NEW ENGLAND SUITED FOR BEEF CATTLE by S. F. Dorrance Department of Agriculture Augusta, Maine

War veterans or defense worker New England should-consider the 3, F. Dorrance S. F. Dorrance possibility of raising beef cattle in their programs. Low land values in many sections and generally good grass available in summer offer unlimited possibilities in the beef cattle field. Our New England type of soil provides as good pasture in summer as can be found anywhere. Drouths are not so severe, and climatic conditions are favorable. With these conditions, roughages can be grown economically and at low overhead cost. Expensive winter housing quarters are not so necessary as for other livestock. Our markets should prove a definite asset to beef raisers, as the demand for beef is many, many more times the amount raised here at present. Already we have quite a number of well established herds of registered beef cattle which will provide an excellent source for commercial cattle men to buy their herd bulls, also to those who wish

> Safe Protection For Your Precious Furs

Let us relieve you of one worry in these busy days. From the time we receive your precious furs until they come back to you in the Fall, they are safe in our scientifically frigid storage vaultssafe from summer heat and humidity; safe from the ravages of moths; safe from fire and theft.

And-each fur receives special care before it is hung away for the summer. It is inspected by experts; air-blown free of dust and dirt; brushedand combed; then placed on an individual hanger Don't take chances. Bring your furs to us early ... it's smart-it's patriotic to conserve.
