

SEWER LOCATION

Hearing on Measure Harmful to North Plainfield at Trenton Today.

A lengthy hearing on Senate bill No. 41, which is aimed to prevent North Plainfield from locating a sewage disposal plant in the Greenbrook section, was held this morning by the Senate committee and at the time of adjournment it looked as though the lawmakers were not disposed to legislate against North Plainfield in the matter. Senators Frelinghuysen and Johnson declared that new legislation would affect North Plainfield adversely and that at this time it was unnecessary.

Representatives from Bound Brook, Piscataway township and Bridgewater township were there in force to oppose the location of a sewage disposal plant at the place designated at Greenbrook, but several residents of North Plainfield, backed by the opinion of James Fuller, engineer for the borough, fought for the location.

It was expected that the Senate committee would hear further arguments on the bill this afternoon and would reach a final conclusion before adjournment for the day.

Those who appeared in behalf of North Plainfield were Mayor Newton B. Smalley, Edward Boyer, Charles H. Lyman, Alexander Milne and Sherrard Dugue.

The bill in its present shape provides that no sewage disposal plant shall be "established, operated or maintained" without first obtaining the consent of the State Board of Health. The measure if enacted would probably prevent North Plainfield establishing a plant at the location selected, and moreover, would threaten Plainfield's plant for on complaint of citizens the State Board would have power to order its abandonment though maintained for many years.

FORMER RESIDENT PASSES AWAY AT GREEN VALLEY, ILL.

Edwin Frazee, who was born at Scotch Plains, January 21, 1822, and who, it is claimed, made the first tissue paper in the United States, died last week at Green Valley, Ill., a fact which will interest many of the older residents.

When he was thirty years old he married Ann Eliza Fitz Randolph and shortly after the Civil War removed to the west. Mrs. Frazee, who died last year, was a niece of Jacob F. Randolph, father of Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street. The Frazee family was well known throughout this section during the early days.

HUBBARD TOASTMASTER AT ALFRED ALUMNI BANQUET.

The Alfred University Alumni Association will hold its annual banquet at the Hotel St. Denis, New York, Thursday night. Among the speakers will be former Governor Augustus E. Wilson, of Kentucky; former Governor George H. Uter, of Rhode Island; President Booth C. Davis, of the University; Director O. S. Morgan, of the State School of Agriculture and Senator Tully, of New York. William C. Hubbard, of this city, is president of the association, and he will be the toastmaster. Many Plainfielders will attend the dinner.

TEMPLE BAPTIST TRUSTEES EFFECT A RE-ORGANIZATION.

Officers were elected and committees appointed at the annual meeting of the trustees of the Temple Baptist church last night. These officers were chosen in the re-organization of the board: President, L. W. Randolph; vice-president, Uzal B. Crane; secretary, William A. Conger; treasurer, Edward Baker, Jr.

These committees were appointed: Property, U. B. Crane, L. L. LaRue and George Viebrock; grounds, Valentine Utzinger and William A. Conger; house, William A. Conger, U. B. Crane and George Viebrock.

Benford and Callahan Fight.
Andrew Benford and John Callahan came together in a fist fight yesterday afternoon near French's Mills on Somerset street, and the resulting injuries to Callahan necessitated the attentions of City Physician Lufburrow. Callahan's nose was broken and as Benford has recently served a term for a similar offense he was given thirty days in which to "think it over." Sentence was suspended on Callahan.

Sunday Selling Cases.
The case of John Consoli and Mary Di Fiore, who were accused of selling on Sunday contrary to the ordinance, were laid over until this morning because they both claimed to be Seventh Day Baptists, again had their cases postponed by Judge DeMeza in the city court this morning for two weeks.

WOMEN'S CHARITY CO. K. INSPECTION

Receipts of Exchange for Captain Allen, U. S. A., Major Martin and Lieut. Col. Forman Present.

Officers were elected and reports for the year were presented at the annual meeting of the Women's Exchange held this morning in the parish house of Grace church. It was stated that the exchange is in a flourishing condition, but that additional yearly subscribers are desired, because so many have either removed from the city or died during the past year or so. At present there are 118 consignors.

Mrs. Edgar S. Hyatt, treasurer of the executive board, reported receipts for the year amounting to $2,513.05 and expenditures of $2,489.54, leaving a balance of $23.51. In addition to this Miss Carrie M. Dunn, superintendent of the exchange, presented a report of receipts and expenditures for the year, giving a better idea of what was accomplished. The receipts were $9,292.91 and the expenditures, including that paid to consignors, $8,908.50, leaving a balance of $384.21.

