SCANDAL LANE. By Mrs. M. A. KENNEDY.

It is not on the sign-board, Sir,
Or in the town directory,
Or in the town directory,
The map or railroad guide;
And when you pump your neighbor, Sir,
You pump about in vain,
For no one e'er acknowledged yet
He lived in Scandal Lane.
It is a fearful neighborhood,
So secret and so sly;
Although the tenants oftentimes
Insult the rich and high,
I'm told they've even conspired,
And when they die or sup,
By way of change they'll turn about,
And eat each other up.
They most prefer the youthful, Sir,
The beautiful and rare;
They greed up character and all,
And call it wholesome fare!
And yield the bright white wine,
They heed not cries of pain;
Then very deeply cognate,
They live in Scandal Lane.
If you should chance to dine with them,
Fray never to be derived,
When they seem meet the loom friends,
They're least to be believed;
Their claws are sheathed in velvet, Sir,
Their teeth are hid by smiles,
And words that fall the sweetest,
Who falls behind their wiles!
When they have flung out their prey,
They make a cat-like spring;
Or hug their like the serpent, ere
They strike the fatal sting!
And then they wash their guilty hands,
But don't efface the stain,
These very greedy household
That live in Scandal Lane.

American Slang.

The utter ignorance of the English of the signification of American slang expressions, often causes some curious scenes among them and Yankee buyers in England, who seem to think that because their language generally is understood, all their American idioms will be. An expert buyer, junior partner in one of our large American firms, at a recent visit to his correspondent in an English manufacturing city, was complimented by the senior partner of the English house, who insisted on personally showing goods to his American purchaser. 'There sir,' said Dowles, throwing out a roll of goods, 'what do you think of that?' 'Oh, that's played out,' said the American. 'It's what?' said Ball. 'It's played, I tell you,' said the customer. 'Played, oh! really; we call it played, 'yar in England; but this isn't played, played, you know.' 'No,' said Yankee, 'I don't mean played, I mean 'er say it's 'gone up.' 'Oh, no,' said Britisher, 'not at all; it has not gone up—quite the contrary. We have taken off from the price.'

'Over the left, it's three-pence too high, now.'

'No doubt of it, but our neighbors you know on the left are not manufacturers, you know.'

'Very likely; but I don't care to be 'stuck' when I get home.'

'Really! Most extraordinary! Is it as dangerous in New York as the newspapers say?'

'Yes, but I don't want these goods,—I've got some already that 'will knock the spots out of 'em.'

'But, my dear sir, there's no spots on the goods, I assure yah. They are perfect.'

'Well, well, suppose we 'switch off' on these goods and try something else.'

'Certainly!' and the Englishman, to the infinite amusement of the American's friend, called a clerk with a whip-broom, and directed him to 'switch off' any dirt he could find, while he proceeded to show something else.

'There,' said the Englishman, triumphantly, spreading out another fabric, 'there's the handsomest piece of goods in England, 'arf a guinea a yard.'

'I can't see it,' said his customer.

'Can't see it?' why you are looking right at it; however, suppose you try the light of this window.'

'No, I don't mean that,' said the American, 'I haven't got the 'stamps' for such goods as that.'

'Stamps!' no stamps required but a bill stamp, which we are happy to furnish.'

This misunderstanding might have continued longer, had not one of the younger members of the house, seeing his senior's perplexity, rescued the American and 'put him through' after the manner of his countrymen.

A DOG SACRIFICES HIMSELF TO HAVE HIS DRUNKEN MASTER.

A gentleman living in Wauwatosa related to us the following incident, for the truth of which he vouches: One day last week a man went to a saloon, as it was his dully custom, to drink, and meeting boon companions, remained with them till late at night, when he started to go home. Overcome by the liquor he had drunk, the man laid down on the railroad track and went to sleep. A faithful dog that had followed the man, stood and watched over him until the whistle of a locomotive in the distance showed that a freight train was approaching. The dog, fully aware of the danger imminent to his master, tried to arouse the drunken man, and tore his clothes badly in the attempt. Unable to awake the sleeper the dog took the man by the shoulder and fairly dragged him from the track, just as the train came on. The man was saved, but the poor dog that had so faithfully protected the master he loved, was struck by the cow-catcher and smashed to pieces. When the man recovered his senses it was found that his dog was bitten in several places by the dog, in the strong effort made by the animal to save his life. The next day the man gathered up the pieces of the faithful animal and buried them, and he was so fully impressed by the remarkably narrow escape from death that he has resolved not to get drunk again.—Wisconsin.

The lady who took everybody's eye must have a lot of 'em.

What light could not possibly be seen in a dark room? An Israelite.

It is said that the prettiest girls in Salt Lake City usually marry Young.

What mechanical contrivance do the fair bathers at Long Branch resemble? Driving bell(s).

The man who avoids matrimony on account of the cares of worldly life, is like one who would have his legs amputated to save his toes from corns.

'Speaking of shaving,' said a pretty girl to an undergraduate old bachelor, 'I should think that a pair of handsome eyes would be the best mirror to shave by.' 'You,' growled the wretch, 'and many a poor fellow has been shaved by them.'

When is heretics treated contemptuously? When we make light of it.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MARCH 23d.
The entertainment by the Teachers and Pupils of the Institute passed off in a manner that reflected much credit upon the institution. Miss Kellogg was called out a second time, and sang "Topping at the gate." Alexander Bertsch, so small that he had to be lifted on the piano stool, was honored for an instrumental Solo, and he and his father, Prof. Bertsch, played a Duett. Instead of the song, "Robin" by Miss Gertrude Campbell, she played an instrumental solo. Little May Moon was the "star" of the evening, completely carrying away the audience by her powers of song and imitation, and was twice compelled to sing another song. With these exceptions, the programme was as first ordered, and as we give it below.
