Improve Teacher Hiring Methods

Radical teachers instructing students in the general persuasions of drug use and revolutionary tactics are repugnant to nearly every parent in Rahway, but as circumstances have it, there are not a few such structures at work throughout our nation. In Rahway, the problem posed by radical teachers was discussed at a meeting of the Board of Education on March 24. The Board of Education was again forced to suspend without pay another teacher who said openly that he followed a directive of Superintendent of Schools Richard M. Nash.

This individual was told not to lead a student excursion to New Hope, Pa. He was said to have called in and threatened to report three caricatures of students and the teacher, as they were about to depart in front of the Community State Bank on Irving Street. When police checked these students, they reported marijuana and hash-brown were found.

If the circumstances at the police relate them to be true, and as the paper believe them so to be, it is rather clear that the board of education and Mr. Nash will be compelled to use more detailed and selective criteria for the hiring of teachers. Let us not forget the board was also forced to suspend a teacher without pay, after he chose to disobey school authorities. Two teacher suspensions in one year is not an inconsequential matter, and when one considers that in many years since the last suspension, the incidents outline the term of great national problems, some of the consequences of which we must bear the responsibility.

Besides judging the educational achievements of a prospective teacher in the Rahway system, the board and Mr. Nash should be acutely aware of a teacher's propensities. Does he appear to be unco-operative? Will he use his classroom as a arena for the dissemination of radical views? Some written questions put to prospective candidates would help to pinpoint possible hothead.

Let us also not forget that the three-year, non-renewed period in use by both the board and Mr. Nash is a testing time. As teacher careers turn out, a disturbingly larger number of teachers are leaving the profession because the problem becomes increasingly difficult, but few individuals of this irrational persuasion can last three years without getting some mistakes.

While these malcontents form a small percentage of teachers in Rahway, they make for the sake of good public education to be firmly handled. Drug cults and children displaying a distorted view of what their parents and this nation represent are not conditions deserving of community sympathy, and if external teacher screening is to be effective, it must be more progressive, then to that practice our school board and administration should pledge themselves.

A Big Step Towards Safety

Safety is a major consideration in every community, but in Clark it takes on added importance. Few towns are criticized with so many major safety hazards as the Garden State Parkway bisects the township and brings thousands of cars to the vicinity of recent cars that would never enter Clark otherwise.

A part of this problem also deposits itself on Central Avenue and Raritan Road where cars going to the parkway clog what is now the busiest intersection in Union County. Former Mayor William Wagner has treated before Union County Freeholders that over $2,000 a day pass through this intersection.

Westfield Avenue, another major thoroughfare, has thousands of cars daily moving along its length to St. George Avenue in Rahway. Home, also have large numbers of cars traveling to St. George Avenue. What makes the problem more acute in Clark than in other municipalities, however, is the location of most of the township's schools on heavy traffic streets.

Valley Road has several schools and churches along its length and presents more than a little danger to large numbers of students. It is very rewarding, given these conditions, to see representatives of the board of education, township council and the police department all down to work out a coordinated safety effort. They have presented 17 proposals towards good safety, and the township would go a long way to improving itself by enacting those, that upon further study, merit implementation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor: The (dangerous) guaranteed income concept inherent in the Nixon program would make welfare more respectable. It could be less respectable, if it could be made less respectable. As it is, it is well, as pointed out by the American Conservative, that the re-distribution of wealth on a massive scale. This would please Mrs. Beulah Sanders of the National Welfare Rights Organization who says "Everybody in this country has the right to share THE WEALTH." (emphasis added). However, I doubt that it would please the blue-collar and white-collar workers from whose labors are derived the taxes to support the welfare. People who work for a living tend to have little empathy for the non-workers who choose to live "high on the hog" off the earnings of others.

I suggest that the New Jersey Legislature lead the way in enacting laws requiring every able-bodied person under 65 to accept employment in private industry, however "unsuitable," rather than live "independent" on welfare. If suitable jobs should be available, then the person must be seen to be able to accept them. If not, the person must be seen to be able to accept them. If not, the person must be seen to be able to accept them.

