DEFENDS X-SCIENCE-CREED

Rev. Mr. Maguire's Attack on Tenets Answered by H. C. Fairchild.

SAYS CRITIC MISREPRESENTS.

Some Questions Are Propounded for Baptist Divine—The Teachings Explained.

As a reply to the sermon delivered last Sunday by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, H. Coulson Fairchild, of the publicity department of the Christian Science church, requests the publication of the following letter:

Editor, The Daily Press:—

In The Daily Press of January 9th you published an attack upon Christian Science made by the Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire during the delivery of his Sunday morning sermon. In justice to the Christian Science church and its respectable and intelligent following in your city, I assume that The Daily Press in all fairness will be willing to print our reply to the Rev. Maguire's unwarranted attack upon what he thinks Christian Science is.

First he stated that Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy "built up a private fortune of over a million dollars in obtaining for herself a plaudet of influence based upon the credulity of the easily beguiled." Question: If Mrs. Eddy accumulated from the legitimate and unsolicited sale of her writings a fortune of one million dollars or more "for herself," how does the reverend gentleman account for the fact that Mrs. Eddy left practically this entire fortune of over one million dollars (except for the legal demands of her relatives) to the Christian Science cause which she loved so well? If Mrs. Eddy had accumulated this money "for herself," it is axiomatic that she would have kept it for herself. As it is, her act is in itself a proof that Mrs. Eddy was sincere. Mrs. Eddy's belief in her teachings was sincere. Under these circumstances it must be apparent to all that those whom the Rev. Maguire terms "credulous and easily beguiled" are to receive the full benefit of the money accumulated by their Leader, together with all mankind; for the influence of Christian Science extends to all.

The Rev. Maguire, it is said, charges Christian Science with being contrary to common sense, and evidently to substantiate this view quotes from the Christian Science text book, Science and Health with Key to Scriptures, by Mrs. Eddy, page 407, lines 22 and 23, "If delusion tells you what you have lost your memory, you must contradict it; no faculty is lost." Now let us see whether this statement is, or is not, a logical one from the standpoint of a true follower of Jesus Christ. I presume our critic would be willing to admit that all true and good thoughts are derived from God; that every spiritual and true mental faculty emanates from God in whom, as Paul says, "We live and move and have our being." I assume also that our critic together with all other Christians would be willing to subscribe to the statement that God is omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent; i. e. all power; the basis of understanding; and all presence. This being true, we will ask the Rev. Maguire to explain where a man's memory goes when he is said to have lost it. If God is our intelligence, memory cannot be lost, any more than God can be lost. The burden of proof lies with our critic to account for lost memory and explain how is can be lost in the presence of God. Christ Jesus demonstrated his teachings by healing the blind man and showing that sight cannot be lost. Moreover, he healed all manner of sickness among the people and said to his followers: "Preach the gospel; heal the sick." Disease is not healed in Christian Science by admitting its reality and power, but so-called disease and belief in the pleasure of sin are healed by knowing the unreality of both sin and sickness and through the understanding that God does not create that which is opposed to His own nature and not to be found in the Deific Mind.

The Rev. Maguire tells us that "Christian Science is contrary to the Scriptures," and Mrs. Eddy has been criticized for interpreting the Scriptures after the manner of the teachings of Christian Science. I would like to ask our critic upon what authority he presumes to state that Christian Science is contrary to the Scriptures and further if he desires to pose as having the only correct interpretation of Scripture in the denomination which he represents? If so, I wish to remind him that there are between one hundred and eighty and three hundred and some odd denominations of Christians in this country

ATTEMPTED TO SHOOT 2; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

John Gursky, of South Plainfield, is being held to await the action of the grand jury in the New Brunswick jail in default of $200 bail on a charge of attempting to shoot Joseph Delaney and John Thornton, both of South Plainfield.

Gursky was arrested in the village, after a chase on Friday morning and Justice Smith was roused from his sleep to hear the charge preferred against the prisoner. Delaney complained that Gursky had shot at him twice and then tried to get away. Delaney and Thornton followed for half a mile and finally caught up with the alleged shooter who it is said, had thrown his revolver in the back yard of the residence of C. L. Vanderhoff on Plainfield avenue. Three chambers of the revolver had been discharged. Gursky was under the influence of liquor and was unable to give any coherent reason for his actions.

WITHOUT GOVERNOR FOR TWELVE HOURS

Because of the wording of the State Constitution which provides that the term of the Governor shall end "on the Monday preceding the third Tuesday in January," and the custom of not swearing in the new Executive until noon of the third Tuesday, New Jersey will again this year, as it has done each three years since the adoption of the Constitution in 1845, be without a Governor for twelve hours.

Although she will have no authority whatever to act as Governor, Miss Ida M. Phillips of Trenton, stenographer in the Executive office, will practically be in charge during these few hours, being the ranking clerk and with no "boss" to direct her actions.

Miss Phillips, who is to be retained by Governor Wilson, has proved herself to be a young woman of clever executive ability, and is well able to take care of the mail and other matters of routine business that demand attention and which can be transacted with gubernatorial power. Of course, should the need of a chief executive be urgent, there is nothing in the Constitution to prevent Mr. Wilson from taking the oath immediately at the expiration of the retiring Governor's term at midnight on Monday next.

MISS BATCHELOR ENGAGED TO IRVING TAYLOR MYERS.

At a small tea given Thursday evening at her residence in Bayonne, Mrs. A. L. Egbert announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helen Talmage Batchelor, to Irving Taylor Myers, the eldest son of Dr. and Mrs. S. I. Myers, of Bayonne. Mrs. Egbert was assisted by Mrs. H. B. McClellan, of Bayonne; Mrs. Richard Gibbs, of New York city; Miss Helen Timpon, of this city; Mrs. D. H. Peabody, of Brooklyn; Miss Elizabeth Gilchrist, of Montclair; Miss Dorothy Howard, of New York city and Miss Marjorie Winants, of Bayonne.

Miss Batchelor formerly lived in this city, where she was prominent in the younger society set. Mr. Myers was a St. Anthony Club man at Williams College, Class '06. He is now engaged in the publishing business in New York city. No date has been set for the wedding.

DR. CHAS. J. KIPP DEAD

Well Known Oculist and Aurist Succumbs to Pneumonia in Newark.

IN HIS SEVENTY-THIRD YEAR.

Was a Surgeon in the Civil War and Consulting Specialist in Eye and Ear Disease—Funeral Monday.

Unable, because of his advanced age, to withstand the ravages of pneumonia, Dr. Charles J. Kipp, an authority on eye and ear diseases, died at his home, 560 Broad street, Newark, at 2:15 o'clock yesterday morning. Dr. Kipp was well known in this city having had occasion to be called many times as consulting specialist.

Dr. Kipp was in his seventy-third year, and from the inception of his illness, ten days ago, his condition had been critical. He was unmarried and leaves surviving a number of nieces and nephews.

After a short service at Dr. Kipp's late home, the funeral will be held in Trinity Episcopal church at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Rev. Louis Shreve Osborne officiating. Interment will be in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

The honorary pallbearers will be Chief Justice William S. Gummere, Vice Chancellor John R. Emery, former Governor Franklin Murphy, Frederick Frelinghuysen, Dr. Thos. H. Mackenzie, of Trenton; Dr. W. J. Chandler, Dr. Edward J. Ill, Dr. Walter S. Washington, Dr. Archibald Mercer and Dr. Charles Young.

Dr. Kipp was born in Hanover, Germany, October 22, 1838. He began his education there and continued it in New York when he came to this country in 1854, graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia) in 1861.

In 1861 Dr. Kipp volunteered his services in defense of the Union and was appointed surgeon to the Fifth Regiment, N. G. N. Y. The following year he was made assistant surgeon of the Third Battalion, New York Artillery, and in May, 1863, assistant surgeon, United States Volunteers. Promoted to the position of surgeon of the United States Volunteers in March, 1864. Dr. Kipp was the following year accorded greater distinction when by reason of meritorious and faithful service on the field he was breveted lieutenant-colonel.

As a surgeon in the National Guard, the artillery and the volunteer service, Dr. Kipp spent three years on the battlefield and only retired to take up hospital work during the remainder of the war. He performed such work in Nashville, Tenn., and Indianapolis, Ind., subsequently being made chief of the United States Board of Inspectors of Recruits at the general rendezvous in Indiana. He also held the position of medical director of the freedman's bureau of that State from August, 1865, to February, 1868.

Beginning his practice in Newark by opening an office in Kinney street, in 1869, Dr. Kipp quickly assumed a leading position in medical circles. He organized the first eye and ear clinic at St. Michael's Hospital in 1870, and was elected president of the Essex County Medical Society in 1880. In retiring from this office he advocated the formation of the Society for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Medical Men of New Jersey, which was incorporated in 1882. He was elected president of the organization, which office he held at his death.

Since 1880, Dr. Kipp had been consulting surgeon at the Newark Eye and Ear Infirmary. He was elected president of the Medical Society of New Jersey in 1886, and at his death was president of its board of trustees. From 1901 to 1906 he was president of the board of managers of the New Jersey Sanitarium for Tuberculosis Diseases. He was president of the American Ophthalmological Society in 1907, president of the American Otological Society in 1908 and vice-president of the American Medical Association in 1909. He was also a member of the Ophthalmological Society of Heidelberg, Germany; New York Academy of Medicine and the New York Pathological Society.

