Dedication

Famine, pestilence, and war were once the dreaded anathema of humanity.

Of these, only war remains as a menace to our national security. Scars of strife still seen throughout the world serve as a grim reminder of the selfish domination of despots. The atomic bomb promises the death of millions unless the threat these tyrants pose is eliminated. Here lies the challenge to us, the future citizens of the United States. For it is only natural that the eyes of the freedom-loving peoples of the world should turn to our great nation for leadership. As we, the class of 1956, dedicate our yearbook to world peace, we pledge ourselves to this ideal, hoping that we, as individual persons and as a nation, will be resolute enough to meet the challenge.

COLUMBIA HIGH SCHOOL

Erected by the peoples of South Orange and Maplewood and dedicated to the principles of education for all

MDCCCCXXVII

This building, the product of many thoughtful minds and skillful hands, is an expression of the will of the people to provide full opportunity to all who enter its halls, for the development of ability and character — that they may become sturdy, righteous citizen inspired by the ideal of unselfish service.

Greetings to the Class of 1956

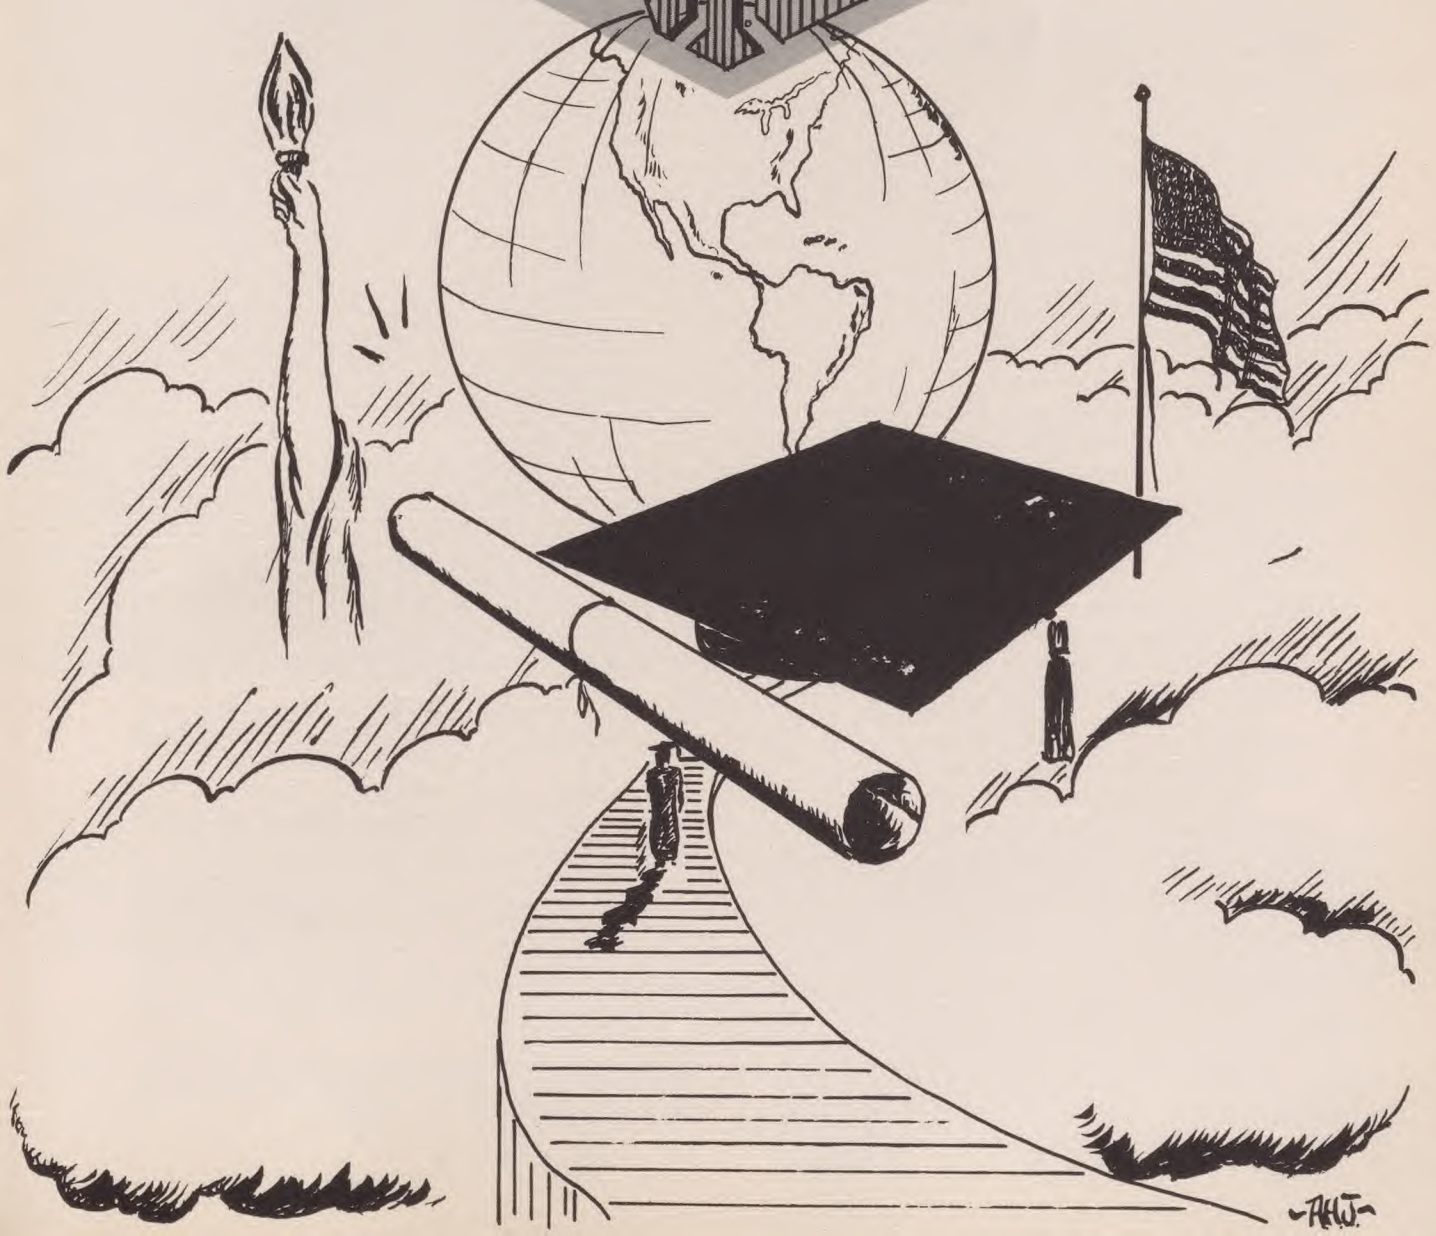

You are graduating in an exciting and challenging decade. Never at Columbia has the interest in education beyond high school been higher. Never have opportunities for qualified young people in business or industry or the professions been greater. Never has our country been stronger or wealthier or occupied a position of greater prestige than it has in this decade. These are great years in which to begin one's adult life.

Among the more than four hundred young men and women who will receive their diplomas June 21, a large number will be outstandingly successful in whatever they undertake — whether it be college, a job, the armed services or marriage. Some will succeed moderately well; others will just "get by"; and a small minority will be failures. Research on the factors affecting success and failure indicate that while high ability and good education are very important in achieving success, they share equal importance with strong purposes, readiness to work long and hard, and a capacity for getting along with other people. Generally speaking, the people who succeed are the ones who deserve to. Good luck or bad luck are largely superstitions. Most people make their own luck.

Although your eyes and thoughts are focused ahead, do not forget that Columbia is and will continue to be your school home, and you are always welcome to come back to visit your teachers and your other friends here. Wherever you go and whatever you do, you carry with you the affectionate good wishes of the men and women and of the boys and girls who make up Columbia High School.

Robert L. Amsden, Principal

1945 GENARBS

Senior History

The time has come to say good-bye to Columbia High School. Our stay here has been rich in fun and learning, and we shall always cherish the memories of these past three years.

