EXTRA

To record a year, diverse yet singular, and to preserve its complex qualities became the first tremendous task the 1980 CYNOSURE staff undertook. One common denominator had to tie every aspect of the fleeting year together, which became manifest in theme.

Summer sessions by the managing staff resulted in many ideas, none of which stood up to the pressure of testing. An understanding of CYNOSURE production began to engulf new staff minds. The 1980 yearbook would contain full color for the first time in its history. Why not utilize this to the fullest advantage, coupled somehow with the energy crunch that seemed to dominate the year?

With the components discovered, there still remained one problem — how would they be united into one common denominator? "Energy!" came the resounding answer.

"Now relate it to the year!" came the reply.

"Tigers energize '80" and thus the theme exploded.

Next, a cover illustrating the theme had to be designed.

A dynamic theme required an equally striking cover. The end product of design upon design provided exactly the elements necessary.

Black bolts project from a background of orange and are conducted toward a single focal point. Here they combine and illuminate that point, evincing energy.

The 1980 CYNOSURE served as that conductor which took the separately existing entities of Curriculum, Fall Sports and Pep, Winter Sports, Student Body, Student Life and Advertisements and focused their energy on the pages of the yearbook. Commencing with the continuity of the yellow bolt onto the endsheets, power surged through to the dividers and became absorbed within each section.

For the first time, an introductory section portrays and further develops the theme in full color. A symbol signifying the end of copy and tying in with the theme also makes its debut.

All these elements, poured together into the CYNOSURE, react and resurge as the TIGERS ENERGIZE '80.

Chuck Hartmann supplies the rhythm for the cheers and the pounding for the elevation to victory.

Donna Norrelli, Helen Tomaskovic, and Flora Tomaskovic warm up their glockenspiels.

Bigger in size and sound, the L.H.S. Marching Band took the field. Paul Haase, the band director, remarked "The band is building in size. This year we're larger than ever before."

Size did prove to be a slight hindrance, however, "We seemed to have trouble fitting everyone with a proper uniform," reflected one student.

Led by majorette Monica Blischock and drum major Dwayne Jennings, the marching Tigers performed at every football game, home and away. They marched in Linden's Halloween Parade, Elizabeth's Columbus Day Parade, and competed in the Rutger's Home News Marching Band Festival.

Band President Joe Paglia commented, "We improved this year in many areas. The most encouraging has to be the attendance and performance of the underclassmen."

Dwayne Jennings, Band Drum Major, reflects concern over the last play at the Cranford game which Linden won 7-0.

The mellow brass of Alan Celeste's trombone contributes to "Tigers Victory" fight song.

A military touch with the twirl of a gun.

With a burst of school and the twirl of a gun, the 1979 football season began for the eight girls chosen to be the L.H.S. color guard squad. Under the supervision of Mrs. Santa Goleme and co-captains Cathy Klutkowski and Sandy Yeadon, the girls put together new moves and invented routines composed of various military positions and moves pertaining to the handling and twirling of a gun. The color guard squad had the opportunity to perform at the football game. Also, color guards were invited to perform with the marching band and other squads at Rutgers Stadium in New Brunswick for the annual Home News Festival.

According to Christine Kloc, a junior member of the squad, "All the girls worked really hard to have a fantastic squad."

Fusion of the Color Guards and Tigerettes energizes a field of performance.

Working overtime for half-time festivities

Exhibiting rhythm and spirit, the Tigerettes performed routines to the "beat" at football games and the Halloween parade. Tickets for school dances could also have been purchased from them.

All twenty girls practiced daily after school and on Saturdays. Co-Captains, Sharlene Thomas and Angela Accardo, created their routines with the assistance of Mrs. Topaleski, adviser.

Sharlene and Angela attended summer camp at Monclair State College which provided them with fresh material.

New white hats added a certain touch to conventional orange and white uniforms and helped the student body to identify them.

Harder routines and classy moves enhance season

"The twirling squad has been working very hard this year," remarked Mrs. Topoleski, the squad coach.

"The squad is performing harder routines and more difficult moves."

Prospective members attended four workshops, at which they learned the routine. Two at a time they then demonstrated their level of ability to outside judges, who chose six of the best to form the squad.

At practices held every day in the gym after school, the girls worked out routines to perform with the marching band at football games.

During the summer they organized themselves twice a week to prepare for the upcoming year. A teacher from an outside twirling school further instructed the girls to enhance their routine for the kickoff dance.

The flags of Linden flashed on the football field powered by six girls under the direction of Mrs. Santa Goleme.

During half time and at the annual kick-off dance, the flag twirlers waved through their routines. Helping to refresh school spirit, they participated in the pep rally and in Linden's Halloween parade and joined the band at the Home News Festival in Rutger's Stadium.

At practices twice a week, co-captains Michele Tatum and Tywana Watkins experimented with techniques, and on a summer evening the girls could have been seen perfecting their routines at Wilson Park.

... in orange and black!

Some of the spirit and energy found in Linden High fans can be attributed to the devotion and hard work of the Varsity Cheerleaders, whose routines helped spark fan participation.

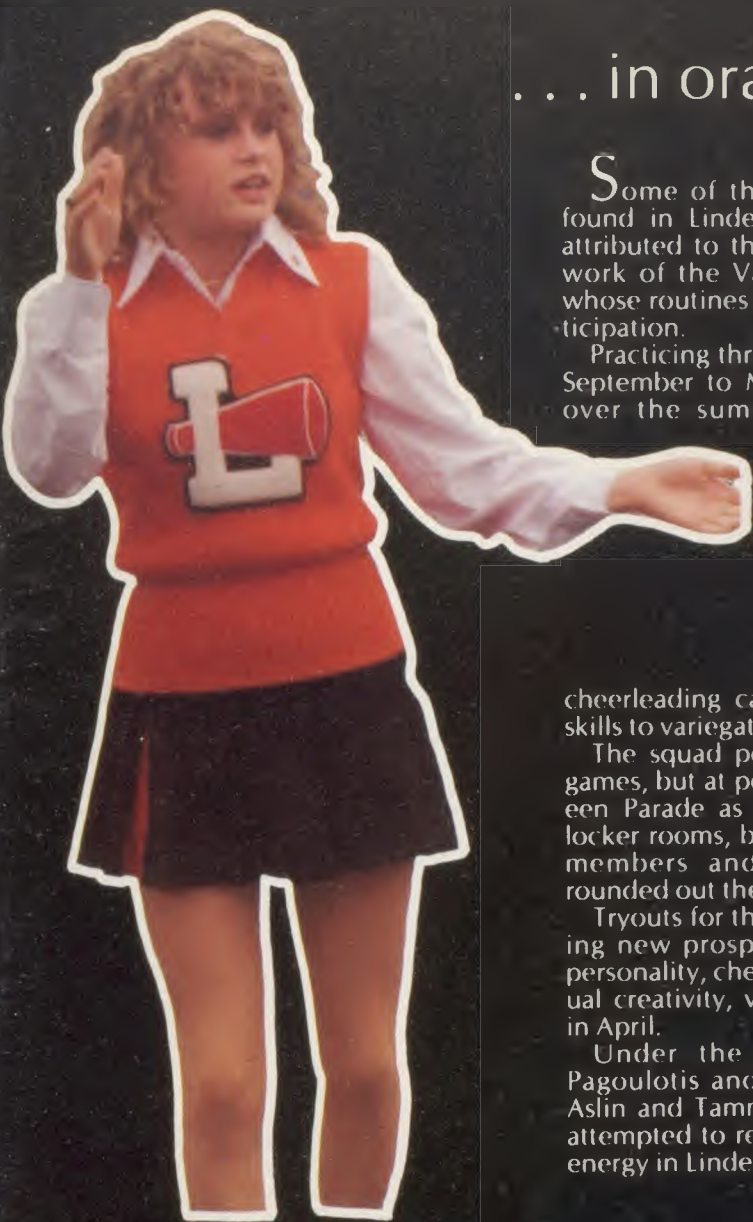

Practicing three times a week from September to March, twice a week over the summer and attending cheerleading camp, they developed skills to variegated their routines.

The squad performed not only at games, but at pep rallies, the Halloween Parade as well. Decorating the locker rooms, buying candy for team members and baking for them rounded out their activities.

Tryouts for the Varsity squad, judging new prospects on appearance, personality, cheer execution, individual creativity, voice and pep, began in April.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Pagoulotis and co-captains Allison Aslin and Tammy Ronge, the squad, attempted to revitalize fan spirit and energy in Linden High for 1980.

“Our goal is to improve week to week.”

Under the watchful eye of the referee, Scott Beriont punts LHS out of trouble.

Early in the season, Coach Martino felt his outstanding players had to be his defensive team. Among those cited: Seniors Dominic Bramante (co-captain), Lee Roper (co-captain), Andy Orak, Willy Jones, Rick McDonnell, Troy Traynham, and Junior Kirk Charles.

The team practiced an average of fifteen to twenty hours a week, and viewed films during the weekends for mental and physical preparation. Linemen, running backs, ends, speciality teams and the quarterback all spent more time with their respective coaches.

In each and every game LHS Tigers demonstrated dedication, the coach thought, and he also expressed pride in the squad's improvement in skills, attitudes, self-discipline, and respect for each other.

Coach Martino had tried to develop a new offense by utilizing his quick backs. He added, “Even though it was not too successful, we’re getting there. Our goal is to improve week to week and game to game.”

The battle in the trenches

Exceptional season lacks one thing —

The Junior Varsity Football team had an exceptionally good season. Consisting of Juniors and Sophomores, they showed the potential of a good football team. Showing improvement from last year, Coaches McDonald and Cilento brought the team to a 3-3-2 record.

Much more student support is needed for games, even though they are played on Monday afternoons.

Some sophomores became a very important part of the squad, and many players had the chance to gain experience on their way to the varsity team. Mr. McDonald and Mr. Cilento felt that, "the J.V. made progress and had a good season."

A season of tiring competition.

