The life of five-year-old Willie Stanberg, of Fanwood, was narrowly saved from a sudden end and Tuesday by the presence of mind and prompt action of Mrs. J. John Cose, who conducted a milk route from Scotch Plains. Mrs. Cose delivers milk to Willie's father, Assessor W. R. Stanberg, each evening, and she is usually met at the top of the hill by the little lad on a wagon...

It is supposed that the boy did not hear Mr. Cose's admonition and when he stepped on the wagon he became confused. As he came in contact with the milk wagon it is thought that he carried both he and the velocipede to the dangerous position when seen by Mrs. Cose.

VETERANS ARE COMING

OLD NEW YORK VOLUNTEER FIREMEN TO VISIT PLAINFIELD. The Matter Settled Last Night When the Exempt Firemen's Association...

The Veterans Firemen's Association, of New York, is making arrangements for a visit to this city. They were all members of the old volunteer fire department that fought so gallantly against the flames of the city for forty years ago in this city. The Veterans have expressed a desire to come to this city, so the matter may now be looked upon as settled.

The Veterans Firemen's Association, of New York, is making arrangements for a visit to this city. They were all members of the old volunteer fire department that fought so gallantly against the flames of the city for forty years ago in this city. The Veterans have expressed a desire to come to this city, so the matter may now be looked upon as settled.

The meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association, last evening, held in the Hook and Ladder Company's parlors, was one of the largest in the history of the association, over fifty members being present, besides representatives from the different companies that compose Plainfield's fire department. It was finally decided that the New York veterans should be invited and that the companies should guarantee part of the necessary funds...

The following sub-committees were then appointed: Finance—Roger F. Murray, J. B. Spencer, Joseph Salsman, H. Newton Spencer. Reception—D. W. Littell, W. A. Woodruff, J. M. Hawkins, Albert Barta, Augustus Martin. Publicity—Joseph Blinn, Edward Vermeule.

The general committee includes representatives from all the companies and the Exempt Association as well. Although no arrangements have yet been made, the general plan of the affair is understood. The special train, bringing the veterans, their band and their old "double decker" engine, is expected to arrive at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and, after a short parade, the veterans will give a chance to see Plainfield and its fire department. Then will come the dinner and the program of the city to our neighbor down the river at Jersey Cycle Academy, and at about 6:30 o'clock the visitors will leave.

Elizabeth was very anxious to see the veterans and their organization. She has met but two of the veterans, Mr. Glenser and Jacob Blinn, reside in this city, and the best had often heard of the beauties of this city, the excellence of her fire department, and they persuaded the city to our neighbor down the river at Jersey Cycle Academy, and at about 6:30 o'clock the visitors will leave.

OPEN AIR BAND CONCERT

A LARGE CROWD HEAR THE MELODIES OF GUTTMAN'S MUSICIANS. A Band Stand Was Used for the First Time—Many Strange Passes Presented in the Crowd of Music Lovers...

The attendance was good but not as large as at the concert held at the square in front of the Crescent Avenue church earlier in the summer. Perhaps the reason for this was that the weather was not so favorable. At any rate, the crowd was there, in holiday attire, although the chilly weather made the thin summer gowns worn against the side of the Scheplin band and here the Plainfield Cornet Band, with Nate Guttmann as leader, rendered a delightful programme from eight o'clock to nearly ten o'clock.

The bandstand was used for the first time—Many strange passes presented in the crowd of music lovers. The weather was not so favorable. At any rate, the crowd was there, in holiday attire, although the chilly weather made the thin summer gowns worn against the side of the Scheplin band and here the Plainfield Cornet Band, with Nate Guttmann as leader, rendered a delightful programme from eight o'clock to nearly ten o'clock.

The familiar faces were not numerous in the throng, for many of the listeners appeared to be strangers to the city or at least to the open-air concert. The natty uniforms of Chief Grant and Sergeant Kieley were to be seen here and there through the crowd, and those officers kept an eye on the situation. It was a very peaceful crowd, however, and, aside from a mild flirtation here and there, all was quiet. There was a steady procession up and down the sidewalk that good naturedly jostled the crowd that preferred to line up along the sidewalk to listen to the music.

The music was a delightful one. The little child in the band was by no means unpleasant. The stars were unobscured by clouds, and later in the evening the moon chose to be one of the party. By moonlight the scene was beautiful. The crowd was appearing sheds and buildings assuming strange and fantastic shapes. Gradually the throng dispersed, and with the strains of "Home, Sweet Home" floated and then the bandstand, all disappeared and the moon and empty band stand were left alone.

Somewhere in the rear of the Boice estate, or thereabouts, on East Front street, the music was heard, and by some other species of the hairy or feathery tribe, which makes no noise in the daytime, but at night it's a holy terror. The noise made is heart-breaking in its intensity, and is heard in cases of death. But there can be no case of death in this instance for the disturber of the peace seems to take a delight in yelling at night only.

Eight tramps in the town. Eight tramps were arrested on Monday night in Elizabethtown as a result of the police making a search of the town and apprehending them. They have been committing depredations along the line of the Jersey Central. The men are supposed to belong to the gang that has been annoying the residents of Westfield, Newark and Cranford, and are believed to be members of the same gang that set fire to and burned a freight car some time ago at the place where they were caught.

INTEREST GROWS APACE

ALL THE COUNTRY AROUND ANXIOUS TO SEE THE BICYCLE PARADE.

Plainfield Will Probably see a Crowd of Any Size Never Before Here.

With a clear day, the Daylight Bicycle Carnival on September 5th will be a great event for Plainfield.

It is not so surprising that people in this city should be so excited over the carnival, but it is quite remarkable the amount of interest that is being taken in it by out-of-town people.

