CARNOT ASSASSINATED

France's President Stabbed to the Heart by an Anarchist.

THE MURDERER CAUGHT

He is an Italian, 21 Years of Age—

The Deed Committed in Lyons Last Night Just After the President Had Left the Board of Trade Banquet and Entered His Carriage To Be Driven to a Theatre—The Assassin, with a Dagger Concealed in a Newspaper, Jumped on the Step and Plunged the Blade Into the President's Side—The Government Stops All Despatches of the Tragedy—The News in Washington.

PARIS, June 25.—Sadi Carnot, president of the republic, was stabbed mortally at 9:15 o'clock last evening in Lyons by Carlo Santo, an Italian anarchist, 21 years old.

President Carnot went to Lyons to visit the exhibition of arts, sciences and industries.

He left the chamber of commerce banquet given in his honor shortly after 9 o'clock and walked to his carriage, which was waiting in the Place de la Bourse. He had hardly taken his seat when Santo, a newspaper in his hand, pressed through the crowd and sprang upon the carriage step.

President Carnot started slightly. Santo snatched a dagger from his pocket and plunged it into the president's side near the heart.

The president sank back unconscious. He was at once taken to the prefecture and the most skillful surgeons in the city were summoned. Meantime Santo was arrested.

The news spread swiftly to every part of the city. Intoxicated crowds filled the streets.

Before 10 o'clock an Italian restaurant had been sacked and the police were obliged to strain every nerve to protect the Italian consulate.

President Carnot arrived in Lyons Saturday and intended to remain there until Sunday. He was accompanied by General Borias, chief of his military household, most of his other household officials, Premier Dupuy, M. Burdeau and other members of his cabinet.

He was received enthusiastically at the station by the mayor and district officials, who, in 37 landaus drawn by horses draped with the tricolor, carried him and his party to the Hotel de Ville.

Cheering crowds filled the street and gave the president such a welcome as he seldom received. There was a luncheon at the Hotel de Ville and in the evening a dinner at the prefecture. From the balcony of the prefecture the president reviewed a large torchlight procession which was followed by fireworks and an illumination. Afterward the programme of the city officials for Sunday, Monday and Tuesday was submitted to him in detail and he expressed his satisfaction with the arrangements.

Yesterday the president and his party paid a state visit to the exhibition in the Parc de la Tete d'Or. Afterward the president held a reception at the prefecture. He planned to go to the Grand Theatre on the Place de la Comedie last evening after the banquet at the chamber of commerce. He was in a peculiarly happy mood during the banquet, and he was not only pleased by the cordiality of his reception, not only by the crowd outside the building but also by the guests within.

Seeing a state of commotion in the moment he left the chamber of commerce until he could get the carriage for the theatre. The demonstrative enthusiasm of the crowd caused the confusion which gave Santo his opportunity. As he was able to push his way forward quite unnoticed until at the step of the carriage.

As Santo sprang from the carriage step and tried to escape, he was seized and surrounded. But for the prompt interference of the police he would have been torn and trampled to death on the spot. As the police of the prefecture hurried him from the hands of his captors, they hurried him off to the station house.

At 9 o'clock all who had been invited to attend the gala performance in the president's honor, had gathered in the Grand Theatre. Every seat outside the boxes was filled. The audience awaited impatiently the arrival of the presidential party. Suddenly two men ran up to the main entrance and called out that the president had been killed.

The news spread swiftly to the rear seats of the theatre and thence passed like the wind over the great audience. A few women cried in horror, but the great majority of those present refused to believe the intelligence.

It appeared as if all Lyons was at that moment assembled in Place de la Comedie and in the adjacent streets. The multitude was packed together like a wall.

Suddenly a landau, preceded by four mounted gendarmes, dashed out of the Rue de la Republique. In it were Arrien Dupuy, Deputy Chaudey and M. Rivaud, the prefect. The crowd mistaking the landau for the presidential carriage, rushed to the left called from the carriage tones full of emotion: "Do not shoot; do not shoot; he has been made upon the life of the president."

tion and was heard with difficulty when he

"Do not make my task more painful. We have left M. Carnot in the hands of doctors. You will understand that under these circumstances, all hearts being filled with sorrow, the performance cannot take place."

