which was apparently acknowledged by President Hayes, who said:

"I am sorry to learn that you have been compelled to do this."

The letter was written at the time of the trial of Mrs. Hayes, who had been indicted for the death of her son, James A. Hayes.

The trial was held in New York City, and the Hayeses were accused of having plotted to kill the boy, who had been born with a deformity of the brain.

The trial was a long and exciting one, and the Hayeses were found guilty of the crime.

The Hayeses were sentenced to life imprisonment, and they have been confined in Sing

Spurlock Prison ever since.

The Hayeses are now in the hands of the State of New York, and they are serving their sentences in the state prison at Albion, N. Y.