As we approached Columbia for the first time, we felt apprehensive. The unfamiliar surroundings, the maze of halls, and the mysterious lunch schedule bewildered us. However, it wasn't long before we blended into the school body and could no longer be distinguished as sophomores. We joined as many clubs and committees as our time permitted, and in April we participated in our first election. Excitement swept through the school; posters with flashing lights, noisy campaign rallies, and homemade campaign buttons added to the colorful confusion.

Soon we were juniors, and the all important activity was the preparation for Time Out For Timothy, our smash-hit Junior Night production. What fun we had composing and rehearsing our own show! The school echoed for months afterward with the refrains of "Neighborly Love" and "I'm Brock."

Our junior year was packed with other new experiences. Club and school council meetings, and special teas and breakfasts were now held in the modern Peter Kasen Memorial room. We can remember many a party held there, complete with music from the spinet piano and entertainment from the hi-fi and television sets. The sports' year was highlighted by the swimming team's exciting victory over Trenton High School to capture the coveted State Championship title.

The marking system was radically changed under the direction and planning of three committees; one composed of students, another of teachers, and a third of parents. A lettering system, including pluses and minuses, replaced the outmoded percentage system. Our parents came down with severe cases of writer's cramp from signing eight cards, one for each subject!

Steve Decter carried through one of the planks in his platform by establishing the sophomore orientation committee, a group whose purpose is to clear away the fog that always hovers around new students. We are sorry that we could not have enjoyed the advantages of this assistance. How much easier our first days here would have been.

The elections added to our list of "firsts" when Richard Updike was elected in the primaries with a landslide victory. This was the only time in fifteen years that a candidate did not have to go to the finals to be elected. In our class election, John Chappellear was chosen to preside at our graduation in 1956.

We were surprised to learn that Miss Helene Smith, our esteemed guide, was to retire at the end of our junior year. She had ably served Columbia as an English teacher, head of the English department, and class guide during our sophomore and junior years. It was reassuring to learn, however, that Mr. Fleming was to assume the responsibility of class guide along with Mr. Thompson.

The ink on our final exams had scarcely time to dry before we were returning to accept all the responsibilities and prestige that mark the eldest class in the school.

Our class was very special in many respects. We fulfilled our responsibility as Seniors by demonstrating great drive and school spirit; never before had so many well-attended dances been held, and never before had so many spectators supported our athletic events. The 1956 swimming team won the State Meet for the second year in a row by a slim margin of one-half point.

Chitranjan Kapur from India and Yoriko Konishi from Japan spent two short weeks with us under the Herald-Tribune Exchange Student Plan. We learned a great deal about the customs and ideas of their respective countries from these interesting people. Yoriko entertained us with a graceful, interpretative Japanese dance.

The Ford Foundation added to our choice of academic courses for our senior year. We were the first class to benefit from the advanced courses in English, chemistry, and mathematics that were offered at Columbia under the sponsorship of the Foundation. We were also privileged in that we participated in the National Merit Scholarship Examinations which were initiated this year. More than thirty percent of our students who took the exams passed the first screening.

Manwoo Lee, a friendly Korean boy, was a welcome addition to our class. We enjoyed talking and listening to him and being with him in classes. We were very pleased to see him at our dances and football games. He became quite proficient on ice skates, too!

Miss Mildred Bullock, a teacher of business education; Miss Cecelia Freeman, a French teacher; Dr. Helen Leech, class guide and Latin teacher; and Miss Marjorie Nichols, an English teacher, announced their decision to retire after their years of faithful service to Columbia.

In the Veterans' Day assembly, a set of clear-toned chimes was presented to the school in memory of Mr. Frederic J. Crehan, the late principal of Columbia. At this time, two plaques in memory of former faculty members were placed on the walls of the auditorium.

Highlighting the year was the Senior Play production of "George Washington Slept Here," in which we showed our fine acting talent. The cast of this play was one of the largest ever seen on the Columbia stage. Mr. Browning, a new member of the faculty, directed the production with skill. The hilarious comedy was received with gales of laughter.

