DROWNED LIKE RATS
Two More Horrible Disasters In Pennsylvania.
MINERS CAUGHT IN A FLOOD.
Seventeen Perish at Jeannette and Three Near Nanticoke.

Somebody to Blame for Both Accidents
Narrow Escape of a Large Number of Men—More Heartrending Scenes by Wives and Children—Wives Will Face Before the Bodies are Recovered.

WHITE HAVEN, Pa., Feb. 5.—At 11 o'clock in the morning, while Charles Boyle and Patrick Coll of Leiston were engaged in drilling a hole in the chamber in No. 10 slope of J. C. Hayden & Co.'s mine at Jeannette, they broke into the old No. 8 slope, which had been idle for five years and which had been flooded to the mouth with water.

William Brislin, a driver, was close by and he cried out: "Boys, for God's sake, run for your lives or you will be drowned!" In a moment later the water came and Brislin barely escaped with his life. It sides him, six others escaped. They are: Henry Gibson, John Nelme, John and Charles Doyle, Williams, Coll and Patrick Coll. The water rose rapidly, and before any attempt could be made to rescue the other workmen the slope, which is 624 feet deep, was flooded to the mouth and they were caught and drowned.

The Death Roll.
The following is a list of those who lost their lives:
Edward Gallagher, Henry Ball, married; James Griffith, married; Joseph Mincovitz, Lawrence Reed, Wail Fink, Joseph Bernick, McClokey, John Tomasko, Patrick Kelly, Thomas Jake, John Barnes, James Balack, Michael Smith, Joseph Ward, Samuel Porter, and Mike Polak.

Mothers and Children Crying.
The news of the disaster caused great excitement, and the mouth of the slope opened, the families of the workmen and relatives of the workmen and others. The scenes, when it was positively known who were lost, were heart-rending.

Wives implored piteously of the miners standing by, who knew only too well the fatal result, to save their husbands from the terrors of a watery grave, little children crying for their papas, and relatives praying for the safety of their loved ones. The sorrowing wives, relatives and friends were finally convinced that there was no hope of rescuing any of the men, and were led away from the scene of this new mining horror by sympathetic hands to their homes.

Trying to Recover the Bodies.
A large force of men was immediately put to work pumping out the water. How long it will take is a question, since no definite idea of the volume of water can be ascertained. Some of the miners say it will take four weeks before the bodies can be recovered, but others incline to the opinion that it will take much longer.

A Race for Life.
Brislin, one of the men who escaped, said to a reporter: "I was waiting at the bottom of the slope for a trip to come out. Then a frightful lamp was hurled and knocked me down the gangway. The wind blew my lamp out. I tried to run for the slope, but stumbled and fell. Then John Boyle and John Neime came running after me, rising very quickly. In and by the aid of this we got to the slope. The water came pouring after us as we ran. When we got to the slope the light went out. We clambered up as fast as we could and the water came rushing after us, rising very quickly. In five minutes the water raised 203 yards to the mouth of the slope, the pitch of which is 83 degrees."

Probably Caused by Neglect.
Many reasons are advanced as to the cause of the great disaster. Some charge it to neglect to notify the workmen of the dangerous profits of the water, as only a few of the old miners knew of the presence of the great body of water in the old slope. Even those that knew of it had no idea that the workings were driven as near to the water as they were.

The civil engineer in charge of the Jeannette mines was a man from Pottsville named La Ferre Wolensdorf.

AND STILL ANOTHER.
Three Men Lost Their Lives in a Mine Near Nanticoke.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 5.—A cave-in occurred in No. 8 slope at Grand Tunnel, opposite Nanticoke, and three men are shut up in the mine.

In an abandoned part of the mine, which was closed, was a great body of water. In the adjoining chamber a number of miners were at work blasting. An unusually heavy charge was fired, and so thinned the wall that the heavy volume of water burst its way through.

Some of the miners were given warning, and they ran for their lives ahead of the rushing flood. Three miners, John Riser, Mike Shelauk and William Cragle did not hear the warning in time, and were closed in in their chambers. The men were all married and leave large families.

The subterranean workings, covering scores of acres, are rapidly filling with water.

