MARTIN AND DOWD WIN

Judgements Rendered for $300 and $200 Respectively in Damage Suit.

THE JURY OUT 45 MINUTES.

Judge Whittemore's Charge Considered An Excellent One—No Contributory Negligence Shown By Defense Is Decided.

It took but forty-five minutes for the jury of which J. Wiswall Drayton was foreman, in the suits of the F. L. C. Martin Auto Co. and William Dowd against Alfonso Colucci to arrive at a verdict in the district court at 8 o'clock last evening.

Fourteen witnesses were examined for the appellants and only four of the defendant. The former included besides those mentioned in yesterday's Daily Press, Chief P. J. Kiely, Roundsmen Maurice Higgins and Patrolman Nicholas Meyers of the police force; F. L. C. Martin and William Mazzucca, an employee of the Martin company.

Judge Whittemore, who sat in place of Judge William Newcorn, made an admirable address in charging the jury of eleven men. It was said by the many legal lights present that Judge Whittemore's charge was a masterpiece of delicate, but comprehensive language in which the detail of the action before him was made clear to the jury.

COLUMBUS CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST "LADIES" NIGHT.

The first of a series of "ladies" nights planned by the Columbus Club was given in the clubhouse last night. The attendance was not large owing to a mistake in the issuance of invitation cards but the women present enjoyed an informal program of cards and music.

The club has set apart one night a month for the entertainment of the wives and friends of the members and the programs will be different on each occasion.

JOS. S. FRELINGHUYSEN IS HEAD OF FARMERS

Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, president last year of the New Jersey Senate and a prominent candidate for the nomination for governor on the Republican ticket last summer, was yesterday chosen president of the state board of agriculture.

The selection of Senator Frelinghuysen at the head of the farmers of the state means that for the first time in the history of the board a millionaire has reached that office, and a millionaire who prides himself on being a farmer.

A social affair of yesterday was one of a series of teas given in Vincent chapel of the First M. E. church by Mrs. James W. Jackson, assisted by Mrs. L. M. French and Mrs. Frank W. French. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the Ladies' Aid Society for whom it was given.

The women visitors of the Home department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, to the number of about thirty, met at the home of one of their members, Miss Lillian A. Force, of Duer street, yesterday afternoon. It was the regular quarterly business meeting and reports were presented by each visitor, which showed that the Home department is still growing in membership and usefulness as an arm of the church.

TALKS ON MOUNTAINEERS

Address by Miss Agnes Smith, a Deaconess, on Poor of Virginians.

MRS. T. H. TOMLINSON PRESIDES.

Work Among Illiterate Whites Graphically Told—Fight Against Illicit Whiskey Distilleries.

One of the best attended meetings in the history of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the residence of Mrs. A. C. LaBoyetaux, Fairview avenue, yesterday afternoon, the principal speaker at which was Miss Agnes Smith, a Plainfield young woman, who as a deaconess of the Episcopal church, has been spending some time as a missionary among the poor whites of the Virginia mountains.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, who after some preliminary remarks introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Miss Smith is a member of Holy Cross church and took a special course of study in New York in preparation for her work in the south. That the efforts of herself and a companion have been appreciated by the people of the region in which they worked cannot be doubted when it is known that the two women may travel absolutely alone without fear where men dare not go.

"One of our men," said Miss Smith, "took a whole day to learn four letters of the alphabet, but he progressed faster as time went on and is now able to read and write. While they are ignorant and shiftless they are people who when once they have promised to do a thing will do it no matter what the cost to them in labor or hurt feelings. One boy who promise d to attend one of our meetings did so at much sacrifice; to himself, going without his meals and walking long distances to be able to learn of the Christian life."

Miss Smith told of the work against the moonshiners and the many attempts to put out of business the only licensed distillery in the district. While it has been impossible to destroy the distillery they have had success in preventing the manufacture of illicit whiskey. She told of feuds stopped; the necessity of knowing something about "first aid" and the immorality which prevails; the need of clothing for the poorest of the natives, who are all Americans, and papers, books and illustrated magazines. These last are used for wall decorations and the former for making their huts secure against the elements. A silver collection was taken and refreshments were served by Mrs. Ira West and Mrs. A. G. Negley. Mrs. C. F. Windham sang two solos accompanying herself on the piano.

DEPUTY INSTALLS IONA COUNCIL'S NEW OFFICERS.

District Deputy Mrs. Anna Robinson, and staff, of High Bridge, visited Iona Council, Degree of Pochohontas, last night, and installed the following officers: Prophets, Mrs. Henry Angleman; pocohontas, Mrs. Julia Hallard; winonah, Mrs. Mary Meyers; powhatan, Charles F. Meyer, Jr.; keeper of records, Mrs. Charles L. Holstein; collector of wampum, Mrs. Ruey Mattis; keeper of wampum, Mrs. Sadie Bowman. A social hour and dance followed the ceremonies.

The committee appointed at a recent meeting of this council to arrange for the annual masquerade ball, reported that February 15 had been fixed upon as the date and that the affair would be held in Sebring's hall.

HALL FUND IS COMPLETED

Hearty Response to Daily Press Clears Man's Debt.

CHILDREN ARE NOW CARED FOR Employment Found For Father of Family While Relatives Will Look After Children—$131 Contributed.

The fund which has been gathered by The Daily Press for the family of William H. Hall, of North Plainfield, was closed this afternoon, $131 having been contributed for the relief of the pressing needs. This amount will cover the expenses of the burial of the three children and Mrs. Hall will leave a small amount to be devoted to the uses of the children.

One of the children has been taken by relatives in Chatham, which leaves three here to be taken care of which will be done. Hall will return to work tomorrow with Ernest Hand.

This sad case was brought to the notice of this paper by David J. Carney and W. L. Smalley, Jr. The instantaneous and generous response of The Daily Press readers was both pleasing and gratifying and Messrs. Carney and Smalley desire to thank the contributors. There was no intention or desire of conflicting with the splendid work of the Charity Organization Society in this matter, but a desire to pay the undertaker's claims and set the man on his feet.

BROOKLYN'S ELKS MEET DEFEAT HERE

The Plainfield Elks' bowling team carried off the honors on Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night, by taking three games in the match with the Brooklyn Elks. The locals took the first game by a score of 892 to 884. The second game was a tie, 879 each, but on the roll off, Plainfield put up a score of 75 to 74 for Brooklyn and won out. They also took the last game by a score of 908 to 823. Causebrook, Blatz, Nash and Stout got in the double century class, and it was largely through their efforts that the Plainfield five was able to defeat the visitors.

After the match, the Brooklyn Elks were entertained at Timbo's restaurant on North avenue, where a social hour was spent and every one had a good time.

Gave Third "at Home."

The third "at home" in the series arranged by Rev. and Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, was held in Warren chapel last night. As on the previous occasion, the affair was informal and included no set program. The Missionary and Aid Society was in charge and a committee from it, of which Mrs. John Higgins was chairman, served refreshments.

Edwin D. VanNest, of Larned, Kansas, is visiting relatives in this city and Somerville. At present he is the guest of his cousin, Mrs. Samuel Kriney, of Mariners place. He will remain in New Jersey for some time.

JUSTICE IS SPEEDY THERE

Tener Tells Y.M.C.A. Banquet-ers Why Manila's Courts Clean up Dockets.

ON CIVILIZING THE FILIPINOS.

Dr. Fisher and H. W. Herrman Also Speak—E. Kimball Acts As the Toastmaster At Annual Dinner.

