DEDICATION

The high school years of the class of 1944 saw the United States change from a country at peace to a powerful nation at war. The conflict in which we have become embroiled has altered our lives at Columbia. We have undertaken new studies to prepare ourselves to aid in the battle for victory; we have devoted our free moments to making direct contributions, in such ways as possible, to the war effort; we have had to change our future plans and to delay the pursuit of our careers until we shall have secured a peace once more.

Looking forward, we find that we have a new future to face, a new future for ourselves and for the world, a future that we must plan and work for. Many of our classmates are now fighting to preserve those ideals upon which the world of tomorrow must be based, and it will not be long before we, too, shall have joined the struggle. When the war is won, it will rest with us, the students of today, to help make the post war world worthy of those who died for its sake. We will build it upon democratic ideals, and we will strive to make it a place in which our futures will be secure and in which we shall be proud to have our children live.

It seems appropriate, therefore, that we, the class of 1944, dedicate our Mirror to the concept that means so much to us—

A LASTING WORLD PEACE

A Message From Mr. Crehan . . . .

FREDERIC J. CREHAN
Acting Principal

Our aims in this war have been stated in many ways by many persons. The statements vary in character from the concise Atlantic Charter to detailed descriptions of a post-war world organization. Expressed or implied in all of them, however, the thought persists that there must not be another war, that there must be devised a practical plan for a lasting world peace.

There have been many attempts during the centuries to eliminate the crime of war, or to diminish its frequency. They have ranged from the Pax Romana to the League of Nations. All such attempts have so far failed.

Moreover, our American plan of political isolation has not kept even us at peace. We have seen in 1917 and again in 1941 that we are inextricably bound up in the affairs of the world, that we cannot remain at peace while the rest of the world is at war. We should know now that peace as well as war is indivisible.

Despite the failure of our past national policy to keep us at peace, and of all attempts to organize the world for permanent peace, the search must go on. The end of this war will give us another chance, perhaps our last, to build a peaceful world.

What responsibility will you, the members of the class of 1944, have for the solution of this problem?

You have the obligation to inform yourselves about the problems of world peace, to study the plans that have been made in the past, and to learn why they failed. You must understand the factors—economic, technological, social, racial, political, psychological—which operate to place practical limitations on international action. You must develop a sympathetic and receptive understanding of other peoples. You must discover what the United States can do to help build a just and lasting peace. For “blood and tears shall be the inheritance of that people who neglect to learn and to teach . . . that it is necessary for men to live at peace if they want to live at all.”

ADMINISTRATION

Mr. John H. Bosshart, for 17 years superintendent of schools, has been signally honored in his appointment to the office of New Jersey State Commissioner of Education. Mr. Curtis H. Threlkeld, Principal of Columbia High School since 1927, has been equally honored in his appointment to the post of Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Frederic J. Crehan, Vice-principal of Columbia for 17 years, has been made Acting Principal; and Mr. Harry B. Sheeley, formerly history teacher and class guide, has been made Acting Vice-principal and Dean of Boys, to serve along with Miss Mary Henderson, Vice-principal and Dean of Girls.

The editors of the Mirror feel that they speak for the entire student body in expressing best wishes to our new administrators, in full knowledge that they, as able educators, will carry on Columbia's high standards.

Class History

A high school like Columbia, whose very name breathes its inherent belief in democracy, whose traditions and laws are essentially American, whose advantages point the way to the future in a finer, truer world; an American school around which center the happy experiences which will always remain bright spots in our memories—such a school is perhaps a small but tangible reason for our whole-hearted support of the democratic cause in this war.

It is difficult, somehow, to look back to a time when eighteen-year-old boys still wore tweed jackets and saddle shoes. Our brothers before us gladly laid aside their tweed jackets for those of khaki. Now the challenge is to us. We, the graduating class of 1944, must give of our best in defense of our high principles, for we are America's citizens of tomorrow.

We look back, some of us with nostalgia, some with regret for wasted opportunity, some with a feeling of accomplishment, upon our three years at Columbia. And these are the things we remember.

We were sophomores when the United States entered the war. Since then, the members of our class have been witnesses and active participants in a great many innovations brought about in a necessary effort to adapt us to a war-time world. There were, of course, changes in curricula; new subjects were introduced preparatory to our active participation in the war. Special emphasis was placed upon mathematics and the sciences, as preparation for our imminent induction into the armed services.

Health is vital to youth at any time, but particularly during a war. The physical education department has now more than ever become an important part of Columbia's schedule. The class of '44 was one of the first to receive the benefits of a physical education program consisting of five classes a week.

THE MIRROR

COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL

During our three years at Columbia, a new organization has come into being—the Victory Corps. Its six divisions—General, Community Service, Production, Land, Sea, and Air—were organized as a preparation for military service and as an aid to the war effort. Through the General Division of the Victory Corps was launched the memorable bond drive of 1942, which raised $115,000.

In recent years, one of our most vivid recollections of high school days will be Columbia's football games. Who can ever forget those thrilling Saturday afternoons at Underhill Field, or who can forget our traditional Thanksgiving games with West Orange? This year, it is true, our victories were few. The stars of last year's team had been graduated or had entered the armed services, leaving Columbia a new, untrained team. Although we lost the majority of this year's games, the team improved remarkably as the season progressed, and always displayed a brilliant spirit.

We think we were a class of fine histrionic ability. Future Columbia students will remember us particularly for our unusual Junior Night, a musical extravaganza with a war-time theme. The scene of "Time and a Half" was laid in a defense plant. The characters ranged from factory workers to Hollywood glamour girls, and the show featured a number of clever and original dances. Most of the class took part in Junior Night.

In 1943, after much deliberation, the senior class decided upon "The Barretts" as its class play. Primarily the story of the love affair between Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, the action occurred in a Victorian setting. "The Barretts" was played by an exceptionally fine cast and will long be remembered.

Columbia lost, this year, an old friend and adviser, Mr. Curtis H. Threlkeld, who has been our principal for sixteen years. Because of his promotion to Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Threlkeld has had to leave Columbia; but we shall never forget him. Acting in his place is Mr. Frederic J. Crehan, previous vice-principal.

These are some of the things we remember. But there are other things, bigger things, which will always remain with us. We have made life-long friends at Columbia.

Item XII: I, Art Kaplow, leave to Gladstone Whitman, the knowledge of how to leave a pep assembly audience weak from laughter.

Item XIII: I, Joan Amend, leave my perambulations (vehicular) around town to Lora Snyder.

Item XIV: I, Lois Quick, leave the memory of my vocal rendition of "Rosie the Riveter" as an inspiration to posterity.

Item XV: I, Joan Conkling, leave to Colleen McCauley, my indestructible poise.

Item XVI: I, Pat Gilbertson, leave to Marilyn Stivers, the knack of looking well.

Item XVII: I, Richie Bull, leave to the art department, a perfectly lovely brick red color which seems to come naturally to my ears during a conversation.

Item XVIII: I, Don Lancy, leave my speed on and off the basketball court to any Junior boy (and there are many) who feels capable of filling my shoes.

Item XIX: I, Jack Stewart, leave to the President-elect, the deft and able handling of many and weighty matters.

Item XX: I, Margy Leutz, leave to Carol Hopcock, the much-to-be-envied reputation of never being seen without an accompanying male.

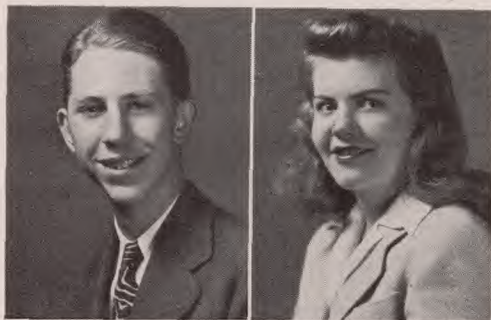

Item XXI: I, Barbara Grove, leave to Doris Bayer, my exquisite and, fortunately, never-failing sense of color.

Item XXII: I, Barbara Saunier, leave to Ginger Fisher, my constant and most engaging smile.

Item XXXIX: I, Joan Schueler, leave to future classes of girls, my very interesting collection of snapshots acquired through the years.

Item XL: I, Dick Slocum, leave to any budding mathematician, the slightly dazed look which follows naturally upon the heels of a bout with the slide rule, with a second course consisting of log books and unit circles.

Item XLIII: I, Mary Lea Shiman, leave a record of flawless class recitations, delivered in the face of unwarranted interruptions and distractions on the part of my classmates.

Item XLIV: I, Skippy Kemp, leave my ability to throw a really lively party to Don Neider, who, of course, is a veteran at the game himself.

Item XLV: I, Chuck Baldwin, leave to young dance-goers, the memory of a new high in floor-show entertainment.

Item XLVII: I, Carol Kasen, leave to young and hopeful thespians, a shining example of the power of a silvery voice and perfect diction.

Having thus distributed our treasures and possessions individually, we, as a class, do bequeath the following:

To Mr. Sterling: a history class that can find a flaw in his argument and prove it.

To the Lunchroom Committee: girls who like to eat sitting down—not standing in the aisles.

To the pupils in general: a sophomore class that will not insist upon flocking like sheep to stairway I between every class for the first two months.

To the faculty in general: a sophomore class that will learn the first day that 222B is not next door to 404.

To the typing teachers: students who have not been banging away on their own machines for years in their own original way.

To the students in general: a sure-fire exercise to get rid of slight list to starboard which invariably evidences itself once the load of books is removed from the hip.

