club, which now consists of twenty-four members, a Junior or Senior must obtain at least a "B" average in English. The meetings, which take place during the eighth period, are held on the second Friday of each month. During the club meetings, programs consist of talks on dramatists, poets, and novelists. Book reports are frequently given. During one program, a very interesting discussion of motion pictures of the season was given by Sylvia Kaplan and Freda Glick, both members of the Junior Class.

The assembly program sponsored by the Literature Club was a play entitled "The Rising of the Moon," by Lady Gregory. An Irish lad is put in prison for rebelling against the King of England. He escapes from prison and one hundred pounds' reward is offered for his capture. He tries to escape from the country by having a friend bring a boat to the wharf. Upon being stopped by the sheriff, he says he is a poor ballad singer. They talk and sing together and finally the man tells the sheriff who he really is. The sheriff, in a moment of pity, lets the man go, and then wonders if he is as big a fool as he thinks he is. The old man's part was taken by Harry Mopsick, of the Senior Class; the sheriff, by Paul Archipley; first seargeant, Ziegmund Wilchinsky; and the second seargeant, by Raymond Bauer, all three being in the Junior Class.

The Library Squad

"Where can I find something about frogs?" "Who wrote 'Hawkers and Walkers'?" "Have you anything on Houdini?" These questions and others one learns to answer by working on the Library Squad. Aside from learning about actual library work, the interested member learns to know people: the student who likes adventure stories, the boy who is a stamp enthusiast and the absent-minded upper-classman who forgets his book is due.

How does one get on the Library Squad? There are three qualifications which you must have. Good grades is one of them. This is necessary because a part of your time which should be given ordinarily to study is devoted to the library. You must have a pleasing personality. Add to the good grades and pleasing personality a willingness to work and we have the qualities necessary for a member of the Library Squad.

After a student has joined the Library Squad there are many things he must learn to do. His duties are to check books and periodicals, read shelves and arrange the daily circulation. Aside from this routine work a member of the Squad becomes acquainted with books which deal with certain subjects and through this familiarity he may be of assistance to the students looking for information in this field.

A member of the Library Squad has a chance to participate in an assembly program which the organization gives once a year. This year's program dealt with the history of the library, the reference books and the gift books. Taking everything into consideration the Library Squad is an instructive and profitable organization under the guidance of Miss Waterman.

The Orchestra

Although the Orchestra has been having difficulties this year, it has succeeded remarkably under the direction of Mrs. Weinheimer. On account of the double session there are two assembly periods, and the Orchestra has been divided into Upperclassmen and Freshmen. The Orchestra has played at numerous Parent-Teacher Association meetings. Some of the selections played throughout the year are: "The Stars and Stripes Forever," "The Blue Danube," "The Washington Post March," "Minuet," "High School Cadets," "The Song of India," and "Prairie Sketches." The Orchestra consists of thirty pieces: ten first violins, ten second violins, two trumpets, two clarinets, one fife, two saxophones, one bass viol, one piano, and one set of drums. Rehearsals are held every Thursday afternoon in the auditorium.

There has been selected from the Orchestra a string ensemble which has rehearsed after the regular rehearsals, under the direction of Harry Mopsick, and which has played with great success on numerous occasions. One of these was the banquet at the Hotel Winfield Scott in Elizabeth held in honor of Mr. Howell, who has been Supervising Principal of the Linden Schools for the past twenty-five years. At this banquet the ensemble played: "The Hungarian Dance V," and "Andante."

Many of the members who have joined had had no previous experience in playing with a group. This year's work has developed their musical ability by impressing upon them the absolute need for organized playing. Experience has also been acquired in instrumental grouping.

