THE TOAST.

The toast is o'er! Now trimming wine
Is lordly cup to omen to chide
Before each eager guest,
And dimes the crowded hall,
As deep as when the herald's call
Thrills in the royal breast.

Then up arose the noble host,
And smiling, cried, "A toast! a toast!
To all our ladies fair;
Here, before all, I pledge the name
Of Statton's proud and beautiful dame—
The Lady Godemare!"

Then to his feet each gallant sprung,
And joyous was the shout that rung
As Stanley gave the word;
And every cup was raised on high,
Nor ceased the loud and glad cry,
"Till Stanley's voice was heard.
"Enough, enough," he smiling said,
And lustily bent his hoary head,
"That all may have their due,
Now each in turn must play his part,
And pledge the lady of his heart,
Like gallant knight and true!"

Then one by one each guest sprung up,
And drained in turn the brimming cup,
And named the loved one's name;
And each, as hand on high he raised,
His lady's name on beauty praised,
Her constancy and fame.

'Tis now St. Leon's turn to rise;
Up he sprang, and deep cast eyes—
A gallant knight in he;
Envied by some, admired by all,
Far famed in noble's tower and hall,
The tower of chivalry.

St. Leon raised his sparkling eye,
And lifted the sparkling cup on high:
"I drink to you," he said,
"Whose long, long, long, long, long, long,
Deep graven on this grateful heart,
'Till memory be dead.

"To one whose love for me shall last
When lighter passions long have passed,
So holy 'tis and true;
To one whose love hath longer dwelt,
More deeply fixed, more heartily felt,
Than any pledged by you."

Each guest upstart at the word,
And laid a hand upon his sword,
With fury-flashing eye;
And Stanley said: "We crave the name,
Proud knight, of this most peerless dame,
Whose love you count so high."

St. Leon paused, as if he would
Not breathe her name in careless mood
Thus lightly to another;
Then bent his noble head, as though
To give that word the reverence due,
And gently said, "My Morana!"

The Green Spot.

The late Noah Winslow was fond of telling the following incident of his mercantile life, and he never closed the narration but with swimming eyes:
During the financial crisis and crash of 1857, when heavy men were sinking all around us, and banks were tottering, our home became alarmed in view of the condition of its own affairs.

The partners—three of us, of whom I was the senior—met in our private office for consultation. Our junior had made a careful inventory of everything—of his bills receivable and bills payable, and his report was, that twenty thousand dollars ready money to be held through pressure, would save us. Without that we must go by the board—the result was inevitable. I went out upon the street, and among my friends, but in vain.

Two whole days I strove and begged, and then returned to the counting-house in despair. I sat at my desk, expecting every moment to hear our junior sounding the terrible words, "our paper is protested!" when a gentleman entered my department unannounced. I could not locate him nor call him to my mind any way.

"Mr. Winslow," he said, taking a seat at the end of my desk, "I hear you are in need of money."

The very face of the man inspired me with confidence, and I told him how I was situated.

"Make your individual note for one year, without interest, for twenty thousand dollars, for that amount."

While I sat gazing upon him in speechless astonishment, he continued:

"You don't remember me; but I remember you. I remember when you were a member of the Superintending School Committee of Bradford. I was a boy in the village school. My father was dead; my mother was poor; and I was but a shabbily clad child, though clean. When our class came out on examination day, you asked the questions. I fauced you would praise and pet the children of rich and fortunate parents, and pass me by.

"But it was not as I thought. In the end you passed by all the others, and came to me. You laid your hand on my head, and told me I did very well indeed; and then you told me I could do better still if I would try. You told me the way to honor and renown was open to all alike, no one had a free pass. All I had to do was to be resolved and push on. That, sir, was the turning point of my life. From that hour my soul was inspired, and I have never reached a great good without blessing you in my heart. I have prospered and am wealthy; and now I offer you but a poor return for the soul-wealth you gave me in that by-gone time."