To those unsure of foot: a step in the girls' lunchroom which doesn't jump up and snap at you when you're flying low with a tray-load of dishes.

To the ever-credulous sophomores: the warning never to ask directions of anyone whose nose is not buried in "Columbian Highlights."

To the mechanical drawing classes: ink which doesn't smear itself all over the drawing when you're away from your desk.

To the House and Grounds Committee: search warrants.

To Miss Silvernail: library chairs which don't screech like banshees every time a restless reader launches on a round-trip of the room; also, students who don't "oh," "ah," and "oh-oh" every time the library telephone rings.

To the medical staff: some new and logical symptoms.

To the school: a balcony which does not give you the impression that you're about to pitch headlong over the railing when you descend the stairs.

To the Assembly Committee: a student audience which does not clap and cheer frantically, like beings possessed, in order to shorten the working (?) day. (Or perhaps the A. C. will look this gift horse in the mouth.)

To those having late (oh, very!) lunch: a five-minute intermission between periods three and four in which to gulp down that part of your lunch which is gulped down anyway, but which is often a hindrance to class recitation.

To English teachers: short-story aspirants who have normal, healthy minds, instead of the murky-swamp, cold, grey-fog variety which unfailingly crops up every year.

To Miss Baiardi: a Spanish (imagine!) class with sober-minded, serious students.

To the School Council: homeroom representatives who, if they must come to meetings late, will not trip and drape themselves dramatically and noisily over at least three chairs in the back row.

To the pupils in general: sweet, even-tempered classmates who can pass the 3:21 locker-rush test unruffled and at peace with the world.

To the faculty in general: classes who will think of some reasons other than (1) Monday-morning, (2) hunger, (3) satiation, (4) heat, (5) cold, and (6) Friday-afternoon, for not being able to "settle down and get some work done."

So, having performed our duty to our teachers, our fellow-students (we feel we can call them that now, becoming very benevolent in our senility), and our school itself, we, with a clear conscience (didn't you know?), and a stealthy backward look at, not only Columbia, but all our years as irresponsible, carefree "kids" (hated word), are now prepared to step into the world which had long told us that these past three years would be the happiest we shall ever know. In spite of its present turmoil, then, it must be a wise world, for though we have "griped" steadily in healthy American fashion, none of us will deny that we've learned, we've grown, but best of all, we've been happy.

Greetings to Class of 1944

Your Class Will provides for many bequests of value and charges those who follow you with the preserving and protecting of the traditions of Columbia High School. By so giving, you continue the never-ending pattern of high school boys and girls and June graduation. You have pretended that all is the same as it has been in the past, but the pattern has changed from peace times, though you would be most reluctant to admit it.

If I might, then, be allowed to add a codicil to your Will, this would be my wish.

"I give and bequeath to each one of you a great courage to face the troubled times ahead, the ability to accept fully your share of the world's problems, and the vision to help make a wise peace."

This bequest is the greatest gift Columbia can give to you.

Sincerely,

MARY S. HENDERSON.

amazing career of that outstanding class of 1944. Yes, the production will go down brilliantly in the annals of Columbia's history, for not only did Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning step right smack out of our English Lit. books onto our stage, but they were even more glorified by our splendid interpretations of said poet and spouse—even if we do say so ourselves, as who shouldn't!

Of course the going got a bit rough at times. For instance, the afternoon when Elizabeth's ruffled petticoats remained at down-stage right while Elizabeth herself was swooning merrily away at upstage center! "But we didn't let that stop us"—no, we even reached the point where we could enumerate (with no extra charge) the features of our composite Senior Play character: "Your complexion is muddy, most unpleasant—" "Very beautiful slim shoulders—" "Probably the hip—the lower limbs deformed—" "Don't tell me you can bear to part with one hair of those beautiful whiskers?"—" "I believe you've put on weight—" "It's so difficult to know where one's feet are; Papa—"

—The melee sounds horrible—or are we boring you?

"The Barretts" were a remarkable, lovable family who immortalized the name of Wimpole Street and whose intricacies and entanglements constituted this year's Senior Play. Paternal dominance reigned supreme over the Barrett children until Elizabeth, the famed poetess, defied the will of her tyrannical father by eloping with the equally famed Robert Browning. Among the other family difficulties were the poor progression of the love affairs of another daughter, Henrietta, the object of whose affections was dashing Captain Surtees Cook; and the usual complications of brothers and sisters, namely Octavius, Arabel and George. Further mishaps and glee were added by the presence of Mill Mitford, a flighty but well-known novelist of the day; Cousin John Denyou, a wealthy patron of the arts; Milly and Wilson, who were the 1840 counterparts of our present-day maid problem; and Flush, Elizabeth's faithful canine companion—a most ably interpreted role!

"The Barrets" was a great show—and we behind the footlights enjoyed it almost more than those out front!

IMPRESSIONS ON THE THESPIAN ART

By Flush

Little did I know when I was a foolish pup, leading my trivial, inconsequential existence, completely ignoring the higher, more cultural aspects of life, that the day would dawn when I, too, would be attracted by the irresistible call of the theater. Poetry, also, was beyond my petty realm of comprehension, for I had never tasted the exquisite fruits of literary knowledge—with one exception. For, to me, Elizabeth Barrett was but a picture I had carelessly eaten for lunch from a book inadvertently dropped and neglected near my favorite haunt in the library.

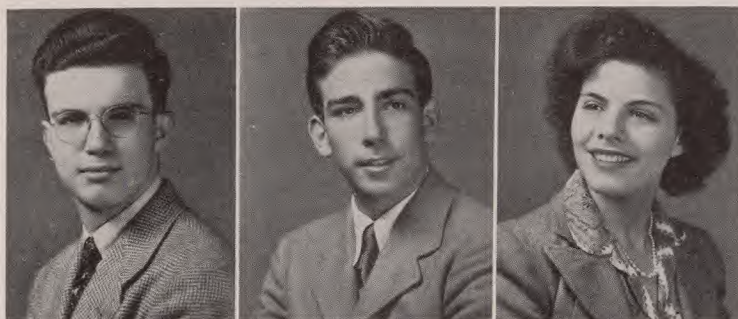

One day, on overhearing a conversation concerning the need for a talented canine to complete the cast of the Senior Play at Columbia High School, I realized that here, perhaps, was the answer to my meditations on the futility of life!

And it was.

Love,

FLUSH.

They rush frantically over to the shelves and proceed to disrupt the alleged peace, and quiet of the sacred archives of Columbia High School's famed library. In one corner we see Mary Leo Shiman still struggling valiantly over her fifth year of French IV; otherwise the proverbial "old order hath changeth, giving place to new." So our two little friends run over and stand on each other's shoulders and soon they have heroically lifted Who's Who down from its dusty repose on the dusty shelves. (No offense, Mr. Walbrecher!) They manage to place the revered volume on the nearby table, and with a flick of one of their pinkies they flip that nasty big old Webster's Dictionary to the other side of the desk, dramatically hold their breaths, and carefully open the book. Who knows what hidden depths of knowledge they will uncover?

Among the magazine's columnists we see names such as Bill Weygand and Sid Frank, imagine!

"Hey, look! Here's an article about that illustrious Dance Theatre founded by Janice Bodenhof and Rowena Colley, both of whom are now starring on Broadway in that wonderful new musical comedy, 'Arizona!' (Reserved seats selling three years in advance!) The costumes were designed by Sally Krueger, it says here; and the sets were originated by Louise Swensk! Oh, and here's Ellie Josephson's name with Alan Robinson, reviving 'Macbeth,' and produced by David Furman and Company. Hm!

"Clancy, Dick Clancy—oh, he's taken over Sherman Billingsley's Stork Club. See, how it tells about their entertainers—John Dudley Woodruff, the satirist, accompanied by Ted McDonough and Arty Kaplow—need we say more? Doris Hughes sings there. And look who's the Master of Ceremonies—George Skiff, of all people.

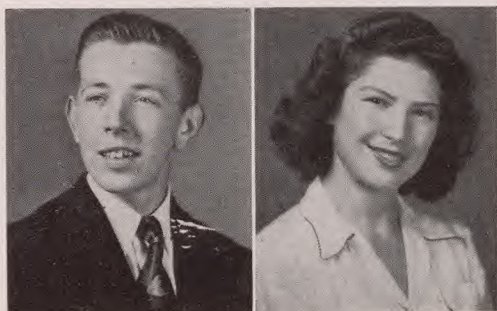

"Wait a minute! I see Don Lasser's name. He writes that new radio show, Our Guy Saturday! He's sponsored by Pickle Packard's Peachy Pontiac Company. Say, that's a great show. My grandmother listens to it and says that every time she hears Bill Flanagan, the singer, she swoons from the memory of that old decrepit antiquated crooner Frank Sinatra. (Yes, my dear, positively!) That's the show that sponsors Jack Hillman's band, too! Yes, and here it says: 'Impersonations by Lois Quick, accompanied by Mush Parkin's invigorating violin. Some 'un.' (Fun, idiot!) And there's the rest of the show—the Bennett twins, Charlie and Georgette, doing their interpretations of the Moylan sisters!

"Oh, here's Carolyn Blocker. She wrote that new book with Betty Firth, called Impressions in a Beauty Parlor. She was inspired by that scintillating salon run by Edna Okner and Audrey Harris—you know, the one where they have Terry Thompson musically entertaining with her low bass voice and her cello (we're only kidding, Terry), with comic interludes by John Dakis. They've got Marilyn Cupp and Barbara Grove and Jean MacDonald madly throwing mud-packs at Irene Thompson. (Yes, my dear, positively!) It says Sally Whitney and Norma Berquist make two special trips there each week just to read the latest copies of Jane Dent's new weekly joke books. Hm-m-m!