Dr. Kipp was well known in this city having had occasion to be called as consulting specialist.

Zeile officiated and only immediate relatives and friends were present. The interment was made this morning in Woodlawn cemetery.

PATIENTS ENJOY SOCIAL

Anti-Tuberculosis Society Entertains Fifteen Who Are Improving.

NEW SCALE FOR WEIGHING.

Educational Posters to Be Raised Throughout the Country—Contributions by Allied Trades at Cost of $100,000.

The first social of tuberculosis patients of the series to be held under the auspices of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society was held on Thursday afternoon fifteen patients being present. The hour was thoroughly enjoyed. It is believed that the socials will develop the interest of all patients and that they will tend to disseminate the right kind of feeling among those who are suffering but fighting to renew their strength. The passing of experiences between those who are ill it is expected will encourage others to follow the instructions of the society and finally get well.

The weighing scale which the society made an appeal for through The Daily Press has been donated and will soon become a factor in keeping faithful records of the progress of the patients.

During the next three months, the billboards of the United States will display 20,000 educational posters of tuberculosis, according to an announcement made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

This will conclude the campaign begun a year ago, when the National Billposters Association donated free space to the tuberculosis cause, the Poster Printing Association offered free printing, and nine paper manufacturers gave the paper for the posters. The combined value of these several donations for this three-month campaign is nearly $100,000.

The posters are in six different designs and are all printed in three colors. They are 7 feet wide and 9 feet high. Already nearly 2,500 of these posters have been hung on the billboards of 46 different cities, and it is planned to distribute 20,000 more before April 1st in over 400 towns and cities. Any anti-tuberculosis society in the United States may receive free of charge, except for transportation, as many of these posters as can be hung on the boards in its territory. The National Association with the Tuberculosis Committee of the National Billposters and Distributors are conducting the campaign.

The posters show in graphic form how fresh air, good food, and rest cure tuberculosis; how bad air, overwork, and closed windows lead to consumption; and how the careless consumptive menaces the health of his family by spitting on the floor.

MOTION PICTURES AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE

A high-class motion picture entertainment combined with the best of musical features was inaugurated at The Plainfield theatre this afternoon. There will be two performances each day, when regular shows are not booked for the house; at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and 8:20 o'clock at night.

As a result of her scientific training in and teaching of the cultivation of the speaking voice, Miss Bona, who has been engaged to assist in the entertainment at the theatre, presents her dramatic and other selections to the public in an original manner.

Miss Bona uses her voice as an instrument; like the violinist or the pianist. She brings out the correct tones of the emotions she expresses and the words she utters. Scientifically considered, Miss Bona's method employs a series of (vocal) octaves, just as in pianoforte playing. She obtains her effects in a similar way to the trained pianist, singer or violinist, but with this difference, she neither sings nor plays; she talks. All seats for the lower floor and balcony are reserved for these performances.

Birthday Surprise.

Harry Ten Eyck, of Oak Tree, was given a surprise party in honor of his birthday last night. Fifty friends from this city and other places were in attendance and enjoyed games and dancing until an early hour this morning. The affair was arranged by Miss Florence Hartfelder, of the borough, and Ned Monton, of New Dover.

Neuman Bros. will offer for tomorrow's trade a choice assortment of fresh vegetables, the finest grown, at reasonable prices. They will help to make your Sunday dinner complete.

AN OLD SPANISH SWINDLE

Victim Sought in Plainfield is Wise to the Game and Won't Bite.

LETTER TO L. SCHEELEIN.

"Beautiful Daughter" and a "Fortune of $480,000" Can't Be Saved This Time, Mr. Demidoff—Scheme is too Old.

Lawrence Scheelein, the Somerset street harness maker, has been selected by the workers of an ancient bunco game as a victim, but because Mr. Scheelein is wise he will not fall for the bait thrown out in a letter from Spain written by a Russian who alleges that he is in durance vile in London.

The scheme has been worked so often, but with indifferent success in this country that it would seem as though "Mr. Demidoff," the alleged prisoner would think twice before attempting to get another wide-awake American to become the laughing stock of the world. The scheme is so old that it is mossy. Read the following letter:

"Dear Sir: Although I know you only from good references of your honesty, my sad situation compels me to reveal you an important affair, in which you can procure a modest fortune, saving at the same time that of my darling daughter. Before being imprisoned here I was established as a banker in Russia as you will see by the enclosed article about me published in many English newspapers which knew of my arrest in London.

"I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of $480,000 I have in America and to come here to raise the seizure of my baggage, paying the registrar of the court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden the document indispensable to recover the said sum.

"As a reward I will give up to you the third part, viz.—$160,000. I cannot receive your answer in the prison, but you must send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me. Awaiting your cable to instruct you in all my secret, I am, Sir, yours truly, Demidoff."

"First of all cable not by letter as follows: 'Blas Latorre, Juanele, tres segundo, Izquierda, Madrid, Explain' Scheelein."

It is quite unnecessary to say that Mr. Scheelein is not at all excited over the prospect of rescuing a "beautiful daughter" or of receiving for his trifling trouble $160,000. The game has been attempted many a time and oft, but it is getting too old for successful operation in this year of grace 1911.

Monday Afternoon Club Lecture.

It will give pleasure to many who know Jonas Lie to learn that he is to deliver the first of three lectures at the Hartbridge School auditorium, Monday afternoon, on "Ibsen and His Country." The subject for the first lecture will be "Norway, the Land and the People." Two of Mr. Lie's paintings from his recent exhibition in New York have been bought for the International Exhibition in Rome, although probably his best picture, "The Witches' Pool" remains in this country in the art gallery of Los Angeles.

Men's Conference Class. An undenominational Men's conference Bible class has been organized under the leadership of H. E. Parker, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. and meets for study and discussion every Sunday afternoon at four fifteen in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church. The course of study is an intensely interesting and instructive one, taking Dr. Josiah Strong's series on the "Gospel of the Kingdom." The topic for discussion on Sunday will be "The Church and Social Purity." All men are invited to these classes.

Y. W. C. A. Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association will be held at the association building Monday night. Reports for the past year will be made and a new Board of Directors elected. Miss Helen Barnes, of New York, national secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and Miss Elizabeth Dodge, chairman of the territorial committee, will be in attendance and speak. There will also be an exhibition by the educational classes, comprising dressmaking, embroidery, millinery and others.

Fire in Clothes Closet.

The borough fire department was summoned by still alarm to the home of W. J. Butfield, on Rockview avenue, yesterday afternoon. A blaze had been discovered in a clothes closet on an upper floor. It was put out with hand extinguishers. The damage was slight.

Mrs. Anna M. McCullough, wife of Richard H. McCullough, aged 52 years, died about 3:30 o'clock this morning at her home, 21 Steiner place, North Plainfield, following an illness of several months from trouble of a cancerous nature. Mrs. McCullough was born at Bound Brook. Her maiden name was Anna Eder, and she was the daughter of Philip Eder. She had been a resident of the borough for about twenty-five years since her marriage.

Besides a husband, Mrs. McCullough is survived by four sons, Lieut. Richard P. McCullough, U. S. N., stationed at Philadelphia; William P., John and Joseph McCullough, all of this city; also three daughters, the Misses Anna, May and Theresa McCullough. The funeral services will be held at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning at the late home and at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church where a solemn high mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of her soul. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

CONTRACTOR VIOLATED A STREET ORDINANCE

On a complaint made by Mayor George W. V. Moy to Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett the latter had Peter C. Johnson, a contractor, of East Front street, arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning charged with violating a city ordinance in failing to properly protect openings in the street at night.

The explanation made by Mr. Johnson satisfied the court that he was unacquainted with the law and that he had placed the necessary protection over some holes near the corner of John and West Fourth streets and the contractor was discharged with a warning.

In connection with the case Mr. Gavett notified the police that the ordinance against taking up the sidewalk flags without a permit should be stopped and those who neglect the provisions of the ordinance are to be apprehended and fined.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. JESSE HATFIELD

Funeral services of the late Mrs. Margaret Hatfield, wife of Jesse Hatfield, were held this morning at her late residence, 531 West, Front street, Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church officiating. The body was later taken to Somerville for interment.

A large number of friends gathered at the home this morning and many handsome floral tributes were laid upon the casket of the dead woman. Mrs. Hatfield was a member of Trinity Reformed church and during her connection with the church had many close and enduring friendships. Mr. Broek in commenting upon her life spoke of her high Christian attainments and the affection she had always shown for those with whom she had come in contact with in and outside the church.

Col. Margetts to Speak Here.

Colonel Margetts from the national headquarters of the Salvation Army, accompanied by Adjutant Underwood, will visit this city, tomorrow. In the morning he will speak at the Temple Baptist church. In the evening he will deliver his famous lecture "Heroes" at the Salvation Army Hall. Field Pleasants.

Al G. Field, whose minstrels will be here on Wednesday, says that at one time he attended a little dinner given by a somewhat bashful minister, who, naturally, was called on for a speech. For a moment after he arose, the minister was somewhat embarrassed. Then he said: "My friends, I have come here to heal the dead, cast out the sick and raise the devil." The Al G. Field minstrels will give two performances at the Plainfield theatre.

Will Hold Yearly Meeting.

