

KNIFED BY HER MISTRESS

Donnelly—She Is Committed to Jail to Await the Result of Mary's Injuries.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 27.—Mary Ann Donnelly, a nurse maid, was stabbed and fatally wounded yesterday by Mrs.

The Noll cottage on Tennessee avenue, this place, Hamilton had been stopping with his wife at the Noll cottage for some time.

Sunday night the guests in the Noll cottage heard Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton quarreling in their apartments. Mrs. Hamilton was opposed to leaving Atlantic City at once, while her husband insisted upon starting for home on the Monday noon train. Yesterday home of the Hamiltons, and Mrs. Hamilton was left with her husband, a person a few days longer than waiting for a trial. He told her that he had made up his mind to go and that all her talk would do no good.

Quarrelsome Servant, Angry Neighbors.

They were engaged in packing their trunks when Mary Ann Donnelly, one of the servants, came into the room and told them of the influence of liquor and in a quarrelsome mood. Mrs. Hamilton ordered her out, but she refused to go. Mrs. Hamilton then summoned the landlady, who caused the Donnelly woman to be ejected from the premises. A few minutes later, a few minutes, and was put out a second time.

She returned again and began to talk in a very offensive way to Mrs. Hamilton. The landlady then came in and told her she had caught up a knife which her husband used in hunting expeditions and plunged it into the abdomen of the Donnelly woman, inflicting

He is not clear yet whether he had his back turned when his wife used the knife or whether he became paralyzed from fright and could not muster up courage to interfere.

The Wound Pronounced Fatal.

He was arrested with his wife and locked up. Two physicians arrived at the cottage soon after the stabbing and they pronounced the wound fatal.

Mrs. Hamilton and her husband were arraigned before Judge Irving in the afternoon.

Husband was still much excited, while her husband was calm and seemed to feel his position. At the preliminary hearing Mrs. Hamilton stated that she did not use the knife until the Donnelly woman attacked her and she feared her life was in danger. The blood stained knife was produced, and it proved to be a regular hunting knife with a handle of polished birch five inches in length. Hamilton said that the knife belonged to his sporting outfit, and that he had purchased it for use in his hunting expeditions.

Mrs. Hamilton Committed to Jail.

Judge Irving committed Mrs. Hamilton to jail without bail to await the result of Mary Ann Donnelly's injuries. Her husband was also committed as a witness. Mrs. Hamilton

Hamilton stated that he was busy packing his trunk and was not normally sworn in to enter the room, and he did not notice his wife with the knife in her hand until it was too late to do anything.

The Donnelly women, who are 45 years of age, are in a very low state of mind. They are very nervous. The Hamiltons are well-to-do people, and are respectively connected in New York and in England.

Robert Ray Hamilton was for eight years a member of the New York legislature from the district of Westchester county, and was a son of Gen. Schuyler Hamilton, a grandson of John C. Hamilton, author of a "Life of George Washington," and a nephew of Alexander Hamilton, the secretary of the treasury.

Hamilton was married to a Miss Donnelly in the duel with Aaron Burr. He is a member of the New York bar, the possessor of an estate of $25,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The trial of the six men indicted for the murder of Dr. Patrick Henry, began this morning at 10 o'clock in the court room. Two hours and a half later the trial was adjourned until 2 o'clock. Thus an adjournment was taken until today, the first day of the trial.

The testimony of the witnesses, and the arguments of the defendants will be made as they come. It is not thought that Judge McConnel will grant the motion for a continuance until the 29th, and the motions and arguments may last until Friday.

A Big Cuckoo.—The report, published by good authority and partially confirmed at Combsville that the E. C. Frick Cuckoo company had been successful in securing the sale of the Cuckoo plant for the purchase of the Wheeler plant of 100 acres, the Morrell plant of 100 acres and the Cuckoo plant of 100 acres. The reason given for the sale by the Cuckoo firm from the Cuckoo plant was that the Cuckoo plant was too small to be sold as cheaply as it can make the fuel.
