Miss Rounsevell's Story of Her Courtship By Deeming.

SHE PROMISED TO MARRY HIM.
Gave Her His Murdered Wife's Ring and One Which He Stole.

Also Offered Her a Lot of Clothes, Which He Said Had Belonged to a Sister of His, But Which He Had Since Been Informed Had Belonged to the Murdered Wife.

The Story of His Career in California Not Credited in Australia—He Is Here.

London, April 19.—A despatch from Melbourne gives the particulars of the courtship of Miss Rounsevell, daughter of Mr. J. H. Deeming, as related by herself.

Miss Rounsevell stated that she was traveling from Sydney to Sydney on the steamer Adelaide, which called at Melbourne on January 12. After the steamer Melbourne was fitted up, a gentleman who was passing stopped and asked her whether she was a widow.

She replied in the negative. The same gentleman subsequently asked her to join in a game of whist, but she declined. He then asked her to stay at Sydney. I said no, that I was going to join my sister at Melbourne.

He then said that he was going to take me and would branch off at Melbourne. He explained that he was an engineer and had just recently come out from England.

On Sydney I stayed at the same hotel as Swanton—the Wentworth House. The premier told me that Mr. Swanton was a wealthy and owned property in Melbourne.

On January 15th, I traveled with Swanton from Sydney to Bathurst. On the way I saw in a newspaper a list of the passengers who had arrived on the Adelaide, and observed that Swanton was not there.

The next morning I was asked a question on the subject he told me that his cousin was accounted for by the fact that he had been informed after the trial that Swanton was on the board.

While we were in Sydney Swanton gave me a ring. In the afternoon of the same day he asked me to marry him. I replied that I did not intend to marry, and that I was not going to keep the ring as a memento of our acquaintance.

He then gave me a small open box containing a diamond ring. He told me that I looked fatigued and that he would like to see me again. I replied that I would like to see him again, but I did not intend to.

On the morning of the 16th I called upon him three times, and was admitted on the third occasion. He was staying at the Royal Hotel. He told me that he was a wealthy man and that he had been married to a woman who had been murdered.

He said he had bought the rings for a lady to whom he had been engaged in England. He said that he had been told that she had been murdered, and that he had been told that she had been murdered.

He said he had been told that she had been murdered, and that he had been told that she had been murdered. He said he had been told that she had been murdered, and that he had been told that she had been murdered.

THE LATE ALEXANDER MCKENZIE

Sketch of the Life of the Ex-Premier of Canada Whose Death Occurred Sunday.

Toronto, Ont., April 19.—Hon. Alexander McKenzie, ex-Premier of Canada, whose death was reported Sunday, was born in Perthshire, Scotland, on January 28, 1823.

His father was a farmer and an architect and contractor, and intended his son to follow the same vocation. He had acquired a common school education but was not content with this.

He continued his studies at the old cathedral city of Dundee and at Perth. In 1848 he emigrated to Canada, settling in Kingston, Ont., the home then of a trio of men who were likewise distinguished themselves in Canadian politics.

These were Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Alexander Campbell and the Hon. Oliver Mowat. After a short time Mr. McKenzie returned to Canada, but set up in business as a contractor.

Later, in 1852, he was the editor of the "Lambton Echo," a paper which was published in Lambton County. From 1857 to 1873 he was the leader of the reform party in the House of Commons, and in November, 1873, forced Sir John A. Macdonald to resign.

The leader was called upon to form a new ministry. The government was dissolved, and in the elections of 1874 the new government was sustained by a large majority.

The Conservative Party then began a campaign for a "national policy" and higher duties upon imports, and in the elections of August, 1878, the Liberal Government was defeated and Sir John A. Macdonald returned to power.

The deal statesman was regarded generally as one of the ablest and most upright of men who have served Canada's history, and during his long illness was the object of widespread sympathy.

ATTACHED EASTER GOWNS

Start Wade Takes Further Revenge on a Fashionable Chicago Dressmaker.

Chicago, April 19.—Start Wade, the young Englishman who recently horse-whipped J. A. Cummings, manager of Modista Kate Kelly's New York establishment, took a further and dreadful revenge on the dressmaker Saturday night.

The horse-whipping was the result of the discharge of Mrs. Wade, who claimed to have been sent from London under false pretenses. Mrs. Wade submitted a bill for $200 for services which was entirely ignored.

Saturday was the busiest day of the year in the Kelly establishment. Towards evening a score of beautiful Easter gowns were ready for delivery. Just then a constable and Mr. Wade entered the house and attached the gowns.

Miss Oddie, the manager, first stormed and then pleaded, but Wade was relentless. He seized the gowns, but he said she must settle in court. He wanted a patrol wagon to drive up and take the gowns, and he wanted to take her to the police station.
