Petition ruled unacceptable

METUCHEN — A petition circulating since last November and aimed at halting redevelopment of the downtown cannot be accepted as presented to the Borough Council.

The petition was submitted to the council last week just prior to a decision to approve a revised plan for downtown redevelopment. Calling for further research into the proposed redevelopment of five acres in the downtown area, the petition carries over 1,000 signatures.

Borough attorney Jerry Baranoff told the council, "There are no binding referendums in a borough form of government." He added that a "nonbinding referendum can only be triggered by having a petition which responds to a resolution or ordinance of the mayor and council saying they desire the sentiments of the voters on a particular issue."

"It cannot be accepted in the form and sequence in which it was submitted," he said.

In order for the petition to be executed in the proper sequence, according to Baranoff, the council would first have to issue a resolution or ordinance asking for the voters opinions on the matter at hand. Ten percent of the voters who were registered for the last general election would then have to sign a petition requesting that the question be placed on the ballot.

The petition would next have to be presented to the council at least 60 days before the election, Baranoff said, and the council would then be obligated to send the question to the county to be placed on the ballot.

If the petition were submitted according to these guidelines, the attorney said, other matters should be considered, such as whether the statement on the petition is sufficient for allowing the voters to know what they are voting on and whether a sufficient number of signatures has been included.

"In most instances, petitions for referendum need certification from somebody that they were present when the signatures were affixed," Baranoff said, adding that it must also be established that the signees are residents.

If the residents wanted to re-do and resubmit the petition, they would "have to get the sequence right," Baranoff said.

Metuchen to vote on reorganization

METUCHEN — Members of the Board of Education and the public expressed varying opinions during Tuesday night's meeting about the most appropriate format for the borough's school system and had their final say on the matter before a formal vote next week.

Whether to stay with the current neighborhood schools program or adopt the Princeton Plan was the main matter for debate, though one audience member expressed a desire to have additional plans be considered and another suggested a modified version of the two plans.

The board will take a vote during next Tuesday's meeting whether to stay with the neighborhood schools system. If the neighborhood plan is voted down, the board is expected to vote on one of the variations of the Princeton Plan.

The board initially discussed a recommendation made by Superintendent of Schools Gennaro Lepre that a vote be taken during next Tuesday night's meeting to stay with the present system or go with the Princeton Plan but questions were raised about how the dual recommendation could possibly be voted on. The board ultimately decided to first vote on whether or not to change the current set-up.

Audience member Carol Carr of Cliffwood Place said she had received the impression that the board would be voting on all of the options that have been discussed. "I don't want to feel someone eliminated the options," she said. "I think you have to vote on all the options."

Board president Eileen Dyas suggested that a more general motion be formulated.

Launching the board members summary statement about which plan to vote for, board member Byron Sondergard pledged his allegiance to the neighborhood schools plan. "Neighborhood schools are one of the reasons why people choose to move here and neighborhood schools are one of the reasons why many of us choose to stay here," he said.

Sondergard reasoned that neighborhood schools provide "a degree of stability for students that in other areas of their lives is often lacking in today's fragmented society" and said the present school organization has been educationally successful.

"It has been acknowledged by Mr. Lepre that there is no data available indicating that the Princeton City Ohio plan is educationally superior to our current system of schools," Sondergard said, adding that although some benefits might be gained by that plan, the same benefits can be achieved with the current neighborhood schools plan.

He opined that the problem of "disparate class size" can be addressed by "ability grouping" and said the current system "has far

Trees are subject of council debate

EDISON — The subject was trees at Monday night's Township Council meeting.

The council has agreed to resurrect a tree ordinance drafted several years ago and never voted on to control the removal of foliage and topsoil from development tracts.

The decision follows an incident in which developer Barry Weingarten allegedly stripped a 13.34-acre tract off James Street of topsoil and trees while his application for a use variance awaits a decision by the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

Weingarten is proposing three midrise buildings containing 311 condominium units. Site plan approval was granted several years ago for two three-story office buildings but the project was abandoned and the tract later acquired by Weingarten.

Residents in the area have appeared at meetings to voice concerns about the development and called Weingarten's pre-mature clearing of the site the "rape" of land.

Mayor Anthony M. Yelencsics told the council that he and other township officials met with Weingarten last Thursday drew the line on what and what not to remove from the tract. The developer was told to plant evergreens in an cleared area close to neighboring residences.

Township engineer William Lund added that if Weingarten's proposal is denied, "he might have to do additional site work."

The mayor said last week that Weingarten's stripping of the site exceeds the limits of the original site plan. He added that Weingarten had performed similar clearing work several years ago at his Edison Square Complex at Route 27 and Talmadge Road.

At Monday night's meeting, Councilman Angelo Orlando pointed out that a member of the town's planning office should "physically" walk the site and mark each tree. "The site plan is supposed to mark which tree should and should not go and then someone should go out and mark the trees," he said.

Lund replied that trees on a particular site are addressed when the Planning Board reviews each application. "Each applicant is told to contact the planning office for a preconstruction conference concerning site disturbance," he added. "The gray area is when someone goes out and strips the site without site plan approval, but I don't see it happening very often."

"How can we ensure that someone

Real estate increase spurs talk

METUCHEN — The Development Commission at last Wednesday night's meeting discussed counteracting gentrification and ways to discourage proposals for high density development in single-family neighborhoods.

According to commission chairman Harry Pozycki, these are two problems which may result from the town's rising real estate values which add to the "increased attractiveness" of Metuchen.

"Because of traffic congestion and because Metuchen offers easy access to transit and shopping facilities, it seems the prices in the borough are moving up and we have to face the inevitability of gentrification," Pozycki told the commission.

"If we want to maintain the foundation of the community and prevent people from moving elsewhere, we'll have to develop a program to facilitate their staying."

For example, Pozycki said, a downpayment assistance fund would give potential home buyers who may be forced out of the local housing market the opportunity to purchase a home in Metuchen. Through this program, qualified applicants would receive a deferred interest loan towards a house downpayment. The loan would not be paid until the sale of the house or refinancing of the mortgage.

The idea for the fund came from Urbanvest, the developer selected to redevelop five acres in the downtown area. Urbanvest, in submitting a revised development proposal to the borough, said it would donate $100,000 towards an affordable housing fund and suggested that the money be used towards a downpayment assistant fund.

The commission, after a brief discussion, voted to explore this option further and will ask Councilman

Master plan due July 11

EDISON — The long-awaited draft of the township's updated master plan is due on July 11.

This is what the Township Council learned at its agenda session Monday night in a letter from planner John T. Chadwick, who was to appear that evening with a report on the status of the plan. In his letter, Chadwick said he would be "unable to attend" the meeting.

The letter stated that the draft master plan, zoning ordinance and zoning plan "are detailed and have been prepared subsequent to extensive discussion and review of alternative policies" by the Master Plan Committee.

The preparation of the master plan was undertaken by E. Eugene Oross Associates, the planning firm with which the township has an annual contract for planning services. The cost of the updated plan was $83,000 which was divided into monthly payments of $4,611.11 each over a period of 18 months.

The council entered into the contract in September of 1987 and was told the plan would be completed in 18 months. Worried that major new development projects are underway throughout the township under the framework of an outdated master plan, the council had summoned Chadwick to its Monday meeting for a status report.

Chadwick had said two weeks ago that the amount and complexity of other planning matters assigned by the Planning Board had contributed

In the service

EDISON — Air Force 2nd Lt. Ross A. Kantra has arrived for duty as a production program manager with the Aeronautical Systems Division at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. He is the son of Raymond Kantra of 143 East Fourth Street and Barbra Kantra of Bay Village, Ohio.

PSE&G plans training site

EDISON — A training center for its gas business unit is going to be established by Public Service Electric & Gas Co. on its property at Silverlake and Sylvandell avenues.

Site plan approval for the center was given last week by the Planning Board, which was told by project manager Robert Torre that an existing one-story repair garage containing 9,000 square feet is going to renovated to house the facility. A two-story building of 10,000 square feet also will be constructed as part of the training center.

Torre said the center will have a staff of 12 and the enrollment at any one time will be approximately 60 students.

He assured the board that because the facility will not be used to train linemen there will be no poles sprouting on the site.

Plainfield Avenue house approved for office use

EDISON — A former dwelling at the corner of Plainfield Avenue and Jefferson Boulevard is going to become an office building.

However, in granting approval last week the Planning Board specified that no more than two professional people, exclusive of office staff, will be permitted to occupy the structure, which has three rooms, a bathroom and hallway on the first floor and three rooms and bath on the second.

The board also directed that property owner John Sifakis must remove a concrete pad on the Jefferson Boulevard side of the property so that no one will be tempted to park there with the rearend of his car hanging over the sidewalk.

In addition to site plan approval, Sifakis needed variances for the size of the property, which is only 6,107 square feet as compared to the required 10,000 square feet, and the frontage, which is 75 feet as compared to the required 100 feet. Other variances covered the front and sideyard setbacks and lot coverage, which is 77.7 percent as compared to the maximum permitted of 75 percent.

The property, once zoned residential, is now in an OS (office-service) zone.

Flower shop adding front

EDISON — Flynn's Flowers on Route 27 east of Plainfield Avenue was given site plan approval and a sideyard variance last week by the Planning Board.

Owner Peter Flynn told the board he is planning to construct an addition 12 feet in depth to the front of the shop, which occupies a converted residence. The addition, he testified, will be mainly glass and will provide need additional sales and display space.

The variance was required because the addition will extend from an existing side wall of the building, which is only 3.3 feet from the property line instead of the required 15 feet.

'Field day' for ham radio

EDISON — Tomorrow and Sunday, the Amateur Radio Emergency Service of Edison Township will have a field station set up and on the air as part of a nationwide "field day."

The occasion is the American Radio Relay League Field Day, where ham radio operators will test their ability to set up and run a radio station in conditions similar to those during an emergency, such as hurricanes, earthquakes or floods.

The Edison service will have its station set up at the Municipal Complex on Municipal Boulevard near Route 27. Equipment will be assembled and tested beginning at 9 a.m. tomorrow, and the station goes on the air from 2 p.m. tomorrow until 2 p.m. Sunday.

Members of the public are welcome to visit the site. A free message service will accept radiograms to be sent via ham operators to many locations in the world.

Our Opinion

Commitment

Recently there have been questions raised on whether redevelopment of Metuchen's downtown will improve the quality of life for its residents.

First, it should be noted that Metuchen officials take great pains to protect and preserve the town's character. These efforts, they claim, are directly related to a high living standard in the borough.

Those who have sat through a Planning Board or Zoning Board of Adjustment meeting and listened to board members agonize over a building proposal that does not live up to the town's planning standards have witnessed the commitment to that higher quality of living.

Residents who have attended traffic meetings and have watched borough officials map out new ideas for improving traffic flow (a little like plotting the easiest route through a maze) have also seen the commitment.

In a county like Middlesex where development has left a path of steel structures and asphalt and highway congestion, it is understandable that there are questions concerning the merits of redevelopment.

But, hard as it is to believe, benefits to the quality of life can be derived from building townhouses on a five-acre parking lot in what has become a most attractive central business district.