A member of the advertising committee that visited Oak Tree and vicinity to post up the large bills of the carnival, found great enthusiasm shown among the people of that district.

They stated that the residents were going to turn out en masse on the occasion of the carnival. Like interest is shown from all the surrounding towns and Plainfield will see a crowd that will quite surprise her.

It will be a holiday for the city and in holiday attire, and with money to spend. It will be the event of the season for many village swains and their blushing friends and Plainfield streetkeepers will reap the benefits.

Frank L. C. Martin went to Brooklyn last evening to confer with several military wheel organizations to induce them to compete in this city and to make the conference secured very successful and Plainfield will have its eyes opened to some of the modern uses of the bicycle.

The great advantage of holding the parade in the afternoon will be that the decorations of the houses can be seen. It is to be hoped that the residents will decorate early in the morning and allow their guests to remain up all day and evening as Plainfield will be crowded with visitors and the city should present as pretty an appearance as possible.

The contingent in the morning will be made up of the residents of the city and will remain all day and part of the evening. It will be a great day for Plainfield.

A meeting of the general committee will be held on Monday night and the members were not notified and it was decided to adjourn the meeting to Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Board of Trade rooms.

REPUBLICANS FEEL INFLUENCE INTO THEIR WEST END MAJORITY.

The Republican majority in Plainfield is very large, but they are preparing to do some active campaign work in the West End.

where they fear the other party most. A Fourth Ward McKinley and Robert Club is already underway and will be ready to go to work in the West End.

The young men are to be rounded into line by a young men's club which William M. Bayson is engineering and organizing. A Republican club is being organized and the talk of the party leaders while several other campaign clubs are being discussed.

No effort has yet been made toward having a contest in the West End, but if the fight should grow at all here there will probably be one.

Early Customers. In the memory of old citizens sharks have never been so plentiful as during the last few days in the waters of the city and the boys have been busy with the police to keep from being warned, lest some of them might be attacked. "Bill" Levers an old waterman, Sunday shot a shark swimming off the corner of his boat.

It sunk to the bottom before Levers could reach it. Sailing parties on the Kills have been badly frightened by the sudden appearance of the ugly creatures alongside of their boats.

Death of an Estimable Woman. Mrs. Florence VanWinkle, wife of Frank VanWinkle, died at her home in East Orange last Sunday at 11:30 o'clock.

FOUND TIED TO A TREE

SENSATIONAL EXPERIENCE OF TWO YOUNG WOMEN OF THIS CITY.

The story is that they visited New Brunswick with two strangers and on the return were tied in the woods.

Two young Plainfield women had an experience Sunday night that they will not soon forget, according to a story, says the Elizabeth Journal.

The story is told by Harry Peddington, a young man who lives in New Market and works in Plainfield, at which place he spends daily.

Peddington says he was driving to Plainfield early Monday morning, and when passing along a lonely road past some woods he heard a woman's voice calling for help.

The voice came from the woods and he and so he alighted from his vehicle and investigated. After going some distance into the woods he came upon two young women, and both were fastened tightly to a tree.

It had rained over night and their clothing was soaking wet. The rain, the cold, and the tight cords of their wrists and bodies were causing them to suffer greatly.

Peddington cut the cords and freed them from their unpleasant situation. They were taken to the police station and the exposure and pain, and petted slightly hysterical, but nevertheless they refused all further assistance and declined to give their names.

All they could remember was that they had parted from them was that they had flirted with two strangers, who had taken them in a carriage to New Brunswick, and on returning home, when in the carriage they were bound, the men had taken out of the carriage, lashed them to a tree and deserted them.

Peddington offered to carry the two women to their homes, but they were so dizzy and so dizzy that they didn't intend to ride with strangers again.

The identity of the young women has not been ascertained, and the police have no information about the matter.

MRS. NINGER DIES UP $5,000.

Was in Gold, and Had Been Buried in the Cellar by the Counterfeiter.

The cottage at Flagstone which was occupied by Mrs. Ninger, the late partner counterfeiter, up to the time of his arrest, has been sold to Gustavus A. Weidenmayer of Newark, and Mrs. Ninger and her children have gone to the cottage in the peninsula, where Ninger is confined.

The belief among Mrs. Ninger's friends that she had been left almost penniless by the confiscation of all the money she had, was dispelled today, when, just before her departure, she dug up about $4,000 in gold, which had been buried in the cellar.

It has recently transpired that Ninger disposed of most of his pen-made bank notes in real-estate transactions. Henry Reimer, a real-estate agent of this place, who sold Ninger the cottage at Flagstone, says that Ninger made him a payment of $3,000 in new fifty-dollar bank notes. This money was taken without question by the local banks, and it was not until Ninger's arrest that Reimer was convinced that the notes given to him by the penman were counterfeit.

Ninger is known to have made other purchases of real estate, in payment of which he had given to the banks real-estate transactions were puzzling to experienced agents, and he was known among them as a losing speculator. But it is now believed that he made a transaction of purchase of property, which he had made with counterfeit money, which enabled him to dispose of it in large amounts with little risk. The land was afterward sold, usually at a loss.

It was Ninger's writing in the shape of personal and business letters, which are marvels of fine penmanship.

J. F. MacDonald and H. B. McDonald were the witnesses.

FAREWELL TO "CAMP LEVEE."

It Now Exists Only in the Memories of the Campers.

"Camp Levee" is no more but it ended Friday night with a blaze of glory. The "annex," as the board had adjoining the tent, was called, was a very remarkable wood late that evening the tent was applied. By the light of the brilliant conflagration that followed, the campers gathered their traps together and bid farewell to last of their lovely girls, and they will probably remain in their memories for many a day.