A vision of victory inspires George Wadlich to push himself through the grueling agonies of practice.

Twelve runners guided by a new coach formed the Cross Country team. The team members included three girls: Rosemary Walks, Betty Ann Sinclair and Jackie Crosby. Headed by coach Yesinko, the team faced a tough season. Nick Mittica returned as the sole letter man. Many injuries plagued the team, but Coach Yesinko worked hard to overcome these obstacles.

The dedicated members of the team could be seen running through the streets of Linden training for the exhausting meets ahead. They practiced five days a week and ran individually on weekends. Practice consisted of warm up exercises and stretches followed by sprints or long distance running. They often ran ten to twelve miles to prepare themselves physically and mentally for competition.

Every team member had the opportunity to run at meets, where they faced about three miles of course. In tournaments, only the best five runners competed. Cross Country running required a special kind of talent and discipline which only a few possessed.

Blurs to the eye, the cross country team races against their images reflected in the pond. Preparing their bodies for the grueling meets.

A season of trial and error.

Lisa Jakub sends the opposition something to ponder.

Starting off its season with a seventh place ranking in the county and a brand new coach, the girls' tennis team suffered its first defeat against Mother Seton but fought its way through to a 7-9 season. They dropped down a notch to a ranking of eighth in the county.

Returning veterans included seniors Joan Dane, Kathy DaSilva, Laurie Kaplowitz, Jean Lesniak, and Diane Piascik. Ms. Fernandes recruited sophomores Lisa Jakub, Stephanie Hoptay, Nancy Hreha, and Lisa Lerine to round out the team. Everyone had the opportunity to play in a regular varsity match. Members often played different positions to learn their potentials.

Skill and talent spark team.

Senior Frank Platas uses his head to out-manuever his opponent and gain the ball for Linden.

Under the constant guidance of Coach Paul Garrett and assistant Tony Picaro, the team advanced to the County Tournament, but then lost to Pingry.

Junior George Noll defended Linden's goal. He allowed only 19 scores out of 100 shots. Joe Keane, truly an outstanding offensive player, led the team in goals scored and also made Second Team All Union County. Kathy Weber and Liz Morro acted as statisticians, and supported the team at every game.

"Heads up!" are the words when Glen Kaplowitz is around.

Junior varsity soccer had a season full of spirited competition. The team's record of 5-7 indicated that the going had been a little rough. Half-way through the season, their record had been 0-6. Then the team started to catch up when the defense came around and successfully prevented the opposition from shooting at Linden's goalie.

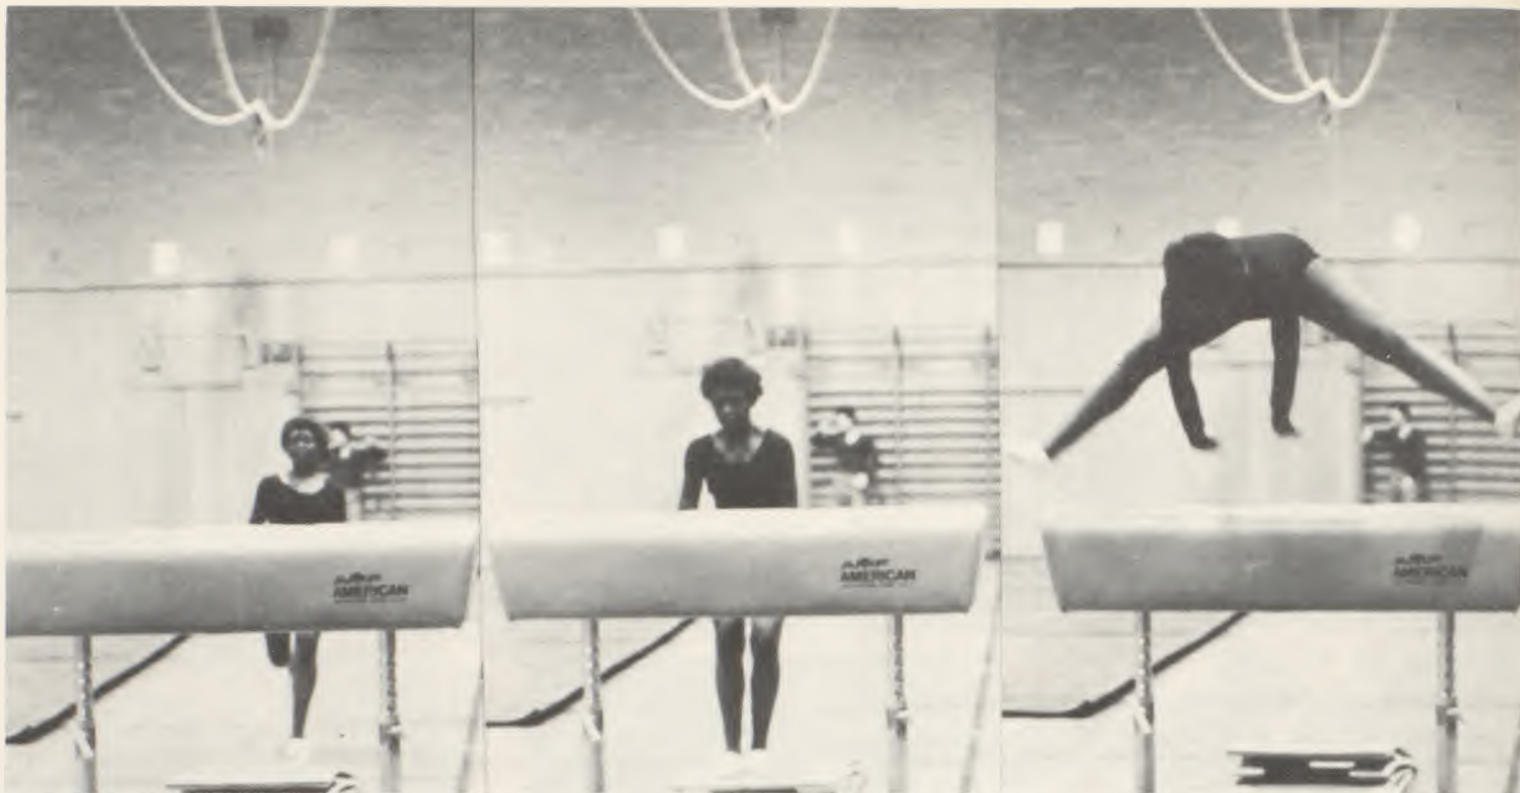

Co-Captains Ed Peters, Ralph Scharinger, Steve Schlaksi, and Coach Frank Taranto guided the JV's to five wins out of the last six games. Despite the fact that Ed Lukenda, goalie, had no experience and also came into the season later, he did a fine job.

Determination leads to personal victories.

Gymnastics may not currently be a spectator sport, but for the second year the girls' gymnastics team under the direction of Mrs. Janet Menedez, has been formed. The team faced eight meets each consisting of four events: the balance beam, vault, floor exercise, and uneven bars. The girls practiced diligently at McManus Jr. High four days a week perfecting routines and creating new moves.

Cathy Cantone, Donna Di Micele, Laurie Will, Kerry Abbott, Janet Wakefield, Michelle Grandison, Endy Green, Math Beth Jablon, Angela Wilson, Regina McMicken, and Mary Beth Pedro, make up the squad.