UNIONTOWNSHIP, Pa., Feb. 5.—David M. Daniels is in jail here, the two chief witnesses against him being the woman who was supposed to be his wife and her 17-year-old daughter, Joseph Evans, a well-known Welsh singer, who is the prosecutor charging that Daniels has a wife and family in Wales.

At the hearing the woman testified that she was the wife of Charles Evans, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and that Daniels, who boarded with them had induced her to elope and come to Uniontown. Some time ago she discovered that Daniels was having improper relations with her daughter, and the latter confessed to this at the hearing.

Daniels was remanded to jail to await trial on three charges. Since being in Uniontown he has been an exhorter at the church services. He got behind in his accounts with the Rockwell Insurance Company and his brother-in-law, the church indorsed a note for him for $50, which, when due, they had to pay.

WORLD'S FAIR TROUBLES.
Director-General Davis Threatens to Resign Unless Congress Pays His Salary.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Director-General Davis of the World's Fair, has given it out plainly that if no appropriation for his salary is made by Congress he will resign, as he does not propose to be simply a salaried officer of the local directors. He says he is the only officer of the National Commission, and not of the local directors, and should Mr. Candler's attempt to denationalize his position be successful, he will resign.

About the induction of the appropriation bill by the House, the commission already has money enough to hold the session it has contemplated in April.

FRIDELAND, Pa., Feb. 5.—A romantic elopement of a young man and woman to light. The principals are Walter Eaton, a young New York merchant, and Miss Maud Lillenthal, of Yorkers.

It appears that the girl's mother recently tried to break up the engagement between the two, owing to the intervention of a millionaire sailor, Miss Lillenthal's father, who is a partner in the house to meet her father. Her mother followed her, but was detained by Eaton until her daughter got into a cab, when he also got into it, and the lovers got married near Pittsburg. They subsequently returned to the city of the girl's mother. Both are said to be well known in New York society.

WASHINGTON TOPICS
Senator Stewart's Plan to Bring Up the Silver Bill.

A DIRECT ISSUE WITH THE HOUSE
He Introduces a Free Coinage Amendment to the Pension Bill.

The Senate Passes the Fortifications Appropriation Bill—Mr. McAdoo Talks About Reciprocity in the House—The Farmers' Alliance Presidents Holding a Conference.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The complicated state of affairs on the Senate Silver bill in the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures has caused Senator Stewart to resort to a device somewhat practiced in Congress to secure speedy action on a bill.

Mr. Stewart has come to the conclusion that the fate of the Silver bill is jeopardized in the House Committee, and in order to prevent unfavorable action on it he made a movement to take it out of that committee by submitting the Silver bill as an amendment intended to be proposed to the Pension Appropriation bill. The amendment was referred to the Appropriation Committee, and whether the committee agrees to report it favorably or not Mr. Stewart can call it up in the Senate while the Pension bill is under discussion.

If it should be passed by the Senate (and there is every reason to believe it will be), the amendment, as part of the Pension bill, will be called up and voted on as a part of the Pension bill. Jurisdiction can in this way be taken from the Coinage Committee.

IN SENATE AND HOUSE.
The Fortifications and Military Academy Appropriation Bills Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—In the Senate, the credentials of Jacob M. Gallinger as a Senator from New Hampshire were presented and read.

There were several heated passages between Mr. McAdoo and Cockrell, owing to the latter's severe criticism of Mr. Edward Atkinson's views and actions on the silver and other economic questions. Mr. Dawes defended Mr. Atkinson as one of his constituents, although he was of the opposite political affiliation. The only object of the discussion was to amuse the Senate.

The Fortifications Appropriation bill was then considered, and a number of committee amendments were agreed to. The bill was passed, and the Military Academy Appropriation bill was reported and passed, and the Pension Appropriation bill was taken up, but went over as unfinished business.

In the House, J. A. Owensby, the silver pool witness, was, by resolution, discharged from the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms.

In Committee of the Whole, on the Appropriation and Coinage Appropriation bills, Mr. McAdoo said that he highly approved of the letter of the Secretary of State to Mr. Baker, of New York, on Canadian reciprocity, in which he stated that the contention of the Canadian officials was given up, the United States was anxious for partial reciprocity, was untrue. Continuing, he said that the United States should have unrestricted trade and commercial union, or that it should have no commercial dealings with any nation. The bill was then laid aside with favorable recommendations, and the committee proceeded to a consideration of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill.