A grand dinner was given that night before the fire that would have been a grand success if not for the fire and the guests of the campers were given a farewell with "Chief" Anglin's Miss Elsie Horne, of Willow avenue, has gone to Philadelphia, for a week.

NOTHING TO LIVE FOR.

SO THOUGHT A SOMERVILLE BOY WHEN HIS LOVE WAS REBUTTED.

On His Knees he Begged For Her Pardon to Marry, and When She Refused he Tried to End His Life.

Frank Pendington, of Somerville, in the presence of his sweetheart, Friday shot himself in the head with a revolver while on his knees begging or the renewal of their engagement.

Pendington and Miss Clara Beasley were present at his sweetheart's, but at the former's request the wedding was postponed until the fall, although it occasioned a quarrel between them, during which Miss Beasley gave back his engagement ring and refused to marry him.

Miss Beasley has refused to entertain Pendington, although the latter has called at her home several times. Yesterday he called again, and went to his former sweetheart stating that he was about to leave the country and asking if she would give him a farewell.

She consented to do, and while the two stood together, Beasley begged for the renewal of their engagement, but was met with a refusal, whereupon he fell upon his knees and shot himself.

The wounded man was taken to his home in a carriage, where the wound was dressed, and when he was told that it was not fatal he declared that he would again make an attempt to end his life.

TIME IS LIMITED FOR ACTION. Hudson County Sound-money Democrats Will Make a Vigorous Campaign.

Dr. Leckie and Dr. J. G. Condon, Hudson county members of the Provisional State Committee of the Sound-money Democrats of New Jersey, sent out a statement Friday that it will be impossible for many of the delegates to attend a meeting in Jersey City before the date fixed for the State Convention.

"They say in their statement: 'A fight for honest money is for the benefit of the State and the party and its principles is to be carried on in Hudson county and throughout the State during the present campaign. A Provisional State Committee has been organized to change at the State Convention to be held in Trenton on Wednesday, the 28th inst. At that time also delegates to the National Convention in Indianapolis will be elected to be chosen. Owing to the shortness of time, it is impossible to hold a sound-money mass meeting before the date of the Convention. A meeting of the sound-money Democrats of Hudson county will be held at Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, on Monday next, August 26th, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of conference, the selection of delegates, and for the purpose of organizing a permanent organization and a vigorous campaign.'"

A MAN HUNT IN SOMERSET. Chris Lovering, accused of Assault, Captured in the Mountains.

Chris Lovering, the Southland Mountain desperado, who has been hunted through the mountains for a number of years by the Essex and a posse of his neighbors, was captured on the road between Rock Mills and Westville Friday night by Constable George D. Tilton. Lovering was taken to the Essex jail and a warrant issued against him by Justice Charles Lovering, of the Southland Mountain region, was released from the Somerset county jail recently, after serving a short term for the same offense upon a girl in the mountains.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Josephine Bourland, the wife of a farmer of the Southland Mountain, was found lying in the woods a short distance from her home. There were indications that she had been assaulted. She said she was picking berries at a lonely spot in the woods when Lovering came and tried to get from her a pair of clump of bushes. He held a knife high in the air and threatened to cut her heart out. She tried to run but fell fainting to the ground.

Lovering was brought to Somerville and placed in the county jail. These dogs should be hunted or shot.

It is to be noted the man, woman or child who has been seen passing over Cole's Hill, between this city and Scotch Plains on foot at any time during the day or night. There are a couple of vicious appearing and snarling dogs, which are kept by light in driving, growling and snapping at drivers and other passersby. A little warm lead would put an end to the complaints, and a person would be perfectly justified in shooting them.

Dr. Talmage Just a Member. Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, who has been spending a few days in Bound Brook, expressed his willingness to be pleased that the clerk of the Reformed church had found his name still on the church roll of membership, and offered to give an address on the subject of "The Reformed Church," which is to be held Thursday. The society will observe the occasion with anniversary exercises in the evening, as well.

WHERE THE ACTORS TROD

A PROSPEROUS SEASON OF MUSIC HALL IS ANTICIPATED.

The House Has Been Thoroughly Cleaned and the Best Seats Will Be Sold For Two Cents.

The City of Music Hall has thrown open to the theatrical public next Thursday evening to witness the first production of the "Cotton Spinner," the house will empty, in a way, that axioms which reads "Money is made by the turnover." "A thing of beauty" because water, brushes and muscle have transformed the house, from pit to dome, into a temple of cleanliness; "a joy forever" because the management are here to make a success, and to accomplish that, will present meritorious performances at popular prices with all the little details of the business cared for.

The present of their managers, experience in the profession will prompt them to do their best. Messrs. Ball and Willey have taken charge of Music Hall with the intention of making it a continuous success to the end of the season. They have a thorough overhauling. Every nook and corner of the building has been washed and scrubbed, and yesterday when a Press reporter visited the place, he saw a shiny or scorching spot met the eye.

The most important decision on their part, however, was the one to lower the scale of prices. It has been generally conceded that the prices connected with the hall that one dollar for the best seats was more than the average Plainfielder would pay, and in many cases if they could not pay the best seats, they would not pay. This disadvantage, which former managers have labored under has been obviated as much as possible by Messrs. Ball and Willey, who have made the best seats seventy-five cents and the gallery seats twenty-five cents.

The class of attractions which have been booked for the season is such as will appeal to the local theatregoers. The program of the season is such as will appeal to the local theatregoers. The program of the season is such as will appeal to the local theatregoers.

THE TRAMP RAIL. Huber thought he would go to the County Jail.

A tramp rail Westfield night in the Ribley barn, near Westfield, led by Captain C. M. Hawkins, resulted in the capture of three men. As the men were being taken to the Essex jail in front of the Ribley homestead property of them named Murphy made a dash for liberty. Captain Hawkins gave chase and ordered the man to halt, but the man refused to do so. The captain fired his revolver in the air, but Murphy did not fire again, but made a sport and caught his man. They were taken to the Essex jail, and the man named Murphy was taken to the Essex jail.