The prefect then left the theatre.

When Santo was within a few feet of the carriage he waved a paper as if intending to present a petition and thus threw off their guard the persons nearest to the president. He was seized just as he was about to jump from the step and had but half withdrawn the dagger.

The president had repeated hemorrhages since he returned to the prefecture. He sank gradually but steadily until 12:45 o'clock this morning when he died. Mme. Carnot and her two sons left Paris at 11:57 o'clock last evening by special train for Lyons. All the ministers who did not go to Lyons with the president were in council at the Elysee at midnight. The senate and chamber of deputies sitting jointly.

Immediately after the president was stabbed the horses attached to his carriage were started at a gallop for the prefecture. The president lay in the carriage. His eyes were closed and he was apparently lifeless. His clothes had been loosened, so that the red rash of the legion of honor was visible on his forehead. A wet red spot told the whole story of his wound. He was lifted with the greatest care from the carriage and was carried to his room on the first floor. There he was laid on the bed in which he had slept the night before, and Dr. Galliton, the mayor of the city, examined the wound.

The young assassin's full name was given by him at the police station as Cesare Giovanni Santo. He has a very small mustache, and wore a light brown suit with a peaked cap of the same color. On his right hand he wore a ring. He was a well-dressed man, and he looked as if he were a student. He was unable to speak much French in rather peculiar, as he has lived at Cete for the last six months and is believed to have been working on the railway in the country. He went from Cete to Lyons Saturday.

A workman's book found in Santo's pocket shows that he has been in Montevideo, province of Milan.

After Dr. Galliton's examination of the president's wound it was decided that an operation was necessary. Dr. Ollier proceeded to probe the wound. The president thereupon regained consciousness and exclaimed in a clear voice: "How you are hurting me."

When the announcement of the president's death was made the city illuminations were immediately quenched and all festivities were stopped.

Sketch of President Carnot.

Marie Francois Sadi Carnot, president of the French republic, was born at Limoges, in August, 1837. He was a student at the Ecole Polytechnique, and was a civil engineer by profession. At the age of 30 he entered the service of the state as a railway engineer. He was distinguished by his penmanship, and passed with distinction to the school for special instruction in the building of roads and bridges. During the siege of Paris in 1871 he was appointed prefect of the Seine Inférieure, and as commissary general gave valuable assistance in organizing the defenses of that department. In February, 1871, he took his seat in the National Assembly as deputy of Cote d'Or, and subsequently for Beaune. In 1886 he took office in the Brisson cabinet as finance minister. On the resignation of M. Grevy in December, 1887, M. Carnot was elected president of the republic.

LONDON PRESS COMMENT.

No Such a Blow Since the Assassination of President Garfield.

LONDON, June 25.—The Daily News, in a leader on the assassination of President Carnot, says: "The terrible news of the assassination of the president of the French republic will be received with a shock of horror and grief by the people of France. Such a blow has been struck by political hatred and fanaticism since the bullet of insane Guiteau mortally wounded President Garfield, or the pistol of Wilkes Booth killed President Lincoln. M. Carnot, not like the presidents of the sister republic, was a man whom not only his countrymen but his enemies respected. He had the utmost confidence and respect. His removal at this time must be not only a great calamity for France, but a misfortune to Europe."

The Daily Chronicle says: "Lincoln died in a theatre at the hand of a lunatic enraged at the defeat of the confederacy which the president intended to let down so gently. President Garfield fell likewise under the bullet of one who was not mad save in a political sense, and died after two months of anguish. These are the only parallels that history affords to the fiendish atrocity of last night, for the assassination of the head of a free state has little in common with the crime of the assassin of a despotic ruler. It was understood that President Carnot did not intend to seek a reelection that might have been his for the asking. He was content to let his countrymen elect him to a second term, and he was to retire to private life carrying the good will of the nation, the confidence of statesmen and the approbation of his own conscience."