What the Young Men's Christian Association has done and is doing in the Philippine Islands was the subject of much comment last evening after W. H. Tener, general secretary for the islands had finished his address to the 120 men diners at the annual banquet of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Tener portrayed in unmistakable language the magnificent results of ten years' work among the natives and other men and said that notwithstanding their great need $120,000 building they were handicapped now for the work. The increased membership made absolutely necessary the acquisition of more buildings and better equipment for the teaching of men.

One of the facts brought out about the conduct of the islands was new to many. In speaking of the law courts Mr. Tener said that the judges were compelled to earn their salaries by cleaning up their dockets before they received their pay with the result that justice is administered with much more alacrity than it is in the United States. Under the beneficent rule of the United States the Philippines had not only grown in value as a commercial nation, but had advanced rapidly in economic, sanitary and religious attributes.

"There is a middle class growing up," said Mr. Tener, "which is forming a sure foundation for a great nation. The children of today are to be the men and women of the future and the principles inculcated in their minds are already bearing fruit. Habits are being changed, customs brought up to the Western standard; evil is being fast eliminated and the Christian influences of our missionaries are working wonders among what was a horde of illiterate and pagan people. In such circumstances, then, it is not worth while to risk a little more for the Kingdom of God."

Dr. George J. Fisher, of New York, was the first speaker and delivered his address before President Kimball made his report owing to the illness of his little son which necessitated a hasty return to his home. Dr. Fisher said that the great trend of life today is cityward. The old fashioned muscular activity is absorbed by modern inventions and the nation is training its mental and psychic forces at the expense of the physical. He contrasted the health of rural communities with that of cities with the latter in the ascendancy because of better sanitary conditions. Forty to 70 per cent. of the school children are defective and some method must be devised to bring about a change. Scarlet fever and diphtheria will disappear in a decade and organic disease will become extinct if we follow proper methods of eating, resting and exercising. He advocated physical righteousness which means that the body must be saved as well as the soul.

President J. E. Kimball, commented on the work of the past year, reading extracts from Secretary Parker's report. He complimented Mr. Whitaker, the physical director, for his splendid work and praised the Women's Auxiliary which is doing so much for the creature comforts of the boys. Referring to Miss Zoe Bateman's work among the Italians of this city, he said it was a work whose great results cannot be estimated. From learning the language they have turned to learning Christian living. Strong endorsement of Rev. Franklin K. Matthews' series of lectures to the mothers of the city followed.

H. W. Herrman, vice-president of the association, made a most impressive appeal for greater expansion of the work in this community through the medium of greater facilities. A new building, with better ventilation; better plumbing, and more conveniences in every department. At present the ventilation is bad, the plumbing worn out, quarters are cramped in every department and a new building is an urgent necessity. "The very things which should be our magnetic and star attractions, the very things which are against us," he said. A plea was also made for the colored boy and young man. His needs were eloquently outlined. More than $30,000,000 have been given to the association during the past five years by the business men of the country, which indicates the confidence they have in the Y.M.C.A. Among other things Mr. Herrman

MITCHELL AND SHERMAN SPEAKERS FOR BANQUET

There is a strong probability that among the speakers for the first annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce at Truell Hall, February 13, will be John Mitchell, former president of the Mine Workers' Union, whose oratorical ability is well-known, and Pi Tecumseh Sherman, son of the distinguished war general. The committee is busily engaged in completing the list of speakers and it feels confident of securing these two famous men in addition to George W. Perkins, of New York, who has accepted the invitation to speak.

The committee is not sure of the presence of Governor Woodrow Wilson. He is especially busy at this time and having accepted several invitations of a similar character may be obliged to decline the one to come here at this time. The tickets for the banquet are selling rapidly and those intending to be among the guests are advised to speak for their tickets at once.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MISS MINIE TAYLOR

Miss Minie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Taylor, of 804 Grant avenue, was given a party in honor of her eleventh birthday anniversary at Mt. St. Mary's College, yesterday afternoon. The junior dining hall was tastefully decorated in pink and green and all the little folks in gala array presented a pleasing picture of happy child-like enjoyment. When little Miss Minie applied the taper to the candles which surmounted the birthday cake the hearty round of applause which greeted her, showed clearly the delight of the little ones.

In a few well chosen words, Miss Minie thanked her friends for their kind greeting and the pretty gifts they presented to her. After the dinner all repaired to the gymnasium where the following program was rendered:

March, with fancy steps, introducing the little ones; vocal solo, "The Virginia Lullaby," Miss Nellie Ehrich, of Lynchburg, Va.; recitation, "Gringa Din," Kipling; Miss Marie E. Tobin; fancy dance, Jack Barrett and George J. O'Neill; recitation, Miss Minie Taylor; folk dances, Swedish and Bohemian dances; recitation, Miss Alice Viola Lang, of Chicago; congratulatory address, Miss Louis Fcheasnocker, of Pittsburg; Miss Pearl Jones, of Trenton; Miss Marie E. Tobin, of this city; Miss Mildred McKenna, of this city; Misses Lucile and Anna Borgfeldt, of Metuchen; Miss Nellie Ehrich, of Lynchburg, Va.; Miss May Barnett, of Atlantic City; Harold Lewis, Frank O'Donnell, of Elizabeth; Emanuel Gerli, Gervase Morrison, of Newark. Miss Taylor also received pretty and useful gifts from her parents, friends and little companions.

Those who took part in the sketch were Miss Janie Walker, Miss David Reed, Miss Sally Henley, Mrs. Ginsey Aulton, Charles VanHorn and Clifford Tildon.

During the evening Miss Daisy Robinson gave a recitation and received hearty applause. A chorus sang "Old Black Joe"; Miss Reed and Charles VanHorn played a piano duet and Miss Reed gave a piano solo. After the entertainment refreshments were served. Mrs. Sarah Pryear was chairman of the committee. The affair netted $40.90.

MRS. JNO. D. RUNYON DEAD

President of Boice, Runyon & Co., Succumbs After a Long Illness.

WAS SIXTY-NINE YEARS OLD.

One Sister, Miss Anna L. Boice, Survives Her—Funeral Services On Monday Afternoon.

Mrs. Sarah Randolph Runyon, widow of John D. Runyon, died at 3 o'clock this morning at her home on Park avenue, following a long illness from a complication of troubles which became serious last October. Since that time she failed rapidly. During the past few days she was in an unconscious condition and her physician, as well as the family, expected her death at any minute.

Mrs. Runyon, who was born in this city, was about sixty-nine years of age. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David J. Boice, who were numbered among the oldest and best known citizens of Plainfield. Mr. Boice was for a great many years engaged in the coal and lumber business where VanZandt & Voorhees place of business is now located on Park avenue. Later the present place of business, which was owned by Cook Brothers, was purchased by the firm of Boice, Runyon & Co., and is still conducted by the concern.

Mrs. Runyon was the senior member and president of the corporation of Boice, Runyon & Co., Miss Anna L. Boice, her sister, and Hugh A. Todd being the other members. Mrs. Runyon's husband was for a number of years manager for the concern. He died in 1899, the result of injuries received in an accident in the lumber yard. At the same time, J. D. Spicer, of West Fifth street, was in the yard, and he was seriously injured. He did not recover for a long time afterward.

Mrs. Runyon was a life-long member of the First Baptist church, and prior to her illness a faithful attendant at the services. She leaves one sister, Miss Anna L. Boice, with whom she lived; two distant cousins who reside in Illinois and one cousin in this city. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the late home on Park avenue. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, will officiate.

"Shower" for Miss Spicer.