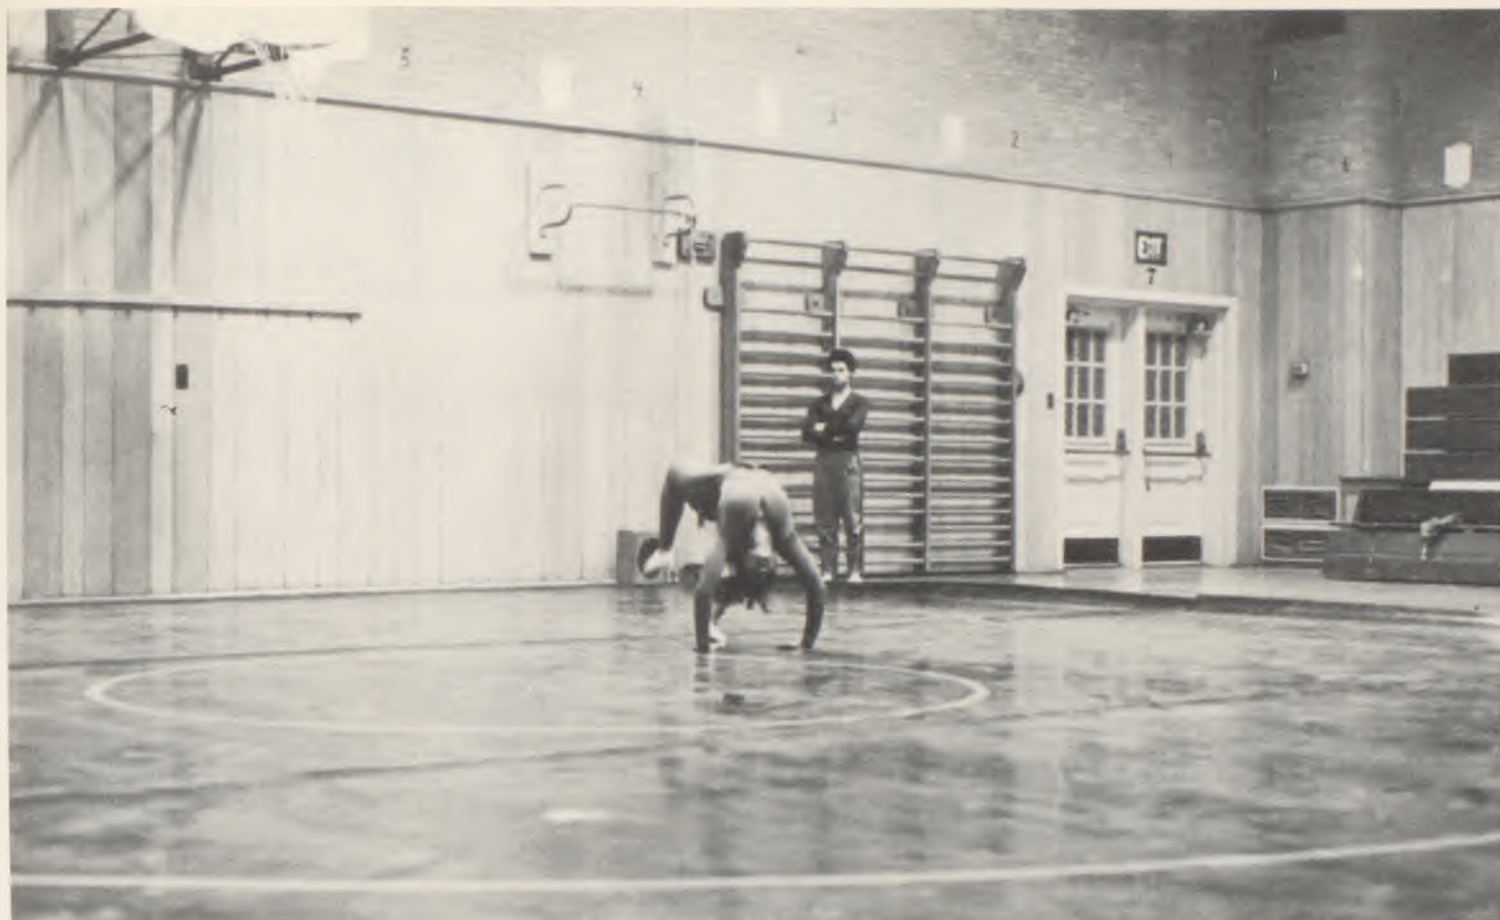

The year presented several problems for the squad; they lacked proper uniforms for competition and often had to practice on equipment that did not meet regulation requirements. However, according to gymnast Donna Di Micele, "All the girls were very enthusiastic. Most members are returning and looking forward to an outstanding season next year."

Gymnastics is a sport where individual performance counts. The victory of the team depends upon each individual performance. Although the team itself did not have any wins, the girls prided themselves in personal victories.

Although the team consists of many people, gymnastics is a sport which requires individual ability. Reward is slowly discovered by Janet Wakefield as she and Kerry Wylie put in long and lonely hours of practice.

"Now remember to keep your legs straight and toes pointed!" Coach Menendez gives Robbin Jones and Kerry Wylie a pep talk before a meet.

Janet Wakefield prepares her dismount for a perfect ending to her routine.

New policies to better the school.

The Board of Education and the administrative staff produced changes in the school in accordance with their job of controlling finances and creating new policies to better the schools.

In School Suspension (SS) proved effective in cutting down on the number of suspensions. A crack down on garbage and vandalism improved the general atmosphere in the school. Several teachers and administrators relocated their offices. Plans for the future included scheduling, tardiness, and grades being handled by computer.

Successful changes such as these come about because of close cooperation between the Board of Education and superintendents.

Coming home with a decade of experience

Returning to the school where he had once taught chemistry, Mr. Alvin Coplan became the new principal of L.H.S. Formerly vice-principal of McManus Jr. High, Mr. Coplin referred to the high school as "coming home."

He wasted no time instilling new policies such as in-school suspension and the streamlining of the report card system. He also promised more assemblies and placed a large emphasis on school spirit.

Mr. Coplan's work throughout the school system has helped prepare him for his present position. "Teaching gave me an understanding of the needs of students. The ten years as an administrator at McManus gave me an understanding of the needs of the staff." Whether as a teacher or an administrator, Mr. Coplan just enjoys being with kids.

According to Mr. Coplan, the main problem is one of communication. "We have a fine faculty and a fine student body and if we understand the needs of each other, the school has to better."

Mr. Di Micele, former history teacher, assumed the position of vice-principal and has aided Mr. Coplan in carrying out his policies. Mr. McEwen, as assistant principal, took care of student scheduling and other administrative duties.

Guiding the way to a productive year.

An office where students could obtain help with personal or academic problems, guidance offered valuable aid.

Six counselors provided individual attention to teachers, parents, and students with conferences upon request.

Progress reports kept parents up to date on students' work, and they also recommended student and professional tutors to those who needed it.

Guidance administered several tests to various grades: including P.S.A.T., California Achievement, New Jersey Minimum Basic Skills, and Scholastic Aptitude. They also assisted students in course selection and provided information about hundreds of careers from books and pamphlets.

With the Guidance Information System, counsellors obtained information concerning colleges, occupations and financial aid through the use of a computer. They provided transcripts and recommendations to college-bound seniors and advised them about college choices.

A college day when juniors and seniors could obtain information about New Jersey colleges was also sponsored by the guidance department.

In addition to its many other services, the guidance counselors helped students apply for working papers. They also arranged for home instruction and assignment to be sent to those who were ill at home.

Students select profitable courses.

For the past seven years, students have had the opportunity to attend Linden Vocational-Technical School. Because of the great demand for a school of its nature, the Vo-Tech has offered students to select profitable trade courses.

Altogether, 387 students attended and trained in auto mechanics, baking trades, carpentry and cabinet making, cosmetology, commercial arts, electrical trades, employment orientation, graphic arts, heating ventilation and air conditioning, machine shop, nurse's aid, radio and TV, and welding. Each program accounted for fifteen of the student's total credits — the equivalent of three majors.

Working on a split session, half the students attended in the morning from 8:00 to 10:50, ate lunch, and then proceeded to their required classes. The other half took required subjects in the morning, had lunch, and went to the Vo-Tech Building for the remaining part of the day.

Mr. Young works happily on an unfinished product.

Enjoyment is the key to Mr. Young's 34 years of success.

Though Mr. Young has been teaching wood shop for thirty-four years, he has never limited himself to the confines of those four walls. Graduated from Newark State, he later spent three and a half years on a navy destroyer during World War II. His post-war education, subsidized by the navy, included attending the Universities of North Carolina, Notre Dame, and then New York, where he earned a master's degree in diesel engineering. For several years afterward, he taught at Pingry and also taught special classes before coming to Linden High. Commenting on his job, Mr. Young stated, "As long as I enjoy what I am doing, and as long as the kids enjoy coming here, I will always enjoy teaching."

Besides teaching, Mr. Young also enjoys travelling, his worldwide visits include China, Russia, and Europe. From the places of his travels, he collects and carves various types of wood. Several of these have been exhibited in New Jersey museums and have captured competition awards. Others have a permanent home in the shop, presenting a log of both travel and skill.

Teachers return to drilling grammar and basics.

Stressing the fundamentals of reading and writing, the English department provided students with strong background. English teachers hoped to curtail deficiencies by drilling in grammar and basic skills.

In addition to the basic skills, business students learned practical skills which could be applied to their fields, such as writing interviews and resumes.

Sophomores undertook types of novels studying basic structure and making classifications.

Exploring literature, college-prep students completed required term papers that utilized the library and other research tools.

The Junior curriculum consisted of refined writing skills and studying American Literature, which illustrated various aspects of writing.

Seniors tackled Oedipus and Macbeth plus a variety of additional literature. Writing skills also accented the Senior College-prep program. Miss Burd summed up the senior program as, "applying skills that students learned in previous years in essays."

Outside trips to Tarrytown and Stratford, Connecticut, rounded out the curriculum. Over all, the English Department seemed satisfied with the reactions of teachers and students alike.

Taking a step in the right direction.

In an attempt to give students a better physical education program, instructors devised and put into effect a new elective system. Students had a choice of various courses: one activity covering the first half of the marking period, and another completing the remaining half. As many different courses as possible, such as modern dance, yoga, weight training, jogging, basketball, wrestling, floor hockey, soccer, and volleyball became available to both guys and girls. First choice went to seniors, second to juniors and finally sophomores filled out the remaining courses left by their upper classmen.

When divided, each group proceeded to the area where their activity took place: in either Gym A, Gym B, the Auxiliary Gym, or outside at Wilson Park. This provided for smaller classes and thereby increased the amount of class participation and individual attention possible in a single period. In addition, it developed more efficient utilization of the gym space available. Mrs. Pagoulatos, commenting on the new system, stated, "We're taking a step in the right direction."

For the first time in Linden High School history, the junior health program included a cardio-pulmonary course in addition to the customary general health. Commonly referred to as CPR, this program demonstrated rescue breathing and chest compressions to students. By instituting this program, Linden High School became the second high school in Union County to include CPR in the health curriculum. Conventional subjects, such as drugs, alcohol, and their abuse and the hazards of cigarette smoking covered the remaining portion of the marking period.

Sex Education, a controversial subject at the time of its introduction, became accepted throughout the years in coeducational classes. This program enabled students to understand the sexual aspect of the body in greater depth and to then relate the anatomy and psychology to everyday life.

The sophomore health curriculum, driver's education, presented the New Jersey Motor Vehicle laws and rules. At the conclusion of the program, students took the State Written Driver's test, which counted when the student went for his or her license.

Unique training for the future.

Training is the primary objective of the business department, which offers one of the finest programs in New Jersey. Many companies employ students upon graduation.

The department offered such subjects as typing, bookkeeping, steno, keypunch, office practice, office machines, and secretarial practice.

A Magna SL has been added to the office machines room. Three people at a time use this small, yet sophisticated computer which prints out five hundred words a minute.

Mr. Stein enjoys travel. He has visited Alaska, Hawaii and many other places in the United States. He also leads the

Changes emphasize BASIC skills

The math department featured changes and developments apparently beneficial to all math students.

Two new programs had been introduced. Mr. Colabelli taught an after school math review program of fifteen sessions to prepare students for the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Mr. Nunes not only took over for Mr. Elowitz, but also taught calculus. With increasing importance of computer programming came a worthwhile computer course, which Mr. Nunes also taught.