Dispatches from Washington indicate conservation-minded citizens must rally strong opposition to H.R. 12025 (and S. 1832), called the National Timber Supply Act. Surely we who live in Union County, where woods and wildlife are at a premium, do not need to be reminded of how precious are the open spaces, natural woodlands and pure streams - with their furrows, feathered and finny denizens - still remaining in this country. These are essential for America's beautiful today as well as to maintain the ecological balance and the health of future generations.

H. R. 12025 (and S. 1832) calls for developing "into optimum timber productivity as soon as possible the national forest commercial timberlands" and classifies some 97 million acres of national forest as appropriate for high-yield forestry. Only areas now formally withdrawn from timbering would be excluded from the bill. Hereafter, Congress has never presumed to determine the predominant land use for so mammoth a chunk of public domain, but has wisely left such determination to the expertise of the land's manager.

Following are the most cogent arguments against the passage of H.R. 12025 (and S. 1832): 1. Section 7 of the bill, which requires that all unwithdrawn timberlands be devoted to producing high yields of timber, would prohibit future administrative withdrawal of such land for wildlife habitats, water-shed use, or recreational areas.

2. The projected fertilization of these areas might prove dangerous to watersheds and fisheries by inviting erosion, leaching fertilizer into unshaded mountain streams, and increasing the use of insecticides. 3. The timber supply could be increased by repeal of the present law which restricts Alaskan shipping to the U.S. mainland to U.S. vessels. Because of this law, Alaska lumber is priced out of the American market and forfeited to Japan.

4. With 90% of all forest land already owned by the U.S. government, it is unnecessary to put the remaining 10% to the test. 5. The bill would give the U.S. government the right to plunder most of Kentucky's Daniel Boone Forest, and perhaps the area around and including the Red River Gorge.

The present rate of cutting timber is geared to re-grow and replace it. The 384-million-acre U.S. National Forest System is being managed by Congress to protect the national forests against the very degradation and destruction of the National Forests. The lame excuse for H.R. 12025 is voiced by George Noyes, secretary of Housing and Urban Development: "In the next five years, domestic timber requirements for use in residential construction alone will almost double. Without this legislation it will be difficult if not impossible to build the homes America needs."

Let's get the mails moving smoothly again by giving the proposed Federal Postal Authority the right to manage effectively and the employees a guaranteed freedom of choice.

Three comments are in order here. 1. Wood is not the only material used in building houses. In fact, wood is used in less than 10% of the wood in this country has been static, despite a more than doubled population. Also, per capita consumption of wood has declined from 210 cubic feet in 1950 to 170 cubic feet in 1968.

2. The timber supply could be increased by repeal of the present law which restricts Alaskan shipping to the U.S. mainland to U.S. vessels. Because of this law, Alaska lumber is priced out of the American market and forfeited to Japan.

POST OFFICE REFORM

Since the original proposal for reforming the postal system was rejected by a congressional committee last fall, plans for a compromise measure have been developed in Washington. One of the major problems in planning the reorganization is unionism.

Postal employees are covered by an executive order until January 1, 1971, protecting their right to join or refrain from joining a union, as the employees wish.

When this Executive Order expires, Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley Act would presumably apply to them. This would mean that postal employees would have the same rights as employees in the private sector depending on whether or not they were in a right-to-work state.

The postal unions, however, do not recognize the right-to-work laws, claiming they do not apply to federal employees working on property which is owned or leased by the federal government.

The compromise postal bill contains no specific language guaranteeing freedom-of-choice and in the absence of such language compulsory unionism would be a definite threat. This would serve to minimize any positive gains in the changeover of the postal system.

Let's get the mails moving smoothly again by giving the proposed Federal Postal Authority the right to manage effectively and the employees a guaranteed freedom of choice.

In an interesting display of cooperation on March 4, three levels of government were brought together to discuss mutual problems. The occasion was another in a series of meetings sponsored by the Union County Board of Freeholders Department of Inter-Governmental Affairs.

Senator Rinaldo, chairman of the Senate Committee on County and Municipal Government, pointed out that public hearings began on March 5 would result in amendments to strengthen Senate Bill S-513, which would make the Musto Report recommendations "permissive" to the counties.

