EVERY DOG MAN HIN DAY Recevelt's curt comment on certain results of the recent elections is: "Every dog has his day, but the nights belong to the cate." Since the pipetion in New York, newspapers that are the most bitterly opposed to him personally have lampooned him to an extent seldom witnessed after an election has been decided. They have held him responsible for the Benetlican defeat in the State and declare that he is knocked out. When you some to mainives the facts the defeat is not as great as it would appear. If the plurality for Dia was on a par with the Demogratic plurality is new Jersey in proportion to the voting population it would be 200,000. New, it might be asked how far the influence of Roosevelt served to reduce the ante for Dix. The feeling over the high prices was exhibited in all the mate elections. In Fennsylvania the Republican loss was vasily greater than that in New York. In Philadelphia alone the Republican falling off was 50,000, It seems rather far-fatched, therefore, to assert that the defeat is new York was due to opposition throughout the State to Recease it personally, When he save that every dog has his day he is looking shead.