Four terminals make up the school's self-contained computer system. Once the fundamentals of programming had been mastered by a student, he could select programs in Math or Science. Students worked at their own pace and selected programs interesting to them. Mr. Nunes felt that "... courses in computer science will bring an understanding of the field of endeavor and an appreciation of the role of the computer in the world around us."

The department had two new members: Miss Fernandes, a graduate of Linden High, and Mr. Dubrowsky. These and other teachers used new textbooks in general mathematics and compensatory education mathematics.

Mr. Nunes guided students who participated in various math contests held in schools and colleges. Mr.

Colabelli took students to "Engineering Day" at Rutgers University.

Linden High's supervisor, Mr. Tylicki, commented, "We consider strong basic skills in mathematics a priority in the Linden Public Schools. All eleventh grade students must take the Minimum Basic Skills test of the NJ Educational Assessment Program, and those going on to college in NJ must take the NJ College Basic Skills Placement Test. We are exploring new ways of reaching high school students not currently taking mathematics."

Mr. Nunes is totally absorbed in complex mathematical calculations of calculus.

Theory and application stimulate curiosity.

Whether one's interest lay in quantum mechanics or cell theory, the science department offered a variety of courses to stimulate each curiosity.

Mr. Kaplan, Mr. Salzer, Mrs. Meril, and Mr. Gaines instructed juniors and seniors in Chemistry. Only one Chemistry II class existed, which Mr. Salzer guided in advanced study of principles and laboratory work.

Lorraine Wojtowicz and Ron Koenig, also under Mr. Salzer's wing, took on Chemistry III — independent study. With only a textbook to guide them, they delved into qualitative analysis.

An Honors Chemistry class for science-oriented sophomores allowed these students to take maximum advantage of science courses in their following years. These students had an extra period each day which they devoted to the laboratory.

Students taking Biology met with Mr. Czarneski, Mr. Hoffmann, Mrs. Meril, or Mr. Mehalik every day. Two advanced Biology classes under Mrs. Meril and Mr. Hoffman gave juniors and seniors new insights into plant development, dissection, and other aspects of Biology.

A class of juniors studied with extra emphasis on the chemical aspects of Biology.

Field trips to Warinanco Park highlighted the Environmental Science course which stressed the fundamentals of Ecology. Mr. Mehali showed his Earth Sciences classes the forces that influence the earth and its surface.

Physics, a course exclusively for seniors, exposed them to vectors and acceleration. Mr. Gaines and "Super-Senior" covered a variety of topics. Applied Science and Language of Science provided business, general, and vocational students with a background in science.

Mrs. Delores Mazlow, the new head of the science department, acquainted herself with the faculty and her different role as supervisor. She worked to get speakers from industries such as Bell and Howell and state colleges to expose students to different aspects of science. One of her main concerns became safety in the lab. A good report from the Middle States Evaluation indicated that the department offered a good preparation for science-oriented students.

Infusing America with foreign culture.

In the Foreign Language Department, newly appointed head Sylvia Smith aimed towards providing students with opportunities in later years. She began many changes in the language programs for Spanish, French, and German.

Italian, begun last year, became a state approved course for college credit.

Miss Smith "hopes to develop a humanistic functional approach to language study, and bring a greater understanding of the culture of different peoples and their contributions to the American society."

Dedication from here to Germany and back.

A very active member of the faculty, Mrs. Richardson contributes as a bilingual and comp. ed reading teacher and advisor.

A graduate of Linden High, Mrs. Richardson had planned to be a social worker, but Mr. Moldaschle, a former German teacher, steered her toward foreign language.

She attended college in Pennsylvania and received her first teaching job in her senior year. This later led to a contract with Linden in the foreign language department with Mr. Moldaschle as her supervisor. When asked if she had any regrets on her choice of career, Mrs. Richardson replied, "I would always pick teaching because it is very rewarding to see students finally achieving in areas they weren't successful before."

In addition to teaching German and comp-ed-reading, Mrs. Richardson also advises the German Club and Delta Epsilon Phi. She has taken students to Europe for two years, and enjoyed European culture first hand with them.

Creative ideas flowing.

Allowing their many creative ideas to flow, the students of Linden High participated in the art and industrial programs available to them.

In the music field, Mr. Haase supervised the band as they prepared for the Christmas and Spring programs in addition to the Halloween parade and football games of the fall season.

Along with Mr. Haase in the music department, Mr. Koslowski supervised the vocal music students, the Glee Club, Choir and Girls' Ensemble, as they prepared for the various programs and competitions of the year.

The joint efforts of Mrs. Grace and Mrs. Wojik taught the various aspects of Home Economics, including running a budget and preparation of a full course dinner.

Mr. Cerillo's Art and Art Major classes touched upon the many fields of art from Impressionism to ceramics.

In the Autoshop, under the watchful eye of Mr. Freitas, students learned the fundamentals of car maintenance, tune ups and overhauling transmissions.

Mr. Young and Mr. Muccia directed woodshop and general shop students in shop techniques, which could be applied to everyday life.

Heavy demands made on essential services.

The library has served as an information center as well as a gathering place. Mrs. Wesh and Mrs. Ross aided students in locating and using library materials and kept the library well stocked with resources for scholastic development.

A department dealing exclusively with audio visual aids has been headed by Mr. Thele. This group supplied teachers with T.V.'s, film strips, movies, phonographs, and copy material for the classroom. The school also called upon Mr. Thele's department for services after school hours, such as soccer and football games and educational programs.

Mrs. Roquemore and Mrs. Mazzei staffed the nurse's office. Since sound bodies are important to sound minds, the nurses played an important part in the well being of the student body. Treating students and doing all the paper work required has kept the nurses working before and after school on many occasions. Their work obviously kept as many students in school as health permitted.

She utilized her skills in answering phones, sorting the mail, getting diploma lists ready and making announcements. During the summer, she prepares students' and teachers' programs.

Helping to create comfortable surroundings.

Arriving long before the 8:05 late bell, janitors prepare school for the day's activities. During lunch times they are found moving about the cafeteria attending to students and the many needs created by them. The boilers are also maintained seven days a week.

Matrons performed never-ending cleaning tasks.

At all five lunches the cafeteria prepared and served a large variety of food daily.

Comfortable temperatures and substantial hot or cold food in clean surroundings — these are truly characteristic of Linden High School.

Student council activities encompass entire school

Unlike the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Councils which dealt with the activities of their own class, the student council encompassed activities of the entire school. Twenty seven elected members composed the council: nine from each class and also the class presidents from each council. The four officers, President Dwayne Jennings, Vice-president, Kathy DaSilva, Secretary Monica Gonzalez and Treasurer Laurie Kaplowitz worked under the advisorship of Mrs. Casale.

The student council served as a sounding board for any complaints or requests the students may have about the school. It kept informed on various clubs and class activities and ran many of its own activities.

The student council sponsored "SmokeOut" Day by setting up a table in the Main lobby and handing out booklets on smoking and getting pledges from people to stop for the day. It also sponsored the "rap session" between Mr. Taranto, Mr. Accardo and selected representatives of the student body. The response to the rap session was so enthusiastic, that the council had been asked to sponsor a second rap session.

They held responsibility for the "Basketball Boogie" held at the start of the season. Some of the members also took part in the Community/School Relations Committee and the Cafeteria Committee.

The council engaged in such fund raisers as the selling of "Tiger Telegrams" of which approximately 250 were sold and Valentine carnations. The money went for dues to the National Association of Student Councils and the N.J. State Association of Student Councils. It also paid for renting of the two voting machines used for school elections held at the end of the year.

The student council attempted to gain more control so that future councils would be able to sponsor even more events and activities.

Members of the Political Science Club got a first hand look at the American political system and how it works. Mr. Wance guided the thirty club members with the aid of President John Fortuna, Vice-President Sue McCarthy, Secretary Donna Schneider and Treasurer Diane Piasik.

The club members conducted voter registration of seniors. They also took a Presidential Preference Poll with President Carter coming out on top among all students.

The group took a trip to Trenton to see the State Legislature in session where they also saw Governor Byrne in a bill signing ceremony. John Fortuna participated in County Government Day at Elizabeth Court House.

Programs reach outside the classrooms

Under the direction of Mr. Natalo, the Distributive Education program developed students in the field through marketing, merchandising, and related management in order to prepare them for distributive occupations as well as further their understanding of the free enterprise system.

An introduction to DE, offered to sophomores, taught basic principles of marketing. DE I followed in the junior year and covered such topics as salesmanship and job interviews. The senior year course, Distributed Education II, presented students with the Cooperative Work Experience when students attend school for required classes in the morning and work during the afternoon.

The Distributed Education Clubs of America is a program of activities which students put knowledge gained to practical use. They competed in various DE conferences. Middlesex County College held a regional conference attended by the LHS chapter of DECA, as they did Great Gorge, the site of the State Leadership Conference.

The students exhibited their skills in fashion modeling and accessories, general merchandising, finance and credit, food marketing, and service.

DECA Officers include: president Ella Brailsford; vice president Susan Scott; secretary Alex Pezella; and treasurer, Theresa Ferrise.

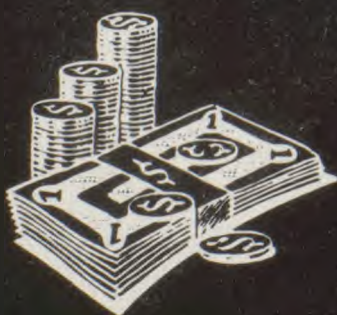

A Distributed Education Employer-Employee Banquet, held in the spring, thanked the employers in the community for hiring and training senior distributive education students.

Advisers, Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Martone, guided the following FBLA officers: Karen Malek, president; Annlouise Krotulis, vice-president; Sandie Duncanson, treasurer; Nancy Petroski, secretary; and Vanessa Fenny, historian. They and their officers worked towards the FBLA's purpose of developing vocational and career competence and promoting civic and personal responsibility.

Fifteen of the 56 members participated in the COE work program. Brian Walker served as their vice-president and Doris Mascenik as treasurer.

