MR. WILSON'S TURN NOW!

Quenching Butterworth's Eloquence With Cold Logic.

BRILLIANT PLEA OF THE MAJOR.

Mr. Butler took to his bed last night, and was unable to attend the trial of the case of Butterworth v. Wilson. The case was argued by the Major.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The defense of Colonel Breckinridge which Ben Butterworth made is considered even by his opponents to have been one of the best ever made in a Washington court.

Mr. Butterworth was persuasive, dramatic, was friendly, conciliatory and ardent. Whether he was contending to make to be seen when the 13 men who are to pass upon the case return their verdict on Saturday night, for the Major's speech was made when they were called upon to decide.

Mr. Butler was saying today that if the jury hangs fire, Colonel Breckinridge can thank the eloquence of his winning Quaker friend from Ohio. Particularly in this the expression of the lawyers who heard the speech, and it was probably the finest ever made in the Supreme Court.

Through all the speaking the white-haired member of Congress from Kentucky was not only effective, but he was also very effective. That his style is different from Mr. Butler's is probably well known to all, but he could hardly be called a poor speaker.

Advancing to the life of the pair in Washington, he represented that Colonel Breckinridge was one of the best men in Congress, without time for the constant association with his wife Miss Pollard had described. He thought that the attorneys for the plaintiff had been skillful in pushing to the front the few calamitous changes in her life.

Mr. Blackburn was an estimable and cultured lady, but she had been imposed upon by the man who had been the friend of Miss Pollard, moved by a generous impulse to protect a Kentucky girl, but he had introduced Miss Pollard to the lady.

It was not until Colonel Breckinridge had met Miss Pollard away from her, but he had no more power to lead her than the lawyer had to guide a cyclone by its tail. Mrs. Blackburn had naturally felt indignant at having been imposed upon, and she had confided some of her feelings to her husband.

It was out of the range of possibility that these things could have happened to the circumstanced. Miss Pollard had told Mrs. Blackburn that they were engaged, and Colonel Breckinridge was obliged to go down with her and disengage them. A marriage was impossible and infamous. The other lawyer had expressed horror because the pair had lied. The two were in the house of lying at that time.

The course of these two was justified and modified because their deception injured no one and extricated a family from ruin," said Mr. Butterworth. "It was to rescue a man, to rescue a woman, to open her a better life, and it was more than justified."

Beginning his conclusion, the lawyer told the jury that the inherent principle arising from the course of human nature was to be considered more deeply than the divorce law, which is only a technical question was not whether William C. F. Breckinridge had violated any ordinance, but whether he had been guilty of a crime.

WINNOWN WIRINGS.

Colombia players induce the proposed national series. The (Kane) school officers are charged with leaving letters. In the house of Lord the Bering on bill was read for the second time.

A female triathlete of the industrial army is being raised in Oakland, Cal. The British government will soon declare a prohibition of wine.

Kelly's industrial army captured a tramp at Evanston, Wis., and is holding him. It is alleged that Russell B. Paine, confidential bookkeeper of the Wells Fargo company, Saginaw, Mich., stole $20,000 in bonds.

Highways attempted to rob Henry C. Hamilton, a foreman in the Pennsylvania railroad shops in Jersey City, and one of them was captured. The trustees of the estate of Lady Henry Somerset are petitioning the courts for an injunction to restrain her from closing all the saloons on her estates.

Mrs. Dominguez Arraigned. LEROY, N. Y., April 13.—Mrs. Veronica Dominguez, the Polish woman who shot and killed the Italian Prince several days ago while he was attempting to assassinate her, was arraigned here by the coroner's jury.

Drowned in the Flood. WILMINGTON, Del., April 13.—Joseph Hoyerberg and Harvey Foster of Dover, who were camping on the bay shore, have been drowned. Their shanty was swept several hundred feet by the flood.

Overcome by Threatening Mountaineers. Full of Whiskey. LANSING, Pa., April 13.—The tramp from Chalk Hill to this point was one of great suffering for the members of the commonwealth. While the storm was in its measure, the depth of snow on the ground was working a burden, and the slope for rest demanded by man and beast were frequent. The hiker in wagons were unhitched at intervals.

There were many mountaineers down here to view the commotion, and there was an ugly look about. Mountain deer, forest like water, and the water were in a proper state for conflict. The mountaineers were excited over the army and water, and the only licensed saloon in the place is near the camp, and the hiker was passed with a lavish hand. Such was the feeling that Marshall Brown called upon the army to centrally about the use of liquor and avoid any possible conflict.

The next camp will be called "General Grant" and will be at Graterville. Brown said that the army was in a proper state for conflict. WILLIE WILDE WEDS. Mrs. Frank Leslie's Divorced Husband Is Again Married. LONDON, April 13.—Mr. Willie Wilde, formerly the husband of Mrs. Frank Leslie, was secretly married a few days ago to a young lady named Miss Leslie. The bride is described as being young, beautiful, rich, and of high social position. She is the granddaughter of Mr. Thomas Orion of Merton, near Dublin.

Mr. Wilde claims that his marriage is legal, and that he is entitled to the authority of a chief registrar regarding his position. In an interview Mr. Wilde said that for untunately he did not take out citizenship papers during his residence in New York. He added: "The American courts have no jurisdiction over me. I allowed the action brought against me by Mrs. Leslie to go by default. The New York court said I would not be allowed to marry again, but I advised that this decision is not binding on me. Possibly I might have trouble if I did."

Arrested by the Police. A man named John Smith was arrested by the police on suspicion of being involved in a recent robbery. He was held in custody and is awaiting trial.

WILLIE WILDE. WENT back to New York state, but nowhere else in America. I have no present intention of going to the United States. It was Mrs. Leslie's desire that I should not marry. She is still in frequent communication with my mother, Lady Wilde, but I do not desire to say anything against Mrs. Leslie. We simply did not get on together. I saw her in London that she is still my wife. Our interview was friendly, but we have not corresponded with each other.

The wished to condemn me to a life of loneliness, but I am a man of the world. I am married, and my marriage, which was solemnized on Jan. 11, was kept secret. I have been married for some time. I have a family of my wife and a few intimate friends were cognizant of the event. The arrangements for the marriage were attended to by my wife's mother, Lady Wilde, and my brother Oscar.

Mr. Wilde concluded by saying, "As for the rumour that Mrs. Leslie stated when she was in London that she is still my wife. I can say that that question has been logically and legally disposed of."

Steppe Mock To the Ground. NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 13.—The Mock To the ground, the male blue over the steppes of St. Michael's Episcopal church. It fell from the roof of the church and was seen by the church, and its point sank several feet into the ground. The steppes broke off and stood the down, to look in the ground and its line in the air.