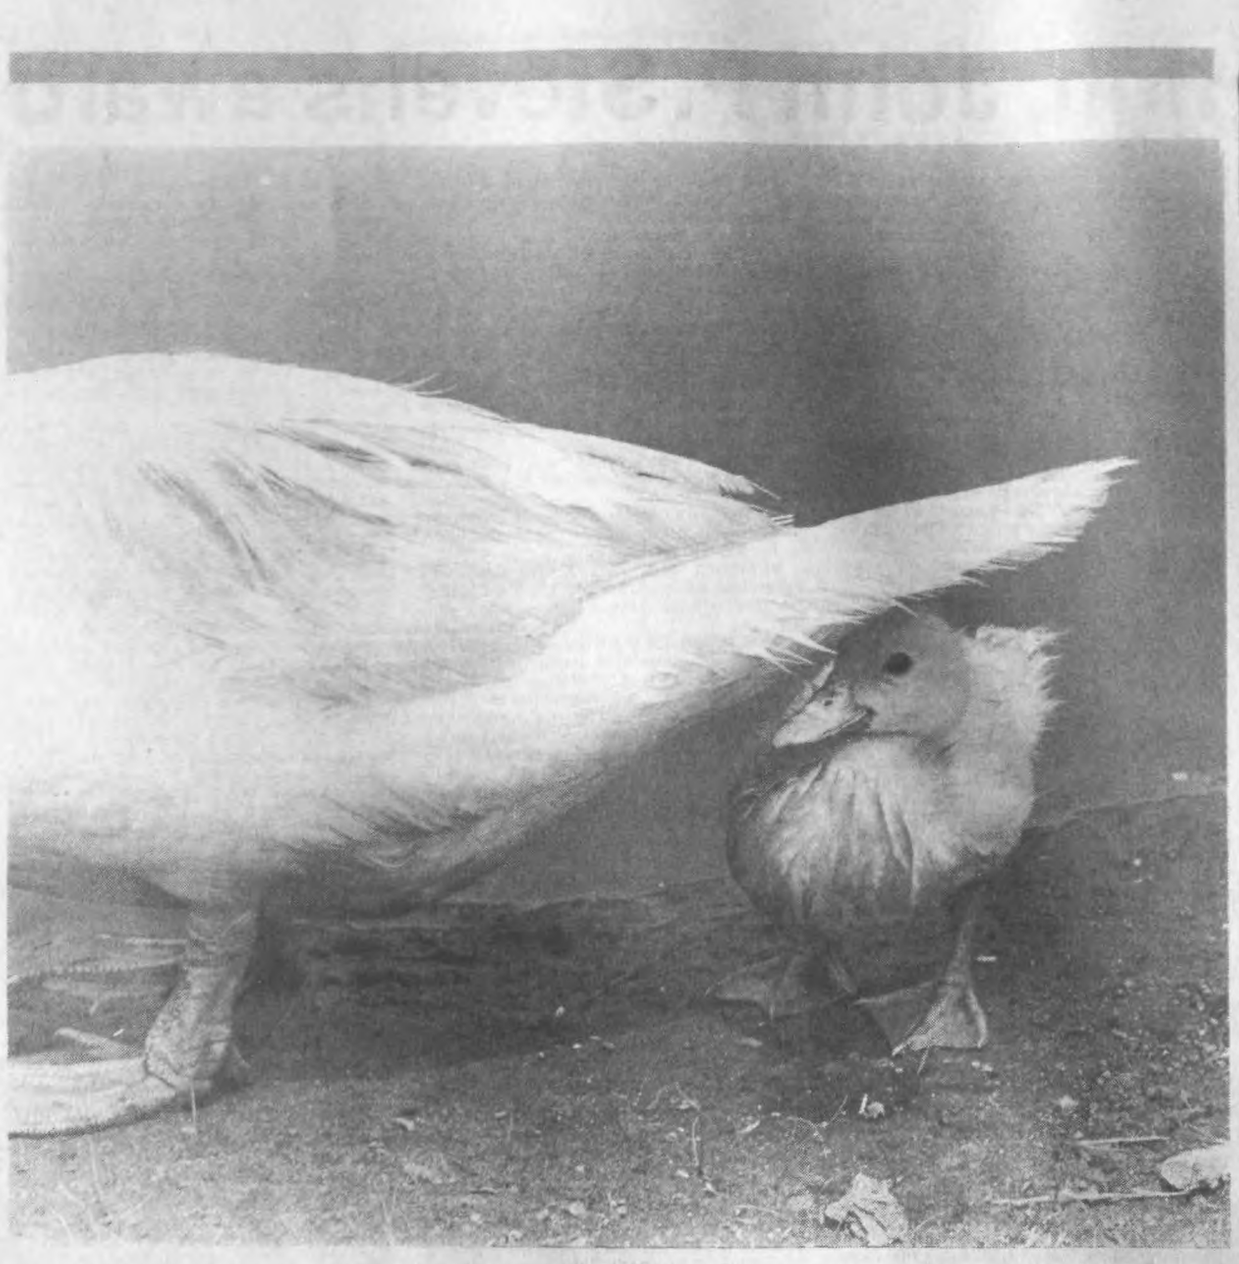

For the Metuchen resident who commutes by car frequently to the downtown area, development of the Pearl Street parking lot, according to studies by traffic experts, will reduce the number of cars traveling in the downtown. Any reduction in traffic would be an improvement.

The aesthetic consideration of redevelopment is one that has been hardly addressed by residents or borough officials. According to architectural standards that took one year to develop, the buildings will be of the "highest architectural design and materials" continuing on the Victorian theme prominent throughout the downtown area. This will certainly be an improvement over blacktop and car roofs and, in all probability, will prompt other businesses in the vicinity to improve their properties.

Who can argue that the $700,000 to be donated to the borough by the developer is not a benefit? With this money, the borough can attend to capital projects, such as sewer and road improvements, and can also set up a fund to help residents purchase a home that would otherwise be out of financial reach. (An improvement to their quality of life, no doubt.)

And the predicted boon to property values that would result from the revitalization is another benefit.

The careful study of redevelopment that spanned eight years is one example of the town's commitment to a high quality of living. After eight years of study, it's hard to imagine that officials in Metuchen would promote a project detrimental to the downtown or to its residents.

Importance of dinner for families

BY BETTY HUTCHEON

Status, these days, can be measured by how busy we are. The more appointments pencilled in on our personal calendars, the more meetings crammed in a day, the more phone messages to return, the more important we must be.

This phenomenon, reported in a variety of popular newspapers and magazines (which I have time to read because I am not, at the moment, busy), can be observed in the corridors of nursery schools as mothers and fathers whisk their toddlers in and out of classrooms according to a rigid schedule; it can be observed in the halls of industry where capitalism's drones flit from conference table to conference call; it can be observed in the aisles of the supermarket, the hallways of school buildings and the promenades of shopping malls as determined denizens purposefully pursue their daily agendas.

The fallout from all this activity has settled in part on the family. According to my reading, families spend less time interacting, less time engaging in common pursuits, less time getting to know each other. One of the many side effects has been the steady decline in the sanctity of the dinner hour, the traditional time for parents and children to share the highlights of the day, to enjoy the security of the family unit and maybe, to learn something new.

Now, the insistent intrusions of work and play (soccer practice, baseball games, aerobics, art classes, etc.) impel each family member in a different direction and often, dinner is gobbled frozen food from the microwave or moo shoo pork from the cardboard take-out box or an oozing hamburger from a foam carton.

I'm not sure any family can escape unscathed from the frenzy of our mostly very ordinary lives, but I would like to believe we can find some balance and that our search may take us back to the dinner table. My own childhood dinner times seem almost a cliche for life in the 50s with my mother at one end of the table, apron covering her dress, and my father at the other, still wearing his shirt and tie after a day at the office. On one side sat my brother, while my sister and I claimed the same places opposite him each night. The dog was there too, occasionally moving about under the table, but mostly resting near my father who was a soft touch and surreptitiously shared his dinner.

I have heard from some people of my generation that dinners in their homes turned into battlefields, with warring parents fighting with each other and for the allegiance of the children, but I was spared such internecine intrusions. Instead, I remember how much I looked forward to that coming together, how I felt secure and warm and loved and how I rejoiced in the attention of my parents.

Often, my father would bring a stack of books to the table, Shakespeare or a poet, or a letter he had received, a news story he had read, but usually something to share with us, to stimulate and stretch our minds. Interruptions were were not permitted - telephone callers were told we would return the call later and television viewing was not even considered. Only my mother managed to violate this unwritten rule, when, just as my father was making

New trap for a new mouse

Of All Things

Dereck Williamson

Strange consumer products, many of doubtful practical use, are appearing on the market. Open up the latest Hammacher Schlemmer catalog and you'll find all sorts of items that your average aboriginie would not need to survive in the desert.

These would include a lighted electrical tie rack, a two-way indoor putting green, a bun-warming frankfurter steamer, a steak thermometer branding set, and something called The Only Barbecue Teppan-Yaki.

If you thnk these products are odd, consider the item on page 27. It is something called a Solar Powered Ventilated Golf Cap. If features a built-in fan which operates on backup batteries on cloudy days.

You can also buy an electric cat door (for your electronic cat?), a quacking duck decoy telephone, a talking wristwatch, a shower radio that receives TV stations, special $50 "high traction driving moccasins," and last and least, a sonic rodent repeller.

It is difficult to understand how we managed to survive without these things. The old-fashioned Victor mousetrap, for instance, has been around for a century. It kills mice. It doesn't drive them off to another room.

Do we really need something that hurts their ears, and runs up our electric bill?

I suspect that even greater technological marvels are in store for us. For example, not only have we built a "better" mousetrap, we're even building a "better" mouse.

No kidding. The United States Patent and Trademark Office has issued a patent for a mouse.

The new rodent was created by Harvard Medical School researchers through genetic manipulation. It is the first patent ever issued for a higher form of life.

Many of you might not think of a mouse as a higher form of life, but let's not quibble here. The recent granting of patent No. 4,736,866 for "transgenic nonhuman mammals" (I think that's scientific talk for "mice") was heralded as an historic event.

Earlier this year, another gene-spliced animal, combining sheep and goat traits, made nationwide news. It is called a geep. But that animal, although presently walking around the University of California and looking funny, has not yet been patented.

The Harvard mouse, although patented, has no name. To keep them straight, memorize the following rhyme:

"Gene-spliced geeps may have a name,

"But patented mice have greater fame."

The new mouse is to be used for research. Scientists say that the altered breed serves as a more effective model for studying genes.

But will it remain in the laboratory? Probably not. You know how it is with a hot new product. Some smart business promoter will put Mutant Mickey on the market, and soon everyone will want one.

Nobody will be satisfied with the plain old-fashioned field-mice and house-mice. If you've got an obsolete mouse in your cupboard, you will feel inferior when the Joneses next door announce that they have registered rodents.

Social pressure will force you to buy your own pedigreed pests.

And remember, your cat won't be caught dead with a garden-variety mouse. Cats are choosy, and will insist on dealing exclusively with elite and expensive patented prey.

Hammacher Schlemmer probably has a sales team up in Boston at this very moment, pounding at Harvard Medical College's door.

Life on the Soft Shoulder

John Kazmark

You may have recently heard that a major tobacco company was successfully sued for the effects of their product prior to publicly stating that it may have hazardous effects.

The news media has suggested that now a barrage of lawsuits will be forthcoming by other people who see that the common person just might be able to fight City Hall.

In light of this newly-found power, I have decided to take on yet another of the great manufacturers that has played on our psyche with false advertising. The producer of a product that is not only aimed at an unsuspecting audience of adults, but one whose marketing strategy is geared toward the young.

I plan to file a class action suit, on the part of the American public, against Hershey's Kisses.

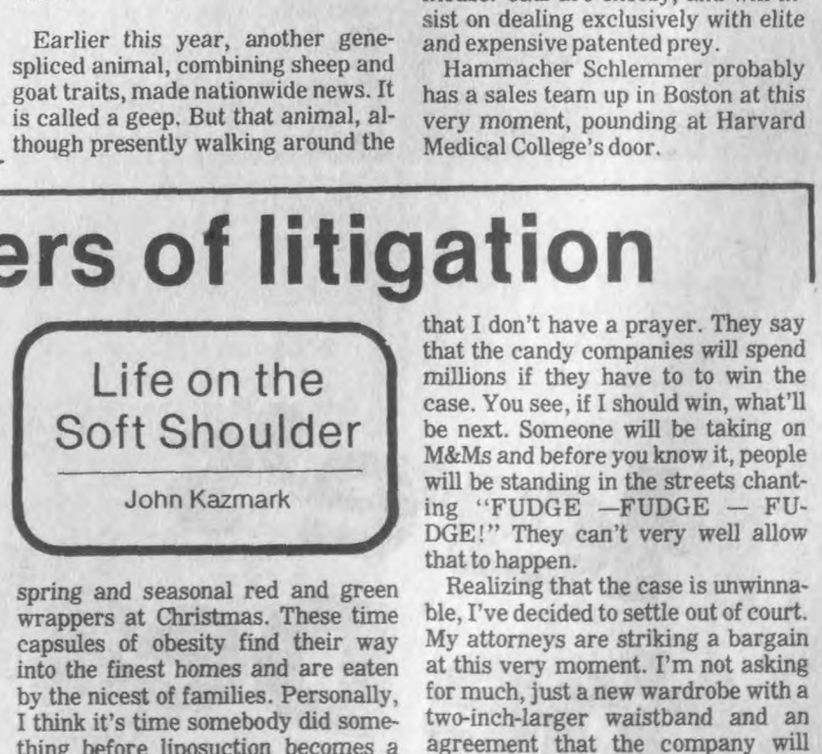

Little has been said publicly about how these cute little confections have ruined countless teeth and complexions. But all that is about to end. I am going to take every opportunity I have to let the public know that these candies have added endless pounds to the bodies of unwitting individuals who thought that they were consuming a little tinfoil-wrapped bit of affection.