The yearly meeting of the Swedish Lutheran church, will be held in the German Lutheran church, Monday evening. After a short service there will be the election of officers and presentation of reports. Rev. John Estlund, the pastor, will be in charge.

FOR PUBLIC CONTROL OF THE WATER SUPPLY

Municipal Ownership Favored by Speakers at Taxpayers' Hearing.

The question of the advisability of establishing a municipal water plant in this city or purchasing the plant of the Plainfield-Union Water company was fully discussed at a meeting held for the purpose in the council chambers, last night, under the direction of the special water committee, of which Councilman F. E. Mygatt is the chairman. The weight of the argument was in favor of a municipal plant and a majority of those present either by applause or by word of mouth were unanimously in favor of the city controlling the local water supply.

After Mr. Mygatt explained the purpose of the meeting and invited everyone present to express an opinion. The speakers were L. V. F. Randolph, Dr. Leonard Waldo, W. H. Sampson, L. A. Johnson, L. B. Woolston, Howard C. Tracy, S. H. Voorhees, Jacob Sachar, John W. Harrison, Winfield S. Anglemann and George Frost.

The only speakers who were pronounced in their views that the present water company is entitled to some consideration were L. B. Woolston, W. H. Sampson and S. H. Voorhees, the first two being strongly in favor of making a satisfactory contract with the company, while Mr. Voorhees stated that the company was entitled to consideration because it had come here and had invested its money and certainly had the right to control its own property. Mr. Voorhees said that he had no special interest in the water company, but it would not be just to take from them what they own.

Mr. Randolph in a lengthy address to the meeting outlined his objections to the present attitude of the water company declaring that today they are pumping water to towns outside of the limits of Plainfield in spite of the law and doctrine laid down by the Supreme Court of New Jersey in the case of Meeker vs. East Orange, and saying that it is the avowed intention of the company to pursue that policy.

Rehearsing his experiences of the past summer and in response to questions put to Mr. Bergen, Mr. Randolph said that the president of the company admitted that the supply of water had diminished during the past three years, and further admitted that the underground supply is probably insufficient for the consumption of an increasing population for the next thirty years. Mr. Bergen admitted at the meeting on Wednesday night that he could not see thirty years ahead, and really did not know just where the water came from.

"But so far as developed," he said, "the supply has proved insufficient for the keeping of the water company's contract. What assurances therefore are there for the future of our growing city? Mr. Bergen says that his plan was not designed for irrigation purposes, he probably meant that it was unreasonable to rely upon the water works for sprinkling lawns and streets. Laying aside the legal points involved, Mr. Bergen asked if his company would agree to not supply other towns if another contract were signed. He gave those present to understand very plainly that his company expected to continue to sell to other towns."

Mr. Randolph questioned the binding force of another contract as any contract made must be subject to a considerable mortgage indebtedness. "While," he said, "Plainfield is hazardous its very life by committing its existence to the mercenary grip of the corporation." Continuing Mr. Randolph said, "Mr. Bergen was even unwilling to make the concession in event of the point of hazard or peril being reached to stop the deportation of water to other and cities, declaring the proposition to be an unfair one. Mr. Bergen also suggested the engaging of arbitrators, and thirty days notices and other cumbersome impediments. What could happen then? What redress would the city have? Recourse to the courts for damages. What avail would damages be when water is the thing the city needs?"

The speaker then referred to the report of James H. Fuertes' water report quoting from page 104 and ended by saying that it is doubtful if Plainfield wants to enter upon a questionable policy as to its water supply. "Our population," he said, "has increased 33 per cent. within the past decade and within the next fifty years is liable to reach 100,000. Two great questions confront us—

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. C. Manchester, 120 Lafayette place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney and bladder trouble for a long time. I doctored a great deal but failed to find a cure until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and made up my mind to give them a trial. Good results followed their use and my kidneys were soon restored to a normal condition. I believe my cure is a permanent one and I will always give Doan's Kidney Pills my endorsement when an opportunity occurs."

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Woodbury Council has again decided to publish the delinquent tax list.

The sale of the Barnesboro Hotel to Augustus Prehl, of Woodbury, is reported. It is the oldest hostelry in South Jersey.

Mrs. Susanna Loudenslager, lifelong resident of Paulsboro, is very ill at her home, with little hope of her recovery. She is an aunt of Congressman Loudenslager.

The town of Paulsboro is at last awake to the needs of the citizens, and an ordinance has been introduced in the council to compel the erection of fire escapes on all public buildings where at least twenty persons assemble.

C. M. Van Tassel, of New York, one of the promoters of the proposed Millville, Tuckahoe and Ocean City Electric Railway, says that work is being rushed upon five Edison storage battery cars that are to be used by the company.

Mary Kilroy, five years old, 1809 South Seventh street, Camden, had an extra thumb on her right hand which bothered her because it always seemed in the way of the other digits. She went to the Cooper Hospital Thursday and had the superfluous member cut off.

A Gloucester County farmer is authoritatively for the statement that several of the ring-neck pheasants, bought by the State at a cost of $20 each, are roosting with chickens all over the county, and that not a few of them have found their way with other poultry to the market.

Benjamin Yeager, eighteen years old, through his father, Thomas C. Yeager, of Trenton, has commenced suit in the Supreme Court against the Trenton Street Railway Company for $11,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained when thrown off the rear platform of a crowded trolley car on a sharp curve.

The Wood brothers, founders of Woodbury, who lie buried in the old graveyard at the mouth of Woodbury Creek, have been remembered by a "friend," who sent $100 to the Historical Society to be spent in fixing up the ground. It has been suggested that the council also make an appropriation to assist the memorial.

Magistrate Daniel E. Iszard, the oldest member of the West Jersey Presbytery and for thirty-five years treasurer of the Atlantic County Bible Society, has been re-elected superintendent of the Mays Landing Presbyterian Sunday-school for his thirty-seventh term. Mr. Iszard wished to retire this year, but his friends insist that he remain.

Caught by Policeman Fitzsimmons taking cinnamon buns from the box in front of a store at Third and Mt. Vernon streets, Camden, early Thursday morning, Elmer Palmer, seventeen years old, later in police court gained his liberty on pleading starvation for his act. Palmer told Recorder Stackhouse that since his mother broke up housekeeping he has had no place of abode and that he only resorted to theft when the pangs of hunger made him desperate.

Atlantic City policemen who seek shelter of warm boiler-rooms instead of pacing their beats on cold nights will hereafter stick to their assignments, as the result of the action of Mayor Stoy, who Thursday suspended Patrolman George W. Corbin for "catnapping" in boiler-rooms of apartment-houses on his beat. Corbin will lose a month's pay and a second offense will cost him his job. Patrolman W. S. Mathis was similarly penalized for failure to pull police boxes and for not reporting a fire which occurred on his rounds.

PERSONAL

David Angerbauer, of East Third street, is detained at home with the grip.

John Hall, of this city, has been visiting his sisters, the Misses Hall, of South Branch.

Mrs. L. A. Bellis, of Somerville, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bellis, of this city.

Mrs. William Crounce, of Neshanic, is a patient at the hospital undergoing treatment for eye trouble. Clifford Randolph, of Grant avenue, is rapidly regaining his strength, following a long illness with typhoid fever.

Dr. and Mrs. M. P. E. Grossmann, of Watchung Crest, left yesterday for Europe. They will be abroad for two months.

David H. Rowland, of West Seventh street, continues to improve from a recent illness, and hopes to be out again soon.

Mrs. T. J. Gillies, of this city, is at Muhlenberg Hospital, where she recently underwent an operation for eye trouble. She is improving nicely.

Bequeaths $50,000 Estate.

The will of Mary Pierson bequeaths the bulk of her real and personal property, which is estimated at $50,000, to her sister, Hettie M. Pierson, of Westfield, with whom she resided at the time of death. Other bequests in the testament are: $100 to David T. Pierson, of Madison; $400 to the latter's daughter Gwendolen, and $500 to John H. Mahoney, of Westfield. Miss Pierson died on December 26. She was the daughter of the late Oliver W. Pierson.

SPORTS

News and Notes

GOLF.

Cases in court will keep Mr. Calkins away from the U. S. G. A. meeting at Chicago. Believing that all fair minded golfers will recognize that an important principle is at stake and that both sides are serious, Mr. Calkins sends the following letter as a parting shot.

"There is a very amusing paragraph in the second Macdonald circular letter, which has not been commented upon. Referring to statements which have been made to the effect that a Schenectady putter or any centre shafted putter is an American idea or invention, Mr. Macdonald allows his loyalty to St. Andrews (which we all admit and sincerely admire) to draw him into a very damaging admission so far as St. Andrews itself is concerned. He says:

"Mr. Hodge, an eminent golfer of St. Andrews in the early '70s, made a putter fashioned like the Schenectady; also A. F. MacFie over twenty years ago did the same. * * I have a book published in 1897 in England extolling the merits of centre shafted clubs.

"So it seems that centre shafted clubs were in use nearly forty years ago! Yet St. Andrews now bars them because they are not of 'traditional form and make.' How much time ought to be given to an implement in this royal and ancient game that we have been talking about before it can honorably and fairly be called 'traditional'?"

"To sum up: We all, or nearly all, believe that St. Andrews, notwithstanding its honorable and historic influence, has made a stupendous mistake in beginning an era of standardization, which is contrary to the basic character of a game which has always allowed freedom of choice as to clubs and balls. That is the first point. The second is this: Is it desirable to have uniform rules here and in England, so far as possible? To this every true golfer will say yes. Loyalty to the game requires it.

