that have been given breadth and purpose there are women's political clubs a simult every town in the state, not for the securement of offices, but for intelligent study of measures, conditions and remedics. Legislators and public men have come to regard it as a privilege to appear before these organizations.--- And when this permission is granted, it is not in the interests of candidacios or schemes, but out of a desire to get a clearer understanding of some pending of proposed measure. Contrary to the general belief, women have proved notoriously slow in giving their approval and supportfi but, once committed, their enthusiasm knows no bounds.... ficial position in Colorado is entirely raceable to the voting woman's own nitial desire; -- After -- equal--suffragehad been granted there in 1898, there was a tacit agreement, a sort of "unwritten isw," that women should not rush into office-seeking. The attitude proceeded from two causes.

In the first place, equal suffrage came to Colorado in peace and perfect amity. The pioneers, by virtue of that freedom from conservatism won by life in the open, gave the ballot because they deemed it their duty and woman's right. As far back as 1870, Cerritorial Governor Edward McCook bodied these words in a message t legislature: "Our higher civiliztion has recognized woman's equality with man in all respects save one-equal suffrage. It has been said hat no great reform has ever been made without passing through three tages---ridicule, argument and adopon. It rests with you to say whether Colorado will accept this reform in its first stage, as our sister territory of yoming has done, or in the last; whether she will be a leader in the novement or a follower; for the logic of a progressive civilization leads to the inevitable result of an equal suf-

1893, but while there was vigor ous championship in the meantime advocacy was purely argumentative and entirely unmarked by violent agitation. Equal suffrage's majority was thousand. And research disclosed reasons as chiefly contributory ) the victory; that women are usualsubject to the law: that the denial justice to half the human race rould be a detriment to the whole, as experience has proved that under a partially representative government the lives and interests of the unrepreented always suffer; that it was peculiarly the province of the woman to after the home, and that the modhome could not be thoroughly ked after except through the law: hat men alone were as unfit to legielate for women as women alone would be untit to legislate for men. that ] was both insulting and degrading to obtlinue the classification of women with "Indiana, idiots, innetica, paupers." ----This fairness on the part of the men, combined with an absence of "suffragetting," brought Colorado women into the new order without bitterness, resentment, or the fanatical seal that brutal opposition always kindles. As a consequence, they were content with the ballot, speedily engrossed in its good use, and entirely disregardful of pood use, and entirely differential of office. But while there has been no office-sesking, women have not shiring re-mension to the mean first mind cause to the conclusion first office