MAYOR CHAMPLIN DEAD IN NEWARK

Major Charles B. Champlin, aged 68 years, who resided here for several years about thirty-five years ago, died yesterday at his home, 23 Summit street, Newark, of cancer of the stomach. Major Champlin enlisted in Co. B, 6th N. J. Yols, during the Civil War and served with distinction. For many years he has been engaged in the plumbing business with his brother, Walter Champlin.

Major Champlin during his residence here, lived on the south side of Peace street, now Watchung avenue, between Front and Second streets, and had many friends here. He was a prominent member of the Master Plumbers' Association. He was also a member of Lincoln Post, No. 11, G. A. R., and St. Alban's Lodge, No. 68, F. & A. M., of Newark. He is survived by a son, F. A. Champlin, of Newark.

The funeral will be held at Trinity Episcopal church, Newark, tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and the burial will be in the North Plainfield cemetery upon the arrival of the 2:55 train from Newark.

Enjoyed Trap Shooting.
Trap shooting at clay pigeons was enjoyed by the members of the Log Cabin Gun Club on the Watchung Hunt-Club grounds, yesterday. There was continuous shooting from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and some excellent scores were made. At 4 o'clock the members sat down to a fine luncheon at the clubhouse, the menu being prepared by Steward Richmond. On Washington's Birthday the club will hold a prize shoot.

Hunt Club Officers Meet.
The officers and directors of the Watchung Hunt Club held a meeting at the clubhouse, yesterday to discuss plans for the coming season. The financial condition of the club was reported to be excellent, and the prospects for a successful season are bright. Later on announcement will be made regarding the spring steeplechase.

A Chimney Blaze.
The fire department received an alarm at 8:06 last night, from box 25, for a chimney blaze at the home of O. G. Dale, 134 East Sixth street. One tank of the chemical engine and hand extinguisher were used in putting out the flames. There was no damage.

UNION CO. SPENT $100,000 ON ROADS

The automobile, it is declared, is the most responsible for the large sums expended for the repairs and improvements of the State highways. In his last annual report submitted to the Governor, State Road Commissioner Frederick Gilkison, of Newark, shows that $100,000 were appropriated from the Union county fund for highway repairs. Cutting out fractions the number of miles of improved roads built under the State aid laws in Union county since 1892 is twenty-eight.

The total cost in the State for repairs in the improved highways in 1910 was $1,421,746.87. Of this sum $335,577.83 was paid from the motor vehicle fund, leaving $1,086,169.04 to be met from county funds provided for the taxpayers.

TO BUILD SCHOOL ON KENSINGTON AVE

The Board of Education has purchased the vacant lot on the east side of Kensington avenue for a new school. When the Board found it was necessary to have a new building, it was decided that it should be so located as to relieve both the Bryant and the Franklin Schools; i. e., that it must be about equally distant from these two buildings, and not more than a mile away, so that the small children should not have to walk too far. It was determined that the lot ought to be at least 200x300, in order to give ample space about the building. The only lot in the neighborhood that seemed to meet these conditions was the large vacant lot on the east side of Kensington avenue, near Prospect avenue. This location will serve not only the two schools, but also to accommodate one of the most rapidly growing sections of the city.

The only vacant school room in the city today is in the new West End School, seven of the rooms in that building having been occupied by classes as soon as the building was opened. In the Franklin School, there are two classes on half time, while the Bryant School is filled to its capacity, and the attendance indicates that more half time classes will have to be opened next Fall.

THIEVES NABBED BY BORO POLICE

Borough Clerk Frederick A. Martin visited his bungalow on Johnson's drive Saturday and discovered that somebody had broken into the place and ransacked it generally. An inventory disclosed the fact that a fine phonograph, eleven boxes of cartridges, crackers, salt, iron, crockery, crockery and various other articles were missing. Entrance had been effected by forcing a window.

The burglary was reported to Chief Marshall Weiss, of the borough, and from the nature of the affair he immediately suspicioned John Polen, of Jennings lane. The chief went to the home with Mr. Martin last night, and proved his belief by finding the phonograph. Polen, at first, denied stealing the things but afterward admitted his guilt and implicated Charles Chapman, of Grove street. Both were arrested and taken to the borough jail.

Polen was arranged in the Somerset county court last fall for burglarizing the Ackor store on upper Somerset street. He was fined $50 and placed on probation for two years. The police believe he entered the Nier residence on Johnson drive and stole peanut vending machines that were reported missing last week. He is twenty-two years old and bears a generally bad record.

Chapman, who is seventeen years old, told the chief that he had been at the Martin place last Wednesday, and refused to help Polen steal the phonograph. They carried away a number of articles and Polen returned alone Saturday and secured the instrument.