Mrs. William C. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, gave a "shower" yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Ida L. Spicer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Spicer, also of West Fifth street, whose marriage to Irving Hunting, of this city, will take place soon. There were about twenty school friends of Miss Spicer present and she received a large number of beautiful gifts. During the afternoon refreshments were served.

In Charge of Child Exhibit.

Charles Powlison, formerly of this city, is the secretary of the "Child Welfare Exhibit" now being held in New York, which is attracting so much attention. Mr. Powlison is a brother to J. A. Powlison, of the firm of Powlison & Jones and Mrs. A. C. LaBoyetaux, and will be pleased to receive any of his Plainfield friends.

For the benefit of those who wish to reduce their flesh quickly and safely, we will give the receipt and directions in full for a simple household remedy that can be obtained at trifling cost from any good drug store: 1-2 ounce Marmola, 1-2 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3 1-2 ounces Peppermint Water. 150 Dozen More Girls' and Misses' 1911 Wash Dresses at Attractive Prices

Last Saturday we placed on sale a wonderful display of girls' colored wash dresses and in spite of the fact that the day was most inclement the sale was wonderful, breaking the record of a year ago by about 250 per cent. and, believe us, we had a wonderful sale a year ago. As success in one venture inspires greater effort for another, we shall endeavor to outdo our last Saturday's business tomorrow. And to this end have replenished the assortment with plenty of sizes of the good sellers and have added many more. PEOPLE SIMPLY ACKNOWLEDGE THEIR INABILITY TO UNDERSTAND HOW SUCH DRESSES CAN BE MADE FOR SO SMALL A PRICE. AND THAT IN ITSELF IS THE GREATEST RECOMMENDATION OF THE UNUSUALNESS OF THE VALUES. One customer said if the real Scotch zephyr dress that we offer at $2.98 were $5.00, she would think it good value, and just such values as this brought the mothers out in the rain last Saturday. 150 dozen more tomorrow—we say nothing of the styles; materials are gingham, percales and madras, and a number of white lawns at $1, $1.50, $2 and $2.98

GOLF.

Although the "war is over" with regard to the much abused centre shafted putter, there continues to exist more or less confusion and uncertainty concerning the recent legislation. Leighton Calkins, who has followed the subject probably as closely as any one, writes as follows:

"I noticed an error in some of the morning papers, in a statement purporting to have come from Secretary Watson, to the effect that the new bylaw of the United States Golf Association has the result of putting into effect in this country, ipso facto, any changes in the rules which St. Andrews may hereafter make. That is exactly what the new bylaw puts a veto on.

"The mistake must have been inadvertent, because of course Mr. Watkins could not have so stated. The important reform accomplished at Chicago last Saturday was to provide that hereafter no rule adopted by St. Andrews shall ever become operative in this country unless we decide affirmatively to adopt it.

"Perhaps golfers do not appreciate that the Schenectady putter was absolutely outlawed in the United States from last September until our annual meeting last Saturday in Chicago. Why? Because our bylaw then provided that competitions should be played in accordance with the St. Andrews rules, except as interpreted otherwise by us. The new bylaw reads that competitions shall be played in accordance with the rules of golf as approved by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, Scotland, September, 1908, with such amendments and interpretations only as may have been or may be hereafter adopted by the United States Golf Association."

"In other words, St. Andrews legislation in the future will not immediately become operative in this country. This was the one really important and vital bit of legislation enacted last week. The adoption of the amended clause on form and make of clubs operates to bar an out-and-out mallet; but great care was taken not to include anything remotely approaching a Schenectady. Even the title to or rules must now be changed. Up to last week they read: 'The Rules of Golf as Approved by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, September, 1908, and as Amended by the United States Golf Association, February 17, 1909.' The date, February 17, 1909, is now struck out. We now accept nothing from St. Andrews except the revision of 1908, which we helped to make and which we affirmatively adopted ourselves.

FAVORS USE OF ROD IN SCHOOL.

"As a New Jersey teacher, I have to obey the law on corporal punishment, but I do not believe in it," was a statement made by Dr. Charles S. Chapin, principal of the State Normal School at Montclair Heights Wednesday.

When asked for his ideas on corporal punishment, Dr. Chapin said that personally he had never struck a pupil during the twenty-seven years that he has been a teacher, although the law of Massachusetts, where he began his scholastic work, permitted him to do so under certain conditions if he found it necessary. He said further that he did not wish the right to use the rod in the Normal School. The only place where the whip ever should be used, if used at all, he declared, was on pupils in the grades. Continuing, he said:

"I have been told of schools in New Jersey where children have struck teachers and then dared the teachers to strike them, because of the law. If some of the stories I have heard of physical attacks on women teachers by pupils are true, it would not be safe to make me principal where such things are done, for I would thrash the pupil who did it if I went to jail for it."

Miss Elsie Staats, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Miss Annie G. Fisk, daughter of former Mayor and Mrs. C. J. Fisk, of West Seventh street, is improving from an attack of scarlet fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leshar, of Brooklyn, have returned to their home after a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Laporte, of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield.

Miss Stahlberger, teacher of German and French in the North Plainfield High School, who was summoned to her home in New York State owing to the illness of her mother, will not return to her duties until next week owing to the death of her parent. Miss Anna Rafferty is substituting for Miss Stahlberger.

President Lynch, of the National League, announced the following contracts and releases today: Contracts—With Boston, P. J. Flaherty, Hub Perdue, William McTigue, William Rariden, W. E. Parson and W. J. Sweeney; with Chicago—John F. Kane; with Cincinnati—Joseph A. Berger, T. J. Dougherty and Henry Sovereid; with New York—Clyde H. A new backstop was dug up by the Philadelphia Nationals yesterday. He is Waldo T. Jackley, who played most of last season with the Fairmont, W. Va., club, but who finished the year with Haverhill. Jackley weighs 190 pounds, and with Fairmont made fifty-seven hits out of 161 times at bat, for an average of .354. After Jackley's contract was safe in the Phillies' strong box, President Fogel said that Owner Watkins, of the Indianapolis team was willing to pay $1,000 for the man.

It is not because of a nickname applied to him in a Cincinnati paper when the deal was made with Philadelphia, Eddie Grant has refused to sign a Red contract. More money is demanded by the former Quaker. Grant, who is slated to play third base for the Reds next summer, is still outside the barriers, and it is now frankly stated that he is in full cry after added currency. It was supposed, for quite a while, that Grant was simply biding his time and was in no hurry to sign so early, but a recent letter shows that he is holding out for more money.

President Navin, of the Detroit club, has written to the Philadelphia Nationals suggesting a spring series between the two clubs during their stay in the South. The Phillies train at Birmingham, Ala., while the Tigers are located at Monroe, La., the jump between the two points being a short one. It is quite likely that seven games will be arranged between the two clubs, as the Phillies have no objection to playing these games.

A Japanese baseball team is to invade the United States, landing in San Francisco in April. Games will be played in Chicago, Boston, St. Louis and other cities. The Japanese will return home in September or October. The team will be composed of picked players from the Waseda and Keio universities and other clubs.

P. H. S. Defeats Somerville.

The Plainfield High School hockey team defeated the team from the Somerville High School yesterday afternoon, on Holly's Pond by a score of 4 to 1. The local squad had the best of the game in both halves, outplaying its opponents in team work and control. Bristol did the best work for Plainfield, making all the goals for his team. Ricketts and Davenport also played well for Plainfield and Sharp made a strong blockade at goal. The team will play Cranford at Cranford this afternoon.

Church Society Elects.