Now all these events are behind us and exist only in memory. It seems as though the years have deliberately hurried by. Soon we shall graduate and our lives will follow many different paths. But each of us will remember well the work and fun we shared together, and the warm friendships we made at Columbia High School.

I have just come back from a visit to the capitalistic empire of the United States and I am very happy to be back in glorious homeland. I was taken on a tour of the whole country and was introduced to many unfortunate people, both in the ranks of the proletariat and in the aristocracy.

Arriving in California, I attended a party at the Russian Embassy given in my honor by Helen Skade, who was in charge of diplomatic protocol. Among the distinguished guests were Ted Van Putten, ambassador to the Netherlands, Pat Ogden, senator from California, Maxine Ertag, delegate to Belgium, and columnists, Bonnie Josephs, Peg Orchard, and Ursula Boedecker. Just as I was filling my face with red herring, a resounding crash echoed through the building; and messenger boy, Allan Heyman, rushed in with the news that arsonist, Hank Humphrey, had just set off a cherry bomb in the lobby. Laughing hysterically, he was being carried off by Dr. Henry Auer and his nurses, Judy Saunders and Pat Cooper. Then I was escorted out by my bodyguards, Dave Mansell and Dave Mazzarella.

In order to calm my frazzled nerves, I was taken to the commercial stronghold, Hollywood, where a film was being made entitled "Time Out for Timothy." A capitalistic enterprise, naturally it took place in a bank and starred Julie Stomne, Harold Kelshaw, and Asher Krafchick. Seen around the set were directors Doris Dickler and Nancy Shaw; Roy Eisenhardt, famous songwriter, who was humming melodiously "Nada de Particular"; Martha Wills, scenery designer; Ed Roth, producer; and Brenda Kleinerman, make-up artist.

I was then whisked away to a fabulous party at the home of socialite Kathi Eagan. As I sipped my Manhattan and longed for a Moscow Mule, I met many famous aristocrats. There were four Walt Disney cartoonists, Don Pollock, George Beck, Sandy Felio, and Justin Ost; gossip columnist, Nancy Salzman; tennis star, Ralph Heyman; Miss Rheingold of 1960, Norma Collier; and Dave Melick, foreign car agent for General Motors.

From Hollywood I took a plane to Las Vegas, Nevada, a city run by gamblers out to rob the proletariat. My first stop was "Danny's Desert Dugout," owned by a city slicker named Aron. The emcee, Dick Carr, introduced singers Charlie Wicks and Carol Silvers, pantomimist Myrna Glazer, and chorus girls, Marilyn Stephany, Carole Hebler, Nessa Goldstein, Carolyn Darnell, and Sue Kleinwaks. Bourgeois comedians Ed Hartke and Bill Bischoff, and interpretive dancers Lori Colucci and Jean Lawder finished the show. In a smoky corner of the room lounged cardsharks Ken Jacobson and Herby Ross. As I left the club I stumbled across Leroy Dubeck, seated under a cactus, thinking up moves for his coming championship chess match with Joe Begasse. Although I was in Nevada, I was unable to visit Los Alamos Testing Grounds because scientists John Chappellear and Bob Freund had just blown up the place with their new H₂O bomb.

I left hurriedly for Washington D.C., where Secretary of State Bill Horton and I were photographed by Tony Cannon and were shown around by Dan McAlister, who was in charge of foreign relations. President Richard D. Updike and Representative Jim Wilde from New Jersey were reviewing the U.S. Olympic team whose members included sprinters Norm Rothfuss and Don Sharkey, diver Bill Riter, women's hockey champion "Sha" Petrozello, skating star "Mel" Seidler, and football players Jerry Cerza and George Underhill. Since it was the year of the senatorial elections, I heard speeches given by Joan Gomillion, Richard Orsi, and Jan Spielman, all advocating world peace. Atop a soap box was Ted Cohn preaching higher pay for streetcleaners.

