GYMNASIUM EXERCISES SUITED TO INDOOR PRACTICE.

Exercise Made by Accident Which Have Benefited the Whole World—An Instructive Recreation That May Be Indulged in by Young Scientists.

An entertaining scientific recreation of interest to young readers is the one here illustrated.

A SCIENTIFIC RECREATION.

Take a piece of wood an inch or so in thickness and bore through it the hole shown in the illustration. By blowing through the larger and as a candle is set in the hole, the flame will be extinguished by blowing in the opposite direction, through the smaller opening, the current of air upon emerging, will spread out and a partial vacuum is formed, and instead of the flame being extinguished the flame is actually blown toward the opening. A piece of cardboard rolled into the proper form will answer equally well for the experiment. The same principle may also be shown in several other ways, as by bending the ends of a visiting card so that it will stand like a stool about three-eighths of an inch high. Place it on a table and it will be found impossible to blow it over. The air, rushing underneath it, causes a sufficient vacuum and downward pressure to keep it in place. It can, however, be accomplished by blowing upon the table two or three inches in front of the card, when the blast will be reflected at such an angle as to overturn it; or, take a short piece of glass tubing or a quill and attach a card of cardboard to one end of it. If even with the opening, place a similar card of cardboard upon the first, and, on blowing through the tube, it will be found impossible to blow it off. The second card, blowing through the tube, it will be found impossible to blow it off. The second card, blowing through the tube, it will be found impossible to blow it off.

Athletic Feats.

There are many feats of activity and strength that may be performed by the young who will take the trouble to practice them. The ones here described are peculiarly adapted for weather, as they may be performed indoors.

JUMPING THROUGH THE FINGERS.

The illustration teaches how to jump through the fingers. Hold a rod or piece of wood between the thumb and index finger, as represented in the cut, and without letting go, try and jump over it, both forward and backward. With a little practice this can be readily done, the hardest part of the feat consisting in clearing the back, which is usually the first to touch the ground. The second jump is made by the same person, but the hands are placed together, without touching or separating them with your feet. What is commonly known as the "finger feat" is performed as follows: Place your hands horizontally across and close to your breast, put the tips of your forefingers together and spread the middle and ring fingers, or to separate them, by pulling at each arm, but if you hold them firmly in the stronger hand, it will be made to achieve it, although he may be much bigger and stronger than you. It is not proper for the second jump to use sudden or violent jerks in the attempts, he must employ only a steady, regular pull.

Accidental Discoveries.

Accident has been a suggester of a number of important scientific discoveries in the history of the world. These accidents occurred, however, when they looked out from observation, they were not planned.

Discovered by Accident.

Discovered by accident, the discovery of penicillin by Alexander Fleming, the discovery of the structure of DNA by James Watson and Francis Crick, and the discovery of the structure of the atom by Ernest Rutherford.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

What was the population of the United States in 1790? The first official census was taken in 1790, and gave a population of 3,929,217.

The Oldest University.

Harvard University, at Cambridge, Mass., was established in 1636. It is therefore the oldest of all our colleges.

Living Presidents and Vice-Presidents.

Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, and Thomas Woodrow Wilson, Vice-President of the United States.

Ex-President Hayes.

Rutherford B. Hayes, President of the United States, and Frances Hayes, Vice-President of the United States.

The Word Guerrilla.

The word guerrilla is the diminutive of the Spanish word "guerra," or war, and means petty war. It is used to describe a small band of men who fight in a guerrilla fashion.

Electricity as a Profession.

Is the profession of an electrician a good field for a young man to enter? If so, you will find it a most interesting and profitable one. The electrician is a man who works with electricity, and is responsible for the safety of the public.

Liability of an Insurance Company.

What will oblige me by answering the following question? A man leaves his house furnished, and the furniture is stolen. The insurance company refuses to pay the claim, claiming that the furniture was not properly insured.

Where is Henry M. Stanley?

Can you give the information of the movements of Henry M. Stanley? He is a famous explorer and traveler, and has been seen in various parts of the world.

Nothing definite can be said.

Nothing definite can be said about the movements of Henry M. Stanley. He is a famous explorer and traveler, and has been seen in various parts of the world.

No Means of Knowing.

There would be no means of knowing the information asked for except by personal effort. The information is not available in any public source.

Man Wants but Little.

There is a saying that "Man wants but little." This is a true statement, and it is one that should be remembered by all of us. We often think that we need more than we really do.

Two Faces.

The term two faces was formerly applied to the extreme view of the Democratic party. It is a term that has been used to describe a person who has two different faces, or two different personalities.

Babyhood of Chicago.

Can you give any information as to when Chicago first obtained sufficient power to be called "the big city"? Chicago is a city of over four million people, and it has a long and interesting history.

The British Visit.

How did the visit of the British royal family to the United States in 1917 go? The visit was a very successful one, and it was a great honor for the United States to have the royal family here.

White and Black.

Will you be good enough to state in "Questions and Answers" whether black and white are colors? Yes, black and white are colors, and they are the two primary colors.

A CATAPROSE.

The cat stood on the trifling fence,
Where he for fun had come,
At midnight pruned did he commence
To make the night a storm.
Then down he and black he came
As loud as he could roar,
Of mischief when from windows streamed
Straight at his fur off form.
Bookends rolled on. He would not go Without a word,
Mars in the kitchen for His you no longer heard.
"Mars," Mr. Thomas cried,
"Hark, meet you here,
And beat the bounding bores replied
That fast was there a year.
Then came a grumble's thunder sound;
The cat—oh, where was he?
And at his front he started around
In that cataprophe.
With bookends, bricks and many a war
The spears did their part,
But the noise that which perished there
Was that old cat so smart."
—J. C. Dodge, Chicago Ill.

