A crowd of armed men also gathered there and hanged them as participants in the conspiracy.

Matthew Jackson also testified that Rufus Broyles, a well known negro of the neighborhood, had furnished the money to try the police, and after the first hanging, he hid away and eluded discovery until Wednesday. He was seen at Woodruff's, and was taken to the gallows. On Thursday morning his dead body was found hanging to a limb. He was the last of the four to be hanged, and the grand jury was in session in the morning investigating the case.