"It is on the third point that we part company. Mr. Macdonald sincerely believes that uniformity can be maintained only by our allowing St. Andrews to continue to make the rules for the whole world. He probably believes that St. Andrews knows so much more about the game that it is better qualified than we are to say whether a centre shafted putter shall be used or whether balls should be standardized, etc. We others look further into the future and see dark days ahead if our national association adopt a position so impossible to justify. If we are to have lasting uniformity in the rules it will come only through a recognition of the principle of mutually of obligation. Starting with the same rules here and in England,

If neither country will make any changes until after conference, substantial uniformity will be assured and in no other way.

"The game is no longer young in this country. We do know something about it; enough at least to recognize what even in England is admitted to have been a fatal blunder on the part of St. Andrews in this instance. St. Andrews has not demanded that we shall adopt its rules, but we voluntarily have done so. Consequently it is not a question of 'tyranny' on their part or of 'owed allegiance' or 'loyalty' on ours. It is a practical question for us to decide for ourselves. I believe that Mr. Macdonald with the best of intentions misreads the signs of the times. Uniformity is to be had only at the price of a reasonable recognition of the widespread interest in golf in this country; in fact all over the world. A worldwide game will not forever take its rules from a single golf club—not even from the royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews, much as we truly owe that organization for all that it has stood for in the past."

BASEBALL.

In spite of Willie Keeler's famous explanation of successful hitting, "Hit 'em where they ain't," Hans Wagner says it's all a matter of good and bad luck. Says the illustrious Dutchman: "If you hit 'em where they ain't you're all right, but if you hit 'em where they are you're out."

"That's all there is to it, and it's a whole lot easier to hit 'em where they are, too. Only luck puts 'em any place. A player may have a good year, then an off year with the stick. It's a case of luck, and it wasn't with me this year. I hit the ball just as hard and as squarely as I ever did in my life, but it went at the fielders instead of away from them."

"Luck cuts a figure in fielding, too. Errors in a large majority of instances are due to something besides inferior skill in handling the ball. The ground is uneven, a stone is in the way, the cover of the ball is wet or a fellow's spikes don't hold, but the player's hands and eyes are all right."

"For that reason I say mighty few fielding errors can be blamed on the players. If there ain't a hoodoo somewhere, well and good, but if there is a jinks, good night."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

William A. Brady has "put over" another big success, "Over Night," the new farcical play by Philip H. Bartholome, which was made known at the Hackett Theatre, New York, last Monday night, has proved to be one of the biggest laugh-sensations of the year, and a long and successful run is prophesied for it. The story of the play indicates its humorous possibilities. "Over Night" is presented by a company of notable cleverness, Margaret Lawrence, a tiny actress who is a delight to look at, plays the role of Elsie Darling, one of the wives, and Jean Newcombe, the antithesis of Miss Lawrence in stature, is the other wife, Georgina Kettle. The husbands are Herbert A. Yost and Robert Kelly.

who do their share in creating merriment. Other clever people in the cast are Arthur P. Aylsworth, Max Freeman, Wallace Worsley, Nora Winslow, Grace Griswold and Teresa Deagle. The scenes representing the steamboat and the mountain inn are novel and handsome.

SCORES UNION TAX BOARD.

One of the breeziest sessions in the history of the Union County Board of Equalization of Taxes took place Thursday, when a score or more Westfield property owners appealed for a reduction of their tax assessments.

James Ross, whose appeal for a reduction of $300 from the original assessment was denied, criticized the assessors and asserted that they did not know their business. He said: "There is no justice for Westfield property owners and I have no use for the assessors. They don't know their business and simply go around like blockheads. It is an outrage the way they assess properties. I never saw such a lot of humbugs."

Dr. William Gale, who also appeared before the board, declared that "the present manner of assessing property is nothing more than confiscation. In my case they are driving an old soldier out of his home."

A total of $27,534 reduction was asked, and the board granted a total of $4,400 from the original assessment.

HERE AND THERE.

Herman J. Onnes, a sky-scraping citizen of Holland, 7 feet 2 inches tall in his sea-boots, was an arrival this week aboard the Noordam of the Holland-American line. Mr. Onnes is a well-to-do farmer who hails from the neighborhood of Groningen, in the old country, and he has come to see the remarkable land called the United States. He will stroll around Minnesota and Wisconsin, and if he likes the general appearance of things he may buy a farm and settle on this side. Among the other passengers Mr. Onnes was a marked figure because of his height. He is 45 years old and weighs about 220 pounds, so it may be seen that he is not heavily built for his altitude. Among the American passengers he was known as "The Singer Building." He has a brother, who is not particularly tall, nor is any other member of his immediate family of more than ordinary height.

Presiding Elder A. L. Murray, of Atlantic City, will officiate at the celebration of the Lord's Supper at the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church tomorrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Vail, who were recently married in the Holy Cross church, have returned from their wedding trip and are living with Mrs. Vail's mother on West Fourth street.

FOR PUBLIC CONTROL

(1) shall we depend absolutely on this underground supply, (2) shall we depend upon the water supply?"

In the opinion of Mr. Sampson when a person finds food and drink that agrees with them they have to part with it. One of the nice things about Plainfield, he said, is the purity and abundance of the water supply. Mr. Sampson said that it does not pay to experiment. Plainfield does not get its reputation from the P. S. C. trolley service or the lights that you cannot see, but from its pure water supply and the excellent railroad service. Mr. Sampson was against the plan to bond the city and tear up the streets to install another plant, believing that the city should be able to make a satisfactory contract with the present water company.

Speaking from the viewpoint of an engineer, Dr. Leonard Walde, declared that Plainfield has the most wonderful water filter that God Almighty ever gave to the universe. He said that when he came here twelve years ago he was pleased with the purity of the water and the reports on the same by Prof. Leeds, of Stevens Institute. He referred to the report of the company on the water read before the American Society of Engineers as being very complete.

Dr. Walde said that there seemed to be a question as to whether the supply here is sufficient. In his opinion it would be better for Plainfield to own the supply beneath it. He said that he had kept a careful history of his own well, which is located two miles from the pumping station, and it is at the present time dry. "What is to become of the vegetation if the water diminishes," said Dr. Walde. "I believe we are entitled to this water which is beneath our feet."

"No sensible business man would go into any proposition without first knowing the legal status," declared Winfield S. Angelman. "It seems to me that the first thing that the city should do is to learn the legal status of the present water company and the legal rights of the city to prevent it from taking water and selling it elsewhere. The courts today seem to favor the city's position. It would be foolhardy to spend a million dollars to bring a water supply here and at the same time have a company that is selling our water elsewhere."

"It is a question as to the standing of the present company and whether the city wouldn't have the right to conserve its supply. There is plenty of water here, Mr. Bergen told me so last summer, but the lack of pumping facilities has been the trouble. The company is now installing large powerful pumps with which to raise the water into the standpipes and it is also laying larger pipes down the line."

"The trouble with the pressure in the city is that the mains are not large enough, there being double the laterals now that there were when the main was laid and consequently a heavier drain on the main line. The proper thing to do is to first find out what the company is and its legal rights and the legal rights of the city."

It was the opinion of George H. Frost that it is a very serious question that confronts the city, and especially those who have invested large sums of money here. He said in his opinion that the policy of the American people is along the line of least resistance. "When I first came here twenty-six years ago," said Mr. Frost, "there was an agitation for municipal ownership of water and the result was that the present water company got the plant. I am not objecting to the water company nor to the price we pay. The tendency throughout the country is in favor of municipal ownership of water plants. Since 1877 I have published statistics concerning municipal plants, and I find that some of the best men in the country are connected with plants. They are not grafters."

"Massachusetts is probably the most intelligent State in the Union, in thirty cities of our size in that State, municipal ownership of water plants is a success. The plants are not operated extravagantly neither are they going into bankruptcy, and I don't believe it would come to grief here."

"I believe there is plenty of water here. Why, some time ago a sewer contractor had to give up his contract because he couldn't get rid of the water. Our water supply is most remarkable. Mr. Bergen or no one else can tell its course or how long it will last. The supply is hard and it must be softened. We must look forward to the purity of the supply. As soon as there is the least suspicion ion regarding the purity of the water we will stop growing as a city.

"Many are opposed to municipal ownership, but we should start in right now on the proposition. The legal question is an important one. I don't believe that the present character of the water company will stand much investigation."

"I know many men who are operating municipal plants and they are far superior to some others. I hope that the Common Council will receive strong backing in this matter. It is a serious question that of expending a million dollars, but the people need not be alarmed that the company will shut off their supply. They cannot do it, as water is an absolute necessity."

Others who spoke were L. B. Woolston, who believed a satisfactory contract should be made with the water company, taking exception to the plan to install a new plant at a great expense; Howard C. Tracy, who favored a municipal plant and concerning water rights; Jacob Sachar, also in favor of a municipal plant; J. W. Harrison, who talked at great length on the subject of city ownership; S. H. Voorhees, who favored city control, provided that it can be successfully financed and supported. Referring to the New Brunswick water, under city control, he said that the water has to be boiled and is of poor quality.

It was nearly 10:30 o'clock when the conference was concluded. Mayor Moy dropped in about 10 o'clock, but did not take any part in the conference.