Met With Accident.
S. Frederick Smith, organist of Grace Episcopal church, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon while playing basketball with the business men's club at the Y. M. C. A., spraining the tendons of his left hand. The injury will not incapacitate him for the coming organ recital on Sunday afternoon.

Solution of Industrial Field's Problems Offered by Master Minds, Affords an Intellectual Treat to 250 Business and Professional Men at Chamber's First Annual Banquet—George W. Perkins, William J. Moran, George A. Post and Wm. G. Besler Provide Food for Thought—Senator-Elect Martine Eulogizes Lincoln—Wm. L. Saunders Toastmaster.

An ovation was given Senator James E. Martine as he marched up to the speaker's table on the arm of former William L. Saunders at the first annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce last night, in Truett Hall. The whole gathering of 250 representative men rose to their feet ances. I grew to hate the name of Lincoln and I am ashamed to tell of it now. But ah God has let me live my hate has turned it to admiration and love for Abraham Lincoln was the grandest man this country knew in 100 years. His death was the saddest calamity the nation has ever suffered. For the south it was a tragedy untold. For the south it was a blot upon our escutcheon as a nation. But it was Lincoln's mission to bring our country to a higher plane just as much as it is your duty to be freed from what is regards as the oppression of capital. Many of our statesmen and politicians have vied with one another for years in enacting laws that have as their tendency the restriction, contraction and limitation of the business man's activities. During these same years and gave him three cheers and a tiger before he was allowed to sit down. "Jim" responded by bowing and acknowledging his great reception by raising a glass to his lips and drinking to the crowd. Later, when the new Senator arose to speak on Abraham Lincoln he was received with vociferous cheering and hand clapping.

Martine Lionized.
Martine shared the honors of the evening with George W. Perkins, whose speech held the audience's closest attention. Senator Martine declared his appreciation of the reception tendered him by his friends and said that if he were to be taken away from them he would be prompted to decline the honor of representing the people of New Jersey in the United States Senate. "I am now Senator, representing the greatest commonwealth on God's footstool, Abraham Lincoln was born in 1809 and at the age of 25 sought office and was elected. Just think what that means," he said, "elected and the first time he tried for it too." (laughter) He did not deliver a specially prepared speech on the tariff.

Mr. Martine's Speech.
"How many times have I fought against 'cash' (pointing to Mr. Perkins) today to bring this glorious city of ours to a higher plane.

James E. Martine.

Uplift Movement.
"We are not destructionists. We are not revolutionists. We realize and are proud of our industrial enterprises, but we say to you captains of industry that your genius would have counted for naught were it not for the toil of the laboring masses. We pray you to aid us in establishing an employers liability act. Let it no more be said that a child's life is worth but a dollar. Join us in the uplifting of our commonwealth and help us to make our flag stand for God, for country and for justice."

George W. Perkins, who followed Senator Martine, prefaced his address by saying: "In the light of recent developments in New Jersey politics I would say that the voice of Lincoln has been heard and the our inventors have vied with one another, with unprecedented success, in placing in the hands of business men various instruments which have broadened and expanded the business man's activities. The clashing of these two great forces is largely responsible for present conditions. While laws have been enacted, having as their purpose, the prevention of business from getting together, we have had the uses of steam and electricity so perfected that the business world has been irresistibly drawn together; and the attempts of man to make laws that will nullify conditions that have come about through the conquest of the mysteries of nature will never permanently succeed.

World Becomes Smaller.
"Inter-communication has been causing a mighty revolution. In a little more than a handful of years, the civilized world has been drawn together by bands of steel and streams of electricity, and while thus being drawn together education has taught people to think, to think independently. The day is gone when people lived apart from one another without inter-communication; gone is the day when they were told by the church and the State how they were to think; gone never to return. If the world had had the tremendous development that it has had in methods of intercommunication, and had not had coincident with it the great educational movement among the masses, we would be in a sorry plight indeed, for we would have had forced upon us, because of improved methods of inter-communication, the necessity of getting on together without the ability to do it that comes from education.

Three Solutions.
"Those of us who have watched the trend of events with deep interest and some concern for a number of years, and who have believed that the causes that were creating present conditions were those above stated, have felt that there were only three ways out of the situation:

"First: The adoption by business men of a broad co-partnership method of doing business.
"Second: A rapid drifting toward government ownership of many branches of business.
"Third: Socialism.

"No thoughtful man having the real interest of his country at heart can doubt for a moment that the choice of these three methods should be the first one, an honest, determined effort at co-partnership. We have reached a point through inter-communication and education where one can no longer fool any part of the people much of any of the time.