"And here's Jay Weiss's name—he's editing the New York Times with the able assistance of Bob Stansberry. Jay's name has been quite prominent lately. It says he's been collaborating on some gigantic new variety show with Bob Heydt—Time and A Quarter. George Somers and Chubby Chal-ker and Cubby Feindt put on a special Russian extravaganza for it, too. Oh, and here it says that Jean Bohlen writes an Advice to the Lovelorn column—imagine that! Oh, and here's Chuck Baldwin who's featured in all the newspapers now. He flew to Mars on a daredevil rocket-ship journey with Sammy Vitt and Tom Smith, and they found Thos. Williams, of all people, waiting there for them! Someone else who's quite prominent in print now is Skippy Kemp. He poses for the Arrow Shirt ads, with Gayle White fondly tying his tie. All pictures snapped by the famous photography firm of Al Sachs, Bob Strauss, Dave Lewit and Dot Segal! Oh, look, here's an article about the Times sports section . . . Caesar Kimmel has been writing some very interesting articles about personalities in the realm of athletics. There's one about Rich Cherry, the new football coach at Pottawattamie College, and another about Dick Korngut, the president of the Gym Teachers' Society of Lower Basin Street, and about Frank Baldwin and Sandy Meade, the basketball stars, and Norman Merz and David Brown, the current aqua-beaux. —she's written about Diane Arras's miraculous swim up over Niagara Falls in a barrel (and a bathing suit). Diane also manages a theatrical agency in her spare time. And about Jane Kull's pitching for the New York Yankees with Catherine Neimitz playing catcher! (And may we add they had a very successful season.) And here's a column on Jane Geissele, the sensational tight-rope walker, with her long flowing black hair cut short enough so she won't trip over it!

"The well-known Betty Griffinger and Patty Gilbertson (the beautiful president of the Aquarium, who admires all things nautical and is connected with the Navy), it says, are holding New Yoork audiences enthralled with their amazing juggling act; and Carol Kasen, the successful snake charmer (with an eye out for our Foreign Policy), is entertaining at the Circus. (Snakes for the above act are supplied by Jack Steigerwald, the famous elephant trainer.) Jack Kruse leads the circus band, Bob Mende is the ring-master, and Pat Day is reported to have a peanut vending concession at the back entrance! Here it says that Dot Harrison, the well-known barker (yes, my dear, positively!), is enticing people in to see Rose Perry, the Fat Lady, play her remarkable bugle solo, and to see Bob Ward, the Thin Man and Electrical Genius (it says here!). Joan Bottelli is said to have a double trapeze act with Eddie Ortzen; and Cheryl Cassidy, the comedienne, is an added attraction.

"Oh, and here's an article about Margot Trimble (former President of Vassar) and Erna Schneider (former President of Wellesley), who for the sake of humanity, together with Betty Monk and Pat Goldin, have founded a girls' boarding school in the interior of Tibet; and it tells here how Bud Wolfert and Claire Van Orden are talent scouts looking for prospective students in the heart of the Belgian Congo. And here's something about Joan Conkling, the feminine F. P. Adams, stumping the Board of Experts on Information Please. (Board consisting of Mary Carlaw, expert in field of science, and John Sodoma, expert in field of sports—a very enlightened combination, to say the least!) And here's Barbara Saunier, the Ilka Chase of her day, interviewing Art Gerweck and Tom Martin, men-about-town. (I mean re-ally). Janet Kempf). Frank Muller, it says, was the kind of a fire chief that drank so much of his Firemen's Own Cough Syrup, that he nearly set himself aflame! Oh, and here's something about Pinky Williams, managing an ANZAC-RCAF canteen for visiting Australians and Canadians who liked her hospitality so much they decided to stay for good! She's very ably assisted by two genial hostesses, Cis Wilson and Pat Malone (who puts in a good word for Federal Union every now and then). And, hey, wait! Here's Bob Schmidt and Sonny Saenger doing advance publicity work for Charles Atlas, with Tommy Eustis along in case anything goes wrong, as well as Howard Ford, who likes a little excitement every once in a while, too!

"And look! Here are their class officers—there's Helen Gedney, managing a huge occupational therapy hospital for broken-down G. A. A. members; and there's Peggy Weismiller, the President's wife, who's travelling around creating so much good will that she's almost outdoing Mrs. Roosevelt (who did a lot of travelling in 12 years, at this printing, too!). And last but not least, there's Jack Stewart, who worked his way up from the ranks to be executive head of the Good Humor Company—and that's a record to be highly commended!"

And with a deep sigh, our little friends wearily close these remarkable annals of progress and achievement, and again using each other's shoulders for foot-stools, they return the dusty volume of Who's Who to its dusty repose on the still dusty shelves.

"Say, if you want a ride home after school," says one exhausted member of the class of 1959 to the other, "meet me out at my new helicopter in the parking space."

"Oh, thanks a lot, but I've got to go in to see Mr. Gnagey about my Mirror assignment. And say, you know I think that class of 1944 was certainly something to be proud of!"

Junior Night

There comes a time in every adolescent's life when he goes through the stage commonly known as Junior Night. Few members of the junior class remain unscathed: the disease is characterized by an intensely haggard look (particularly on those martyrs—the Pre-Junior Night Committee); an abundance of unfinished homework; a secretive glow in the eye when curious seniors and sophomores ask questions; and an inclination to answer, "I had to attend Junior Night rehearsal yesterday," to all sorts of demands made by those who have no conception of what that means.

With bared teeth and fiery determination the class of '45 set about to produce an extravaganza to surpass all previous extravaganzas—and we must admit that the result was most gratifying.

Come Friday and Saturday nights, March nineteenth and twentieth, we were wafted away into the depths of India where we found ourselves right smack in the midst of fakirs, native dancers, rope stick experts, snake charmers, and what-have-you—not to mention those lovely American dough-boys who were suffering from severe homesickness, and especially for good old American girls. Grieving over the fact that their letters from home contained too much about income taxes and not enough of what they wanted, they were amazed and over-joyed at the miraculous news that the war was over! As soon as possible they were on their way back to dear old U. S. A., where numerous complications beset them from all sides. While in India, the boys had become involved with a certain very attractive princess; a certain very attractive and talented baseball pitcher known as "Cannonball," who bore a marked resemblance to the princess's lost love; and a certain very attractive and not so talented camel—all three of whom also found their way to the U. S. A., with devastating results. Talking camels, orientally-clad princesses, and boxed-up baseball pitchers proved most amazing to the girls back home and to their Aunt Agatha. These patriotic girls had been emersed in the business of running things (to put it mildly) while the soldiers were away. Every one lived happily ever after when affairs were ultimately straightened out against the romantic background of Horton's Supermarket.

Under the able direction of Miss Mary Clutton, a fine cast, a host of glamorous dancers, a rather bumpy camel, and the mysterious "Cannonball," this year's Junior Night, About Face, supplied another "unforgettable" of entertainment to Columbia's annals.

SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER

Had Oliver Goldsmith been resurrected from his illustrious eighteenth-century grave, we're sure he would have beamed with pride at Parnassian Society's February production of "She Stoops to Conquer." A revival of any classic drama always holds a particular challenge, especially when it is to be presented by a high-school group. But we found that "stooping to conquer" was a most delightful pastime, and, thus duly inspired, we set about to re-live "The mistakes of a night"—and most successfully, too!

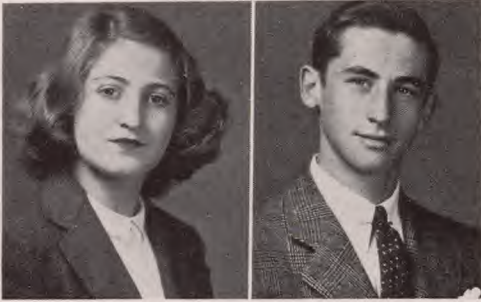

Of course it was rather startling to run into ourselves in the dressing-room mirror, elaborately laden down with gleaming white wigs and weighty costumes of brocade and satin—all crowned with those very prosaic cardboard tags warning: DO NOT REMOVE! Yes, even Papa Hardecastle found that it was quite difficult to "take that garrison without spilling a drop of blood" while his black silk stockings were swimming complacently about the gold buckles of his eighteenth-century shoes!

With a rather unusual cast consisting chiefly of sophomores (which is an innovation in itself in the very venerable Parnassian Society), Miss Memory, very capably assisted by Elinor Josephson, proceeded to instruct us in the refined arts of flirting, playing pranks, proposing, and various and sundry other little everyday frivolities. Ah, for the life of an eighteenth-century dude!

In fact, being a barmaid for a night turned out to be rather a hilarious affair; and portraying a "charming coquette" was even more gratifying. Young Marlow, though a faltering, bashful gentlemen among modest, well-bred ladies, seemed quite at home and very easily enticed by the innocent wiles of Kate who was masquerading as a "poor relation of the family." Complications ensued with the intrigues and escapades of the notorious Tony Lumpkin, mother's-darling and prankster-supreme of the Hardcastle family. Then Papa's further distress was caused by the "modern modesty or old-fashioned impudence" of the two visiting suitors, Hastings and Marlow. Too, Squire Hardcastle was not only confronted with a servant problem (Diggory, et al., whose mental capacities were sadly lacking), but a flighty wife, and a pre-arranged betrothal between his daughter Kate and young Marlow, which all helped to upset the normal Hardcastle routine no end. Mrs. Hardcastle herself was deeply concerned with the match of her "dear sweet agreeable horrid son," Tony, and her captivating ward, Miss Constance Neville, who in turn shocked the family and floored her aunt by running off with Mr. Hastings.