After a long discussion the committee arose, and the Diplomatic Appropriation bill was passed.

MARRIED ONCE A WEEK.
A Baltimore Couple Practise a New Game on Church Organizations.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 5.—The charity organizations report a remarkable case of roguery in which a couple were married once a week or oftener, and their children baptized dozens of times to impose upon the charities.

A middle-aged man appeared in the study of a South Baltimore clergyman last week and said he had been living with a woman not his wife for some years and that they had four children. He was now destitute and it assisted him would begin life anew and give the woman and children his name.

The clergyman acted at once, appealed to the generosity of his parishioners, and a sum of money was contributed to the bride and groom so soon as the ceremony was performed. They would like to save their children baptized. This brought forth another array of presents.

A day or two later the case excited suspicion. Inquiry disclosed that the couple had been married 22 times, and that their children had been baptized 27 times. They worked their lodge in different parts of the town and in neighboring cities. They have slipped.

A TIE-UP THREATENED.
Over 25,000 Men May Go Out on the Pennsylvania System.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 5.—The probability of a tie-up on the vast Pennsylvania system is increasing. The trouble between the company and its men has reached a point where it is not settled by next Monday the men will strike—if a their threats mean anything.

The men declare they will tolerate no further delay, and that parrying of officials must cease. It was hoped that the meetings of the Superintendents of the Northwest and Southwest systems would result in something decisive, but when the Superintendents adjourned they refused to make known what had been done.

The workmen accept this as evidence that the company's policy is one of delay, and are exasperated thereby. The Committee on Grievances say that the dissatisfied men number 30,000, and are determined to secure adequate treatment. They are asking for an increase of wages, and engineers, firemen, brakemen, switchmen and conductors are all involved.

THE TORIES TRIUMPH
Gladstone's Religious Disabilities Bill Defeated.

CROWDS THROUGED THE HOUSE.
The Liberal Statesman in Fine Form and Made an Eloquent Speech.

An Electric Lamp Burns and Causes Havoc at a Banquet—King Humbert Makes Another Effort to Secure a Premier—An Insuperable Priest Creates a Furore in Ireland—Deaths at Oporee.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—Mr. Gladstone's motion to amend the second reading of the bill to remove religious disabilities, was rejected by the House of Commons by a vote of 234 to 223.

Mr. Gladstone rose in fine form and throughout his speech advocating the second reading of his bill he showed no signs of weakness or wavering, and was apparently as fresh when he sat down as when he began. A full house listened with the closest attention, and "hear, hear," and murmurs of satisfaction greeted his statement that he was satisfied by no thought of disturbing the Act of Settlement or the religious position of the sovereign, the religious position of the crown, or the position of the Church of England.

The Tories had evidently come prepared to open their heaviest batteries on Mr. Gladstone's proposition and to take advantage of the feeling which it had aroused, both among the churchmen and non-conformists. Some surprise was felt that Home Secretary Matthews, the Roman Catholic member of the Cabinet, should be present under the circumstances, and in his absence to the Serjeant-at-Law, Mr. Balfour.

While the Tory speakers abstained from religion or dogmatic argument, they insisted that the security of the empire demanded that the established and fundamental institutions should not be tampered with. They referred to the recent Irish elections as a proof of the political power of the priests over the electorate in that island.

The fire was subdued after the hall had been partly destroyed, and the banquet, of course, was abandoned.

An Insuperable Priest.
LONDON, Feb. 5.—Belfast, Ireland, had a remarkable sensation during the day, in the spectacle of a Roman Catholic priest, entirely divested of clothing, dancing in the principal streets. While he was dancing, who is the Marquis of Bute, dancing before the Ark of God. He proved to be violently insane.

It is also stated that the McCarthy's are in favor of dropping Timothy Healy.

THE DAILY PRESS.

W. L. & A. L. FISKE, Publishers and Proprietors.

J. A. DENHAM, Managing Editor.

BY THE WAY.

W. E. Smith of Marlville has leased the Washington stone quarry, back of North Plainfield.

Don't miss attending the Crescent League fair that opens in the new clubhouse this evening.

The reception and membership committees of the Young Men's Christian Association will meet at the rooms to-night.