Members sold candles, calendars and evergreens. George Lawton and Wendy Staubach received prizes for selling the most evergreens. The FBLA'ers sold these goods at P.T.A. Back-to-School-Night and also acted as guides to parents in the halls.

The officers attended the Fall Leadership Conference in October, and in November, the group went to the Katherine Gibbs School for a tour and lecture.

Members had many opportunities to show their business skills in competitions. The regional contest for Northern New Jersey high schools took place at Bergen Community College. The top ten students in each event will qualify for a state convention which will be held in Cherry Hill. Winners of this will take part in a national conference.

The contest events include mainly business skills such as steno and typing, as well as, public and extemporaneous speaking, pin design and job interviews.

In April, students competed in the New York-New Jersey Business Skills Olympics. Top placing students received gold, silver and bronze medals as well as other prizes. At the previous Olympics, Vanessa Fenny, now a senior, won a bronze medal and a Polaroid camera for advanced shorthand.

The members of the Linden High School FBLA, one of a group of clubs throughout the United States and Europe, apparently take pride in being part of FBLA.

The Pep Squad: positive impact on fans

"To encourage school spirit and crowd participation in a positive way is why the squad was first started," explained Coach Pagoulatos. The school's first Pep Squad accomplished this by attending all home games, learning the cheers and supporting the cheerleaders. Debbie

Gmitter, squad member, felt we "lead the team to victory."

Co-captains Sharlean Thomas and Sandy Yeadon aided the squad by making sure that all members attended the games and put forth their best efforts.

Coach Pagoulatos encouraged students to join, and advised the squad's meetings. The squad has had a positive impact on enthusiasm of L.H.S. fans," stated Coach Pagoulatos. Furthermore, added one squad member, "Other schools look at our school as one with much more team spirit."

In future years, the squad hopes to expand its membership, as well as attend more away games.

Pep Squad members Denise Riordan and Chris Kloc find the best spot on the bleachers to cheer the Tigers on the victory.

Student aides help keep things running

Library Squad: Lisa McKool, Denise Chafettelli, Sharlean Thomas, Phyllis Adesso, Lori LaPira, Fracess Smith, John Sroczynski.

During the course of the year, certain students gave of themselves to teachers, guidance counselors, and others who required assistance with their work.

Three girls volunteered to help Mrs. Mazzei and Mrs. Roquemore in the nurses office. These students filed, ran errands, did clerical and secretarial work. When the occasion demanded, they also helped with ill students.

The Guidance department required aides to do receptionist work, deliver messages and assume other duties vital to the running of this office.

The reading lab is an individualized course, therefore, three girls worked there one period each day to assist.

In the library, aides performed such tasks as checking passes, putting away and checking books and generally straightening up.

For the first time, a girl worked on the Audio Visual Squad. Cindy Weber worked with the other members delivering A-V material, making dittos and doing minor repair work on the equipment.

Mr. DiMichele also required assistance during the day. Students ran errands and used the skills required in running an office. "These students," Mr. DiMichele commented, "proved very helpful."

Musical variety performed year-round.

Instrumental groups, under the direction of Mr. Haase, offered much to the musically inclined student.

The Concert Band met most of the year with Mr. Haase five times a week during seventh period. Sixty-five students served as the marching band during football season, and they also participated in the Christmas program.

The band had their yearly all-city concert exchange with Naples, N.Y. Each school took its turn being host for a weekend with the students themselves providing accommodations for their visitors. The two bands joined forces to hold a performance in each city.

The LHS Band also performed in the Spring concert; this consisted of all instruments except the string section.

The marching band contained seventy students including some from ninth grade. They began practicing the last week in August. Besides meeting seventh period, they also met after school twice a week at the AA field with the ninth grade and the squads during football season.

They marched in the Halloween, Columbus and Memorial Day parades, and also participated in the Home News Festival at Rutgers Stadium.

The Band Parents' club raised money for trips, and for the band awards dinner held at the end of the year. They also acted as chaperones on trips and added their support to these musicians.

The Jazz Ensemble consisted of saxophones, trombones, trumpets, and a rhythm section which attempted to reproduce the "big band" sound. Twenty students met two mornings a week during homeroom and on Monday nights at school.

The Orchestra met three times a week to practice. The thirty students played string, percussion, and wind instruments which they performed at the Christmas and Spring concerts.

A brass ensemble, consisting of seven students, played carols at various places during the Christmas season. During the final week in January, talented students performed at a solo and ensemble concert.

Vocal groups accented the year with music

Keeping in tune with the changing tempo of LHS, the vocal music program underwent several revisions. To provide students interested in both vocal and instrumental music with an opportunity to develop both their talents, the seventh period ensemble class shared its members with seventh period band on a daily alternating basis.

As regulars, the Girls Ensemble and the Glee Club returned, augmented by a Gospel Ensemble which included both guys and girls. Many members resonated among the groups, exhibiting abilities in traditional as well as contemporary numbers.

Under the direction of Mr. Koslowski, the groups harmonized through the annual Christmas and Spring programs and an all-city vocal program. They modulated to a Thanksgiving service at St. John the Apostle Church to perform, to Union Recreation Center to carol for senior citizens, to the Veteran's Administration Hospital in East Orange to carol, and to provide entertainment for a Linden board of education meeting and for the P.T.A.'s Founder's Day Program.

Gospel Ensemble members entered Talent Expo, an annual state-wide competition. In addition, the groups planned to host a choral festival sponsored by an outside group and including choruses from central New Jersey.

Accenting the year, the music department presented its first Solo and Ensemble concert, giving students with individual talents a chance to display them.

N.Y.C. provides a taste of culture.

Undaunted by diminishing numbers, the foreign language clubs gave students the chance to learn more about different lifestyles and cultures.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Richardson, the German Club extended culture and provided opportunities for students to study the German way of life.

President Patti Pielech, Vice-President Ellen Crilly, Secretary Lori Fine and Treasurer Chuck Hartmann organized many activities. A German play in New York City, a trip to Pennsylvania Dutch country and a picnic highlighted some of these. At their annual Christmas party, students performed skits in German which were videotaped. Two candy sales helped to finance trips and activities. The forty member club accomplished many things which could not be done in class.

Delta Epsilon Phi, the honorary German society, attempted to go beyond the German Club in expanding cultural awareness. Mrs. Richardson also ran this club. The initiation ceremony is done completely in German which gives them membership in the club. Members went to a German restaurant, saw a Broadway play, Charlotte. Cathy Mallouh as president, Bill Perlach as vice-president, Nancy Razborski as secretary and Chuck Hartmann as treasurer helped to make the club a success.

The Italian Club started well under the guidance of Mrs. Cacioppo with the help of Tom Schreck as president, Kathy Sheridan as vice-president, and Mary Kuntik as secretary-treasurer. The club has 30 active members who had a very successful candy sale; profits went towards their trips and parties. In early December, they visited New York to see the Italian opera, Don Giovanni and dined at Puglia's. The members also enjoyed a Christmas party.

Other activities included watching films and listening to lectures on Italian culture.

The Art Service League consisted of young, talented artists who willingly helped the school and community with art-oriented projects.

The Art League participated in many activities. The members designed posters and decorations for dances, plays and shows. They also worked outside of school and did such projects as painting the windows of Pathmark for Christmas.

Mr. Cerillo headed the Art Service League, and under him the officers Rick Franklin, president; Maria Anderson, vice-president, and Kelly DeGregorio, secretary-treasurer combined efforts to make the Art Service League productive.

This group displayed some beautiful and creative work in the lobby and around the school.

Intellectual competition stimulates students

The New Jersey Chemistry League combined with the biology and physics departments to become the New Jersey Science League. Linden High participated in the biology and chemistry sections this year.

The "teams" met every week to study and prepare for their meets. The chemistry team took part in four meets while biology took part in five. The meets took place once a month from January to May at different schools each month. Four students from each team took a test similar to a College Board Achievement with the top two individual scores from each school combined to give a team score in that subject.

Science League tests are difficult to study for because, as Ben Wolf of the Chemistry Team explained, "you do not know what questions might be asked so you must be prepared for anything."

Mr. Salzer, chemistry team advisor, agreed that participation in the Science League proved a valuable experience for the students. It provided to its participants more in-depth knowledge of their subject.

Debbie Martins finds that deep meditation before and after Chemistry is a main element.

The Chronicle becomes more professional.

"Linden High Makes History — The Chronicle Records It" — this motto adorned each front page of the CHRONICLE.

From start to finish, the printing of one issue of the CHRONICLE took approximately four to seven weeks. The staff produced five issues.

The group that dedicated themselves consisted of Editors-in-Chief: Laurie Kaplowitz and Mary Kuhtik; News Editors: Cathy Klutkowski and Lisa Anguella; Feature Editors: Carol Lindquist and Wayne Atchison; Sports Editors: Mike Kraynick and Karen Knap; Photography Editors: Russ Agostaro, Patti Pielech and Ken Long; Business and Ad Manager: Lori LaPira; Circulation Editor: Ed Malosky and Junior Staff: Nancy Schmidt, Eva Malinowski, Trisha Gunshore and Donny Zsak. Miss Nancy Gavan acted as advisor for a second year.

The CHRONICLE staff had the responsibility of raising most of the cost of publication, which they accomplished by ads and fund raisers such as bake sales and car washes. Students and Lindenites had opportunities to purchase boosters which succeeded in raising money.

Besides boosters, other new features in the CHRONICLE included Vocational Updates, features on clubs, more player profiles and articles on field trips.

Also, the layout of the front page changed. "It is now a more professional looking paper," commented Eva Malinowsky.

It is "an enjoyable learning process and a positive working experience for its staff," Miss Gavan thoughtfully observed. The CHRONICLE has reached out and accomplished much more. "It's significance to the student body," stated Laurie Kaplowitz, "is that it is a positive link among the teachers, students, and administrative staffs."