So you can well see that old Columbia was rather a lively place on the night of February twelfth—what with barmaids, inebriates, doting parents, and frustrated lovers merrily cavorting about the stage. Though probably Mr. Goldsmith would scarcely have been recognized in the crowd, he certainly would have enjoyed himself—everyone else did!

ART SERVICE GROUP

The Art Service Group consists of a group of art students who are on hand at all times to help out in any of the organizations in Columbia whose activities require art work. These artists create advertising posters for club meetings, school dances, etc., as well as designing and painting scenery for school plays. The club also lends its talents to the war effort by making posters for bond drives and other government-sponsored campaigns. This year, in addition to these customary activities, the Art Service Group has been taking part in Junior Red Cross work by making menus to be put on Christmas trays for our sick sailors. The club does not meet regularly but functions whenever its services are needed. This work not only helps school organizations but also enables the students participating in it to get practical art-work practice even beyond what they receive in class room instruction.

CAMERA CLUB

Despite wartime restrictions on camera supplies, the Camera Club has attempted to maintain its regular program of activities. Under the leadership of the chairman of the darkroom committee, Harry Augenblick, the main function of the club has been to increase the proficiency of its beginners. Among the other activities of the club are practical demonstrations and lectures, "Picture-of-the-Month" contests, and semi-annual exhibits. Persons skilled in specific branches of photography are often invited to lecture at the monthly meetings. The members of the club are always willing to offer any advice or criticism to a fellow camera enthusiast. Special meetings are also held whereby the club travels en masse to some predetermined destination where they take shots of certain assignments. These outings have been among the high points of the year's activities and have given the members a chance to compare their different interpretations of the same subject.

CAMOUFLAGE CLUB

The Camouflage Club, begun last year to assist anyone interested, discusses the art of camouflage at its monthly meetings, and its members learn how to apply their knowledge on models. The club also urges its members to try their own ideas and, if possible, add to what is already known about this comparatively new war science.

Camouflagers learn that there is no black magic about camouflage and by their own efforts discover that it is a combination of hard work, imagination, and common sense. On small models and sketches of troops, military works, or supplies, members learn to trick the observer by camouflage. Three fundamental practices are (1) to hide the object, by using material or artificial structure that blends with the background; (2) to blend background with pattern, texture, tone, and color in order to make it indistinguishable from landscape; (3) to deceive the eye with decoys and dummies that distract attention from vital points.

CHILD CARE CLUB

The Child Care Club is designed to meet the demands of girls for facts about the development and care of children. This knowledge is especially important now when so many mothers, busy with war work and unable to hire full-time adult help, need high school girls to take care of their children. Many members are responsible for the care of younger brothers and sisters or children in their neighborhood. Topics such as discipline, feeding, and how to amuse a child are announced in advance and are then discussed at the monthly meetings. Any member may ask club advice on a particular problem concerning child care; the club will discuss it and offer helpful suggestions. In order to get a more practical knowledge of the subject, several members have visited classes at Fielding School. Here they see application of theory and observe evidence in children of the facts learned at the meetings.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

Last spring the club turned its attention to the war effort and assisted in the local defense councils and ration boards. Other members obtained part-time jobs in industrial and commercial organizations. Club activities in school were cancelled until this January when a small group of enthusiasts started a new program of school activities. They visited the Latin-American Institute to learn more about Spanish-Shorthand, and planned their annual New York trip to include a visit to a South American importing and exporting company and a theatre party. The constitution is being revised, and it is hoped that the new plan will include a service group that will meet the need for secretarial help within the school. The Commercial Club in the past has always been a large and an active organization. Now that it is getting under way again, there is no reason why it should not prosper in the future.

FIRST AID CLUB

Columbia has met the need for emergency medical care in case of air raids by the formation of the First Aid Club, composed of pupils who have been trained to give immediate help in case of casualties during a possible air raid. Members of the club learn and practice the fundamentals of First Aid under the guidance of the sponsor of the organization. Pupils who have not yet taken the Standard American Red Cross course are given instruction in it and have an opportunity to take the test; and when they have satisfactorily passed the test, they receive their certificates. During air raid drills in the school, First Aid squads, made up of members of the club, are stationed at special posts on each floor. These squads have the necessary equipment ready at these posts and are prepared to administer first aid when and if the need occurs.

FORUM ROMANUM

The Forum Romanum has taken its inspiration and background material from the Roman classics, and through them tries to satisfy the interest of Latin students in the history and life of the ancient Roman empire. This year the Forum Romanum has contributed its effort to the war in sponsoring the collection of "junk jewelry" for the boys in service to use in bartering with the natives in the Pacific theatre of war, and has also sent warm clothing to the suffering peoples of Greece. Opportunity is given to all the members to contribute material and ideas for the monthly meetings and to take an active part in the meetings. An amusing Hallowe'en party and a beautiful Christmas program were two of the highlights of the year. A great deal of the success of the club is attributed to its sponsors, who expend much time and work in making the organization worth while.

The aims of the French Club are to familiarize its members with French culture, literature, music, and art, and to provide opportunities for greater experience in the use of the language than is usually possible in the classroom. The program committee tries to give as many members as possible a chance to assist in this effort. The French Club this year has produced several amusing plays in French. L'Anglias Tel Qu 'on le Parle," presented early in the year, was especially entertaining. The publication of a newspaper, "La Petite Feuille," has stimulated and furthered an interest in written French. Thus club members are gaining valuable experience in applying their knowledge of the language. The club realizes that it is especially important now to get a good basic foundation in foreign languages since the government is providing opportunities for intensive study in languages to prepare trained linguists for post-war positions.

The program committee, headed by Don Lasser, took charge of monthly meetings at which members read their own prose and poetry, wrote and produced skits, and discussed the literature of other countries. Particularly enjoyed was the Guild's Christmas party, which featured a medieval Christmas banquet. The Editorial Board handled the publication of pamphlets containing original writings submitted by club members.

The English Club, several times dis-banded, was this year revived and re-organized under a name used several years ago—The Guild. ### M. A. N. CLUB

Among the many extra-curricular activities in Columbia, the Mathematics for the Army and Navy Club ranks as one of the most beneficial to all students, especially those who plan to enter some specialized branch of our armed forces. As the constitution of the M.A.N. Club states, "This club was organized to provide opportunity for students to gain information about and further their skills on various aspects of mathematics and to promote activities in all fields which contribute to the war effort." The club was organized and functioned last year, and this year an even more elaborate program has been worked out. It has been divided into three groups: the Map Reading Section, the Navigation Section, and the Section on the use of Instruments. A pupil having taken secondary mathematics may optionally join any one of these sections. Not only are there the group sessions, but also there are mass meetings for the benefit of the club as a whole.

MODEL PLANE B & I CLUB

The Model Plane Building and Identification Club offers opportunities to the student to make and learn to identify models of planes used by various nations, to gain a wider knowledge of aviation, and to receive training for posts in civilian defense. The club furnishes activities that appeal to members through personal interest.

Some members joined to construct, some to learn to identify, and others to become more skillful in identification of models of planes. Moving pictures, slides which members have made, flash cards, and outside speakers familiar with the field help in attaining individual objectives. The club was most enlightened by two movies of the WEFT system of identification. Most of the members are excellent spotters, and keen competition is maintained by quizzes. Team rivalry in these quizzes has been great. The club stands ready to aid the government if there should be another call for models of planes.

MUSIC BOX

Although the Music Box was organized later than usual this year because of the unavoidable absence of its sponsor, Mr. Shenton, the club has tried to carry out a lively and helpful program for those interested. As usual, the club has proved an outlet not only for those who have ability and wish to show it, but also for those who wish to listen to and appreciate fine music. Following its former procedure, the club had games during its meetings, which, besides being fun, were planned to let every member show his own ability and put everyone on an equal competitive level, in this way helping some to have confidence in their own ability. Music appreciation by the use of records or of original works, has always been an important part of the club's activities, and this year the works of new and old composers have been listened to, discussed, and compared.

PAN-AMERICAN CLUB

The Pan-American Club, sponsored by Mr. Pullin, is an organization which is trying to develop a friendlier and closer understanding between the peoples of Latin America and those of the United States. At the meetings the members not only hear Spanish spoken, but they use their own knowledge of the language in conversations and talks, which, however, are not entirely in Spanish, since some of the members are only beginning the course. The meetings, which are held once every month, are both educational and entertaining. Meetings have consisted largely of plays in Spanish, and Spanish music, dancing, and games. The club has also had several speakers from Latin American countries who have given the members a better understanding of the people of their respective nations. It is also a yearly custom to spend a day in New York, visiting the Spanish theatre and other places offering Latin-American interest.

LYCEUM

The Lyceum Club, established to satisfy and stimulate interest in current affairs, has had an active year despite the fact that many students have focused their attention more directly on the war effort. Regular meetings have consisted of forum discussions on topics of current interest, led each time by some club member. Highlights of the year were a program of war movies sponsored by the club; the attendance of about fifteen members at an all day conference in January on Latin America at West Side High School, Newark, where one of our members conducted a discussion group; and in May, attendance at the annual conference at Montclair State Teachers College, where one of our members again led a discussion and another spoke on a broadcast of one of the discussions. The club also maintained two bulletin boards on current affairs, one in the library and another in room 340; and this year's club donated a two-year subscription of The Nation for the school library.