Councilman Roberts kindly lent his twenty-four dollar flag to some organization, a few weeks ago, to decorate with. He would like them to bring it back now.

Pupils are received at any time at Miss Fawcett's Kindergarten and school, 48 Craig place, near Grove street. Thorough instruction is given at reasonable rates.

This was probably the coldest morning of the season. The thermometer was within ten degrees of zero, and would have reached that depth if there had been snow on the ground.

Quantities of pretty things at reasonable prices, many novel features, a change of entertainment each evening and other attractions will well repay a visit to the Crescent League fair.

Young men are invited to hear Dr. Tomlinson's talk on "Physical Degeneracy" at the Young Men's Christian Association rooms this evening at eight o'clock. Admission will be free.

The regular sewing meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society will be held to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. All the ladies of the congregation are cordially invited.

The Elizabeth Herald, as a result of its first glimpse of the home of Plainfield's Union County Country Club, remarks that "The Casino is one of the prettiest halls in the State, and from an acoustic point of view is almost perfect."

At the Warren Union Mission to-night, the Y. P. S. of C. E. will hold a "Dime Sociable," the proceeds of which will be devoted to the purchase of a new organ. The committee in charge have arranged a very pleasing programme, consisting of music, dialogues and readings, assisted by John Carney. A general invitation is extended to all who wish to spend a pleasant evening.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Day is acting principal of Franklin school during Miss Bullock's absence because of sickness.

Miss Sarah Murphy, of New York, is visiting her cousin, Miss Anna Buckley of West Fourth street.

Mrs. J. J. H. Poffon is so very ill that a consultation was held at her home on Putnam avenue, yesterday, at which were present some of the most celebrated specialists of New York.

S. A. Haines of this city spoke in the Second Presbyterian church, Indianapolis, Sunday morning, Feb. 1. His subject was, "Tears, or Stop Crying."

The Indianapolis Sentinel of the next morning, devoted a half column to the talk.

The New York Committee for the Prevention of State Regulation of Vice and the Promotion of Social Purity will hold its fifteenth annual meeting and subscription anniversary in the parlors of the Isaac T. Hopper Home, No. 110 Second avenue, New York city, Tuesday evening, February 17, at eight o'clock. Among the speakers for the evening will be the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Plainfield Seventh-Day Baptist church, and editor Aaron M. Powell, of East Sixth street.

Senator Keys Will Keep His Seat.

Fortunately for the dignity of the Senate, Mr. Keys, of Somerset county, does not share the fine sense of humor which prompted the President of the Senate to put him on the Elections Committee. Mr. Keys has refused to act on the contest for his own seat, and a special committee has been appointed to go through the formality of keeping out the ambitious Republican who wants the place. Of course Mr. Keys will keep his seat, but he will do so with more decorum than he would if he were capable of carrying on such a "joke" as Senator Adrian perpetrated in putting Keys and McDonald, and all men in the Senate, on the Elections Committee.

The Papers All Oppose the Evil.

Just now the whole cry is against winter racing as if that was the great evil. It isn't. It is no greater evil than summer racing, except that there is a little more cruelty about it, and not so much more either. The whole business is wrong. Judge Van Dyke is right when he said that the whole influence of the race tracks was "for evil and for evil only" and Judge Dixon was right in saying that they are "pest holes." Not one honest New Jersey newspaper is in favor of allowing this giant evil a foothold anywhere in this State.

HOW SHE WAS FOUND.

Lella Highsmith Had Been Working as a Domestic in the Van Court Inn.

The whereabouts of Lella Highsmith, the young girl who has been missing from Plainfield, was discovered at 1 o'clock yesterday, and published in THE PRESS of the same date.

Harry W. Pope, proprietor of the Van Court Inn in Roselle, came to the County Clerk's office in Elizabeth and informed Assistant County Clerk Moffett, with whose family the girl had lived, that Miss Highsmith was at his place working as a domestic.

She reached the hotel on last Friday soaking wet and said she had tramped all the way from Plainfield in the storm. She was rather excited and said she could no longer live at home doing nothing, but wanted to earn her own living. She declined to say who her relatives were, but asked for employment in the hotel.