Perhaps, it is the name "Kiss" that offends me the most. I mean, just how many do you think they'd sell to children if they called them "Cavities" or adolescents if they were called "Zits." Now at my age, they owe me the courtesy of calling them something meaningful. Like "Little Pointed Balls of Fat."

But no. They persist in their damaging masquerade by wrapping them in delightful pastel colors in the spring and seasonal red and green wrappers at Christmas. These time capsules of obesity find their way into the finest homes and are eaten by the nicest of families. Personally, I think it's time somebody did something before liposuction becomes a fourth-grade vocabulary word.

My lawyers say, off the record, that I don't have a prayer. They say that the candy companies will spend millions if they have to to win the case. You see, if I should win, what'll be next. Someone will be taking on M&Ms and before you know it, people will be standing in the streets chanting "FUDGE —FUDGE — FUDGE!" They can't very well allow that to happen.

Realizing that the case is unwinnable, I've decided to settle out of court. My attorneys are striking a bargain at this very moment. I'm not asking for much, just a new wardrobe with a two-inch-larger waistband and an agreement that the company will print a little warning on that silly little tissue strip that sticks out the top.

Your Opinion

Discuss the issues

To the Editor:

The Democratic leadership in Edison has taken on the trademarks of bossism.

Three township councilmen were blacklisted because they expressed an opinion different from the mayor. Police officers lined the rear of the council chambers at the last public meeting. Large-scale development projects are marked for approval, while the public's right to master plan hearings are delayed. The state has suspended one Edison building inspector, and investigations and questions continue about the Building Department and Bill Lund, the township engineer. The public has no reassurances that protection from dangerous building infractions are even near priority in the administration.

The mood is similar to Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's time, when a mix of jobs, industry and unions brought order to the city, and the voters loyally returned him to office. Yet when his delegation was thrown out of the 1972 Democratic convention, political cartoonists mimicked him: "I won't stand for this! Have the people of Illinois replaced!"

Likewise, the Democrats have dominated the Edison political scene for decades, and have attracted a large population of homeowners happy with good schools and low taxes. Political party leaders have continually pointed to this as a true measure of success. But when substantive issues are raised by the public, particularly overdevelopment and the environment, the mayor says everything is fine here, and any debate or progression on the issue is lost.

The worthy accomplishments of the administration should not amount to a sacrificial lamb of the public's right or the council's right to speak; partisanship to a party was never intended to sacrifice free speech.

In disallowing any healthy discussion of the political issues, the Democratic party leaders promote skepticism and distrust, not the partisanship and loyalty they seek. Elected officials owe their loyalty to the people that elect them, not the party leaders who dictate conformity without regard.

Visions and Revisions

some critical pronouncement, she would interrupt to ask if anyone wanted more meat or potatoes or vegetables. Her prosaic interjections and my father's bewildered exasperation became so commonplace that they were incorporated into the dinner time ritual.

Rituals evolve and though I still sit at that same dinner table in the same dining room, dinners are not quite the same. There is no father at one end of the table and my daughter and son sit opposite each other, but not in the spot I or my siblings held. (The dog has no fixed spot either, but I notice he favors Douglas's side where food seems more likely to drop than at Becca's.) I am probably more lenient about telephone calls, but I hold firm on the television ban. Sometimes I bring a book of poetry to the table, sometimes a newspaper clipping, sometimes just an experience to share.

I don't know what my children think of dinner time nor do I know if they find sustenance, nutritional and emotional, from our hour together. I know they laugh, sometimes to the point of silliness; I know they willingly share their thoughts, sometimes to the point of outrageousness; I know they are impatient, sometimes to the point of intolerance. And most important, they know that no matter how busy we are, we have one hour every day that belongs just to us, the family.

Six people injured in six-car pileup

EDISON — Six people were taken to John F. Kennedy Medical Center after a six-car pileup June 5 on Route 1 North at Prince Street.

The injured were drivers Gilberto Zayas of Perth Amboy and Elliott N. Sacks of Somerset and two passengers in each of their cars.

Zayas was charged with careless driving by Patrolman John Dauber.

Dauber reported that Zayas' 1982 Cadillac struck the rear of a 1983 Chrysler driven by Joseph Cibik of West Chester, Pa., after which the Cadillac was hit in the rear by Sack's 1987 Nissan station wagon.

According to Dauber, Cibik's Chrysler was pushed to one side by the Cadillac, which then barreled into a 1984 Chevrolet operated by Andrea I. Lichtenstein of East Brunswick.

The Chevy was pushed into a 1978 Ford driven by Katherine D. Matyi of 147 Brower Avenue, causing it to ram the first car in line, a 1977 Toyota driven by Ricardo D. Myers of New Brunswick.

Zayas told Dauber that when he saw traffic up ahead was stopped for a red light, he braked but his car went into a skid.

Rolls Royce disappears

EDISON — A North Bergen man reported to police May 28 that a local antique and classic automobile dealer has closed shop and disappeared along with the $45,000 Rolls Royce he was supposed to sell for him.

Robert Joye told Patrolman David Pemberton he turned the 1963 Silver Cloud III over to the dealer on January 15. He and the dealer with whom he had been doing business for 20 years had a verbal agreement to sell the Rolls for $45,000.

According to Joye, when he last contacted the dealer in March, he reported the car had not yet been sold.

When he next attempted to make contact with the dealer, Pemberton reported, Joye was told that he had gone out of business and left no forwarding address.

Parked cars are scratched

EDISON — Cars parked on Freeman Street, which is off Grove Avenue, were vandalized on June 10 and again on June 13.

David P. Hawke of 449 Grove Avenue told Patrolmen Louis Kirsh and Thomas Vickery that on the 10th, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., both the front and rear driver's side fenders of his 1986 Pontiac were scratched.

Ellen Begun of 25 Cinder Road reported to Kirsh and Vickery that her 1988 Chevrolet was damaged on both dates. In one instance, a 24-inch scratch was inflicted on the driver's door and in the other, a 36-inch scratch was gouged in the left rear corner of the car, which was parked on the street between approximately 8:30 a.m. and 3:15 p.m.

On the 13th after returning at 3:45 p.m. to her 1985 Plymouth wagon, which she had parked at 7:50 a.m., Roberta Chavez of Colonia found an 18-inch scratch on the left front fender.

The fourth victim was Alice Luchino of 11 Falmouth Road, who reported the driver's side of her 1983 Oldsmobile was scratched from front fender to door while parked between 8:20 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Bits o' Breezes

by M. Charbell

If my statistics are correct, McDonald's opened its 10,000th hamburger stand recently.

What this proves is that Americans are either lazy, dumb or just plain apathetic towards matters that matter. It also proves that some Americans are addicted to junk food.

I am going to share with you a story that a writer from San Francisco shared with me about the time he interviewed the late Ray Kroc, the genius behind McDonald's. It's interesting.

Kroc was a stocky 74-year-old man built like a Big Mac. He wore gold lapel pins in the shape of arches, a diamond pinky ring in the shape of arches, and his eyebrows rose in the shape of the arches when he realized my editor had dispatched a kid instead of himself for the interview.

Talking to Kroc was like eating at McDonald's. You had to wait politely, speak quickly when it was your turn and move fast, before the product cooled off.

Kroc had been interviewed a billion times, once for every burger sold, and the only thing to get him going, I'd been told, was to refer to McDonald's as "junk food."

When I saw the impatient look on Kroc's face when he saw me, I figured I'd better get to the point. McDonald's, I casually remarked, is a terrific place to go for junk food.

That did it. Kroc sputtered and splattered like the French fry vat.

"Junk food," he roared. "What the devil are you talking about? We serve meat, potatoes and milk. How can you call that junk food?"

"Well," I said, "the burgers are fatty, the sodas are sugary and the fries are greasy."

"Look, my friend," Kroc roared across the table, "if you fix yourself a dinner of cake and ice cream, what are you going to do — blame the Shop-Rite for selling it to you? If you order a Coke or a milkshake at McDonald's instead of a glass of milk or orange juice, whose fault is it?"

In all my years of watching TV commercials, I replied, I have never seen McDonald's advertise its fine servings of milk.

"It's on the menu," Kroc snapped. "It's not our job to decide for you. It's not American."

With the important issues out of the way, I asked Ray Kroc if he might join me for lunch. It was noon and there was a McDonald's only a short walk away. "My treat," I told him.

"Nah," he said. "I'm off to Trader Vic's."

Trader Vic's? The chairman of McDonald's was having lunch at Trader Vic's?

"You can get a highball there," he explained. "And they have wonderful ribs."

Well, my friends. What more is there to say. Ray Kroc said it all and said it well, depending on where you're coming from. He banked on Americans that wanted it fast and fatty (no pun intended).

The golden arches remain as a reminder of all those who continue to choose — lest we forget the late, great Ray Kroc's words, "It's not our job to decide for you!"

Amen.

Hop into the library for bunny tales, contest

EDISON — Look! Rabbits will be hopping all over the Edison public libraries this summer!

The fun begins to multiply with a "bunny pop" contest. Between Friday, July 1, and Friday, July 29, preschool through 5th grade children can return a book to any library or the Bookmobile and enter a raffle for a lollipop shaped like a rabbit.

Drawings will be held every week and winners notified by telephone. Entry forms will be available at the circulation desks during July.

Rabbit tales will be told, too, right after the Fourth of July. Kids in 2nd through 5th grades can hop on down the bunny trail for an afternoon of stories, films and games.

These programs will be held on Tuesday, July 5, at the main library on Plainfield Avenue; Wednesday, July 6, at the North Edison library on Grove Avenue; and Thursday, July 7, at the Clara Barton library on Hoover Avenue. All programs begin at 2 p.m. Registration begins on Tuesday.

Details may be obtained in person or through the main library, 287-2351; North Edison, 548-4759; or Clara Barton, 738-0748.

Edison

Robin L. Berry, 25, of Stanfordville, N.Y., was arrested June 13 on charges of possession of a controlled dangerous substance and possession of drug paraphernalia after her 1987 Nissan was pulled over on Route 1 South near Old Post Road by Patrolmen Donald Jeffrey and Stephen Miller because of a broken taillight. The officers reported they observed a marijuana roach clip on the dashboard and a package of rolling papers on the front seat after the woman and her passenger were asked to exit the vehicle. The contents of Berry's pocketbook, they said, included additional rolling papers and a prescription bottle containing marijuana and three unidentified capsules. A bag of marijuana turned up when she emptied her pockets, according to Jeffrey and Miller, and upon checking the Nissan before impounding it the officers reported finding two marijuana roaches in the ashtray.

Metuchen to vote on reorganization

more flexibility built into it than is currently being tapped." He said major problems with the Princeton Plan include the need for more space to accomodate older students, the cost and safety of busing, and the adddiitional traffic that would be created by busing and having more parents driving their children to school.

Sondergard also maintained that the most recent board election showed that the public was is in favor of staying with the neighborhood schools plan, because three incumbents were defeated by three advocates of the plan. He urged the board to "bow to the will of the people," reject the Princeton Plan and work to improve the neighborhood schools system.