RADIO CLUB

The members of the Radio Club are pupils who are greatly interested in radio and its contributions to our war effort. The sponsor and the officers of the club prepare varied programs for the group. Many former members of the Radio Club, or the Kilocycle Club, as it was known originally, are now doing a great job as radio operators for our armed forces or are serving in other capacities dealing with radio and aiding in our war effort. One of the responsibilities of the club is the maintenance and operation of the public address system through the school. Before the war broke out, the club also operated its own transmitter and receiver, but government regulations have put an end to amateur radio operation for the duration. However, the members of the club, with their receiver in the physics laboratory, occasionally listen to the commercial short wave stations.

SOPHOMORE DRAMATIC CLUB

This organization is one of most traditional in Columbia High School. It is not only an all-sophomore club, but is one of the largest single groups in the school. Sincerity of interest in one or more of several dramatic fields is the basis for membership. Some of the different activities and groups of the club are make-up, radio, drama appreciation, scenery painting, stage setting, theatre parties, radio broadcasts, assembly and regular club plays. Many of the school's most delightful assembly programs are presented by this organization, which serves as a training ground and talent finder for dramatics in the junior and senior years. This year's presentations included three assembly plays, eight short meeting plays, either stage or radio, six theatre parties, four or five radio broadcasts, and some movies presented at group meetings. The members and sponsor hope to place 1943-44 among the banner years of the club's successful history.

VICTORY CORPS

The High School Victory Corps was suggested by the Office of Education in Washington, D. C., as a means through which the pupils in all the high schools of the land may identify themselves with the war effort. Each school is completely free to work out its own program, and here at Columbia the Victory Corps is administered by a Victory Corps Committee composed of the Director, the teacher sponsors of the five special divisions of the Victory Corps, and seven pupils. Sophomores can qualify for general membership only, but juniors and seniors may qualify for one of the five special service divisions, after they have first fulfilled the requirements for the general membership. The Victory Corps started here at Columbia with 343 charter members.

The Victory Corps is now in its second year. Throughout its existence it has served as a reservoir of help to all community and school wartime emergency projects. Members have aided substantially in two scrap drives in Maplewood and four in South Orange. The Community Service Division has supplied clerical help to various defense agencies in the two communities. The Corps has set up a central committee to co-ordinate all the wartime activities of the school.

The Corps participated in the U. S. Treasury Schools at War Treasure Drive, February 14 to 18, in which one hundred incomplete stamp books were uncovered to help swell the total sum raised in the Fourth War Bond Drive.

The Community Service Division sells War Savings Stamps regularly while the Sea Service Division sells bonds.

The Production Service Division is sponsoring a weekly course in agriculture for those boys and girls who plan to do patriotic work on farms this spring and summer.

FOOTBALL

Displaying a spirit and determination that overcame inexperience, Columbia's eleven finished its 1943 football season with a hard-fought scoreless tie with the traditional turkey-day rival, West Orange. Following an exciting triumph over East Orange, this game concluded a season of two victories, six defeats, and one tie.

After suffering their first defeat at the hands of Kearny in twenty years, by a score of 20-6, the Cougars came back at full strength to trip Plainfield, 12-0. Paced by the speed and deception of two good backs, Morristown's strong team blasted the home forces, 30-6. A week later, a last-minute pass for a tally brought a disillusioned crowd surging to its feet in the Orange tussle, but the unsuccessful extra point attempt gave the Cougars their third loss, 7-6. Following a 21-0 defeat at the hands of Westfield, Columbia came back to battle a Montclair team, on a muddy, rain-soaked gridiron, and lost only through two long Mountie scoring thrusts in the second period. New Brunswick crushed the Cougars, 24-0.

No individual star has emerged from the season, but many potentially good players seem to be lacking only experience and the improvement that comes with it. Only eight members of the squad will be lost by graduation.

A few sparkling plays will be remembered from the season of '43; the brilliantly executed quarterback sneak against Plainfield, the last minute pass against Orange, and the two scores against East Orange, but what will really live is the spirit of an out-classed, out-played eleven, which fought through a discouraging season and came up to a magnificent conclusion.

There is little to say, however, about wonderful plays, newspaper writeups, or colorful runs and passes. There can be no flaming adjectives injected in this article about crushing scores or brilliant blocking or excellent kicking. But there is a measure stick, one and one only, by which the team can be compared to former gridiron aggregations. That measurement is spirit, and it can be safely recorded that the 1943 eleven lived up to that standard throughout its rough schedule. That is a tribute which no one can discolor or dispute; that tribute, alone, should shine forth from the thirty-six players who were the team of '43!

Sports

G. A. A.

The Girls' Athletic Association, this year boasting a membership of 561, sponsors inter-class sports. Activities start in the fall with the inter-class tennis tournament. Soccer follows close on its heels amid lumps, bruises, and cold weather (the year rain, too). Basketball, volleyball, swimming, and baseball, offering keen competition, complete the year's program. As the months go by, the Dance Club more and more has become an important part of G.A.A.

Social activities started off with the Sophomore Party. The council with Joan Butelli, president; Jane Kull, vice-president; Mary Carlaw, secretary; Cis Wilson, assistant secretary; Pat Allen, treasurer; and Lora Landers, assistant treasurer, gave a mock council meeting providing great amusement. The sophomore managers were duly initiated into the Council. Refreshments were served by the seniors.

SENIOR HISTORY

Soon we shall graduate, and our three short years in Columbia High School will be over. How quickly time has passed since that day early in September, 1946, when first we entered the portals of our Alma Mater. In a few weeks our high school days will be but memories of joy and sorrow—memories never to be forgotten. In our brief stay, we have gained precious knowledge and experience. Let's roll back the calendar three years.

Remember the empty feeling in your stomach that morning when we entered the gates of the great unknown, and how we held on to our "Highlights" as the only ray of light to our thoroughly bewildered minds? Some of us enjoyed two lunch periods a day for several weeks, while others searched in vain for that missing period. However, we soon found ourselves, and a world of new opportunities presented itself. We became a part of Columbia as we joined the various clubs and committees, sat in the cheering section at Saturday's football games, cheered our baseball and basketball teams on to victory, and attended school dances and rallies. We displayed our talent in the Sophomore Dramatic Club's production, and assumed our part in the spring elections. In a few weeks, after taking those ever-feared final exams, we started the long awaited summer vacation.

With the summer behind us, we reentered school in fall. Now, we were juniors and "in on the ground floor." With the prospects of college in full view, school had become more serious. Still, though, there were many good times in store. That year the football games were sporting a new look. New band uniforms, twirlers, and girl cheerleaders added color and spirit to the games. Before the Christmas vacation, during which we saw the greatest blizzard in the history of New Jersey, Pre-Junior Night Committee plunged into the job of writing an extravaganza to be put on in the spring. Behind closed doors, and with a general air of secrecy, we worked diligently preparing properties and rehearsing the show. Almost everyone in the Junior Class had a part in its production. Finally, on the Ides of March, "Thumbs Up" was presented. The show was a musical fantasy concerning the election of a Roman politician in the days of Caesar, the romance of his daughter and a Roman soldier, and the plight of five modern Americans who find themselves lost in Rome of 2000 years ago. The musical score, written by members of the class, was tops.

A few weeks later we were in the midst of a closely contested election for council officers.

June came, and with another graduation, we bade farewell to many friends.

The summer quickly passed, and September found us "mighty seniors." During the summer vacation the Senior Play Reading Committee had been studying various selections under consideration for the senior play, and, in mid-September, the senior class made its choice. The play was the unforgettable Broadway hit, "Life With Father." It was the first time the show had been given as a high school production, and before the curtain went up Friday night, the cast received a congratulatory telegram from Howard Lindsay, co-author of the play. A thrilling success, the show ranked as one of Columbia's best senior play productions.

During our last year, we assumed the leadership of the various school organizations. However, this year we were confronted with the serious problem of college entrance. With the aid of college conferences we dispatched our applications and prepared diligently for the College Board examinations. Christmas and exams were soon behind us, and we found ourselves finishing our last semester in high school.

Now, as we stand on the threshold of graduation, we recall, with joy and solemn pride, our three years in Columbia High School. The world we enter is overburdened with fears and doubts, but as we move forward we shall never lose hope nor faith. We shall carry on high freedom's shining torch and never forget the guiding words of our Alma Mater:

"In the years of life's hard struggle,
We care not what's in store,
For thy motto is our motto,
And our cry, "Excelsior!"

SENIOR PROPHECY

This year, and perhaps no other, is the most eventful and colorful for certain Columbia High School graduates. Maybe the recent occurrence of both the Olympic Games and the presidential campaign had something to do with it; and maybe not. However, never before have so many Columbia graduates been so successful in their various fields of endeavor. I refer, of course, to those alumni who graduated eleven years ago — in 1949.

I have just returned from a nation-wide tour in connection with the presidential campaign of 1960. Believe it or not, Bob Mielich, the Republican National Chairman, is still trying to get someone called Dewey elected. And imagine — Norman Thomas is still running for President! As Peter Sterling, governor of the State of Idaho, said in his press conference: "There has been a tendency in the last few elections to have quite a large number of candidates; consequently it has become traditional for them all to share the same campaign train."