"I took the check," said Winslow, "and drew the gold; and our house was saved. And when, at the end of the year," he added, "do you suppose I found my note? In possession," he said, with streaming eyes, "of my little orphaned grand-daughter! Oh, hearts like that man's are what bring earth and heaven nearer together!"

Nice girls who attend the Presidential levee think Father Grant's style of kissing them too balustrons.

Answer to Riddle last month.—Ours.

A good story is told of a Pennsylvania clergyman who lately refused to purchase Mark Twain's book. He was disgusted with it, "Why," said he to the agent, "the man who could weep at the taunt of Admetus must be an idiot!"

The Hartford Post tells a story of a deacon who once got drunk in New York on the 6th. of July. It was a time when ice was unknown in summer in the country. The deacon confessed his fault, but pleaded in palliation that it was prodigiously hot that day; and the tomos and ice in the punch did look so cool and inviting that he couldn't resist the temptation; and he supposed he did actually drink to intoxication.

A brother on a back seat listened attentively but incredulously to the defense, and at its conclusion, rose. "I kain't got no objection," said he, "to a man's getting drunk, if he owns up to it and is sorry for it; but when the deacon comes in here and undertakes to excuse himself in such a way as that, talking about seeing ice in July, I go for jerkin' him out for lyin'."

JOURNAL AND ADVERTISER.

DAVID A. BELL, Editor.

MATAWAN, N. J., APRIL 25TH, 1870.

The following lines were taken from the New Orleans Sunday Times, and were composed by our fellow-townman, Mr. A. H. Campbell, while on a tour in the South a few weeks since.

Lines to my Baby.

Although two thousand miles away
On this beautiful Sabbath day,
Your picture now before me lies,
With beautiful smile and sparkling eyes,
Reminding me of home.

That prattling tongue I long to hear—
My lonely spirit it would cheer;
The patter of thy feet so light
Would turn to day the darkest night,
And make me think of home.

That breath so pure, and voice so sweet,
Those delicate hands and tiny feet,
I yet can hear and feel and see,
As when you sat upon my knee,
Before I left my home.

If God should spare thy precious life,
To mingle in the joy and strife
Of mortals in this world of care,
I pray, of joy you'll have a share,
And we'll forget our home.

And when your days have all been spent,
And you have every effort lent
To comfort and to bless mankind,
I hope you will in Heaven find
A never-ending home.

DOYER OF BUSINESS.—In an address to an important Convention of Matrons, the following words were spoken, and will apply to other public meetings.

Preserve your independence of all demagogues and place-hunters; they never submit to their dictation:—write boldly, and tell the truth fearlessly; criticize whatever is wrong, and denounce whatever is rotten in the administration of your local and state affairs, no matter how much it may offend the guilty, or wound the would-be leaders of your party. Depend little on professional politicians for patronage, and less on their promises, for you will surely be disappointed and deceived—after the election is over—and despised for your subservience to them. Make an earnest and conscientious paper: establish its reputation for truth and reliability, frankness and independence. Show that your Journal is devoted to the advocacy and promotion of their temporal interest and moral welfare, and they will repay all favors with their esteem and patronage, rendering you influential and respected in the community, and prosperous in your pecuniary affairs.

It is estimated that there are 2,500 acres of land in Ocean county planted with cranberry bushes.

IMPORTANT BUILDING OPERATIONS.—Capt. H. W. Wilcox has contracted with Dr. H. T. Helmhold, to build 15 handsome, roomy stores, each 30 feet front by 52 feet deep, on the site of the present row of shanties, on Helmhold's property, on the north end of the Continental. The work is to be finished by the middle of June. The buildings will be two stories high, giving plenty of room for families in the second stories.

Long Branch News.

Trenton has sixteen potteries, with fifty-five kilns, representing a capital of about $1,250,000. Their annual product, if they were worked to their full capacity, is estimated $1,925,000, and thus worked, they would consume 30,000 tons of coal and 30,000 tons of prepared clay, employing from 1,200 to 1,600 men.