Profit-Sharing Remedy.
It is, therefore, of first importance that any attempt at co-operative or co-partnership methods must be frank, open and eminently fair. The crux of the wage question, for instance, is not so much whether a man doing a certain form of manual labor should have $1.50 or $1.60 a day, as whether or not the sum he receives is his fair proportion of the profits of the business in which he kins) and against 'oil' (indicating Col. Fuller) but today victory sits perched upon our banners and we are ready to do battle for the right."

Mr. Martine pictured the conditions confronting the South when the Civil War broke out. How Abraham Lincoln was hated by many and how today that hatred has been turned into love and admiration. "No one can tell," he said, "what Lincoln has done for the uplift of humanity. It cannot be figured in money. He stood for what was right and was ready to die for his convictions, yet he was burned in effigy for his utter-hand of Roosevelt felt among you. You have chosen as the head of your splendid Chamber of Commerce the son of the man who gave to the world the non-explosive boiler, one of the greatest inventions of this or any other age." He continued and in part said:

Mr. Perkins' Talk.

"The problems of the day are those between capital and labor, between business and the State. In many quarters business wants to be freed from what it regards as the tyranny of the State; labor wants

SOMERVILLE'S "DESPERADO" WAS ONLY A DOVER COP.

Why Marshall Russell Lott, who constitutes just one-third of the regular police force of Dover, failed to report for duty Friday night, giving Chanceman Joe Duckworth an opportunity to do police duty in his stead, is no longer a mystery. Lott had some business in Somerville Friday and when he got through he decided to get a shave. He sat down in the barber's chair with his coat off and the butt of his revolver protruded in plain sight of some half dozen Somervillians. One of them slipped out and apprised a policeman of his suspicions that there was a desperado in town. The result was that Lott was arrested and taken to the Somerville lock-up.

Lott thought they were springing a practical joke on him and when the desk sergeant ordered that he be searched he obligingly held up high both arms while the "frisking" was going on. Then he stopped to take off his shoes so that the search might be thorough.

It soon dawned upon him that the Somerville police were in earnest. The sergeant ordered him to be taken to a cell to "cure him of his levity."

"Why I'm a cop myself; I'm from Dover," Lott explained, but they laughed. It was not until three hours later that some one called up the Dover police station. Duckworth answered the phone and when he found that some one wanted to know about Lott he denied in fun all knowledge of any one named Lott. When he found out about Lott's predicament, he amended his reply, with the result that Lott was discharged and the freedom of Somerville was given to him. He says that the next time he goes away from Dover he will take his badge with him.

Texas Giant is Dead.
Lamb Graves, the largest man in the State of Texas, is dead at his home near San Antonio. Graves was a giant in stature, standing seven feet and three inches tall and weighed, when in health, 350 pounds. He was a farmer and resided in Baxter county five years, having gone there from Centerville, Tex. It is said of him that he possessed the strength of three ordinary men and could tame horses and other animals into submission by sheer force. But while he was a giant both in size and strength, he was known as a most kindly man and avoided notoriety. It is believed that Graves was the tallest man, not only in Texas, but in the United States. He was fifty-three years old and unmarried.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church will meet in the church parlors this afternoon. The subject for discussion will be "South America." Nominations will be made for the officers to be elected in March.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., February 14, 1911.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

Never in the history of Plainfield and possibly on very few occasions of the sort in the State at large has an assemblage of business and professional men enjoyed such "a feast of reason and flow of soul" as that which marked the Chamber of Commerce's first banquet, last night. It was by far the greatest and most successful event of the kind ever held in this progressive municipality. When a gathering of 250 men representing various vocations will listen attentively, and applaud enthusiastically, for three hours or more, chieftains of industry as they soberly and learnedly discuss the problems of capital and labor, it cannot be gainsaid that "the world do move." And when such lords of finance, transportation and trade will deny themselves hours of needed rest when naturally mentally fatigued after their day's work and come to Plainfield to expound their views and suggest remedies for the amelioration of life's struggles and for the betterment of human conditions, surely the day of the real brotherhood of man is fast approaching. It is but a sign of the times, a time when there will be a perfect understanding and when all will work in peace, concord and supreme happiness.

To Organize a Third Court.

There are now courts here, Plainfield and Watchung, with a total membership of about three hundred. That there is room for another court is believed by the Foresters who have become interested in the matter.

