Presents

THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER

Victor Boruta, as the intolerable Sheridan Whiteside, versus . . .

. . . Stuart Grossman, as his "low on tolerance" host, Mr. Stanley.

The Man Who Came To Dinner . . . director . . . Miss Kowalski . . . main attractions . . . a belligerent doorstep . . . Coke-drinking penguins . . . a pompous V.I.P. . . . Periplaneta americana? . . . ye ole country horse doctor . . . an Egyptian mummy . . . an ultra-British dandy . . . homespun espionage . . . red socks . . . hilarity!

Dr. Bradley (Bob Zirlin) — local promoter of good health and of himself.

An ax-murderess (Nancy Lovendosk) bearing gifts?

The amorous Banjo (Steve Farber) displays his brute strength to Miss Preen (Marilyn Domanski).

Maggie Cutler (Michele Fabrizio) gets a rather tipsy view of things from Bert Jefferson (Fred Gmitter).

Some shifty advice à la "Blossom Girl," Lorraine Sheldon (Nina Renaud).

The recipe for counteracting Lorraine's plotting— Beverly Carlton (Harlan Gardiner).

Miss Kowalski, Director, samples the appreciation of all the students involved in presenting the play as (clockwise) Barbara Watkins (Director's Asst.), Scott Bierman (Co-ordinator), Darlene Underwood, Fred Labudzinski, Victor Boruta, and Regina Bartus (Director's Asst.) look on.

Stage Manager Fred Labudzinski.

Administration

Wilson Scott B.S., Trenton State College M.Ed., Rutgers University Assistant Principal

Cynosure could not hope to tell the complete story of the 1968-69 school year without introducing the people who have consistently worked for the welfare of the students of Linden High School. These people include classroom teachers who have helped facilitate study and promote extracurricular activities, as well as administrators and members of the Board of Education. The Administration pictured on these two pages has perhaps most directly served the average student in his three-year stay at Linden High School. It has eagerly listened to his opinions and problems and has tried to help him make correct decisions. Cynesure '69 would like to pay tribute to Mr. Edward R. Cooper, Miss Evelyn Smith, and Mr. Wilson Scott.

Guidance

Julia Z. Creitz B.S., Trenton State M.A., Seton Hall University Guidance

John D. Schott B.S., Providence College M.Ed., Rutgers University Guidance

There comes a time in every student's high school career when he or she must seriously consider the prospect of choosing a profession. Some students go to college, some to secretarial or office jobs, and others into the armed forces. The guidance counselor is there to help the student decide upon and then pursue a career. Counselors function as liaison between the student and the world which must be coped with after graduation.

Besides doing their usual work, such as filing applications and filling out transcripts, our guidance counselors have been convincing admissions officers from top-notch colleges to visit the students of Linden High School. In such a manner, our students are able to ask direct questions, receive direct answers, and get a general view of what the colleges have to offer.

Business Education

Lillian M. Winetsky M.A., Seton Hall University B.S., Rider College Department Head Business Education Bookkeeping I and Bookkeeping II

This department helps its students prepare for any of a variety of careers in the business world. Anyone who ventures into Big Business should have a working knowledge of the tools of the trade, such as the use of typewriters, calculators, and keypunch machines. Linden High School now has more automated equipment for the use of Business Education students than ever before. This updated curriculum has been designed to provide the student with flexibility in choosing his courses. In a world which is becoming more and more administrative, high school courses in Business Education are becoming vital to the production of capable leaders.

Nurses

Linden High School students complaining of colds, the Hong Kong Flu, or of indigestion after lunch, paid visits to our two busy nurses. Probably they had their temperatures taken, were given baking soda for gargling, had cuts and bruises tended to, or, if seriously ill, were sent home. The preservation of health in our school can largely be attributed to the excellent work done by our skilled nurses.

The purpose of the physical education program in our high school is to provide recreation and to maintain the physical fitness of the students throughout their high school careers. Some of the activities of this program are basketball, volleyball, crab soccer, and, especially for the boys, rope climbing and the obstacle course. The obstacle course tests one's speed and agility in jumping over high parallel bars called elephants, running over horses, and jumping over bucks. Social dancing is an added feature which provides the students with a chance to prepare for their junior or senior barn dances.

A person is judged by the manner in which he speaks his native language. His correct or incorrect usage of English can cause him to be socially accepted or rejected, to gain employment or to fail to be employed, and to reach either a high plateau in life or to remain in the valley where all men start as equals. The English department of Linden High School tries to help people start their climb up that ladder of success by teaching correct usage and by extending the student's horizons with great pieces of literature from all over the world.

Communication is the source of all knowledge. If men of technology in all corners of the world were not able to communicate their discoveries, it is doubtful that we would be in this period of great advancement that the twentieth century has brought. We would exist in a stoneage world in which we would be unable to talk to anyone except ourselves. The fate of the world in this scientific age depends upon swift communication and interpretation. The student Library Squad has helped make the library an efficient school function working for the benefit of us all.

John J. Fay, Jr. B.S., Seton Hall University M.A., Seton Hall University U. S. History Modern European History Political Science Club

Social Science covers many fields, of which history is just a part. Past events are studied to tell us why things are happening in the present. If we, as a society, look at the decline of Rome, we may be able to predict and prevent the fall of our own. If we examine causes of war, we may be able to eliminate future conflicts which might mean our destruction. The Social Studies department of Linden High School has tried to teach the student more about himself and the world in which he lives. It has offered courses in economics, sociology, and, more recently, a course in Negro culture.