THE LECTURE on Thursday eve'g., 14th. inst., by RANKIN VOORHIES, Esq., was a very fine effort. His subject was, "The Dignity of Labor." It would be useless for me to attempt to give a just description of it. The elegant rounding of his sentences; the force of his imagery and illustrations, and the appropriateness and beauty of gesture, all assisted in making the oration one of the finest it has been the privilege of our citizens to listen to in some time. The first appearance of the man does not strike one very favorably, but you soon lose sight of this in the genius of the man as it develops itself in his language and style. Many of his finest illustrations were drawn from the Bible, and he dignified labor in the lowly carpenter of Nazareth, and the town surveyor of Virginia.

Our Public Schools.

In a village as large as ours, better arrangements should be provided for the education of the children. We attend our primary and township meetings, and make a strong effort to raise a tax sufficient for educational purposes, and the large taxpayer is at times inclined to take exception to the rate per head, yet the poor man, in some of our districts, receives but little or no benefit in return for all this. For example: the Principal of the Collegiate Institute is licensed by the County Superintendent as the district teacher, and as he agrees to take all in the district that wish to attend, he becomes the Public School.

While this is done, no rate per head is squandered for this teacher to charge, and hence the prices for tuition are regulated entirely by him. These prices may be no more than are absolutely necessary in order that he may meet his current expenses; but the query we would make, is: cannot some arrangement be made that will give us a school where the running expenses need not be so heavy as they must necessarily be at a large seminary?

Those in the upper district of Matawan, where the above school is located, must send there, if they would receive their portion of the school fund. This frequently prevents the poor man from sending his child to school at all, for the amount of tuition, even after the deduction of the public appropriation, is greater than he can afford: indeed, we have a select school in the same district, where a man can send his daughter, and his expenses be less, even though he lose the benefit of the school money.

These things ought not so to be. Our children should not be compelled to run about the streets, and grow up without an education in this age of enlightenment, because their parents either cannot afford to pay the required amount; or, cannot pay this and their clothes their children suitably for appearance in a select seminary.

What we need is to have our township re-districted, and instead of having two school districts for the town, let a suitable school-house be built near the center of the place: have the two districts united, and then a fund will be raised sufficient to carry on a good school, where all may send their children, with but a very little or no expense above that of public taxation.

To conclude, educate the children, or they will grow up to curse the town that deprived them of the opportunity for improving their minds, because, for some reason, their parents chanced to be poor.

Advertisements, to secure insertion, must be handed in by the 20th. of each month.

The Old Monks' Heaven.—(peace to its ashes)—if it will be as kind as to turn to ashes, like Dead sea Apples—has been given to the occupant by Dr. Helmhold, it he will move it away. It has fulfilled its mission,—widow's tears,—broken homes,—lost souls,—long rows of graves of drunkards—and heart-broken wives and orphans. Move it away—move it away—cover over the ground with God's green grass and God's beautiful flowers,—and draw the broad mantle of charity over the wailing doling of our fellow-man, for we know not the breadth and depth of God's infinite mercy and forgiveness. From our hearts we sincerely pray, from any more of such afflictions, Good Lord, deliver us.—New.

OUR APOLOGY.

We told our readers, in our last month's issue, to look for an apology for the late-ness of that issue, this month. We were so fortunate as to have a very large "rain of job work" come in upon us, a great part of it from New York houses, that must be done immediately. Hence, though we worked day and night, with the facilities we had, we were unable to prevent a delay, both in our jobbing and newspaper work. We have now, however, provided ourselves with a Power Press that turns off work much more rapidly, and trust that we shall not be compelled to disappoint our readers in the future.

WISTAR'S BALSAM.

READ THE FOLLOWING!!

This is to certify that I had a very severe cough, accompanied with night-sweats, which so reduced my bodily strength that I could not walk from my house to the barn, (a distance of about 200 yards) without resting. Having tried several remedies with but little benefit, I was at length induced to try "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry," and in a short time my health was restored, so that I am now enabled to attend to all the duties required on my farm as well as ever. My night-sweats have entirely ceased, and my cough very seldom troubles me. I consider it the best cough remedy ever offered to the public.