The Young Ladies' Aid Society of the Evangelical Lutheran church met last night at the home of Miss A. M. Ruschki, when these officers were elected for the year: President, Miss Sophia Faber; vice president, Miss Emily Eehhart; treasurer, Miss A. M. Dushki; secretary, Miss Hedwig Grotman. The proposition to meet twice a month was not decided, but it was agreed to abandon the custom of serving refreshments so as to allow more time for work. A social will be held every three months.

said that if the Masons or Elks or any other secret order build a clubhouse and install pool tables, shower baths and other accessories the Y. M. C. A. would lose a large contingent from their present patronage. "It is because I love the Y. M. C. A. and because I am enlisted for life in its service that I speak thus plainly. Right now we need not less than $5,000 to take care of our present membership." He enumerated the various things that are lacking and left them as food for thought with the members.
Among the things needed in the industrial work were reading rooms stocked with trade papers and other periodicals. The rooms must be near the shops. Classes on subjects dear to factory employes to be held nightly as a means of improving their ability, thus making their greater bread winners, are needed. "Suppose we enlisted the doctors," he said, "to talk to the shop men at intervals on 'first aid,' health and how to preserve it, disease and how to prevent it, social purity and the physical basis of temperance. Wouldn't this kind of social service be worth while?"
"What we need is a new building, a hundred thousand dollar 'man factory' fully equipped. We want to take the public into our confidence to tell them the actual conditions and show them what there is to do."

It may be that Plainfield is too complacent, too well satisfied that all is well. If so, let us tell the truth and disturb this ill-founded complacency. Let us "start something" and keep it going.
Those at the speakers' table included J. E. Kimball, Dr. George J. Fisher, H. W. Herrman, three former presidents, W. D. Murray, C. W. McCutchen, John W. Gavett, Rev. Edwin Shaw, Mayor George W. V. Moy, H. O. Newman and W. A. Tenner.

JENNINGS' COMMENT ON X-SCIENCE LETTER
Following is a communication received from F. C. Jennings on the reply made by F. C. Coulson Fairchild, of Passaic, to a sermon delivered by Rev. G. R. Maguire, both of which were published in this paper:
Editor, The Daily Press:
Without any desire to forestall Mr. Maguire's reply to Mr. Fairchild, and which is sure to be given with the Irish appreciation of an "argument," I would like to express the keen delight with which, in common with all right-thinking people, I have read Mr. Fairchild's letter with its lucid and convincing reasoning there is surely enough to sweep us all into Mrs. Eddy's wake. (I trust I have not quite inadvertently stolen Mr. Maguire's thunder here.)
I was particularly impressed with the striking evidence of Mrs. Eddy's peculiar usefulness in not keeping that million dollars or so, she had not been able to distribute in charity "for herself" as to leave it behind; and wish such a choice possible. I know of no example in all history of equal self-denial. It makes even her own benefactions of "about $100,000 annually during her life time" of about ninety years, sink into insignificance; it is surely enough to substantiate Mrs. Eddy's highest claims. We can only murmur "beautiful!"
Then again one can readily understand some delay on Mr. Maguire's part in replying to his correspondent as quickly as his ardent Hibernian nature might urge him, when he has such a poser to answer as "When a man loses his memory where does it go to?" I have been trying to think it out myself; but I confess, after being rendered almost distracted in the endeavor, that I am thoroughly beaten. I am sure I am not alone in awaiting Mr. Maguire's solution with keenest interest, for my own part I give it up; and beg for an easier one next time.
But leaving this, there can be no question but that our scientific friend makes a telling point when he says that the healing "the blind man showed that sight cannot be lost." Of course not; and this may give occasion to ask a few more true Scientists' questions. Seeing the manifest truth that sight cannot be lost, where was the sight that the blind man seems not to have had? If he had not lost his sight, why hadn't he still got it? If his sight cannot be lost, and all true Christian Science is clear that it cannot, from what was he healed?
Will Mr. Maguire kindly help us out on these questions, too, whilst he is about it.
Then again, is it not a pity that our enlightened Scientists were not there to correct him properly when he said "one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see." Can we not hear the well-merited rebuke "You fool, you were never blind at all; you were only born with a pernicious belief of mortal mind that you were not able to see; if you had only I said, 'I see,' insisted upon it, in spite of mortal mind, or father or mother, or everyone else, you would have been all right."
But stay, this word as to "saying I see" recalls me from, and makes me ashamed of levity. The smile dies on my lips; all lightness departs from my spirit, as I listen to that some voice the blind man heard and which some of us, too, have learned to know as we know no other; and he says, "If ye were blind ye should have no sin; but now ye say, We see, therefore your sin remaineth."
Then perhaps, after all, he may be found to be the fool who denies these manifest needs (which physical as then, or spiritual as now) that alone give us a claim on His love and power in meeting them.
F. C. JENNINGS.

BEREA COLLEGE.

A Seat of Learning in the Kentucky Mountains.

Nothing Unusual For Students to Bring Shotguns Into Their Classes Either For Attack or For Self Protection.

Louisville, Ky.—A small boy trudged into the classroom. He placed the shotgun which he carried on his shoulder carefully on the floor beside his desk. Opening a book, he immediately began to study his morning's lesson.

"William," commanded the teacher, "why did you bring that shotgun to school?"

"I'm goin' to get Henry Jett at recess," answered the boy. Then he added, "He insulted my pap, and I'm goin' to get him."

This dialogue took place not many days ago in a classroom of Berea college in Madison county, Ky.

The small boy was less than eleven years old, yet he had brought a shotgun to school with the avowed purpose of killing one of his schoolmates for some real or fancied wrong. Needless to say, the teacher took steps to prevent the killing. The small boy's father was summoned, the shotgun was confiscated, and a severe lecture was administered. However, the incident did not occasion any great surprise either on the part of the teacher or his pupils. It is not unusual to "get" an enemy in Madison county. To come to school armed with a shotgun or rifle is an everyday occurrence. In fact, Berea college is probably the only institution of learning in this country today where many of the students carry books under one arm and rifles over the other.

For, be it known, Berea college is in the great mountain district of Kentucky, and its students are the mountaineers and their sons and daughters of that sparsely settled, wild and untutored region. It is a college unlike and situated unlike any other institution of learning in the United States.

Its students, with the exception of the two or three hundred who live in Berea during the college year, come from all over the surrounding country within a radius of twenty-five miles, the most typical mountain district of Kentucky. Most of them come on horseback, often two and three on one horse when brother and sister are learning together. Probably half the men and boys are armed with rifles and shotguns, which are carefully placed in their lockers after they have tied their horses and prepared for their day's work.

These Kentucky mountaineers are the descendants of the hardy English and Scotch pioneers who settled that region in the early days of the nineteenth century. They have preserved the purity of their race and probably come nearer being pure American than any other class of people in the United States today. During the civil war they remained loyal to the Union. There is hardly a known instance of a Kentucky mountaineer fighting on the Confederate side. Right here at Berea is a little country graveyard that is filled with the graves of mountaineers who gave their lives to save the Union.

The college was started before the civil war for the purpose of providing education for the mountaineers.

There are well equipped carpentry, machine and blacksmith shops for the mountain youths, and classes in cooking, sewing and domestic science are conducted for the girls. So poor are most of the mountain families that they can only afford to send their sons and daughters to Berea for six or nine months, but even in that short time they learn many things to make their home life happier and more comfortable.

When the college day is over the students who do not live in Berea mount their horses and ride over the hills to their distant mountain homes. After their day's work and a long, hard ride they frequently have several hours' work to do at home before they can light their kerosene lamps and study their dog eared textbooks.