THE Laundry Bag says:
"Two collars wandered into my place one day last week. One was cracked and broken at the ends. The other wasn't. Said the latter: 'What happened to you?'
"Usual thing," answered the broken one; "this is only my second trip to the laundry!"
"Great collar buttons!" exclaimed the other; "this is my ninth, and look at me. No cracks. No broken ends. I tell you, you started wrong. Now, I was made especially to stand the racket—that's why I, and all other Corliss-Coon Collars, can beat you all out in the number of trips to the laundry."

Number 1---EXPLANATION

During the next few months we will give Dry Cleaning Talks regularly, which articles will make you more familiar with our work and service. These talks will also familiarize you with the dry cleaning method of cleansing and rejuvenating all kinds of fabrics—both wearing and household—that are too valuable or too delicate to be washed by soap and water.

Our object, while selfish, is educational. There are thousands in this vicinity who are not our patrons either for Dry Cleaning or Pressing because they do not understand our service and the benefit Dry Cleaning is to soiled delicate garments.

We will try to impress upon you that the best place to send your Dry Cleaning work and pressing is

'UPLIFT THE MASSES'

is engaged. Later communication and independent thought, as the result of education, have brought us face to face with this question. Merely to raise a man's wages and raise them again and yet again will not answer the question. The only way to answer it is to let the man know what the business he is engaged in is earning. The man who knows what proportion of the profits he is receiving, and if, in addition to his regular wage, he is in some way receiving from time to time a reasonable percentage of those profits, his intelligence has been appealed to and a basis for fair argument has been established.

Harmony's Keynote.

"Practical experience in recent years in certain large industrial companies has shown that a fair wage, supplemented by a profit sharing plan, will go a very long way toward promoting harmony between capital and labor. By 'profit sharing' is not meant bonuses or gratuities but rather a definite statement made to an organization at the beginning of a year as to what is expected of it, and that if such expectations are realized certain extra compensation will be paid, not in cash that can be immediately spent, but in some form of security that represents an interest in the business in which the man is working, thus making the man an actual partner in the business in which the man is working, thus making the man an actual partner in the business in which he is engaged. It is only through such methods as these, practically applied, that the workman can obtain the liberty he seeks, the equity that is his due.

Business a Trust.

"If the business man wishes his freedom from government he must pursue an equally honest, open and frank course in his relations with the government. Business men have for years pretty generally fought the idea that business should in any way be interfered with by the State. In my judgment this has been a mistake. If we are to have huge business concerns we can only have them because the capital is provided by the public, thus making them semi-public institutions; and the manager of any such concern should fully realize this fact and appreciate that he is a trustee in the broadest sense of the term. Our large business concerns are popularly called 'trusts' and in one sense of the word the term is more aptly applied than many of us have taken thought to realize, for the managers are entrusted with the public's funds for investment, are entrusted with the public's labor to manage, are entrusted with a substantial percentage of a given commodity which is to be supplied to the public; and if they discharge their trustee-ship in a broad, statesman-like manner, with equity and fairness to all interests, the good, rather than the harm they can do is almost incalculable.

The Responsibility.

"The problems of the day are the business man's problems. They are problems that strike at the root of our every-day life; problems that affect the material prosperity of our entire country. They have grown out of the two great new forces that have come into men's lives in comparatively recent years, viz., better inter-communication and broader education. If the business man would handle them for his own ultimate, pecuniary good and profit, for his country's good, for the good of his fellow-men, he must have a broad vision; he must realize that we are living in a 'get-together' age and that business in the future can only be conducted on a 'live and let live' basis. He must be mindful of his responsibilities to all those with whom he has relations. His relations with labor must be more nearly those of partner and friend, than hiring and enemy. His attitude toward the government must be that of having nothing to conceal rather than one of 'it is none of your business.'"

"It is for the business man to say whether or not the smouldering fire shall break into flame. The need of the hour is statesmanship in business."

Mr. Moran's Speech.

William J. Moran's remarks principally related to the great changes that are impending in the relation of employer and employee. He said that the two bills introduced into the Legislature, one by Senator Edge and the other by Assemblyman Ford, were but local expressions of a movement that was already a universal one. He attempted to show the meaning of the old liability law, and then to contrast it with the meaning of the proposed compensation law. He said in part as follows: "In the days of Lincoln the relations of employer and employee were comparatively simple. The relation was intimate and personal. A good man injured in the course of his employment was not regarded as a cog in an intricate corporate machine, to be cast aside when it could no longer perform its function. Nowadays in the great and hazardous work, the workman is largely a cog, and if it be the inevitable result of modern industrial conditions that any man is to be considered merely a piece of machinery, then he shall have the rights of machinery, one of them is to be repaired at the expense of the industry."