OF PIANO BUILDING

A great deal of stress is laid on priority of manufacture by many piano makers.

We lay stress on the facts that we were pioneers when we started in 1839, and that fifty years ago our pianos were awarded the highest gold medals of award, but we attach far more importance to the fact that our piano is today the supreme quality and the maximum value.

Over 139 medals of award mean nothing to the buyer today unless we are still worthy of the "award of highest honors." Today the Hallet & Davis is better than ever, and is as good as a piano can be made.

Prices are very moderate. Catalogs and full information about buying a piano mailed free.

alone, who say they have the correct interpretation of the Scriptures. This being the case, it would seem that if our critic asserts that Christian Science is contrary to the Scriptures, his position is that of asserting that he has the correct interpretation out of the three hundred and more interpretations already extant. Christian Scientists do not wish to criticize denominations of Christians. All are entitled to work out their own salvation, but it is not right for any Christian clergyman to assert that Christian Science is "Anti-Christian and a lie," any more than it would be right for a Christian Scientist to assert that the teachings of the Baptist church are anti-Christian and a lie.

Our critic misrepresents the teachings of Christian Science with respect to marriage. Mrs. Eddy has declared that Christian Science does not prohibit marriage and says, "I leave the subject of marriage and progeny in my private teachings on Marriage in Science and Health which all approve." I will quote from a portion of this chapter on this subject. Page 56, lines 7 to 20. "Marriage is the legal and moral provision for generation among human kind. Until the spiritual creation is discerned, in fact, apprehended, understood, and His kingdom is come, marriage will continue subject to such moral regulations as will secure increasing virtue." "Infidelity to the marriage covenant is the social scourge of all races." "The commandments, 'Thou shalt not commit adultery,' is no less imperative than the other, 'Thou shalt not kill.'" Among the statements of our critic set forth in quotation from Mrs. Eddy's Miscellaneous Writings, Page 288. "Is marriage more right than celibacy?" "Human knowledge says it is, while Christian Science says no." I would answer that this is in accord with the celestial statement of Christ Jesus himself and relates to the celestial condition described by the Master when he said, "In the kingdom of heaven they neither marry or are given in marriage, but are as the angels." Thus we see that our critic has wholly misrepresented Mrs. Eddy's teachings on this subject.

In defining pure religion and undeveloped, our critic asks if anyone has ever heard of Mrs. Eddy visiting the fatherless and widows in their affliction, etc., and further asks if we have ever heard of Mrs. Eddy's dispensing charity or contributing anything to the support of anyone besides herself. For many years, Mrs. Eddy visited the fatherless and widows in their affliction with the message of Christian healing and continued her activities in such ministrations directly or indirectly through the Christian Science church. The Bible says with respect to alms giving, "Let not your right hand know what the left hand doeth," a Christian Scientist does not sound a trumpet before them when they give alms, but since our critic has brought up the question, I will say that Mrs. Eddy's charities amounted to about one hundred thousand dollars annually during her life time and at her decease her entire fortune of over one million dollars as before stated was bequeathed for charitable purposes. Unless our critic has done as well in the matter of alms giving, I say without fear of contradiction, that he is in no position to criticize harshly or at all, one who is not here to answer his unmet charges. There is an old adage which says, "If we cannot speak well of the departed, we should not speak of them at all." I agree with this statement and believe that your readers will do likewise. I will leave this subject to the good judgment of the readers of The Daily Press and am sure that they will "Judge righteous judgment."

In closing I will say that Christian Science does not minister to sin in the sense which our critic implies, but would say that Christian Science does minister to the destruction of sin and sickness to the extent that no other church has ever attempted. The Christian Science organization has fearlessly enlisted in the destruction of the beliefs of sin, disease and death. As may pass before absolute Christian Science and its demonstration is reached, but those who are engaged in relieving mankind through Christian healing should receive commendation from every Christian church. We recall that the disciples saw one casting out devils in the name of Christ and said, "Master we saw one casting out devils in thy name and forbade him, because he followeth not with us," but Jesus said, "Forbid him not; he that is not against us is for us." Luke 9: 49-50.

Respectfully,
H. COULSON FAIRCHILD.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Ernest K. Brown, wife of the pastor of the Presbyterian church, has suffered a bereavement three times within the past two weeks. The relatives lived at Rahway the last one to pass away being her mother, who died the fore part of the week. All were victims of pneumonia. Mrs. Knox was prevented from attending her mother's funeral because of illness.

It is probable that the wax works entertainment given in the Presbyterian church, last night, may be repeated in the near future, either in Dunellen or New Market. The inclement weather kept many people from attending and another presentation will afford the desired opportunity. The matter will be decided upon within the next few days.

Mobus Brothers, of North Plainfield, commenced work, yesterday raising the W. G. Runyon house on Front street. Another story will be added to the building and will be fitted up for Mr. Runyon's new office.

Dr. P. W. Brakeley, who has been ill for the past two weeks, left yesterday for Atlantic City, accompanied by Mrs. Brakeley. They will remain at the shore for two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Appgar, of Front street, are still victims of the grip. The former has had a severe attack and has been confined to his bed most of the time.

Rev. W. A. Knox has been mentioned among the grip victims during the past week but is now greatly improved.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Young People's Choral Union, of the Baptist church, enjoyed a pleasant social after practice, last night, in the parlors of the church. Considering the weather, the attendance was good.

Rev. George Hollingshead will have charge of the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Methodist church.

Ira Gage Walker, of Mountain avenue, has been entertaining his brother from Coxsackie, N. Y., for two weeks.

The township annual report will be ready for distribution among the taxpayers, the latter part of next week.

On account of the storm, only one session of the school was held, school closing for the day at 1 o'clock.

The next meeting of the Township Committee will be held Friday night, January 20, in the town rooms.

Mrs. Thomas Walsh, of Prospect avenue, has been entertaining friends from out of town.

Miss H. M. Squiers, of the corps teachers, is spending the week end at her home in Rahway.

Roy Day has taken a position with T. A. Garthwaite Co., of Watchung avenue, Plainfield.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

It is rumored that the dam of the New Market lake, which was destroyed some time ago will be rebuilt by private interests. The combined overflow from South Plainfield lake and the saw mill stream last summer barely supplied New Market with enough water to float a boat, and now that the Middlesex Water Co. have installed two powerful pumps, capable of pumping two million gallons a day, which will take the entire overflow from the lake here, it seems that the maximum of water fed to New Market by the saw mill stream alone will hardly be sufficient to furnish the requisite power.

Rev. J. J. Allen, pastor, will preach morning and evening at the Baptist church, tomorrow. In the morning the theme will be "How we Got Our Bible," and in the evening, "The Wiseman's Words to the Young."

A number of the young men of the town will witness the billiard exhibition at Newark between Willie Hoppe and Cutler, of Boston, on Monday night.

Mrs. W. E. Smith has gone to Harrisburg, Pa., to attend the funeral of her brother-in-law, W. O. Bishop.

George Gilbert has returned from a short visit with friends at Perth Amboy.

Mrs. William C. Dunham and son Donald are visiting at Brookside farm.

In the Borough Court. Benjamin Eddy, arrested last night for intoxication and disorderly conduct had sentence suspended by Recorder Doliver, this morning. The defendant was severely reprimanded and promised to behave himself in the future.

"JARLEY'S WAX WORKS" A SUCCESS IN DUNELLEN

The far famed "wax works" of "Madame Jarley" were exhibited in all their mechanical perfection in the chapel of the Presbyterian church at Dunellen, last night. Their coming for the benefit of the borough's projected public library had been announced as far back as two months ago and as a result standing room was at a premium. The audience included many people from this city as well as New Market, Bound Brook and other nearby places. The general opinion prevailed that it was the kind that has ever been held in Dunellen in a long time and the probabilities are that it will be repeated in the near future.

The affair was first suggested by J. Watley Gangloff and he assumed the role of "Madame Jarley," who owned the wax figures. He was assisted by Fred Fedderman and Arthur Bogardus in putting the various characters through their respective parts. The entertainment was in five scenes, the first a general assembly of figures representing familiar personages in nursery rhymes and other stories; the second an allegorical picture in which Pocohontas saves the life of Captain John Smith; the third a statutory group which featured "Uncle Josh"; the fourth a representative of John Alden and Priscilla and the final a grand ensemble of all the figures. The sittings for each group were perfect, especially the Pocohontas scene, which produced unstinted admiration. The various participants were thoroughly drilled in their respective parts and they were frequently applauded. Mr. Gangloff made a splendid "Madame Jarley" and at the close Robert Lowrie and Harry Giddes gave a song number that made a big hit.

Those taking part beside the principals mentioned were the following: The Misses Alice Penner, Emma Voorhees, Ruth Voorhees, Bessie Morris, Elizabeth Hawthorne, Mary Logan, Mary Ryan, Jennie Ryan, Gladys Harrison, Irma Baldwin, Emily Gangloff, Florence Gangloff, Margaret Frederick, Nellie Gangloff, and Mrs. Field, Walter Law, John Logan, Leo Logan, Lewis Churchill, Clarence T. Voorhees, Paul Kratzel, Edgar Starker, Robert Lowrie, William Giddes, George Appgar, Stanley Field, and the Messrs. Pach, of Westfield.