The hot air from a filibuster waged by Congressman Peter Sachs carried me to New York, that capitalistic metropolis. Out on the street selling cuff-links was Natalie Owen, and tagging along behind her was Linda Salzman, still plugging for that 20% commission. In the afternoon I visited Carnegie Hall where famous flutist Rita Fiedel, and world-renowned pianist Gary Evans were giving a concert. Linda Habas, music columnist for Pat Hall's popular newspaper, World Mirror, was covering the event. I ate dinner at Joe and Sandy's Place, run by Carroll and MacDonald, and in the evening I saw a performance of the famous Russian comedy, "Joseph Stalin Slept Here." The stars were Howard Weinstein, Eileen Shanley, Joan Lange, and Paul Zeigler. After this highly entertaining experience I settled down for a good night's rest at the International Hotel, run by Joyce Kastner.

Early the next morning I was taken on a tour of the monopolistic capital, New York, by Governor Jonny Rose. In the fashion world we met Ronnie Inlander, Esquire's top model, and Melite Smith, famous fashion designer. Miss Smith's favorite models were Ruth Ann Goodman, Debby Eisenberg, Carole Gottlieb, and Susan Ross. All her fashion show scripts were assembled by free-lance writer, Brenda Lesnik. Top women's coat designer was Dot Connors, who said that she felt the old type fur coats were coming back in style.

As Governor Rose and I neared Wall Street, we met many big business magnates: Ray Behar and Alan Rothfeder, co-owners of the Herald Times; Henry Heystek and Ray Israelow, managers of Con-Edison; and Steve Halprin, controller of a dairy that supplied all New York with milk. But the most depressing sight I saw in New York was prosperous-looking Bob Tessler, head of the Stock Exchange, who was dribbling a basketball down Wall Street, trying to forget his worries. Poor lost capitalist!

New York was my last stop in America and after the confusion and disorder of that city, all you comrades can imagine how good the cool air of the tundra felt against my face. Let the Americans keep their free enterprise—they still have no industrial system that works so well as the glorious salt mines of Siberia.

Class Will

- Item I: I, "Sha" Petrozello, leave my athletic ability to Gail Rosevear.
- Item II: I, Gail Hemhauser, leave my "super-duper personality" to Judy Whitman.
- Item III: I, Penelope, faithful auto, leave Dave Mazzarella, Joe Santasiere, and Jimmy Auriemma—I've had it, fellas!
- Item IV: I, Charlie Wicks, leave my mellow voice to Joe Yesville.
- Item V: We, Diane Bonomo and Anne Tarnanella, leave the librarians—at last!
- Item VI: We, Pat Hall and Eileen Shanley leave Columbia unendowed because we've taken our "Riches" with us.
- Item VII: I, Pieter Schiller, leave my "daddy longlegs, economy size" to "Legs" Gardner.
- Item VIII: We, the members of all the advanced courses, leave them—whew!!!
- Item IX: I, Kent Atkins, leave the swimming pool—blurp, blurp!
- Item X: I, Joan Bollhorst, leave my ability to fail my driver's test four times in a row to any junior who is that unlucky.
- Item XI: I, Lori Colucci, leave my string of admiring males—don't cry, boys—you'll see me Thanksgiving!
- Item XII: We, Don Pollock and George Beck, leave our artistic ability to Sue Peterson and Jimmy Stern.
- Item XIII: We, Roy Eisenhardt and "Punkin" Kernan, leave our popularity to Fred Profeta and Bonnie Remondelli.
- Item XIV: We, the members of chorus and choir, leave Mr. Shenton—there'll never be another like him!
- Item XV: I, Maxine Ertag, leave my gift of gab to any junior who has the wind.
- Item XVI: I, Irene Bisk, leave my dimples to Laini Kaplus.
- Item XVII: I, David Schultz, leave my monotone voice to Bob Scheu.
- Item XVIII: I, Nancy Salzman, leave my taxi service to Barbara Jones—install a meter and get rich quick!
- Item XIX: We, Sue Kunca and Barbara Palmere, leave our Mutt and Jeff appearances to Sarah Hughes and Rigie Garfinkel.
- Item XX: I, Bill Horton, leave my bevy of female followers to A. J. Calimano (Don't worry, I'll write).
- Item XXI: I, Norma Collier, leave my model-like appearance to Nancy Nicholson.
- Item XXII: I, Man Woo Lee, leave Columbia, but take with me many fond memories.
- Item XXIII: We, Ellyne Sturm and Ruth Ann Eisenberg leave our Scarlett O'Hara waistlines to Carol Smith and Linda Lafer.
- Item XXIV: I, Janet Pitfield, leave my "for Pete's sake!" to Susie Paige.
- Item XXV: I, Joan Lange, leave my dramatic ability and Tennessee accent to the real hillbillies—and "all because of neighborly love!"
- Item XXVI: We, Buddy Bergmann and Harry Chirelstein, leave our skill on the court to Dave Challenger and Arnie Safirstein.
- Item XXVII: We, Barbara Foran and Joann Foley, leave our twirling ability to Marilyn Rieff and Judy Brown.
- Item XXVIII: I, Howard Weinstein, leave my motorcycle jacket to Marlon Brando—get wid it, daddy-o!
- Item XXIX: I, Rett Hartke, leave my ability to get a laugh at any time to any junior funny enough ("I have a cow!")
- Item XXX: I, George Tikijian, leave my Haji Baba appearance to Art Tauder.
- Item XXXI: We, Joan Osmun and Sondra Beers, leave our peroxide bottles to Barbara Neuhaus and Charlotte Hirscheren.
- Item XXXII: I, Margie Rudy, leave my skill at Driver Education to Marilyn Decker.
- Item XXXIII: We, Mary Fuhrman and Jan Spielman, leave our extreme youth to anyone who wants it—we don't.
- We, the members of the class of 1956, leave:
- Item I: Without Miss Helene Smith, but we will never forget her.
- Item II: Don McKelvey's house a shambles.
- Item III: With deep gratitude for everything Mr. Thompson and Mr. Fleming have done for us.
- Item IV: Our fabulous Junior Night to anyone who will take "time out" to think about it.
- Item V: Mr. Talbot an interpreter with no slight discrepancies, erroneous assumptions, or mental gymnastics.
- Item VI: The Chemistry lab a bottle of airwick—it needs one.
- Item VII: Columbia High School after spending three memorable years.