Business Editor, Lori LaPira digs into the files for an extra booster.

There's more to Cynosure than meets the eye

Much went on before the Cynosure finally reached the student body; this included funding, selling and distributing it.

To help keep the yearbook cost at a minimum, the Cynosure ad committee sold different types of ads. Business ads came from both local and out of town businesses. Home-room ads, and space on the alumni page made up the other type of ad.

Mr. Haiko assisted the students with administrative work, but the students did all of the selling. They devoted much of their free time after school obtaining ads. Their efforts have resulted in stabilized Cynosure costs for several years.

The task of distributing the completed yearbook fell into the hands of the Cynosure circulation committee. Not only did they distribute the book, they also took orders, handled the receipts, and collected money. To accomplish this, committee members contacted teachers and students alike during the A.M. homeroom period. Mr. Bunce, advisor of the committee, organized the group at the start, but the students were the main work force.

Chess team practices mental gymnastics

Those who joined the chess club enjoyed intellectual stimulation. About ten very competitive students met each week to challenge and help each other. Though they all knew how to play, Mr. Hoffman advised them in moves and helped the weaker players.

The group also competed against four other high school teams in the Union County Chess League for the third year. The five strongest players, Jim Kruper, Bart Rada, Jerry Illanovsky, Ed Kasaudas and Mike Rosky played in four matches. Their first match against Elizabeth ended in a draw; they won the second one against Roselle Catholic. The team hoped for a second or third place trophy as well as individual awards.

The Black Renaissance Club strove to project a more positive image of black students and attempted to give the student body, faculty, and more importantly, the members a new sense of understanding of Black culture and heritage.

President, Toni York, and supervisor, Miss Barbara Jones in her first year, as advisor along with the 35 members accomplished much.

For Thanksgiving, the Black Renaissance Club brought food for burned out families. During Christmas they made donations to the Children's Specialized Hospital. They also conducted a talent show, open to all students, in April. First, second and third place winners received prizes.

Some money raised by Black Renaissance went to the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation, and the rest for a club trip. They also purchased a full page Cynosure advertisement.

For the school — an act of murder!

For two nights in mid-winter, the curtain rose for the performances of the All-School Play. A two-act murder mystery entitled the Spiral Staircase kept audiences on the edge of their seats for an hour and a half.

The work for this production begaki, Nick reading committee chose the script. Mrs. Williams, supervisor, chose the dramatics at tryouts in December. In January began the seemingly endless rehearsals five days a week for two hours each day. Marcella Paraskevas, assistant director, helped Mrs. Williams and the performers at practice.

Behind the scenes, Mr. Byrne worked with the stage crew. Walter Green, Debbie Scott, and Judy Kornmeyer took care of the set and sound while Carol Ann Marshall provided the lighting. Sandra Penn, costume director, aided the actors and actresses in obtaining costumes; most had to put together their own. The prop committee members, Ken Frank, Tom Bachmann, Paul Olsewski and Stacy Mallouh kept things running smoothly on stage and off while the performance went on.

Karen Kozak worked along with Mr. Byrne and the performers in advertising and publicity. Posters, designed by Debbie Scott, were placed in local stores and around the school. The money from the ticket sales went to the senior class.

The performers not only enjoyed the practice and actual performance, but those aspiring to the stage also gained dramatic exposure. The audience gained a delightful evening.

National Honor Society members seen on Cable TV

Nineteen selected students represented the membership of the National Honor Society under the direction of Mrs. Sheekey. They offered a free tutoring service to any student who requested their aid and in a variety of subjects.

Four members, John Fortuna, Lorraine Wojtowicz, John Bilanin, and Cathy Mallouh participated in High School Bowl broadcast on Cable TV.

In early September, the group sponsored a car wash. At Back-to-School Night, they held a bake sale. The money raised went towards the purchase of pins and certificates and a trip to New York City where they saw a Broadway play.

Students discovered "It's all Physics."

"It's all physics" went the motto of the physics club in its first year. The main purpose and goal of this club consisted of relating physics and its control over us to our everyday lives. The members felt that they could find no better way to understand physics and its meaning than by experimentation and independent study.

Trips to Exxon Research Labs and Merck Research Labs proved valuable to the inquisitive minds of the members.

Henry Stanke devoted much of his time to the club as its president and founder. Mr. Gaines acted as advisor, as he explained the importance of the club: "The Physics Club allows a student interested in a particular area of the science to pursue a course of study independent of the classroom."

Boosterettes quietly work very hard.

The Boosterettes worked hard this year, as every year, to raise money for the school's athletes. Co-captains Andrea Doria and Maria Pizzelli along with advisor, Mrs. Wargo, led the squad of twenty girls, and put much hard work into helping the Boosterettes to achieve their goal of paying for the entire Sports Award Dinner held at the end of the year.

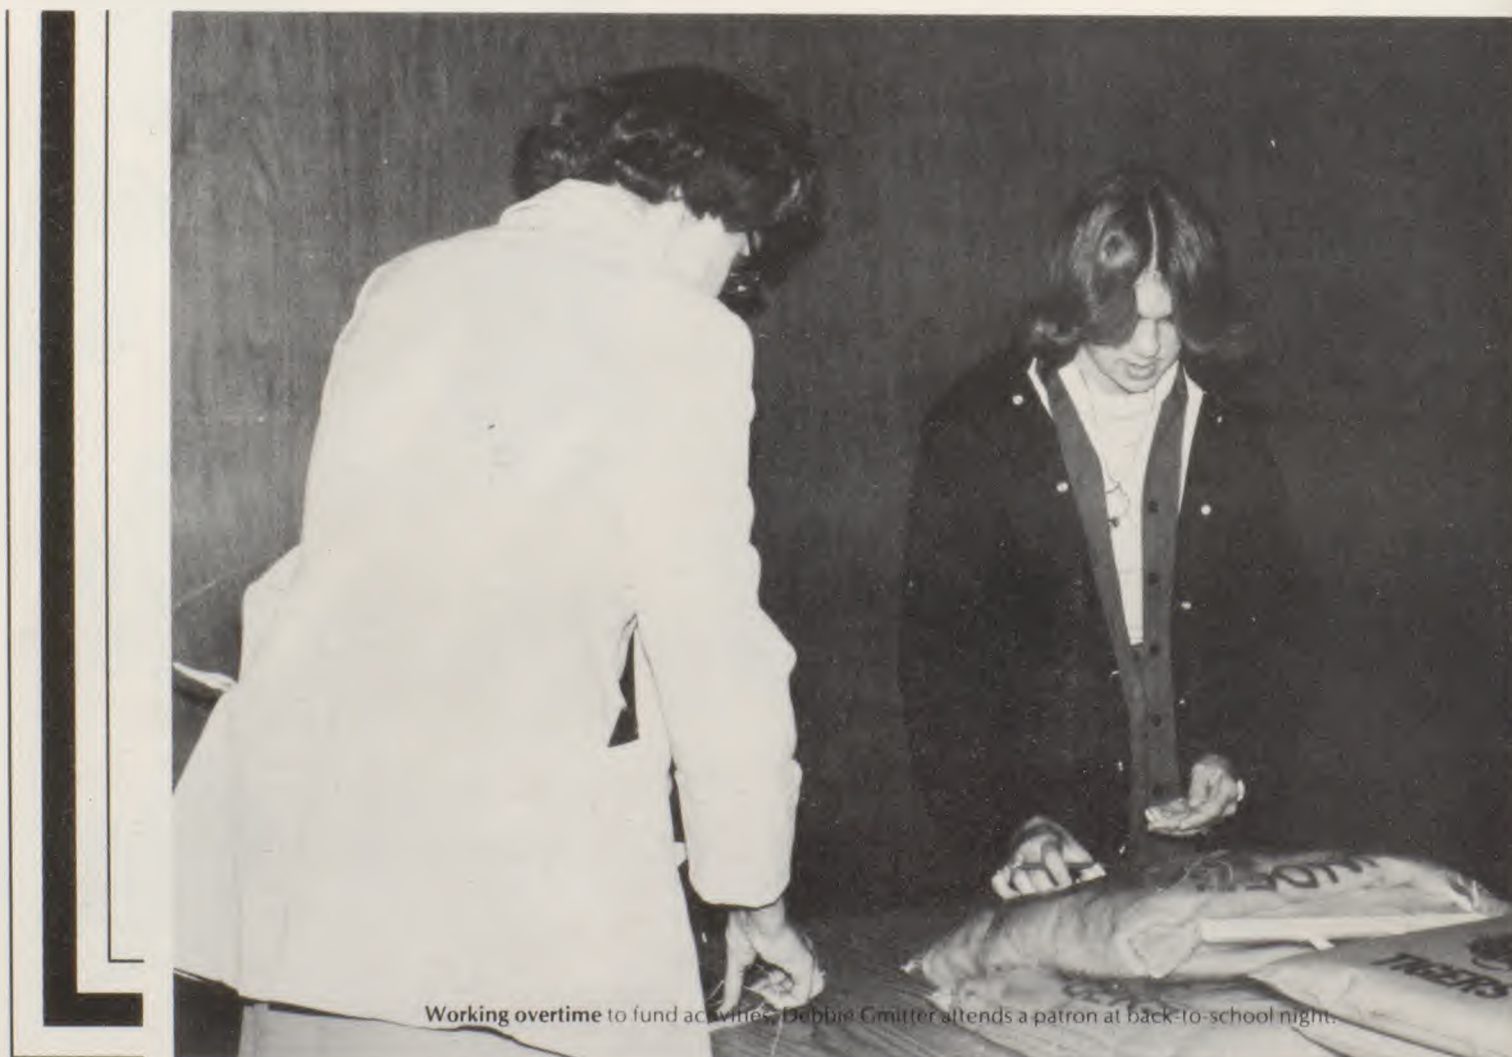

Sophmores, chosen in their freshman year, juniors and seniors made up the squad. The girls had to keep up their responsibilities or they could be dismissed from the squad through a demerit system.