The entertainment committee which arranged the affair was composed of Arthur Bogardus, J. W. Gangloff, Miss Ella H. Boice, and Fred Fedderman. Mr. Bogardus is the active head of the library committee and much of the success of the wax works presentation is due to his efforts. The fund will receive a neat sum in consequence.

A Colonist of Canaan

By Izola Forrester

The Southwestern flier drew up at Canaan Junction. It never stopped, merely slowed up long enough to throw out the mail sack and give the curly-headed boy in the express car a chance to call hello to Nell.

But today it stopped, stopped while one man swung off a sleeper, and the porter dropped a suit case and grip on the platform beside him. Nell stood in the doorway of the little red depot, waving her hand to the curly-headed boy, while the train pulled out. The startled cuffs of her blue-and-white shirtwaist were turned up to her elbows as a concession to the heat and the business duties of Canaan Junction. Many a warm, tired traveler in the dusty, stifling cars turned for a second look at her as she was good to rest your eyes on.

The man left behind was young, so young that he had outgrown his years, and there was a latent, careless strength, mixed with awkwardness about him that reminded one of a cub.

Nell took one look at him and caught her breath sharply. She knew him in an instant, but there was a bare chance that he had forgotten her. It had been four years, and four years is a lengthy stretch when one is 17.

He set the suit case down under the ticket shelf, and went back to the water bucket.

"It's hot enough down here, isn't it?" She watched him drain the tin cup a second time before she answered: "We don't mind it much."

"I suppose not. I came from the north. Don't suppose you know anybody here named Acton?"

The girl's hand closed tightly over the package of letters she had drawn from the mail sack. Her back was toward him. But her voice was steady and natural.

"No, I don't."

"You'd be pretty likely to know, handling all the mail, and so on, wouldn't you?"

"Oh, yes, I would know. I know the name of everybody in this town!"

"Except mine."

He came over to the ledge and leaned one elbow on it, smiling in at her cheerfully. She did not answer.

"Maybe he's using a different name," he went on, presently. "He had plenty of cause to change it, the Lord knows, when he started down this way. I know he's here all right, and I'm going to find him."

She Knew Him in an Instant.

The telegraph instrument set up its call, and she sat down to answer it. When she rose her face was flushed slightly, and anybody well acquainted with Nell would have surmised that she was on the war path. Jopman, the town nearest the state line, was asking about Colonel Acton. Canaan Junction again stated that the party was unknown there.

"Is there a chief of police here in town?"

"Chief of police?" She flashed a startled glance at him. "No. There's a constable. He's the undertaker, too."

"Nice, handy combination," he laughed. "You people down here in this small, new town certainly economize on public office. Thanks, I'll hunt him up. Goodbye."

"Goodbye." She watched him as he went along the road towards the main street, his long, easy strides kicking up a flurry of dust behind him.

The whistle over at the factory was blowing for noon. She caught up the telephone receiver and called a number.

"I want to speak to father, please. Is he there? Well, wait. Give him a message. Tell him to come over to the depot right away. Tell him to come around by the river road, not Main street. I want to show him something there."

Then she waited. It seemed hours before she caught sight of the dear old figure, swinging along the river road, his gray felt hat well back on his head, his gray mustache and imperial giving added distinction to the fine, gracious face. The tears rushed to her eyes as she watched him, but she controlled herself, and met him with a smile.

"Sit down and rest a minute, honey. You've got 20 minutes. They—they're wired for you to come down to Alcazar. It's some committee meeting, I believe." She turned away, and bent over a time table, so that he should not see her tell-tale eyes. "You can make the 1:10 local, dear. And—don't bother about coming back tonight. I'm sure they need you down there." "In a rush, aren't they?" laughed the colonel, wiping off his forehead. "Guess it's about their new town hall. It consists of four flags on a center pole at present, with a scranium bed to the middle. I suppose I'll have to go. Be all right, won't you, Nell?"

She nodded and smiled. It was 15 minutes now. She watched the road to Main street every now and then, half expecting Fate to play her a trick and send the long-limbed stranger back again. It wasn't wrong. She told herself over and over again, it wasn't. They had no right to come after him now, and ruin his whole life. It would have been different if he had been guilty.

A hundred suggestions and plans swept through her mind as she listened to him chat of the new town hall at Alcazar. Then all at once there was a dead silence, and she turned quickly. The colonel stood in the center of the little depot, his hands clasped comfortably under his coat tails, his lips pursed up for a whistle. And he was looking at the suitcase under the window ledge, a suitcase with the owner's name written boldly across it, "J. P. Dexter."

Nell leaned her hands on the desk and waited tensely. She had forgotten to hide the suitcase.

"Well, honey girl, the cat wouldn't stay put, would it? And you going to all this trouble just to try and save your dad from himself." The colonel spoke very calmly, very reflectively, almost with a glint of humor in his blue eyes, as he saw the look on Nell's face. "When did Jack Dexter get here?"

"Father, listen." She put both hands up on his shoulders and leaned her face against his chin. She was just about on a level with his chin. "You must take this train. Surely, when you know you're in the right, it doesn't matter what other people think. They don't know for sure that you are here yet. The night operator said you were, but I know he isn't certain. I can turn Jack Dexter away. He didn't know me at all. Think of them sending him down here to bring you back, the boy that owed everything to you."

"He had to do his duty if they sent him. I certainly wish it had been some one else. I always set a heap by Jack. He's a right fine boy. Stupid law with the judge after we left, Nell. I understand he's prosecuting attorney."

From the bridge came the whistle of the 1:10. She was on time to the minute. The ticket was calling the Canaan operator, and she went to it, the tears streaming from her eyes. As the local pulled in the colonel stood in the doorway and swept his broad-brimmed felt hat off in a general salute.

And the 1:10 pulled out without its extra passenger.

Somebody came hurrying along the platform and into the depot.

"I can't locate him yet, but I'm going to stay over—" Jack Dexter stopped short and whistled softly under his breath. The colonel held Nell close to him, and smiled.

"How are you, boy, how are you?" he said, heartily. "I can't offer you my hand, because, you see, they're both engaged. I'm mighty glad to see you again, Jack. Just take your suitcase right over to my house, sir, and we'll have a good dinner before we start north tonight. He put up one hand as Jack started to explain, and shook his head warningly. "No need for explanations. I understand the situation thoroughly. I don't want to disturb Nellie here, with any of the details."

"But, Colonel Acton," Jack exclaimed. "You don't know what I'm after, sir. I came down to let you know that that indictment is squashed flatter than a pancake. The whole city is waiting to welcome you back, if you'll only come. The president of the bank confessed to the full amount, swore he had made a scapegoat of you, sir, and then gracefully committed suicide. It was the wisest thing he'd done in five years."

"Well, now, that's too bad," the colonel said, regretfully. "He need not have done that. I was comfortable down here. It's home to Nell and myself. In fact, we feel rather responsible for the future of Canaan. Mighty fine of you to come down and let me know, Jack, though, mighty fine."

"I wanted to be the first to tell you, sir," Dexter's hand gripped the colonel's closely. "A crowd of the newspaper boys were after your trail, but I knew you'd be in the same place where you left word we could find you if you were wanted."

The colonel smiled in a pleased, comfortable fashion all his own.

"We keep our word, we Actons," he said. "Don't we, Nell?"

"I can hardly say that," she faltered. "I didn't tell the truth to Mr. Dexter when he asked me if I knew you. I just couldn't. I don't know what he must think of me."

"Think of you?" gasped Dexter. "I think you are the bravest, truest, bluest—"

The colonel coughed and glanced at his watch.

"We will all lunch in honor of the occasion over at the hotel, sir. Jack, just give my little girl your arm along Main street. I'll lock up the station and carry the suitcase until the next train comes along. No, sir, I can't permit it, as my guest, you will allow me to have my way." Jack hesitated still, looking down at the heavy suitcase, and the colonel gave him a delicate poke in the side. "Ladies first, sir, right about face—forward, march!"

LITTLE MIXED.

Two Frenchmen stood admiring a pastoral scene from the brush of a young American. It chanced that the artist was in the gallery.

"And how did monsieur ever create such a wonderful painting?" asked one in broken English.

"Ah," said the artist, with a far-away look, "that picture was an off-spring of my brain."

The other Frenchman was interested.

"What did he say, Henri?"

"I can hardly explain," whispered the other excitedly; "he said ze picture was one spring off of his brain. Ees eet any wonder zat ze Americans act queerly when they have springs on their brains?"

Precious Pet.

"In the name of goodness, what is all that noise in your flat, ma'am?" demanded the janitor as he came up from the basement three steps at a time.

"It's the baby," explained the proud mother, "and isn't he a precious little pet?"

"What has he been doing, ma'am—making boilers?"

"Of course not. Mamma's little woody-woody has a musical ear. He thinks the radiator is a xylophone and has been trying to beat a tune on it."

Setting Bad Example.

"Been reading up astronomy of late, Mr. Hardapple?" asked the windmill salesman.

"No, son," drawled the old man. "Comet hasn't arrived yet, has it?"

"No, but in the east a meteorite struck a kitchen stove and cooked two eggs."

"Land sakes! Don't talk so loud. If my old woman heard that she'd keep breakfast waiting until a meteorite came, if it took a thousand years."

In Olden Days.

Cleopatra had sent the slave for the adder.

"There's nothing like having a spectacular finish," she confided.

