Pay as You Go. ses will at this late day maintain that The events of the last few weeks the taking of alchoholic drinks as all have gone far to demonstrate the fact daily beverage by persons in health that our social fabric, in a pecuniary point of view, resis upon a very frail foundation. Many a man who was findly dreaming that he had simost attained a competence, that he was almost in a situation where, if he Schoee, he gould retire from business aged live comfortably on his income the rest of his days, has been awak ened from that dream to find himself a remoded if not ruined in his business f and all in consequence of not living up to the principle of paying as you go The credit system, as it is now man aged in our country, is very decept ive and insecure A dealer purchase es goods on credit and trusts them out to A. B and C He may imagine he is doing a safe and profitable bus income he may extend that business and surround himself with all the surface evidences of wealth, increas my his habilities, his assets in the me an time enlarging in a more than corresponding ratio, until he is acsounded a man of wealth. All goes ; or, smoothly with him white fair weather-lasts, but when the sky becomes overcust and the storm arises the money market becomes stringent, having refuse to discount their paper and he suddenly finds himself unabl to meet his obligations. And why Samply because his capital, which should be in his own pocket, is loan educat to Tom, Dack and Harry, who Your not or will not pay when called upon to do so. The consequence , the man is compelled to suspend bus iness, his assets not being found suf ficient to meet his liabilities. He compounds with his creditors, who charge the doss on their paving customers, who thus have to bear a bur den not legitimately their own. Now thad this same dealer sold his goods for ready pay he would have been inble to meet his engagements, though he would have sold less goods in quantity; for it is a notorious fact that when people pay as they go they are more prudent in their purchases, adapting them more to their natural wants, so that at the end of every week each party knows exactly where he stands: Could this ready pay system be inaugurateed all over our land we could defy any panic. Wall St could produce, because everybody would be comparatively out of debt. The practice of running in debt to defray the current expenses of daily life is a most permicious one, as it engenders extravagance and leads almost every one who adopts it to live beyond his income, thus preventing a safe and moderate accumulation which it is the duty of every head of a family to make. In addition to the evils of the credit system our social fabric is very much disturbed by the operations of the gamblers in stocks and gold in our great commercial metropohs Reckless and unscrupulous men, whose only godliness is gain, are continually planning how they can get the better of their fellows, though by so doing they may carry privation and suffering to every dwelling in the land. Men who are accounted wise and prudent will invest their entire capital in stocks, paying only as tical, every day sort of a tavern. They margin, so that only a fraction of the stock is their own, hoping, of course. that a rise in the stock will not them a handsome income from their investment Depreciation takes place, the margin is wiped out, and they are left penniless and helpless. We be lieve in bona fide sales of stocks. The holder would then be independent of any panie; for if all sales were actual instead of apparent there would be no cause nor chance for a panic. As to the evil effects of the credit system are proprietors of the Crawford and upon all our relations we might bring all our business men, merchants, grocers and butchers, to give unanimous testimony of the straits to which they are sometimes reduced by having are obliging and courteous, and so their capital trusted out all over the are all their employees. style let their bills run up until they amount to hundreds of dollars, and then become angry because they are asked for payment. This state of things is altogether wrong, and should · be remedied by concert of action on the part of our dealers, so that those who pay for their goods may not have the additional burden of paying the bills in extra prices of those who are too mean and dishonest to pay their own debts. We should not blame our dealers for publishing the names of all their customers who, having the ability, through lack of disposi- every spot where they tarried, they tion, let their bills remain unsettled. We spent Saturday in Munich, and took the evening train for this city, arriving about midnight. It is very beau; tifully situated, surrounded by hills on all sides but one, where the Bavarian plain, watered and fertilized by the river Salzach, towards Vienna. In the morning we took a stroll to the Mouchburg, a wooded hill laid out with pleasant walks and commanding fine views of the city and valleys and the distant snow-capped mountains. Returning to our hotel for dinner, we took a cab and drove out about three miles to a beautiful garden situated at the foot of the mountain. Attached to the garden was a restaurant built in the style prevalant in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. The garden was hand-omely laid out, embracing. walks, flower-beds, fish-ponds, shrubbery, &c., with a great number of curiosuly contrived fountains; the ingenuity shown in their construction was wonderful. After spending an hour thus pleasantly and profitably, we returned to the city and took another stroll up the highest mountain within the city. The gentleman who thus furnished this rexceedingly Simple means of subduing a very dangerous propensity intimated that it is practised in Mexico and South America in he management of wild horses.

If anything can touch our sympathy it is the sight of an honest Dem orrat struggling to shield the rascality of his party behind his own respectability. We feel like taking the deluded man aside and telling himthat his efforts will be love's labor lest. But we have tried the experiigent so many times that we have meluled to let the faithful follower of Democracy pursue its shadow until he gets tired, and stops of his own accord. When he drops from sheer exhaustion, then we shall pick him up, advise him calmly, and do our Best to help him across the theshold of the Republican party. There are thousands of honest men still left in the Democratic party. They live in Bopes of seeing it once more restored to its Jeffersonian days. They refuse to believe it lost beyond redemption, and so cling to its sinking fortunes, in hopes that something will turn up to bring about the radical change they desire. They forget that the days of miracles have past; that the elements of power, honesty and patrictism, which once imparted glory to Democracy, have long since departed from the old shell, and are found toflay imparting vigor and purity to the Republican party Occasionally this fact dawns upon some honest well-intentioned Democrat, and he makes haste to enroll himself under the banher that represents his old old-time principles. There is still room for more, The doors of our party are continually open, and all who believe in justice, equality and an honest administration of the government are invited to enter. We have but little room for office hunters, but for the men who desire to labor for the good of the nation we have some reserved seats in the temple of Republicanism. -Republic.