The Jazz Orchestra

The jazz orchestra has had a very favorable and successful record. This year's orchestra was organized in October with the following members: piano, "Clancy" Winans; drums, "Marion" Orlowski; trumpet, "Bill" Feduniak; saxophones, "Harry" Mopsick and "Adam" Wrublewski; violins, "Louis" Hegy and "Joe" Poskay; banjo, "Sid" Grauer. Practice was held in the gymnasium and at homes of orchestra members. The result of these practices was the finest syncopation the High School students have ever danced to. The dancers swayed to the strains of such rhythms as "Somebody Loves You," "Too Many Tears," "Tired," "Shine On, Harvest Moon," "Me," "Strangers" and "Auf Wiedersehen." "Carolina's Calling Me" was the signature song. The orchestra's plans included vocal numbers and instrumental solos by all members. By taking the modern musical interpretations of famous orchestras and supplying their own particular novelties, they played with pleasing melody and rhythm. When the different organizations of the school sponsored dances in collaboration with the jazz orchestra, they found that vocal selections, novelty dances and decorations interested the dancers and provided absorbing entertainment. The Senior Afternoon dance was held November 19, 1931, the Halloween party, October 30, 1931, and the Junior Saint Patrick's dance on March 17, 1932. The jazz orchestra has started plans for a dance late in the spring. Miss Rose, the faculty adviser, has greatly aided the boys of the orchestra through the entire year.

Athletic Association

The Athletic Association, which has existed for many years in our high school, has proved to be of great advantage to everyone. Each student who wishes to be a member of the Athletic Association must pay a fee of one dollar. Each member is given a ticket which admits him to all home games free and to all of the out-of-town games for half the price. Only members are allowed to participate in sports; thus any student wishing to take part in athletics or to be an officer of the A. A. must join the Association. The money collected at the door during games and from the sale of membership tickets is used to pay for equipment, traveling expenses, fees for referees, linesmen and umpires, and expenses caused by players' injuries.

The cheering squad has been very active this year. The squad consists of Anna Halasz, Julia Zimansky, Angelina Ubaldi, Myrtle Hunton and Fay Bishop. The girls practice on Friday mornings during home-room period. They often lead cheers and songs in the auditorium. The work of the cheering squad and the hearty coöperation of the student body has been well rewarded by our teams' brilliant victories. The cheer leaders have been relieved at times by a trial squad consisting of Louisa Wood, Emily Koenig, and Evelyn Frank.

The Athletic Association has done much to promote coöperation and sportsmanship in our high school.

The Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club was started last January, and the members have spent most of the ensuing months organizing. For the sake of the new members we shall have next year, we shall tell what we expect to do. First, we want to present some short plays in the afternoons for the benefit of the student body. Next, we want to attend at least one play on Broadway. Then we want to delve into many phases of dramatic art—costuming, characterization, and professional make-up. Of course there will be many other things to keep us busy.

The Dramatic Club is trying a number of experiments. For instance, we have no officers, and all the tiresome organization which clubs have is cut out. We have no definite dues, either, and our treasury is made up of voluntary contributions.

The club was started by a group of Sophomore girls, and so far only Sophomore girls have been admitted. However, when the membership is enlarged, pupils from every class will be accepted.

Our efforts have been successful so far, and we think that we have an enjoyable future before us.

ELIZABETH SWINTON, '34

Science Club

The meetings of the Science Club are held twice a month. The purpose of these meetings is to further the interest of the student body in science. Naturally, the meetings are about scientific problems. At one meeting, lantern slides were shown on astronomy. After the slides, a discussion was held on "How Lantern Slides Are Made."

A committee has been chosen to make a transit for the members of the club. It will enable them to measure distances more easily. It will be like the instrument used by surveyors. The club also expects to get a sextant and to learn to "shoot" the sun. All these things are novel for students interested in science.

GLADYS MENKE, '32

The Stamp Club

The Stamp Club is one of the newly-formed clubs of the High School. It holds its meetings during the fourth period of every third and fourth Friday of the month. During these meetings the members discuss and exchange stamps. The purpose of the club and of its meetings is to create an interest in stamps, to exchange stamps, to supply a school reference album and to discuss the importance of stamps. The school album contains stamps of all sorts. It contains some rare ones which have been submitted by the members of the Stamp Club and which have been bought with the money that the members pay each month. The members of this club are, at present, all boys, although girls who are interested in stamp collecting may enter.

Parent-Teacher Association

At the opening meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association held on October 13, all the regular fall business was discussed. The double session prevailing in the school made it necessary to have only four meetings this year. Two were held in the evening and two in the afternoon.

Sadie Orlando acted as chairman during the opening program of the December 8 meeting, when a regular assembly program was repeated. Songs and recitations by Miss MacConkey's home-room, celebrating Armistice Day, were given. Those taking part were Sadie Orlando, Helen Klein, Adeline Mehrman, Marian Wadel, Betty Swinton, Dorothy Ehrengart, Lillian Rafelson, Edyth Wiener and Betty Budrecki. The address of the evening, on the need and possibilities of peace, was given by the Reverend Herbert K. England, D.D. A social hour followed the program.