Mr. Pope put her to work on trial, and was highly satisfied at the way she performed her duties. When he heard yesterday through THE PRESS story about Miss Highsmith's disappearance he at once identified his servant as the missing girl. He questioned her and she admitted that she was Miss Highsmith.

When Mr. Moffett called at the hotel last evening to take Lella home with him, the girl positively refused to see him, and told Mr. Pope very emphatically that she would rather go anywhere than back to Plainfield. After arguing for a long time, however, Mr. Pope managed to induce her to come down to the dining room to listen to what Mr. Moffett had to say. Mr. Pope left her in the dining room while he went to the parlor to call Mr. Moffett. When Mr. Moffett reached the dining room, however, the girl had disappeared. This somewhat disconcerted him, and he left the hotel. Mr. Pope promised before he left, however, not to let the girl leave the house until somebody came for her.

After telegraphing to Mr. Blazier, the girl's stepfather, of his daughter's safety, Mr. Moffett went home. Mr. Blazier called at the hotel to take her home last night, but after a talk with Mr. Pope he decided to leave her there for the present.

Just after the departure of Mr. Moffett, Mr. Pope went in search of the girl. He found her in her room, weeping. In her hand she had a letter from Mrs. Moffett, which a messenger had just given to her. The letter contained a great deal of motherly advice and ended with a rebuke to the girl for the anxiety she had caused her friends by her sudden departure. Mr. Pope talked with the girl for nearly an hour, trying to induce her to return home, but it was of no avail. She positively refused to go and begged to be allowed to stay and earn her living.

After Mr. Moffett left the hotel last evening the girl told Mr. Pope that her reason for leaving Plainfield was that she could no longer stand Mrs. Moffett's rebukes for mistakes made.

"I know she has been kind to me"—he said—"and I appreciate everything that has been done for me, but I would rather work in your kitchen than to return to Mrs. Moffett's house. I know that when she scolded me she did it in a motherly way and for my own good, but somehow or other her words would always sting me."

"I walked all the way from Plainfield to Roselle in the rain. At the different villages I tried to get work, but nobody would have anything to do with me. I was beginning to get discouraged, when a lady told me that I might get work with you, and accordingly I came here."

Mrs. Moffett was very glad when she heard of the girl's safety. "I was afraid she was dead or had been lost"—she said—"if she chooses to stay away she may, but if she decides to come back she will be welcomed. It was very foolish of her to go away without telling me, as she well knew that I would not have stopped her had she done so."

The girl's mother and stepfather live at Chatham, Morris county, as has already been stated in THE PRESS. The stepfather, Mr. Blazier, is a carpenter. Lella is her mother's only child by her first husband. Mrs. Blazier has seven children by her second husband. Mr. Blazier is poor and hardly able to support such a large family. It was for this reason that Lella left home to live with Mrs. Moffett.

Eager to Sing at Plainfield Again.

Speaking of the Elizabeth Glee Club concert at the Casino Wednesday night, the Elizabeth Journal says:

"The singing of the club was even better than at the concert at Elizabeth on Monday night, and was received by the large audience present with much warmth and applause. Already it is suggested that the club repeat its next concert at Plainfield also."

"It is rumored that the soloists at the next concert will be the Philharmonic Club of New York, who have not yet been heard in this city."

The Songs Were Low, and Her Delivery Was Admirable.

The same "critic," probably, who wrote of how beautifully a violinist at the Casino, recently, played Paganini's wondrous and witching "Witch's Dance," when he did not play it at all, has now been writing of the Glee Club concert of Tuesday evening.

He, she or it, says: "The programme was followed without a break." How fortunate! Then again, "The songs were low enough to allow the hearers to distinguish the various parts blending." And Miss Farrow, the violinist's, "delirious," we are told, was admirable.

BLESSING THROATS AGAINST DISEASE.

Interesting Celebration of the Festival of St. Blaise in Plainfield.

The festival of St. Blaise, which was celebrated at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in this city Tuesday, is one of the most interesting in the long list observed during the year. It was the occasion on which the throats of the faithful throughout the world are especially blessed. Many devout followers of the faith filled the church during the day.