"Everyone I've spoken to is pro-neighborhood schools," said board member Charles Canary. He added that he does not believe the "financial picture has been put forth" concerning the Princeton Plan and said one of his major concerns about that system is the transportation of students.

"My major concern is safety of those young students," he said, mentioning the "major bus accidents in small communities" that have taken place in recent months.

"I'm from the Edgar School area," he said, adding that his wife and three daughters went through that school. "Interest in the Princeton Plan does not exist in Edgar School."

Canary said he can see no educational gain that would be attained by using that plan."I just can't comprehend this Princeton Plan in our borough," he said. "I am truly opposed to the Princeton Plan and I am truly for the neighborhood plan. If it's not broke, don't fix it — the neighborhood system is not broke."

Young couples who have purchased homes in the borough and are planning to have children several years down the road may have bought their homes because they noticed a neighborhood school in the vicinity, according to Canary, and such schools are a major selling point used by realtors.

Lepre said he has already written everything he has to say about the plans and emphasized that the goal at hand is to "provide the best education in the most cost effective way." The borough has a good school district now and will continue to have a good school district regardless of how the board votes next week, he said.

Board member Walter Magdich stressed that a school district should reflect what is wanted by the people. "My mind was wide open when I first decided to run for the board," he said, "but the overwhelming majority of the people I talked to during the campaign urged me to keep the neighborhood schools."

Magdich added that "people of all ages and backgrounds" told him they were happy with the neighborhood school system "for what it did for their children and the town."

Magdich maintained that the reorganization study was long and difficult but thorough and fair. He also said he believes the borough's population will increase over the next several years and younger people with children will be moving in.

"If I am ever convinced that neighborhood schools can no longer deliver quality education at an affordable price," Magdich said, "or that they don't mean as much to people as they do now, I will vote for a change without delay."

Mrs. Dyas said she has three children in elementary school and feels the present system is "inadequate in directing where students go to school." She noted that she participates in various carpools and stated, "Most people I speak to see a need for change in some way." She also said she believes members of the public have different opinions about which plan is best and to say "everyone I spoke to is in favor" of a certain plan is " a lot of malarky," especially when limited numbers of residents were queried.

Mrs. Dyas said her main concern is that the students need a middle school, "a place to be together as a group before high school."

"Who knows what system I'll vote for," she said, adding that change is needed.

Board member Vincent C. Bonica said he was initially in favor of the neighborhood schools plan and likes the idea of children being able to walk to school but changed his position after hearing comments from people. He said there is a potential for savings with the Princeton Plan, and believs adopting the plan would be in the best interest of the children.

"Neighborhood schools are best for for the parents, but not necessarily best for the children," Bonica said. Factors affecting his decision included the idea of a middle school, small incoming grades at the Edgar School, and future growth, which he feels the neighborhood school sytem can not handle.

Board member Judith Elliott said she feels a "healthy exchange" has taken place between the public and the board about the reorganization study and felt there was a tendency for the public to favor the Princeton Plan. She mentioned the "cost saving merit" of the Princeton Plan, educational advantages and the flexibility that will be offered to handle an influx of students.

Board member Joseph Sprunger said there will be no way to have a middle school if the present school system is maintained. If the Princeton Plan is adopted, the problem of "how to move kids in a reasonable way" will have to be addressed.

"We've got problems either way," he said.

Mrs. Carr said she never perceived the audience to have favored the Princeton Plan. She added that she favors a plan that would feature two elementary schools and a middle school.

Kathy Price of Stoneham Place said she favors the Princeton Plan and felt it will offer a "top notch education" and allow for an influx of students. Another audience member said she thinks either oprion would be too drastic and would like to see a "modified plan" , one man opined that proof has not been offered of the educational advantages of the Princeton Plan and one resident suggested the public be surveyed to determine which plan is favored.

Real estate increase spurs talk

James Dudley, who was instrumental in designing the town's affordable housing guidelines, to aid in developing a similar set of eligibility requirements for the downpayment assistance program.

The next area for discussion was the potential intrusion into single-family neighborhoods of multi-family housing.

"Because of the increase in the cost of housing," Pozycki said, " there becomes an increased demand for multi-family housing. There are those who will come in and propose multi-family housing in a residential neighborhood. Most often this is proposed through a variance."

The most recent and most controversial example of this is a proposal by attorney Sam Inglese and Robert Priscoe to tear down their neighboring houses on High Street and combine their properties for the construction of 38 townhouses. The zone in this area was changed last year from R-2 to R-1 residential, a move, according to a suit Inglese and Priscoe filed last year against the borough, that was made primarily to block the proposed development. The pair have also filed suit against the Zoning Board of Adjustment for its "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable" decision not to grant the use variance.

The case will be heard in Superior Court on Friday, June 24 at 1:30 p.m. in Judge Joseph Sadofsky's chambers.

Pozycki suggested an amendment to the master plan to create an "assailable hurdle" against the "D" type variance sought in these applications. To receive a "D" variance, he explained, a developer must show proof that his proposal is not contrary to the intent of the master plan.

"I propose to make a specific amendment that explicitly states that no multi-family housing be permitted to be constructed by way of variance in existing single-family residential neighborhoods," Pozycki said.

He added that while the town cannot completely override the state's variance laws, it could "make the language strong so it will be virtually impossible to prove that it (the development) won't be contrary to the master plan."

Pozycki suggested drafting a resolution on this amendment and submitting it to the Planning Board for review. Asked if this would effect a decision in the Inglese and Priscoe matter, he replied, "This would only affirm our position and commitment" to protecting single family neighborhoods.

Police revisit trash site

Center Street had been turned into a mini-dump. Because Johnson relied on heresay and had no personal proof that 29-year-old Shiffner owned the property, the case was thrown out of court.

But on June 13 at 10:06 a.m. Johnson reported that he walked the site for a sixth time and found it to be scattered with trash and debris.

According to Johnson, metal drums, tires and a refrigerator are piled to the rear of the property. Two houses, which appear to be vacant, represent an "attractive nuisance," he added.

A court date on the recent illegal dumping charge has not yet been set.

to the delay. Those matters, he said, included the rezoning of a 1,000-acre portion of Raritan Center and establishing requirements for the development there of 3,846 residential units and close to 7 million square feet of office, warehouse and retail space.

Once the draft of the master plan is completed it will be submitted to the Planning Board for review. Upon approval, it will be made available to the public. Next, the plan would be modified and revised before it is again submitted for public scrutiny. The final step is adoption by the Planning Board.

Trees

marks the trees now?" Orlando asked.

"That would require doing something at the pre-construction meeting," Lund replied.

Weingarten, according Councilman John Hogan, never received a permit from the Freehold Soil Conservation District before removing topsoil from the site. However, it was pointed out than the soil permit obtained when the proposal for office buildings was approved is still valid.

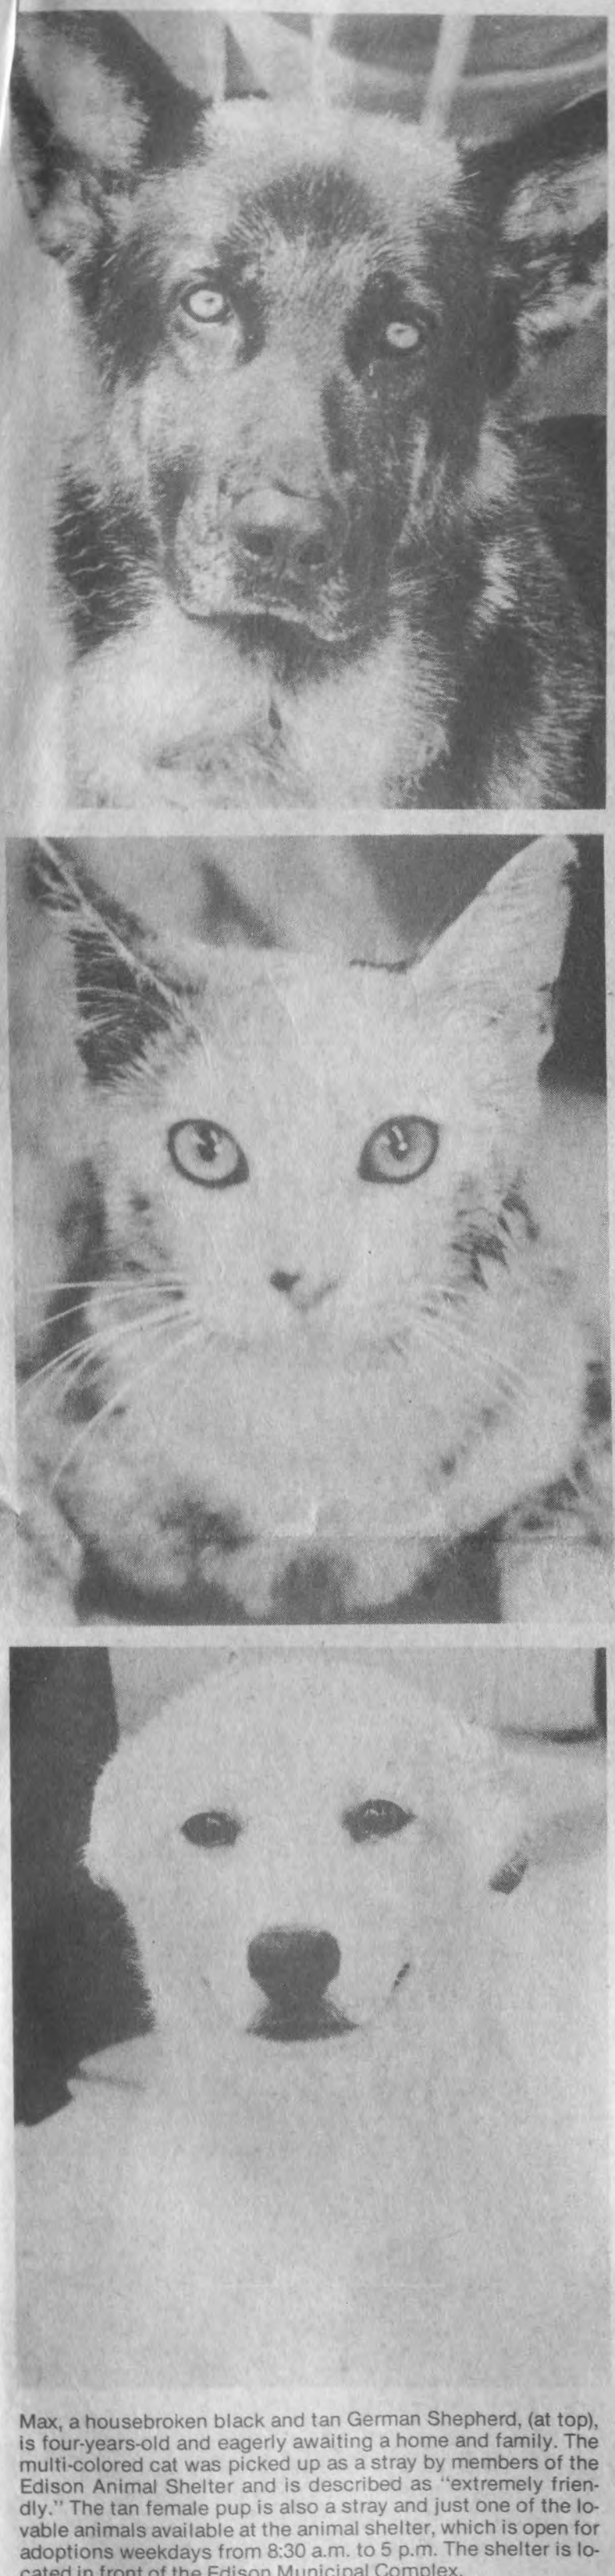

Asked if the topsoil removed stayed in Edison, Lund replied that he didn't know.

One resident who appeared at a recent Township Council meeting informed the council that Weingarten cut down a "forest" of 40- to 70-foot trees that was supposed to act as a buffer between the proposed office buildings and the adjacent residential neighborhood. Other residents said that drainage problems have also increased since the land was cleared.

