Judging Producing Ability of Heifer Calves by W. W. Swett Bureau of Dairy Industry U. S. Department of Agriculture

U. S. Department of Agriculture

The results of preliminary analyses of data obtained by scientists in the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, offer much promise that dairymen will soon have a new, practical, money-saving system for judging the future producing ability of heifer calves.

We have found that by examining the udder of a dairy heifer when she is 4 months old we can get a good idea whether or not she will be a good milk producer. We think that with a little practice any farmer can learn to judge heifer calves the same way.

Working with our experimental dairy herd at Heltsville, Maryland, we first determined, by feel, the avera we udder development of calves. Then we graded all the heifers as High, Medium, or Low. Later we checked the grades of these calves against their milk production records as cows. We found a fairly close match between the grades of these calves against their milk production records as cows. Since these results are based entirely on the study of animals in one herd, the plan must be rigidly tested for reliability in other herds where the inheritance for milk production may be at different levels and more variable, before it can be recommended for practical use.

The pay-off, of course, comes in culling out low producers at an early age. It costs about $125 to raise a heifer to milking age. Nearly one-third of the heifer calves now raised turn out to be unprofitable cows. If the method stands up under field tests it appears that this proportion and the resulting monetary loss can be materially reduced.

supply and demand There is always a demand for meat.
Yes, at some price. But that price is not determined by the meat's cost, or set by the meat packer. It is set by what the consumers are willing and able to pay for the meat and by-products. That is something which must be known and remembered if one is to understand the meat havingers. which must be known and remembered if one is to understand the meat business.

A good many people think that the meat packers sell meat for the cost of the livestock, plus expense, plus a profit. But that is not how meat prices are made. We must sell our meat—because it is perishable. We hope, of course, to sell it at a price which gives us a profit. But profit or loss, we must sell it. As our president, John Holmes, said recently, "We seek the price that balances supply and demand. Sometimes this is a profitable price; sometimes there is a loss. The records show that, on the average, we make a modest profit year by year."

As for prices said for livestock, they, too, are set by the forces of supply and demand. No meat packer could control them because there is so much competition both in buying and selling. There are over 4,000 meat packers and 20,000 commercial slaughterers competing daily for live pounds each.

No, things are not always as they seem. Take No, things are not always as they seem. That fence wire, for example. The fence maker paid perhaps 2t a pound for the iron. You buy it as fencing at around 7t a pound. That leaves a "spread" of 5t a pound between the raw material and the finished product. This "spread" covers heat treating, drawing the wire, weaving it, rolling, and other processes we may not know about. It includes also manufacturer's profit transportation jobbers' and retailers' costs and about. It includes also manufacturer's profit, transportation, jobbers' and retailers' costs and profits, and delivery to you.

There is also a "spread" between what you producers get for livestock and what you pay the meat dealer for meat. For one thing, an average 1000-pound steer produces only 543 pounds of meat and 161 pounds of by-products, both edible and inedible. In processing there is unrecoverable shrink and waste of 296 pounds. We also have the costs of "disassembling" live animals into meat, refrigerating, transporting to market, and delivery to retail stores. The "spread" covers also retailers' costs and profitsplus a profit for the meat packer which averages only a small fraction of a cent per pound of product handled.

products. Finally, it gets up strict quality standards for the finished products.

Our Research Laboratories are in twenty-one cities. More than 1,000,000 exacting tests are made each year in our Quality Control program. Each test takes time and work. But constant testing is the only way we can be cartain that the quality of Swift products is uniformly high. A JOB TO DO

Mayor Dennis P. Donovan recently appointed a screed ng committee which will review every proposed fical driv and cooperate with the Eastern' Unibn County group screening other drives which would affect the city, t make certain that the cause is worthy. The public will be informed of the findings of the committee and then will be in a position to guide themselves with respect to contribu-

This is an important appointment. We are beset wit drive after drive, and while there are many which ar worthy, there are many which are of questionable value The screening committee can render a good service by proper investigation and by dissemination of information for guidance of the public.

SPEAKING OF DRIVES

We have two drives which are of particular interest to the residents of the city today. One is the cancer and the other the Y.M.C.A. earnpaign for a $10,000 fund. The first is to educate, treat and do research in the field of cancer prevention and cure. One out of eight persons will die this year because of this dread disease. The disease is a respector of no person. This drive deserves your support on the basis that you are only trying to protect yourself. The "Y" drive needs no particular build-up. The asso ciation has served Rahway for many years, and served it well. The work being done is important to all groups. The association serves as a community center and it is concerned with community interests. The income is insufficient to meet the costs of operation, although the strictest of economy is practiced. Those who contribute to this fund form permanent organization. will be contributing toward something from which they will reap a benefit. Cooperatively we can do many things which individually we cannot accomplish. Cooperation with the "Y" will give us the community center we need at the 748 toward the completion of the Rahway Valley Trunk very minimum of cost.

WHAT you have tomorrow depends on what you do today, so plan for tomorrow, save for it. Build up a reserve by buying United States savings bonds and holding them. Later on they will buy you many things you want—trips, interesting vacations, education for the children. Buy bonds regularly. Every seventy-five cents will grow into a dollar.