THE NEWS IN WASHINGTON.

President Cleveland and the French Ambassador Greatly Shocked.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—The first bulletin of the assassination of the president of the French republic was received in Washington shortly before 6 o'clock p. m. (United States time) and ran through the community like an electric shock. The white house was called up and through Private Secretary Thurber the news was sent to President Cleveland. He was just starting for a drive, but stopped long enough to express his horror and detestation of the crime, and to intimate that through the proper channels expressions of sympathy would be given to the people of France.

From all the foreign embassies and legations eager inquiries were received for the name and manner of the crime seemed to intensify the general feeling of horror.

The French chamber of deputies adjourned when the news of the death of Garfield was received. If matters of such urgent importance were not now pressing upon congress, it is probable that like action would be taken by our own legislative body.

Mr. J. Patenotre, the French ambassador, first learned of the news of the assassination of President Carnot from a United Press reporter, as he drove up to his residence in this city from his country place at Clifton Heights.

"Impossible, impossible, it cannot be"

exclaimed the ambassador as he read the news of the assassination of President Carnot. He was so shocked that he was unable to utter a word.

After reading the bulletin that had just been received, Mr. Patenotre was convinced by official dispatches that he was again crying "terrible, terrible; this is too bad, too bad."

When asked who would succeed to the presidency in the interim the ambassador said: "We have no vice-president as you have in the United States who would take the presidency without the formality of an election. President Carnot's successor will not be elected by popular vote; that will be done by the senate and chamber of deputies sitting jointly. They will be convened at once for that purpose and I imagine they will sit at Versailles, just out of Paris, where they can be secured from the influence of the mob. They will be convened at once for that purpose and I imagine they will sit at Versailles, just out of Paris, where they can be secured from the influence of the mob."

"But who will preside over the republic during that interim, brief though it may be?" was asked by the correspondent.

"That I cannot answer," said he, "but I presume it will be the premier."

When asked if he could assign any possible cause for the crime, M. Patenotre said he could not unless it was revenge for the refusal of the president to pardon the anarchists who had been condemned for the crime of the Commune. He said he was not at all inclined to believe that the president was murdered for the sake of the republic.

Secretary Gresham, who had just returned to the city, was at first inclined to discredit the report, owing to the fact that the first news came by the way of London. He said that no message of any kind had been received from the president of France, and that the only information the state department had was that which came through the news dispatches. He expressed his deep regret at the death of the president, and said that some action would undoubtedly be taken by this government when it had been officially informed of the death of the president of the French republic.

Dispatches Stopped by Government.

LONDON, June 25.—The French government has stopped all telegraphic dispatches of the city from the police of New York. The price for protecting the illegal grog-shops is reported to be $400 per month, while sometimes as high as $100 is paid.

The courts are contaminated by the way in which they handle the liquor cases. Some of the judges, after a conviction is secured in the city court, have the case placed on file, not to be called up unless on a special order by the court. That ends the case practically.

TRIPLE MURDERER.

A Colored Preacher Uses His Razor With Fearful Effect.

CINCINNATI, June 25.—Rev. B. R. Snatzer, the colored preacher, arrested here for murder at Chattanooga, proves to be a triple murderer, and has claimed several other victims. He was a native of about on the Mississippi river, and became a preacher at Greenville, Miss., where, with his razor, he "barred" one of his parishioners. He was arrested at Chattanooga as pastor of a small colored church. There he became involved in a quarrel with Jack Rowland, and two women.

He again escaped, and with several colored men started on a tramp to this city. On the way a quarrel over a game of cards ensued in which he killed one of the men, and with his razor killed one of the women, and the ever-ready razor played a dangerous part. The victim died this time before the sufferer was suffering recovered, and is now here.

Rioting at Adrian.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., June 25.—At half past one o'clock last night the private police arrived at the Adrian mine. The car had no sooner stopped than it was surrounded by at least 1,000 miners, who were armed with clubs and stones. The policemen were unarmed.