Very interesting services were held. The Rev. F. E. Smyth celebrated the mass. The music was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Roman. After mass the officiating priest gave the benediction. Then nearly every person in the church approached the altar rails, where the pastor, wearing red stole and alb, blessed their throats. The priest carried a wax candle shaped like the letter Y, the upper ends of which were lighted. Placing the fork of the Y thus formed on the neck of the person, the priest made the sign of the cross, repeating the words of blessing at the same time. There were many children among the applicants for blessing, the ceremony being intended to protect them against diphtheria and kindred diseases.

This custom of blessing throats originated in Armenia many centuries ago. During the persecutions of Christians under Emperor Diocletian, Bishop Blaise fled from his home and sought refuge in a neighboring cavern, where he was eventually discovered and brought before Agrippa, the Judge, who sentenced him to be beheaded. While in prison a woman came to him with her child, who had swallowed a fish bone that stuck in his throat. She implored St. Blaise to use his miraculous power, and he blessed the child, giving him instant relief. Several days afterward the Bishop was martyred. His memory is always venerated on the third of February.

St. Blaise was born at Sebaste, in Armenia. In his youth he studied philosophy and medicine. He lived a virtuous life, and finally became Bishop of Sebaste. At that time the Christians, especially the Bishops and priests, suffered many persecutions from the pagans. The Bishop, that his life might be saved for his flock, withdrew to a grotto in Mount Agrens. The animals of the forest were more humane than his persecutors; they became his friends and served him—brought him food. He, in return, carved them and healed their wounds. A hunter one day met him in the midst of these animals and reported him to the Governor, who sent his officers to arrest him. The Saint went cordially to meet them, and when they reached his cave he said: "You are welcome, for now I see that God has not forgotten me." When they were returning with him, the animals followed, and the officers, becoming terrified, were about to run for their lives when they were reassured by the holy man, who said: "Be not afraid; they will do you no harm." He then ordered the animals to go back. They obeyed, but for a long time looked sadly after him. He performed many miracles on the way to the city. Upon his arrival he was taken before the Governor, who ordered him to worship the gods. Refusing to obey, he was struck with clubs, tied to a pillar and torn with iron claws. In the midst of these tortures he said to the Governor: "If you fancy that by torture you can make me forsake my Lord and my God, you are indeed wrong. He was afterward taken to prison, where, upon again refusing to offer sacrifice to idols, he was beheaded."

Here Money for the Sheriff.

One of the latest bills introduced in the Legislature is that presented by Mr. Cole of Camden. It provides that sheriffs shall be paid a salary which shall amount to $50 for each thousand in population in the county, and shall not receive any other fees or emoluments "except the legal fees and costs accruing to the sheriff for the control of civil business connected with his office and for actual expenses for official services." As Union county has a population of 72,000 this would give the sheriff $3,600 a year, besides the fees and costs specified. And as the office of sheriff is a very busy and expensive one for the incumbent, this is considered not one whit too great an income.

No Clean Shirts in Plainfield.

Frank A. Muey's bright new paper, THE DAILY CONTINENT, draws a picture of Plainfield congregations attending worship, in a column in the following continuation of a story of vanished celestials published in THE PRESS:

Search is being made in Chinatown for a pair of celestials known as Soc Cha Lo and Wong Sing. One is little and pudgy; the other is tall and lank. Soc and Wong are wanted in Plainfield, N. J. They skipped from there owing $20 for rent, and taking away all the laundry entrusted to their care. They have a large job of collars and cuffs on hand, and many Plainfielders had to go to church without clean shirts last Sunday.

Elizabeth's Close Call.

The bowlers of the Elizabeth Athletic Club had a narrow escape from a second defeat at the hands of the Westfield Athletic Club Tuesday night. The game was hotly contested throughout. On no frame was there a difference of more than 25 pins. The total score was 1564 to 1562, in Elizabeth's favor.

DIAMONDS GROW. "Look at this stone," said a young jeweler in a street car the other day, removing a tissue paper wrapper from a piece of white wax, in the center of which a beautiful diamond blazed. "That is worth at the least $150."

"How is it that you can afford to buy such a valuable stone as that?" asked one of his friends who knew his circumstances. "I will put you onto the snap," said the jeweler. "That stone has been growing for a year, and I think it has got its growth."