Co-Operative Association of the Plainfield. A regular meeting of the Plainfield Co-operative Association was held in the new quarters corner of Centre avenue and Second street, last week when new committees were appointed. BATHER YOUNG THIEVES

SONS OF RESPECTABLE PEOPLE AND THE BOYS' CLUB ROOMS.

They stole Two Wheelbarrows and Two Tools and Books and They Took a Book to the Club Room.

Two lads, who have their names on the list of the Boys' Club, were present in the lockup. The crowd group was to carry a wheelbarrow load of tools and books from the new club house of the Club on East Orange street, and take their plunder home to their parents. They were seen, however, in the street, and last week Chief Grant and his assistants, who were both young offenders and whom they had seen in jail.

One of the lads lived on East street and the other on East street, but for the sake of their names will be withheld from present. They have both been members of the Boys' Club for the long vacation, they have different amusements. Since the Boys' Club changed its headquarters to the old Plainfield Bicycle Club, the lads have been hanging around there watching the unloading and arranging of the tools, apparatus and books.

Of course, everything was in the general confusion and the lads took advantage of it. Sixty-six belonging to the club's library, and $40, were piled in a wheelbarrow and a general supply of books belonging to the club, and two of each kind, was added to the load. The tools were worth about as much as the books.

This miscellaneous load was taken to the club's Third street office, where one of the lads and three other boys divided. The parents were told the books and tools had been given them.

A complaint was made to Chief Grant by those in charge at the Boys' Club and he investigated. On inquiry he learned from the boys around them and the neighbors who the thieves were and soon arrested them and recovered the books and tools from their parents.

The boys were brought before Justice Newborn Friday morning and were taken to await the action of the Grand Jury. The Club probably has sent to a reform school.

ATTACKED BY DOGS. Jacob Himes has an Exciting Encounter with a Dog.

Jacob Himes, of Scotch Plains, was walking home from Plainfield last Thursday evening about 7 o'clock when he met two very unwelcome animals and was attacked by them. He was walking along the road when the two large dogs, belonging to the late Captain Hartel, came upon him and he was attacked by them.

He defended himself as best he could with his arms, but one of the animals set its teeth in his arm before he could escape. His coat was badly torn. Mr. Habel was very sorry when he heard of the attack and promptly assisted Mr. Himes.

Co-Operative Association of the Plainfield. A regular meeting of the Plainfield Co-operative Association was held in the new quarters corner of Centre avenue and Second street, last week when new committees were appointed. The advisory committee was made up of Robert George, James Hill, John J. Foster, Charles Bellnap and H. C. Nomer were placed on the finance committee, and the committee on discounts is made up of Messrs. W. G. Allen, E. Conley, and Joseph Mannfield, sergeant-at-arms.

SUMMERING INLAND.

Water Girl Might Learn from Her Fresh-Water Sister.

through a Log Jam in Canoe—The key to be had at inland resorts is a great deal of pleasure which they might be glad to partake of if they only knew the proper way to do it.

(Copyright, 1904.)

Those people who spend all their summers at the seashore are in the habit of being had at inland resorts in a great deal of pleasure which they might be glad to partake of if they only knew the proper way to do it.

These little streams have a commercial value that compares very favorably with that of many more pretentious waterways. Every year thousands of logs are floated down to their respective mills to be sawed into the boards that make millions for the lumberman.

But it is not with the millions nor the lumberman that the pleasure seekers are concerned. The logs themselves form a very exciting and sometimes very annoying feature in their enjoyment. To be sure, there is a law which requires lumber companies to leave a waterway for pleasure boats, but such corporations are no more considerate than others, and they have small scruples about evading the law if they can.

So it often happens that when a gay young college man from one of the numerous colleges in that vicinity goes out for a quiet boating trip with his favorite summer girl, he is suddenly confronted with a jam of floating logs that fill up the entire stream, or are scattered about in such promiscuous fashion that he has to perform a polka mazurka in his boat or to get through. If the logs are very closely jammed together, the youth must land his girl and drag his boat until he finds clear water again. But if he manages to poke his way between the logs, he does so, even at the risk of tipping over in the effort to make a hole which is always imminent, but which only leads to the adventure.

A canoe is better than a rowboat for the purpose of dodging logs, because being narrower, it goes through smaller spaces; also because it has one long double paddle instead of a pair of oars that are always striking obstructions and getting in the way. There are many other advantages about a canoe, not the least of which is its picturesque quality. Nothing else appeals so strongly to the susceptibilities of the summer girl as the picture of a handsome college youth perched gracefully upon the bow of the stern of his own little long, double paddle in his firm grasp. He is attired, say, in a pale blue negligee shirt and dark blue trousers, with a cap that sits on the back of his head and ruffles his hair into a bang over his forehead.

The girl sits in a good position to be viewed by fascinating figure. She leans back comfortably against the cushions that are supported by a sort of chair which maintains her in a comfortable position and can rest on the bottom. One can almost recline in a chair of this kind, and nothing can exceed the comfort.

Then think of the possibilities of varied enjoyment! With a well-judged blanket and a warm wrap to fend off the night breeze, and a good blanket in the afternoon and float down by moonlight.

You never start about four o'clock and you have just settled yourself comfortably among the cushions when you begin to bump against loose logs that will scatter through the middle of the logs get more and more crowded, and the first thing you know your end of the boat is tilted up on a submerged tree trunk. There, if you are "green," and not afraid of soiling your hands, you go to work and get push off; after which you will get a good deal of fun by reaching out as you come up to a big log and poking it out of the way. One can push the canoe through a tangle of logs much easier with the hands than with the paddle.