Senior Play

A house with an historic past was the setting of George Washington Slept Here, the choice of the class of 1956 for our Senior Play. The three-act comedy by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman is the story of the Fuller family and their "new" house in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. The house is purchased by Mr. Fuller to surprise his wife, but her reaction is sheer disgust. Her disapproval is provoked by the poor condition in which they find the house: no water, rotted floors, leaky roof, broken windows, and smothering dirt. Annabelle is finally reconciled and by mid-summer the Fullers appear to be comfortably settled in their renovated and delightful colonial home. However, the serenity is soon shattered as one problem builds upon another to reach a very hectic and uproarious climax.

The adventure of the Fuller family was highlighted by superior Thespian ability. Especially delightful were the humorous characterizations of pessimistic Mr. Kimber, temperamental Hester, diabolic Raymond, sensitive Newton Fuller, and his sarcastic wife, Annabelle. Laurels must also be awarded to Mr. Browning, the director, and the expert backstage crews. Weeks of hard work were brilliantly concluded by moments of fun and hilarity—Senior Play was a shining success.

"This bit of advice was the word he spoke
To every one of the lonesome folk.
'Fill your arms with gifts, keep your heart alight
With the Christmas message, and go tonight
Deep in the forest until you see
The tallest and loveliest Christmas Tree.
There lay your gifts, and you will be cured,
My friend, of your loneliness,' he assured
Each one."

Junior Night

A bit of prospecting for uranium and romance was the highlight of Up 'n' At 'm', the class of 1957's Junior Night show presented on Friday and Saturday evenings, March 9 and 10. Professor Diddle and his student assistant, Jeff, are searching for uranium in the "ghost" town of Hard Rock, Arizona and discover that a bit of feminine fascination is included in the bounty. Here the fun begins! Not only cowboys and dudes, but college students and professors form the background. Even Ed Sullivan gets into the act! Add to the above the exceptional dances, songs, and Thespian ability, and you have the ingredients for a terrific show! Responsible for the great success of Junior Night were Miss Mary F. Clutton, the director, and her assistant, Mr. Herman Mendelson.