"I should say not," approved Mark Antony. "Keep your name before the public and some day you may have an Egyptian cigarette named after you."

For even in those days the press agent was not unknown.

NO AIM.

"Poor Fred seems to have no aim in life."

"Oh, yes, he has! But he's such a bad shot, you know."

But She Didn't Hop.

The girl who "fairly loved to dance" was feeling very sad.

When no one asked her to the hop it made her hopping mad.

Drop In the Bucket.

Mrs. Yeast—It is said that the world's postal business is increasing at the rate of seven per cent. per annum. What do you think of that?

Mr. Yeast—Well, I think that these letters of yours I forgot to mail, dear, don't cut so much ice, after all.—Yonkers Statesman.

Wise Girl.

"I can't understand why you want to marry young Twigs. Can't you see how foolish he is?"

"Yes, pa. That's why I'm marrying him."

"What!"

"I can see how foolish he is about me."

Seeking Information.

A Yale professor says many of the stories of the Old Testament are myths. If the whale didn't swallow Jonah, maybe the professor will be so kind as to tell us where Jonah was during those three days he was missing.

A Thoughtful Soul.

Visitor to hostess whose small daughter is amusing herself by blowing up the air cushion seats of a motor—Oh, do you think it's wise to let your little girl do that? So liable to give one cancer, you know! I always let the butler do it.—Punch.

Appropriate.

"The billionaire trust magnate certainly has a good idea of the fitness of things."

"What makes you think so?"

"He told his architect he wanted his den to be an octopus-shaped room."

Alas! Too True.

Little Willie—What is fame, pa?

Pa—Fame, my son, is a ladder with grease on each rung.

TOWN OF GOLD BRICKS.

Great Wealth Found in Walls of Mexican Adobe Houses When These Were Torn Down.

There are many remarkable towns in Mexico, but none more interesting than Guanajuato, "the hill of the frog." It might more properly be called the "gold brick town," for the houses have been found to contain much gold.

This is a curious situation, but it came about naturally. Guanajuato—pronounced Wah-nah-wah-to—is one of the oldest mining towns in Mexico, but the value of the place as a town was discovered when a railroad company decided to build a station there. It was found necessary to tear down about 300 adobe buildings, which were made of the refuse of various mines after the ore was extracted.

When it became known that the old adobe buildings would be torn down pieces taken at random were assayed. It was found that because of the old process, which left much gold and silver, they assayed from $3 to $24 a ton. The mean value was estimated to run about $8 gold a ton.

The old buildings have brought about $30,000 Mexican, in gold, and persons who have built since the new machinery has been installed in the mines are bemoaning the fact that the new houses do not contain as much gold as the old.—Scientific American.

USE OF PILLOWS.

A Habit That Is Unnecessary and at Times May Be Harmful.

"Pillows are little more than a fad and a rather harmful one at that," said a Germantown doctor. "They should, indeed, only be used by those who sleep on their sides, as they are really injurious to others. When you sleep on your side your shoulder prevents your head from lying level on the bed, and pillows are useful to raise the head to this level."

"The natural and most healthful position for the ordinary person in sleeping is for one's head to be kept perfectly even, just as it would be standing up. Now, for the one who lies on his back while sleeping no pillow is needed to keep the head in this position, and yet 99 per cent of the persons who sleep on their backs use pillows, while those who sleep on their sides use far more pillow than is necessary."

"People get used to having their heads and shoulders propped high up and imagine they could not sleep any other way; but, as a matter of fact, if they would try sleeping with little or no pillow they would not only find that they would feel better in the morning, but also would actually be more comfortable in bed and sleep much sounder throughout the night."—Philadelphia Record.

At the Head.

It is stated in Mr. and Mrs. Pennell's "Life of James MacNeill Whistler" in that part which relates to his brief West Point career that the great American painter was not "soldierly in appearance, bearing or habit." Whistler's horsemanship is said to have been hardly better than his scholarship. According to General Webb, it was not wholly unusual for him at cavalry drill to go sliding over his horse's head. On such occasions Major Sackett, then in command, would call out:

"Mr. Whistler, aren't you a little ahead of the squad?"

According to Whistler's version to the Pennells, Major Sackett's remark was:

"Mr. Whistler, I am pleased to see you for once at the head of your class."

She Almost Remembered.

Little Josephine, aged four, was intently studying the pictures in a book and seemed very much interested in a picture of Charles Dickens.

Taking the book to her mother, she inquired who it was.

"That is Dickens, dear," said her mother.

The picture was wonderfully fascinating to the little girl, and when her big sister came from college in the evening she ran and got the book, turned to the picture and said:

"Sister, see! This is a picture of Mr. Darn."

Her sister replied, "No, dear, that is Mr. Dickens."

"Well," said Josephine, "I knew it was some kind of a swear word."—Delinestor.

A MATEUR STRATEGY

By TEMPLE BAILEY

(Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.)

Perceval's den in Berkeley hall was hung with the usual conglomerate collection of trifles on which college youths pride themselves. Strangely enough, however, though otherwise complete, it lacked one of the essentials—indeed, a vital essential—of a student's room decorations. There were no photographs.

The other fellows had pictures of girls in evening gowns, girls in street costume, girls in golf garb, girls on horseback, girls afoot—always girls. But not a girl's picture adorned Perceval's den except one lonely small miniature, and that stood far withdrawn, hidden on the back of his desk.

Randolph Chase hailed it out on one occasion before Perceval could reach him with a detaining hand.

"What a queer little girl!" Randolph said.

"Put it back," Perceval said shortly, his face aflame.

But the other fellows crowded behind Randolph and looked at the picture over his shoulder.

"Such a mop of hair and such a little face!" said one of them.

"Put it back!" Perceval's tone rasped with irritation. "Put it back, Randolph!"

Randolph, after one glance at the younger man's countenance, set the miniature back on the desk hastily.

"Oh, if you feel that way about it," he apologized.

But the next night when he was alone with Perceval he said: "I don't want to be inquisitive, but I was awfully interested in that girl's face. Who is she?"

Perceval was standing at the window, looking out upon the elm-bordered street, where the big electric lights cast great shadows.

"That," he said without looking around—"that girl, as you call her, is Mrs. Perceval Moore."

"What?" Randolph's tone expressed extreme incredulity. "You surely don't mean?"

Perceval whirled around. "That I am married? Yes."

Randolph whistled. "Well, of all things!" he said. And after that there was silence.

Then Perceval came over and flung himself into a chair opposite Randolph. "I've simply got to tell somebody, Chase," he said. "I'm in an awful fix, and she's the dearest and truest and best little thing in the world."

Randolph reached over and picked up the miniature again. "She truly looks it," he said after he had studied it for a long time.

Perceval choked a little before he answered. "She's an angel, Randolph."

"Then what's the matter?" Randolph questioned.

Perceval leaned forward. "I've decided her. She doesn't know that I am in college. She thinks I am earning a good salary in business."

"Well, son," said Randolph Chase. "It seems to me that sort of deception is a kind that a girl can forgive easily enough. I guess she won't be wildly indignant when she finds that next year—it is next year that you come of age, isn't it?—you'll have a big pile of money coming to you. Any girl would be tickled to death to find that."

Perceval shook his head. "Not Annabel," he declared. "Isn't her name dear and old fashioned, Chase?"

"Yes," Randolph agreed. "But why will she object to a million, Perceval?"

"Because she will say that I lied to her," Perceval said slowly. "And Annabel can forgive anything but a lie."

"Out with it!" Randolph probed. "Tell me the whole story. It must be a queer one, and, if you don't mind my saying so, old man, she must be a queer girl."

"That's just what she is," said Perceval. "I met her last year at the beach. She was such a quaint, queer little thing that she attracted me. She always wore white, and I would find her sitting on the sand singing little songs to herself. There was an old sea captain to whom she talked a good deal, and I got him to introduce us."

"Well, she had read a lot of books on social equality, and she just simply didn't have any use for the gilded youth with money. What Annabel wanted was a man who worked, preferably with his hands, but, failing that, one who lived in the thick of the fight for existence. And she meant it too. And that is where I fell."

"I was head over heels in love with her," continued Perceval fervently. "and I simply wouldn't let her go. So I let her believe that I was working my way up in business. The first lie was simple enough and looked like one of those things that could be squared easily enough afterward. But, oh, Chase! I had to back that lie up with details on details until I had lied to her at least ten lies to the hour. Well, we were married before I left in the fall. I wasn't of age, and she wasn't, and she wouldn't leave home until I could support her without hampering my business career."

"I knew I had to come back to college or get dad down on me, so I told her to stay," groaned Perceval. "But I made her marry me for fear something might come between us, and I couldn't stand that, Randolph. But think how I'll appear to her, for I've lied in every letter, telling her how business was, and all that."

The young fellow's voice broke.

Randolph held out a sympathetic hand.

"She'll forgive you, all right," he said. "But you sit right down tonight and confess, old man. It's not only the right thing, but the best policy, to be perfectly frank with her, and if she's in love with you she'll forgive you."

But Perceval shook his head. "I don't dare," he said huskily. "I am so afraid I'll lose her, Randolph, and she is the dearest thing in the world."

"You have said that before," Randolph remarked patiently. "I think you are making an awful mistake, and it will have to work itself out if you won't take any advice."

Then he went to his own room and smoked another pipe on it, and after that he wrote a letter.

