

TODEMANTHE REPEAL
OF THE INFAMOUS RACE TRACK BILL.

Citizens from all Over the State to Meet at Trenton—A Large Delegation Expected from Plainfield.

Citizens from all parts of New Jersey are joining in a general uprising against the recent enacted race track laws at Trenton. The following has just been issued by Mayor Gilbert:

Plainfield, February 26th, 1893.

A mass meeting of citizens from all parts of the State has been called to meet at the State House, Trenton, on Wednesday, March 1st, at noon, to demand of our legislators the repeal of the race-track bills. A large delegation is expected from Plainfield. All citizens interested in the movement who are unable to attend in person are requested to send their representatives from this city. Those who respond to this call this day are hereby constituted members of the Committee which I, as chairman of Sunday's meeting, was authorized to appoint.

A. QUAKER, Chairman.

Since the above was written word has been received by telegram that both Houses have adjourned to attend the inauguration March 4th.

The above means that the race track gamblers are trying to balk the people in having their laws repealed, hoping that by the time they re-assemble the opposition will have spent its strength.

BRITANNIA

—Gazette Engine Company will hold a meeting to-morrow evening to select a new team of drivers.

—To-night the Park Club bowlers will roll a game in the series with the Crawford Club.

A SERMON TO YOUNG MEN

THE FIRST OF A SERIES DELIVERED SUNDAY EVENING.

By the Rev. Chas. E. Herring, at the First Presbyterian Church, on "Joseph, the Discreet Young Man," A Sermon Discourse.

The first of the series of sermons for young men, delivered by the Rev. Chas. E. Herring at the First Presbyterian Church, was held Sunday evening. The subject was "Joseph, the Discreet Young Man."

The pastor said, in substance, speaking of "Joseph, the Discreet Young Man," "The Lord was with Joseph and he was a prosperous man. And yet if the world of his day had fallen while he was in that Egyptian dungeon we should have seen the evidence of God's presence. For thirteen weary years' bondage did not seem to smother his soul. He was a man of God, and he was a man of God."

RECTOR JENNINGS HAS A HEARING.

The Trouble Between Him and His Church Discussed.

The trouble between Rev. J. B. Jennings, pastor of Grace Episcopal church, and his vestry and congregation was discussed yesterday in Elizabeth. In the lecture room of Christ Church, the General Synod Committee of the Episcopal church in New Jersey had been called to order by Rev. Mr. Jennings for a final hearing which had been held on the 15th inst., and the hearing was held for yesterday.

Reverend Jennings was present, Rev. Mr. Jennings and the vestrymen whom he is at odds' point were also there. The committee, composed of members from this city and Elizabeth, was in the chair. Vestrymen Elmer Foster and Gale represented the West-held church.

Several witnesses were examined and Rector Jennings was heard in his own defense, while Bishop Scarborough related the complaint lodged with him against the rector, who alleged the rector had been guilty of a grosser fault. The session lasted nearly two hours. The committee reserved its decision.

Seven members of the committee were present, Rev. A. B. Baker, of Princeton, was in the chair. Vestrymen Elmer Foster and Gale represented the West-held church.

Howard enjoyed the unique distinction of being the only General of the North in the South during the reconstruction period. He will give some interesting facts in connection with his

EDITORIAL NOTES

When the Prince of Wales, his sister and the attached wife of his son are among the first to congratulate Gladstone on his great speech introducing the bill for home rule for Ireland, it is not impossible to see toward which side the political principles of the next king of England tend.

It is a marvellous triumph for the aged conqueror, Verill, that at the age of 78 he has been able to produce an opera equal to that of his prime. A credit to his efforts of his prime. A credit to his efforts of his prime. A credit to his efforts of his prime.

There are 23 different tribes in the Indian Territory, with appellations number enough and unique enough to make it impossible to list all the tribes that mean nothing in America; neither will they be any need of using names that have already been applied to a dozen different positions in the old states.