KEARNY: After Kearny scored their first touchdown, Jack Press took the kickoff and raced to the goal. With seconds to go in the half, Press passed to Dick Orsi, who fell on the three yard line as the gun sounded. In the second half, each team scored once; but Kearny again made the extra point, which was the deciding factor. Final score: 13-14.

EAST ORANGE: Favored East Orange seemed bound for its expected win when Columbia's attack came to life. The Cougars scored once; and after regaining possession, began a drive which seemed to have the makings of the winning touchdown. But an East Orange back intercepted a Scheu pass and outran Columbia's defense to score the clinching touchdown. Final score: 13-20.

WEST ORANGE: After our traditional rivals had taken a 13-0 lead, the Cougars began to fight. Jerry Cerza picked up a blocked kick and ran for a touchdown. Soon after, Columbia tied the score, but just missed the deciding extra point. Final score: 13-13.

PLAINFIELD: Facing a highly-rated Plainfield eleven, Columbia led most of the way, but lost in the final quarter on two successive Plainfield touchdowns. Final score: 14-20.

ORANGE: In their first away tilt, the Cougars looked good as they took the lead and held it to the final gun. Orange was allowed a safety in the fourth period. Final score: 19-2.

MORRISTOWN: The final score gives little indication of Columbia's superior ball-playing against Morristown. The Cougars controlled the ball throughout most of the game and threatened often, while Morristown showed little strength. Charlie Wicks scored the game's lone touchdown on a 25-yard dash. Final score: 7-0.

WESTFIELD: The Cougars showed great ability to move the ball and easily defeated Westfield. George Underhill scored all of Columbia's three T.D.'s. Final score: 19-6.

MONTCLAIR: The Cougars were clearly outclassed against Montclair. The Mounties, displaying terrific blocking, demonstrated fine team work. Columbia could advance only by passing, and could not go far enough to score. Final score: 0-47.

Girls' Athletic

A party for sophomores and new girls launched this year's G.A.A. activities. The juniors and seniors tackled field hockey with its shin guards and "sticks", while the sophomores acquired new skill at speedball. Seen throughout the fall, emerging from the pool in "stylish" bathing suits, were girls working for their life-saving certificates. As soon as the winter winds blew too cold for outdoor sports, the girls tried to master the "spike" and other techniques of volleyball. The fall season was highlighted by a Hallowe'en party sponsored by the council to which the gym teachers came disguised as witches. As 1955 came to a close, G.A.A. celebrated the holiday season with its annual Christmas party. Entertainment, refreshments, and interviews with Santa Claus sparked the occasion.

The new semester initiated basketball. The double dribble was used to good advantage as the three classes competed in an intramural tournament. The tie and other new regulations were adopted which greatly speeded up the game. With the advent of spring, the girls went outdoors once more; this time with soft-balls and bats. All worked hard in hopes of being selected for the red or black honor team.

Association

These teams, composed of the best baseball players, held highly competitive games at the end of the year. The G.A.A. ended its activities with its annual awards party. At this party, girls who had met special requirements were awarded life-saving certificates, letters, and numerals.

The G.A.A. was especially fortunate this year to participate in several playdays. On Saturday, October 29, Columbia High School acted as hostess to the schools participating in the State Hockey Playday. On October 19, the G.A.A. sponsored a speedball playday with South Orange and Maplewood Junior High Schools. This was done on an orientation basis. The council hoped to acquaint the junior high students with the procedure at Columbia in regard to speedball and other gymnastic activities.

Among the outstanding events of the G.A.A. year were the student-teacher and mother-daughter volleyball contests. In the spring, three girls were sent to Trenton to participate in a statewide playday.

The officers of the Girls' Athletic Association were: "Sha" Petrozello, president; Gail Rosevear, vice-president; Joan Lange, secretary; and Janice Cook, treasurer.

In Memoriam

"Things change, persons die, everything human is bound to change or meet with death, but the universe remains and with it the reason and the truth which is derived thereof. In spite of the unreasonableness of men and events — there is a deeper reason in all things and causes — a reason which is good — a reason which is God."
