As the flyers we distributed before the election pointed out in 1979 80 the K 8 budget was $4.751.687. Remember this figure' Between 1979 and now we have closed two schools, we went from double digit inflation to almost none, fuel oil and gas prices are down; there has been a dramatic reduction in student enroltment requiring these school closings, and over these years education ha been neither "thorough" nor "efficient"" Today's propos-

We will begin today to encourage all the voters, who did not vote, especially parents, to join the winning team and make the total number of votes cast next year, the largest ever. Again, my thanks to all who voted, camoninged and orked to add VALUE to our schools, our homes and our community.

Eugene M. Warga VALUE chairperson

The major objective of the Commission is to stimulate activity by organizations and individuals in every state, that will heighten our awareness and deepen our appreciation of our Constitution and the rights and freedoms it guarantees. Information on Cor red programs has been sent to Sixth District municspainties, libraries and school districts, and I look forward to working with local residents in developing these programs for the Bierntennial observance. Each of us should become involved in this special celebration, because the Constitution affects all of our aily lives. For two centuries - through civil strife and world war, through good times and bad - the Constitu ion has endured as a shining example of government "By the People" for the entire world.

Americans - particularly young Americans, who are tomorrow's leaders - should be aware of the creation and hentage of the Constitution because that knowledge is their responsibility under the constitution. The U.S. onstitution is th oldest written instrument of national government in the world. Two thirds of the world's cor titutions have been adopted since 1970, and only 15 predate World War II.

The Bicentennial offers an opportunity to celebrate the constitution not only for the role it has played in American history, but for its significance to modern government. The Constitution is as relevant today as a was to our founding fathers. It helps define us as a people. its revolutionary concepts of freedom and justice have rought millions of people to our shores seeking a better year of a five-year oclebration of the writing and ratifica-tion of the Constitution, the founding of the Federal ent under the constitution, and the adoption and atification of the Bill of Rights. These Bicentennial observances present a chance for Americans to reaffirm the principles for which the Con-