Naturally, the actual candidates were not the only people on this all-important rolling caravan. Also traveling were hundreds of nationally prominent people, including Don Campbell, Secretary of the Treasury since the Greenback administration; Barbara Dieter, famous author of that best-seller, Midgets in the Mud; Pete Rommel, Chairman of the board of directors of Colonel Mills, makers of "Catalog's Pep"; Phyllis Knight, noted dramatic critic and artist for the magazine, "Vogue"; and Professor Bill McBurney, who teaches history and economics to college graduates only. Doctor Vic Dankis, M.D., was doubling as a poll-taker while on the train. It seems that his great-grandfather ran two polls during the Civil War—the North Poll and the South Poll."

Additional important passengers were Steve Miller, President of the National Association of Industrial Designers, which he was representing on the campaign; Jean Sharkey, famous actress starring in two Broadway Plays; Beverly Daniels, noted violinist with her own radio program, "The Fiddler"; George Loeffler, nationally known astronomer and the first man to complete a round trip to the moon; and Emily Grady, prominent lawyer who has had many a good case since being admitted to the bar. Once, while entering the dining car, I met Bill Lord, who owns quite a large boat-building industry and has designed two new classes of sailboats—the "Seahorse" and the "Sawhorse."

Of course in mentioning this campaign, I must not forget the press, which was ably represented by Bob Agman, managing editor of "Agman's Amalgamated News Co.", and his famous columnists, Phyllis Dolsen and Arlene Carlson. In fact, it was while glancing at a newspaper that I spied this headline: "Bill Reynolds, eminent biologist, discovers centipede with ninety-nine legs." I turned the page and was immediately attracted by an advertisement which read, "O. U. Wolf, furrier, is having a sale on men's ankle-length fur coats." John Sugarman is the successful sales manager of O. U. Wolf & Co.

The train stopped at Maplewood, N. J., one day, because all nine major candidates were scheduled to give speeches there; and I decided to find out if any Columbia graduates still lived in the vicinity. I soon discovered that Barry Hutchings and Bill Clingan are well-known chemical engineers and are carrying on some research for the government on account of the discovery of a deposit of uranium ore in Maplewood.

The city of Orange, not to be out-done by Boston, now has its own symphony orchestra, under the able direction of Don Satterfield, and appropriately called "The Orange Pops."

Returning to the train just as the last speech was over, I noticed many new passengers boarding it. Among them I recognized Beverly Jones and Milly Kunz who were on leave from the State Mental Hospital (where they are employed as psychiatrists!). As usual, Beverly started talking; and I soon learned that Jack Drury and Dick Witzig are still trying to organize a Cougar Alumni Dance with everyone attending; and that Ferd Gaukstern and Nancy Macdonald, former Junior Night stars, are now in Hollywood with the Bob Olwine Telecast. (Bob is a famous comedian.)

She also told me that Dorothy Brun, June Sproule, Mary Jane Radcliffe, Joan Towey, Shirley June, and Celia Schweikhardt are in a famous dance group headed by Joan Julian, who has taken up Martha Graham's work and is hoping to become "Mrs. X" soon. She added that Hildy Katchen, Julie Paddock, Joan Asselmeyer, Nancy Bernard, and Cookie Kreuter, former choir members under the direction of Mr. Shenton and his spike-tipped baton, have become the musical team, "Five Misses," which sings radio commercials.

Later, while reading a copy of Strife Magazine, whose editor, Joe Newman, has made it the best one in the country, I came across an excellent cartoon about prize fighting by Garry Casserly, which illustrated an article concerning Herb Roemmele, noted fight promoter of the 20th Century Sporting Club.

Speaking of sports, I turned on the radio in the club car and heard Dick Lawall announcing a swimming meet at the Olympic Games, which were held in California this year. Jim Mehorter had just won the diving event for the United States, and Jim Fetter was ahead in the 100-yard backstroke. At the track and field events, held in the Rose Bowl, Amos Plante, an aeronautical designer, became one of America's track stars. He is now known as "The Flying Hurdler." Dave Hawkins, a professional golfer, also coached the United States Gym Team, on which David Douglass performed very well.

John and Ed Horbelt are both playing professional baseball; and their team won the World Series this season. Columbia was also represented in football this year, since Bob Reaves, Barry Kalb, Tom Rehfeldt, and Johnny Gibbons are on a professional team whose manager is Barrett (Spike) Hazeltine.

The Presidential train stopped at one city which gave a large dinner and reception for all the passengers. The dinner was prepared by Jane Raymond's Catering Company. On this occasion, I met even more Columbia graduates than I expected to, including Bruce Flanagan, President of the local amateur dramatic group, "The Perambulators"; Jeanne Szeremany, organist at Radio City Music Hall; Rear Admiral Howard Wright of the United States Navy; Joy Clason, who runs a correspondence school of sewing on the Thimble Islands; Don Winston, who runs a summer theater on Cape Cod; Barbara Schmidt, cover-artist for the Saturday Evening Post; and Dick Szeremany, who gives piano, organ, and bull-fiddle lessons at his music studio in the town of Natural Flats, Kansas.

While I was there, I found out that Dick Brubaker and Carl Kastner are running a truck-rental business. Their slogan is "U-Drive It: We Can't." Another thing I found out is that the firm of Stan Greene and Dick Pollack, investment brokers, has just broken another investment. They rented the 80th floor of the Empire State Building, their previous office not being large enough for their financial business.

On the way back to the train, I noticed an airplane doing some sky-writing; and I was told the pilot was Margaret Owen, who is working for the A.A.A.A. (Ace Aerial Advertising Association). Soon I realized that she was advertising the coming movie featuring Ed Coleman's band and starring Dennis Laffer and Jim Lebo, Hollywood's new comedy team which replaced Abbott and Costello.

I don't know how this election of 1960 will turn out; but that is how the class of 1949 turned out.

SENIOR WILL

We, the graduating class of 1949, after one year of receiving wrong directions and after two years of giving them, after learning to shoot our water pistols accurately, and after worrying over the fate of the schmoos, are finally about to depart. We must now go out and meet society, face to face, which should be quite a shock to society. Now that we have arrived at the top step, and not knowing what will happen when we jump off, we hereby bequeath, tender, forsake, transmit, relinquish, declare, hand down, offer, impart, and submit our LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

- Item 1: I, Ed Coleman, leave my deftness at carrying that glockenspiel to any junior who feels strong enough to play it while parading around the football field.
- Item 2: I, Joan Lefrank, pass on to Bernie Latimore any gym bloomers and my undying devotion for G.A.A. activities.
- Item 3: I, Tom Brydon, leave my love for the Empire (not the State building) to Allen MacWright.
- Item 4: I, Barry Kalb, leave to Jerry Sazio the ability to make corridor floors quake when I walk on them.
- Item 5: I, Ducky Roskein, leave my stylish stout ensemble (wardrobe, that is) to Sandy Cherry. But, Ducky, it's not the clothes, it's the way you wear them!
- Item 6: I, Joan Towey, leave my radiant blond front locks to Beret Brager. That summer sun is awfully strong!
- Item 7: I, Henry Manger, leave to any inquisitive junior the secret of how to get a new "Studie" convertible. All you have to do is to have a 17th birthday.
- Item 8: I, Dottie Eccles, having inherited my all-year 'round tan from Elaine Warden, now pass it on to sister Gail Warden.
- Item 9: I, "Peanuts Hamilton," leave one somewhat used wad of gum to any junior who thinks his jaws are strong enough to dent it. (All I want for Christmas is my two front teeth.)
- Item 10: I, Iris Owen, leave my highly combustible atomic personality to Ann Rose.
- Item 11: I, Dotty Christiansen, leave my mermaid-like appearance in the swimming pool to Polly Black.
- Item 12: I, John Sugarman, leave my slightly antiquated mink (?) coat to any junior who has gumption enough to wear it to our football games, the away games, too!
- Item 13: I, Pat O'Dell leave to Hi Hi Plant the proof that "Best things come in little packages."
- Item 14: I, James J. Mehorter leave (?).....finally!
- Item 15: I, Cathie Risland, leave my fondness for "Dutch" air corps men to nobody; I want 'em for myself.
- Item 16: We, the Horbelt twins, leave the secret of our identity to the care of the Rebholz twins.
- Item 17: I, smilin' Jack Drury, leave my remarkable "passes" on and off the basketball court to Johnny Reynolds.
- Item 18: I, Nanny Osborne, bequeath my pertness and taste in "real" men to Sue Kirberger.
- Item 19: I, Pat Fenrich, leave my four driver's permits and hopes of a license to any hopeful aspirant for a driver's license.
- Item 20: I, Fred Steiner, gladly roll my barrel of jokes and half of my wit over to Pete Walowit, which makes Pete a full-fledged half-wit.
- Item 21: I, Midge Glickfeld, bequeath my ability to dress like the Sheik of Araby to anyone who wants to look Sheik (or is that chic?).
- Item 22: I, Carol Feldman, leave my sister Earleen. Don't worry, Ma, she can take care of herself.
- Item 23: I, Bob Wigder, leave 13 worn decks of cards to Burt Erchler. You can also have these poker chips, too, Burt 'cause I'm playing Black Jack these days.
- Item 24: I, Adrienne Williams, bequeath my pamphlet on "How to Write Absentee Excuses" to any junior who knows more than six hundred and eighty-three Seton Hall students (no, not females).
- Item 25: I, Bob "Frankie" Reaves, leave the "voice" to Everett "Frankie" Felder, Jr.
- Item 26: We, Shirley June and Pete Sterling, leave our all-round popularity and ability to get on each and every committee in the school to Carol Pierson and Johnny Kempson.
- Item 27: I, Johnny Gibbons, bequeath the secret of my second-hand iron neck cast to any junior who wants to wear it for 5 months. After that time, you'll be able to kick a football 60 yards (it says here).