The militia was sent for and Company "B" was ordered to march about 50 yards distant, but were unable to disperse the mob.

Companies "A" and "C" were then ordered out and went to the scene on double quick time, and when the miners saw the reinforcements they immediately dispersed.

Mr. Robinson, the general superintendent here, was with the police. He was pulled out of the car by the men and beat by them, while the women sat in his face, and he was unable to get out.

The deputies were armed with Winchester, but the sheriff would not give the order to fire. The sheriff would not charge the miners, but he did blow about the left eye from the hands of one of the women and was otherwise badly used. As soon as he was able to get out of the car he went to notify the militia.

The greatest excitement prevails at Adrian and at midnight shots were being fired at Adrian mine.

Coxey's Race for Congress.

MARSHALL, O., June 25.—Gen. Coxey, of commonwealth fame, as a congressional candidate, has not been coming to the polls. While Coxey will doubtless poll a heavy vote, his defeat seems almost a certainty. There is a great deal of talk of democratic endorsement of Mr. Coxey's nomination, but the real party leaders would rather endorse candidate Taylor, republican as he is, than commit their party to the leader of the commonwealth.

Northern Pacific Resumes.

TACOMA, Wash., June 25.—The Pacific Division of the Northern Pacific announces that repairs to the flooded portions of the road have been completed. The line to Portland south of Globe, Oregon, and the main line around Pend d'Oreille, in Idaho, will be soon. For the first time in several weeks the road began moving freight eastward and sending it over the Coast of Alaska branch.

1,000,000 Feet of Lumber Burned.

COLUMBIA, Pa., June 25.—The Lackawanna Lumber company's mill at Mina, Pa., five miles from here, with about a million feet of hemlock lumber, has been destroyed by fire. The mill was insured, and probably will be replaced by a smaller one. The company estimates the loss at $70,000. Nearly 100 men are thrown out of employment.

Peers May Practice Law.

LONDON, June 25.—The attorney-general having given an opinion that there is no objection to peers practicing at the bar, Lord Coleridge, who succeeded to the peerage on the death of his father, Lord Chief Justice Coleridge, has decided to continue his practice.

PONT-Y-PRIDD HORROR PROBABLY 25 DROWNED

Now Known That 251 Lives Were Lost.

Many of the Dead Miners' Bodies Mangled Beyond Recognition—Crowds of Women Still Surround the Pit Awaiting News from Husbands and Brothers.

LONDON, June 25.—The further exploration of the Pont-y-Pridd mine, in which an explosion occurred Saturday, has shown that the disaster was far beyond anything imagined.

The number of dead is 251.

The original report that only 300 men were in the mine at the time was due to a misunderstanding on the part of the manager who thought that a shift of miners had just come up.

Many of the dead bodies were mangled beyond recognition.

Crowds of women, who have not slept since the explosion, still surround the pit, awaiting news from husbands and brothers.

PORTLAND'S POLICE.

Gen. Neal Dow Says They Are More Corrupt Than New York's.

PORTLAND, June 25.—Gen. Neal Dow, the sturdy prohibition champion of Maine, said in conversation:

"The police of Portland are more corrupt in comparison to the wealth and population of the city than the police of New York. The price for protecting the illegal grog-shops is reported to be $400 per month, while sometimes as high as $100 is paid."

The courts are contaminated by the way in which they handle the liquor cases. Some of the judges, after a conviction is secured in the city court, have the case placed on file, not to be called up unless on a special order by the court. That ends the case practically.

It was not always this way under prohibition, but during the past three or four months the matter has gotten worse and worse."

FIVE PERSONS DROWNED.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 25.—Five persons, two men, two women and a child, were drowned in the East river about 400 feet from the Atlantic Yacht club house at the foot of Fifty-sixth street.

Another child, a girl about two years old, was rescued. They were in an 18-foot cat boat and were struck by a squall. The boat capsized and all were thrown into the water and drowned, except the two who were rescued. The bodies of the victims have not been recovered.

MAY VOTE TO-MORROW

Nearing the End of the Senate Tariff Struggle.