Apartment fire causes damage

EDISON — Damage to the kitchen and part of the ceiling resulted from a fire June 14 at a Koster Boulevard apartment.

According to Fire Captain Robert Coleman, the kitchen cabinets were heavily damaged and the kitchen area heavily charred. The ceiling in the dining room also was charred near the doorway to the kitchen.

Max, a housebroken black and tan German Shepherd, (at top), is four-years-old and eagerly awaiting a home and family. The multi-colored cat was picked up as a stray by members of the Edison Animal Shelter and is described as "extremely friendly." The tan female pup is also a stray and just one of the lovable animals available at the animal shelter, which is open for adoptions weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The shelter is located in front of the Edison Municipal Complex.

Two youngsters found with needles

EDISON — A six-year-old from Aldrich Drive and her 11-year-old friend were taken to John F. Kennedy Medical Center Friday after injuring themselves with needles they found in a wooded area between the Clara Barton apartments and a doctor's office at 776 Woodbridge Avenue, police said.

Patrolman David Orosz reported that the dumpster could be easily reached through a damaged stockade fence that surrounds the doctor's property on Amboy Avenue. Other needles were found in the dumpster sealed inside a plastic bag.

Police said township health officer John Grun visited the site and found no health violations, however, the purchase of a compactor with a lock was suggested.

Orosz said the pair were playing with seven "vacutainer" needles, used in the extraction of blood. Police surmised that older children may have discovered the needles after picking through the dumpster and then dropped them in the woods.

The two girls reportedly stuck the needles in their fingers and arms. They were treated and released.

Clara Barton edges Edison

Sports

LOU DONOVAN, a Metuchen High School product, delivers a pitch to the plate for Clara Barton during his team's 3-2 Middlesex County American Legion baseball victory over cross-town rival Edison Tuesday evening at Edison High School.

By JOE KING

EDISON— If you showed up late to the American Legion game played between Clara Barton and Edison Tuesday evening, don't worry. You did not miss much.

In fact, if you showed up after the sixth inning, then you saw the whole game between the two rival teams.

That is the kind of game it was at the Edison High School field, as Clara Barton scored twice in the top of the seventh inning to squeak out a 3-2 win over Edison (Father and Son Post).

The winner for Clara Barton (3-3) was Lou Donovan, a Metuchen High School standout, who pitched a brilliant game to lift his record to 2-0 on the season. Donovan pitched seven innings, scattering five hits, while walking two and fanning two. The righthander allowed a base hit in the first inning, and then held Edison hitless until the sixth inning.

TAKING THE loss for Edison (4-2) was Howard Forman, who also pitched an equally brilliant game. With the lose Forman's record dropped to a respectable 4-2 for the year. The smoke-thrower pitched seven innings, allowing six hits, while walking three, and whiffing ten. Forman dominated the early innings as he struck out six batters over the first three innings.

In fact, both pitchers were so overpowering that neither team managed a hit after the first inning until Clara Barton's Rob Kole chopped an infield single in the top of the fourth inning.

After the game, both Barton coach Tony Pilone and Edison assistant coach Jim Wiegartner had nothing but praise for their respective pitchers.

"Lou pitched an excellent game," Pilone said. "He was ahead of the hitters and he used his fastball as a waste pitch and got the curve over for strikes.

"Their kid pitched well and we did not hit the ball well," Wiegartner said. "But Howard also pitched well and I felt that he threw an excellent ballgame."

With Forman and Donovan pitching the way they were, it was no wonder that the game remained scoreless until the top of the sixth inning when Clara Barton broke through with a run.

After Forman caught Clara Barton catcher Drew Kirshner looking on a magnificent hook for the first out, he walked first baseman Billy Bandola after he had a 1-2 count on him. Bandola advanced to second on a passed ball and stayed there as teammate and designated hitter Rupesh Shah went down on strikes, giving Forman nine strikeouts on the day.

With Bandola at second and two out, Barton rightfielder Billy Healy laced a single to left. Edison leftfielder Todd Forman made a strong throw home, but it was cutoff by first baseman Ben Lund, who threw to second to nail Healy, who was trying to advance on the throw. However the run did count to give CB a 1-0 lead late in the game.

After a drought of offense by both teams in the early going, Edison scored two of their own runs to take a 2-1 lead in their half of the sixth inning.

After Todd Forman popped out to the catcher, Shawn Brown, who replaced Rudy Innocenti in the fifth inning for Edison, smoked a single to left. After second baseman Pete Ulosas popped to rightfield for the second out of the inning, Brown swiped second and came around to score on a single to center by Lund to knot the game at one.

HOWEVER, EDISON was not done because the next two batters hit Donovan hard. With Lund on second due to the throw home on his single, third baseman Jeff Kavarski hit a laserbeam single that sizzled into left, moving Lund to third. With runners on the corners and two out, designated hitter Bob Birga ripped a single to left, scoring Lund to give Edison a 2-1 lead. Donovan escaped further damage when shortstop Barry Szarvas grounded to second for the third out.

Now it was Barton's turn to come back in the top of the seventh inning and that is exactly what they did, as they took a 3-2 lead.

Kole started things off for Barton with a single up the middle. After being replaced by pinch-runner Tony Newsome, second baseman Sean Mills stepped up to the plate. Mills delivered a run-scoring triple deep to the rightfield gap to tie the game at two.

With none out, Edison had its infield in for a play at the plate. But shortstop Charle McCann ended that idea with a clean single in the hole between second and first to score Mills and put Barton up for good by a count of 3-2.

Edison went in order in the bottom of the seventh on a fly ball and two ground outs to give Donovan and Clara Barton a hard-fought one run victory.

Complementing their pitcher's fine performances was some sure-handed defensive plays by both teams.

"We played very well defensively," Pilone said. "When a team makes no errors or mistakes they are very tough to beat.

"But we have a long way to go. We lost Mike Pfeifer and Steve Molnar and that really hurts us," Pilone added.

"Our defense was excellent," Wiegartner said. "It was that timely triple that we could do nothing about. It was a nice shot."

Edison, J.P. Stevens Which was better?

By STEVE SMITH

So what do you think? Which high school softball team was better during the 1988 season- Edison or J.P. Stevens?

It's a topic that undoubtedly has caused some debate in the township of Edison.

With good reason.

SOLID CASES could be made for both squads. Edison, the defending Group 4 state champions, finished with an impressive 20-2 record, including a berth in the Group 4 state semifinals before losing to Cherokee, won the Red Division crown, and defeated their cross-town rivals three times this year in head-to-head competition (by scores of 6-2, 4-1, and 9-6 in the Central Jersey, Group 4 sectional final.

On the other hand, though, the Hawks enjoyed the first 20-win camapign in school history and finished play with a solid 21-5 mark. Despite losing to the Eagles three times, J.P. Stevens captured the Greater Middlesex Conference Softball Tournament, which, arguably, might make Pete Catenacci's squad lay claim to being the top team in the GMC- based on winning the prestigious 16-team tourney. Then again, the Eagles did win all three games between the two powerhouses. Which is more important? That, of course, is open to debate.

Although area fans could argue back and forth as to which team may have been superior this spring, the real point is that high school softball is alive and well in Edison these days. Both teams return most of their starters next year, and there is certainly no reason to think that both contingents won't be battling for GMC and state supremacy again next year.

They're both that good. And with a youth softball powerhouse like the Edison Angels supplying some talented players that both Edison coach Ken Bjornsen and Catenacci can help further develop, it appears that we've reached the golden age of high school softball in Edison Township.

Here is a look at a few returning standouts for both teams, players that will be counted on heavily next year:

Edison

Debbie Madi (P): The junior righthander compiled an impressive 11-2 record and 0.92 earned run average this season, and struck out 76 batters in 83 innings. Madi also had pinpoint control, walking just 10 all year long. During her career, Madi owns an awesome 31-4 record, with 27 walks and 233 strikeouts in 228 innings. She also hurled two perfect games this year.

Sheri Quinn (2B): Quinn, a junior, was the conference's top power hitter, setting a new school record with 10 homers, while driving in 37 runs and compiling a stellar .507 average. She also was solid defensively, anchoring the right side of the Eagles' infield.

Debbi Gibney (SS-1B): "Miss Versatilty" could best describe this junior, who began the season at shortstop, then moved to first base when a team injury forced her to play there- which she handled with flying colors. And she could hit. Gibney belted .500, scored a team-high 37 runs, and drove in 27 more. She also walked 20 times and fanned just twice in 72 at-bats.

Michelle Furze (P-DH): The second half of the two-headed pitching monster (along with Madi) that terrified opposing batters, Furze completed her sophomore campaign with a 9-0 slate, a miniscule 0.48 ERA, struck out 100, and walked 27 in 58 innings of work. Included in her efforts were a pair of no-hitters and three one-hitters.

J.P. Stevens

Bernadette Adams (SS): The gifted junior could beat you in three ways- with her bat, glove, and feet. Adams set a Hawks' record this year with a .543 average and 44 hits, while also tying the single-season and career record for triples with five. She also swiped 17 bases in 20 attempts to extend her school record with 44 career thefts. Adams was also a smooth shortstop, and often made difficult plays look routine.

Kris Kraska (OF): In her first-full varsity campaign, the sophomore center fielder enjoyed a solid season with a .468 average, 27 RBI, and 32 runs scored, and also stole 17 bases in 18 attempts. Her play in the outfield also aided the Hawks' first 20-win season.

Other returning Hawks to keep an eye on include: Maria Riggi, Elisa LaVecchia, Danielle Morale, and Janis Baumgartner, among others.

Now that the final curtain has dropped on another memorable spring campaign, let's take a look at the GMC's final regular season baseball and softball standings:

Baseball

Red Division: Madison Central (12-1), St. Joseph's (9-5), Sayreville (7-6), Edison (7-7), Woodbridge (7-7), J.P. Stevens (6-8),

Clara Barton legioners drop slugfest

By JOE KING

PISCATAWAY— With the way the Piscataway American Legion baseball team has been playing of late, don't be surprised when you see coach Joe Carey on the set of a Rolaids commercial getting acting tips from Davey Johnson.

Why? Just ask a very nervous Joe Carey.

"This is our third game that we had an early lead and started to fall apart," Carey said.

However, Piscataway held things together just long enough to squeak out a hard fought 10-9 win over Clara Barton under the lights at Jack McMahon field last Friday night.

The victory boosted Piscataway's record to 3-2, while Clara Barton slipped to 2-2.

THE WINNER in the game was Bruce Spaulding, who came into relieve starter Rhman Turner. Spaulding pitched three and 2/3 innings to pick up the win and raise his record to 1-0 on the young season. The stocky righthander allowed only three hits, while striking out one and walking none.

Taking the loss on the hill for Clara Barton was southpaw Kevin Dinuzzo (0-1). Dinuzzo lasted only one and 1/3 of an inning, giving up nine hits while walking two and fanning none. Righthander Dave Marzano came in to pitch the rest of the game for Clara Barton.

Things got going early for Clara Barton as they threatened to score in their first at-bat against Turner.

After second baseman Sean Mills popped to second for the first out, shortstop Charles McCann stepped up and cracked a base hit. Next up was centerfielder Dave Marzano, who singled past a diving Brian Pray at first, putting McCann, who had stolen second base, on third with only one out. Marzano then stole second as well to put runners in scoring position with only one out.

However, Turner bared down to get the next two outs on a hard line drive to second baseman Steve Stivala, a South Plainfield High product, and a called strike three on CB first baseman Billy Bandola to end the inning without any runs scored.

Unfortunately for Dinuzzo, this was not to be the case when he took the mound to face Piscataway in its half of the frame.

Third baseman and lead off hitter Billy Babik got things rolling for Piscataway with a base hit to left. Before Babik even thought about stealing, shortstop Jack Scholz cracked an opposite field home run over the 335-foot marker to stake Piscataway to a 2-0 lead.

Stivala, a Rutgers University-bound second baseman, kept the ball rolling for Piscataway with a screaming liner in the rightfield gap that put him on second base with no outs. The struggling Dinuzzo gave up his fourth hit in a row when clean-up man Jim Parker, a former SPHS standout, hit a grounder up the middle that was cut off by Sean Mills who threw wide to first allowing Stivala to score and Parker to reach first, giving Piscataway a 3-0 lead with still no outs.