Farmers' Heads.
A phlegmatic informant says that the average rural head is about an inch less than the average city head—that is, contains half an inch less brain. We repeat the bare insinuation with our interest. Nevertheless, if anything could make one believe in the superiority of the city head, it would be the fact that at a certain meeting in favor of the agrarian individual road and said that the whole movement for decent highways in that state was instigated by a certain bicycle manufacturer, and all he wanted was to get sale for more of his machines. "Now," says the speaker in conclusion, "and the fact that the farmers of this community pay for good roads just for their bicycle fables!"

That farmer's skill was small, any, or he would have known the bad roads of this country the average city farmer themselves not less than $250,000 a year. Wasted time, expense of additional horses, loss of the highest market price for their produce on account of late arrival, roads and wear and tear of wagons and human beings are some of the items of this lost money. Happily the governors of all the western states are of good opinion of the farmer, and without exception recommended in their messages this year thorough measures to that end. One good immediate step might be the passage of laws requiring the heavy horse to be kept in a state of greater breadth, the breadth to be specified by the law. So it is in France, which has the finest country roads in the world, that the farmer will be one of the best of the state.

Tasting Inheritance.
Mr. Max West discusses this question in the Review of Reviews. Mr. Max West is in favor of a tax on dead men's estates, to be paid by the heirs who may take possession of such property. The law would pay the expenses of the probate court and some other government expenses also. Mr. West would, however, exempt from the inheritance tax the estate of a person who leaves a widow and children, excepting her grown sons, who are able to earn their own living. It is only fair to say, though, that many individuals quite as well as the state, Mr. Max West would not even touch a tax on inheritances, calling it an outrage, "robbing dead men," etc. But Mr. West says elsewhere that most men would rather pay their taxes after they are dead than when they are alive.

New York has an inheritance tax law and under it derived from the estate of Jay Gould $700,000. Several states have laws taxing bequests to relatives other than husband, wife or children. This law calls taxing collateral inheritances. In New York the tax on inheritances falling to direct heirs was passed till 1891, so that if Mr. Gould had died two years ago his children would not have had to pay the $700,000. The law imposes 1 percent tax on the net value of personal property. If they had lived in England, the Goulds would have had to pay nearly $3,000,000 in the Australian province of Victoria or the Canadian province of Ontario, more than $2,500,000.

All the countries of Europe except Sweden and Portugal are mentioned by Mr. West as having inheritance taxes. Some exempt direct heirs from such taxation, others do not. Some have progressive inheritance taxes—that is, the larger the estate the higher the rate that is levied. This would work as a deterrent to persons from becoming millionaires, because the tax would not come till after they were dead. In truth, they would rather enjoy knowing that some relative who they did not like would have to pay a good round sum for getting their money. Mr. West mentions that, oddly enough, persons with diversity of views the widest favor this method of paying public expense. Andrew Carnegie and Edward H. Bellamy advocate it. Likewise the Knights of Labor. Carnegie wrote four years ago, "Of all forms of taxation, this seems to be the wisest."

CONGRESS ON THE RUSH

The Sherman Amendment Referred Without Debate.

GENERAL SWAIN FAILS IN HIS CASE
Speaker Crisp Calls the House a "Dead End."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—There was a good deal of interest manifested when the house entered on the last legislative work of the session. Many important measures were just awaiting action. Mr. Poe (Ark.) was the first gentleman to catch the speaker's eye, and he moved the passage of the Indian appropriation bill under consideration of the rules. There was no objection to the measure, but it was made a pivot around which circled a general discussion of the anti-trust bill. Mr. Poe's motion having been agreed to, a discussion of the Sherman amendment to the anti-trust bill was introduced. The speaker warmly, but finally all the amendments to the measure were now before the house, and the bill was sent to conference.

When the speaker of the house entered the hall to lead a "dead end" rally for the anti-trust bill, the speaker was very great, and it was a dead end rally. The speaker was very great, and it was a dead end rally. The speaker was very great, and it was a dead end rally.

OLNEY'S PICTURE AT LAST.

The New Attorney General Was Caught On His Feet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The evening on which Mr. Cleveland announced the appointment of Elihu Root to the cabinet, the newspapers have been busy every day to get a photograph of the new attorney general. The New York Herald went so far Sunday as to say that Mr. Olney had been taken by the press on his feet. The picture was taken by the press on his feet.