"What do you mean by a diamond growing?" asked the friend. "I will tell you. You remember the little spark I had in my scarpin last Christmas. Well, this is what it has grown to in less than a year. The little stone cost me a dollar and the pin cost me $2.80. I sold the pin for $18, and bought an eight-carat stone, a little off shape, for a trifle over $5. I bought a stand setting. You know you can get those things quite low now. They are made up by the thousands by firms which do not make finished goods."

"I have you a chance to sell a ring for $75, and I made it by putting in a stone which cost me $45.50. I put the whole $75 into another stone, which I carried around for awhile, and had fully made up my mind to keep, but a butcher offered me $100 for it and I sold it to him. It was in a crown setting, which cost me $6.25. For the hundred I got a dandy stone, and I was sure I could keep that one, but I have had four better ones since, and have got up to $180. I can't go much higher than that, I guess, for there are few men among my acquaintances who can afford to tempt me with a profitable offer for it. I wouldn't sell it to-night for $200, because I know that I have got a bargain. I'm a pretty good judge of diamonds, and when I put that stone into a nice ring, I will make it look like a $250 worth; and I don't think that any body can persuade me to sell it for anything less. In all the changes I don't think that I have put in more than $16 or $18 of my pocket money. The rest has all been profit on the stones and settings." -N. Y. Sun.

"Why—no, sir," replied John. "Do you ever swear?" "I—I sometimes a little careless like in my talk." "I am sorry, John," rejoined Mr. Goodman. "But we will converse about it some other time. I wish you would take this money and settle this bill of $4 for thawing out a waterpipe, and talk to the man in a careless kind of way as if it were your own bill." -Chicago Tribune.

ARIZONA RUINS. The Casa-Grande or "Big House" of the mesa is entered at a projecting angle, through a window of sub-Gothic form, measuring three feet and three inches in height by two feet and four inches in width at the bottom. This small apartment is smoothly plastered within, and blackened by fire. The plastering bears finger-marks and impressions of the thumb and hand, showing that it was laid on and smoothed by the hands. The roof is formed by willows laid horizontally across eleven rafters of ash and black alder; upon this a thick layer of reeds is placed transversely, and the whole plastered on top with mortar, forming a floor to the chamber above it. The rafters are peeled, except one or two that were evidently taken dry. They average about fifteen inches in circumference, and were set into the walls at the time the latter were built. They were burned off flush with the wall outside. Some of them show hatchet marks, where branches were lopped off. From this room the only means of exit, except the window by which it was entered, is a small hole in the ceiling, just within the entrance, measuring thirteen by eighteen inches, and bordered by flat stones laid upon the ceiling and the roof. These stones are smoothly polished by the hands of the dwellers in passing back and forth, as this was apparently the only means of entering the seventeen apartments above it. The traveler in this section is quite certain of being entertained by exaggerated stories about gigantic human skeletons having been discovered in the ruined casa-grandes; but if he be a genuine man, and possessed of the usual amount of adipose tissue appertaining to the age of three score years, he will become skeptical thereof when he comes to squeeze himself through the narrow portals of the ancient halls of Montezuma's castle. -Edgar A. Mearns, in Popular Science Monthly.

Writes with His Teeth. Captain L. B. Cousins recently received a letter from his old army comrade, E. P. Latham, of Barton, O. The letter itself would not seem remarkable to any one not conversant with the facts, as it appeared to be simply a chatty, friendly letter, written in a bold, plain, business-like hand. The remarkable feature of the letter is that Mr. Latham carries on his correspondence with his teeth. During the war he had both arms shot off and his right eye shot out. Although a man with habits matured, he has since losing his arms, learned to write by holding his pen in his teeth. He is a good penman, and does the office work for the firm of which he is the senior partner, and which does a very extensive business. He keeps the accounts, and no one would suspect by a glance at his books that his mouth, instead of his hand, is his penholder. -Omaha Bee. "I tell you the poor have no chance." "That's the opinion of the poor," replied the poet. "I know some editors who reject poems for no other reason than that they are poor." -Brooklyn Life.