The greatest bugbear to the canoeist in the "boom," which is a line of logs chained together along the middle of the river and fastened to stone piers stationed at intervals of 30 to 40 rods. This is intended to pen the logs in one side of the stream, but sometimes they get so thick on the canoeist's side that he is compelled to leave the boom to the side, where perhaps it is entirely clear.

Sometimes the youth gets out on the boom and shores the canoe on, and will sit sometimes in a kind-hearted log driver, who knows how to walk the logs, comes to your assistance and shows you both over. More often you land at one of the stone piers and cling to the log

EDISON'S NEW LIGHT.

Something about the Developments of Recent Weeks.

By the Use of Fluorescent Substances Made from a Peculiar Stratum of the Tungstate of Calcium.

Edison's new white light, which has called the fluorescent lamp, is about to be put on the market. It is very similar to the "Edison" lamp now in use, but in principle it is vastly different. There is a glass globe from which 2 per cent of the air inside has been extracted, but there is no absolute vacuum. Unlike the electric lamp, the whole globe glows with a pure white light of marvellous illuminating power.

This powerful light comes from a metallic crystal known as "tungstate," which is a metal as heavy as osmium. Germany it is known under the name of "ungstein." The illuminating property, says the St. Louis Republic, is due to a peculiar stratum of the tungstate crystal itself.

The fact that these crystals glow when slightly rubbed is known to the wizard of Menlo Park, and he set to work to use that property in the lantern of science. The crystals are placed in a globe of glass, and the glass itself is so soft. It then absorbs the tungstate crystals and holds them firmly.

Edison says that he could get the best results when using the crystals on the sides of the globe. The wires that are attached to the globe do not meet. By means of an induction current generated in a faradic battery, the electric current is introduced into motion and the impurities thus travel along the wires until it reaches the ends inserted into the globe. This motion is supplied by a constant flow of the molecules of air in the globe. In turn the air molecules are driven through the globe, and the tungstate crystals of tungstate are welded into the inner walls of the globe. The impurities cause the crystals to glow. The globe is then placed in a globe of air molecules is, of course, very slight, but multiplied thousands of times and the blow repeated continuously at an enormously rapid rate, they produce a brilliant light.

Every wire contains a latent electrical force. This line of force is displaced by the tungstate crystals when an electrical impulse is imparted to the wire, although it may not develop into a current of electricity, the lines of force are displaced in all directions. They are parallel to the long axis of the wire and it is then ready to receive a current.

One molecule communicates its movements to another until the final impulse is imparted to a constant flow of wire or of a billiard ball is placed in a row. A blow is struck at one end of the row and all the balls will remain unmoved except by a contact with another end. The ball will be driven away at a considerable rate of speed. The force of the blow is received by the first ball, which in turn strikes the next, and so on, until it strikes the last ball away from the rest. This is the process that takes place in the globe and produces the light.

In explaining this process Edison declared that he was himself surprised when he found that a constant flow of light given off by the tungstate was not accompanied by a corresponding decrease in the amount of electricity. It transforms 95 per cent of the electrical force into heat, and only five per cent is turned into light. This is a tremendous saving in the consumption of power. The new lamp is absolutely free from heat. This was ascertained by placing the globe in contact with delicate instruments. This establishes the fact that nearly the whole force used in the new lamp is employed in producing light, and not in heating the globe, why and therefore, he simply accepts, it is a fact.

The amount of electricity required in the incandescent lamp to overcome the tremendous loss of electrical energy, and which is turned into heat, is so great that it is not an astounding cheapness in lighting and a consequent commercial gain. The new lamp is employed in producing light, and not in heating the globe, why and therefore, he simply accepts, it is a fact.

There are fluorescent substances even better than tungstate, but Edison is not yet ready to put them on the market. If his experiments are as successful with those as they have been with tungstate there is no limit to the intensity and beauty of the light.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION

The Democratic voters of New Jersey are invited to meet at each time and place as may be designated by their local Committees...

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17TH, 1896

At 10 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of selecting local electors. The best representation will be one delegate for each two hundred Democratic votes...

JAMES SMITH, Jr., Chairman State Executive Committee, Chairman C. F. Fairbrother.

This has been a season of weather extremes.

Mr. Platt still rules the Republican coat in New York.

Mr. Bryan is still human. Yesterday he caught a fish and took a tumble off a bicycle.

Oliver Kelly is said to be slated for the Democratic nomination of Sheriff in Middlesex county.

Li Hung Chang must be somewhat of a Beau Brummel. He carries some 300 and odd pieces of baggage.

The Republican primaries will be held throughout Somerset county tomorrow night.

The call for the Democratic State convention has been issued. The date is Wednesday, September 23d, and the place Taylor's Opera House in Trenton.

The astounding assertion is made that there is more gold in the sacred vessels, medals, chains, etc., preserved at the vaults than in the circulation of the whole of Europe.

The contest between George Strong and ex-County Clerk Conger for the seat in the State Committee is likely to be settled by September 23d, and the place given to Robert Carson, Republican leader in New Brunswick.

The Republican State Convention will be held at Trenton next Thursday. The indications are that it will be a large convention, and that Governor Griggs will open the campaign in the State by delivering a speech for the National candidates.

The consolidation of the Bell Telephone Company and Western Union Telegraph Company would make one of the most powerful combines in the country, before which small competition would stand still less of a chance for existence than they do now, and even in our conditions are not of a ray for the small fry.

An appeal has been made by the Board of Agriculture, through John T. Dunn, for the observance of a "Bird Day" in the schools throughout the country, the object sought being to set apart a day once a year, or to combine the Bird Day with the Constitution in the value of our native birds, and for discussing means of protecting such as are of value from wanton destruction.