- Item 28: I, Nancy Macdonald, leave to the junior girls the knowledge that if you can wear our three combs by combing your hair, it will look like mine.
  - Item 29: We, Larry (Dumbell) Wolf and Dave (Muscles) Douglas, leave our bar bell equipment to any junior boy who wants to change from a 98-lb. weakling to a 198-lb. weakling.
  - Item 30: I, June Rose, will to Ingrid Mellgren, my Hee-Hee-Hee (giggie, that is).
  - Item 31: I, Joan Ritchings, leave memories of those exquisite red and white basketball socks. I know, Mr. Nut tall, I should have knitted them for the whole team.
  - Item 32: I, Carolyn Keppler, bequeath my ability to look as though I had just stepped out of Vogue to Joan Paul.
  - Item 33: I, Barbara Larson, leave my monitor's desk and a pleasant sociable seventh period to the person who gets it next year.
  - Item 34: I, Don Campbell, hope that next year's treasurer takes care of the treasury as well as I did. (Note: During this school year, the Campbells bought a new car. Suggestion: Wha' happen?)
  - Item 35: I, Steve Miller, leave to next year's president the advice that he will be president of the finest school in the world.
  - Item 36: I, Stan Greene, leave my thapphire, amethyth, and lapith lathuli ringth to pothterity.
  - Item 37: I, Pete Reinhard, leave my crystal ball to next year's Class Prophet.
  - Item 38: I, Celia Schweikhardt, leave my cute nose to . . . now, how would I look without a nose?
  - Item 39: I, Dick Witzig, leave to Don Cooney my ability to smile and say "Hi" to practically the whole student body.
  - Item 40: We, Joy Clason and Mary Jane Radcliffe, leave our ability to hold our men so long to any junior with a lot of perseverance.
  - Item 41: We, Jane Goldberg, Lois Ein, and Janet Albert, leave Columbia so that we can get closer to those college beaux.
  - Item 42: I, Joe Newman, leave to next year's Mirror editor a half-used glass of Alka-Seltzer . . . he might find use for it.
  - Item 43: I, Spike Hazeltine, leave the memory of many an exciting game on my always crowded basketbal court.
  - Item 44: We, the chorus classes, leave our apple cores grape seeds, and orange pits to future music lovers.
  - Item 45: We, Walt Swirsky and Moe Moss, leave our two cents worth of humor and an empty column on page two of the Columbian to Herb Schwartz.
  - Item 46: We, the Integrated Class, leave to next year's Integrated Class the warning to find out immediately the difference between making notes and taking notes.
  - Item 47: We, the football team, leave to next year's team these words: Always remember, whether you win or lose, it's better to win.
- Having thus distributed our talents and possessions, we, as a class, do BEQUEATH the following:
- Item 48: To Mr. Paquin—The hope that someday he'll be able to teach his course on "disgressions."
  - Item 49: To Mr. Johnson—A dictionary of synonyms so that he doesn't have to call every historical character a "joker."
  - Item 50: To Columbia pupils—The hope that some Friday afternoon at 2:46 it will be so quiet that you can hear a pin drop (even if it has to be a bowling pin).
  - Item 51: To Miss Silvernail—The assurance that soon there will come a day when you won't have to tell someone that no text books are allowed in the library.
  - Item 52: To Mr. Sheeley—Eight hundred boys walking around school with clean hands (no nicotine), broad smiles, and golden halos.
  - Item 53: To incoming sophomores—Ice picks to chop away the ice in the swimming pool.
  - Item 54: To Miss Caswell and Miss Leech—When the class of '52 is about to graduate, we hope that unlike her class, they all won't want to go to Harvard or Wellesley.
  - Item 55: To the lunchroom committee—An album of symphonic music (explanation unnecessary).
  - Item 56: To next year's student body—It is our desire that the gifts of Columbia High School which we have enjoyed throughout these past three years and which we now bestow upon you be carefully guarded and wisely used.

A JUNIOR SAYS...

The Junior Class at Columbia was inserted by the founders, it is said, with the sole purpose of knocking down a student, hitting him over the head, tickling his toes, and in other ways mauling him. Of course, this is just exaggeration (things like that happen only up in the clock tower), but when a student becomes a Junior there are certain things which come to pass that hit him right between the eyes and send him reeling to his corner. I shall try to delve a little deeper into this mess, fellow Juniors.

