Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 25.-Yale and Harvard are playing for football honors here this afternoon. The field is muddy after a stendy rain, although a deep covering of straw was used to prevent a soggy turf. In the stadium are about 40,000 partisans of the two universities. The Yale team came over from Auburndale to Cambridge this morning. The Harvard team held its last practice in the rain. The varsity men : slipped and stumbled about for threequarters-of-an hour. -About the time! the varsity had finished its work on signals more than 800 undergraduates and 200 Harvard alumni came marching down to the field behind a band. All expected to see their team and to cheer it before the departure for the country, where the team spent last night. The team, however, had returned to the locker building, but rather than disappoint the big crowd Coach EX-SENATOR DRYDEN DEAD Haughton sent his players out on to the field again, and they ran the length of the playing field and back.