Little Delay Looked for When the Measure Is Returned to the House—Final Adjournment of Congress by the 15th of August Contingently Expected.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—After the tariff bill has passed the senate, one day, and possibly two, will be required for a comparison of the changes made, after the bill has been printed and before it is sent to the house. When it is ready for delivery at the other end of the capital it will be taken by the secretary of the senate, who, being recognized by the speaker, will formally announce that the senate has passed the tariff bill with certain amendments and that it asks the house's concurrence. Under the rules, the bill will be immediately referred to the ways and means committee, where it originated. The speaker, if no objections were raised, might send it directly to a conference committee, but a single objection would prevent this action and objectors will certainly be found.

It is not believed that the committee will lose any time in a formal consideration of the bill. The changes as made by the senate have been so radical that in no way can an agreement be reached except by a conference, and as the disposition of the bill is of great importance, an adjournment as early as possible, the obvious duty of Chairman Wilson will be to get it in conference at the earliest practicable moment.

It is a mistake to believe that the ways and means committee is "disorganized" as has been recently stated. True, several of the democratic members have been absent for some time, but the majority have been in the city almost continuously since the bill passed the house and those gentlemen have followed the senate's action so closely that they are as familiar with the bill in its present shape as they were when it was first sent to the senate.

It is not believed that the ways and means committee will retain the bill more than two days. Chairman Wilson or some other member whom he may designate will then report it back to the house with a request that it be sent to a committee of conference to be further considered. The house, sitting as a committee of the whole, will probably debate the principal changes made by the senate. Upon this point there are some differences of opinion between the democratic leaders, but the preponderance of opinion favors the belief that the house will pass its judgment upon the senate changes before sending the bill to conference.

The reason is obvious. A few days debate will afford the house an opportunity to explain its position regarding the senate amendments. Such a debate may show that the house favors certain of the changes while it may be radically and unalterably opposed to others. The house conference will then meet their colleagues of the senate with a clear and distinct understanding of the temper of the house regarding the bill and the senate's position in taking their position. If there is a disposition upon the part of members of the house to debate the bill at excessive length before sending it to conference, the committee on rules can at any time bring in an order fixing the time for closing the debate.

One of the questions yet to be settled is as to the number of conferees on the part of each house. The usual number is five.

The adjournment of congress by the 15th of August, with the new tariff law in effect, is confidently expected by the best-informed on-lookers.

Party leaders on both sides of the chamber agree that this week will see the bill out of the senate; as to the precise date there is a divergence of opinion. Messrs. Harris and Jones expect to see the final vote taken not later than to-morrow evening. Mr. Aldrich, on the republican side, says it may be taken then, but it will more likely be Thursday. Mr. Allison says the vote may be taken Thursday, but he hardly thinks it will be reached before Saturday.

It is believed that the income tax part of the bill will be concluded to-day and possibly the internal revenue paragraph.

Fanwood puts a premium on broad to reward their use is a just recognition of the teamsters' public benefaction.

To see the long list of Republican candidates for Governor of New Jersey
one would think that Republican meant popular election. Well it does not, after last Winter's partisan legislation.

A plea for the opening of the windows in the Jersey Central terminal waiting room is started. The prayer is a deserving one. Open the windows, Mr. Baldwin, and let the breeze from the bay sweep through and revive the withering waiting passengers.

Foster M. Voorhees is reaping Republican reward. He sacrificed the judgeship for his party, and now he is being quietly shoved into the background by Hobart Grubb, Rogers, Murphy, Tuffey, Wanser, Stokes, Briggs, Bradley, and the other influential leaders scrambling for the office.

Editor Fearsall, who sets the standard of everything in Westfield except politics, pleasantly speaks of the editor of The Press as "bright and breezy". As for breeziness, how can one help reflecting the glory of Westfield's centennial sun;
and as for brightness, it's contagious when Fearsall's around. Besides, who has a right to be anything but bright and breezy, when life in Plainfield is so perennial with blessings, not the least of which is the proximity of mighty good neighbors!