That they are being made into better citizens through their college there is little doubt. The influence of Berea is having a wholesome effect even in the "Bloody Eleventh," as the district in which it is situated is called. Feuds are gradually becoming rarer, killings today are comparatively few, and it is even rumored that less moonshine whiskey is being made, although investigators are inclined to doubt this statement. At any rate, the health and morals of the mountaineers are better than in other mountain districts in Kentucky, so it is evident that the college was not founded in vain.

Sneezed Out the Bullet.

New York.—Willie Roth, four years old, of this city sneezed a 44 caliber bullet out of his nose at the Har-Moriah hospital just as the surgeons were about to probe for it. Willie was playing in the street before his home when an Avenue C car exploded a cartridge some one had placed on the track. The ball entered his cheek and lodged in his nose. He recovered rapidly.

Crashing into a telegraph pole while learning to ride a bicycle he was about to purchase, Wednesday, John Moffo, twenty years old, a barber, of 1110 South Fourth street, Camden, sustained a fracture of the nose, split lips and concussion of the brain. member of her family through death within a year, and Wednesday night decided to have her two-year-old daughter, Evelyn May Stratton, whose death was due to double pneumonia, buried by the side of her father and four-year-old sister, at Morgantown. About four months ago Mrs. Stratton's husband died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident at a time his four-year-old daughter was killed. A few months before his death Stratton inherited $80,000 from his grandfather. The fortune was willed to the wife, the only member of the once happy family now living.

AS USUAL.

For two long hours he worked away And shoveled to the street; That night when he was fast asleep It snowed about two feet.

Next morn. to get them clean once more, He worked with might and main. Came from the roof an avalanche And filled them up again.

When ordered by the stern police, Grim guardians of the law, He shoveled out those walks once more— And it began to thaw.

Jimmy Slinger's Mistake

Young Jimmy Slinger, down on Cherry street, was only fourteen years old, but had come to have a great admiration for the law. He knew that certain detectives took their whack, and he heard a professional bondsman affirm that the police got a divvy on all his cases. As for pool room men, gamblers and pickpockets, Jimmy knew that they owned the town. Now and then there was a patrolman or detective, who would not shut his eyes when there was a case of pocket picking or a con game, but a complaint to certain politicians soon brought about a transfer. At the age of fourteen Jimmy was to be apprenticed to a cobbler. He bolted from home in consequence. He had made up his mind as to his future career. He had decided to stand in with the law.

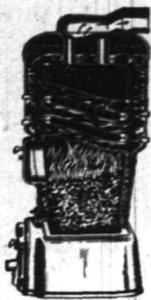

Jimmy had no sooner bolted than he began to look around for a job. It so happened that a couple of young men who had just graduated in law had formed a partnership and hung out their sign. They didn't want police court cases, and they didn't want to be classed among the shysters, but the want of better patrons forced them to appear in the lower courts quite often. Jimmy made their acquaintance there. He didn't catch them at any slyster tricks, and he heard certain policemen sneering at their straightforward way. The boy didn't give the lawyers credit for this. He simply took it that they had a trick up their sleeves and were the sort of men he was looking for. In a month after he knew them he was their office boy. He didn't care how humble the beginning as long as the aroma of law hung about the place. He didn't ever expect to be a leading member of the bar, but he felt that he could pick up enough law to enable him to do as others were doing.

One day the boy picked up a pointer. The partners had been consulted about a big case. If they could win it, they had their start on the road to success. The bar to the winning was certain papers in the hands of a certain citizen. If they had those papers, their case was sure. Without them it was no use to take a single step. Jimmy felt that the success of the firm would be his success, while failure would send him adrift. It was perfectly natural that he should sit up and take notice. He couldn't figure out how the papers were to be got unless he got them. The only way he could get them was by robbing the house. It didn't take him five minutes to come to a decision. It might be going a little further than the police when they pursued themselves or a little further than the shyster lawyers when they juggled a case, but he would take the risk. He spotted off the house, hung around for a few days and then one night effected an entrance and secured the papers. He hadn't had much preliminary experience in the burglar business, but he brought off this trick like an old hand. He didn't even leave a half burnt match behind for a detective to pick up and examine through a microscope and announce that it had been scratched on the right leg of a red headed boy with a cockeye at exactly the hour of midnight.

Jimmy had to lie to get the papers into the hands of the firm, but that didn't trouble him in the least. He had heard shyster lawyers lie a thousand times over. He claimed to have found them on the street, and the young attorneys drew long breaths and declared that Providence was surely with them. They won their case and jumped into Easy street. Jimmy Slinger was not forgotten. He was patted on the back and called a lucky young dog and his salary raised, and but for his learning law so fast he might have held down his job indefinitely. After he had been at it six months he began to give legal advice and to express legal opinions around the courts. In fact, he arranged to stand in with the police on certain things, but found too late that he could not deliver the goods. This brought about strained relations and an exposure of the law had to part company. From thence forward for the next three years Jimmy traveled. He traveled as a lawyer, as a pickpocket, as a con man, and now and then burgled a bit for a change. No, it wasn't burglary. The law says that entering an occupied dwelling before sunset is only robbery, and Jimmy never let the sun find him. At the end of three years he returned to town to make a great mistake. The sun got in a hurry to go down or Jimmy's watch was ten minutes off or the witnesses swore falsely. At any rate, he was caught with the goods on him and felt rather homesick until arraigned. Then he chirked up. The judge was one of the old law firm. He had stolen the papers for that firm and had given it its start. The judge must remember it. He couldn't go back on him. It would be black ingratitude. Jimmy went ahead and made his plans for the future, and there was a smile on his face when the evidence was all in. It bore hard on him, but the judge would find a way. He had seen lots of judges find lots of ways.

"James Slinger, I sentence you to ten years at Sing Sing for the crime of burglary!" Jimmy is up there still. He will tell you how he fainted away on hearing the sentence, how he was rewarded with ingratitude, how a rosy career was cut short, and he will then add: "But what I can't understand is what the gang was doing to get him, an honest man, up there on the bench. Say, things must be getting whizzery wazy." M. QUAD.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Miss Billie Burke, whose beauty and charm of acting has gained a following among theatregoers that is the envy and admiration of many older women stars, next Monday night enters upon the second month of her extended engagement at the Lyceum Theatre. In her new play, "Susanne", an exquisite comedy of Belgian life, she is called upon to play the daughter of an amusing old brewer, who finds that she can succeed in doing anything she wants to through her sunny temperament. And in this congenial role she is literally smiling herself to success. As one enthusiast said the other evening on leaving the theatre, there has never been an actress who can smile quite like Miss Billie Burke. But her delightful role allows her to do more and reveal a wider range of talent than in her other plays. The little comedy centers on a very serious situation in which Susanne discovers that she cannot marry her fiance because he is pledged to another woman. Her duty impels her to awaken a sense of honor in him and the persuasive manner in which she does it, is one of the most effective bits of serious acting that has been seen this season. But the piece clouds only for awhile, and, after the touch of pathos, is sunnier than ever. Messrs. Fenson and Wicheler, the authors, managed to weave into this first play of theirs an atmosphere of happiness and to touch the homely philosophy to parents and lovers. Among the notable players supporting Miss Burke are George W. Anson, called the English Coquelin; Julian L'Estrange, Conway Tearle, Harry Harwood, and Ross Rand. Miss Burke gives Thursday and Saturday matinees of "Susanne."

WOMEN RANCHERS.

Four California Sisters Also Famed as Guides and Hunters.