Merck Budget Is a Record $69 Million

A record $69 million budget for research and development for 1970 was announced by Merck & Co., Inc. in its annual report for 1969, which is being mailed to stockholders.

The new high in research spending will represent a 14 per cent increase over expenditures of more than $60 million in 1969, the pharmaceutical and chemical company reported. The 1970 research budget is nearly double the expenditures of $34.6 million in 1965.

The report also explains why the company's worldwide sales were up 28 per cent in 1969, which was capital investment in research facilities has amounted to $49 million since the current program of expansion and modernization began in 1962.

An all-time high in capital expenditures, amounting to nearly $100 million, was approved by the company's board of directors last year, according to the report. The sum actually spent in 1969—approximately $44 million—was a record for capital expenditures in a single year.

The largest building program in the company's history is now going forward. "We need to expand on this scale because we have been operating at or very close to full capacity in every phase of our activities, and because we must prepare future products as well as for growth by those now on the market," the report said.

Products of Merck research introduced in the United States during the past year include "Meruvax," a live-virus vaccine to prevent German measles (rubella), and "Attenvax," a live-virus vaccine against regular or attenuated virus than Merck's previous measles vaccine. The report stated that the company distributed 7,000,000 doses of Meruvax from its introduction in June through January, 1970, and that it will continue to supply the vaccine as needed, with a capacity of over 2,000,000 doses a month.

McDonough Hits At Bateman Bill

Assemblyman Peter J. McDonough (R-Union) speaking before the 1970 legislative conference of the State Federation District Boards of Education at Rider College not long ago, labeled as "error-laden" the controversial Bateman Bill which would create a new formula for state aid to school districts.

McDonough predicted that the cost to implement the bill would approximate $225 million and would take five years to implement and not the announced $180 million in a three-year period. "A major error in the bill is that it fixes an arbitrary 3,300 - pupil population for a district to qualify for maximum state aid," he said.

"This pre-supposes that smaller districts do not have as great a need for financial assistance. It also pre-supposes that the output quality of smaller districts is inferior to those that are larger. Both of these premises are contradicted by the facts." He added that the 3,500 - student criterion has the effect of being a "classical black-mail" to force smaller districts to merge.

"This provision must be corrected by amendments as well as other errors," McDonough said. "For example, K - 8 districts are excluded in favor of K - 12 districts. Again, this provision would tend to force mergers that might not be in the best interests of the people supporting the district."

McDonough said he had discussed several proposed amendments to the bill with the speaker, Senator Raymond Bateman of Somerset County. He also predicted that the bill would receive wide bipartisan support after the errors are corrected by amendment. "My primary objection to the bill in its present form is its arbitrary evaluation of school districts," he said that the education committee of the states will soon offer a formula for a school district evaluation based on output instead of input.

Smoking Is Such a Drag

To smoke or not to smoke. That is the crucial dilemma facing thousands of American smokers today. From newspapers, billboards, magazines, radio and television, Madison Avenue has long been broadcasting how glamorous it is to smoke, how relaxing it is, how smart it is. The millions of dollars poured into cigarette advertising keep the stream of propaganda flowing steadily. Over the years the success of the advertising barrage, whether subliminal or how, was apparent. In 1960 there were over 51 million cigarette smokers in the United States.

Then, in January 1964, the surgeon general released his now-famous report. The cigarette was once again in the spotlight, but instead of calling it glamorous and relaxing, he called it harmful and dangerous and deadly. The cigarette, obviously, was not everything the advertising men had cracked it up to be. Far from it. The surgeon general saw a direct connection between smoking and ill health, particularly lung cancer.

Hence the dilemma. Whether to surrender to years of conditioning and continue to smoke or to face the unpleasant facts of the surgeon general's report and put that cigarette out for good.

Evidence indicates that more and more Americans are taking the surgeon general's advice and dousing their last cigarette. Today, there are approximately 21 million ex-cigarette smokers. One in five men who once smoked have given it up. Some 100,000 physicians — half of those who had smoked — have quit the habit.

