

The Weather.
The weather promises to be generally fair and calm.

Help Home Trade.
We trust our readers will fully appreciate the efforts of our local merchants to merit a share of their patronage, and will give them the hearty support which they contribute largely towards making Plainfield the charming city it is, and we believe all will admit that they are entitled to utmost favor from our own people.

It will cost you no more, and we are sure it will do you more good to help home trade.

BREVITIES.
—Washington weather prediction—Cold was promised for to-morrow.
—Special Christmas services were held in the Episcopal churches yesterday.
—The advertisement of the United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association.
—Missionaries from New York will conduct the services in Reform Hall to-morrow evening.
—Several of the saloons of this city closed up about three o'clock yesterday afternoon.
—The Rev. Dr. J. J. Yerkes, will preach to-morrow morning in the First Baptist church a sermon especially appropriate to Christmas, and the music by the choir will be unusually fine.
—The time was held Wednesday evening at the opening of the wheelmen's quarters which the popular captain of the Bicycle Club, Mr. Frank L. O'Meara, has started on Park avenue.
—Two men were arrested last evening for causing a disturbance in the meeting of the Salvation Army. This morning Judge Codrington fined one fifteen dollars and the other one twenty dollars.
—The Sunday-school of the German Reformed church held its Christmas celebration last evening. The exercises were a very pleasant one. During the evening the children received their Christmas presents from the Christmas tree.
—Charles Evans and John Smith were arrested last evening by Borough Marshal Thomas Rathbun charged with being drunk and disorderly.
—A couple of countrymen who had come in town for a good time, and in getting it had spent all their money. They were repulsed and let go.
—The first subscription concert of the Choral Society will occur on Monday, December 28, when the Oratorio of "Messiah" will be rendered with the following soloists: Mrs. Seavary C. Ford, soprano; Miss Emily Wisniet, contralto; Mr. William Deane, tenor; Mr. C. A. Duff, bass; and an orchestra from the New York Philharmonic Club.
—Our local merchants—particularly those of the Park avenue side—advertisers—seem very happy over their successful holiday season, and are discharging their duties very correctly, for their help. They all have had a very successful season. One store, that of Mr. J. G. Allen, had even the show windows cleaned off the dirt which had been on them since the proprietor's face fairly radiant with Christmas cheer and Christmas money.

—A young man, at the corner of Front and Park streets, was passing, when he was accosted by a woman who made some insulting remark to a colored woman who was passing, which he rebuffed by telling her to mind her own business. The young man was intoxicated. Yesterday morning, he visited an artist's studio where he had been painting. He told the artist that he had been painting for some time, but that when he was awakened in the night he found his face covered with paint. He told the artist that he had been painting for some time, but that when he was awakened in the night he found his face covered with paint.

Christmas Services.
Christmas was appropriately observed in the Catholic churches in this city and Plainfield.

St. Mary's church was beautifully decorated in honor of the occasion. During the morning there were four services. The first was at 8 o'clock, the second at 10 o'clock, the third at 12 o'clock, and the fourth at 8 o'clock. The church was filled with people, and the services were very successful.

Dying under the Grip.
Mr. Thomas Parkinson of Westerville avenue is so seriously ill with pneumonia that his death is expected at any moment. A few days ago when he was in the hospital he was attended by several doctors, but he has not improved. He is now in the hospital, and his condition is very serious.

A Row on Front Street.
About ten o'clock Thursday morning two persons whose names we are unable to ascertain engaged in a fight at the corner of Front and Somerset streets. The police succeeded in quelling the disturbance. No arrests were made.

First Kiss in Spoken Year.
A double quotation from St. Mary's church choir visited Westerville yesterday morning and sang High Mass and benediction. For the first time in sixteen years the services were celebrated in the Catholic church in this place.

WHAT A TURKEY DID.

MR. TERRY BREAKS HIS ARM CHASING A LIVELY CHRISTMAS DINNER.