The next meeting, set aside as Fathers' Night, took place on February 8. Dr. A. G. Ireland, Director of Physical and Health education for the State of New Jersey, spoke on physical education. Ziegmund Wilchinsky and Sam Gidseg gave talks on the side of George Washington's life that does not usually enter our minds.

Monday, April 11, at 8:30, at School No. 1, a joint meeting was held for all the Parent-Teacher Associations in the city.

The last meeting will be held on May 10. There will be an election of officers and a discussion of business that will bring a successful year to a close.

Alumni

Since its revival in 1929 the Linden High School Alumni Association has sponsored a program which has promoted social and athletic activities among its members and helped to keep them in touch with the ideals and achievements of their Alma Mater.

On June 4, 1931, a successful bridge party was given in the Myles McManus Hall to raise money for the Association. On June 15 the graduates of '31 were invited to a "Senior Night" in the High School auditorium and gymnasium. At this gathering Ethel Augustine, '24, Sam Hirschman, '24, and Peter Jacobi, '29, entertained at the piano. A clever radio skit was presented. Thirty-two seniors were welcomed to Alumni membership.

On the evening of December 11, 1931, benefit basket ball games between the boys' and girls' teams of the Alumni and the High School were played. The Alumni won both games, the score of the girls' game being 23-19 and that of the boys' 22-20. The games were well attended.

The annual election of the Association was held in the Linden High School on December 29, 1931. The officers elected for 1932 were Marion Jacobi, '26,

President; James Ashwell, '26, first Vice-President; Frances Dermody Mackle, '24, second Vice-President; Christopher Hauswald, '31, third Vice-President; Helen Hickey, '29, Secretary; Aldone Rippen, '31, Assistant Secretary; and Anna Francke, '28, Treasurer. In her speech of acceptance Miss Jacobi, the new president, stressed the necessity for coöperation.

In accordance with the custom begun in 1931, a program prepared by the Association was given in the upper class assembly of the High School on March 24, 1932. George Bienfang, '28, acted as chairman. Louis Glick, '28, spoke on "Extra-Curricular Activities in College," and Lillian Smith, '28, spoke on "A Typical College Day." The program was very interesting and greatly appreciated by the students.

Many graduates of '31 are continuing their education in higher schools of learning. Abe Gelfond, Fred Gugel, and Walter Kudak are enrolled at Rutgers University. Rebecca Surgens has entered upon a course at the Trenton Teachers' College. Gertrude Kasper and Ida Yanowitz are at the New Jersey College for Women. Ruth Hirschman and Rosemary Flynn are completing their first year at the Newark Normal. Charles Engelman, Paul Blackman, Fred Vininski, and Wendell Wood have turned to the field of engineering and are enrolled at the Newark College of Engineering. Lester Barr is at Gettysburg. Grant Bauer is studying at Penn. State, and Louis Oestreicher is in New York University. Mollie Cohan is working in the extension department of Rutgers University. Eleanor Black, Frank Jindrak, and Elizabeth Weidl are finishing their first year at Pace Institute. Milton Pikulin is enrolled at Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina. Clara Rihlman is preparing to be a nurse in the Elizabeth General Hospital. Ruth Alexander is employed as secretary in Miss Ebbert's office in the Linden High School. Also in Miss Ebbert's office as secretary is Beatrix Farkas, '30, who began her work there in May, 1931.

A number of the Linden High School alumni will be graduated this year from higher institutions. Louis Glick, '28, William Weisbrot, '27, and J. Wesley Ainge, '27, will receive degrees from Rutgers University. William Amon, '28, is completing his work at the Newark College of Engineering. George Bienfang, '28, is finishing his course at Lehigh. Matilda Nogi, '28, will be graduated from Dickinson. Among the graduates of the New Jersey College for Women this year will be Lillian Smith, '28, and Irene Molson, '28. Yetta Gutkin, '29, is completing a three-year course at the Newark Normal School. Norman Vanderwall, '26, will receive his Master's Degree from the Graduate School of Cornell University. Manuel Margulies, '28, will be graduated from New York University and Joseph Oestreicher, '28, from Pace Institute.

