SAVED HER EMPLOYER'S PROPERTY.

Thomas E. Peaton's Barn is Destroyed by Fire on Saturday Night and a Jeweled Arrived Servant Girl, With Great Loss of Time, Saved His Horse, Wagon, Sleigh and Harness From Destruction.

Saturday night, at a few minutes past seven an alarm of fire sounded by the North Plainfield steam gong, brought everyone in a hurry. The alarm came from the country east of Thomas H. Peaton, No. 112 Rockview avenue, whose barn was on fire.

The fire department quickly hurried to the conflagration, but it was fully ten minutes before they could reach on account of the poor condition of the roads. When they finally arrived at the fire, the flames had reached too great a headway to be stopped, so the streams of water were used to prevent the fire from spreading.

Mr. Peaton says that the servants had just finished their supper and had gone to bed, when the door heard a rushing noise. Upon investigating, he found the interior of the barn on fire. He alarmed the rest of the household and ran to send in the alarm. While he was so engaged, a servant girl, who had only just come from New York that afternoon, rushed into the burning building and with the risk of her life got the horses and carriages out in safety.

The girl, who did this heroic act, is a Swedish. She has not been in this country a short time and says she never was at a fire before in her life. Mr. Peaton is speaking about her work as a thought from the way it was done, that one of his men was doing it and that was very much surprised to learn afterwards that the safety of his valuable horse was due to the presence of mind of his new servant.

The fire continued to burn until the entire barn was consumed, only a portion of the remaining stable being left. The steamer stayed until the building fell in and all danger was over, but the horse company remained until the last vestige of fire was out.

It is impossible to estimate the loss. The horses, wagon, sleighs and harness were saved, but a great quantity of hay and grain, as well as some worth of personal property belonging to Mr. Peaton, were destroyed. The loss of the horse company estimated the damage at about $5,000. The building was fully insured.

How the fire started is a mystery. It is said that there was no fire in the barn store at the time, and it is the common belief that the fire was of incendiary origin. The insurance adjusting committee is a few days away from the matter will be thoroughly investigated.

A WORD TO THE CRESCENT LEAGUE.

If You Succeed in Effecting a Re-organization the Following is My Intention.

If the members of the Crescent League succeed in holding that organization together and attempt a re-organization, there are some lessons easy to read, which their past experiences warn them should be heeded. There is no question that the organization principle of the League as it stands to-day is not calculated to build up permanently a club in a city the size of Plainfield.

The Courier is reliably informed that there are many worthy men in Plainfield who have been unable in the past to become members of the League simply because the personal prejudices of a few members was sufficient to keep them out. Then, too, certain men have become members who are not calculated to enter into the proper club spirit, sufficient to induce them to pay up their just dues to it.

There are no large clubs of dignity and permanent standing which do not have a governing committee to whom are referred all applications for membership. Usually these applications are passed on the club's bulletin where every member has the opportunity to see them. If any member has an objection to a candidate he states it in writing (confidentially, of course), to the governing committee. These objections, if serious and founded upon valid grounds, are investigated by the governing committee and the applicant is either accepted or rejected. Thus, it is easy to see that objections merely personal are not apt to gain much in the minds of a judiciously selected Board of Governors. Men who are worthy do not run the chance of having the mean personal spite of some member vented against them in the governing committee.

Now, let the re-organizers of the League consider this proposition. Will the League consider the same on its rolls the name of every business man of standing in the town? It should be a thoroughly representative Plainfield institution. It can never become such as it is at present organized. It can become such, if wise counsel prevails and the experience of similar organizations is taken as a basis for re-organization.

Plainfield Means of Eight Side Parties.

Saturday night there were sleighing parties galloping for a time. The looting of horse seemed to indicate that Plainfield was the Mecca of fun lovers, and it was for some of them.

A party of twenty from Fort Amby, chartered by W. B. Popham and wife, reached the city about seven o'clock and stopped at the Hotel Grand. The crowd was drawn by four horses and had a good time. The party stayed in town till nearly eleven o'clock and then returned home.

Among the residents of the following gentlemen: Dr. Ramsay, W. B. Popham, S. E. Andry, E. M. Popham, John Watson, L. C. Parker, F. Correll, D. Thompson and Margaret Stevens.

A PLEASANT AFTERNOON CONCERT.

Miss Ketchum and Her Pupils Under a Schubert's Sonata to Their Friends.—The Entertainment Greatly Enjoyed by All.