Dinuzzo got two outs on some great defensive plays by his teammates in the field.

With Parker on first, designated-hitter Kevin Walsh hit into a fielder's choice to replace Parker on first. Next up was centerfielder Bill Pachanski, who creamed a double to the right field gap. With Walsh running hard, Carey waved him home, but he was cut down at the plate on a perfect relay throw for the second out of the inning.

With Pachanski on second, first baseman Brian Pray stroked a single to center to score Pachanski from second for a 4-0 Piscataway lead. Dinuzzo got out of the inning when leftfielder John Ferenchak, the eighth batter in the inning, popped to second base.

CLARA BARTON got one of the runs back in the top of the second inning with the help of a Turner balk.

Turner got the first out of the inning on a comebacker by leftfielder Earl Wallace. Next up was designated-hitter Rupesh Shah, who singled up the hole and was then balked to second by Turner. Rob Kole then reached on an infield single, although Steve Stivala did all he could to prevent it.

Kole hit a chopper deep over the bag at second. Stivala made a great play to get to the ball and threw off balance to first about half a step after Kole arrived. On the play, Shah went to third to put runners on the corners with only one out.

Rightfielder Bill Healy hit a grounder that Scholz could not handle at short, allowing Shah to score and the runner on first to go to second. However, Turner escaped further damage when Sean Mills skied to right field and Charles McCann grounded to Stivala at second, who tagged the runner going to second, keeping Piscataway on top 4-1.

Piscataway sent Dinuzzo to the showers in its next at-bat in the bottom of the second inning as they struck for four more runs.

Rhman Turner led things off with a bad hop single over the second baseman's head. Turner went to second on a wild pitch and then went to third when Dinuzzo threw another wild pitch that Clara Barton catcher Drew Kirschner knocked down. Kirschner came up throwing, but his throw to third was wild, allowing Turner to score giving Piscataway a 5-1 lead.

After Dinuzzo recorded an out on a fly ball, Scholz laid down a bunt that Kirschner fielded in front of the plate, but the Barton backstop threw wildly to first, allowing Scholz to reach safely. Scholz then stole second base and went to third on the same play when Kirschner's throw went high over the outstretched glove of Mills.

With Scholz on third, Dinuzzo walked Stivala to put runners on the corners with only one out. Parker delivered the sixth Piscataway run with a frozen rope double that screamed into rightfield scoring Scholz and sending Stivala to third base. Kevin Walsh kept the onslaught going with another double to right, scoring Stivala and Parker to give Piscataway a seemingly comfortable 8-1 lead. That's when CB coach Mike Marzano made the switch, bringing in son Dave from center to pitch.

MARZANO DID the job as he shut down Piscataway for the rest of the inning, recording two outs on a ground ball and a fly ball to end the frame.

But Clara Barton came back again to chip away at the lead and score two more runs in the top of the third inning.

Marzano led things off with a walk for Clara Barton and wound up on second on a questionable play by Scholz at short. With Marzano running on the pitch, Drew Kirschner hit a grounder to Scholz at short. With Stivala yelling for Scholz to go to first, Scholz elected to throw to Stivala, who was covering the bag at second. But his throw was wild, allowing Marzano to go to third base and Kirschner to reach safely at first.

Bandola then stroked a grounder to Babik at third, who threw to second to force Kirschner, but Bandola reached safely at first as Marzano scored on the play to bring the score to 8-2 in favor of Piscataway.

Wallace then hit into a fielder's choice to replace Bandola at first

Innocenti's sacrifice fly lifts Edison legioners

Rudy Innocenti's run-scoring sacrifice fly to right with one out in the top of the seventh snapped a tie and gave Edison (Father and Son Post 435) an 11-10 triumph over Sayreville in a Middlesex County American Legion baseball game Monday evening in Sayreville.

The victory boosted Edison's record to 4-1.

Trailing 10-8, Bob Berga began the rally with a one-out single. After Todd Forman came in to pinch-run for Berga, Howard Forman walked. Josh Suggs also walked to load the bases, then Roy Jarrett delievered a two-run single to tie matters at 10-10, setting the stage for Innocenti's heroics.

Innocenti (2-1), a righthander, went the distance for the winners and allowed 11 hits, walked three, and fanned seven. He received plenty of offensive support from his teammates- Sean Brown, Pete Ulosas, Steve Austin, Howard Forman, Suggs, Jarrett, and Berga had two hits each, while Jeff Karuarski added a triple and an RBI. Suggs chipped in by scoring three runs, while Ulosas and Howard Forman added two runs scored apiece for Edison, which pounded out 15 hits.

Rich Yuhas went 3-for-4 with a double and two RBI for Sayreville (4-3). Bishop Ahr High school product Vinny Wenskoski chipped in with a pair of hits, as did Rich Gluchowski, in a losing cause.

Mike Wadulack (1-2) took the mound loss.

Sayreville 12, Clara Barton 6: Derek Wenskowski went 4-for-4, including a three-run homer, and drove in seven runs to power Sayreville Saturday afternoon in Edison.

Jim Haberman chipped in with a triple, two doubles, a single, three RBI, and two runs scored for the winners, who erupted for five runs in the fourth inning to open up an 11-4 advantage.

Jeff Szatkowski (2-1) earned the pitching triumph.

Metuchen High School product Earl Wallace went 2-for-4 with two RBI for Clara Barton, which had eight hits.

St. Joseph's 4, Colonia 3: Craig Munch's two-run single capped a three-run sixth inning when St. Joseph's took a 4-3 lead last Friday in Woodbridge.

Doug Alongi and Kevin Mason singled to begin the rally, then Joe Ward smacked an RBI single, scoring Alongi to cut the deficit to 3-2. Munch then drilled his two-run single to give the winners the lead for good.

Alongi went 2-for-3 on the day to improve his season's batting average to .917 (11-12). His batting performance helped winning pitcher Scott Graham improve his record to 2-0.

Vinnie Abene had a triple and one RBI for Colonia (1-4).

St. Joseph's 9, Old Bridge 6: Doug Alongi belted two hits to key a seven-run fifth inning for the winners last Thursday in Metuchen.

CB legioners drop slugfest

with two outs. Turner then walked Rupesh Shah on a 3-2 pitch, putting runners on first and second. Kole made the score 8-3 when he lined a single to score Wallace. Turner ended the threat when he whiffed Bill Healy.

After Marzano put Piscataway down in order in their half of the third, Clara Barton struck for four runs off of the tiring Turner in the top of the fourth inning.

Mills led things off with a walk on four straight pitches and went to second on a bad hop single by Charles McCann that hit off Brian Pray at first as he was fielding the ball. With runners on first and second, Marzano came up next and singled to center. Mills got a late jump off of second base and Piscataway centerfielder Bill Pachanski fired to third trying to nail Mills. However, the ball got past Babik at third and rolled out of play, allowing both Mills and McCann to score as Marzano went to second. This raised the score to 8-5 still in favor of Piscataway.

After Turner walked Kirschner, Marzano went to third on a wild pitch and Kirschner stole second to put runners in scoring postion with none out. Marzano came into score on a chop single by Bandola making the score 8-6, with Kirschner at third and Bandola on first. Piscataway recorded the first out as catcher Greg Slough cut down Bandola trying to steal second.

WITH ONE OUT and a runner on third, Wallace came up and hit a high fly ball to right field that Parker lost in the lights, allowing Wallace to reach safely at first while Kirschner scored from third to make the score 8-7 with Piscataway clinging to its one run lead.

Carey then replaced Turner with another righthander, Bruce Spaulding. The move paid off as Spaulding shut down Clara Barton for the rest of the inning to keep Piscataway in the lead.

Piscataway came back to add some much needed insurance runs in the bottom of the fourth inning off Marzano.

Scholz led off the frame with a long double high off of the right field fence. After Marzano balked Scholz to third, Steve Stivala brought him in with a hard hit single through the hole at short to give Piscataway a 9-7 lead. After Stivala stole second, he tagged and went to third on Parker's long foul out to right field. Stivala came into score on a ground out to raise Piscataway's lead to 10-7. Marzano ended the rally, getting Bill Pachanski on a deep fly ball to center field.

The fifth inning was a quiet one for both teams as neither team even threatened to score, leaving the score at 10-7 in favor of Piscataway.

However in the top of the sixth, Clara Barton managed to score twice off of Spaulding.

Marzano got things going again for Barton when he reached first on a throwing error by Scholz at short. The ball got by Pray at first and with Slough backing up Pray, Marzano slid safely into second as Slough's throw hit on the helmet. Drew Kirschner brought Marzano home on a long double to right to raise the score to 10-8.

Kirschner went to third on a ground out by Bandola on a 3-0 pitch and scored on a base hit by Earl Wallace to bring Barton within one run. Wallace stole second and stayed there as Rupesh Shah grounded out to Stivala for the second out of the inning. Rob Kole then hit a grounder that Bill Babik could not handle at third allowing Wallace to reach third and Kole to reach safely at first. However, Spaulding escaped the inning when Billy Healy popped out to center.

After another quiet at bat for Piscataway in the bottom of the sixth, Barton had one more try to tie the game or go ahead.

Mills started off the top of the seventh with a hard single over third. James McCann then laid down a bunt in front of the plate that Spaulding fielded and fired to second. The throw was wide, but Scholz made a spectacular play to stay on the bag and catch the ball to force Mills at second. Mills jumped up and argued the call and even threw his helmet to the ground, causing the umpire to toss him out of the game. Even coach Marzano argued vehemently and almost got himself tossed out of the game.

"It is something we have to live with. It is not the reason we lost the game though," Marzano said. "But it might have taken us out of the game."

So with one out and a runner on first, Dave Marzano hit a towering fly ball to right that got up the lights, causing Jim Parker to misjudge the ball, allowing McCann to reach second and Parker to first. But Piscataway got a huge break when Kirschner hit a grounder that Scholz scooped up at short and completed an unassisted double play to end the game and seal the win for Piscataway.

After the game Carey praised the play and leadership qualities of Scholz.

"Jack is a go-getter and a leader," Carey said. "He is a good man and always tries to keep the team in the game."

"I felt that we hit well, but our defense was sloppy," Carey added.

Over on the Barton bench, Marzano credited his team with a great comeback attempt.

"Our kids hit the ball well, but it is hard to come back," Marzano said. "We had the opportunities and the motivation, but we made some errors in the field early in the game that hurt us.

"We gave it a game effort. We played well after the second or third innings and did not miss anything," Marzano said.

Wire: Ex-lion tamers return to active duty

Clubland

Bill Millard

WIRE
A Bell Is a Cup
Until It Is Struck
(Enigma/Mute)

WIRE/ HETCH HETCHY, June 13 at Maxwell's, Hoboken.

Of all the bands in the London Class of '77 — punk's perishers and survivors alike — few have had a stronger influence over more great bands for a longer time than Wire. Groups from all over the spectrum, from reigning New South neo-folk champs R.E.M. to much-mourned anarcho-tech pioneers Mission of Burma, have traced their stylistic pedigrees back to Wire's groundbreaking early albums. Like Captain Beefheart or the Velvet Underground, they've never attained popular success to match their status within the industry, but they have a fiercely devoted core audience. Put on "I Am the Fly" or "Ex-Lion Tamer" at a party sometime: the turning heads won't be numerous, but they'll turn quickly and hard, and their owners will insist that you dance.

Wire's return to active duty in 1986 (they'd been ex-lion tamers themselves for several years) was great news for those who don't object to a little intellect mixed in with their feedback. They've always been an idea band, at home with emotions more complicated than lust, rage and boredom; they've extended basic punk arrangements in surprising directions without losing the rawness that separates arty punk from indulgent art-rock blather. The revived band's material, particularly on last year's LP The Ideal Copy, strikes some listeners as too radical a departure because of its heavier use of synthesizers and the smoothing-out of Colin Newman's voice from a brittle Cockney yawp to a lucid near-croon; but the same anti-romantic ironies and backdoor hooks are still there, even if the guitars don't go for the jugular as often as they did on Pink Flag and Chairs Missing. Wire's still the same great gutsy band, using the technology and rhythms of this decade as powerfully as they used those of the punk era. Their new album A Bell . . . is another strong move, sharp and upbeat and melodic.