According to the New York Tribune the Hon. James E. Martine declines to be a candidate for Senator in Union county. Mr. Martine has probably been spoken of as the probable nominee of his party for this office, but it is understood that he prefers to be a candidate for Congress against Mr. Fowler. Four years ago Mr. Martine was entitled the Congressional nomination at the hands of his party. He was defeated in the nominating convention held at Howland, N. J. Dunn was nominated. Mr. Martine hesitated but a little at the injustice done him, then rolled up his sleeves and helped to elect his opponent. The next year he threw him the Senatorial nomination when it was known he could not win. Hon. Foster M. Voorhees being his enemy and helped to elect his opponent. The next year he threw him the Senatorial nomination when it was known he could not win. Hon. Foster M. Voorhees being his enemy and helped to elect his opponent.

John J. Matthews was yesterday appointed Assistant Postmaster at Elizabeth for four years. Mr. Matthews is one of the most successful candidates for the going office and is concerned that Union County will be turned out. Although he will not be thirty-four until September 17 he has had an office ever since he could vote. He was elected School Commissioner in Elizabeth when barely a child, served two terms afterwards as Secretary of the Board of Education, two terms in the Assembly, two as Clerk of the Senate, and as Engineering Clerk of the Senate, and then the office of State Superintendent of the School Census was created for him, and he held it until a Republican Legislature abolished the office.

Wm. M. Foster has returned to town after an extended tour through the northern part of the State.

Miss M. F. Johnson, of Corland, N. Y., has been appointed as teacher in the public school in the town of Cotton, who resigned at the close of the last school year.

It is probable that the National Convention of Republican clubs, which convenes in St. Louis tomorrow, will support Col. E. A. McCallin, of New York, for president of the organization.

Senator Foster M. Voorhees has declared that he will not be a candidate for re-election under any circumstances. This practically leaves the Republican honor to Sheriff George Kyte, Frederick C. Marsh will doubtless receive the Democratic nomination.

The Daily Press can authoritatively state that James E. Martine is not a candidate for any office in the gift of the people at the approaching election. His activity in the present campaign is not prompted by a real desire for political recognition; it is a matter of advocating principles which he believes to be right.

For the first time in several years a North Plainfield Republican primary was not presided over by ex-Mayor Charles Place.

For several years his executive ability in presiding over a body of voters has been recognized by the Borough of O. E., but his absence from town last Saturday made it impossible for him to receive the honor.

The State Committee of the Bound Money Democrats met in executive session at Taylor's Hotel Saturday to discuss matters for the State Convention, to be held at Trenton on Wednesday next. It was decided to adopt the sound money platform adopted by the Democrats in May last. It was named that ex-Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild would address the convention.

A section of the election law provides that no compensation shall be paid to any election agent or challenger, but requires Board of Freeholders to pay a reasonable compensation for the services of County Boards of Election, and provides the secretary of the Board may receive one-third more compensation than the amount paid the other members of the Board.

There are about 300 newspapers published in New Jersey, of which 76 are Republican, 70 are Democratic and 54 are independent. There are 24 German newspapers, 4 Italian newspapers and 1 newspaper printed in Hollandese. Two papers are published by colored men. This is an increase of 100 papers since 1892, 2,118 males of all ages in New Jersey, or to every 1,135 of the legal voters of the State that voted in the last Presidential election.

The new election law provides that a person who solicits from a candidate for elective office any money or other property, or who seeks to induce a candidate to accept a nomination, or other evidence of admission to any hall, fair, picnic or entertainment, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months, or both. However, the act does not apply to a request for a contribution by a candidate for elective office.

Teachers' salaries in New Jersey show some curious variations. The average for male teachers per month is $82.50 and for female teachers $74. Among the counties Essex has the highest average for male teachers, namely $106.64 per month, and Sussex the lowest, $47.75. The highest average for female teachers is in Salem, Hudson comes next to Essex in salaries of male teachers, namely $129.54, and Union third with $117.10. Union pays female teachers an average of $66.33, and Hudson an average of $46.71. Salaries below the average of $46.71 are below the hundredth figure in male salaries and below fifty in female salaries.—Newark Advertiser.

Depression of Spirits

so common in summer-time, accompanied by loss of energy, lack of thought-power, means a deficient supply of nourishment. The vital force is lost. It isn't a question of muscle and sinew, but of resistance and endurance. At any age but especially in youth, it involves the risk of lung disease. Loss of flesh and a cough are threatening signs.

STILL TALK OF MARTINE

Notwithstanding the Orator's Declaration the sentiment is in His Favor.

Notwithstanding that James E. Martine has declared that he is not a candidate for the Democratic Congressional nomination in this district, the talk in his favor still continues, as will be seen from the following taken from the Newark News yesterday:

It is announced in political circles by the friends of James E. Martine that the "Farmer Orator" of Plainfield is sure of the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Eighth District. They claim he will have the delegates from Rahway, Plainfield and all the townships of Union, together with Orange, South Orange, and most of the townships of Essex.

Elizabeth, it is believed, will elect a majority of Martine's delegates, but Bayonne is as yet an unknown quantity. It is thought that city will have a candidate of its own, perhaps Judge Thomas F. Noonan.

Encouraged here, it is said, that the talk of renominateing ex-Congressman Dunn is all nonsense, and that the latter at present is out of politics. Mr. Dunn is unpopular with the Democrats of Rahway and several of the Union County townships, and they would fight him should he seek a Congressional nomination.

Thomas F. Lape, of Summit, is spoken of as a prospective Senatorial candidate, as is limited ex-Senator Fred C. Marsh has no desire this year to be an aspirant for the place.

So far as Sheriff is concerned, the Democrats are all agreed that he should remain so for some weeks to come.