Basis of Compensation.
"Compensation is largely based upon the sad thought that a workman in modern industrial conditions is a piece of machinery, and that when he breaks down he or his dependents must be repaired,—in their fortunes at least, by the industry that takes the toll of a life or a limb."

"This great industrial State of New Jersey was invited by its distinguished Governor in his first message to enact a compensation law. He said: 'We must have a workingmen's compensation act which will not put upon him the burden of fighting powerful composite employers to obtain his rights, but which will give him his rights without suit, directly, and without contest, by automatic operation of law, as if of a law of insurance."

Human Rights.

"What did Lincoln say about taking property without the consent of the owner? What did he say in his Emancipation Proclamation when he took away from thousands of persons their vast property in chattels called slaves?"

"Property rights are sacred things and government is organized to protect them. But in the movement for laws of 'compensation', in the relation of master and servant, the right of property is not the right being considered. The right up for consideration is the right of the people to suppress a public scandal, the scandal of industry producing a huge by-product of useless men and women, the scandal of the litigation between masters and servants with its attendant perjury and ambulance chasing, the scandal of the uneven administration of the laws giving much to some and nothing to others, the scandal of wiping out the frugal savings of a small employer by an exorbitant verdict, the scandal of throwing an honest deserving workman, through technical and obsolete rules of law upon the cold charity of an indifferent world."

Mr. Post's Address.

Hon. George A. Post, former Congressman from Pennsylvania, humorously depicted the various phases of the political life and referring especially to Senator Martine declared that he had "charged off" the latter's eccentricities and had credited him with a full line of patriotism and human love. Like Lincoln, Martine has the love of his fellow countrymen no matter what has passed and in the coming years he predicted for the new Senator a life of usefulness for which the people whom he will represent ought to be grateful. He urged everyone to uphold the man who has fought so long and so faithfully for the exalted position he has finally won.

Mr. Post held his hearers spell bound, at times jumping from the humorous to the sublime heights of oratory. It was conceded that as an after-dinner speaker, Mr. Post has few equals if any. His stories were fresh and his finale absolutely unique. None of those who were fortunate enough to hear him will ever forget Mr. Post's peroration. Owing to the lateness of the hour, Col. Charles W. Fuller was unable to deliver the speech he had prepared and after an introductory by Toastmaster Saunders, William G. Besler brought the proceedings to a close with a speech on the "Railroads and Business."

STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mrs. Cora V. Johnson, eighty-two years old, mother-in-law of Mayor Samuel H. Ladd, of Woodbury, was buried yesterday.

Clouester county will elect a senator and a sheriff the coming fall. Efforts are being made for peace between the Republican factions.

A Chinese of high rank, chief inspector of a Chinese warship being built at the New York Shipyard, Camden, is staying in Woodbury.

Rev. J. L. Sturteess, pastor, announced in the State street M. E. church, Camden, Sunday that, with the aid of Andrew Carnegie, a $3,000 pipe organ will soon be installed in the edifice.

So mild was the weather in Atlantic City Sunday that three men in bathing attire were watched by hundreds of visitors as they played in the surf, remaining fully five minutes.

Four hundred Trenton Democrats, including Mayor Walter Madden and former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., will tender a complimentary dinner Thursday evening at the Hotel

Windsor to Charles H. Gallagher, of Trenton, a member of the Democratic State committee. It is expected that the dinner will develop into a Mayoralty boom for Gallagher.

Former Captain William Hartman, of the Second Police Station, Trenton, who was retired on half-pay several years ago when he lost his leg, has been cut off the pension list because he has been drawing $1,500 annually as a county detective. It is held by the Police Board that if the captain is able to hold down the county position he is not incapacitated and cannot draw a pension.

Four Monmouth county townships, which with the townships of Brick and Dover, in Ocean county, are the owners of the Shark River Poor Farm, want to sell that valuable property. The farm consists of 700 acres and has several miles of water front on the south bank of Shark River. The Ocean county people who are interested are inclined to go slow. The poor farm has not been a success. There is a sentiment in favor of selling if a fair price can be reached.

Vincent Conover, of Trenton, who has been an engineer on the Pennsylvania Railroad forty-seven years, running between Philadelphia and New York, has resigned. Mr. Conover has enjoyed the best of health and never lost a day in all these years excepting vacation periods. He entered the employ of the company as a brakeman, later became a fireman and in a short time was advanced to engineer. He never had but one accident, which was slight.

It is expected that the special committee of the Camden county Board of Freeholders will this week meet representatives of the Pennsylvania and the Reading Railroad companies concerning two-cent ferriage between Camden and Philadelphia. Solicitor Bergen, of the board, has rendered an opinion that the board has the power to regulate the rate of ferriage. If a satisfactory arrangement cannot be made with the ferry companies, a member of the committee stated yesterday, the matter will be taken to the courts.