Further encouragement to fence-sitters is the discovery that much of the damage is reversible if cigarettes are given up in time. Emphysema will "mark time" and become no worse. With lung cancer, there's little chance of turning back the clock once the disease has gotten underway. But, the body has demonstrated the ability to get rid of "precancerous" cells — cells which have not made the final change to uncontrolled growing.

The federal government recently took a giant step in the direction of better health when it decided to ban all television cigarette commercials started January 1, 1970. Many major newspapers, the New York Times among them, have already established certain criteria before they will accept cigarette advertisements.

But where did it all start? History can successfully trace smoking back to Sir Walter Raleigh, whose servant doused him with water when he saw smoke swirling out of Sir Walter's mouth. The habit continued and even thrived until the century that it began to have popular appeal. The magazine advertisements glamorizing the weed started to appear in the Thirties as ladies in calf-length dresses gazed soulfully at their mustached Romeros in white double-breasted jackets. At first, only the Romeros held cigarettes, but gradually more and more ads showed ladies with cigarettes.

The greatest boom in the cigarette industry enjoyed came with World War II. There was never a package sent to a G.I. that did not include at least a few packs of his favorite butt. And one popular radio program of the war years, sponsored a leading cigarette company, always went off the air with the name of a servicemen's hospital that was going to receive hundreds of its sponsor's product.

As the number of cigarette smokers in the country continued to increase, there was also a nagging but never confirmed corresponding increase in the incidence of lung cancer. In 1921 there had been 371 deaths attributed to lung cancer. In 1930 the number jumped to over 2,300. By 1940 more than 7,000 deaths were reported. In 1950 it was up to 18,000, and in 1960 the figure stood at almost 36,500. In 1970 deaths due to lung cancer are expected to rise to 62,000.

In 1964 the connection was established. In addition, the surgeon general's report showed that the adverse effects of smoking are not limited to lung cancer. Studies made during the 1950's indicated that cigarette smokers are more likely to become ill periodically and to die early from at least three other groups of diseases: cancer of the lip, mouth, tongue, larynx, pharynx and esophagus; chronic lung ailments, especially bronchitis and emphysema, and coronary artery disease and probably other diseases of the heart and the blood-circulatory system.

There is little question but that the cigarette is the major culprit in this tragic waste of life. International studies show that the increase in lung cancer affected only countries where cigarettes had become popular. In countries where people did not smoke cigarettes, lung cancer remained a rare malady.

So why not outlaw smoking? A few days after the surgeon general's report was released, the city fathers of one Texas town prepared to outlaw both the sale and smoking of cigarettes within the town limits, under penalty of fine or imprisonment or both. But wiser counsels prevailed, and the ordinance was not passed.

The majority of public health authorities do not support such laws. The failure of the 18th Constitutional Amendment outlawing alcoholic beverages is still too fresh in too many memories. And the inability of even the most stringent laws to stamp out the illegal traffic in narcotics is further proof that a better way must be found to achieve public health goals in a free society.

To the Editor:

A Special Investigations Subcommittee of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce sought to track down documentation on four "staged news" events during the 1968 Chicago National Democratic Convention and its attendant rioting. Here are some of the shocking excerpts from its report. Senator and Mrs. Gale Mc Gee saw a newsreel crew in Grant Park arrange to have a girl demonstrator, who was wearing a bandage across her forehead, walk up to a line of National Guard troops and begin shouting, "Don't hit me!" when the newsreel crew gave the cue and began shooting.

The U. S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, Thomas A. Foran, stated that he witnessed an individual, sitting on the grass and holding a large bandage in his hand, conversing with a three-man camera crew, one of whom had the CBS trademark on his jacket. After a brief conversation, the camera crew began filming the individual, and he held the bandage along the side of the head. Mr. Foran approached in order to ascertain what they were doing, but when he inquired, the camera team immediately walked away and the individual on the ground cursed him and left the area.