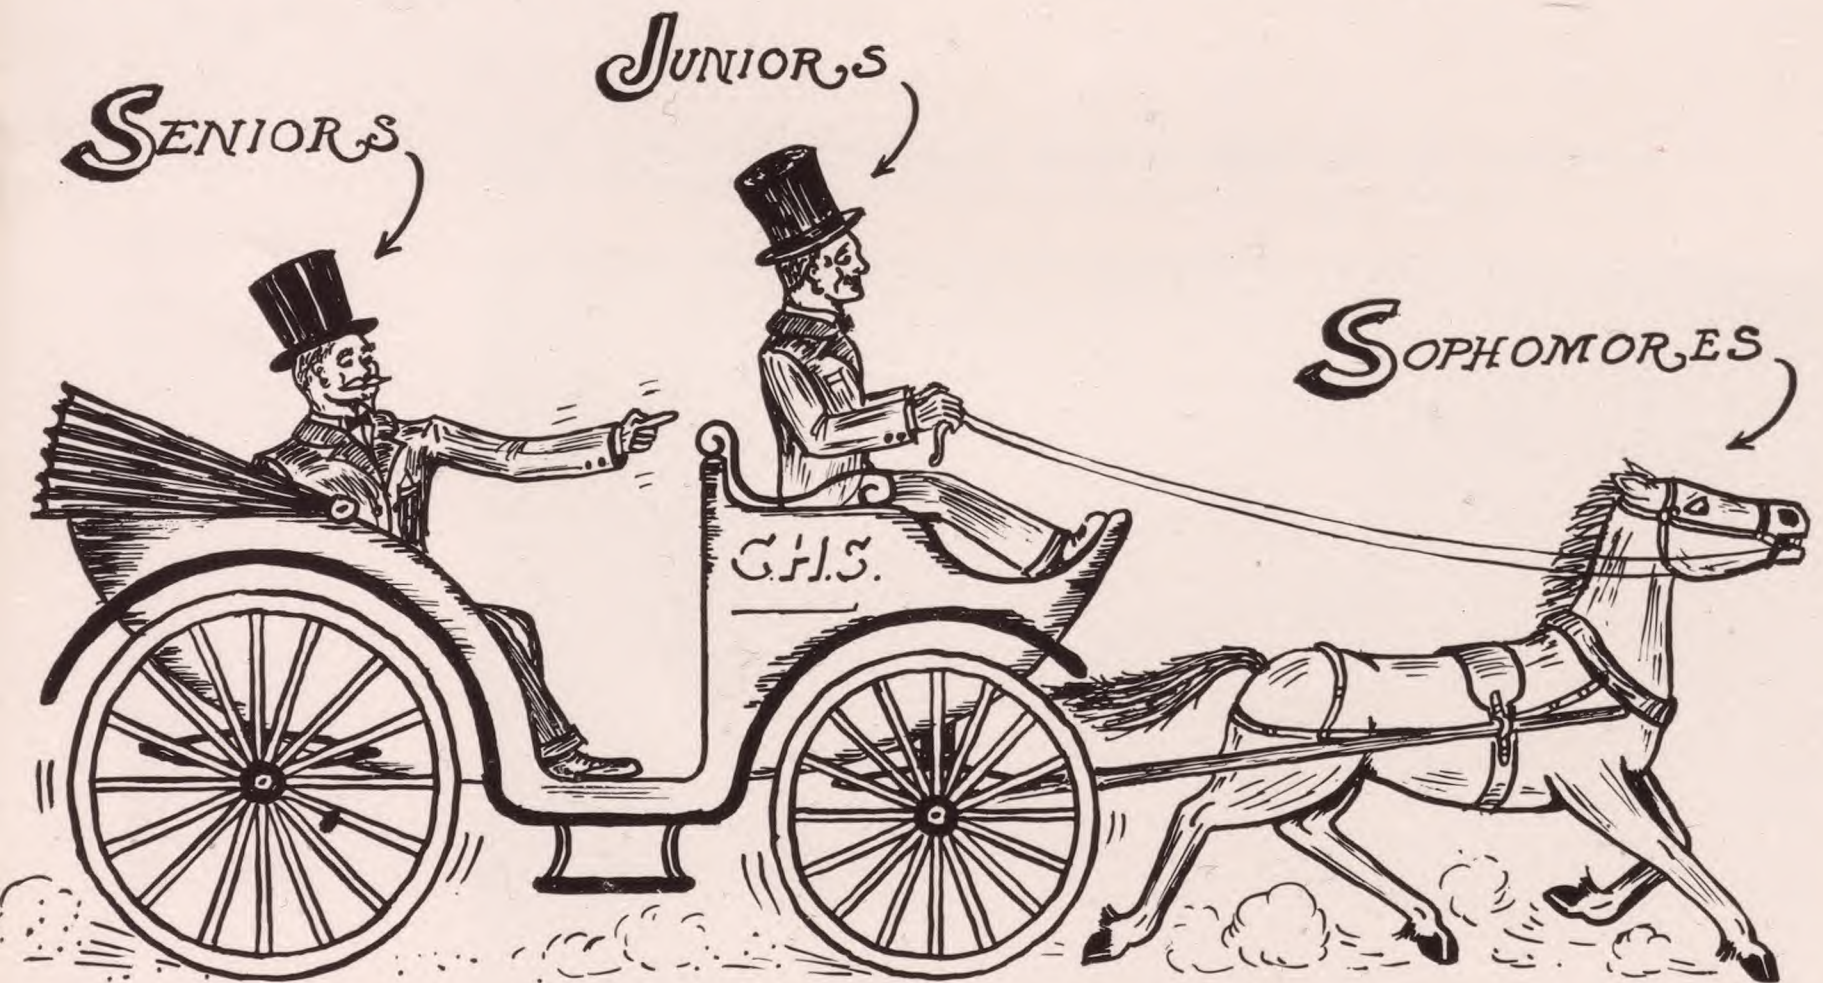

Did you know that the minute you stepped into your new classes on that first day back in September the wardens—ah, teachers—were putting into operation a new plan? This plan had been sizzling in the minds of certain people high in the ranks of Columbia's faculty. One said, "This new Junior Class should emulate its ardent, magnanimous, and especially omniscient predecessors instead of reiterating its abysmal transgressions." That was the English teacher. The Math. teacher said, "If  $C$  equals the root of the quantity  $A$  squared plus  $B$  squared, then this Junior Class ought to get to work." We won't go into what the language teachers said, will we, Juniors? Anyway, the faculty decided that this Junior Class would have to work since it had wasted all its time in its Sophomore (let's not mention that revolting word again) year. So they have been piling the school work on thick, and it isn't fair. We've never worked before, so why must we begin now? I don't know.

And there are other things, too. It seems, for instance, that many more Juniors are called up on the line for misdemeanors than (ugh!) Sophomores or Seniors. I suppose it's because the people who administer justice here figure that that Sophomore doesn't know any better and the Senior will leave in June, anyway.

The Juniors are probably distracted from their work because they are just beginning to turn their thoughts to members of the opposite—oh, that couldn't be a reason; we were doing that long ago!

Still another tribulation of the Juniors is the question of colleges. Now, they say, a student must begin worrying about college in his Junior year. The student, in picking out his college, must attend conferences, explore catalogues, learn about entrance examinations. This is a very puzzling experience, and the more Joe Junior worries—which he is very likely to do—the more befuddled he becomes. Should he take a College Board or an A. X. P. (or something like that) if he wishes to attend Lower Bicycle Heights University? Does he have to take an entrance examination if he was an all-state football player? To find the solution to any of these problems is very simple. You ask your Junior Guides and if they don't succeed in confusing you completely they might possibly happen on a solution.

But just hang on, fellow Juniors—we'll be in the upper brackets next year.

All those pretty posters you've been admiring around school are a sample of the work done by the Art Service Club. The hard-working members, along with a decorating committee, help decorate the cafeteria for the school dances, and make posters advertising school affairs and campaigns. You may remember the dismal grave and headstones with "this may happen to you," posters which adorned the halls. As you suspect, that was the club's boost to the Traffic Committee's campaign for safety. Yet in spite of their busy schedule, there's always time out for fun at Art Service Club meetings.

The shutterbugs of Columbia comprise one of the most active organizations in our school. For advancement in photographic skills, darkroom instruction is given by Mr. Dobbelaar, the sponsor, and by the experienced officers of the club. Lectures, given by representatives of the Kodak Company, are accompanied by informative slides and movies. These lectures offer the members an opportunity to acquire knowledge in photography, and still enjoy doing it. General discussions are held concerning composition, lighting, and camera technique in general. In order to add competition to the program, picture contests are regularly held.

Aided by Dr. Summers, each group has made advancements in their respective field. By these meetings a new light is thrown on the unknowns of chemistry, and each member has a brighter aspect of the subject.

The newest club to enter into the extra-curricular life of Columbia is the Chess Club. It was organized in the fall of 1948, and is under the sponsorship of Mr. MacDonough. The object of this new club is to play chess, to promote chess in Columbia, and to teach chess to beginners. There are tournaments set up in the club, and the members hope to take trips to see other tournaments. They also hope to get some professionals to come and visit their club and play chess with them.

Attempting to capture some of the customs and mannerisms of the Romans, the Latin Club has planned its activities to include an interesting study of the Roman people. In the spring a banquet was held which resembled a Roman banquet of old, including the setting, customs, and food. In celebration of the Yuletide, a Christmas party was scheduled at which the members sang songs in Latin. On certain occasions plays pertaining to Latin were performed. A trip taken to the Metropolitan Museum provided some interesting diversion.

Under the fine leadership of its executive members, the German Club made its plans for a successful year. Interesting letters, written by German students of high school age, were read at the initial meeting. Accompanied by its proctor, Mrs. Gates, the club made a journey to the Metropolitan Opera House where they saw the "Meister-singer". Some of the musically inclined members participated in a talent show which provided novel entertainment. For recreation a German Christmas play was dramatized, parlor games were enjoyed by everyone, and at special sessions refreshments were served to all attending.

Miss Lipscei

Columbia's debating club, Lyceum, sponsored by Miss Lipscei, is one of the school's very active clubs. At least once a year they attend the New Jersey International Relations Forum where they hear distinguished speakers, such as Max Lerner and Dorothy Thompson. During their club meetings they have panel discussions on timely topics. This year in assembly they gave a program discussing the topic "Who Should Win the Election?" They hope to be able to hold debates with other schools such as Irvington and Orange High.

Dick Henry

Vice-president
Allen Pois

Secretary
Harold Gilbert

Faculty Adviser
Mr. Talbot

After a vote was taken to determine what topics would be most enlightening, the Math Club obtained various speakers who taught the members the fundamentals of these topics. Mr. Woodbury spoke on surveying and explained some of its principles. Mr. Paige not only interpreted some problems in navigation, but also exhibited numerous devices used by the navigator. Demonstrations with the slide rule were held by the more skilled members, and these were accompanied by explanatory movies. For a change in routine, parties provided a pleasure for everyone.

MUSIC BOX

Treasurer
Joan Asselmeyer

Faculty Adviser
Mr. Shenton

The Music Box is the ideal club for those who are talented in, or just plain interested in music. Its meetings, held within the cozy confines of the music room, are friendly and informal. These meetings are run entirely by the students, and members participate in group singing and entertainment. One of the high points in the club's schedule this year was a trip to New York to see the opera "Lucia" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Our Clubs

PAN-AMERICAN CLUB

President
Barry Lipman

Vice-president
Barbara Hendricks

Secretary-Treasurer
Judy Bard

Faculty Advisers
Mrs. Palminteri
Mrs. Ahern

If you're an aspiring Spanish student, the Pan-American Club is for you. The members do skits, radio shows, and musicals to entertain one another, but every word is spoken in Spanish. The yearly expedition to New York to see a Mexican or Spanish movie is a source of amusement throughout the year. It's those speeches they don't put English sub-titles under that make people want to take three years of español. And that's not all: there are refreshments at every meeting.

PERSONALITY CLUB

President
Gayle Brueggeman

Vice-president
Carol Pierson

Secretary
Betty Swan

Treasurer
Carol Taylor

Faculty Adviser
Miss Clough

Debates, such as the one pictured here, are one of the many varied activities of the Personality Club. Their monthly meetings often include movies on dating or college life, and frequently a guest speaker is invited to talk with them, and help them overcome individual problems. The members discuss ways to become more attractive, physically and psychologically, and I'm sure you'll agree they practice what they preach. Because of its interesting and well-rounded program, this club for junior and senior girls is one of the most popular found in Columbia.

Our Clubs

RADIO CLUB

President
Jack Fox

Vice-president
Don Wawshe

Secretary-Treasurer
Ludwig Pietz

Faculty Adviser
Mr. Chase

The Radio Club of Columbia High School has the honor of being the oldest club in the school. There has been a great deal of improvement in its equipment since its first days. The members recently rebuilt their radio set and now have a new 200 foot antenna from the school's tower. They have an official license, W2MZE, and with their set they can send and receive within a range of 1,000 miles. During their meetings they frequently talk with parties in Connecticut or New York.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Wow! What a year!

It all started with a party at which Mother Hubbard's seven new children (Sophomore Council members) were introduced to the other club members.

Soccer followed, and Miss Beach was kept busy with bruises on the tibias until the end of the season. The Seniors emerged from the slaughter victorious; that is, still in one piece.

Basketball? Well, the basket was always there, but one was never sure where the ball was. One thing was certain, however: it was never in the basket. If the basket had been on the ceiling, the scores would have reached the hundreds.

Then the Christmas stage performance! The teachers stole the show along with Mary who was looking for the two front teeth she had lost in a soccer game.

Volleyball! A rugged sport. Evidently the players on the end courts had forgotten what game they were playing, for more balls hit the basket than had hit it during the entire basketball season.

Splash! Into the pool went the swimming team whose motto was "The old gray suits, they ain't what they used to be." This year the swimmers did fairly well, having finally learned to swim on top of the water.

She's out! And so was school as the last sport of the year came to a climactic end with a shy Sophomore hitting a home run while attempting to bunt.

Wait! Don't forget the awards party which honored the courageous ones who had weathered five or six sports. Honored also were the successors of Mother Hubbard and her staff.

The year's calendar is now complete except for the many daily happenings which, though hardly worth mentioning, were lots of fun. Remember the crucial contests—boys versus girls—over possession of third field, which the girls always won; and the savage water ballets held in the vicinity of the locker-room drinking fountain; or the fierce rivalry as to who had the most lavishly decorated locker?

These and many other incidents have made the year a full and happy one, especially for the Seniors, who bid a fond adieu after having finally won a plus point.