On Saturday afternoon, Miss Julia Fernald Ketchum gave a Schubert's musical for the benefit of her friends at her residence, No. 31 East Fifth street. She was assisted by a number of her pupils and together they gave a delightful entertainment. There were about fifty present comprising many of the lovers of music in this city. The programme consisted of vocal and instrumental music from the great composer.

The programme began with a sketch of the life of Schubert, which was read by Miss Alice Carroll. She spoke of prominent incidents in his life, from his birth in 1797 to his death. She told of his struggles with poverty and of his indomitable perseverance in the pursuit of his profession. Schubert wrote one hundred songs, but it is a peculiar fact that only two of them were written for female voices.

After this reading, there came a piano solo, "Moment Musical," by Miss Carrie C. Dewey. Miss Dewey's reputation as a talented pianist was only enhanced by her excellent rendering of this delightful selection. Miss Fannie K. Noble then sang two songs, "The Last Greeting," and "Impatience." Her singing showed an intelligent conception of the spirit of the song and was very satisfactory. Then followed a "Serenade" by Miss Ketchum. A programme by Miss Ketchum's pupils without a song by the teacher would be disappointing. The skill with which this well known local musician handles her voice and the amount of feeling she is able to impart to the songs she sings were characteristic of this number. It was most a delightful song and afforded the keenest satisfaction to her hearers.

The next number were two songs, "Hail, Hark," by Miss Beale Blair, and "Sylvia," by Miss Beale Blair. These were very effectively rendered with feeling and brilliancy. A chorus came next and it was made up of seven ladies: the Misses Elizabeth D. Way, Beale Blair, Fannie K. Noble, Florence Abbott, Alice Carroll, Carrie C. Dewey and Mary W. Ketchum. Their voices blended harmoniously. The song was "Coronach," from "The Lady of the Lake."

Then Carrie Dewey then sang two selections entitled "Her Portrait" and "The Maiden's Lament." They were pathetic songs, forming a fitting picture of a lost love. Miss Dewey's voice is nicely adapted to the rendering of pathetic pieces, and she listened to with close attention. Then followed a piano solo "Impromptu" by Miss Kate Bigelow. This selection was "The Song of Schopenhauer," is one of Schopenhauer's favorite numbers.

The next selection, "Ave Maria," was sung by Miss Alice Carroll. It is one of Schubert's most popular and most beloved songs. It was most carefully and acceptably rendered and the audience watched with interest the performance of the young singer. The closing piece, "The King," was sung by Miss Ketchum with dramatic strength. It was a very fine story and entitled Miss Ketchum to much credit for her skillful rendering of a song that was written for a male voice. Miss Ketchum's pupils were well appreciated in their interpretation of the difficult selections and their singing elicited frequent applause throughout the programme.

Among those present were: Mrs. Charles Crawford, Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Carroll, Mrs. Dr. T. S. Davis, Mrs. Anna Carroll, Miss Anna O. Marsh, Mrs. M. E. Mearns, Mrs. Katrina Haff, Miss Blanche Fellows, Mrs. Charles Abbott, Mr. Daniel E. Davis.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHERS TO MEET.

The State League, of which O. S. Tule, of this City, is President, will be the guests of the Plainfield Camera Club on Thursday Evening.

On Thursday, January 19, the New Jersey State League of Amateur Photographers will be the guests of the Plainfield Camera Club. Delegates from all field cameras in the State will be present and the provision will be made for 150 visitors.

The delegates are expected to reach the city about half past seven o'clock. They will come from Newark on the special train and will be accompanied by members of the Society of Amateur Photographers of New York City. Members of the Plainfield Club will be taken across the street to the room of the Republican Association, where a bountiful collation will be enjoyed.

The menu card is the charge of Richard Stevens, who is getting up something novel. When completed, Andrew Garret will make a drawing of it, the full size of a sheet of cardboard. The will be photographed and from the negative thus obtained, Mrs. Pratt will be made and given to each guest as a memento of the occasion. O. S. Tule, president of the Camera Club, is also president of the League. He and Carl Gottlieb, the only other member from the Plainfield Club, will do all in their power to make their fellow delegates feel at home.

Paying His Respects to the Plainfielders.

Officer Charles Glone has been busy engaged upon Friday by paying his respects to the residents of Plainfield, and in doing so in his quiet way a desire to have the sidewalks and gutters of the city freed from ice and snow. This morning, his requests are being heeded and the noise of the pick and shovel is heard in the land.