They raised money by selling programs, blankets and seat cushions at football games and for the first time, at soccer games. The girls also sold snacks and programs at basketball games. Other fund raisers included bumper stickers, T-shirts, candles, mugs and Thanksgiving corsages.

The Varsity Wrestling/Soccer Cheerleaders led these teams during their fall and winter seasons. Under the direction of Mrs. Wargo and captains Ann-louise Krotulis and Helen Tomaskovic, the girls cheered the boys on with pep and enthusiasm.

The girls practices twice a week during the summer as well as the school year. Practice paid off as the morale of the boys heightened.

The girls practiced twice a week Halloween Parade in which they performed four different marches and two cheers the captains created.

For the soccer players, the girls brought in bags of candy to share on the bus. During wrestling season, each girl had a secret pal for whom she would assemble a "secret pal bag." In the bag, there would be fruits, candies and a special note of praise and encouragement. The wrestlers and soccer players showed their gratitude by buying corsages to compliment the girls uniforms.

Although cheering was their main purpose, many of the girls became close friends.

Spirit, determination and power formula for reward.

Spirit, determination and power led the Varsity Wrestling squad into a rewarding season. Under the direction of Coach Thompson and captains George Wilk and Ricky McDonnell, the wrestlers closed the season with an 8-6 record.

The team had a different practice strategy which paid off in performance. Senior George Wilk (122) led the squad with a record of 3-3-1 as did senior Rick McDonnell (148) with a record of 14-3. Two sophomores, Joe Coletta (108) and Ron Rodriguez, both with records of 12-4, wrestled outstandingly, especially for their first year of varsity wrestling.

As George Wilk stated, "Although we had an inexperienced team, we worked together and proved to be better than expected."

The team also performed well in the Carterest Invitational tournament as well as the Districts.

George Wilk and Joe Coletta placed first in overall competition at the tournament.

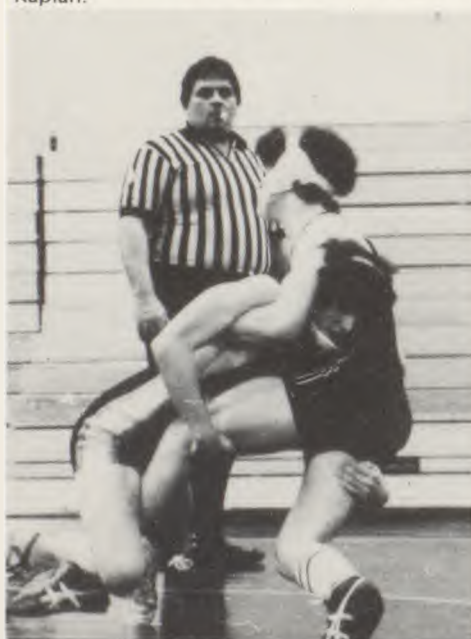

Since morale of the team was of major importance, Mr. Thompson involved himself in the players as individuals.

"We have a young team and we fought for everything we won," he explained. With seven players returning, the team looks forward to another prosperous year.

Tough competition keeps team on toes.

The LHS Junior Varsity Wrestling squad, under the instruction of Coach Eberhardt, practiced for many weeks preparing for the tough physical competition they encountered during the season. Having only 9 out of 12 weight classes proved to be a disadvantage, but the squad still gave other teams some tough competition. The most impressive team win occurred during the Hillside match of the Union County Tournament, in which the team controlled the match from beginning to end, earning the wrestlers third place.

Every wrestler contributed to the victories of the wrestling team but some stood out above the rest. George Lawton, who started the season wrestling in the 108 weight class, obtained a 6-4 record; dropping down to the 101 weight class, he achieved a record of 5-1. Mike Frangella (115), the most consistent wrestler who wrestled varsity as well as junior varsity, achieved a final record of 6 wins and only 1 loss.

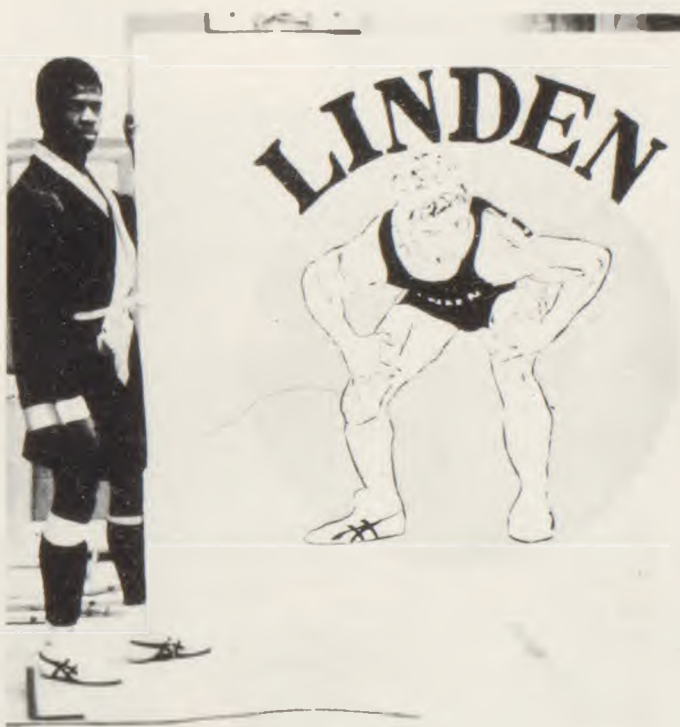

The efforts of these members and the rest gave the team their solid 5-5-1 record.

Teams come to have a good time.

Since use of the gym could not be obtained, coaches delayed several winter intramurals until spring. This did not deter the bowling intramurals from continuing.

Ten teams met every Thursday at Linden Lanes from December to March. Students chose their own teams with team names such as the Squires, the Dopeys, Death from Above and the Barking Pin Heads. Four people, regardless of sex or grade, participated on each team. Each team also had a captain. Mr. Muccia aided the league by collecting money, figuring averages and making sure things ran smoothly each week.

At the end of the season, first, second and third place teams and individuals received trophies. Boys and girls also got trophies for high games, high series and average.

League members enjoyed the intramurals because the pressures of competition were minimized. "Everyone comes every Thursday," explained League member Joy Lisa of 'Ruocco and the Ruc-ettes,' "to have a good time and relax."

Young varsity, but with talent to shoot on!

The varsity basketball team had many obstacles to overcome. Consisting of mostly juniors with only two seniors and some sophomores, the team had no returning varsity players. They had to learn to play a different brand of basketball on a varsity level and face up to the pressure from fans to produce a winning season comparable to previous ones.

Mr. Aikens, new to LHS, had previously coached at East Orange. The coach felt that the team's strong points lay in speed and offense. Although there were no "star" players, he had a well-balanced team with a lot of talent to draw on. The starting players consisted of senior Bernard McNeil, and juniors Peter Wilson, Bryant Daniels, Tyrone McLaughlin and Adonis Cook. The team's 11-12 record came about as a result of extremely close losses. Their toughest defeat came against Westfield with a one point loss.

Coach Aikens was bothered by the "me first" attitude which prevailed among his players. They concerned themselves with playing time and individual statistics too much.

"I've always tried to stress team first. That is the main thing I'm going to work on in the off-season practices," concluded Coach Aikens.

JV basketball averages 65 points a game.

Under the coaching of Mr. Yesinko, the Boy's JV Basketball team played well this season. Undeclared at home, they won sixteen games and lost three.

The team had a balanced scoring attack with four players averaging ten points or more. Offensively, they averaged 65 points a game. Defensively, they averaged 50 points a game.

The twelve sophomores lost their three toughest games by a total of ten points. Union Catholic and Ewing challenged the players, but they overcame these teams with one point victories.

Four of the boys, Troy Stradford, Ed Lukenda, Reynold Jude, and Dennis Mayes had been moved up to the varsity team for the state tournament.

When asked the quality of the team, Coach Yesinko commented, "Next year when this talented sophomore group joins this year's junior dominated varsity team, the ingredients will be there for a fine varsity season."

Our motto is "No Pain, No Gain."

The Girl's Varsity Basketball team had an outstanding season, finishing with a record of 16-6, the best record ever for the team.

According to Coach Obester, "When everyone was healthy we were capable of beating any team in the state." The girls proceeded to beat their first four opponents. This type of performance allowed them to reach the county as well as the state tournaments. The team completed the season the third ranked team in the county because of a loss in the tournaments to a strong East Orange team.

The girls set a record for breaking records with Kathleen and Cynthia Starling each having over 400 points for the season and Shelly Blassingame with 331. The team, named County Defensive Champions for the second year in a row, allowed an average of only 34 points per game while scoring an average of 59 points per game. Coach Obester considered the defense the team's strong point. Shelly Blassingame contributed to this with 147 steals and Cynthia Starling with 303 rebounds. Pam Mack, along with Starling, took responsibility for 32 blocked shots.

Using the motto of the Varsity and JV squads, "No Pain, No Gain," the team proved that success is possible if worked for.

Girl's JV basketball best ever!

The Girl's Junior Varsity Basketball Team had a victorious season with 9 wins and only 3 losses. This high average could not have been achieved without the cooperation and enthusiasm of the coach, Mrs. Goleme, and team captain, Judy Buckley. Judy also acted as point guard: she ran the team and controlled the pace.

Outstanding team members included Terri Brown, who scored 133 points and averaged 12 points a game; Carla McGhee, who scored 144 points and Sandra Wojtasek who scored 104 points. These girls also played on the Varsity squad.

Despite the fact that the team had a bigger schedule than last year, the girls showed excellent skill and progress. All the members had experience and their success came from refinement of techniques and the development of new situations and patterns. The squad worked out every day to fulfill their goal of supporting the Varsity squad.

Mrs. Goleme believed that the fun and success of the team all came from hard work: "Of course it's more fun to win than lose. I enjoy success, which is not always winning. When I can see a player use in the game what she has learned in practice, I have succeeded. I also enjoy the player's success — I wish everyone could have at least that one big game. I think the team has fun being together and experiencing the same thing. Everyone has different motives, but the team works to the same end."