In summation, the Congressional Committee found that the networks, by manipulating the news coverage of the Democratic National Convention, favored the radical mobs and held up the police and the Chicago mayor to public scorn. They and other facts in the report provide ample cause for an objective study and investigation into network "news" broadcasting. As the Federal Communications Commission pointed out, "allowing the news amounts to fraud upon the public and a very dangerous fraud indeed." In my opinion, the television networks are guilty of a systematized attack against the very institutions which sustain our way of life. And, in addition, I seriously question their political ideology.

Rahway, Clark Figure 3, 4 in WC

By Ray Hoagland

The Watchung Conference opened its season yesterday when the Rahway Indians traveled to Scotch Plains to meet the Raiders in a game that might go a long way in deciding the team title this spring. Both teams are strong and both are in rebuilding stages.

The Rahway News Record and Clark Patriot have been looking into the crystal ball and have come up with the winner. It will be the Blue Devils of Westfield, a team that appears to have the pitching strength that is needed to win in schoolboy competition. The Blue Devils are coached by Dick Zimmer, who has the nucleus from a team last season that was under .500.

The best pitcher in the league is Ed "Skeeter" MacCloskey, who had a season mark of 4 - 4 last year, allowed only 10 earned runs in 62 innings and was victimized by the team's weak hitting. MacCloskey has fine speed and control.

Other pitchers on the team are Gist Johnson, a junior righthander, the fast ball thrower on the club, seniors John Pfeiffer and Richie Anderson, both of whom are promising, and John Mayas, a good looking sophomore.

Jim Wheaton, the best-looking hitter on the club, who is up from the jayvees, will play at third base. He hit over .400. Another strong hitter up from the same team is junior first sacker Jim Dello - Russo. Joe Monninger is a solid shortstop with a strong arm and co-captains Randy Richardson and Scott Gillin are the second baseman and catcher. Richardson is a switch hitter. Both Richardson and Gillin are highly rated defensively and are expected to improve at the plate.

The outfield has two lefters, Bill Napier and Drew Ruotolo, and the third spot will be shared by pitchers Johnson and MacCloskey.

The runner-up spot is expected to go to the Raiders of Scotch Plains, who last season captured both the Watchung title and the Union County tournament. The Raiders retained only one regular shortstop, Colton Helbig, who batted .281 last season and is a fancy fielder.

Charlie Barrett is set at first with a good glove and bat. Keith Devine or Paul Cohen will open at the middle sack, while fancy fielder Jerry Di Donato will start at the hot corner. Coach Jim Sochan has two catchers to select from, Mark Checchio and Junior Don Tryon. The lead-off man is center-fielder Chip Dunn.

Other outfielders are Roger Winans, John Brower and sophomore Charles Santulano. The team has several pitchers, led by left-handed Richie Reilly and Steve McNulty.

The third slot will be a battle between the Clark Crusaders of Lou Peragallo and the Rahway Indians, under veteran Earl C. Hoagland. Both teams are strong a field, but lack experienced pitchers.

The Crusaders have talented players headed by junior center-fielder Craig Huger, who hit .239 last year and was selected on The Rahway News Record All Conference team. Gary Bechell is at second, a good govtman, Ron Miller is at first and Jim Blackburn is behind the mask.

The second division will be topped by the Highlanders of Berkeley Heights, who will be playing under a new coach, Fred Steuber, who played at short last season, is looked on as a thrower and when not on the mound will operate at shortstop.

Al Zolto is a fine-looking third baseman who also can pitch when needed. Other hurlers are sophomores Jack Flath, George Rothweiler and George Seeverance and senior Jack Burkert.

The Indians have six experienced players headed by junior center-fielder Craig Huger, who hit .239 last year and was selected on The Rahway News Record All Conference team. Gary Bechell is at second, a good govtman, Ron Miller is at first and Jim Blackburn is behind the mask.

The dark horse of the league could be the Cougars of Cranford, who finished second last year to Scotch Plains in the league and the county tournament. Coach Bob Baberski has only one pitcher returning from last season. He is Mike Prutzman. He also has two hard-throwing sophomores in Harry Linderoth and Richie Mazzella.

The infield appears set with John Van Brunt behind the plate, Tom Beadle at second, Al DiFazio at third, Ray Santella at short, all start his third season at good fielders and hitters, Dan Aver and Dennis Connolly are battling for first base. Chris Cudd, Bob Husiak and Bob Diakon are the outfielders.