A Big Stone Contract.

Messrs. A. L. and N. B. Smalley, of the borough, will have completed in a day or two their contract for furnishing 90 tons of crushed stone for the macadamizing of West Eighth street between Plainfield and Grant avenues. The roadbed, when completed, will be a magnificent driveway and one of the most level ones in the city.

AN AWFUL NIGHT OF IT

LOUIS MILLER CLAIMS TO HAVE FALLEN IN WITH A BAD LOT.

After becoming intoxicated He Claims His Companions Stole His Valuables and Then Dumped Him Out into the Road.

It is not a usual sight to see a man, minus one shoe and with his clothes torn, walking down East Front street, but that was what happened Saturday evening, and the pursuer did not seem afraid to use his voice. Patrolman Vanderveer caught the drunk at the corner of Richmond last Saturday evening, when he heard the sound of horse's hoofs and the rattle of a carriage. They were coming at a rather rapid pace, while a voice "sounded in the distance" and "Murder!" and similar remarks. The officer stopped the hack and the man that was following it.

There were three men in the hack, the driver and the two who all appeared quiet. The man who had disturbed the evening quiet with his yells was evidently a German, considerably worse off an encounter with some very lively liquor.

He was in a state of confusion and disarranged while sundry blotches of mud suggested a too close contact with the road. He was greatly excited and tried to tell the officer that somebody had robbed him and threw him out of a hack.

It was too evident that the strong drink had gone to his head, so Patrolman Vanderveer marched him off to the lock-up and ordered the carriage in the hack to appear this morning as witnesses in the case.

When the prisoner recovered from his temporary feebleness, he told the police authorities that his name was Louis Miller and that he lived on Railway road, opposite the old Benton place. He is employed in Rheumatics playing mill.

His story was that Saturday evening he had been drinking at the back of the hotel and had a pleasant evening according to his own ideas. He was first driven to the Manhattan Hotel in the borough and tried to have a good time there. After getting to the hotel he had a drink of fermented fluid he returned to his hack and, so he states, Kennedy returned with three men who unconsciously took possession of the remaining half of his money and threw away from the hack up to East Front street and along that thoroughfare to the little village of Scotch Plains.

They all went into Emery's Hotel and evidently partook of more than their share of the evening's refreshment and returned to the hack up rather unsteadily. Into the hack they all climbed with difficulty and then the hack started towards Plainfield.

Miller went pleasantly for a time when poor Miller was suddenly poked upon by the other men. They went through his pockets, removing watch, about 88 in cash, several insurance papers and Miller's honorable discharge, and started out on their way.

On several occasions Miller had carried considerable sums of money in his left shoe and the men evidently knew this fact, according to Miller, they removed it. He was so dazed that he might have burst some night and Plainfield would have seen another pyrotechnical display to let the people know that a portion of the Felville dam had given way.

The rather damp and muddy place in the road was a most unfavorable ground for the men and he set out in pursuit of the hack, shouting lustily. Then Patrolman Vanderveer appeared on the scene and the rest has been told.

Miller was taken to the lock-up and, notwithstanding his invitation, consisted of Thomas Stephenson, Charles Nelson and Warner Pierson. All except Pierson appeared before City Judge McEwen yesterday morning, and the charge of being drunk, owing up to his part in the affair, and made a counter charge against the witness. They, in turn, declared that they had no objection and pleaded not guilty.

McEwen is said to have ruled in Miller's own shoes and fell out of the hack. His story was, according to them, the creation of a disordered brain. Miller was taken to the lock-up, however, and retained in custody until McNabb to fight the matter to an end. The men were held in $50 bail to appear for trial Saturday morning.

THE CLUBS WILL BE IN IT

VISITING WHEELMEN WILL BE PLENTY AT THE DAYLIGHT CARNIVAL.

Local Wheelmen, Too, Are Taking a Great Interest in the Decorated Part of the Fest. It will surprise the People. Less than two weeks are remaining before Plainfield's great event, the Daylight Bicycle Carnival is to take place. The various sub-committees of the general committee are now hard at work preparing for it. The response from out-of-town clubs is being particularly favorable and Plainfield will have to entertain a larger number of wheelmen than she has seen for some time.

A number of local wheelmen have appointed a committee that they will give their fellow townsmen a big surprise. Elaborate decorations are being quietly planned and only a selected few are told of the secret. For the most part, the decorations are to be placed in the parade and it will be strange if several of the prizes do not remain here.

One well known wheelman came to a member of the local committee, who one day last week, looking as if he had just passed through a long illness. He confidentially told the committee that the cause of his poor appearance was that a great friend had just notified him that he had been elected to the State Prison for serving one year and nine months for entering the residence of G. De Witt Garrettson and stealing family jewelry.

It catarrh is a blood disease, some of the symptoms are frequent urination, a change of air and climate to those suffering; Catarrh is a climatic affection, nothing but the local remedy or a change of climate will cure it. Dr. J. C. Chamberlin is no different as to this. He says he has seen many cases of home and friends, causing instant relief and is the real cure.

Mr. Rhodie Nash, of this place, was taken sick with diarrhoea, and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and she felt better. MARSH WANTS NO OFFICE.

The Elizabeth Man Declares That he is Not Looking for Honor.

Yesterday the New York Tribune was so much said that F. C. Marsh, Elizabeth, had declared that he would vote for Bryan and Sewall because he wanted the Senatorial nomination.

An Elizabeth Journal man saw Mr. Marsh yesterday morning, called his attention to this correspondence. The editor of the paper appeared to be amused, and in reply said: "Well, what do you wish me to say? I am glad to add for any office. Will that do?"