During the present year Harold Green, '30, who was a student at Lebanon Valley College, has been enrolled at Dartmouth College. Michael Sellner, '30, has entered the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University. Clara Hill Masterson, '30, is a student at Rider College. Alfons Latawiec, '29, has begun his studies in Furman University.

Several members of the Alumni matriculated in higher institutions have won this year distinguished recognition for the work which they have done. Peter Ezayuk, '27, a graduate of the School of Business of Columbia University, has been elected to membership in Beta Gamma Sigma, the honorary fraternity of schools of business and commerce of the United States. In recognition of his scholastic attainments, a scholarship was awarded to him for the year 1931-1932. He is now assisting several professors in New York City on part-time work and will receive his Master's degree from Columbia University in June. Louis Glick, '28, who has been a member of the Varsity Debating Team of Rutgers University, has been elected to Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic society. Irene Molson, '28, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Pauline Pacher, '30, has achieved high scholarship at the Trenton Teachers' College, where she has been an honor student for the past two years. A high score in a competitive civil service examination has won for Dorothy Baptist, '28, the appointment as clerk bookkeeper in the Fifth District Court of Union County, situated in the Linden City Hall.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Blanche Levine, '26, secretary to Mr. D. A. Howell, Supervising Principal of the Linden Schools, to Lewis Winetsky, '25, prominent Linden attorney. Doris Herman, '24, was recently married to Mr. Herman Stock of New York.

Memories

The first day of school—Like taking a cold shower, but school is great when you get used to it. It was good to see all the fellows again. We have only one more year together.

The Rahway football game—The game was a corker, and we won it! That night, however, Rahway put Linden to rout after a hardly-contested battle.

The Junior-Senior Halloween Party—My conscience hurts when I think of all the girls' feet I stepped on. I didn't mind it, but I imagine the girls did.

Thanksgiving—Forever to be remembered for turkey, a tummy-ache, and a holiday.

The Senior Afternoon Dance—A big success and a lot of fun.

Christmas—A long, much-needed and well-deserved vacation.

New Year's Eve—Wassail and the flowing bowl—mixed with a touch of sadness. Only a half-year left now.

Senior Pictures—Chiefly to be remembered for trying to sit still and keep from laughing.

Saint Patrick's Day—A smile on Irish faces and a smile in Irish hearts. The Juniors gave an afternoon dance, which was a great success. Eddie Goldberg sang "Minnie the Moocher" with great gusto.

April and May—I'll have to look into the future now. One thing is certain. That's final exams. Rabbit's foot, do your duty!

Commencement—In every Senior's heart will be memories of Linden High and the four happy years we've spent there. With Commencement will come the joy of success and the sadness of farewell. Vale!

Slips That Pass

Miss Ranney: "Were there many earthquakes in New England in 1727?"

John Tomaszewski: "I can't remember back that far!"

Mr. Moldaschl: "Where is your German book?"

Alibi Expert: "It fell in the fishbowl and got wet."

Bauer, translating in German Class: "She was her rich father's only son."

Mr. Barrett: "—and who is Mahatma Ghandi?"

Kazimer Budrecki: "He's the man who wears a sheet and scandals."

Hyman Wilner: "When do we have our final "Solid" exam?"

Miss Rose: "The end of January—the beginning of February."

Wilner: "Will it take that long?"

Elsie Hatzuk to Hyman Ortner: "Do you approve of city-owned public utilities?"

Ortner (after a few seconds): "No—there would be too many free rides."

Coach Siegman: "Small shoulder circles backward—Fanny, are those circles?"

Fanny Shefman: "No, they're semicircles."

Wilner, delivering an oration on "Syracuse": "—and up at 'Syracuse' the crew rows seven hours in the morning and fourteen in the afternoon."

Mr. Barrett: "Can anyone tell us something about Peter Stuyvesant?"

Lillian Chevalier (who has heard at home of a famous statue): "He used to sit outside the school when my mother was a girl."

Mopsick: "When I'm about three blocks away from a traffic light the green light looks blue. Does that mean I'm color-blind?"

From the side: "No, cross-eyed."

Beckman (looking thru a converging lens at the highway): "I wonder how those people feel, riding on their heads."
