But respectability is an essential in business and society, and these people are willing to buy it at stipulated prices." Dr. Aked felt himself being stifled in this atmosphere, and he has resigned his pastorate in the hope of finding some field where he can do something better than give distinction to sham service. An interesting problem arises:---

This is an age of progression. Never in the history of mankind was the world so busy throwing away the useless things. There is a widespread disposition to clear away deadwood. Humanity nowadays, has an interest only in the things that are serviceable. Show the people that an institution gives no service, and they turn away from it.