H. J. Thompson, a master stevedore of Philadelphia, reports the mysterious disappearance of his son, W. J. Thompson, who left his home, 61 North Second street, Camden, last Friday, since which time he has not been heard from. The missing youth was fifteen years old and is slightly lame. When he left he wore a blue coat and plaid trousers. He said he would return in a few minutes for his overcoat, but he never came back.

In the ballroom connected with Hilbig's cafe, at 265 Passaic street, Passaic, last Sunday, fifty guests were entertained at the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hegmann, of 273 Madison street, Passaic.

A Desperate Game

By JOHN K. LEYS.

Author of "The Lindsays," "The Lawyer's Secret," "The Black Terror," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by John K. Leys.

"And you have not told the police?" said the doctor.

"No," he said calmly. "I thought the first thing was to get the poor fellow under shelter."

"As a man—what is his name, by the way?" asked the doctor sharply.

"I know no more than you do. I never saw him before."

"Well, since he is in imminent danger of death I think a magistrate should be sent for to take his dying deposition," said the medicine man as he drew on his thick gloves.

"That, I presume, will be for his daughter to decide," said Guy stiffly. The doctor said no more till he was on the point of leaving the house, and then he turned and remarked to Guy:

"Of course you understand that it will be impossible for me to sign a death certificate. There must be an inquest."

"Really, it is no affair of mine. You must do as you think best," Guy answered, shrugging his shoulders.

He was about to follow the doctor, and in fact was only waiting to pay the cabman, whom he had sent for a priest, when he heard the voice of the wounded man calling and stepped across to the door of the room.

"What was that doctor was saying?" he demanded.

"He said that a magistrate should be summoned."

"I'll have nothing of the kind, and you may lay your oath to that!" exclaimed the man with such vehemence that his wound began to bleed afresh.

"It is quite necessary that the police should be informed of what has happened, and you may take your oath of that," said Guy firmly. "What reasons you may have for wishing that the man who shot you down should escape rather than give information to the police I neither know nor care. But the doctor has just shown me clearly enough, and my own common sense tells me, that I ought to have told the police at first when I went for a cab. I must do so on my way home, and as soon as they learn the facts they will bring a magistrate."

"They may bring whom they like. I shan't say a word."

"That may make the task of the police a little more difficult, but the truth is sure to come out, for, as you know, my poor fellow, you may not recover, and if you don't there must be an inquest."

The man in the bed uttered a groan. "I had forgotten that," he muttered to himself. Nora was standing by her father's pillow.

"Do you see this girl?" asked the sufferer, with a strange kind of suppressed fierceness. "She has never done you any harm, has she?"

Guy glanced hastily at the pale and lovely face, white and clear as a cameo. "How could she? You know I never saw her in my life before."

"Look at her! Look at her well! She is my only child. When I die she will have neither father nor mother, neither brother nor sister, neither kith nor kin, in this strange land. Would you ruin her? Would you take away the only chance she has of finding friends that would never see her want? Would you bring shame and disgrace on her, so as to make her wish the earth would open and swallow her or that she could drown herself in the deep sea? Do you want to do that? If you do you're only going to tell what you know to the police. But I tell you this—if you do, my curse, the curse of a dying man and the curse of the fatherless, will be on you. What for did you ever interfere with me? What for did you not leave me lying where you found me?"

Guy felt that it was impossible to argue with him. "God knows," he said to himself, "I have no wish to harm the girl; quite the other way. But how can I help the fate coming out?"

The sound of wheels broke on his ear, making a reply needless. It was the cab returning with the priest.

CHAPTER II.

A MYSTERIOUS TRUST.

A tall, stout man in a rusty black overcoat that came down nearly to his heels entered the room. This was the priest. He made the sign of the cross and muttered, "Pax vobiscum," then looked around, frowning.

"Hum, no preparations, I see." "There has been no time, father," began the girl.

"Well, well! You had better leave us now," And he drew near to the bed. Guy thought it was a good time to slip away, his presence being no longer required. He went up to the dying man and held out his hand, but a loud knocking at the street door interrupted him.

"The cab! He will want to be paid," gasped out the sick man. "Can we do it, Nora?"

A gleam of tears came into the girl's eyes. She bit her lips and shook her head.

"Don't bother about that," said Guy hastily. "I shall drive back to 'Lodging-ton, and I will settle with the man."

"But you won't go yet, not till— I have something I must say to you." And the wounded man seized his hand and clung to it.

"I am sorry, but I think I must go."