AT A TURNING POINT

One day, as Thomas Best was walking along, he saw a gentleman drop a purse upon the sidewalk. Thomas quickly picked it up, slipping it very slyly into his pocket, and walked on, saying to himself:

"I'm a lucky fellow? This purse feels as if there was a good lot of money in it. Hurrah for Tom Best!"

Just then the boy's conscience woke up and whispered:

"What are you going to do with that purse? It is not yours. If you keep it you will be a thief. Remember the eighth commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal.'"

Thomas paused a moment only to think. Then, with flashing eyes, he ran after the gentleman, and, handing him the purse, said:

"If you please, sir, you dropped your purse. Here it is."

"You are honest, boy," said the man, as he took the purse, and, smiling gratefully, handed him five shillings.

Thomas walked home, feeling happy indeed, as he had good reason to. He had escaped a great danger. When he picked up that purse he was standing at a point where two roads met — one the path of the thief, the other of the honest man. If he had kept the purse he would have entered the first path, and would have ended at last in prison; by returning it he he entered the way of honesty and light. So you see, he was at a turning point in his life, and he turned it safely. Why Thomas is honest!

Children, you now see what a turning point is. Whenever you are met by strong temptations to wrong action, you are at a turning point. Let the temptations conquer you and you will find yourself in the wrong road. Conquer the temptation, and your feet will stand in the right way. Look out for turning points.

THE COURSE CONTINUED.—"Died, in the thirty-fifth year of his age, John Smith, husband of the Hon. Jane Smith, at her residence in Solebury, this morning, at six o'clock. Mr. Smith was a meek and quiet husband, beloved for the graces of a cultivated and trained nature. He excelled in the domestic virtues; as a cook he was surpassed by a few; as a nurse he was equalled by none."

Two Yorkers lawyers were fined $5 each the other day for contempt of court. One of them paid, but the other stood on his dignity and refused to "come down," whereupon he was committed to White Plains jail for twenty days. He was taken charge of by the constable, but by the time he reached the "jug" his dignity cooled off, and he paid on the spot, whence he rode home, a wiser and humbler lawyer.

Some of the bystanders were disposed to be amused at the observation of a son of Erin at the temperance meeting Sunday evening. A number of ladies with a commendable desire to throw their influence on the right side of the question, went forward to sign the pledge. "Be gorry," said our Emerald, "who wed think so many fine lookin' Yankee women drinks? Isn't that Mrs. — just now goin' to sign the pledge?" New Britain Rev.

Will be found to be an excellent remedy for Burns, Scalds, Sores, Sore Mouth & Lips, Chapped Hands, Wounds, Cuts, Bites of Insects, Scarcitimus Sores, Salt Rheum, and Other CUTANEOUS Diseases.

CEROMA is not a preparation that has been compounded merely for speculative purposes, but is the result of careful experiment and repeated effort. It was originally prepared for our own private use; several years ago, and we were so pleased with its effects as a healing ointment that we recommended it to others. A lady called at the store and asked for a remedy for SALT RHEUM, and we advised her to try a box of the Ceroma. She returned shortly after for another box, and said she had received more benefit from it than from any other remedy. We recommended it to MRS. JOHN DOLAN, for a similar complaint, and her hands were soon healed. Some time after, Mr. Peter W. Byer came to us with an eruption that covered a great part of his hand and wrist, and returned for another box, saying it was the BEST THING he had tried.

MR. JOEL COLLINS had used a number of remedies to cure an IRRITATION OF THE MOUTH, and inflammation and swelling of the lower lip, but all had failed. He took a box of Ceroma and applied it freely to the lip, and soon the disease was removed.

THE AFFECTION OF BOATMEN, and all who are troubled with CHAPPED or CRACKED HANDS, is particularly called to Ceroma, as a CURE for this affection, and, as proof thereof, we would refer to CAPT. PETER LAMBERTSON, and CAPT. PETER C. DISBROW, and to the following certificate:

"I consider Ceroma the best thing for Chapped Hands that I have ever used in my family."
