He's been "on the team" for nearly 50 years...

Charlie Mason happens to be a process worker. He could have been a tank truck driver, an accountant, a research chemist, or president of our company - the basic story would run the same.

He came to work for Standard Oil of New Jersey years ago. His work has been steady and his pay has been good. At 65, he'll retire with a life income under the company pension plan. In the Thrift Plan, he's got a tidy eash nest-egg saved up. He's had regular vacations with pay, and special protection in case of sickness or accident.

In short, Charlie has a high degree of the things that mean most to a man with a job He has them because it was planned that way. For over 30 years, this company's workers, their unions, and the management have worked in common agreement that people's needs as human beings are the most important thing in the world. And it's not mere generosity. It has proved plain good business all along the line.

The average Standard Oil of New Jersey worker today has been with us over 14 years. More than 8,000 of them over 20 years. That's a lot of seasoned manpower to have on your side in the competitive business of making quality gasoline and other petroleum

And its benefits extend clear out to you... Right now the whole petroleum industry is straining to meet the greatest demand for its products in all history—and this staff of skilled, experienced people is your assurance that this company's facilities will work at their efficient utmost to see that your needs

Young America is doing a lot of telephoning! ■ In many New Jersey communities most residence telephones are on party lines, and good service on party lines depends upon neighborly sharing by every user. That's why it's important to: (1) Keep calls reasonably brief. (2) Allow time between calls. (3) Release the line when some one else must make an emergency call.