A GLASS OF CIDER. Suggestive Poems Concerning Suffering. The sight of a glass of sweet cider on the counter is more frequent in city restaurants nowadays than it was a dozen years ago. A piece of pumpkin pie and a glass of sparkling apple juice doubtless appeal to the country-bred tastes of many a grizzled merchant and busy clerk, and call up recollections of ruse old country cider-mills and the great vats of amber liquor into which they once inserted the potent rye straw. Or possibly the pretty girl washing dishes in a summer reminds them of some country Pomona such as John Keats drew in his poem of "Autumn," who loved to sit beside a cider-press "and watch the last slow oozings, hour by hour."

The cider business has got to be an extensive one, and grows larger every year, providing there is a good crop of apples. This year, however, there is only about one-third of a yield from the cider-mills, owing to the light apple-drop. The price of cider does not seem to fluctuate with the supply. It is always served out by the retailer at five cents a glass, and may be bought by the keg at from thirty cents to forty cents a gallon. As a rule, the usual year of the apple orchards furnishes a vineyard supply for two years. Good cider is worth more than vinegar this year, so that the crop will mostly be used in its fresh state. Not a few cider manufacturers own more than one mill; some half a dozen, and they make a handsome profit. Supposing that they pay a farmer fifty cents a barrel for apples. A barrel of apples will make nine gallons of cider, which will bring them twenty cents a gallon or $1.80 for the yield of fifty cents worth of apples. There is, of course, some outlay for machinery, labor, barrels, etc. Second-hand whisky barrels are generally used, and they cost about $1.25 apiece. The cost of making cider is from two to three cents a gallon, and the farmers often prefer to pay this and market their own cider. But here they are at a disadvantage from not being known to the trade. A Connecticut cider firm has adopted a plan which proved so successful that he has adhered to it ever since. Hiding that careful packing and conspicuous labels stating the contents to be "glass with great care," were not always sufficient to prevent breakage and damage to delicate parts, he hit on the idea of sending out all his instruments in beautifully polished mahogany cases, with brass handles and mounting. The exquisite appearance of the cases appealed successfully even to the callous natures of porters and dockhands; they positively had not the heart to scratch the immaculate polish by rough handling, and the freedom of the instruments from damage amply repaid the extra cost of the luxurious cases. -Chicago Daily News.

HOW ELKS GROW HORNS. In Ten Weeks a New Pair of Antlers Are Grown. With the loss of the antlers the stag changes his disposition entirely and becomes as docile and tractable as a lamb. It remains in this condition of temper until the beginning of March, when he shows a disposition to lurk in sequestered spots of the glen and timidly avoid the presence even of his kind. During this period, on the spot where the antlers were, a pair of protuberances will make their appearance, covered with a soft, dark, velvety skin. These will attain a considerable growth in a few days. The carotid arteries enlarge with them in order to supply a sufficiency of nourishment. When the new antlers have attained their full growth, which will be in ten weeks after the old ones have been shed, the bony rings at the base through which the antlers pass will begin to thicken, and gradually filling up will compress the blood vessels and ultimately obliterate them. The velvety skin that surrounds the horns, being thus deprived of nourishment, will lose its vitality and will be rubbed off in shreds by the stag on the edges of rocks or other hard substances. As soon as the full size of the antlers is attained the docile disposition of the elk will disappear and he will become once more, for the year the fierce and friendly king of the glen. The age of the elk, according to writers on natural history, is computed by the number of points on the antlers. -San Francisco Chronicle.

Luxury on Wheels. Parlor-car travel on the lines running into New York is constantly on the increase, and this luxury has long since ceased to be the peculiar property of the rich. With the popularization of the parlor-car has come a change in the attitude of the expectant porter. He is still expectant, but he no longer despises a small tip, and in the case of travelers taking only short journeys he is friendly king of the glen. In old times the porter was a man of the straw is a stick of macaroni. -Pittsburgh Dispatch. An Exhibition of Jewels. A plan has been broached of opening an exhibition of jewelry in the city of Petersburg. Syn Otheistic, metaphysically opposes the idea. Thus it declares: "All married men, all fathers who are blessed with grown-up daughters, and finally, all men who have any pleasant connections with ladies, must in a body oppose this crazy undertaking. If our ladies can not at present come by an ordinary jewelry store without conceiving a desire to open the electric trifles exhibited in the show-window, how much greater will that morbid desire be when they see the exquisite works of art in that line gathered from all the corners of the globe! It is simply appalling to think of the ruin of fortunes and the loss of virtue which such an exhibition might cause."