And as tricky to interpret as anything they've ever done. Got any ideas what the album's cover art — a chipped horse's-head sculpture and a file cabinet — has to do with its Wittgensteinian title? I don't. I'll be fried in oil if I can make linear sense out of half the lyrics this band has ever written, or 90 percent of the ones on A Bell . . . They're masters of ambiguity and disconnection, stringing together phrases that connote moods and ideas (dehumanization, paranoia, cynicism, detachment, menace: the usual suspects) but pull up short of signification. I don't mind this at all, although it must be pretty infuriating to verbal literalists; if you'll grant Bob Dylan his free-association approach, you won't stumble too hard over "Kidney Bingos" or "The Queen of Ur and the King of Um." (Okay as long as the guys who sing 'em have some idea what's going on, right? And once in a while the murk clears: introducing "The Finest Drops" at Maxwell's last week, bassist Graham Lewis explained "it's about people who stay up all night," and when I read it over again . . . begorrah! He's right!) The opaqueness of most Wire songwriting isn't just a High Modernist power play: they've got the good sense not to pretend that psychology, politics, sex and work aren't confusing as hell. Using confusion, however privately, beats wishing it away and waxing moonily simplistic.

Wire also gets away with so much verbal mystery by throwing their musical ideas straight at you. They've always been sticklers for clean production, whether working with their original producer Mike Thorne or with Gareth Jones, the electronics whiz they've used since reforming; as inventive as they can get with new guitar and bass tones, they still write hooks that sound like hooks and rhythms that pound and punch and shake. There's no waffling effeteness here: just two or three chords on most songs, healthy amounts of repetition and plenty of variation in the textural details. The electropop tendencies on Ideal Copy are more pronounced here, with the emphasis on pop; "It's a Boy," "Kidney Bingos" and "Come Back in Two Halves" provide memorable vocal melodies, the sort of lines that bring out incisive, fluid phrasings from singers Newman and Lewis. (Who says years of punk-rock belting will ruin your voice?) Behind the graceful, soulful vocals, Newman and Bruce Gilbert's guitars are layered in a variety of treatments: now glassy, now biting, now ethereal, now guttural. Lewis has also developed a repertoire of unique bass sounds, flanged to generate a wobbly underwater tone. The resources of the studio aren't shown off here; they're put to work.

As you might expect, the stuff's extraordinarily hard to perform live. Although their sound has plenty of rough edges, they're all carefully engineered; it's been a long time since Wire resembled a rabble of garage punks. To their credit, their Maxwell's show — with an extra sound engineer up on stage with the band, reflecting their intense production-value fetish —avoided the twin evils that often attend live renditions of complex music (sloppy corner-cutting on one hand, spiritless technomania on the other). They seemed a bit on the tight side for the first few songs; Lewis sang his "Finest Drops" lead and his "Bingos" backup with the expression of a man fighting down severe pain, or a man who's not hearing enough vocal volume from the stage monitors. But within a few minutes they loosened up and played ferociously.

The live Wire sound deemphasizes keyboard overlays in favor of rhythmic drive and broad-range guitar innovations (Gilbert stands with his back to the crowd, keeping his work mysterious); it's not a stripped-down model of the recorded work, but a charged-up version. Robert Gotobed is the perfect minimalist, an egoless drummer who can drive the band hard with only three pieces (snare, high-hat and bass) and leave room for everyone else's contributions. Lewis, in particular, plays an incredibly percussive style of bass, using his punchy Steinberger to fill in the necessary thunder that a conventional drummer would provide with tom-toms. The material on A Bell . . . (they played almost the whole album, and almost nothing else) allows for enormous momentum, and they drove it all home, particularly "Boiling Boy," "Two Halves" and "Silk Skin Paws." Encores from Ideal Copy — "Ahead," that album's hardest-driving tune, and "Over Theirs," which gradually crowds out human-produced sounds with the inexorable pulse of electronic percussion and effects, ending the show on a great spooky note — left the crowd elated, if not sated.

It's surprising that a band with so many excellent songs in its past refuses to perform any older material; if the show had a drawback, it was the absence of anything from the brilliant early records. Fans yelled for old favorites at nearly every moment between songs (" 'Reuters'!" " 'Outdoor Miner'!" " 'Strange'!" " 'Too La-a-a-ate'!"), but Lewis announced, point-blank, that they weren't playing those anymore. Wire has decided to turn its attention entirely to the future; it's frustrating for those of us with strong old attachments, but it's probably wise in the long run, since the decision prevents the band from becoming an endless greatest-hits machine. Countless old groups revive only to recycle their ancient history, but let 'em: Iron Butterfly, the Mamas and the Papas, and Pink Floyd can tread that lonesome trail until they end up caricaturing themselves at the Club Bene. It's typical of Wire — alert, smart, unsentimental — to make a clean break, to reinvent themselves, to keep moving forward.

(One consolation for implacable Pink Flag/ Chairs Missing fans: a well-reputed Wire tribute band exists in Hoboken and frequently opens Wire's American shows. Although an unusual group named Hetch Hetchy — two basses, sometimes three, no guitar, thick keyboards, excessive Patti Smith influence on the singer, songs far too long — opened up on Monday night, Tuesday's show was to include the X-Lion Tamers — "the ideal copy band," as their posters sometimes proclaim — who play everything Wire doesn't want to play anymore. Sometimes you can have the archaic and eat it too.)

The movies of summer: formula rules, little is new

There is nothing new under the sun, at least as far as summertime movies are concerned. Just about every current film hews to a formula; some so closely they're easily mistaken for earlier movies. This is not always a bad thing: some formulas, after all, are still around because they still work.

The formula goes down easy in Big Business. The farcical storyline concocted by Dori Pierson and Marc Rubel turns around a mixup in the delivery room: two women, one a downhome type, the other your standard overly pampered rich harridan — give birth to sets of identical twins in a rural hospital. The babies, coincidentally, are given identical names that cause them to be mismatched by a nearsighted nurse just before urban heiress and country mouse go their separate ways.

Years later, the urban twins have grown into a steel-jawed corporate queen bee (Bette Midler) and her dithering sister (Lily Tomlin), who can't cope with the city. The country twins are likewise divided: the one feisty and secure in her backwoods wisdom (Tomlin), the other (Midler) yearning for a better life in a place where the men don't consider a greased hog a love offering. The film's sole purpose is to get them together (never mind how) and start the plot gears of misunderstanding and mistaken identity grinding away.

A recent American Film article described the on-set tension between Abrahams and the co-stars over characterization. Abrahams (who co-directed Airplane!, Top Secret! and Ruthless People) comes from a school of comedy that considers women good for little other than cheesecake shots and thrown spitballs; Midler and especially Tomlin held out for quirkiness and individuality over burp in your face jokes. Tomlin, in fact, had to fight Abrahams to put in the little unscripted touches that fill out her characters. That these much fought-over touches seem so innocuous — rather than sound off with the standard four-letter words, Tomlin's country hellraiser responds to corporate types by calling them snakes and crisping her fingers into two little fangs — is a testament to Hollywood's peculiarly infantile conservatism.

Nice as these touches are, they get steamrollered by Bette. There's no helping it, I suppose. Midler's appearance — that heavy jaw, those avid eyes leering over that schnozz, that body out of an R. Crumb comic strip, too much of everything — is tailor-made for stealing scenes. Whenever Bette walks into the room she drowns out Tomlin's cabaret show turns like a brass band marching past a string quartet. As in All of Me and 9 to 5, Tomlin ends up playing straight woman to a more flamboyant performer. Not that this keeps her (or Midler) from delivering the laughs. As far as summer movies go, you could do a lot worse than Big Business.

How much worse? Well there's The Presidio, a thriller that abounds in such original concepts as bumper-bashing car chases up and down the hills of San Francisco, shoot-outs in which the heroes magically gun down platoons of more numerous and better-armed villains, and wide-ranging conspiracies run by ex-military men. Gosh, it's been maybe a year since Lethal Weapon came out; surely we're all ready for another action flick in which a young hothead is cooled out and wised up by a grizzled veteran.

Except that in The Presidio the chases go on too long and the explanations for the various plot twists are cut way too short — Peter Hyams (The Star Chamber, Outland, Capricorn One) has never been a particularly gifted action director. For a while the film seems better than it has any right to be, thanks to Sean Connery's performance as the provost marshal of the San Francisco military base that gives the film its name. Mark Harmon is passable as the hothead, a former MP turned detective who harbors a grudge against Connery's overbearing martinet. The ever perky Meg Ryan plays Connery's daughter, a young hellion who falls in love with the hothead against her father's wishes. Talk about original touches!

The summer's other big action entry, Red Heat, works rather better than The Presidio even though if anything it's even less original. It is, in fact, the director Walter Hill's remake of his own 48 HRS — instead of Nick Nolte and Eddie Murphy as a cop and a convict hunting down vicious prison escapees, you get Jim Belushi and Arnold Schwarzenegger as a Chicago cop and a Soviet policeman hunting down vicious cocaine smugglers from the U.S.S.R.

The action boils down to glares, guns and gore; where 48 HRS climaxed with a car chasing a bus, this one peaks with a bus chasing a bus. (Never let it be said Walter Hill failed to exhibit artistic growth.) No girls allowed, needless to say; the chief villain has a lovely wife who appears in a number of scenes, but the closest Red Heat gets to real sexual feeling is an early scene in which a loincloth-clad Schwarzenegger, muscles bulging every which way, strides into a Russian sauna and grinds a hot coal in his fist before duking it out with his equally hypertrophic quarry. Red Heat works, though, because the macho smart aleck dialogue is often very funny, and Schwarzenegger is playing a role almost as well-tailored as the one in The Terminator —still the one Arnold movie to grab if you're only grabbing one. Stallone may have the iron-pumping routine down pat, but could use a few lessons from the Austrian on how to make a Gigantor physique and funny accent seem cool.

Deep Focus

Steven Hart

Bette Midler hears an interesting proposition from the man of her dreams in Big Business.

Auditions will be held Sunday, July 10, and Monday, July 11, at 8 p.m. each night in the Circle Playhouse, 416 Victoria Avenue.

For further information, call the theater at 968-7555.

Try something different for dinner this week!!! The Warsaw cafe is your alternative to the Standard faire to which you've become accustomed. The Polish dishes we specialize in are not exotic foods. They're treats like homemade pierogies and stuffed cabbage that you've probably had before but rarely find in any restaurant. If you're more timid, that's fine too. We have a good selection of entrees for any taste. Chef Anna Larsen oversees the cooking of all dishes so you're assured a homemade flavor with a consistent degree of quality.
Although we're only a half mile off Rt. 206 in Hillsborough, we're not easy to find. If you're going south on 206, make a left at the Mobil Station just past K-Mart. Going north, turn right after Triangle Road . . . we're at the Polish Falcon Camp a half mile down on Falcon Rd., left hand side. Confused?? Call 874-4727 for directions.
Were moderately priced (entrees $4.95-10.25) and welcome casual attire, so you can bring the whole family. The atmosphere is Eastern European but we all speak English and you don't need a passport or Visa to enter. Stop by and join us for dinner. SMACZNEGO (That's Bon Appetit in Polish)!!!!!!

Storage shed 'no problem'

PISCATAWAY — Another gripping Board of Adjustment meeting ended Tuesday night with a Baldwin Street man being told he may keep his storage shed in its present location, which violates front- and side yard setback requirements for the area.

The applicant, Paul LaFata of 425 Baldwin Street, explained that he built the shed to "make use of dead space between the house and fence" and keep his two small children from running around in the spot.

"I constructed the shed and a few weeks later I was informed that I was in violation of several ordinances," LaFata told the board.

Planning supervisor Lenore Slothower noted "really doesn't appear to be a problem at all" in terms of appearance or aesthetic impact on the neighborhood.