Our Political Postoffice

John Wanamaker was Postmaster General; Senator Boies Penrose is chairman of the great Postoffice Committee of the United States Senate; Thomas H. Carter, Senator from Montana, has served many years on that committee.

No three men in the United States are better versed in post-office affairs and needs than these.

On February 9, 1911, the Senate Postoffice Committee, under the leadership of Senators Penrose and Carter, reported favorably to the Senate for action the Postoffice Appropriation bill, containing a provision, put in without allowing public hearing or open consideration, but under political pressure from the White House, that increases the postage rate on magazines and periodicals to such an extent that it practically absorbs all the profits of the publishing business of the country and makes the further production of popular-priced magazines impossible. It imposes a tax that is confiscatory.

Notwithstanding, within the year Senator Boies Penrose said, referring to the Carter-Weeks bill:

"These are some of the big features of the bill. The whole intent is to systematize and to modernize the entire postal system. It is idle to take up such questions as apportioning the cost for carrying second-class mail matter or the proper compensation of railroads for transporting the mails until we shall have established business methods in postoffice affairs by a reorganization of the whole postal system.

"The commission unanimously recommended the passage of the projected bill. Personally I have been very much interested in all the details and, of course, am heartily in favor of the changes to be made."

Senator Carter said last March:

"But I must forego further pursuit of details. The bill was cordially approved by Postmaster General Meyer and his assistants, and likewise has the approval of Postmaster General Hitchcock. It failed of passage during the last Congress owing to lack of time for its proper consideration, but I have reintroduced the bill, which is now designated Senate 6287, Second Session, Sixty-first Congress. The Committee on Postoffices and Postroads will favorably report the bill to the Senate, and it should be enacted into law before the close of this session. I believe not only that it will increase efficiency, but that, after the expense of installation is absorbed, it will result in such economies in the administration of the department and service as will ere long wipe out the deficiency. In operating under it the department will be able with almost unerring certainty to determine the actual cost of each service performed, thereby reaching a sound basis for legislation such as is neither available nor obtainable under the present system.

"I deeply sympathize with the earnest desire of the department officials to get rid of the deficiency they are fated to encounter each year, but I submit that the first real movement toward that end must begin with the substitution of a modern, up-to-date business organization for the existing antiquated system, which rests upon a few sections of law enacted in 1835, supplemented by statutory fragments added from time to time since that year."

John Wanamaker said recently:

"With Mr. Hitchcock's suggestion, however, there will be no general agreement. The magazines are supported, not by the price paid for the magazine by the readers, but by the advertisers.

"In a sense, magazines are private concerns; but they have a public function to perform—an educational function. To tax the advertisements is to tax the quality of the educational matter contained in the pages, for the advertisements enable the publishers to pay high prices for literature and educational articles. The price paid for a magazine does not pay for the printing and the paper. If Mr. Hitchcock's suggestion should become part of the President's plan it would mean that the public would suffer in the loss of much educational material that the publishers then would be unable to buy."

We urge every friend of honest politics, economical government and a free press to telegraph or write an immediate protest to their Senators and Representatives at Washington.

THE CURTIS PUBLISHING COMPANY

The Saturday Evening Post The Ladies' Home Journal

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

said Guy firmly.

"You wouldn't refuse a dying man's prayer, would you?"

Guy looked at him, but could not meet the reproachful eyes. In Nora's, too, he fancied he saw mute entreaty.

"Well, since you wish it, I will stay," he said abruptly, and went into the outer room. Nora followed him, leaving the priest and his penitent together. Guy paid the cabman and went back to the sitting room, where Nora sat near the empty grate, staring into the black cinders as though they had been red and glowing. She evidently did not know that the fire had gone out. From time to time she put one hand to her eyes as though wiping away a tear.

Guy thought he had never seen a more beautiful creature. And soon he began to wonder at her silence. There was no eager questioning to know how her father had come by his death wound—no inquiry as to where he had been or who had been his companions. The short, bald account Guy had given to the doctor seemed to be enough for her. It was unnatural.

Was it sorrow for her father or the thought of her own future, dark, perhaps, and uncertain, that caused her tears? He wanted to ask, but shrank from intruding on her sorrow. He rose and paced softly down one side of the room and back again. He noticed that it was very poorly furnished. The girl sighed.

"Have you any objection to tell me your name?"

The words escaped, his lips before he was aware of it. "I beg your pardon," he added hastily. "Never mind. I spoke without thinking."

"My name is Nora Kildare," she said quietly, ignoring the apology, without altering her attitude in the least. But the ice once broken Guy felt impelled to speak.

"Has your father—has Mr. Kildare—friends in London?"