> Mathematics is like a foreign language in that it is a necessary means of communication, in this case, between the scientific world and the everyday world. Mathematics is the language of science and therefore of technology. It is foreign in the respect that it is based on a number system instead of an alphabet, but it has the advantage of being universal. Science and mathematics walk hand-in-hand in that one cannot be applied exclusively without the other.

This year, as a result of the added seventh period elective, students are given the opportunity to take second-year courses in biology and chemistry. These are Advanced Placement Courses which allow the student to learn subject material which would probably not be taught to him until college. Linden High School has always been well represented by its chemistry team. This year, we had two teams enrolled in the New Jersey Chemistry League, both under the excellent supervision of Mr. Salzer.

The vocational and industrial arts courses taught in Linden High School provide the student with a readily accessible skill. A person who is dexterous would find to his liking courses in graphic arts, mechanical drawing, wood shop, metal shop, art, or auto shop.

Mr. Thomas A. Archipley died on February 22, 1969, after having served on the Linden Board of Education for a total of twelve years. President of the Board in 1953 and Vice-President the three preceding years, Mr. Archipley was reappointed for a five-year term and was again Vice-President at the time of his unfortunate death.

Mr. James Drake Assistant Secretary to the Board of Education

Some generations of Americans have grown up with near worship for the coach. Boys who may frequently disobey their mothers and who question the authority of their fathers, accept the authority of the coach as if he were almost divine.

The Superintendent may be respected, the teacher may be reluctantly obeyed, but the coach is frequently worshiped. Boys suffer indignities, exert themselves to unheard of extent, bear pain without wincing — all this is forgotten at one smile or word of approbation from the coach.

If his teams are successful, the respect extends beyond the school, throughout the community. He stands a man apart, beloved by all. For forty-two years Edward R. Cooper was "coach" to the residents of

For forty-two years Edward R. Cooper was "coach" to the residents of Linden. Men of prominence in the county, businessmen and leaders of government, recalled with pride their days in Linden High School under Coach Cooper.

It is a remarkable tribute to him that, upon being promoted to the Principalship of Linden High School, his friends and associates on the faculty and in the community, still call him "Coach."

No one deserved this recognition more. The recognition of his basic concern for all individuals, his appreciation of the efforts of those who served under him, and the respect that all who knew him had for his ideals, was never greater than during these past five years when he directed the destiny of the school.

After forty-seven years, "coach" is retiring. His retirement leaves a vacuum that can never quite be filled. Those who have known you for so many years, "coach", and those who have served under you, wish you many years of happy retirement. In their own way, may they be years when your teams amass a perfect record — undefeated, untied, unscored upon. Farewell, Coach!

Edward R. Cooper

"Evelyn Smith:

Inspiring teacher, wise counselor, competent principal, understanding friend, your contribution to Linden High School has been beyond measure. You have set a high standard for all in education to emulate.

In the future may you find happiness, challenge, and success in your new ventures.

The Staff of Linden High School" These words are inscribed at the top of a scroll that, along with an oil painting, was presented to Miss Smith at her retirement tea in December.

The epithet, "inspiring teacher", was given to her because as a teacher of social science in Soehl Junior High and later at Linden High School, Miss Smith did more than teach subject matter. She was interested in the whole student, in his development as a person as well as in his academic progress. Besides instilling a love of learning, she made the student aware of the part that he must play as a good citizen of the school and the community.

When she became guidance counselor and, in 1956, assistant principal in the high school, her devotion to education, to the school, to its faculty, and to its students was unselfish and untiring. As an educator, her ideals were sincere and her integrity great. She stressed high principles and in return was accorded respect.

Evelyn Smith entered the Linden school system in nineteen twenty-nine. A graduate of Jamesburg High School, she attended Elmira College, where she received her bachelor's degree as a member of Phi Beta Kappa. She completed her work for her master's degree at Rutgers. After thirty-nine and one-half years of outstanding service in Linden, Miss Smith retired on December 31, 1968.

We extend to you, Miss Smith, our warm and sincere wishes for your health and happiness in the future. The words so often heard in Linden High School since your retirement express the feelings of both students and staff: "I wish Miss Smith were here, I miss her."

In Memoriam

"Once a person whom I respected and loved very much said, 'Life is nothing but a bunch of ups and downs, with more downs than ups, and as time goes on it seems as if the downs go deeper and the ups fewer, and higher, yet it is good because it makes the times when things are good seem even better.'

"The most important thing though was when he told me that a man becomes a man when a man is needed. The need arose for him not too long ago, and I want you all to know when Donald Van Kline died he died a man."

Acknowledgements

In order to compile this book, I needed the help of many individuals. At this time I wish to thank them — my advisors, Mr. Volz, Editorial and Photography Staffs, Miss Burd, Circulation, and Mr. Haiko, Advertising, for all their help; my staff members, photographers, and secretaries, especially my editors — Nancy Freel and Linda Robichaud, co-assistant editors, Steve Farber, Photography, and Kathy Beriont, Art. But most of all I wish to express my thanks to you, the student body, because without you the publication of this book would neither have been possible nor necessary.

In conclusion, I wish to say that before we seek world peace we should first try to unify our own country so that all of its cultures can co-exist.