After playing tag in the hen-coop and yard this turkey flew up a tree—its hungry admirer climbed after it—A Branch Broken and He Had a Disastrous Fall.

THE RESULT of a three round catch-as-catch-can match between a well-to-do turkey and a young man, Mr. Terry, who is a turkey, was a broken arm.

Mr. Terry decided to have a turkey dinner Christmas day, and Thursday evening went to the hen-coop and yard to select his prize.

The turkey was a very lively one, and Mr. Terry was having a very hard time of it. He was finally forced to give up, and the turkey was taken to the kitchen.

MADE BY PATENT INSURANCE. THE PARK CLUB'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Baumeister's Lung Penetrated by a Pistol Bullet.

Wednesday afternoon a farmer named Baumeister, a resident of Warrenville, and a friend were engaged unloading a car of hay. The shooting of the barn in which they were putting the hay away was rotten and gave away.

Mr. Baumeister was thrown headlong from the hay when the barn gave away, and his friend was using a pistol which he was using to shoot at the hay.

He did not at the time think that he was seriously injured, but after a few moments he fainted away. He was carried into the house and a physician was called. The doctor dressed the unfortunate man's wounds, but says he does not think he will recover from his injuries.

WE SLEW A BARONESS.

Bold Murder by a Brutal Burglar in Paris.

HER HEAD WAS ALMOST SEVERED.

The Assassin Was Surprised While Robbing the Dead Woman's Apartment and Was Killed by Her Son.

PARIS, Dec. 25.—The reigning sensation in Paris is the arrest of Lieutenant Annet, a retired army officer, on the charge of the murder of the Baroness de Deland. Annet was subjected to a preliminary examination at the prefecture of police, and, after denying that he was guilty, was released. The baroness was shot on the afternoon of Dec. 2, seated in the salon of her apartment on the first floor of the large and fully furnished house which she occupied with her son at 40 Boulevard de Temple. At that hour a young man of slight build, elegantly dressed, wearing a high hat and carrying a lawyer's portfolio under his arm, entered the house and asked the porter where the apartment of the baroness was situated, and went up to the room and rang the bell.

The Servant Girl's Alarm. Five or six minutes later Delphine Hume, a servant employed by the baroness, violently opened the window of the latter's dining room, which opened into the courtyard, and saw a man standing in the street and pointing at the porch or arched way leading into the street, she cried in choking tones, "The assassin is here!" The poor servant girl had a deep wound in her throat, from which the blood was pouring. She fell back, and the assassin, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache, immediately attended to the murderess, and was able to leave the baroness's apartment without being detected. The assassin was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

The Barons' Threat. Men while Delphine climbed down stairs to the street, the assassin was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

The Assassin's Story. When Delphine, a strong country girl, recovered sufficiently to answer questions put to her by the police, she was able to give a full and complete account of the crime. She said that the assassin was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

Caught in the Act. While riding the assassin to the murder was interrupted by the unexpected return of the servant, Delphine Hume. Delphine Hume, a servant employed by the baroness, violently opened the window of the latter's dining room, which opened into the courtyard, and saw a man standing in the street and pointing at the porch or arched way leading into the street, she cried in choking tones, "The assassin is here!"

A Hand of Assassins. Delphine could not describe the murderer, but she said that he was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

The Distinguished Victim. The murdered woman belonged to a most distinguished family. Her father, General Baron Deland, was in command of the army of the old guard of France. Baron Deland was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

The Murderer Confesses. Annet has confessed that he had every reason for being grateful to the baroness and her son. He said that he was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

Killed in a Carriage. The man of New York, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.

BABY MYKE AS A POST.

He Resists to His Groupings, the Post.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—Master Benjamin Harrison McKee was the most important member of the group of the grandsons of the late President Harrison. He was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache. He was seen by the porter, who was a man of middle age, with a high forehead, a prominent nose, and a mustache.
