and the future of the city itself by passing a Track Elevation Ordinance to suit the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and ignoring the wishes of the people of Rahway.

These are the men who ignored the pleadings of the citizens of Rahway, whose interests they are sworn to protect, and voted to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company the most valuable franchise that tis city ever had or ever will have.

Of these nine men, three are employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad, one is the son of an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and still another in close business relations with the company. Of another it is reported he has been promised a lot of business by the Pennsylvania Railroad if the ordinance went through as they wanted it.

These are the men who ignorantly believe that they are far greater than all the other citizens of Rahway combined, and in their ignorance have saddled themselves with a responsibility that the man of average civic intelligence would shudder at. She will study the trees and the various bees

With her mind all intent on their right

oretelling the pleasure, in bountiful measure

Holen Wright is so quiet, no one will deny it,

In the future while the real daysdo pass.

Music she'll study from the morn till the eye

She will play in great halls and 30 fm nous balls

For Dukes, Counts, Princes and Kings

She will gain wide renoun all the world 'round

She studies 'tis true, but she cares for it not,

And dance all the night 'neath the gleam of the light

She leads in our meetings, she gives all the greetings

She smiles all the time with expression sublime

For the fanciful men; but she'll come back again.

Class Poem, R. H. S. 1911

By Dies Elsie Durand

- School-days are now most ended And the time for parting is near: the time when we leave our classmatees

And-all our teachers dear. We know not what may befall Out in the world-so wide, But ne'er will we stop and falter When the right is on our side. The years have passed by quickly, And now we find them gone. But we'll always cherish the memory

As the years rush on and on. For we never flunked in our lessons We knew them every day Our hearts were ever happy And our manner always gay Once we were only "reshmen

And thru all that awful year voices shook and trembled And our hearts were filled with fear in the next September Our silly fears had passed r we grow to the ranks of Sonhomores. and against freshmen then were massed our Junior year we were proud indeed, Of our class of seventeen. it we loved our class and our studies too Was very plainly seen now for a Whole long year we've be Grave seniors, so learned and wise, hat we ought to wear wigs on the top of our heads, And spectacles over our even Now we are ready to leave Rahway High And enter the trials of the world And boldly we fare, free from trouble and care

With spirits serene and unsoiled But eleven are we, yet before we shall leave It is I as the poet of the class Who will tell of the deeds, of the sorrows and needs ls our president, glorious Frank. ic's alone with the girls, with their dresses and curls-He's the head of our classical rank-Now he goes with girls but in years that will come He will spurn them as if they were snuff-For in old Rahway High as the hours went by Of the lasses he's had quite enough.

So in years that will come, by they sorrow or glum, He will never a Maid see to marry-But he'll go to the West, where in pleasure and ret A burden serene he will carryfor a lawyer he'll be out in Reno you see.-Where among all the practical whirls will help all the men who will come to him, then,

To get a divorce from the girls. e next in the line comes our Jennie so fine, She sits there with all of the oth ares for us all, be we little or small And treats us as sisters-and brothers.

And so all her study's not vain, e future she'll use it, and nevr abuse it-Altho it be sunshine or rain. ennie will go in the year that is next To the school down at dear old Trenton, re happy she'll be, as the days by her flee-With her schoolmates, her studies-and fun. low Jennie we'll leave and take tall Susie Schive The giant of our number, we call her, rules over all, she's so terribly tall-May no accident ever befall her:

lives on a farm, free from trouble and harm She studies in old Rahway High ry night back home with the chickens to roam She travels with never a sigh-Susie so tall, is the one of us all To whom Fame has called, not in vain is learned and true, and she'll never be blue The troubles come gain and againthe thought of our classmates are noble and grand She goes to her country home then. While we idle our time, she's composing in rhyme book on "The Life of a Hen."

comes Henrietta, we couldn't find better Altho' we should search all the world, dudent is she of the highest degree-Her record is clean and unsolledwalks quite a way, when she journeys to school She lives by the river, they sayand the she may hurry and flutter and flurry-She's ten minutes late every day.

a vain do we talk of the length of her walk Of the reasons for starting quite early ie still broke the rule about coming to school-Tho' the teachers became rather suriyt in years that shall be, Henriettawill change And she will be right on the dot-When the clock tolls the hour of midnight or dawn Henrietta will be on the spot.

The next one to-night whom we'll bring to light Is Evelyn, happy and gayo journeys to school and she keeps every rule, And her actions are really blase', le laughs, it is true, like the rest of the girls She giggles in Chemistry too, t still free from care, she is happyand fair-

And earnest and friendly and true. Sunday she goes in her very bestclother To list to the sermon in church, walks out the door, then she worries no more For she never is left in the lurch lives in the street where the calm river flows Where flowers bloom, healthy and free These Evelyn shall love in the days that shall For an aid to a florist she'll be.

ow a rhyme there shall be for our friend Eather D. the is quiet and gentle and kind I could search thru the world, and never a girl Such as she is could you ever findvoice is as low as the breeze that doth blow And her smile beams for everyone here the Botany class, she is ever the lass Who of Zero has never a fear. n years that will follow, be they brim full or hollow-

Jur Esther will happy 'ere beas a trained nurse—she will cure e'en the work Away down south in Chilid all whom she meets, and with her smile gree

Will wish to be sick, so they can

Be soothed by her voice and be made to rejoice Thus, classmates so dear, I have told of you all. in the beauty of her heart and hand. Our school-days are over at last The laugh and the sigh have forever gone by From Eather we go to Anna, you know

And our days in the High School are past. Whose hair is as black as the night But still they shall live in our hearts unforgot Sach day in her lesson, she was always confessir The days of the freedom and rule That she had not studied a mite-But well did we know: that where'er she did go She always was perfect and best-And that she was bluffin' and the rest only stuffin'

And these we shall foster in years that shall come Our memories—our class—and our school.

Dear Amy:

Don't you think that lots of parents do their children a wrong by not fixing up a beautiful home for them? I think nothing has such a refining influence upon children as a lovely furnished home; it is a necessary part of their education; it fills their minds with beautiful pictures and pleasant thoughts of home. I'm going to see that my children grow up in the proper home atmos phere, I feel like I owe this also to my husband and to myself.
