Port Authority Public Relations

A sizeable chunk of the Port of New York Authority budget goes into the public relations account.

The authority is going to have to spend more and more on public relations as it seeks to justify charging fifty-cent fees for river crossings that cost less than 20 cents. A powerful campaign is required to keep the motorists from becoming uneasy over the fact they are being taxed to support such things as airports, bus terminals, truck terminals and ferries to which their relationship is remote to say the least.

But in the end we think the Port Authority is going to find itself victim of its own rigidity and impersonality. The Authority may efficient itself right out of business.

A couple of incidents:
The Port Authority permits commuters to buy books of tickets at somewhat lower rates than the customary one-way toll. These books are good for thirty days.

Apparently somebody in the Authority has had its policemen together and warned them of the dire consequences if a single book was used beyond the expiration date. And the warning was taken seriously.

So when the holder of the book drives toward the toll booth he is required to hold it in such a way that the paragon of efficiency can see the purchase date while they are tracing out the tickets. There is an imperceptible wait as the booth policeman goes about soaking out expired books.
If the policeman finds one such book in a month he is making a great discovery. But the efficient Port Authority is willing to risk the anger of the motorists and the slow lines of traffic just to catch that one motorist who, of all things, is trying to break a Port Authority regulation.

In government by automaton one does not break regulations, now does one?

The other incident concerns a poor motorist who each morning about 7:20 a.m. finds one of two of the collection booth-operators at Lincoln Tunnel. As a result traffic piles up. He thought a good citizen-ship to notify the Authority and recommend that every available booth be functioning.

In a short time the good citizen received a note saying that his recommendation had been forwarded to channels. Some time later his telephone rang. A lieutenant of police introduced himself.

"We have a statement by you here," said the lieutenant. "When will it be possible to interview you?"

"The good citizen, with his citizen-ship more than nibbly started, said, "Well, I don't have much to say. Why can't we say it over the phone?"

"That will never do," said the lieutenant. "So a date was fixed. And at the appointed time another lieutenant showed up. He was a pleasant, well informed chap. He said that the reason the booths were closed was because the attendant was finishing his shift and usually closed the booth for a period to bring his books up to date.
Through the good citizen's mind ran the thought that the efficient Port Authority could just as easily post another man in the booth while the departing attendant adjusted his accounts. At the same time he realized how this would have jarred the chart system at the super state. So he closed his mouth and thanked the lieutenant. At the same time he blanched when he thought of the paper work his small suggestion had created.

CURE FOR ASTIGMATISM?

LIONS CLUB THANKS RESIDENTS OF LYNDHURST

Scenes Zabackin, president of the Lyndhurst Lions Club wishes to thank the residents of the Lyndhurst for the generous response they are making to the fund raising campaign of the organization.

AM course the resident of Lyndhurst realize all the good work for Lyndhurst has helped being done by the Lions of Lyndhurst and other communities throughout the world. Lyndhurst has many women who have been blinded by cataracts. They have an eye in an accident was helped only 20 percent of vision from birth and who could only read Braille. Had special glasses fitted through the Lyndhurst Lions Club and now this young man, 22 years old, is learning to read print, watches television and travels between Baltimore and home by himself, enjoying the benefits that once were denied him.

These residents of Lyndhurst who have not as yet sent in their contributions, will really help by

Lyndhurst Library Notes

By JEANNETTE HERRMAN

This Brotherhood Week, a week in which emphasis is placed on the racial, cultural and religious understanding of our fellow man. And today with mounting resolutions piling place all over the world, we as American citizens must more than ever alert ourselves to the basic racial and religious problems of other countries and peoples—not for just a week but for as long as we live.

Princeton resident with ambassador from the United States and other countries have visited all corners of the earth mingling with government officials and returning home rich and poor, black and white, and have returned to the Lyndhurst Library. We are advised so fortunate as to be able to see them. We can read the fine records which have been made by the Lyndhurst Library. The Lyndhurst Library has a fine collection of books.