Board member Paul Carlton seconded the judgment.

"If this one here is similar to the others on Baldwin Street — and I think so, 'cause they've all been here — then I think it looks nice and I have no problem with it," he said.

The other board members agreed.

Neighbors prevail on through street

EDISON —Property owners in the Nicholson Avenue area have succeeded in convincing the Planning Board that Revere Boulevard should not become a through street connecting Nicholson and and McKinley Avenue.

At last week's meeting the board gave approval to plans that show Revere ending in a cul-de-sac. It will serve a six-home development to be constructed by Linden builder Albert Pecker.

Originally, the board's site plan committee had directed that Revere would have to be cut through for the entire length from McKinley to Nicholson. It is the opinion of some board members and especially chairman Val Meszaros that North Edison has too many cul-de-sacs and deadend roads, which cause traffic problems because of the limited number of connecting streets on which to travel through the area.

However, at last month's public hearing on the Pecker development, neighborhood residents were unanimous in their opposition to having Revere opened up and Pecker was back last week with revised plans showing Revere will end in a cul-de-sac.

As a stipulation of approval, Pecker was directed to install curbs on both sides of the cul-de-sac even though his property fronts on only one side.

Pecker contended that this is "in excess" of what is necessary but he was told by township engineer William Lund that "historically" developers have been required to put in curbs on both sides of a new road even though they own property on only one side.

If curbs are not installed on both sides, Meszaros added, the eventual result will be erosion of the pavement on the uncurbed side.

The land that Pecker is developing was purchased from the township at public auction. All of the proposed six lots exceed the RBB zone's minimum requirement of 10,000 square feet.

Borough Council lauds park design

METUCHEN —The Borough Council approved a resolution at Monday night's meeting for Memorial Park in which it recognized the Memorial Park Commission and the architect who helped redesign the park as a tribute to men who sacrificed their lives to defend their country.

Memorial Park Commission chairman Joe Miciak described the red brick columns, low stone walls and wooden trellises that will punctuate the park. He said the restful oasis will include "Veteran's Square," four squares that represent the four wars in which soldiers were lost.

Blue flagstone steps will lead to the "Oval of Contemplation," which will feature six benches upon which residents can sit to think of the men who have given their lives in the wars.

Columns will surround a memorial or sanctuary area and low stone walls will create a path to the "Grove of Remembrance," referred to in a summary of the park plan prepared by architect Sean Reilly as "the most significant space." The grove will honor each of the 41 men who have died in the wars by the planting of individual honey locust trees and the placement of stone markers inscribed with each individual's name.

"Low stone walls suggest ruins and the foundation of something which no longer exists," Miciak continued. "Stone columns at the entrance to the grove suggest a gateway to another world. The tightly spaced trees allude to a cemetary and remind us of the loss of life created by war. The trees also express life, in hope that their death was not in vain."

Reilly's report also revealed that the white picket fences and wooden trellises to be used in the park represent the fact that "Metuchen was home to these boys" and noted that the sequence of spaces ends at the garden, which represents peace. The flowers in the garden will be changed seasonallly.

"To perceive a death is difficult," Miciak continued, reading Reilly's words. "To comprehend the scale of death created by war is impossible. The new memorial honors the individuals and reminds us of the great loss of life created by war. That is the legacy we inherit. The need to remember the lessons of war grows as the generations of survivors dwindle."

Councilman Ed O'Brien thanked the park commission for taking on such a monumental task and called the task a "wonderful community project."

"For a small towm, this is a very ambitious undertaking," said Mayor John Wiley Jr. "It reflects pride in the community."

The mayor referred to the project as "a profound statement we can pass on to generations to come" and added that much work still needs to be done, including the task of fundraising.

Councilwoman Pam Brown said "some day in the future this will be an auspicious day" and added that Reilly's "most beautiful description" of the park is something everyone in the borugh would be happy and moved to read.

The council's resolution, read aloud by Wiley, resolved that the park commission "be publicly recognized for its dedication toward building a permanent monument that will stand before us and future generations, recognizing those who gave their lives, have defended our land, our integrity and our liberty and acknowledging the veterans who have paid the ultimate sacrifice for all Americans."

"Sean E. Reilly A.I.A. of the borough of Metuchen," Wiley read, "has designed the Metuchen Memorial park to be a fitting memorial to these men, dedicating his time, effort and professional abilities toward the intended accomplishments of the public monument."

Addition seen 'too immense'

METUCHEN — "Too immense" was how Zoning Board of Adjustment members described a proposal at a recent meeting for an addition onto the Winhold Realty building at the corner of Amboy and Pierson avenues.

It is the reason why the board told Dorothy Winhold to return with a scaled-down plan for an expansion of the former single family home she had purchased last year for the relocation of her real estate business.

Board member Carol Lerner remarked that the proposed addition, which would extend 76 feet from the rear of the building, would result in the overall appearance of a "town hall" and commented that the board's intent was to keep office conversions as residential looking possible.

"I'm disturbed about the size," she commented. "I think this will look like a very big white wall" along Pierson Avenue.

Architect Gary Wasko argued that he did not find his plan "massive" but board members insisted that some square footage be cut from the proposed addition. One suggestion entailed cutting 600 square feet, or the equivalent of three parking spaces, from the proposed building. This would result in a structure 64-feet in length and would give the real estate operation 19 parking spaces in accordance with ordinance requirements.

Mrs. Winhold told the board the addition was needed because the existing rooms are "boxy and small" and "not condusive to easy access and easy flow."

"When you come in to the building, you walk in to the kitchen," she said. "That's not exactly attractive for a real estate business."

Mrs. Winhold added that there is only one conference room for private conversations with clients and that this also houses the copy machine. "We want to spread out a little," she commented. "We can't give people privacy anymore."

The building's basement, she said, leaks and "smells of mildew." The addition would eliminate the need to use the basement.

"When I bought the building, I really believed we could make do," she said. "I honestly thought we could use the basement."

"Have you ever thought of waterproofing the basement?" asked board member Bill Pitzner.

Mrs. Winhold replied that she received estimates for French drains, but added that the cost was "so prohibitive" and that the problem with space on the first and second floors would still not be solved.

After hearing engineering testimony which touched on the usual areas of landscaping and lighting in the parking lot, the board asked Mrs. Winhold return at a future date with revised plans indicating a smaller building.

Former garage approved as parttime CPA office

EDISON — Dr. Sudha Grover whose zoning problems date back to 1978 when he was granted a variance to establish a medical office in what then was a residential zone on Oak Tree Road has finally gotten everything straightened out.

Grover ran into trouble when he replaced a garage at the rear of the building housing his office. He had been given permission by the Board of Adjustment to build a garage larger than the original but the finished structure exceeded even the expanded dimensions.

The garage was to be used for the storage of records but neighbors who peppered the zoning office with complaints didn't see why a storage structure needed a glass front and suspected it was being used as an office.

The zone since has been changed from RB residential to OS (office-service) and at last week's Planning Board meeting Grover, an orthopedic surgeon, was given site plan approval to use the garage as an office.

Variances also were given for insufficient parking spaces and the width of a buffer zone.

Dr. Grover's attorney, Jay Arbeiter, told the board that the new office will be used for no more than 12 hours a week by Dr. Grover's brother, who is a certified public accountant. At Arbeiter's request. Grover testified under oath that this would be the case.

The board was told by Arbeiter that Dr. Grover also conducts a practice in Sayreville and uses the medical office on the front of the property only two and a half days a week.

Permission was given to the CPA brother to mount a small sign on the door of the rear office so his clients can find him.

Rings taken in burglary

EDISON — A Sturgis Road house was the target June 14 of a burglar who reportedly walked into the house unnoticed and left with jewelry valued at $1,000.

According to Patrolmen Adam Tietchen and Joseph Perrotte, Juanita Drobach was working in her garden and had gone out to the back of the house when she found a person in the living room walking out the front door.

When Mrs. Drobach asked what that person was doing, the response was that the person was looking for a doctor.

It was then that Mrs. Drobach found her jewelry box and pocketbook on the dining room table and three 14-karat gold rings, valued at about $1,000, missing along with $100 in cash. Both the jewelry box and pocketbook were said to have been removed from a bedroom.

The alleged burglar, who reportedly fled toward Route 27, was described as about 5'2" with dark skin, wearing tan shorts.

Sergeant Kenneth Zawrotniak and Patrolmen Robert Dudash and Edward Kronseder also responded.

Shed can stay, applicant told

PISCATAWAY — A rather uneventful Board of Adjustment special meeting climaxed Tuesday night with approximately 10 minutes of testimony on a variance application for a backyard shed.

Applicant Thomas Miceli of 121 Middlesex Avenue was permitted to leave his metal shed where it is now, four feet within the eight-foot rear-y and side-yard setback areas required by the zoning ordinance.

Miceli explained that a wood shed was in the same spot when he purchased the property in 1975.

"Last year I replaced it with a metal one, not knowing there was anything wrong with it," he said, noting that the wood enclosure had been built atop a concrete slab, which only added to his initial sense of security.

Zoning officer Stephen Piluso pointed out that a 1976 land survey submitted by the applicant did, in fact, show a shed in that location.

"We see photographs of sheds that are one foot from the property line," observed board member Paul Carlton. "At least in this case it's four feet, on an existing slab. I have no problems with this."

The other board members agreed.

ABOUT ANTIQUES
By Diane and Ron Gilch

Limited Editions

There must be something in our nature which causes us to be collectors. Americans accumulate everything from automobiles to toy zebras.

Manufacturers realize this and continually offer new things to collect. Television shopping channels and the Sunday papers are constantly hawking the latest items.

Limited editions of figurines and plates seem to be the most popular.

Collecting these can be fun, but don't expect many of them to be investments. In later years most of the limited editions sell at or below the issue price. Many dealers are simply not interested and those that are pay 50% or less of current retail.

Would-be collectors looking for investments should first do serious research. Local libraries contain objective information about the financial performance of collectibles and limited editions. (Beware of information published by manufacturers' associations which state artificially high prices.)

Weichert honors its Hillsborough office

The Hillsborough/Montgomery office of Weichert, Realtors recently captured five 1987 year end regional awards. The presentation took place at the Sheraton Tara Hotel in Parsippany.

Office manager, Beverly Perkins said, "Every associate in our office contributed to these awards by providing their customers with the best service possible. Our success can be attributed to the professionalism of our associates and their perseverance in today's real estate market." The awards the Hillsborough/Montgomery office received were in the following categories: Highest number of sales, resales, sales of Weichert, Realtor listings, listings sold and combined units.

Weichert, Realtors which operates over 240 offices in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Delaware, provides a full range of real estate services. These include: mortgage, moving, insurance, corporate relocation, property management, and equity advance services. In addition, the company offers pre-licensing sales person and broker education.

Founded by James Weichert in 1969 in Chatham, New Jersey, Weichert, Realtors, is the largest independent residential real estate company in the United States, according to Deloitte, Haskins & Sells, the national accounting firm. The company had sales in excess of $9 billion for 1987.

Re/Max named as agency for Wedgewood

Wedgewood Homes, Inc. has selected RE/MAX of Clinton to market its exclusive custom homes on Anthony Road in Lebanon Township.

"We wanted someone who could present our homes in the context of beautiful Hunterdon County. We chose a local office and representative, Alice Oldford, who will be sensitive to the buyers needs and who will help the buyer become familiar with the services, shops and recreation available in the area," said Walt Hoeler, President of Wedgewood Homes.

Designed by Washington Architecture Group of Morristown, each custom home combines old-fashioned charm with modern design and conveniences. All models include extra large family rooms, kitchens and bedrooms in 3,000 to 3,500 square feet. The kitchens are equipped with custom Quaker Maid cabinets, and each master suite includes whirlpool with separate shower. Each buyer will have a selection of wall-to-wall carpet, ceramic tile for the foyer, and kitchen design.

"We had family living in mind when we chose these lovely lots convenient to shopping, Spruce Run and Round Valley recreation areas, and major highways," Hoehler added.

RE/MAX of Clinton is located at the HNB Building, Route 31, in Lebanon.