THE PLAINFIELD COURIER, MONDAY, JANUARY 16, 1893.

WINTER WEATHER IN YEARS.

The history, in substance, is as follows: "Pardon, please, I am a New York man, and I am thinking it is a very high degree of honor that my life is in your hands in the City."

The daily papers of this morning contained many reports of the cold weather throughout the United States. All agreed that the present cold snap is the coldest experienced in years. "The Hudson river at Yonkers which at that time is over a mile wide and very deep, is frozen clear across and the ice is of sufficient thickness to hold the weight of heavy teams. Such a thing has not happened before in many years. The river-water at that point is very salt, and seldom freezes except close to the shore."

All residents of Plainfield will agree that the weather has been cold since Friday. During that night the mercury went down to two degrees and many people thought it was awful. During Saturday the highest point reached was seventeen above. Saturday night, the mercury only went up a few degrees, and yesterday it went up to 25, making the weather seasonable and pleasant. But during the past night, in accordance with the weather prediction of Farmer Dan, the mercury went down, down, down this morning the thermometer said that when they first came out, it registered eight degrees below zero. Gee whit!

Miss Laveney's Birthday Party.

Miss Lavinia Laveney, of No. 161 Park avenue, gave a very pleasant birthday party on Saturday evening. A large number of young people gathered to wish her many happy returns of the day, and the evening was spent in singing and dancing. The music was furnished by the well-known and popular musician, Andrew G. Carpenter. A very dainty supper was served.

Among those present were Frank Tinsman, Miss Beba Tinsman and Robert L. Coates, of Philadelphia, and Miss Clara Williams, Miss Ella Gardner, Miss Adeline Bausley, Miss Lavinia Laveney, Miss Cora Gardner, Miss Florence Smith, Miss Caroline Laveney, William Seguin, George A. Rockford, Miss Lavinia Laveney, Frank Van, Joseph Fuller G. E. Fuller and Frank Howland.

D. S. M. C. W. Tallman and Staff Finished Their Work.

This week will finish the semi-annual visitations of D. G. M. C. W. Tallman and Staff of this city. This evening they go to Elizabeth and install the officers of Franklin Lodge, No. 9; on Wednesday night they are expected at Roselle, where the officers of No. 120 will be installed. Their last visit will be made to Lodge No. 43, at Somerville, on Friday night, when they will install the officers in the usual manner.

There are eleven Odd Fellows Lodges in this district, of which two are in Plainfield, four in Somerville, one each in Westfield, Somerville, White House, Rahway and Perth Amboy. This district, No. 10, is considered the largest in the State, and the members of the staff are glad that their visitations are about over.

Shades Will Not Get Drowned Here.

By the middle of this week it is hoped that the improvised skating pond of the Crescent League which it is proposed to make on the old ball grounds in the borough, will be ready for use. To flood the ground, at least 1,500,000 gallons of water will be required, and there will be sufficient skating surface for 1,000 persons at a time. As no place will be so over eight inches in thickness and as it will be solid throughout there will be no danger of breaking through. It is proposed to charge a small admission fee and to have the grounds open afternoons and evenings during the week. At night the out-of-door risk will be limited by electricity.

The old Everyday Postage Stamp Still on Sale.

It may not be generally known that the Columbian stamps which have just been issued, do not displace the postage stamps formerly in use. Both varieties are to be had at the post office, and it is a matter of choice as to which kind shall be used.

These Columbian stamps, it is said, are the second jubilee stamps ever issued by any country in the world since postage stamps came into use. England honored the fiftieth year of Queen Victoria's reign by a set of Jubilee stamps in 1867, and they are still in use. Most of them are printed in two colors. The Columbian stamps are to be on sale for the balance of this year.

The Mares Made a Sticky Run and Warned By His Stock a Little.

This morning the horse of George Feller, the butcher, ran away on Park avenue, going through Front and Somerset streets to Feller's market where he was stopped. The horse became frightened when near the railroad bridge and though Mr. Feller was in the sleigh as the time he could get no control of the beast. At the City Park avenue to Front street the bystanders expected to see Feller thrown out. Carriage which happened to be standing near the bridge, the driver escaped a collision. Quite a crowd had gathered to see the result.

Was It an Earthquake Shock?

About half past eight, last night, a heavy rumbling noise accompanied by a rattling of windows was heard by many residents of this city. The noise seemed to come from the west and travel towards the east. The disturbance lasted for about three seconds and many think that it must have been a slight earthquake shock.