"Then that," I don't know where this came from, except it was written from a little interview I had not a report on this paper. He stopped me on the street and said: "Senator, they say you are going to vote for Bryan and Sewall."

"Well," I replied, "and you ever been elected?" and I said "I was not going to vote for them." "No," said he, "but I knew you were a sound money man, and I supposed you were opposed to Bryan."

Gen. Drake says He Won't Have it Out This Year is Elected. Gen. J. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth, is astonishing everybody by the length of his hair. It is well known that of an ideal football player, and the little General swears he won't have it cut until William J. Bryan is elected President. Gen. Drake is brim full of confidence in the Nebraska man's chances.

WITH THE POLITICIANS.

NEWARK ADVERTISER MAKES SOME UNION COUNTY GUESSES.

York: You have been to stay at home... Will he be induced to take the Senatorial nomination this fall?

If the gold Democrats should decide on a Congressional candidate of their own kind, S. M. Williams, vice-president of the New Jersey Central Railroad, comes first.

The renomination of Charles N. Fowler by the Republicans is assured. It is simply a matter of the formality of the convention.

The Republicans are urging the renomination of Senator Foster M. Voorhees, whose modesty compels him to decline the honor.

The following is a list of the candidates for the legislative session. I prefer to stay at home and practice law.

Assemblyman J. Martin Roll, who led the trolley fight in the Legislature, will be a candidate.

There seems to be lots of men in the county who know a good thing, judging by the list of men who want to be elected.

There are some bicyclists who are not favorable to him because of his trolley agitation, but otherwise it is said there is no opposition to him.

DEATH TO CHEAT LAW.

ONE OF THE AGED DUNHAM ASSAILANTS FOUND ON HIS DEATH BED.

Though weak and the hands of death hovering over him, he professed innocence of the heinous accusation.

Though death will doubtless remove him from the clutches of the law, Chief Grant is positive that he has located one of the two negroes who committed the murderous assault on Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Dunham, an aged couple living near New Market, on November 1, 1899.

It was a great sensation in this vicinity at the time by reason of its brutal character. But lying on his back in a cot in the Mercer hospital in Trenton, his constitution ravaged by consumption, his face yellow and haggard, his voice weak and faltering, with the hand of death ready to sweep him into eternity at almost any moment, James Johnson still protests, as he has done so many times, that he is innocent.

CHARLES S. A. DAVIS PASSES AWAY AFTER A LONG LIFE.

Had not been seriously sick and his death came as a surprise—known as a man of energy and intellect.

By the death of Charles Sherlock Austin Davis, which occurred at his home, 129 Watchung avenue, at 7:25 o'clock Sunday night, Plainfield loses one of its oldest and most respected citizens.

His death was not expected. But he passed away surrounded by kind and loving members of his household, and was conscious until the last.

The decedent's illness was of long standing but it was not until last Tuesday evening that he was considered in any way dangerous.

Dr. W. C. Boone was called in, and did all in his power to save the patient's life, but it was in vain, and he passed quietly away.

Friday he was taken with a hemorrhage of the nose, yet on Saturday he rallied and was apparently better.

At 3:30 o'clock his lungs opened and his death followed soon afterward. The funeral will be Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The surviving members of the family are two sons, Thomas H. B. Davis of Sandusky, Ohio, vice-president of the Middletown Plate Co., of Middletown, Conn., and Major Charles E. L. B. Davis of the engineering corps, U. S. Army, at New York.

He was also survived by his wife, Mrs. Davis, and two daughters, Miss Louise S. and Miss Ellen Fitch Davis, both of whom live at home.

Mr. Davis departed this life some five years ago, at the age of 72, after a long illness. He was born in the town of New York, Dec. 11th, 1827, and he was therefore eighty-eight years and eight months old at the time of his death.

He was the son of John and Mary Fitch Davis, who lived in the town of New York, and he had lived there up to seventeen years of this spring when he came to Plainfield.

He was a well-to-do man, and he had a large real estate and insurance business in the town of his birth, and had lived there up to seventeen years of this spring when he came to Plainfield.

CLUBHOUSE SITE CHOSEN.

HILLSIDE MEMBERS WILL HAVE NEW QUARTERS AT RANDOLPH ROAD.

The structure will be ready for occupancy the first week in September and will be ready for the first week in September.

Unless something unexpected happens, the new clubhouse on the Hillside Tennis and Golf club will be ready for occupancy during the first week in September.

A meeting of the directors of the club was held the first of the week when the exact site for the clubhouse was decided upon. It will be placed on Plainfield avenue, one hundred and twenty-six feet from the road and exactly at the head of Randolph road.

The building is not large and work will be begun at once so that it is hoped that it will be completed before Labor Day.

An opening has been planned when the Plainfield people will be invited to take a look at the new clubhouse.

The tennis courts of the club are to be changed from their present location on Watchung avenue to the grounds near the club house.

There are no special golf matches arranged at present but the golf committee expect to have several more before the season is over.

A NOTABLE DEFEAT. The Borough Public School Membership Much Lower This Year.

According to the last census the decrease in membership in the borough public school this year will be about 1000. It was a notable defeat.

The school has been thoroughly overhauled and is now in good condition for the coming year.

Dr. Warde, the new principal, is expected to arrive in a few days, and he will at once prepare to open the school.

Among the new teachers at the school is Miss Alice Neeldin, who has been teaching at the Greenbrook school. She is thoroughly competent and has met with remarkable success in teaching.

She will have charge of one of the lower grade classes.

REPUBLICAN DELEGATES. North Plainfield Primaries Select Representatives to the State Convention.

The Republican primaries in North Plainfield were held in the basement of the school building on Saturday evening, and the attendance was unusually large.

There was no opposition to the selections, so they were made unanimous. Dr. Cooley was mentioned as a candidate, but he declined.