Left Fatherless at an Early Age, They Shifted For Themselves and Are the Managers of a 3,500 Acre Ranch.

San Francisco.—Nowhere in the west have the achievements of women excited more admiration and respect than the heroic struggles of the four young daughters of the late Timothy J. Crowley of Black Rock ranch, near Laytonville, Mendocino county, Cal.

The Misses Abbie, Melton, Una and Leota, respectively twenty-two, twenty, eighteen and fourteen, superintend and do all of the work on their 3,500 acre cattle ranch without the assistance of any man or even the advice of their semi-invalid mother.

Black Rock ranch lies in one of the wildest and most picturesque spots in Mendocino county, but embraces the best land in the district for agriculture and stock raising. It surrounds about 7,000 acres of government lands, which can only be reached by passing through the Crowley lands.

By the time each of the Crowley girls had reached the age of ten she was the constant companion of her father in all of his work, which she helped to do with the ease and accuracy of an experienced man. Before any one of them was fourteen she could lasso, break, mount and throw almost any of the wildest horses, frequently without the assistance of her sisters or her father; round up the cattle, drive a six horse team over the most dangerous mountain and canyon roads, fire a musket or the latest improved rifle with unerring aim, shoe the horses, milk the cows, plow, plant, harvest and market the crops, as well as sing, dance, cook and sew.

Some of the neighbors were envious and jealous of the extensive possessions of Mr. Crowley, and despite the fact that he posted notices warning poachers not to come on his lands they came in and out of season, frequently leaving their dead game to be devoured by wild hogs.

Angry poachers openly defied him, claiming that they hunted on the public domain and only passed through his property going to and from it.

The ill feeling culminated in the shooting and killing of Crowley Aug. 14, 1907, about fifteen miles from his home by a man named John Butts, who, with his two sons, each with a deer, was met by Crowley, who accused them of poaching.

There was a party going on in the Crowley home when the announcement of the shooting was received over the telephone. Although it was black night outside, Abbie, the eldest daughter, harnessed a team and drove at rapid speed over the steep and dangerous mountain roads to the spot and brought her father's body home.

Being suddenly bereft of father and companion did not daunt the brave Crowley girls. They were well trained for the many duties that without warning fell upon them. Without a murmur they started on a long and strenuous battle for a livelihood. Under the leadership of the brave little Abbie, "boss of the ranch," no part of the work on their broad acres flagged.

The fame of the four young women is widespread as hunters and guides. When Abbie was fourteen years old she killed a deer with an old rusty musket at a range of 200 yards. The act so pleased her father that he bought her a fine 30-30 rifle. With this she never fails to drop a deer. In August of this year she won the everlasting admiration of a party of San Francisco hunters by killing several deer at distances ranging from 800 to 800 yards. During the summer seasons these thrifty girls rent out many little huts on their property to campers, furnish them supplies and act as guides.

About two years ago two young men, Jack Hammond and E. Door, students at Belmont Military academy, spent their vacation at Black Rock ranch, and young Hammond had the misfortune to shoot himself through the foot with a 12-gauge shotgun, crushing all the bones in the instep.

Young Door had never dressed a wound and knew nothing of surgery. The Crowley girls had dressed many wounds for both man and beast and had done some surgical stunts. Abbie operated on the injured foot and dressed it after dispatching a messenger for a surgeon, who said the injured foot needed no further attention, as it had been treated with as much skill and success as the most scientific could have given it.

Her ability and liking to care for the sick and wounded caused Abbie to enter the German hospital of San Francisco to take the trained nurse course.

So much at a loss were the home folks without the "boss of the ranch" and so greatly were her services needed every day that she was compelled to give up her much cherished professional career and return to the ranch, over which she now reigns supreme.

The Great Conservation Novel

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1910, by Hamlin Garland

Virginia started. "What makes you think so?"

"Well, I knew a woman who went just that way. Had that same flabby, funny look—and that same distress after eating. I told her this mornin' she'd better go up to Sulphur and see that new doctor."

"What did you mean by 'the war'?" asked Virginia.

"Why, you remember the rustler war? We date everything out here from that year. You was here, for I saw ye."

"Oh!" exclaimed Virginia. "I understand now. Yes, I was here. I saw my father at the head of the cowboys."

"They weren't cowboys. They were hired killers from Texas. That's what let yore pa out o' the state. He were on the wrong side, and if it hadn't 'a' been for the regular soldiers he'd 'a' been wiped out right byer. As it was he had to skip the range and hain't never been back. I don't s'pose folks will lay it up agin you—bein' a girl—but they couldn't no son of Ed Wetherford come back here and settle, not for a minute. Why, yore ma has had to bluff the whole county a'most—not that I lay anything up agin her. I tell folks she was that bewitched with Ed she couldn't see things any way but his way. He fought to save his ranch and stawk, but she couldn't do nothin'—and then to have him go back on her the way he did—slip out 'twixt two days and never write; that just about shot her to pieces. I never could understand that in Ed; he 'peared so mortally fond of you and of her too. He sure was fond of you!" She shook her head. "No, can't anybody make me believe Ed Wetherford is alive."

Lee Virginia started. "Who says he's alive?"

"Now, don't get excited, girl. He ain't alive, but yet folks say we don't know he's dead. He jest dropped out so far as yore ma is concerned and so far as the county is concerned, but some thought you was with him in the east."

The girl was now aware that her visitor was hoping to gain some further information and so curtly answered: "I've never seen my father since that night the soldiers came and took him away to the fort. And my mother told me he died down in Texas."

Mrs. Jackson rose. "Well, I'm glad to 've had a word with ye; but, you hear me, yore ma has got to have doctor's help or she's a-goin' to fall down some day soon."

Every word the woman uttered, every tone of her drawing voice, put Lee Virginia back into the past. She heard again the swift gallop of hoofs, saw once more the long line of armed ranchers and felt the bush of fear that lay over the little town on that fateful day. The situation became clearer in her mind. She recalled vividly the words of astonishment and hate with which the women had greeted her mother on the morning when the news came that Edward Wetherford was among the invading cattle barons—was indeed one of the leaders.

In Philadelphia the Rocky mountain states were synonyms of picturesque lawlessness, the theater of reckless romance, and Virginia Wetherford, loyal daughter of the west, had defended it, but in the course of phrase of this lean rancheress was pictured a hand of border warfare as ruthless as that which marked the Scotland of Rob Roy.

Commpolace as the little town looked at the moment, it had been the scene of many a desperate encounter, as the girl herself could testify, for she had seen more than one man killed therein.

Then her mind came back to her mother's ailment. Eliza Wetherford had never been one to complain, and her groans meant real suffering.

Her mind revolved upon one thing. "She must see a doctor," she decided. And with this in mind she re-entered the cafe, where Lize was in violent altercation with a waitress.

"Mother," called Lize. "I want to see you."

With a pouring volley of vituperation Mrs. Wetherford followed her daughter back into the lodging house.

"Mother," the girl began, facing her and speaking firmly, "you need help, and if the doctor here can't help you you must go to Sulphur or to Kansas City. I can run the boarding house until you get back."

Eliza eyed her curiously. "Don't you go to counting on this 'chivalry of the west' which story writers put into books. These men out here will eat you up if you don't watch out. I wouldn't dare to leave you here alone. No; what I'll do is sell the place, if I can, and both of us get out."

"But you need a doctor this minute." "I'll be all right in a little while; I'm always the worst for an hour or two after I eat. This little squirt of a local doctor gave me some dope to ease that pain, but I've got my doubts—I don't want any morphia habit in mine. No, daughter Virginia, it's mighty white of you to offer, but you don't know what you're up against when you contract to step into my shoes."