A MARTYR OF FASHION.

In days, not old, when nights were cold,
And Jack had told his friends
A Dodo bird, with wings of gold,
Sang merrily his song.
"My love is a woman fair,
With lots of cash to spare,
And she'll be with me all day long,
If I'll be with her all day long.
So I'll be with her all day long,
If she'll be with me all day long."
This brave knight, in clothing light,
Went forth to the fray;
He danced all night, but he was late
He'd caught some one to say.
With music players near,
But his love was not there.
"I've kept the secret I said,
I've kept the secret I said,
I've kept the secret I said,
I've kept the secret I said."

A MOVING TALE.

The overland passed a life to think,
And may be passed while to drink;
"A moving tale, I would have said, Till we had all seen, or had I write."
Why, write of the cat who is rushing away
From bookends and better, in deadly array,
I think it will prove a success without fail,
For most surely that is a moving tale.

witnessed declined to answer a question addressed to her by the defendant's attorney on cross-examination.
"Why do you refuse to answer the question, madam?" asked the lawyer, scolding a favorable disclaimer.
"Because my answer ought not to be heard by any honorable person," replied the witness.
"Well, then, madam," said the counsel,
"whether it is in the ear of the judge."

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

A DRIVING MUFF FOR WHICH MANY MERITS ARE CLAIMED.

The Physician Electric Plant, which possesses wonderful magnetic properties, is described by W. H. Holmes, with the assistance of a sketch map, in Science.
The great serpent mound, numbered among the ancient monuments of southern Ohio, and attracting of late much attention from scientists, is described by W. H. Holmes, with the assistance of a sketch map, in Science.
This work is situated in the northern part of Adams county, somewhat remote from frequent routes of travel, and hence rarely visited by people from a distance. Mr. Holmes' notes and observations are therefore here reproduced for the benefit of the many who cannot visit the locality. This remarkable mound is in the vicinity of Huron creek valley, which is bounded by extremely rugged country. Turning up the stream, the investigator finds himself at the insertion of a long, narrow spur, best described as crescent shaped, with its hole to level to the extreme point, and slopes abruptly to the brink of the cliff at the left, and rounds off more gently into the deep gulch at the right. This spur narrows up farther on, and terminates in an abrupt promontory, around the base of which a small launch from the gulch at the right rounds and crosses the strip of alluvial bottom to the creek. Along the rounded grassy crest of this ridge there has been detected the clear serpentine coils of the earthwork, and descending a little to the left, and almost to the brink of the cliff, is reached the site of the surge. Beginning with a small pit at the terminus point, follow the undulating path for two full turns, and then advance along the body to its highest point upon the ridge. The curves are strong and even, and the body increases gradually in height and width as we advance. Upon the crest of the ridge is the beginning of three great double folds. Following these, one descends into a slight sag in the ridge, but ascends again to a point where the body straddles out along the ridge. Beyond this occurs the curious arrangement with its triangular and oval in-clusions. Here the mound is subdivided divided into two parts, which respectively pass to the right and left of the inclusions.
As the sides they descend slightly upon the slopes of the ridge, and at the widest part of the oval are somewhat obscure on account either of original construction or of subsequent erosion. Beyond these breaks the oval continues, closing entirely around the oval inclusions, which from the point of junction the body continues for a short distance, perhaps forty feet, and then terminates in a rounded and slightly widened point.

The Grammar was Bad.
A young lady was sitting with her lover in a beautifully decorated room. Her husband was a diminutive niece. In an adjoining room, with the door open, were the rest of the company. They little niece was jealous and very unkindly. "Havin him him, Mrs. O'Flinn, with admiration—It's a foolish brother of a moon eye have none.
Oh, what a little one was more like him.
—The Judge.

The Hare and The Wolf.

A Wolf who had the misfortune to be caught in a Trap was once asked by the Hare, who approached very closely and responded.
"Ah! you Wretched Fellow! but for my Magnanimity of Character I would turn to and kick you within an inch of your Life!"
"It isn't that!" quietly replied the Wolf,
"but it is the Knowledge that I have let so many Hares go Unscathed in the Past."
Moral: John L. will get trapped some day.
Now is his time to knock 'em out.—
Detroit Free Press.

Tennyson's New Volume.

Lord Tennyson's new volume sells more freely than anything he has ever published.
The condemnation of the critics is over-weighed by the voice of fashion, and Lord Tennyson is as much the fashion now as ever.—Chicago Tribune.

A Merchant's Secret.

A Chicago merchant reveals the secret of the fact that while in cold weather other merchants' windows are heavily frosted, his remain clear and transparent. He has his windows rubbed twice each week with a cloth dipped in glycerine.

The Oldest Fresco.

The museum at Boulaq, in Egypt, contains what has been called the oldest picture in the world—a fresco from a tomb at Mayodou, representing six gods.—Arkansas Traveler.

No mother should permit herself to become the slave of the family. The sweetest disposition must become armed under such a strain and with it goes health and spirit.

To maintain the hardest old boots or shoes
apply the fat from rosin fowls with a cloth or brush.

Prize your housekeeper for her successful dishes and regard leniently her failures.

Land, if applied at once, will remove the discoloration after a bruise.

Silver that is not in frequent use will not tarnish if rubbed in oil.

Packishable note paper must have the address stamped upon it.