The Senior Council works to make a memorable year.

The senior council has been responsible for all of the memorable Senior Class activities. It also conducted all business of the senior class in an organized, democratic manner. Although they organized the vote for the prom and graduation themes as well as the colors of caps and gowns, the main concern of the senior council has been to raise money. Fund raisers, such as the candy sale, contributed to lowering the costs of prom and banquet fees. It also assisted teachers concerning such activities as cap and gown collections, ballots for themes and the compilation of the senior poll and senior will.

Mr. Colabelli, adviser, worked with the officers who included: Maria Pizelli, Lisa Rocks, John McGee, and Angela Accardo.

Maria Pizelli, president, presided over all projects and meetings, and dealt with administration and any excess work.

Vice-president Lisa Rocks managed candy sales and assumed any duties which the president could not attend.

As treasurer, John McGee handled all money and financial records of the Council.

Angela Accardo, secretary, recorded all minutes and took care of any paper work.

Mr. Colabelli commented: "This year's Senior Council appeared to be more cohesive and their plans far reaching."

The senior council strived for a feeling of class unity to surpass last year's; the members of the council tried to achieve a feeling of class contribution and co-operation.

President Maria Pizelli commented, "My enjoyment came from a knowledge that responsible people ran the Council. The work, although sometimes tedious, has been well worth the effort. Also the fact that this year's Seniors co-operated so very well, in the fund raising and the other officers produced such a high quality of work."

Remember that time when . . .

Editorial staff "discovers" 83 lost senior portraits.

We do not finger point blame at each other. The error is ours. We lost or forgot or misplaced or neglected 83 senior portraits. We just don't know how it it happened, nor do we excuse ourselves.

Instead, we have hastened to make up for our error by increasing the senior page allocation by eight pages which are in their own alphabetical order apart from the main body of seniors. The designs are also of the same type used in the main senior section. However, the activities of the 83 seniors, sent with a previous deadline, appear on page 129.

Andy Orak has just put his wheels away for the day.

Toward the end of June, 1979, a phenomenon hit the class of '80. Students felt the shock waves daily, and for some the tremors never quite ended. Owning a car can be earthshaking.

Students got their cars for different reasons (excuses?), ranging from, "My parents don't trust me with the family car," to, "The last time I had the car they sent my mother away." Parent-owned cars also invariably suffered "leaky" gas tanks and speedometer malfunctions.

Several distinct classes became apparent in student-owned cars. Class one consisted of those lucky enough to possess a brand new of "slightly used" model, featuring a stereo, automatic transmission, power brakes and steering and windows and seats (plush velour) and doorlocks and trunk opener, mink-lined ash trays, etc., etc. — but why go on? Class two cars, although practical, proved to be as exciting as a Chinese water torture session. Although blessed with some luxury features, these models suffered the plague of the AM radio. Class three cars, though not chic, did not embarrass their owners — only the dazed onlookers and the manufacturer. They featured a slip-a-matic transmissions, skid-a-matic steering and lock-a-matic brakes. The paint job would often put a new two-tone to shame. The owners of these models took the attitude of, "It could be worse; I could be walking," although frequently they did.

No matter which class of car a student drove, he suddenly discovered that everyone thought of him as a "great driver." This title permitted the bearer the privilege of cruising while his friends made lewd remarks to any living thing on the street.

"Would you just look at that fox?"

"Where?"

"Hey, keep your eyes on the road — Watch it!"

CRUNCH!

So now you walk . . . by Ken Frank

Dinner ware sets for a fund raiser?

Another school year began with exciting challenges, expectations and goals to be met by the 1980 junior council. President Donna DiMicele, Vice President Mike Frangella, Treasurer Kathy Weber and Secretary Nadine Lombardi along with the guidance of Mrs. Cacioppo, Junior Class Advisor strove very hard for a successful and productive year.

Raising money was one of the main pre-occupations of the junior council. Candy sales, car washes and the sale of dinner ware sets were just a few of the many fund raisers.

"I think that we worked very hard this year. We raised a lot of money for our prom. Everyone participated which enabled us to reach the goals we set out to meet in the beginning of the year. I also think we all had a good time," professed President Donna Dimicele.

With meetings approximately once a month, all the hard work of the junior council culminated in a successful year.

Black American Culture
 by Shirley Donald

There was a man who loved this land
 But hated discrimination
 And took this stand
 He had a dream, this great man,
 That someday heroes could
 Shape every white man's hand
 He had a dream, goes the story,
 That he had been to the mountaintop and seen God's glory
 He Had a dream as a lot of men do,
 But this was different because he was one of God's chosen few
 He never wanted glory, he never wanted thanks,
 All he wanted was his equal rights.
 He was our Moses as in the past
 He stood and shouted
 "Free at Last"
 He was shunned and criticized by some,
 But he always said
 "We Shall Overcome"
 He fought for all to see the light
 And in their hearts they knew he was right
 He fought for equality; he fought for peace
 And he knew that someday
 All prejudice would cease
 He fought against war, he fought against strife,
 Until a sniper's bullet took his life
 And when we say our prayers of silence
 Remember he died for non-violence

Advisor's Colophon

By way of explanation, a colophon is an objective attempt to make a factual account about the creation of the 1980 CYNOSURE. It is authored by the advisor who: assigns credit; offers thanks; states technical aspects for the benefit of the up-coming new staff; and presents a resumé of production problems for the perspective of the Senior Editorial Staff.

Never before in any previous CYNOSURE has full color been presented internally as it is in this — the 60th volume of CYNOSURE. We have presented in color one flat (8 pages) in our opening theme, and Linden High's most full-of-color people have been presented therein.

Within the ranks of Taylor Publishing Company, a change in personnel resulted in Mr. George Franklin replacing Mr. Bill Tilley as our publisher representative. The transition went smoothly for us with no loss in negotiations, color, or quality of the CYNOSURE.

The Senior Editorial Staff met every deadline — but one. The Junior Editorial Staff (interested, ready, and willing) galloped to the rescue. Mr. Coplan agreed to permit Junior Staff take-over of the January deadline and freed them from classes for one day to meet the deadline. They did so very successfully. For the final deadline of March 14, Mr. Coplan compassionately freed eleven staff members (senior and junior) from classes for one day.

Every year for the past six years the press run has been cut due to lack of sales, subscriptions, ads, and general student apathy. Over one-hundred seniors did not purchase yearbooks. In spite of these factors, the price of the CYNOSURE has held at $10.00 — not only for this year but for the previous four years. The press run was for 650 copies — the smallest press run in six years.

Biem Studios of Irvington, N.J. provided portraits and between 4,000-5,000 candids. Mr. Biem also provided film, chemicals, equipment, and supplies for the new CYNOSURE darkroom.

The cover design was drawn by Mrs. Dapkus of Vo-Tech who utilized lettering invented by Lorraine Wojowicz. Lorraine is also responsible for the lettering and paw prints on the dividers.

Junior Editorial Staff elected Monica Blischok as their chairperson who led them through their twenty page deadline and also designed every single page of the undergraduate section.

A directory listing addresses and phone numbers of all staff members was compiled jointly by Paul Olsewski and Ken Frank.

Many thanks are offered to Lorraine Wojtowicz for her effort, persistence, creativity, and willingness to perform any task which required doing, including Typing Editor.

The index, a monumental, seemingly endless burden, represented loves's labors to Joy Lisa, who increased its accuracy and coverage.

It should be printed out that no one became Fall or Winter Sports Editor. The Managing Staff picked up these burdens as it must when editors fail or are non-existent.

Of the original 13-member Senior Staff, 6 quit or were fired during the year.

Alysia Intili functioned in several important capacities: Manager of Copy and Layout. She was a mainstay, a rock, and anchor. Without Alysia this book would have been less — far less.

Cathy Mallouh didn't plan on being Typing Editor as well as Copy Manager, but she busily bore up under it all and performed well.

The close of a book
The close of a year.

The energy within these pages can never be recaptured.

Memories that can never be relived — Term papers and tests.

The excitement of the game.

Weekend parties and afterschool jobs

New cars and special dates.

Saying goodbye.
Leaving the Tigers
behind.

The energy doesn't stop here,
The energy is rechanneled.
College and degrees
(more tests and term papers),
Marriages and families,
New jobs and careers.

Linden High.
We'll leave our mark
on the world.

To record a year, diverse yet singular, and to preserve its complex qualities became the first tremendous task the 1980 CYNOSURE staff undertook. One common denominator had to tie every aspect of the fleeting year together, which became manifest in theme.

Summer sessions by the managing staff resulted in many ideas, none of which stood up to the pressure of testing. An understanding of CYNOSURE production began to engulf new staff minds. The 1980 yearbook would contain full color for the first time in its history. Why not utilize this to the fullest advantage, coupled somehow with the energy crunch that seemed to dominate the year?

With the components discovered, there still remained one problem — how would they be united into one common denominator? "Energy!" came the resounding answer.

"Now relate it to the year!" came the reply.

"Tigers energize '80" and thus the theme exploded.

Next, a cover illustrating the theme had to be designed.

Adynamic theme required an equally striking cover. The end product of design upon design provided exactly the elements necessary.

Black bolts project from a background of orange and are conducted toward a single focal point. Here they combine and illuminate that point, evincing energy.

The 1980 CYNOSURE served as that conductor which took the separately existing entities of Curriculum, Fall Sports and Pep, Winter Sports, Student Body, Student Life and Advertisements and focused their energy on the pages of the yearbook. Commencing with the continuity of the yellow bolt onto the endsheets, power surged through to the dividers and became absorbed within each section.

For the first time, an introductory section portrays and further develops the theme in full color. A symbol signifying the end of copy and tying in with the theme also makes its debut.

All these elements, poured together into the CYNOSURE, react and resurge as the TIGERS ENERGIZE '80.