"Visions of reforming methods about the house passed through the girl's mind. 'There must be something I can do. Why don't you have the doctor come down here?'"

"I might do that if I get any worse, but I hate to have you stay in the house another night. It's only fit for these goats of cowboys and women like Hett Jackson. I don't care till somebody like you or Reddy or Ross comes along."

"No, child; you get ready and pull out on the Sulphur stage tomorrow. I'll pay your way back to Philadelphia."

"I can't leave you now, mother. Now that I know you're ill I'm going to stay and take care of you."

Lize rose. "See here, girl, don't you go to idealizing me neither. I'm what the boys call an old battler. I've been through the whole war. I'm able to feed myself and pay your board besides. Just you and some decent boarding place in Sulphur, and I'll see that you have $10 a week to live on just because you're a Wetherford."

"But I'm your daughter."

Again Eliza fixed a musing look upon her. "I reckon if the truth was known your Aunt Sella was nigher to being your mother than I ever was. They always said you was all Wetherford, and I reckon they were right."

CHAPTER IV. THE NEW WEST AND THE OLD.

THE knowledge that she must spend another night in the inn led Lee Virginia to active measures of reform. She hurried from one needed reform to another. She drew others into the vortex.

She organized the giggling waiters into a warring party and advanced upon the flies. By hissing and shouting and the flutter of newspapers they drove the enemy before them, and a carpenter was called in to mend screen doors and windows, thus preventing their return. New shades were hung to darken the room and new tablecloths purchased to replace the old ones, and the whole place had such a cleaning as it had not known before in five years.

In this work the time passed swiftly, and when Redfield and Cavanagh came again to lunch they exclaimed in astonishment, as, indeed, every one did. "How's this?" queried Cavanagh humorously. "Has the place changed hands?"

Lize was but grimly responsive. "Seems like it has."

"I hope the price has not gone up."

"Not yet."

Redfield asked, "Who's responsible for this—your new daughter?"

"You've hit it. She's started right in to polish us all up to city standards. She can run the whole blame outfit if she's a mind to—even if I go broke for it. The work she got out of them girls is a wonder."

Lee Virginia came in flushed and self-conscious, but far lighter of spirit than at breakfast, and stood beside the table while the waitress laid the dishes before her guests with elaborate assumption of grace and design. Either she had bumped them down with a slash of slangy comment. The change was quite as wonderful as the absence of the flies.

"Do we owe these happy reforms to you?" asked Cavanagh, admiring Virginia's neat dress and glowing cheeks. "Partly," she answered. "I was desperate. I had to do something, so I took to ordering people around."

decided to stay and be of use to my mother."

Redfield overheard this and turned toward her.

"I want Mrs. Redfield to know you. I'm sure her advice will be helpful. I hope you'll come up and see us if you decide to settle in Sulphur or if you don't."

"I should like to do so," she said, touched by the tone as well as by the words of his invitation.

"Redfield's house is one of the few completely civilized homes in the state," put in Cavanagh. "When I get so weary of cuss words and poaching and graft that I can't live without killing some one I go down to Elk Lodge and smoke and read the supervisor's London and Paris weeklies and recover my tone."

Redfield smiled. "When I get weak-kneed or careless in the service and feel my self respect slipping away I go up to Ross' cabin and talk with a man who represents the impersonal, even handed justice of the federal law."

Cavanagh laughed. "There! Having handed each other reciprocal bouquets, we can now tell Miss Wetherford the truth. Each of us thinks very well of himself, and we're both believers in the new west."

"What do you mean by the new west?" asked the girl.

"Well, the work you've been doing here this morning is part of it," answered Redfield. "It's a kind of housecleaning. The old west was picturesque and in a way manly and fine-certain phases of it were heroic—and I hate to see it all pass, but some of us began to realize that it was not all poetry. The plain truth is my companions for over twenty years were lawless ruffians, and the cattle business as we practiced it in those days was founded on selfishness and defended at the mouth of the pistol. We were all pensioners on Uncle Sam and fighting to keep the other fellow off from having a share of his bounty. It was all wasteful, half savage. We didn't want settlement; we didn't want law; we didn't want a state. We wanted free range. We were a line of pirates from beginning to end, and we're not wholly reformed yet."

Some one at the table accused Redfield of being more of a town site boomer than a cattleman.

He was quite unmoved by this charge. "The town site boomer at least believes in progress. He does not go so far as to shut out settlement. I don't care to have my children live the life I've lived. Besides, what right have we to stand in the way of a community's growth? Suppose the new life is less picturesque than the old. We don't like to leave behind us the pleasures and sports of boyhood, but we grow up nevertheless."

more loyal to the stern forest supervisor than I was when I was sitting with the cattlemen to set up the under."

At this moment Sam Gregg entered the room, followed by a young man in an English riding suit. Seeing that "the star boarder table" offered a couple of seats they pointed that way. Sam was plainly in a warlike frame of mind and slammed his sombrero on its nail with the action of a man beating an adversary.

"That is Sam Gregg and his son Joe. Used to be ranch cattlemen, now one of our biggest sheepmen," Cavanagh explained. "He's bucking the cattlemen now."

Lee Virginia studied young Gregg with interest, for his dress was that of a man to whom money came easy, and his face was handsome, though rather fat and sullen. In truth, he had been brought into the room by his father to see "Lize Wetherford's girl," and his eyes at once sought and found her. A look of surprise and pleasure at once lit his face.

Gregg was the greedy west checked and restrained by the law. Every man in the room knew that he was a bitter opponent of the forest service and that he "had it in" for the ranger, and some of them knew that he was throwing more sheep into the forest than his permits allowed and that a clash with Redfield was sure to come. It was just like the burly old Irishman to go straight to the table where his adversary sat.

Virginia's eyes fell before the gaze of these two men, for they had none of the shyness and none of the indirection of the ruder men she had met.

Redfield did not soften, his words on Gregg's account. On the contrary, he made them still more cutting and to the line.

"The mere fact that I live near the open range or a national forest does not give me any rights in the range or forest," he was saying as Gregg took his seat. "I enjoy the privilege of these government grazing grounds, and I ought to be perfectly willing to pay the fee. These forests are the property of the whole nation. They are public lands and should yield a revenue to the whole nation. It is silly to expect the government to go on enriching a few of us stockmen at the expense of others. I see this, and I accept the change."

"After you've got rich at it," said Gregg.

"Well, haven't you?" retorted Redfield. "Are you so greedy that nothing will stop you?"

Gregg growled out: "I'm not letting any of my rights slip. I'll have your head, Mr. Supervisor. I'll carry my fight to the secretary."

"Very well," returned Redfield, "carry it to the president if you wish. I simply repeat that your sheep must correspond to your permit, and if you don't send up and remove the extra number I will do it myself. I don't make the rules of the department. My job is to carry them out."

A LEPROSY TRAGEDY.

The Sacrifice of Kaomouna, the Hawaiian Beauty.

HER LIFE FOR HER MOTHER.

A Story Which Sheds a Bright Light Upon the Filial Devotion of Kanaka Women—The Reason a Baby's Advances Were Not Returned.

The usual Honolulu crowd was down at the dock when the steamship from San Francisco pulled alongside the pier on a brilliant, balmy afternoon in January some years ago. American women in summer afternoon costumes, a few English and a few German women of society, arrayed also for steamer day, leaned back languorously in their carriages and phaetons, under the shade of parasols, listening to the lazy complimentary talk of the duck clad, lei enwreathed young business men who combined duty with pleasure in thus waiting for the great steamer to slip laboriously into her measured berth beside the pier.