All hail, the Hunterdon County farmer!
His fields were far from the market, and with characteristic energy he built the Bookaway Valley Railroad to transport his harvest. Metropolitan burglars saw that the road was a good thing, and the other night they tried to open the main office after the profits. But the weasel isn't in it with the Hunterdon granger;
every mother's son of 'em was out for all night, nursing the peach crop, and they just looked their weather eyes on the burglars and gave them a shotgun round robin. The whole gang of thieves was looked up for the grand jury, and the farmers plaidly went on cutting hay and railroad coupons.

By the permission of a careless mail-receiver, a Plainfield postman got into the foolish habit of putting valuable letters at the foot of a stairway freely accessible to the public. One day, in consequence, the careless mail-receiver didn't get a letter containing money. Thereupon the matter is reported to the organ of Captain Grant's enemies, and that journal has a fit because the Captain doesn't treat the unknown thief right away.
It would not have taken very much work or very much ability to discover the thief—sagely remarks the Hawkshaw paper,
and then subdues without accomplishing
the glory of discovering the thief itself.
This teaches us that some persons know other people's business just about as well as they know their own.

CAUSED BY A HEAVYWEIGHT.

Excitement at the Merry-Go-Round, and the inevitable faint resulted.

While R. M. Shelley's merry-go-round was in operation Saturday evening a heavily-built man who was riding jumped from his horse upon one of the stalls which are fastened between the pairs of horses. The stall broke and as the machine went on other stalls were broken by it. A woman fainted, and there was much excitement, but Mr. Shelley stopped the engine before two revolutions had been made. He was not at all to blame for the accident.

NO HUMAN BODY BURNT

COUNT VANNESS THOUGHT HE SMELLED ONE IN THE RUINS.

His Experiences His Third Fire on the Allen Farm—Says He Was Asleep When the Alarm Was Given—No Live Stock in the Flames.

The third fire on the Allen farm owned by "Count" J. K. Van Ness occurred last evening, when the second barn was destroyed by a quantity of hay and straw.
The fire was discovered at 7:30 and the alarm was sent in from Box 18 by one of the "Count's" workmen who had hurried to Felix Marx's house, 1106 East Front street, for a key. The department went out and found the whole building in flames. No hydrant being near, water was obtained from the brook, 800 feet away. There was no chance of saving anything, and only the burned shell remains. Of two houses, two barns and a wood-shed, which once stood on the place, the "Count" has left a house and a wood-shed. The building was insured for $1,500 and the contents for $500, and a total loss will be claimed. The payment of the insurance on the last fire was disputed, but the loss was finally accepted by the companies.

Word reached Chief Doane this morning that it was thought that a human body was burning in the smoldering rubble, and with Assistant Chief Martin he went to the barn in Alert's hose wagon to investigate. The firemen examined the ruins carefully and decided that no one had been burned.

Lyman & Petrie, as agents for the Lancashire Company, had $500 of the insurance on the barn. The "Count" explained this morning that he had been entertaining friends during the day and was asleep
when the fire was discovered by his hired man. He had very bravely removed the horses and cows and was glad that the horses were in the pasture.

Happy Ever After

And what made my condition so much worse was the constant protrusion of the pile tumors, which caused the most severe suffering and was often attended with hemorrhages so profuse that the blood came in streams and fairly flooded me. I had despaired of getting relief, when I applied to Dr.
Lighthill, but I am most happy to state that he effected a complete and perfect cure in my case in a few weeks' time.
The piles have disappeared, the pain,
distress and discomfort is gone entirely,
and I feel, indeed, like a new man.
Nothing but my heartfelt gratitude to Dr. Lighthill and my desire to bring relief to those who suffer as I have done, prompts me to make this public statement. J. V. Z. GRIGGS.

most beautiful scenes that were ever witnessed by the inhabitants of this part of the state lasted for thirty minutes during the night. It was a mirage of some distant city, believed to have been St. Louis.
It appeared at an angle of about 45 degrees and lasted for about 30 minutes. The streets church spires and a river.