And in three days came a letter to Perceval. "Dear boy," it began, "I must come to you at once. Things at home are in a dreadful state. I will tell you when I reach you. I know you haven't much for us to live on, but I have a little money in the bank that I have saved from my allowance, and I shall follow this note at once. Expect me on the 10:30 a. m. Friday."

"ANNABEL!"

"And this," said Perceval desperately as he showed the note to Randolph, "is Thursday. What am I going to do with her when she gets here, Randolph?"

Randolph smiled inscrutably. "Find some rooms in a cheap quarter and set up housekeeping."

Perceval's face brightened. "And go out every morning and make her think I've gone to work? You are a genius, Randolph!"

It took the two men several hours to find a little furnished apartment that would seem suitable for a young couple with little money. Perceval grumbled disconsolately. "I hate to put my jewel in such a setting," he said.

"Tell her the truth," Randolph again advised, "and you won't have to put up with such cheap things."

But Perceval refused. The next morning he met Annabel at the station, and together they went to the little cheap apartment, and here Annabel wept on his shoulder.

Her account of the trouble at home was somewhat vague, but she was enthusiastic over the thought of her housekeeping. "It will be lovely to work for you," she said.

But Perceval found it anything but lovely. He hated to see her soft white hands in the dishwater. It made him wince to see her bending over the flaming stove, and even the joy of her presence could not take away his sense of infinite guilt.

And so he grew thin and pale and worn.

"You are working too hard," Annabel said one night. And when he shook his head drearily his little wife crept out to the janitor's room and telephoned to some one.

"He is punished enough," was her queer message. "Can't you have him go to his old quarters tonight and have it over?"

The next night Perceval said to Annabel: "I have an engagement with Randolph. You won't mind if I leave you, will you, dear?"

"Of course not," she acquiesced. "I can get along just this one time."

Randolph told him that he wished to borrow some of Perceval's books. "I knew they were in your rooms, and I thought you wouldn't mind coming over," said he, "so I took the liberty of asking you to desert your wife for one evening."

As the two men entered the luxurious quarters Perceval sighed. "To think of my condemning Annabel to such hideousness as that apartment we are living in!" he said, leaning down to turn on the low electric lamp on his study table.

The light flared up and showed the cozy room, the little fire already lighted in the open grate, the blue flame burning under the brass teakettle.

"Why, what?" Perceval demanded, like a big bear in the fairy tale. "Who has been living in my room?"

From behind a tall screen came a little figure in white.

"Oh, Perceval!" cried Annabel and threw herself in his arms.

And when Randolph had explained that he had taken chances and had written the truth to Perceval's little wife and Annabel had explained that she had known he was going to school and not to work ever since she had come to him, and oh, didn't he know that she would love him if he was rich, Perceval drew a long breath of happiness.

"I don't deserve it," he confessed, with his eyes shining, "and we can't live in these rooms, Annabel. But I am going to take my chances with dad, and when he sees what a dear little, queer little thing you are he will give in, and if he doesn't I can earn my living like a man now that I am square with you, sweetheart."

Made the Most of It.

A famous big game hunter visited the Swazi one winter, and the king took a liking to him and loaned him, on his first hunt, the court praiser.

The praiser's business was to laud the king and the king's favorites. The white hunter on his expedition had bad luck. He only shot a rabbit. But as he passed with his retinue through the Swazi village on his return the praiser marched before him chanting in a loud voice:

"The great white huntsman has killed a rabbit! Let all the Swazi people hear. It was as big as an ox, as fierce as a lion and as swift as a buck. The brave white huntsman killed it alone and unaided. He killed it with his thunder tube. Listen, ye people! The white huntsman has killed a rabbit! It was as terrible as a tiger, as large as an elephant, and yet the huntsman from afar, the great white slayer, he alone has killed it!"

Old time barristers in England did not openly receive fees for their services. An early method of collecting fees was the pocket which in medieval times a barrister used to have placed in the back of his gown, into which the solicitor would surreptitiously slip the fee.

A man had just become engaged to the widow of a rich tobacco manufacturer. A friend of his, meeting him, remarked chaffingly:

"Hello, old man! I hear you are going to marry the widow!"

"Yes," he replied seriously. "And the weeds too!"

"Quigbee is a queer sort of chap. He told me yesterday that when he feels particularly blue and melancholy he always sits down and reads a book of poems."

"And then when he gets hungry, I suppose, he sits down and reads a cook-book."

A little girl, who was trying to tell a friend how abashed her grandpa was, said, "He walks around, thinking about nothing, and when he remembers it he then forgets that what he thought of was something entirely different from what he wanted to remember."

"I see you have my pamphlet on your desk," said the economist. "What do you think of it?"

"It's betwixt and between," answered the heartless friend. "It's entirely too light as an argument and not heavy enough for a paperweight."

Washington Star.

"E-s," hesitated Mr. Justwed, "these biscuits are pretty good, but don't you think there ought to be just a little more?"

"Your mother made them," interrupted Mrs. J. quickly.

"Of them?" ended Mr. J., with a flash of inspiration.—Cleveland Leader.

"What are you doing here?" said the woman to the tramp, who had got over the wall just in time to escape the bulldog.

"Madam," he said, with dignity, "I did intend to request something to eat, but all I ask now is that, in the interest of humanity, you'll feed that dog."

The albatross, the largest webfooted bird, measuring sometimes seventeen feet from tip to tip of wing and weighing up to twenty pounds, frequently accompanies ocean steamers from the Cape to Melbourne, a distance of 5,500 miles, without being seen to rest on the way.

The village drunkard of a little Connecticut hamlet staggered up to a man one evening and mumbled, "Shay, mister, do you know where Tom Brien lives?"

"Why, you are Tom Brien yourself."

"Hang it, I know that, but where does he live?"

Butler (to a friend who smokes in the home of a rich man)—How does it come that you are smoking cabbage leaf cigars here in the house? Friend—

I must, so that when my master returns he will not think that I smoked so many of his imported brands.—Megendorfer Blatter.

"If you didn't take so much interest in horses you would be better off!" exclaimed an angry wife to her husband. "You have had horses on your brain all your life!"

"I suppose that is how I happened to marry a nag!" retorted the husband.—London Express.

When the composer Sullivan was knighted some one asked him why he, and not his collaborator, W. S. Gilbert, was chosen for this honor.

"I don't exactly know," said Sir Arthur, "but I suppose her majesty did it to make the punishment fit the crime."

"Those Joneses are a bad lot. Two of them at least ought to be in jail," said a suburbanite, referring to a family in his district.

"Some redeeming quality about the third one, eh?" remarked a visitor.

FAMOUS POET'S WIDOW VISITS HER SISTER HERE

The recent sale of the Chester county, (Pa.) farm, where Thomas Buchanan Read, the author of "Sheridan's Ride" spent his boyhood, has brought to light the fact that while Read died in 1872, his widow, Mrs. Harriet Read, still survives and is in very good health. At present she is visiting her sister, Mrs. Whitehead Cornell Duyckinck, of 816 Madison avenue, this city. She was Mr. Read's second wife. His daughter, by the first marriage, was almost as old as herself.

The sale of the farm led the poet's Philadelphia admirers to make inquiry whether any members of his family are now alive, with the result as stated. Like the widow of that other Chester county poet, Bayard Taylor, who also survives, Mrs. Read is one of the few links that bind the present with the past era in American literature.

Read, who was born in 1822, acquired distinction both as a poet and as a painter before and during the Civil War. He made Sheridan's ride at the battle of Winchester the subject of a poem as well as a painting. There are specimens of his art in the Academy of the Fine Arts, the Union League, the Philadelphia School of Designs for Women and in many galleries in the city of Philadelphia. He lies buried in Laurel Hill cemetery. The farm in Chester county where he spent his early days, a 19-acre tract near Guthrieville, was sold for $1,261. Mrs. Read's home is in Philadelphia, but she spends part of the year here with her sister.

TWO KILLED WHILE DODGING EXPRESS.

Two men, whose identity has not been established, were struck and instantly killed by an eastbound express on the Central Railroad at Westfield last evening. The men were walking on the tracks near the Osborne avenue crossing and had stepped out of the way of a freight train directly in front of the express.

The bodies of the two men lying along the tracks were found by the crew of a freight train. Both were horribly mangled. The remains were brought to Westfield and later sent to Cole's morgue in this city.

Badly Hurt Shunting Ice.

Stanley Roll, son of J. B. Roll, of Mountainside, was seriously injured at the Wheeler Icehouse, Echo Lake, Branch Mills, Wednesday afternoon. He was at the top of the ice chute directing the ice cakes as they came to the slide. A cake jammed, and as he was attempting to straighten it out he lost his footing and fell eighteen feet to the ground, hitting on his head. He was taken to his home, a couple of miles distant, and Dr. Harrison, of Westfield, called. He has a fracture of the skull.

A Young Reformer.

"In Baltimore," says Senator Depew, "I made the acquaintance of a beautiful girl with yellow hair. This little girl and I talked of a number of things. We deplored many of the evils of modern life. Then for a time the little girl was silent, lost in thought. Finally she sighed and said, 'Why can't the toy shop man call for orders every morning, the same as the butcher and grocer do?'" —Blue Bull.

Time Limit.

"How long did you stay at Monte Carlo?"

"Only six days? How was that?"
"Well, you see, I only had six frocks."