All of these Kanaka women had bare feet. They stood about in little groups as silent as the men of their race. A few of the Kanaka women carried tiny brown babies—silent also. The young women were of varying degrees of beauty, their figures showing a uniform excellence of proportion.

One of these Kanaka women at the dock on this brilliant January afternoon was particularly beautiful. She was clad like the rest of the women of her race. She was fully five feet ten inches in height, and the white silk cord with which, unlike the other Kanaka women, she drew her white dress about her waist emphasized the splendid heroic proportions of her figure. Kaomouna seemed quite unconscious of her beauty. The young shipping clerks, hurrying to and fro on the dock with their pencils behind their ears, stopped suddenly when they caught sight of her. The women in the carriages, who had not been long down from the States or from Europe, saw Kaomouna and asked the women of longer Honolulu residence, "Who is that glorious creature?" Kaomouna, with a very sad face, spoke only an occasional word to one of the Kanaka women.

The steamship was made fast to the pier, and the passengers began to troop over the gangplank. There was one man with his pretty young wife and three-year-old little girl. The little girl was the first to catch sight of Kaomouna as she reached the bottom of the gangway. She quickly freed her hand from her father's grasp and ran toward Kaomouna with baby words, Kaomouna smiled at the little girl, but did not offer to take her up. Instead she folded her arms, looking down at the little pink faced child pleasantly. When the mother had taken the little girl she raised her eyes to look at Kaomouna.

"Did you ever in your whole life see such a perfectly beautiful woman?" asked the young wife of her husband in a whisper when he came up. "And Tita seemed to take to her immediately. If we could only have her for a nurse for Tita!"

Kaomouna heard her. "Kaomouna would love to be that," she replied in a soft Kanaka accented speech, smiling. Then a look of pain came into her face. "But it may not be—it may not be!" And, with her hands at her eyes, Kaomouna turned suddenly and disappeared among the departing men and women of her race.

Three months later the parents of the little girl were at the dock together to witness for the first time the saddest of sights—the departure of the lepers for the island of Molokai. The Kilauea Hou, the leper steamer, was out in the stream, and the lepers were being carried out to her in barges. A litter was borne through the roped inclosure for the lepers. On it lay a very old Kanaka woman in the final stages of the disease. At the side of the litter walked Kaomouna. Her face was very sad. The parents of the little girl wondered. They spoke to an official of the Hawaiian board of health, who was busy in the task of embarking the lepers.

"Surely," they said, "she does not accompany the lepers?"

"Who—Kaomouna?" replied the health official. "Oh, yes, she does. But it is her own choice. Kaomouna, you know, has been secreting her old mother for a number of years. We always knew there was something mysterious about Kaomouna—that is, we have known it for the last five years. She had made queer visits to a palm hut far over in the Nuuanu valley. Last week we followed her. We felt there was leprosy in it. We found her mother in the hut. Kaomouna had had her in hiding, trying to save her from Molokai, ever since the disease became evident. Kaomouna is not infected in the least. She has been careful. But she elects to follow her mother to Molokai. Extraordinary? Why, not at all! You do not understand the filial devotion of Kanaka women—men, too, for that matter. Such cases are common enough."

The parents of the little girl looked at each other. There were tears in the mother's eyes.

"That is why she folded her arms and would not touch Tita!" she said. "In this world of God, civilized or uncivilized, could there be anything more noble?"

All was ready, and the Kilauea Hou, with Kaomouna and her mother on board, slowly started down the harbor, the Kanakas on the dock setting up the weird, plaintive death wail—Washington Star.

THE OLD FLINTLOCKS.

A Farmer Accomplished Some Wonderful Feats of Marksmanship With One of Them.

"These old shooting irons," said a man from Virginia, who was examining an old flintlock rifle, "always have my profound respect. Our grandfathers and great-grandfathers did their hunting with them and used them in our two victorious wars with England. They were always good weapons and are now, if they are equipped with a good stock and a good lock. They could do fine service. Any man who was any sort of a marksman could do effective work with them in their day. This fact was well illustrated in an incident that happened several years ago near Richmond. The story was printed in some of the leading newspapers in Virginia and was the cause of much interest.

"There was an old farmer residing in one of the peninsular counties who was coming on the cars to Richmond and had with him one of those old fashioned weapons. In the train he got into conversation with a small party of gentlemen, who expressed much interest in his old rifle, and the farmer told of some rather extraordinary feats of marksmanship that he had performed with it.
"Finally he was persuaded to give an exhibition of his skill with the old relic, and a trial came off at Rocketts in the presence of a few gentlemen. The old flintlock was fired seven times and only missed the mark once. At first the old man fired it at some small objects—to get his hand steady, so he said. Then the old fellow handed to his son, who had every faith in his father's skill, a large potato and stationed him at fifty yards distance, holding the potato between his thumb and forefinger.

"The rifle cracked, and the potato was split into several pieces. Another shot was made at the bowl of a pipe which the boy was smoking, and the bowl was smashed. Several other shots were made at various objects, but in trying to hit a copper cent that was tossed in the air the marksman made a miss. He was considerably mortified at this and laid the blame on a bystander who sneezed loudly at the critical moment, but made another attempt, which was successful.

"The old man then declined any further trials of his skill and when offered a sum of money to repeat his feat of shooting a potato from his son's hand refused, saying he didn't care to experiment any further unless his weapon was freshly cleaned. The boy was willing, but the old man was obstinate. The young man showed not the least anxiety during the dangerous experiment upon himself."—Washington Post.

A Necessity.
"Twenty dollars for rettriming your hat!" exclaimed Mr. Madison. "But we agreed to spend nothing except for things that were positively needed."
"Well, John, this is. You see, my best friend has just had hers rettrimed, and I have promised to go with her to the concert on Friday."
"Oh, all right. But I can't give you more than fifteen this morning, because I broke my meerschaum and must have it mended."
"Can't you smoke your old brierwood?"
"Certainly, dear. And you can wear your old hat."
"John, let's begin to economize next month after we get things all straightened out."
"All right."—New York Herald.

To Multiply by Division.
Everybody knows that learning the tens in the multiplication table is as easy as "pie" and that the fives are not much harder; but, slight as is the mental effort required in multiplying any number by five, it may be lessened still more by discarding the multiplier entirely and substituting a divisor instead. This may sound paradoxical, but by experimenting you will find that dividing by two will bring the same result as multiplying by five, provided you add a cipher to the quotient if the dividend be an even number or five if it be odd. For instance, if you multiply 2,734 by five the product is 13,670. What is still easier, divide 2,734 by two, which is done almost instantaneously; then tack on your 0 and you have 13,670.

Separate and Together.
First Seaman—I say, Bill, wot's this card?
Second Seaman—That's the saloon passengers' menu of course.
"But wot does it mean?"
"Oh, it's a list of all the things they have for dinner—soup and fish and vegetables and meat. That's the difference between the saloon and the fore-castle; they get them all separately and call it a menu. In the fore-castle we get them altogether and call it Irish stew."—London Answers.

True Tale.
"My daughter gave us an awful scare the other day," said a caller last night. "She went away for a visit in New York. And she sent a telegram from Buffalo, her first stop. My wife was afraid to open it. We had visions of train wrecks, sudden illness and all sorts of things. And what do you think the message said? This: "I forgot to tell you—don't eat up all the strawberry jam while I'm gone."—Cleveland Leader.