Hillside's Comets playing under a new coach, veteran Joe Silver, director of athletics appears to be weak at the plate. There is only one returning pitcher, but Cohan or Ken Rickel hitting they are strong on defense, the other spot.

Richie Gelman, strong defensively and one of the team's better hitters, will start his third season at second. Junior letterman Dan Aver and Dennis Connolly will share short. Bruce Base, Chris Cudd, Bob Husiak and Bob Diakon are the outfielders.

Hillside's Comets playing under a new coach, veteran Joe Silver, director of athletics appears to be weak at the plate. There is only one returning pitcher, but Cohan or Ken Rickel hitting they are strong on defense, the other spot.

Coach Lou Peragallo will start curve-ball specialist Phil Schifano, who had a 4-3 mark last season, while Blue Devils' coach Dick Zimmer will start his mainstay, Ed "Skeeter" MacCloskey, a southpaw.

Clark will play Gary Smolyn at first, Bob Blew at second, Fred Bauer at short and Mike Miller at third. In the outer gardens, it will be Bill Wojciak in left, Tom Squashic in center and George Scott in right. Veteran Doug Techanichuk will operate with the big glove and mask.

Rahway finished fourth in team scoring with eight points. The meet was taken by St. Benedict with 13, Johnson Regional scored one point in the meet.

Both Rahway and Clark will compete in the annual St. Joseph's meet at Montvale this week.

Joe Williams of Rahway, one of the highest scoring riders in New Jersey school elastic football history and a pro star for the last seven years, is coming home to root as the first player to sign with the newly-formed Jersey Tigers of the Atlantic Coast League.

Williams' signing was announced by Bill Caruso, general manager of the Tigers, who indicated that the team's roster will be filled mostly by New Jersey producers.

The Tigers will launch their first campaign this fall, playing home games Friday and Saturday nights at renovated Williams' Field off Route 1, Elizabeth. The Tigers will be the top farm club of the Baltimore Colts.

The 205 - pound, 5 - 11 Williams, who led the Continental League in rushing last year with more than 1,000 yards and 18 touchdowns for the Chicago Owls, is best remembered in these parts as the Rahway High School boy who in 1958 piled up 191 points in an incredible eight game display.

In sparking Rahway to an undefeated season, Williams broke loose for 30 touchdowns and added 11 extra points. The 191 tallies still is a Union County scholastic record and was top figure in the state that year.

The powerful fullback also established a single-game record that still exists. In Clark's last game as a schoolboy, Joe rolled up 42 points against Springfield High on six TDs and six extra-point rushes. One of his touchdowns was a 100-yard return of an intercepted pass.

Williams then starred for three years at the University of Iowa, being named to the Coaches' All-American second team in 1961.

Then came a spectacular debut in the Canadian Professional League as he sparked Winnipeg to the Grey Cup championship in 1962. After a few years in the Canadian League, Joe switched to the Continental League.

He was that club's top rusher in 1965, leading scorer in 1968 and No. 1 rusher again in 1969.

Williams' signing came a few days after the Tigers announced the naming of Ken Carpenter as coach of the club. Carpenter was 1969 Coach of the Year in the Continental League after his Indianapolis team won the championship.

Season tickets for the Tigers' home games are now on sale at Jersey State Sports Inc., 530 E. South Ave., Cranford.

It's easier to drive than a Volkswagen.

Just for the record, there are two kinds of Volkswagens around. The Volkswagen. And the Volkswagen with an automatic stick shift. Now the idea of driving a Volkswagen with a regular stick shift may scare you. But the idea of driving a Volkswagen with an automatic stick shift, shouldn't. It makes everything very easy. It does away with the clutch pedal. It does away with shifting every other mile. (You merely put it in Drive 1 to start. Then Drive 2 at 55mph.) And best of all, it doesn't do away with giving you a good 25 miles to a gallon of gas. (The average car only gives you 14.) After all, why make a Volkswagen that's easy to drive. If you take away the best reason for driving it.
